
There will be some unabashed excursions into nostalgia, but we will also want to consider the proposition that the work the human potential movement set out to accomplish is scarcely begun, and that the value of some stock-taking from the past is to get a better sense of where we go from here. $230

Week of November 11–16

Fluidity in Motion: Rolf®-Movement

Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Mr. Dufy lived a short distance from his body"
—James Joyce

Elisa writes: "This workshop provides a creative environment to explore the concepts of movement education based on the principles of Ida Rolf—a process of fine tuning and harmonizing our unique instrument from restricted to spontaneous, tense to flowing, inhibited to open. We focus on deepening our kinesthetic awareness of the relationship between our body's structure and emotional attitudes. Everyday movements and specialized activities such as jogging, playing musical instruments, etc., become more effortless and graceful when we are balanced to gravity. The spirit we open to through this awareness is ageless. It is the source of our enthusiasm, excitement, and strength. Group and individual work will be offered, using gestalt, dance, and the healing use of touch, all for the benefit of becoming more present. Video feedback will be used." $450

Somewhere Between Freedom and Security

Phyllis Shankman

Living is often experienced as a delicate balance between one's desire for personal freedom or growth and the need for security and attachment. In this workshop, participants will explore the issues of independence/dependence, self-esteem, trust, risk-taking, work, love, and relationship. During the week, participants will use meditation, massage, music, movement, and the Esalen/Big Sur environs to slow down, relax, open, and experience themselves fully. Gestalt process work will be used to increase self-awareness. $450

The Winning Seminar

JoAnne & Saul Miller

The Winning Seminar presents principles and practices for enhancing performance and pleasure.

Winning is effectiveness and power. It is an attitude and an ability to concentrate energy and thought in achieving one's goal(s). Winning is compatible with harmony, sensitivity, and joy.

In this seminar Saul adapts practices used in developing a winning edge for top-level competition to the goals and circumstances of the participants. The workshop will include: psychophysical charging and release processes, breath-balancing, diet, focusing, imagery, plus methods to clear and strengthen intention, commitment, confidence, and belief.

Suggested reading: Food for Thought: A New Look at Food and Behavior, JoAnne & Saul Miller (Prentice Hall). $450

Fundamentals of Acupressure

Michael Reed Gach

With the pressure and pace of modern living, people need more than ever before, ways to release stress. Unmanaged pressures and chronic tensions are now recognized as major health hazards. In this acupressure workshop, participants will be taught simple breathing exercises and finger pressure on key acupuncture points which can help relieve headaches, anxiety, and neck and shoulder tension.

The course provides an overview of four different forms of acupressure: Do-In, Shiatsu, Jin Shin Do, and Reflexology, along with instruction in acu-yoga for increased effectiveness. Acupressure point interrelationships will be taught as a practical foundation for understanding how to use complimentary points for releasing special imbalances. The workshop will also include how to assess and individualize sessions through basic pulse reading, physiognomy (face reading), the chakras, and general body language.

Recommended reading: By Michael Reed Gach: Acu-Yoga: Self-Help Techniques (Japan Pub., Harper & Row Dist.), The Bum Back Book (available through Acu-Press, 1533 Shattuck Ave., Berkeley, Ca 94709.) $450

Weekend of November 16–18

Converging the Frontiers of Politics, Psychology, and Peacemaking

John Vasconcellos & Mitch Saunders

As an invitation for aspiring peacemakers this is an occasion for exploring and expanding our innate capacities for becoming peacemakers—in every relationship of our lives, from the most intimate to the most global.

Redefining psychology, politics, and peace requires: re-envisioning ourselves as persons, recognizing ourselves as politicians, realizing ourselves as peacemakers.

Addressing all this entails: making peace with myself, attending to the trusting, opening relationships which inspire us to carry ourselves into politics and peacemaking with more vision, boldness, durability, and always integrity; translating our commitment to peacemaking into practical efforts. $230

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

"For one human being to love another: that is perhaps the most difficult of all our tasks, the ultimate, the last test and proof, the work for which all other work is but preparation."
—Rainer Maria Rilke

The goal of this weekend is to provide a context in which couples can focus and explore their relationship in the areas of communication, closeness, conflict, and individuality. A balance of structured and spontaneous interactions will be used within the framework of the large group, subgroups, and the couple. Limited to ten couples. $230 per participant

Alternatives for Managers: An Energy Training Perspective

Susan & Joel Kirsch

Susan and Joel write: "How can managers effectively deal with the changes that constantly bombard them? Does supervision of others have to lead to conflict? Can managers combine strength with sensitivity while providing leadership? In this workshop we use movement exercises from Leonard Energy Training along with demonstration and discussion to discover the manager's role in creating and supporting quality and excellence in the workplace. Leonard Energy Training is a process that blends Western psychology, Eastern philosophy, and physics to reveal alternative ways of dealing with everyday life situations and increasing the flow of vital energy.

"Participants will have the opportunity to gain insights into their own managerial style and explore alternative ways to increase productivity, improve teamwork, and enhance personal and professional performance." $230

On Letting Go

Judyth Weaver

In everything we do we have choices, but do we recognize them? We can perform the same actions in a stressful or a relaxed manner, wastefully or economically. We can hold on tightly or let go. We can have fun or suffer. The more in touch we are with our feelings and abilities, the more options are available to us.

This workshop will focus on rediscovering awareness of self—mentally, physically, and spiritually—to develop and integrate as many options as possible. It is through this awareness that we can acquire choice of how to live.

We will work with deep sensing of our organism, with gentle breathing methods for stress reduction, t'ai chi ch'uan for relaxed exercise, gestalt, movement, massage, and meditations. All these explorations can lead to a sense of centered grounding and balance with which to develop and enhance an economic, energetic, pleasurable, and effective life.

$230

Week of November 18–23

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Gestalt

Seymour Carter

For workshop description see September 16-21. $450

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman

Janet writes: "This workship will provide a safe environment for exploring the 'unfinished business' in our lives.

"I believe that when unfinished business from the past is projected into current relationships one is prevented from fully appreciating others in the "here and now."

"The emotional release methods that I have developed over the past decade support completion of this unfinished business through the honest expression of feelings." $450

The Language of Dreams

Leo Matos

This is an experiential seminar on different approaches to dreaming and psychological work with dreams. The emphasis in the seminar will be on cross-cultural comparison of the use of dreams; typical Occidental approaches such as Sigmund Freud's psychoanalysis, C. G. Jung's analytical psychology, and Fritz Perls' gestalt practice will be complemented by the methods used by the Senoi in Malaysia, the North American Indians, and by the tantric tradition in Tibetan Buddhism. Participants will have the opportunity to learn how they can use dream work for enhancing their lives. $450

Weekend of November 23–25

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman

For workshop description see September 28-30. $230

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

For workshop description see September 14-16. $230

Weekend Massage Intensive

Peggy Morrison Horan & Char Pias Brenner

In this introductory seminar participants will learn to give a competent full-body massage. The emphasis will be on developng a soothing and penetrating contact, on sustaining that contact to create a relaxing and integrating experience, and on centering physical and mental energies while working. The intent of the seminar is to introduce massage as a practical approach to developing greater sensory awareness and bringing relief from stress. $230

The Soviet Experience

Nina Tumarkin

Are Russians just like us? Or do they really inhabit a different world? The most positive step that aware Americans can take today is to learn to see the world through Soviet eyes, to reach for the future from the heroic, grisly, and dramatic past of the Soviet Russian land and people. This workshop on the Soviet psyche will be a collective experience of learning, insight, humor, beauty, distress, political awareness, and spiritual growth.

Recommended reading: To Build a Castle, Vladimir Bukovsky (Viking); The Ivankiad, Vladimir Voinovich; The Russians, Hedrick Smith. $230

Anatomy for Trager Students

Deane Juhan

This seminar is offered as a continuation of the professional training for students of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics . It will examine the anatomical structures of the body and their kinesthetic relationships, with specific reference to how these structures and relationships are handled by the Trager approach.

Half of the time will be used for slide presentations, lecture, and discussion concerning particular areas of the body. The rest will be spent practicing aspects of a Trager session which correspond to those areas. The emphasis will be on clarifying for the student the intent of the various hand positions and movements, based upon an understanding of structure, function, and motor reflex.

Since supervised Trager table work will be an important part of the class, a beginning Trager training is a prerequisite.

For futher information on Trager work see this issues' Food for Thought article entitled: The Trager Approach: Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics by Deane Juhan. $230

A Course in Miracles for Non-Beginners

Julian Silverman

This seminar is for people who have been studying A Course in Miracles and want to clarify their approach to working with its ideas. Learning to "see through" things, the recognition of Spirit in ordinary relationships, and one's relationship with God are a few of the ideas which will be focused on.

Prerequisite: Completion of at least the first 35 Lessons in the Workbook; completion of the first 65 pages of the Text. $230

Week of November 25–30

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Five Day Massage Intensive

Vicki Topp & Bill Liles

For workshop description see September 9-14. $450

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see September 2-7. $450

The Performer in You: Achieving Stage Presence

David Feldshuh

Much of our everyday lives is performance: we present ourselves to other people; we give speeches or run meetings; we tell jokes or stories; we play sports. There is an optimum psycho-physical presence for performing anything: a mind-body condition that is clear of tension, centered, free, and spontaneous. The first step in developing this presence is awareness of individual physical and mental resistances. Next, one must learn practical ways to work through these resistances. The goal is stage presence: the ability as a performer to occupy time and space and the willingness to feel entitled to occupy that time and that space. These qualities can be learned. We can learn to perform so that we allow ourselves to be successful instead of bracing ourselves for failure. We can also learn to act more readily from a region beyond the boundaries of conscious control or judgmental intelligence, a region requiring the capacity to surrender to the moment and live fully in it.

Using exercises from mime, karate, theater games, voice, and mask work as well as methods adapted from gestalt and Zen meditation, this workshop will attempt to cultivate the performer in each participant regardless of previous performing experience. $450

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support participants will clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work.

$450

November 25–December 21

Month Long Esalen Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 39. $1800

Weekend of November 30–December 2

A Special Weekend at Esalen

Except for two introductory workshops, we have set aside this weekend for all those Esalen friends who would like to spend time at Esalen, enjoying the grounds, the baths, and the community, without participating in a group. Massage and other work offered by individual practitioners will be available as usual. Big Sur musicians and dancers will perform as part of the weekend's activities. $120

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Week of December 2–7

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

The Body Has Its Reasons

Peter Levine

For workshop description see September 9-14. $450

Reflectors

Jenny O'Connor & the NINE

For workshop description see September 30-October 5. $450

The Spiritual Path: Promises and Pitfalls

Christina & Stanislav Grof

We will combine observations from modern consciousness research and from various mystical traditions to explore the process of spiritual awakening. Participants will have the opportunity to confront through experiential exercises transpersonal areas within themselves. The method of "holonomic integration," developed by the workshop leaders, combines evocative music, controlled breathing, facilitative body work, and mandala drawing. Special attention will be paid to the understanding and management of "spiritual emergencies"—transpersonal or evolutionary crises which can occur in the context of various spiritual practices or spontaneous spiritual awakening.

$450

Body Experience: An Intensive

Dub Leigh & Dee Dee Lozier

This workshop is designed for individuals seeking release from body pain, tension, and trauma. Participants will be able to explore body work methods which aim to begin or accelerate changes toward greater awareness, comfort, and function.

Dub and Dee Dee write: "We'll use the trigger point work of Nimeo-St. John to release pain and tension, the work of Ida Rolf to re-align body structure, and the work of Moshe Feldenkrais to enhance function and movement. The format will include group movement exercises, the teaching and practicing of simple and effective methods for working on others, plus individual private sessions with the two of us."

$450

Weekend of December 7–9

Experiencing Your Psychic / Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see November 9-11. $230

Reprinting: A New Growth Process

Hector Prestera

For workshop description see October 12-14. $230

Dreams, Energy, and Transformation

Kenneth Kelzer

Dreams are a power source within the body / mind, offering us a wide variety of energies and "raw materials of the psyche." These energies, once refined and transformed, serve to elevate our lives to new levels. This workshop will employ a wide variety of dream transformational methods for personal renewal and energy expansion.

We will use gestalt processes, psychodrama, the Senoi methods, Jung's depth psychology, intuitive feedback, and creative art media as our principal tools. Participants will have ample time to present their own dreams and are urged to bring their dream journals to the workshop.

Suggested reading: Black Elk Speaks, chapters 3, 13, and 14; Creative Dreaming, Patricia Garfield, chapter 5; Man and His Symbols, Carl Jung, chapter 1; Gestalt Therapy Verbatim, Fritz Perls. $230

The Essence of Alan Watts

Robert Shapiro

Alan Watts was a great interpreter of Eastern wisdom to the West in the 1960s. Through several videotapes made shortly before his death, Watts continues to contribute his insights on the challenges in today's world and talks about paths toward more personal nourishment and achievement.

Some of the tape titles are: Work as Play, Time, God, Meditation, and Nothingness. Each tape showing will be followed by group discussion.

$230

The Wheel of Life and Death

Sogyal Rinpoche

The traditional mandala of the Wheel of Life is a map of our state of mind and its projections, which arise from ignorance, habitual patterns and negative emotions. As we struggle to achieve the goals of life and satisfy desires, we sink deeper and deeper into the swamp of samsara, the vicious circle of life and death. The meditative approach of the wisdom of Buddha has given us a clear insight into how to free ourselves from this chain and how to transform this very confusion into wisdom and self-nourishment, so as to enrich our lives.

The experience of death cannot be understood in isolation from life—in the mirror of death our entire life is reflected. This weekend seminar will investigate the Buddhist perspective on death, and how it can help us towards a better understanding of giving practical care to the dying. Sogyal Rinpoche is a specialist in the traditional knowledge of the Tibetan Book of the Dead. He is able to blend his traditional training in guiding and caring for the dying with the insights developed through his research and dialogue with various medical professionals and hospice workers in the West. Rinpoche will provide practical methods for giving the most effective and compassionate care for the dying, including how to help a dying person prepare for death, overcoming the fear of pain and of death, and how to involve the family as a natural support system, before death and during the bereavement period. He will also describe the process of death, and how to prepare for one's own death. $230

Week of December 9--14

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

For workshop description see September 23-28. $450

The Therapeutic Approaches of Milton H. Erickson, M.D.

Jane Parsons assisted by Francis Lu

This is a course designed for professionals in the mental health field. Dr. Erickson's approaches are of particular value because of his exquisite understanding of the use of verbal and nonverbal communication to affect physiological changes. A clinician who knows how to talk to a patient's unconscious mind, which Erickson defines as a rich storehouse of learning potential, can call upon abilities and experiences unique to that patient and can evoke hitherto unrecognized strengths and "patterns of happiness." These patterns can come alive even in a hospital bed and can have powerful therapeutic effects.

This course will teach clinicians to discover and develop their own unique resources that will enhance and refine their therapeutic methods and that will enable them to sharpen their sensory skills so that they can understand and utilize minimal nonverbal responses.

Dr. Erickson's understanding of how the mind works will be explored didactically and experientially. We will watch his training sessions on video, and will integrate these with practical exercises that gradually build up technical skills. Clinicians will be invited to present cases for discussion.

Workshop attendance is limited to mental health professionals with graduate degrees (M.S., Ph.D., M.S.W., D.D.S., etc.) in health related fields from accredited institutions and to graduate students in accredited programs in the above fields who supply a letter from their departmental chairperson certifying their student status.

Recommended reading: My Voice Will Go With You, Sidney Rosen (Norton & Co., N.Y.); by Jay Haley: Uncommon Therapy (Norton & Co., N.Y.), Strategies of Psychotherapy, and Advanced Techniques of Hypnosis and Therapy: Selected Papers of Milton Erickson (Grune & Stratton, N.Y.).

C.E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 41. $450

December 9–16

A Seven Day Workshop in Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics: Beginning Training

Betty Fuller

In this professional training, participants are instructed in Trager table work, receiving sessions from experienced practitioners as well as giving to and receiving from each other under supervision. In addition, participants learn to practice and teach mentastics, learn basic communication skills, clearing exercises, and simple meditations, and have time in the group to share and process their experience. This training is open to professionals in education, body work, holistic health care, counseling, psychology, medicine, chiropractic, sports, performing arts, and other disciplines which see movement as a primary means of learning.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 41. $680

December 9–23

Psychic Healing: The Science and the Art

Elizabeth Stratton

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 39. $1120

Weekend of December 14–16

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman

For workshop description see September 28-30. $230

The Therapeutic Approaches of Milton H. Erickson, M.D.

Jane Parsons assisted by Francis Lu

For workshop description see December 9-14. $230

Changing Values in American and Soviet Societies

John Naisbitt & Andre Melville

John Naisbitt, author of the best-seller Megatrends and Dr. Andre Melville of the Soviet Academy Institute of United States and Canada Studies will share insights about changing values in American and Soviet societies. Naisbitt sees the shift from national economies of the post-industrial nations to a more globally-centered and interdependent economy as a world-wide change which is a step towards peace. Melville will discuss aspects of contemporary Soviet culture that are little known and little understood in the West. $230

Week of December 16–21

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman

For workshop description see October 28-November 2. $450

Advanced Massage Intensive

George King & Esalen Massage Staff

This workshop will include morning and afternoon practice sessions with various instructors, yoga, movement, evening lectures and discussions, and demonstrations of specific practices designed to increase the range of conditions with which participants can deal effectively. The following concerns will receive emphasis: how to sustain one's energy through a day of treatments; how to clear negative energy released by the client; how to use weight and leverage. As one massages more and more deeply, emotional changes can be triggered by the unravelling of blocked muscular energy. As these emotions present themselves, they will provide group members with some first hand practice in productive ways to move through them.

The format and pace of this course will presume some previous massage experience—at least an introductory five day intensive or its equivalent. $450

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

It is very rare for most people to use painting purely for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to do it just for the process of exploration, not for the result. This workshop will focus upon the painting experience as a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to creative expression. Emphasis will be placed upon the practical experience of creative painting in which participants will be given the support and stimulation to discover a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling. The mechanisms and patterns that prevent creative action will be discussed in order to integrate understanding with experience. The work will take place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, and a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. An audio-visual program will illustrate the development of inner expression during the painting process.

The workshop has proved to be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122. (415) 564-8515. $450 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders)

Weekend of December 21–23

Weekend Massage Intensive

George King & Laurie Muller (Lioness)

For workshop description see November 23-25. $230

Gestalt Workshop

Marty Fromm

This workshop is designed for professionals who are interested in further personal growth and professional training in the practice of gestalt, as well as for others who are simply interested in their own personal growth through gestalt. While the sessions will be mostly experiential, ample time will be provided for didactic sessions of theory and practice.

The focus is on awareness: the discovery of what is, rather than on what was, might be, or should be. We will concentrate on "how and now" rather than on "why and because" of past and future, and will attend to body language and feelings. $230

The Human Energy System and Gestalt Process

Alan Schwartz

The human being's movement toward a stable and balanced organism undergoes many adjustments in direct proportion to his/her responses to parental and environmental messages. The result is the formulation of stratified patterns of visible physiology and behavior. These join to form that which is usually called personality, one's individual energy system. Two common examples of energy system responses to life stress are those personalities who collapse under stress and those who control. There are many more. This will be a weekend to explore and understand our individual energy systems and their relation to how we make and inhibit intrapersonal and interpersonal contact. One focus will be on the simple task of being present, physiologically and emotionally, being aware that contact refers to our consistent awareness process and the autonomous expression of who we are. For additional information read the December 23-28 description. $230

Personal Mythology: Our Epic Journey

Stanley Krippner & David Feinstein

This seminar focuses on personal myths—the deep forces of the psyche that shape who we are, what we think, and what we do. Operating largely outside of conscious awareness, our personal myths nonetheless pave our journey through life, our place in society, and our relationship to the broader or spiritual context of existence. Showing participants how to reach deeply into realms of unconscious mythological wisdom, the workshop speaks to our need to find the visions that will nourish and inspire us. Drawing upon a range of systems including Jungian psychology, gestalt, psychosynthesis, dream interpretation, and cognitive psychology, participants will be led through a powerful and moving sequence of experiences that can rework a problematic area of their personal mythology. These experiences can be used again later to identify and work with other personal myths that may be creating problems in one's life. Participants are asked to bring a notebook or personal journal and are encouraged to record their dreams in it prior to the workshop.

Recommended reading: Human Possibilities, Stanley Krippner (Anchor). $230

Week of December 23–28

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Christmas Present

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

We've idealized birth in the Christmas story—the newborn child surrounded by adoring parents, singing angels, comforting animals; worshipped by the wise and the simple, welcomed into the world and loved for nothing that he does, but for simply being who he is. Most of us were not welcomed in that way, and at Christmastime our disillusionment peaks. Our despondency and regrets are based on unfulfilled ideals, promises, and fairy tales. Using gestalt, guided fantasy, theater games, and rituals, we will seek to release ourselves from the excess baggage of past regrets and future expectations in order to return to the divine simplicity of our own present being. Out of that simplicity, we will create our own "Christmas present," a celebration in which each of us singly and all of us together can give ourselves our self for Christmas. $450

Effecting Change: The Human Energy System and Risk

Alan Schwartz

This is a week for recognizing the relationship between personal growth / change and economic / environmental realities. This is a week for designing a growth pattern for your individual energy system to provide more stable contact with the difficulties of the emerging decade.

The human energy system represents a constantly changing personality dimension. Often neglected in the system's movement towards maturity is the development of the consistency of strength. We hear metaphors not only of physical strength, but strength of character, strong emotions, and the spiritual and psychic strengths of perception. Lack of strength development leads each of us to develop compensations in order to be able to function in our chosen worlds. Some of the obvious are psychosomatic problems, blame, denial, and indiscriminate sexual functioning. Power over self, people, things is often a major compensation for the strength that allows us the experience of self, people, and things.

Risk involves awareness of our individual compensations, trusting self and the group process enough to experiment with mobilizing more energy. This means rendering more alive the strength of the physiology, feelings, conceptual process, and psychic perceptiveness. The result is clarity and stability and a deeper awareness of the balance of self as we contact the very real issues of the decade that is upon us. For further information, read the December 21-23 workshop description. $450

Educating the Genius Within—The Feldenkrais Method

Harriet Goslins

"By my body's actions . . . teach my mind."
—Shakespeare

The habitual way you sit, stand, or move reflects patterns that are "wired-in" to your nervous system. This information can be erased or changed. By re-educating the brain / muscle connection, restrictions in your movement are freed, freeing also the life-time habits that have organized around that movement.

Awareness-through-movement lessons are a relearning of the ease and fluidity you took for granted as a child and lost somewhere along the way. Physical injury, emotional trauma, or on-going stress all evoke a protective response from the body. These patterns, necessary at the time, remain when no longer needed, outside of our awareness, and continue to cause discomfort and unnecessary limitation. Freeing them results in relief of chronic pain or tightness, a more restful sleep, and a higher energy level. When you change how you hold your muscles, your entire protective posture is altered, deeply affecting the body's habitual defense system. Thus, new movement possibilities mean new self-image possibilities.

This workshop is for those who are physically active and fit and want to increase their skills while learning to reduce risk of injury, for the sedentary or those dealing with after-effects of injuries, and for the average person who feels chronically tired and stressed and wants to learn how to take better care of his neck, shoulders, and back, to improve his posture and breathing, and to live and move with more flexibility and comfort.

Suggested reading: Awareness Through Movement, Moshe Feldenkrais. $450

December 23–30

A Seven Day Workshop in Rubenfeld Synergy Method

Ilana Rubenfeld

For workshop description see September 2-9. $680

Weekend of December 28–30

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Exorcising the Demon "Should"

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Within each of us there lives a demon—our own personal critic—whose greatest joy comes from criticizing, denigrating, and destroying every experience we have. We're either too early or too late, too old or too young, too fat or too thin, and when we fall in love, we're never good enough.

This demon, who commands us to be who we aren't in order to satisfy someone we can never satisfy, is the demon that we will seek to exorcise during the weekend.

What if you actually tried to be everything you think you should be? This monumental task is made easier when confronted with laughter. We will build up that image, and then act it out as fully as we possible can. We'll contrast that with the experience of ourselves as we are spontaneously. With the help of this experience in contrasts, we will explore our possibilities of movement between the two, and in this way open up our options to the full range of our own authentic being. $230

Psychic Self-Defense

Elizabeth Stratton

The power of psychic energy cannot be overestimated. We are constantly bombarded by the emotions and thoughts of people around us, as well as by the accumulated energies of the environments in which we live and work. We can also be affected by the physical illnesses of people we are close to, sometimes to the point of actually manifesting those illnesses as if they were our own.

This workshop will give you an opportunity to explore the weaknesses in your psychic defense system, to learn how to release the negative energies you pick up, to repair and strengthen your aura, and to develop your psychic sight so that you can protect yourself from absorbing unwanted energies in the future. $230

Week of December 30–January 4

Clowning for Life: A Gestalt Workshop

Rickie Wolf

"The fool who persists in his folly becomes wise." —William Blake

Clowning for Life is a study of how to be fully present. It is a search for the state of consciousness where contradictions can be embraced and where suffering and limitation are transformed through acceptance and play. Clowning is a surrender, a free-fall into being.

The workshop focuses on the joy of the full and unified expression of body, emotion, mind, and spirit. It offers an escape from the ponderous into an attitude that life is an invitation to play.

Participants are asked to bring a hat and some clothes to use as costumes. $450

Forgiveness and Letting Go of Judgement

Elizabeth Stratton

"The giving up of judgment, the obvious prerequisite for hearing God's Voice, is usually a fairly slow process, not because it is difficult, but because it is apt to be perceived as personally insulting."—A Course in Miracles

Elizabeth writes: "The training of the Western mind, both spiritually and intellectually, is oriented toward judgment. We are taught to induce, deduce, analyze, dissect, defend, debate. We are taught to feel guilty, to get sick, to engage in self punishment and the punishment of others. We are encouraged to rebuke ourselves into perfection.

"We do not know the healing quality of true remorse, or how to let go of that which we should never have held onto in the first place—the real meaning of forgiveness. In studies of people who have died and come back to talk about it, the most unifying element of their experiences was the meeting with a Being of white light who stood by with unconditional love, no judgment, and humor as they watched their lives roll before them like movies. The only judge was the person watching his/her own life.

"This workshop will be experiential. You are invited to observe the judgmental prison of your own mind, to feel the cleansing power of remorse, and to allow your heart to open to the freedom and healing that comes from forgiving yourself and others." $450

Catharsis and Beyond

Jessica Moore Britt

Insight and body-oriented practices depend on awareness and on the expression of sensations, feelings, and images that most of us ordinarily repress. Insight and catharsis by themselves, however, may not necessarily lead us into the depth that transpersonal disciplines like meditation and shamanism cultivate. Practitioners of meditation and shamanism, on the other hand, may neglect the emotional/physical clearing that often allows the opening from which our depths may emerge, be perceived, and integrated. This workshop seeks to join these two levels of practice. Using gestalt awareness practice, Reichian breath work, meditation, and chanting, we will begin to explore the relationship between the learned patterns of our personality and the depths of our being. $450

Rethinking Security

John Marks, Eric Helt & Judith & Robbie Gass

This workshop will explore the intellectual, experiential, and creative aspects necessary for international and personal security. It will provide the participants with an opportunity to experience what breakthroughs are possible on security questions using an eclectic mix of data, process, dance, song, and cognitive discussion.

Recommended reading: Search for the Manchurian Candidate, John Marks. $450

Integration

Deborah Anne Medow

Deborah writes: "The body reflects what is going on in the mind. By working with my body physically through exercise, yoga, massage, or whatever practice it is that I do, I can affect a change in my thoughts and habits—my whole pattern of living. Conversely, changing my mental attitudes can influence a change in my body's form.

"Having integrated into my life various practices and activities including gestalt, interpersonal process, massage, hiking, and movement, I have found a new sense of awareness of the levels at which I am working and where my limitations lie in these areas. By knowing my limitations, I am able to see with more clarity where and how to proceed to bring about growth and change.

"Participants will be presented with guidelines to integrate both their own practices and those offered in the workshop. In the mornings we will come together for yoga followed by a light breakfast. In some of the sessions following, we will explore creative movement and dance, out of which can evolve a deeper understanding of each individual's inner rhythms. Other sessions will include the practices listed above and an opportunity during an afternoon hike to observe nature's cycles as a way to reflect on our own natural cycles and movements.

"I have noticed that when I explore areas where I have been holding in my body, there follows a simultaneous opening and awakening in my mind. This insight is a valuable personal tool which I hope to pass on to the others in this workshop. $450

Weekend of January 4–6

A Retreat Weekend at Esalen

This weekend is open to all those who would like to spend time at Esalen, enjoying the grounds, the baths, and the community, without participating in a group. Massage and other work offered by individual practitioners will be available as usual. $120

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Intuition Practice

Helen Palmer

This seminar teaches the identification of personal intuition systems that can be made accessible by internal focusing practices, or that may already be operating in unrecognized ways. The practices develop the ability to discriminate between personal thoughts, fantasies projected from personal thinking, and impressions received from situations unknown to the thinking self. The psychic aspect of intuition rests on the ability to shift attention from the self to impressions received from outside the self. $230

Movement Meditation

Susan Harper

The workshop will focus on individual movement and group energetics, exploring the interplay of motion across a wide spectrum. There may be tiny micro-movements, deeply sensual undulates, and dynamic movements in space. You are encouraged to widen and narrow the lens of your attention, to see the possibility of infinite variation in every activity of the organism.

Susan describes her experience of movement in this way: "In dancing, the sense of self, the cultural self, disappears. One dissolves into the waves of life motion. Within every cell of our bodies is a deep biological intelligence that knew how to create our complexity when we were in our mother's womb. It is the intelligence that creates life. We can merge with that and allow it to speak to us of creation . . . of the formation of primal earth, of early creatures, and one-celled organisms . . . of the time we swam in the oceans and took to the air.

"Sometimes the sense of all forms and creatures drops away and there is just the movement of something unknown. And sometimes there is just the moving.

"When we are living in that kind of creative flow, we feel the most aligned with the natural life force of this planet. One feels the power of the vision of life, the wholeness of life. To dance, to envision, to be playfully inspired are the qualities which widen our human perspectives and take us joyfully into the unknown." $230

Love and Work

Anne & John Caple

"Work is love made visible," wrote Kahlil Gibran. In this workshop, participants will examine their work-life and work options in the context of their love for themselves, for others, and for the larger world. Working from a conceptual base, the group will use integrative exercises, art, body work, and gestalt processes to seek answers and consider life decisions. The goal is for participants to see more clearly what they want and how to get it. One outcome will be a specific action plan.

This weekend is for those who want more value in their work-life, for career changers and potential career changers, for re-entry persons, and for those who influence others in career choices. Some time will be available for individual life / work issues during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs.

Suggested reading: Careercycles, John Caple (Prentice-Hall). $230

Week of January 6–11

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Five Day Massage Intensive

Bill Liles & Peggy Morrison Horan

For workshop description see September 9-14. $450

Furthering: A Workshop for a Work-in-Progress

Rosemary Feitis & Crystal Miller

Creating a work usually involves a compromise between the impulse and the material. Problems in one area can often be unplugged by moving to another area for a while. A prerequisite for this workshop is to be actively engaged in a work-in-progress: thesis, artwork, client list, portfolio. (Seeing yourself as a work-in-progress, however, is a little like biting your own tail.) Bring your creations with you and we will offer a framework in which to take them to the next step. $450

I Ching: Easy Learning from the Center

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

Chungliang writes: "This seminar helps you delve deeper within the superficial understandings and fringe benefits of your I Ching searchings. Penetrate into this resourceful ancient book of wisdom: begin from the core of wholeness, balance the yin / yang polarity, evolve into eight trigram variations, then create the 64 hexagrams holographically.

"You can do it all from the beginning with Chinese brush strokes, the corresponding ideo-pictogram meanings, and the t'ai chi movement motifs. You may draw references from Wilhelm / Baynes and other translations, and from my personal collaborative learnings from John Blofeld and Lama Govinda. Prepare yourself by reading pages 72-96 of Quantum Soup. Do away with the linear mind and body. One of the meanings of I (as in I Ching) is EASY. Dance the I Ching!"

Recommended reading: by Huang: Quantum Soup (E. P. Dutton), Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press), with Watts, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); I Ching (translated by John Blofeld); The Book of Transformations, Lama Anagarika Govinda. $450

Celebration of the Sensitivity of Self

Daniel Bianchetta

This seminar will focus on the integration of body, mind, and spirit through intuitive and energy awareness, massage, meditation, movement, gestalt, and play. Using these tools and gentle risk-taking can help in opening to our own aliveness and ability to be more at home with ourselves. Participants will explore practical and portable ways of nourishing and trusting the inherent wisdom of the self. $450

Weekend of January 11–13

Anatomy for Trager Students

Deane Juhan

For workshop description see November 23-25. $230

Inside / Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies,

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

Paul and Chungliang will celebrate and share with us their joyous collaboration in nature, music, dance, t'ai chi, jazz, improvisation, meditation, and world travel experiences.

Recommended reading and listening: by Huang: Quantum Soup (E. P. Dutton), Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); with Watts, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); Paul Horn's albums: Inside, Heart to Heart, China, The Magic of Findhorn, and Jupiter 8. $260

Introduction to Vipassana Meditation

Jamie Baraz

Vipassana (insight) meditation practice is a systematic examination of the mind / body process through calm and focused awareness. Learning to observe experience from a place of stillness enables one to relate to life without fear or clinging. One begins to accept pleasure and pain, fear and joy with increasing equanimity and balance. Life is seen as a constantly changing process. Insight is the deepening experience of the process itself, free of interpretation, leading to wisdom and compassion. The seminar is designed for those who have had no previous meditation experience as well as for those who wish to deepen their practice. Meditation instruction, the philosophy behind the practice, group discussions, and actual practice periods will be offered. Special emphasis will be placed on how to integrate vipassana practice in daily life after the workshop is over. $230

Self-Exploration with Kinesiology and Interdimensional Harp Music

Joel Andrews

Joel writes: "After the 'outer activity' of Christmas this is an opportunity to get back in touch with the core of your being. With kinesiology we can unlock the deeper wisdom of the body and with harp improvisations we invite it to move and dance.

"Sessions will alternate between inner and outer movement using 'healing tapes,' demonstrations of the Basic Self Schemata or subpersonalities, and practicing (in pairs) general muscle-testing." $230

January 11–13

Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 41. $225

Week of January 13–18

Experiencing Esalen
Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Inside / Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies,
Paul Horn & Chunghiang Al Huang

For workshop description see January 11-13. $480

Transpersonal Psychology: New Perspectives in Counseling and Self-Exploration
Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will explore theoretically and experientially the rapidly developing field of transpersonal psychology. The discussion will focus on the implications of modern consciousness research for understanding the dimensions of the psyche, various forms of emotional and psychosomatic disorders, new mechanisms of healing and personality transformation, and strategies of counseling and self-exploration.

The emphasis in experiential work will be on the method of "holonomic integration" developed by the workshop leaders, which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, focused body work, and mandala drawing. It mediates access to unfinished biographical material, sequences of psychological death and (re)birth, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. Special attention will be paid to the problems of "spiritual emergencies" and constructive approaches to transpersonal crises. $450

Goddess, Sky Father, Universe, Atman, The Great Unknown . . .
Chris & Tim O'Reilly

There are as many different experiences of God as there are people, yet we continually find our experiences limited to old concepts of God—who, what, where he-she-it is. We can go beyond our screens and images, and develop a relationship with God which is as immediate as the air we breathe and as individual as each one of us. We will explore the power of surrender to the unknown, maps for building on spiritual experiences, and Indian classical dance—a highly disciplined and structured art form which combines abstract dance with mime stories of God and the ecstatic energy with the earth. $450

January 13–February 8

Month Long Professional Body Work Intensive
Dub Leigh

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 39. $1800

Weekend of January 18–20

Experiencing Esalen: The Body
Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Weekend Massage Intensive
Brita Ostrom & Vicki Topp

For workshop description see November 23-25. $230

The Giraffe Workshop
John Graham

John writes: "Our good green earth is threatened by problems that can seem overwhelming: problems like the threat of nuclear war and the persistence of pollution, hunger, poverty, and violence. Hundreds of organizations and thousands of experts are working on such problems, yet progress is dangerously slow.

"I think the reason is that too many of us are not involved, that we're still playing ostrich, sticking our heads in the sand and hoping someone else will make it all better—that "Science" or "The Experts" or "They" will fix it. But that's not good enough, not if we're going to have the world we want. We can't wait for leaders on white horses to show us the way. The solutions that we need and want will come from those of us who choose not to wait for leadership but to become leaders. From the brave and caring people who stick their necks out and take responsibility for themselves and for their world. From Giraffes.

"The Giraffe Workshop teaches people:

- to recognize and accept their unique assignments in the world, tapping the surge of creative energy that always flows with that assent;
- to use that power wisely, compassionately and effectively, sticking their necks out to make a difference on specific, real problems important to them;
- to use effective alternatives to the 'I Win / You Lose' strategies that cripple both institutions and individuals and more.

"Giraffes are action-oriented creatures; participants are asked to come prepared to get involved, to test and practice new insights and skills." $230

Gestalt Awareness and Personal Meditation
Jack Downing & Lyn Davis Genelli

The leaders write: "The enhancement and guided utilization of the awareness process is common to both gestalt and to certain types of meditation. We have combined these methods for the purpose of speeding up the recall, re-experiencing, and integration phases of gestalt. In addition, we have found various useful, at times fascinating, consciousness expansion effects from meditation-derived self-realization methods." $230

Week of January 20–25

Experiencing Your Psychic / Intuitive Abilities
Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see November 9-11. $450

The Foundations of Body Image
Andrea & Deane Juhan

This is a course for the improvement of your relationship with the body—your own and those you contact personally and professionally. Each major area of the body will be studied and experienced in turn. The sessions allotted for each area will include: slides and discussion to familiarize the group with the basic anatomical structures; specific stretches and exercises to isolate the muscles and joints in question; movement, dance, and visualization to explore the psychological dimensions of each body part; instruction in massage methods designed to locate and alleviate common problems.

The intent is to provide enough concrete experience for each participant to feel a change for the better in self image; to provide enough discussion to understand how the improvements occurred and how they may be sustained; and, particularly, to help you contact your images of your physical self—the body you do have, the body you think you have, and the body you could have. $450

Open Seat
Paul Rebillot

Paul Rebillot writes: "The concept of 'open seat' is an open space into which people may enter in order to work through their resistances, express their feelings, and reorder their way of being in the world. As a gestalt facilitator I help people find ways of healing themselves by combining the principles of gestalt with concepts of ritual and theater. I assist people in working with their subconscious material, such as dreams and fantasies, in order to augment their ways of living and dealing with day to day problems. I encourage people to become more expressive in all ways: in their personal lives; in their communities; and in the political situations to which they feel committed. I can help people develop a clear sense of responsibility, not only for their own life process, but also for the world." $450

Weekend of January 25–27

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see October 26-28. $230

The Intelligent Body, The Sensuous Body

Thomas Hanna

Premise: Clarity of self-awareness and clarity of body control grow together or decline together. We'll explore how greater sensitivity to our inner selves enhances the body's ability to act and to relax, and how this ability in turn enhances kinesthetic awareness.

The program involves gentle movements and use of imagery as well as instruction in the principles of the many different kinds of body work and exercise systems—particularly that of Moshe Feldenkrais.

Thomas Hanna adds: "There will also be demonstrations of how new sensory information can lead to dramatic changes in posture. Those who wish advanced knowledge in systems of body work will find the weekend profitable, as will those who have habitual aches or have difficulty relaxing."

Recommended reading: The Body of Life, Bodies in Revolt: A Primer in Somatic Thinking, Thomas Hanna. $230

Body, Heart, and Spirit

Paul Rebillot

The workshop is divided into three segments, dealing first with tensions and energy patterns in the body, then with the relationship of these to the emotions, and finally with their relationship to the mind, to thought. By connecting thought, feeling, and body experience in one gestalt, we seek to open the being to the inpouring of the spirit, to the state of grace. This is the goal of shamanic dances and of many tribal rites. The process includes body work and open seat gestalt work, as well as rituals, dancing, chanting, and celebration. $230

January 25–27

Sierra Ski-Touring: The Art of the Telemark Turn

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 41. $245

Week of January 27–February 1

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see September 23-28. $450

Natural Motions

Ryan Kopperud

Ryan writes: "By allowing sensitivity to the motions of our physical bodies, enhanced states of awareness may be explored in a body work relationship. This workshop will focus on gently contacting vibratory and rhythmically-fluctuating motions inherently expressed by our physical bodies.

"Awareness exercises and hands-on practice will be used to clarify how we can represent, to ourselves, physical experience. Special emphasis will be given to learning resonant physical touch and exploring responses between persons in a body work relationship." $450

January 27–February 3

Shamanic Healing, Journeying, and the Afterlife Experience: Basic and Intermediate Shamanic Practice

Michael Harner

Shamanism is an ancient human strategy for personal learning and acting on that learning, especially for well-being and healing. In this experiential workshop the participants will practice the methods of the shaman (a type of medicine man or woman), to see and to activate power to resist illness and maintain personal health. With the aid of traditional sonic-driving and dancing methods, the group will engage in archetypal exercises and rituals practiced by North and South American Indian shamans to awaken dormant human capabilities and forgotten connections with the powers of nature. Practice will include shamanic journeys to both the Lower- and Upperworlds for knowledge and power, work with animal and plant powers, divination, clairvoyance, and shamanic methods of healing, including the extraction of spiritual pain and illness. There will be an introduction to the Ghost Dance method and to shamanic ways of exploring the afterlife experience. Participants will be taught shamanic methods of helping the terminally ill and their families, and the work of the shaman as psychopomp or conductor of souls.

This seven day workshop is both for beginners and for those who have previously taken a workshop with Michael Harner.

It is recommended that participants read beforehand Michael Harner's book, The Way of the Shaman: a Guide to Power and Healing (Bantam; also Harper & Row), and bring a notebook and pen to preserve their experiences for their own shamanic development. They are also invited to bring drums and rattles.

$680

Weekend of February 1-3

The Body Has Its Reasons

Peter Levine

For workshop description see September 9-14.

$230

Physics Weekend: Bell's Theorem and the Nature of Reality

Nick Herbert & Saul-Paul Sirag

Quantum theory is universally successful in describing nature at all levels accessible to experiment. However, this comprehensive practical success is accompanied by an unprecedented disagreement as to what quantum theory actually means, and a corresponding confusion as to what sort of reality support the phenomenal world.

Controversy over the nature of deep reality has been sharpened by Bell's Theorem, which proves that any conceivable objective reality underlying the facts of experience must be independent of space and time. Thus either there is no ultimate objective reality, or this reality is more peculiar than we have been led (by ordinary physics) to believe. The impact of Bell's Theorem is just beginning to be felt in the world of physics, but it is rather like the situation of the Michelson-Morley experiment, which led to Einstein's theory of relativity. Just what the current controversy in the foundations of physics will lead to is not yet clear, but the various possibilities will be explored in this weekend presentation.

Recommended reading: Quantum Reality, Nick Herbert (Doubleday). $230

Week of February 3-8

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

The Body Has Its Reasons

Peter Levine

This workshop will continue the experiential base of the February 1-3 weekend incorporating further discussion of the ideas and methods explored. The workshop is designed to be of interest to professionals, though it is also open to non-professionals. Either workshop may be taken alone or as a seven day sequence.

$450

Weekend of February 8-10

A Course in Miracles for Non-Beginners

Julian Silverman

For workshop description see November 23-25.

$230

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

For workshop description see September 14-16.

$230

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

This is a workshop in Soviet-American, cross-cultural understanding. Through bargaining, mediating, and role-playing games, participants can discover the subconscious cultural imperatives that impel the two nations apart and begin to identify those elements that bring them together. The workshop sets out to shatter egotistical mirror-imaging and begin the construction of authentic Soviet-American relationships in the world as it now exists.

For the workshop, there needs to be a balance between recent Soviet emigrees and American players. Thus, if there are ten Americans, there need to be ten or so Soviets. $230

Successful Business Behavior for Women, or "Act like a lady, think like a man, and work like a dog."

Victoria Elliot

In this workshop we will learn about the social issues vs. the business issues of being a woman: how to make decisions better and faster; how to get to the bottom line; and how to communicate to get what you want from the people you work with. $230

Week of February 10-15

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

For workshop description see September 23-28.

$450

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani)

This is a week of intense body work, structured for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which is reflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, and a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released and more positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and pleasure can be experienced more fully.

A most important feature of the workshop is the individual Radix®-Reichian intensive, done in a safe, supportive environment. By also using dreamwork, hypnosis, chiropractic, bioenergetics, massage, dance, and group interaction as one lets go/move on, a new capacity for living can emerge. $450

February 10-March 8

Gestalt as an Art Form

Paul Rebillot

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 40. $1800

Weekend of February 15-17

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see November 16-18.

$230

Psychic Experiences in Science and Everyday Life

Keith Harary

Are psychic experiences worth having in a society that doesn't encourage people to have them? Exploring your psychic capabilities can help you become a happier, more self-actualized person, or lead to anxiety, alienation, and identity confusion. How can you tell the difference between genuine psychic experiences and exaggerated claims, imagination, or delusions? Is there any real difference between people who call themselves "psychics" and the rest of us? We will discuss experimental, clinical, and subjective approaches to psychic abilities, and examine the treatment of psychic experiences in popular American culture. We will also explore ways in which you may make the most of your own psychic potential without losing touch with everyday reality or buying into externally-imposed belief systems.

Suggested reading: The Mind Race: Understanding and Using Psychic Abilities, Russell Targ and Keith Harary (Villard Books, Random House.) $230

Massage and Movement

Andrea Juhan & Deborah Anne Medow

One of the most effective and enjoyable ways to learn about the human body is to know your own body through movement. The focus of this workshop is to use the different rhythms of yoga, aerobics, and creative movement to enhance participants' awareness of their own bodies. This increased awareness can then be used as a tool for enriching the experience of giving and receiving a massage.

$230

Week of February 17-22

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see September 2-7.

$450

February 17-March 15

Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Transpersonal Crises

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 40. $1800

Weekend of February 22-24

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

The Art of Self-Direction

Lenore Lefer

For workshop descripiton see September 28-30.

$230

Alternative Cancer Treatment

Laya Kline

Cancer, a manifestation of a weakened immune system, is the ultimate degenerative disease—and the disease of this century. Cancer can be triggered by poor dietary patterns, an unsafe environment, stress, and dissociation between mind and body. Yet cancer and death do not have to be synonymous.

Laya writes: "What I present is information about an array of alternative approaches—non-toxic methods of stimulating the body's own defenses. Using an open format, practitioners will learn to consider these options which can be administered by the patients themselves. Videos, guided visualizations, life/death transition facilitation, and demonstrations of detoxifying dietary methods will be included. $230

Week of February 24-March 1

Letting Go of Futile Habits

Leslie Pam & Anne Christie

Much of what we discover when we try to control habits is that our conscious minds are not very good at changing long-term ingrained behaviors such as smoking, overeating, drug and alcohol abuse, insomnia, inability to concentrate, procrastination, and sexual problems. Combining the pre-existing talents of one's mind with the ability of one's body to create new ways of changing unwanted behavior, participants will have the opportunity to experience the body's natural ability to initiate habit reversal. Methods will include a series of mind and body exercises utilizing Ericksonian practice with primal work.

Recommended reading: Revolution in Hypnosis, Sheila Rossi, Leslie Pam, Ann Christie.

$450

Health and Creativity

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

We can choose health and creativity by increasing self-awareness and letting go of fear.

This workshop will deal with why—the causes not the mechanics—we choose specific illnesses and with ways in which we block our ability to think. Seminarians will be presented with ways for being healthy and for expanding one's ability to think creatively and logically.

Recommended reading: Profound Simplicity, Will Schutz (University Assoc.); Synectics, W. Gordon. $450

Five Day Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Laurie Muller (Lioness)

For workshop description see September 9-14.

$450

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins. No participants will be accepted as work scholars in Gazebo or the office until they have fulfilled a minimum of one month in one of the aforementioned departments. Scheduling consideration is given to community labor needs and work assignments are made according to those requirements.

Most evenings and two intensive weekends are spent together as a group exploring different practices and approaches available at Esalen, with specifically assigned leaders who will be with the group throughout the month, coordinating the study schedule and facilitating many of the evening sessions.

The program is divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc.

The schedule of focused programs planned thus far for 1984-1985 includes:

January 6–March 3: A two month program which integrates body work awareness, Reichian breath practice, and gestalt, and is coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt and Ryan Kopperud. For further information see the leader's workshop descriptions for September 14-16 and January 27-February 1 respectively.

Recommended reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim, Fritz Perls (Bantam); The Man Who Dreamed of Tomorrow, William Edward Mann & Edward Hoffman (J. P. Tarcher); The Life and Thought of Wilhelm Reich, Edward Hoffman.

March 31–June 23: The Esalen massage practitioners will be offering a three month program in body work, with intensive instruction in massage, movement, and self-care. After the satisfactory completion of the program and an additional 30 recorded massage sessions, a California state-approved certificate will be issued.

In as much as the Work Study Program is a complete program in itself, please do not plan to take regularly scheduled catalog workshops during your stay. Professional services, such as massage and Rolfing®, are available at staff rates.

Accommodations are shared, with up to three people to a room, usually at South Coast Center, a staff living complex located 1½ miles north of Esalen.

The 28 day Work Study Program costs $600 for the first month. A $300 deposit in U.S. currency is required with your application. Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second month, at a cost of $550, or a third month at a cost of $500 depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

NOTE: This application is not a registration in the program. Registration is made only after approval of application and upon receipt of deposit. Please return this form with your deposit to:

Work Study Program,
Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.
Telephone: (408) 667-2335.

The balance of the fee is due on arrival. Of the original deposit, $100 is non-refundable, and may be transferred to other Esalen programs within one year of receipt.

Available dates: September 16–October 14; October 14–November 11; November 11–December 9; December 9–January 6; January 6–February 3; February 3–March 3; March 3–March 31; March 31–April 28; April 28–May 26; May 26–June 23; June 23–July 21; July 21–August 18; etc.

Application to the Work Study Program

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Date of Birth _____ Occupation _____ Place of Employment _____

Daytime Telephone (_____) _____ Date of Application _____

Evening Telephone (_____) _____ Male ☐ Female ☐ Smoker ☐ Non-smoker ☐

I prefer the general interest program: yes ☐ no ☐

I prefer the focused program: yes ☐ no ☐ in _____ (subject)

The Work Study Program is for 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. Please list the dates of your choice, listing two alternative dates as well.

1st: _____ to _____ 2nd: _____ to _____ 3rd: _____ to _____

Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second or third month, depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. If such an invitation is extended, please indicate your availability.

☐ no extension ☐ one month extension ☐ two month extension

To avoid disappointment, please do not come with the expectation of staying for longer than one month.

If you have emergency medical skills, (M.D., E.M.T. or R.N.) and are willing to make those skills available during your stay, please check here. ☐

If you have medical difficulties that may affect your working in any of the departments, please specify here. _____

Have you been to Esalen workshops? Please list program titles, group leaders, and dates: _____

_____

Please attach a personal statement about your interest in the Work Study Program. Include any skills you may have available.

Special Programs

October 28–November 23
Evolution of Consciousness: The Path of the Senses

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This four week interdisciplinary educational program is designed for professionals and students in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, anthropology, art, religion, and philosophy to explore experientially and theoretically the use of human senses in emotional and psychosomatic healing, personality transformation, and consciousness evolution. This seminar is part of a systematic effort to create an international network of individuals qualified to facilitate the process of personal transformation and to assist others during spiritual crises. The program will focus on the following areas:

Ancient and Non-Western Technologies of the Sacred Utilizing Human Senses. We will explore theoretically and practically the methods developed by various ancient and non-Western cultures which produce significant temporary and lasting changes in consciousness by modifying input in various sensory areas, such as the use of yantras, mandalas, perception of colors and focused visual attention; mantras, instrumental music, chanting, and drumming; acupuncture, various forms of bodywork, massage, and other physical intervention; movement, dance, and other forms of kinesthetic stimulation; and materials activating smell or taste.

Modern Laboratory Methods of Consciousness Alteration Focusing on Human Senses. We will discuss and explore the use of sensory isolation, sensory overload, stroboscopic stimulation, various forms of biofeedback, holography, holophonic sound technology, hypnosis, and various kinesthetic devices, such as the witches' cradle and rotating couch. Special attention will be paid to the implications of psychedelic research for the understanding of human nature and for the emerging paradigm in science.

The Concept of "Spiritual Emergency" of Transpersonal Crisis. This aspect of the program will focus on observations suggesting that certain non-ordinary states of consciousness are conducive to emotional and psychosomatic healing, creative problem-solving, and consciousness evolution. They represent evolutionary crises rather than manifestation of mental disease and should be supported rather than suppressed by medical means.

Self-Exploration and Group Process. The workshops of this series use an experimental educational format that combines lectures with experiential approaches and group process. For this purpose we will combine controlled breathing, focused body work, mandala drawing, gestalt practice, various forms of body work, and other methods. The coordinators and the Esalen staff will function as facilitators for participants throughout the workshop.

Reservations should be addressed to: Christina Grof, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California, 93920. $1800

November 25–December 21
Month Long Esalen Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This month long program offers, at a professional level, intensive instruction in massage practice, movement, and self-care. The emphasis will be on developing basic massage skills through daily lecture-demonstrations including "hands-on" practice sessions using one another as models, illustrated anatomy classes, and instruction in the basic principles of alignment. Meditation and gestalt awareness sessions will be scheduled regularly throughout the program allowing participants the opportunity to experience the psyche/soma relationship on a deeper, more integrative level. Body work will be studied as a function of optimal well-being and stress reduction, and as a valued aid to transpersonal growth. Workshop sessions will meet Sunday through Friday and on alternate weekends. At the satisfactory completion of the program, and after an additional 30 recorded massage sessions, a California state-approved certificate of completion will be issued. $1800

December 9–23
Psychic Healing: The Science and the Art

Elizabeth Stratton

"Healing occurs as a patient begins to hear the dirge he sings, and questions its validity." —A Course in Miracles

Psychic healing combines the science of energy and the art of human contact. The relationship between the healer and the client can be just as important as the actual mobilization of healing energy in the client's body.

The intimate connection between the mind and the functioning of the physical body has been verified in the last twenty years by modern medicine as well as other healing disciplines such as psychic healing. These discoveries have allowed many people to participate actively in their own healing process.

This two-week intensive will present the science of psychic healing, including theories of electro-magnetic energy, white light, energy transfer, the physiology of stratification, brain-mind-body connections, emotional catharsis, and psychic perceptions such as clairvoyance and clairaudience.

With this groundwork laid, the focus will shift to the direct application of healing methods, including the laying on of hands. The workshop is open to professionals and non-professionals.

Recommended reading: Mystic with the Healing Hands, Edwina Cerutti (Harper & Row); The Gift of Healing, Ambrose Worrall (Harper & Row); Getting Well Again, Carl Simonton, M.D.; The Healing Family, Stephanie Matthews Simonton (Bantam). $1120

January 13–February 8
Month Long Professional Body Work Intensive

Dub Leigh

The premise of this workshop is that an unwell body tends to be shortened, thick, and suffering from pain and stress, and that a healthy body tends to be long, balanced, and supple.

In this workshop we will emphasize how to transform an unhealthy body into a long, supple, organized body by inquiring into ways pain can be erased. Further questions to be considered are: how can short tissue be lengthened, hard tissue be softened and made more resilient; how may tissue be repositioned and balanced, constriction be removed from organs and joints, a general heaviness be replaced by a lightness and lift, and body armor and old buried trauma be eliminated?

We will explore four premises: first, by Ida Rolf, that the body is plastic and segmented and therefore its structure can be reorganized, repositioned, and balanced as ordered; second, by Feldenkrais, that the nervous system can be reprogrammed so as to bring the desired changes in the body's function and structure; third, by Selye, that stress can end in pain and disease and that it does not need to; and fourth by Cyriax, that all pain arises from a lesion and that treatment must reach the lesion and exert a beneficial effect on it. We will also explore Reich's body armor and Ron Hubbard's stored trauma concepts.

The workshop will be limited to eight professional body workers who want to improve their expertise. From time to time various body experts will be brought into class. Participants will have the opportunity to do as much body work as desired and to experience body work each day of the class, being taught as they work. In the course of the workshop, participants will receive many hours of work from one another and Dub Leigh. The goal is to have each participant return to his/her practice with a new level of knowledge and ability.

Interested participants should submit an application, addressed to Dub Leigh, c/o Esalen, with a short personal history explaining their qualifications in body work. As enrollment is limited applications should be sent early. Applicants will be notified when they are accepted. $1800

February 10–March 8
Gestalt as an Art Form

Paul Rebillot

Paul writes: "Most psychological suffering is caused by blocked energy, energy that goes round and round within the system because it cannot find access to expression. Once such a block is destructured and the circle has been broken, the person can experience a flood of vitality and excitement—but what does he do with it? I have found that if the energy is not given some new mode of expression, it will tend to slide back into its former habitual pattern. An important aspect of my work is to offer people alternative ways of expressing their vitality once it is released—creative forms that allow the psyche to discover and liberate its own dormant potentials.

"The focus of this month-long, therefore, will be on teaching the basic principles of gestalt as an art form—the materials of that form being our own human process of individuation. Participants are invited to think of themselves as artists engaged in the great work of creating their own life process. With the basic tools and concepts of gestalt, we will combine elements of myth, ritual, and dreams; music, drama, and dance; the plastic arts, painting, and drawing—so that people will leave at the end of the month with a rich palette to play with in the process of unfolding their own life-stories.

"The workshop will be both a practicum in gestalt and related art forms for those engaged in the helping professions, and an experiential group for those seeking personal expansion. Previous experience with gestalt process is necessary, but it is not necessary to have previous experience as a gestalt facilitator.

"Looking at gestalt as an art form takes away the necessity for immediate results and absolute resolution of problems. In working with myth and ritual, we can go beyond the historical biographical material of our personal life, beyond even the personalized symbolical and archetypal information that comes through dreams, into the dreams and goals of the human race. We seek ourselves in the Self of humanity. Whatever comes out of us in working with an art form—whether it be clay or paints, drama or dance—becomes material for an open seat session, to be explored in order to expand our consciousness of ourselves and our capacity for living and being.

"In the first week, we will concentrate on the basic concepts and tools of gestalt, individual open seat work, and gestalt principles for daily living. In the second week, we will make use of gestalt tools and other art forms to explore our own dream material. In the third and fourth weeks, we will explore mythological and fairy tale structures and begin to create personal rituals in which we seek to relate our biographies to the great dreams of humanity. Please bring notebooks, paper, and colors, and if you like, paints. It is also good to listen to the tapes of The Hero's Journey that I have made; these give a good idea of the combination of gestalt, myth, ritual, and drama that I work with."

Recommended reading: by Joseph Campbell: Hero With a Thousand Faces (Bollingen), Myths to Live By (Bantam); by Bruno Bettelheim: The Uses of Enchantment (Random House). $1800

February 17–March 15
Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Transpersonal Crises

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This four week interdisciplinary program is for professionals and students in the areas of psychiatry, psychology, anthropology, and religion. The workshop has been specifically designed for intensive and focused exploration of the new concept of "spiritual emergency," an important sub-group of unusual states of consciousness that contemporary psychiatry labels as psychosis. It is part of a systematic effort to create an international network of individuals qualified to facilitate the process of personal transformation and to assist others during transpersonal crises. The program will focus on the following areas:

Historical and Anthropological Perspectives on Psychosis: We will review the evidence suggesting that many ancient and non-Western cultures have developed deep knowledge of transpersonal crises and maps of consciousness that can be used as guidelines in the process of personal transformation. Shamanism, spiritual practices of the great Oriental religions and philosophies, aboriginal rites of passage, and the ancient death-rebirth mysteries provide not only maps, but also tools to initiate and facilitate such a process.

The Concept of Transpersonal Crisis and Western Science: This aspect of the program will focus on observations that support the new approach, such as the healing, evolutionary, and problem-solving potential of certain psychotic states; results of clinical studies using placebo; pioneering work in psychotherapy of psychoses and family studies of schizophrenia; modern kundalini research; and psychedelic studies. We will explore new developments in various disciplines—consciousness research, quantum-relativistic physics, information theory, biology, and neurophysiology—that provide a solid scientific basis for an alternative understanding of psychosis.

Transpersonal Crisis Intervention: We will explore various strategies that are useful in the management of spiritual emergencies and in facilitating personality transformation.

Self-Exploration and Group Process: The workshops of this series use an experimental educational format that combines lectures with experiential approaches and group process. For this purpose, we will use controlled breathing, music, mandala drawing, gestalt practice, and various forms of body work. The coordinators and the Esalen staff will function as facilitators for participants all through the workshop.

Reservations should be addressed to Christina Grof, c/o Esalen. $1800

Healthspring Traveling Workshops

The Esalen massage teachers and their associates have created Healthspring, an independent organization devoted to extending their work into an outreach program. The workshops offer practices to help increase physical and spiritual health and awareness within the body, and can be designed to suit the needs of individual groups. The curriculum combines such approaches as massage, meditation, dance, neo-Reichian work, creative movement, gestalt, yoga, breath enhancement, anatomy, and other health-strengthening disciplines.

Healthspring will conduct workshops at locations outside of Esalen in your hometown or city. For more information on scheduling a Healthspring group in your community, write to: Healthspring Traveling Workshops, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Graduate Studies Program with Jack Rosenberg

This will be a professional training program for licensed or license-eligible psychotherapists and graduate students in integrative body psychotherapy (IBP), formerly gestalt body therapy (GBT). IBP is a complete system of psychotherapy with an emphasis on breathing as a vehicle for the integration of body, mind, emotions, and spirit. The program will consist of approximately one week (five days) at Esalen every five weeks for a period of two years. This program can lead to an M.A. or Ph.D. in psychology through affiliation with an approved degree-granting institution. The program will be didactic and experiential and is based on a tutorial system with Jack Rosenberg and staff. If interested, please contact Jack Rosenberg, 1107 W. Washington Bl., Venice, Ca. 90291. Please include personal and therapeutic history and educational background.

Tutorial Program in Shamanic Practice

Michael Harner

The program will be offered at Esalen Institute from January 27-February 22, 1985. Persons interested should write for information to Michael Harner, Center for Shamanic Studies, Box 673, Belden Station, Norwalk, Connecticut 06852.

Wilderness Programs

Esalen Wilderness Programs Refund Policy

Most expenses in wilderness programs are incurred preparing for your arrival. The refund policy reflects the fact that few of these expenses can be recovered.

To reserve a space in a wilderness workshop, we require the following deposit:

Up to 3 days	$50
4-7 days	$100
Over 8 days	$200

The balance of the fee is due 14 days before the program begins. If you cancel prior to 30 days before the program begins, your nonrefundable deposit may be applied to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year. If you cancel from 30 days up to the starting date of the trip, your deposit is forfeited.

October 26-28
Women's Vertical Dance: A Rock Climbing Weekend Near Big Sur

Annie Callaway-Galland

"There is an art in finding one's direction in the lower regions by the memory of what one saw higher up. When one can no longer see, one can at least still know."—Rene Dumal

Rock climbing is a dance done in a vertical world, a dance of grace, balance, and simplicity. It is an opportunity for stretching limits, extending ourselves, exploring our own edges. Our responses to the challenges of climbing offer a metaphor for looking at the ways we deal with stress and challenge in our daily lives. During the day we will play on the sunny boulders and low rock faces at Pinnacles National Monument, three hours east of Esalen. We'll learn basic movements, such as how to rappel and belay, building trust in our hands and feet and each other. Safety ropes free us to experiment and to discover our inner heroes.

We'll prepare our gourmet meals together over a crackling fire and camp beneath the stars, sharing insights from the day's adventure. This weekend begins Friday and ends Sunday evening at the Monterey airport. A shuttle bus operates between the airport and Esalen, and we'll travel by van to and from Pinnacles. No previous climbing or camping experience is necessary. Minimum equipment will be needed. Complete information will be sent upon registration. $195

January 11-13
Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

Ski-touring is a state of mind, a balance of boldness and caution, an ease and grace of motion, and an exploration of the ever-changing winter wilderness. The Sierra Nevada becomes a silent, magical place when the snow begins to fall in November. We have the range to ourselves for six months, to glide through meadow and forest savoring the sparkle and solitude only ski-touring affords. Touring is an easy skill to learn. After a few hours of instruction you can be ready for your first tour.

Whether you're a beginner or intermediate cross-country skier, this weekend can help perfect your technique quickly and easily. Expert instruction and the use of videotapes help you master the effortless kick-and-glide of the accomplished skier. On Saturday, we will ski on the set tracks, being taught how to move easily. Sunday, we will pack our lunch and ski-tour through gently rolling terrain. Both nights we will stay in cozy cabins at Sorenson's Resort, where we can sample delicious meals and top off the day's activities in the nearby hot springs. Skis, boots, poles, lodging, and all meals are included. The trip begins Friday afternoon and ends Sunday afternoon at the airport in South Lake Tahoe. $225

January 25-27
Sierra Ski-Touring: The Art of the Telemark Turn

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

This weekend is the sequel to Annie and Dick's Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking weekend in January 11-13. The course takes us from flat terrain to the gentle groomed slopes and lifts of Kirkwood's downhill ski area. Skiing on metal-edged skis with stout cross-country boots, we will review the wedge turn and the telemark turn. Video equipment and expert instruction will help us with the basics in just a few hours. Sunday we will ski off the trail through the quiet rolling forests and meadows of Carson Pass, where breath-taking views of the surrounding mountains command one's attention. Skiers will be taught how to evaluate snow conditions, to use skins and wax, and to practice turning in different snow conditions. Both nights we will dine and lodge at Sorenson's Resort, topping off the day's activities in the nearby hot springs. Skis, boots, poles, lodging, and Saturday lift tickets are included. The trip begins Friday afternoon and ends Sunday afternoon at the airport in South Lake Tahoe. $245

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state approved provider for continuing education for health professionals. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category 1 approval.

Physicians

December 9-14
The Therapeutic Approaches of Milton H. Erickson, M.D.
Jane Parsons, A.C.S.W. & Francis Lu, M.D.
30 hours

December 14-16
The Therapeutic Approaches of Milton H. Erickson, M.D.
Jane Parsons, A.C.S.W. & Francis Lu, M.D.
30 hours

Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Registered Nurses

December 9-16
A Seven Day Workshop in Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics Beginning Training
Betty Fuller
30 hours

Future Programs

March 3-22
Sustained Integration: Body, Self, and Soul

Jack Rosenberg

This workshop will start wherever you are in your inner journey. The work is an in-depth integration of the following topics:

Psychology of the Self: We will be working with early unfinished situations that interrupt our sense of well-being and interfere with our relationships in the present. Sexual implications of this work will be dealt with in body work and in lecture.

Body Work (Gestalt Body Approach): This includes theoretical and practical application, combining classical Reichian work, yoga, and aerobics and massage, assisted by Andrea Juhan.

Transformative Process of Consciousness: As our inner journey progresses, our figure / ground is shifted from "doing" and "having" to "being" and to our relationship with the eternal. We will explore ways to integrate and sustain these new awarenesses in our everyday life. $1575

Biographical Information

A

Margot Adler, p. 16 ..... a pagan priestess who has worked for 12 years within the traditions of goddess spirituality and modern witchcraft is author of Drawing Down the Moon.

Antero Alli p. 20 ..... has been performing, directing, and writing original multi-media theater works for eleven years. Nine years ago he designed Ritual Theater.

Peter Alpert p. 20 ..... is a psychologist in private clinical practice in San Francisco and has conducted research regarding internalized oppression among gay people.

Diana Alstad p. 17 ..... taught the first women's studies courses at Yale and Duke. She has led male/female groups with Joel Kramer in North America, Europe, and Asia.

Walter Truett Anderson p. 24 ..... is a political scientist and writer whose books include The Upstart Spring: Esalen and the American Awakening.

Joel Andrews, p. 32 ..... harpist and psychic channel, has completed 1900 individual attunements and gives concerts and workshops intended to call forth inner spirituality.

Anne Armstrong p. 24, 27, 33 ..... has been doing transpersonal counseling for over 18 years and has trained professionals to use their own intuitive abilities.

Jim Armstrong, p. 24, 27, 33 ..... a former engineer, is a life-long student and teacher of esoteric studies.

B

Jamie Baraz p. 32 ..... has taught vipassana meditation with Joseph Goldstein, Jack Kornfield, Stephen Levine, and others in the U.S. and Asia. He has led classes in the Bay Area since 1977.

Robert Bathurst, p. 22, 35 ..... professor, writer, former diplomat and naval officer, has specialized in Soviet literature and Soviet strategy since he was an interpreter at Camp David during the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks.

Bradley Bernstein p. 22 ..... is currently a counselor and director of theater at a residential psychiatric facility for young adults, where he develops and produces original plays by patients and staff.

Daniel Bianchetta p. 32 ..... practices intuitive readings, shiatsu, and deep tissue work at Esalen. He is a teacher and student of Siddha yoga.

Faustin Bray, p. 21 ..... performing musician and media artist, founder of Island and Flying Machine International Mobile Schools, specializes in instigating and integrating creativity using yoga, fine arts, science, and travel.

Char Pias Brenner p. 26 ..... is a dancer, singer, performing artist, and massage teacher. Since joining the Esalen community in 1977, she has worked with family care and healing arts and rituals.

Jessica Moore Britt p. 16, 26, 31, 35, 37 ..... is a registered nurse who is presently a member of the Esalen community and a practitioner of gestalt, Reichian, and wilderness approaches to healing and well-being.

Charles Brooks, p. 23, 24 ..... author of Sensory Awareness, the Rediscovery of Experiencing, has been a teacher of sensory awareness since 1963, often in conjunction with Charlotte Selver.

Joan Brozovich, p. 20 ..... a licensed psychologist in private practice in San Francisco, works with gay individuals, couples, and groups and consults with agencies to develop staff training on gay issues.

C

Annie Callaway-Galland, p. 22, 32, 34 ..... professional wilderness guide and counselor, hatha yoga teacher, and writer, has been leading Esalen trips for many years.

Anne Caple p. 32 ..... is a student of transpersonal psychology, a technical writer, editor, and fiber artist.

John Caple p. 21, 32 ..... is a career counselor and college professor with an earlier career in business management.

Didi Conn p. 22 ..... was star of the movies You Light Up My Life and Grease (I & II).

Seymour Carter p. 17, 20, 26 ..... has taught gestalt at Esalen and other growth centers in the United States and Europe for over 12 years, and is currently a teacher in residence at Esalen.

Stanford Eugene Cates p. 30 ..... is working and in training with Paul Rebillot, assisting and co-leading groups. He has trained in Trager Psychophysical Integration and is a minister.

Michell Cassou p. 29 ..... is the founder of an original approach to painting designed to stimulate and unblock creativity. She is director of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Ann Christie p. 36 ..... is former director of the Primal Institute, co-author of the forthcoming book Revolution in Hypnosis, and is in private practice in west Los Angeles.

Phil Cousineau p. 19 ..... is a freelance writer and film educator. He has lectured and taught for the American Film Institute and is currently working on a novel and a screenplay.

Stewart Cubley, p. 29 ..... artist and scientist, is a co-founder of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Dale Cummings, p. 18 ..... MFCC and certified Radix® teacher, is in private practice at the Radix® Center in Santa Monica, and is also a trainer for the Radix® Institute in Ojai.

D

David Darling, p. 20 ..... master cellist, composer, conductor, and teacher, has made many records, including Journal October, Cycles, and River Notes.

E

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita) p. 15, 26, 36 — certified Radix® practitioner, combines Reichian body work, emotional release, gestalt practice, Bates vision improvement, and other approaches to well-being in group and private instruction.

Patrick Douce, p. 16 — a resident at Esalen since 1972, teaches ongoing classes in Feldenkrais awareness through movement and is available for individual sessions in functional integration.

Jack Downing, p. 33 — M.D., is a psychiatrist with a comprehensive background in gestalt, Rolfing®, Arica, applied kinesiology, and neurolinguistic programming.

F

Victoria Elliot, p. 35 — an Esalen trustee, is president of Norman H. Gershman Consultants, executive recruiters and management consultants to the securities business.

Esalen Massage Teaching Staff p. 27, 28, 37, 40 — includes Char Pias Brenner, Peggy Morrison Horan, Andrea Juhan, Deane Juhan, George King, Diane Miller Lesty, Bill Liles, Deborah Anne Medow, Jaime Morton, Laurie Muller, Brita Ostrom, and Vicki Topp.

David Feinstein, p. 30 — a psychologist, is director of Innersource in Ashland, Oregon and has taught at Antioch College and the John Hopkins University School of Medicine.

Rosemary Feitis, p. 32 — a certified Rolfer® and editor if Ida Rolf Talks, has been rolfing for 15 years.

David Feldshuh, p. 26 — a professional director, actor, and teacher, holds a medical degree and specializes in emergency medicine.

Richard Feynman p. 21 — has been a professor of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology since 1950 and has received many awards for his contributions to quantum theory.

Neil Fiore, p. 15 — a licensed psychologist practicing hypnosis, is working on the effects of stress and anxiety on performance and health.

Joyce Frazee p. 24 — is a gestaltist whose training includes art, group process, bioenergetics, body awareness, and psychosynthesis.

Marty Fromm p. 29 — trained with Fritz Perls for three years. Some aspects of their relationship are described in In and Out the Garbage Pail.

Betty Fuller, p. 28 — director of Trager Institute and instructor of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics®, is a certified practitioner of Feldenkrais' awareness-through-movement and functional integration.

G

Michael Reed Gach p. 24 — is the founding director of The Acupressure Workshop and Institute in Berkeley, California, and author of Acu-Yoga: Self-Help Techniques and The Bum Back Book.

Dick Galland, p. 32, 34 — professional wilderness guide and fly fishing instructor, was founding director of Southwest Outward Bound and currently heads Clearwater Trout Tours. He has led Esalen trips for several years.

Judith Gass p. 31 — is a teacher, consultant, counselor, dancer and story-teller.

Robbie Gass p. 31 — is a clinical psychologist, co-founder (with Judith Gass) of the Spring Hill Center in Ashby, Massachusetts, and musical director of the recording group On Wings of Song.

Merri Goldenson (Devarani) p. 35 — is a chiropractor, certified Radix® teacher, Bates vision instructor, and is in private practice in west Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Harriet Goslins p. 30 — is a Feldenkrais practitioner and an awareness-through-movement teacher with a background in psychosynthesis and applied kinesiology.

John Graham p. 33 — is a former U.S. diplomat. His "Politics That Heal" seminars and lectures have been offered in North America and Europe to help people find and use the power of their own ideals.

Christina Grof p. 23, 27, 33, 36 — studied with Swami Muktananda and has a special interest in the relationship between mysticism and psychosis. She is founder of the Spiritual Emergency Network and co-author of Beyond Death.

Stanislav Grof p. 23, 27, 33, 36 — is a psychiatrist with almost three decades experience in consciousness research with and without psychedelics. He is author of Realms of the Human Unconscious and LSD Psychotherapy.

H

Anna Halprin, p. 16 — founder of the San Francisco Dancers' Workshop and co-founder and teacher at the Tamalpa Training Institute in Marin County, is the author of Movement Ritual I and Collected Writings.

Daria Halprin-Khalighi p. 16 — is a gestalt movement facilitator and is co-founder and teacher at the Tamalpa Institute in Marin County.

Betsy Hand, p. 25, 35 — former resident staff member of the Gestalt Institute of Canada, has 20 years experience with families, couples, and groups. She is in private practice in Kentfield, California.

Thomas Hanna, p. 34 — is director of the Navato Institute for Somatic Research and Training, editor of Somatics magazine, and author of The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt.

Keith Harary, p. 35 — clinical counselor, experimental psychologist, and co-author of The Mind Race, has conducted psi research for over fifteen years and has authoried more than 25 scientific and clinical articles.

Michael Harner, p. 34, 40 — an anthropologist who has studied shamanism among South and North American Indians for more than two decades, is the author of The Way of the Shaman and Hallucinogens and Shamanism.

Steven Harper p. 13, 21 — teaches for Colorado Outward Bound and the National Outdoor Leadership School, and is currently the coordinator of the Esalen Wilderness Programs.

Susan Harper, p. 31 ... a dance teacher in Los Angeles and San Francisco, is co-founder of Continuum Montage, a company which produces and distributes recordings by musicians and composers.

John Heider, p. 20 ... a psychologist in private practice in Coconut Grove, Florida, is a group leader and teacher of group leaders. He was part of the Esalen Residential program from 1967-71.

Eric Helt, p. 31 ... program director of the Breakthrough Foundation, was formerly a faculty member of the University of Michigan and Boston University and director of health planning for the state of Vermont.

Nick Herbert, p. 35 ... an independent researcher in the foundations of physics, is completing a popular book on quantum foundations entitled Quantum Reality: Beyond the New Physics (Doubleday).

Peggy Morrison Horan p. 26, 32 ... is an Esalen masseuse and teacher, and coordinator of the Esalen Childbirth Education Program.

Paul Horn p. 17, 32, 33 ... is a flutist, jazz musician, creator of the Inside albums, and teacher of meditation.

Chungliang Al Huang p. 32, 33 ... is the founder-president of The Living Tao Foundation, and director of its Lan Ting Institute, an international cultural-arts network for lifelong learning.

J

Ed Jackson, p. 16, 20 ... trained in family medicine, pediatrics, and epidemiology, teaches in Berkeley, California. He is in private practice and is interested in gestalt and Reichian body work.

Don Johnson, p. 23 ... author of Body and The Protean Body, is director of the graduate studies program in body-oriented education at Antioch, San Francisco.

Andrea Juhan p. 12, 33, 36 ... is an Esalen deep tissue and massage practitioner, leads movement exploration classes for various group leaders, and conducts Esalen community classes in stretch exercises, aerobics, and dance.

Deane Juhan, p. 26, 32, 33 ... member of the Esalen massage crew since 1974, is a certified instructor of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics , and a lecturer on anatomy and physiology for massage practitioners.

K

Kenneth Kelzer p. 27 ... works as a transpersonal educator and counselor in California. Using dreamwork, he has been conducting classes and groups for over ten years.

George King, p. 28, 29 ... a massage practitioner for 22 years, has worked throughout the U.S., Europe, and South America.

Joel Kirsch, p. 25 ... a founding member of the Energy Training Institute, has developed and presented energy training programs in management, human resource development, sports, dance, and education.

Susan Kirsch, p. 25 ... with a background in educational research and training, specializes in speech communications. Her doctoral project is entitled Trust and Energy Training in Organizational Development.

Laya Kline p. 36 ... is a practitioner, counselor, teacher, and certified nutritional consultant who focuses on cancer treatment. As a registered nurse, she is involved in a nurse support group and patient advocacy.

Ryan Kopperud p. 34, 37 ... explores the relationship between physical touch and altered states of consciousness or natural states of awareness that arise in a body work experience.

Joel Kramer, p. 15, 17 ... a western master of physical and mental yoga, has taught with Diana Alstad throughout the world on the evolution of awareness and male / female relationships.

Stanley Krippner, p. 30 ... psychologist, researcher, and director of Saybrook Institute's Center for Consciousness Studies, authored / co-authored Human Possibilities, Realms of Healing, and Dream Telepathy.

L

Benj Langdon, p. 18, 28 ... former coordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body, is currently exploring transformation through body practices.

Lenore Lefer, p. 19, 36 ... currently maintaining a private practice in San Francisco, is on the training staff of the Psychosynthesis Institutes of London and San Francisco.

Dub Leigh p. 27, 33 ... has been trained by Ida Rolf and Moshe Feldenkrais and has studied with Lauren Berry and Milton Trager.

Ralph Leighton p. 21 ... has taught math for many years, and combining this talent with an interest in ethnic music, he has developed considerable facility in creating rhythms.

Larry Leshan p. 22 ... is a research psychologist. He is co-author of Einstein's Space and Van Gogh's Sky: Physical Reality and Beyond.

Peter Levine p. 16, 20, 27, 35 ... has practiced and taught Reichian body work for many years. He holds doctorates in medical biophysics and psychology. His interests include the effects of stress on children and infants.

Bill Liles, p. 16, 20, 26, 32 ... a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years, integrates polarity with traditional Esalen massage.

Paul Lounsbury p. 15, 17 ... has studied extensively with Milton Erickson and has conducted numerous training seminars on the use of hypnosis and strategic counseling. He is in private practice in New York.

DeeDee Lozier p. 27 ... is a Feldenkrais practitioner who studied with Moshe Feldenkrais in the United States and Israel.

Francis Lu, p. 28 ... with a background in gestalt, psychosynthesis, and transpersonal psychology, is assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of California, San Francisco.

Nancy Kaye Lunney, p. 22 ... gestaltist and musician on Esalen's faculty, has specialized in work with professionals in the creative arts, does individual as well as group work, and is manager of programming at Esalen.

M

John Marks p. 31 ... is director of Search for Common Ground in Washington, fellow of Harvard's Institute of Politics, and associate of Harvard's Department of Psychology and Social Relations.

Leo Matos ..... a Brazilian psychologist, is director of the Transpersonal Institute of Denmark. He has studied and lived with Tibetan masters for eleven years.
p. 26

Terence McKenna ..... authored The Invisible Landscape and Psilocybin: Magic Mushroom Grower's Guide. He studied shamanism at U.C. Berkeley and has lived in tropical Asia and the Amazon.
p. 21

Deborah Anne Medow, ... Esalen body work practitioner and group leader since 1969, teaches ashtanga yoga, massage, creative movement, and related healing disciplines, and studies Native American tradition.
p. 20, 21, 31, 36

Ailish Mellard, ... holistic health practitioner and body worker for 12 years, is currently organizational consultant for Will Schutz Associates, which teaches human potential concepts to various organizations.
p. 36

Andre Melville ..... is a senior researcher of American social trends and public opinion, at the Soviet Academy of Sciences' Institute of U.S. and Canada Studies.
p. 28

Don Michael ..... is author of On Learning to Plan and Planning to Learn and professor emeritus in planning and public policy at the University of Michigan.
p. 17

Crystal Miller ..... is a dancer and former consultant to the National Endowment for the Arts.
p. 32

JoAnne Miller ..... is a psychologist who works with movement, breath, diet, and creative thought.
p. 24

Saul Miller ..... is a consultant, psychologist, Olympic coach, and author of Food For Thought: A New Look at Food and Behavior.
p. 24

Stacy Mills, ... a certified Rolfer® and rolfing teacher, has also worked as a consulting psychologist and has had many years of experience relating to children professionally.
p. 23

Laurie Muller (Lioness), ... a member of the Esalen massage crew and teaching staff since 1974, integrates traditional and innovative approaches to healing the body, mind, and spirit.
p. 16, 29, 36

Dulce Murphy ..... is a founder of the Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program and director of its Health Promotion Project.
p. 17

John Naisbitt ..... is author of the best-seller Megatrends (translated into 18 languages), and chairman of the Naisbitt Group, a Washington-based social forecasting company.
p. 28

Roderick Nash ..... is author of Wilderness and the American Mind and professor of history and environmental studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara.
p. 21

The NINE ..... "We are pure thought human fantasy seeking a road to the birth canal of reality where we will be seen as 'The NINE'."
p. 19, 27

Jenny O'Connor ..... is a psychic from England, and is a channel for "The NINE."
p. 19, 27

Brita Ostrom, ... a longtime Esalen massage practitioner, incorporates Trager training with the personal energetic connection of the Esalen massage.
p. 21, 33

Chris O'Reilly ..... has taught non-verbal communication for over ten years. She is currently writing a book on relationship to God and is a student of Indian Classical dance.
p. 33

Tim O'Reilly ..... is a writer, teacher, and businessman. His teaching is based on maps of consciousness originally developed by George Simon.
p. 33

Helen Palmer, ... a clairvoyant counselor, is director of the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition. Her approach uses personality issues as access points to psychic perception and the inner life.
p. 19, 31

Wendy Palmer, ... a teacher and director of the Lomi School, holds a black belt in aikido and is co-founder of the Tamalpais Aikido and International Movement Arts Center.
p. 19

Leslie Pam ..... former director of the Primal Institute, marriage and family counselor, is co-author of the forthcoming book Revolution in Hypnosis, and is in private practice in Los Angeles.
p. 36

Jane Parsons ..... was facilitator in individual, group, and family treatment in the department of psychiatry at Mount Sinai Hospital for 12 years, and is in private practice in New York City.
p. 28

Kenneth Pelletier ..... is assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at U.C.S.F.; assistant professor, Public Health Department, U.C. Berkeley; and director of the California Health and Medical Foundation.
p. 17

Hector Prestera, ... a physician, acupuncturist, Rolfer®, certified neurolinguistic trainer, and practitioner of Ericksonian hypnotherapy, is in private practice in Monterey.
p. 21, 27

Christine Stewart Price ..... combines gestalt awareness practice with creative visualization. She is a born-again pagan.
p. 12, 15

Jennifer Price, ... age 9, was born at Esalen, is an alumna of the Gazebo and a junior staff member there.
p. 15

Paul Rebillot ..... was founding director of the Gestalt Fool Theater Family in San Francisco and has been a resident group leader at Esalen.
p. 30, 33, 34, 35

Sogyal Rinpoche, ... a Tibetan lama and specialist in the traditional knowledge associated with the Tibetan Book of the Dead, is director of a special project with the Scientific and Medical Network in London.
p. 22, 27

Jack Rosenberg, ... author of Total Orgasm, has trained in gestalt and Reichian work. He has worked with cancer research and transformation of consciousness, and is currently in private practice in Venice, Ca.
p. 21, 40, 41

Theodore Roszak ..... teaches history at California State University and is author of several books and novels, among them The Making of a Counter Culture, Unfinished Animal, Person/Planet, Bugs, and Dreamwatcher.
p. 24

S

Ilana Rubenfeld p. 15, 30 ... is the originator of her own integration called "gestalt synergy." She trained with Fritz and Laura Perls and Moshe Feldenkrais, and is on the faculty of New York University.

Nancy Sanders, p. 19 ... a licensed social worker, has been teaching about Bach Flowers for the past five years at Esalen and elsewhere in the United States and Canada.

Mitch Saunders p. 25 ... is a counselor at the University of Santa Clara and a graduate student with interests in trust, openness, and integrity.

David Schiffman p. 18, 19, 22, 26, 27, 28, 34 ... a longtime leader at Esalen, is involved in developing a synthesis of teaching for the full expression of mental, physical, and spiritual states of being.

Elisa Lodge Schiffman p. 22, 24, 34 ... trained in structural integration with Ida Rolf and is an advanced teacher of Rolf® -movement integration.

Tom Schlesinger, p. 19 ... whose screenplay, Power Play, is presently in production, is a film educator and moderator of seminars for the American Film Institute.

Will Schutz, p. 20, 36 ... founder of the Antioch holistic studies department, is the creator of The Human Element, a set of training materials for organizations, and author of Joy and Profound Simplicity.

Alan Schwartz p. 29, 30 ... is a college professor and gestaltist in private practice in New York City. His latest article in print is "The Human Energy System and Spirituality."

Jacqueline Schwartz p. 19 ... has lectured at the World Health Organization in Geneva, Switzerland and teaches throughout the United States and Europe. She is currently writing a book.

Charlotte Selver p. 23, 24 ... teaches sensory awareness, perception, and non-verbal and verbal communication. A center has been built for her long-term study groups at Green Gulch Farm through the Zen Center, San Francisco.

Phyllis Shankman p. 24 ... is an instructor at U.C.L.A. Extension, counselor in private practice in west Los Angeles, and founder of Women in Transition Seminars.

Robert Shapiro, p. 27 ... co-founder and honorary chairperson of Oasis, is a long-time friend of Alan Watts, Fritz Perls, Virginia Satir, Robert Assagioli, and Lama Govinda. He applies Eastern wisdom to Western life and industry.

David Shire, p. 22 ... Oscar-winner for the film score of Norma Rae, has currently written film scores for Max Dugan, All the President's Men, The Conversation, and The World According to Garp.

Cynthia Rogers Silverman p. 23 ... is a certified advance Rolfer®. She has a special interest in working with children and in the study of child development.

Julian Silverman, p. 26, 35 ... an Esalen trustee, is director of counseling and psychological services at U.C. Santa Cruz.

Saul-Paul Sirag p. 35 ... has published two physics papers in Nature and has authored a theory on the size of the universe. In 1977 he founded the Consciousness Theory Group, which he directs.

Harry Sloan, p. 18, 35 ... a 1969 Esalen resident fellow, former dentist, and playwright, worked with Dr. Roberto Assagioli, the founder of psychosynthesis, and is in private practice in San Francisco.

Gerald Smith p. 25, 35 ... is a psychologist in Belmont, California. He is the author of Hidden Meanings and Couple Therapy.

Sally Smith p. 20 ... first led gay groups and couples' groups at Esalen in the late 60s. She currently leads groups for gay couples and is a licensed masseuse.

Starhawk, p. 15 ... a feminist and peace activist, is a counselor in private practice in San Francisco, and a teacher of the European goddess tradition, often called witchcraft.

Gail Stewart p. 15 ... has been teaching and practicing massage and body work for several years. She teaches in Berkeley, both privately and at the Gefion School.

Lois Stewart, p. 15 ... a trainer in interpersonal communication skills and a Trager trainee, has a private practice near Washington, D.C. and has 62 years of practice in learning to be a human.

Elizabeth Stratton, p. 28, 30, 31 ... a psychic healer and counselor in private practice in New York City, leads workshops in self-healing, psychic self-defense, and psychic development for health professionals.

T

Charles Tart p. 21 ... has worked with altered states of consciousness, parapsychology, and human potentials for 25 years. He is currently writing a new presentation of Gurdjieff's psychological system.

Vicki Topp p. 26, 33 ... joined the Esalen massage staff in 1968, and is currently interested in integrating emotional release work and the transpersonal aspects of body work.

Nina Tumarkin p. 26 ... is the author of Lenin Lives! The Lenin Cult in Soviet Russia and associate professor of history at Wellesley College.

U

Dana Ullman, p. 20 ... author of Homeopathic Medicine for the Family, is an educator, publisher, practitioner, and public policy advisor specializing in homeopathy, alternative health-care, and self-care.

V

John Vasconcellos p. 25 ... is a ninth-term California legislator and author of A Liberating Vision: Politics for Growing Humans and A New Human Agenda: Toward Individual Self-Sufficienty.

W

Brian Wallace p. 21 ... is an international musician, composer, and media artist noted for creating a dramatic environment. He has performed solo and in companies for 20 years.

Judyth Weaver, p. 25 ... a Reichian counselor, certified teacher of t'ai chi ch'uan, and student of Buddhism and Taoism, holds a doctorate in psychology and teaches at the California Institute of Integral Studies.

Carl Whitaker, p. 15 ... professor emeritus at the University of Wisconsin, is one of the world's leading innovators in family communication and therapy. He is co-author of Roots of Psychotherapy and The Family Crucible.

Z

Nancy Winston ..... is a counselor in New York City who has studied with Milton Erickson and has taught and trained clinicians in the use of hypnosis and counseling throughout North America.
p. 15, 17

Rickie Wolf, ... director of the Tokyo Gestalt Institute, is a research fellow at the University of Tokyo in psychosomatic medicine. She is a professional clown and storyteller.
p. 31

Janet Zuckerman ..... has been on the teaching staff at Esalen for more than ten years. Her work includes emotional release work, group process, and gestalt practice.
p. 12, 26

Catalog Subscription Information

The Esalen Catalog is published tri-annually. Subscription cost for one year, including postage and handling, is $8 for the United States, $10 for Canada and Mexico, $14 for Europe and South America, and $16 for all other countries. Please make all payments in U.S. currency. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920.

☐ To obtain future issues of the Esalen Catalog and occasional mailings for one year, please send a check or money order in U.S. currency only to: Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. A preaddressed envelope is included in this catalog for your convenience.
(Note: People who attend an Esalen workshop or conference will receive a free subscription for one year.)

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ Please send a complimentary copy of the Esalen Catalog to the person listed below:

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Please notify us if you change your address and check here ☐ if you are receiving duplicates of the catalog.

Friends of Esalen

We invite you to join us in our organization—Friends of Esalen.

Friends of Esalen provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

We believe that one of our first priorities is to make our programs available on a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions to fund such scholarships.

In addition to knowing that you have given someone else the opportunity to experience Esalen, you will receive the Esalen Catalog for one year. We hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the sharing and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

☐ I wish to become a Friend of Esalen and I enclose my check for the category circled.

☐ I wish to renew my membership in Friends of Esalen.

One Year Student $15
One Year Individual $25
One Year Donor $50
One Year Sponsor $100
One Year Patron $500
(Contributions are tax-deductible)

Name _____ Student Affiliation _____

Street _____

City, State _____ Zip Code _____ Date _____

Please mail to: Friends of Esalen, Big Sur, California 93920

Food for the Senses

a book of recipes and artwork by people of the Esalen community is now available. To order by mail, use the following form.

Please send me _____ copies of Food for the Senses at $5.95 each, plus an additional $1.20 per book for postage and handling, or a total of $7.15. (California residents add $.35 tax.) I am enclosing a total of $ _____.

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Please mail to: Food for the Senses, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920. Make checks payable to Esalen Institute. Allow 6 weeks for delivery.

Audio Recordings

Tape Recordings of Human Potential Programs

The human potential movement continues to generate unusual events which in turn produce unusual recordings. Each issue of the Esalen Catalog lists a number of new titles and also includes some from the Big Sur Recordings archives. Nearly all tapes are stereo, from live events, and tape length is normally 1 to 1½ hours. These recordings are available on cassettes only. Single-tape titles are $9 with check or money order ($10 by purchase order):

Paul Rebillot: The Pluto Story, 1983
Richard Feynman: Quantum Mechanical View of Reality, 1983
Terence McKenna: Scenario of a Psychedelic Society, 1984
Joseph Campbell: The Hero's Journey, 1984

Robert Schwartz: Toward a Higher Human Language, 1983
Norman Lear: Communications, Liberty, and The New Right, 1983
Robert Muller: The Language of Happiness, 1983
Jean Houston: The Possible Human/The Possible Society, 1983

R. D. Laing: The Voice of Experience
Thomas Szasz: The Myth of Psychotherapy
Toni & John Lilly: Reality and Beliefs
Fritjof Capra: Turning Point: Shifting Paradigms
Gregory Bateson: The Eternal Verities of Life

Jack Kornfield: The Simplicity of Spiritual Practice
Father Bede Griffiths: The Christian Doctrine of New Creation
Rupert Sheldrake: Morphic Resonance (Formative Causation)
Mother Theresa: Address to Bombay ITA Conference and Press
Joseph Chilton Pearce: Role Models and Randomity

Robert Anton Wilson: The Prism Lecture
Albert Hofmann: LSD and the Nature of Reality
Terence McKenna: New and Old Maps of Hyperspace

Robert Bly: The Six Powers of Poetry
Gioia Timpanelli: Fairy Tales: The Enduring Stories
Anne Armstrong: On Being A Psychic, 1971
Joseph Wheelwright: Psychological Types, 1971
Baba Ram Dass: Yoga of Daily Life, 1970

Alan Watts: Divine Madness, 1968
Joseph Campbell: Freud, Jung, and Kundalini Yoga, 1967
Carl Rogers: The Intensive Group, 1966
Abraham Maslow: Self-Actualization, 1966
Fritz Perls: Gestalt Therapy and How It Works, 1966

Two-tape titles are $16 with check or money order ($18 by purchase order):

Buckminster Fuller: (2) The Critical Path, 1982 (Maui, Hawaii)
Thomas J. Peters: (2) In Search of Excellence, 1983
Arthur M. Young: (2) Interview Tapes: His Life and Work, 1983
Frank Herbert: (2) Conversations at Home with Frank and Bev, 1983

Carl Rogers: (2) A Weekend at Esalen, 1983
Ilana Rubenfeld: (2) Gestalt Synergy Method
Selver/Brooks: (2) Sensory Awareness, 1980-1982
Paul Rebillot: (2) The Hero's Journey

Stan & Christina Grof: (2) Holonomic Consciousness Paradigm
Ropert Sheldrake: (2) A New Science of Life
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Story of Basque Mysticism
Andrew Weil: (2) Interplay of Mind and Body Realities
Michael Harner: (2) Shamanism, Songs, and Spirit Canoe

Baba Ram Dass: (2) One Man's Journey To The East, 1968
Colin Wilson: (2) On the Evolution of Consciousness, 1968
Wilson Van Dusen: (2) Confronting Hallucinations, 1968

Joseph Campbell: (2) Myths of Alienation and Rapture, 1970
Bernard Aaronson: (2) Tantric Chant, Poetry, and Hypnosis, 1968
Fritz Perls: (2) Neurosis, Psychosis, and Dreams, 1968

Please add $2 to your order for handling and mailing. California residents include 6% tax. Please mail your order with check payable to: Workshop Cassettes, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920. Suggestions regarding recordings are appreciated.

The Dolphin Series: (complete sets in albums)

Joseph Campbell: (4 tapes) Imagery in the Novels of James Joyce (6 hours) $40 with check ($44 by purchase order)
Fritz Perls: (4 tapes) Working With Dreams (4 hours) $40 ($44)
Theodore Roszak: (4 tapes) The Unfinished Animal (6 hours) $40 ($44)
Jack Rosenberg: (4) A New Understanding of Relationships (4 hours) $40 ($44)
Rollo May: (4) The F. Scott Fitzgerald Myth and Your Own (6 hours) $40 ($44)
Donald Keys: (4) Inner Transformation and Outer Involvement: Personal Growth and Social Change (6 hours) $40 ($44)
Theodore Roszak & William Irwin Thompson: (4) Personal and Cultural Transformation (4 hours) $40 ($44)
Anne & Jim Armstrong: (4) A Psychic Training Program: Experiencing Your Own Inner Sensitivity (6 hours) $40 ($44)
The 1983 Santa Barbara Conference: (6) Entheogens: The Sacred Psychedelics (6 hours) $60 ($66)
Jack Kornfield: (6) The Spiritual Practice of Meditation (7 hours) $60 ($60)
Andrew Weil: (6) Integrated Consciousness and Health (6 hours) $60 ($66)
Gregory Bateson: (6) Steps to an Ecology of Mind (8 hours) $60 ($66)
Fritz Perls: (6) The Perls Encounter: A Complete Weekend (8 hours) $60 ($66)
Ken Dychtwald: (6) Bodymind Health, Longevity, and Optimal Performance (7 hours) $60 ($66)
Julian Silverman: (6) Further Commentaries on A Course In Miracles (6 hours) $60 ($66)
Ruthy Alon: (6) Lessons in The Feldenkrais Method — Series I (10 lessons) $60 ($66)
Ruthy Alon: (6) Lessons in The Feldenkrais Method — Series II (9 hours) $60 ($66)
Moshe Feldenkrais: (6) Awareness Through Movement — Series I (10 lessons) $70 ($77)
Julian Silverman: (8) Commentaries on A Course in Miracles (10 hours) $70 ($77)
Father Bede Griffiths: (8) Christianity and Eastern Mysticism: Convergence of Religions (10 hours) $70 ($77)
Joseph Chilton Pearce: (8) Insight and Ecstasy: Quest Seminar 1981 San Francisco (11 hours) $70 ($77)
Buckminster Fuller: (8) The Pajaro Dunes Tapes: A Weekend Seminar (12 hours) $70 ($77)
Joseph Campbell: (10) World Mythology and the Individual Adventure (15 hours) $80 ($88)
Gregory Bateson: (12) The Informal Esalen Lectures 1975-1980 (18 hours) $90 ($99)

Please add $2 for mailing each vinyl album set ($4 if you wish priority mail). California residents include 6% tax. Please mail your order with check payable to: Dolphin Tapes, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920.

Audio Recordings

The Planet Series

Through the remainder of 1984 the following selections from the Planet Tapes series may be purchased for just $5 each tape ($6 by purchase order) in order to enable a wider distribution. The unifying theme is a mutual concern for the health of our planet and of ourselves:

Helen Caldicott: Medical Effects of Nuclear War
Ram Dass: Embracing Paradox (Dharma and The Bomb)
Thomas Banyacya: Hopi Prophecy and Survival
Senator Matsunaga: US Academy of Peace and Conflict Resolution
David Brower: The Fate of the Earth
Donald Keys: Choosing a New World
Daniel Ellsberg: (2) The Nuclear Policy Catastrophe (2 tapes)
1982 MOTW Panel #7: (2) Where Do We Go From Here? (2 tapes)
1982 MOTW Panel #6: (2) Experience In Conflict (2 tapes)

Please add $2 to your order for handling and mailing. California residents include 6% tax. Please write a separate check and mail your order to: Planet Tapes, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920.

Meditation Music, Space Age Music

This new age music, called by many names (spatial, cosmic, celestial, transcendent, meditational) covers a wide range and is becoming increasingly known and appreciated. Listed here are several mail order sources for catalogs or information: Hearts of Space*, Box 31321, San Francisco, California 94131; Fortuna Records and Tapes, Box 1116, Novato, California 94947; Backroads, 530 South 46th Street, Boulder, Colorado 80303; Narada, 1804 E. North Avenue, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53202; Vital Body Marketing, Box 703, Fresh Meadows, New York 11365, and Yes! Bookstore and Tapes, 1035 31st Street N.W., Washington D.C. 20007.

The Media Center

Esalen Videotape

This 18 minute videotape, which tells Esalen's story from its early history to the present, is an inexpensive way to view the general offerings available at Esalen. The visuals consist of 130 color slides featuring scenes of the Big Sur coast, Esalen's garden, grounds, and various workshops and activities. The musical soundtrack is by Paul Horn, Joel Andrews, and "Pinchey Pete" Velasquez.

Cost: For Rent:

½" VHS color video cassette	per week $10.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette	per week $15.00

Cost: For Sale:

½" VHS color video cassette	$35.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette	$40.00

This program is available for purchase in its original form—a two-projector slide dissolve show which can also be viewed with a single projector.

Cost: For Sale:
Slide Program—including 130 slides, cassette tape, and script (pulsed tape for Entré 7610 dissolve unit available on request)..... $150.00

Color Slide Set

A set of five scenes of Esalen—the Big Sur coast, the Esalen grounds, garden, the outdoor hot baths, t'ai chi on the pool deck—is available for $5.50.

Please address your order with a check payable to the Esalen Media Center, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. California residents add 6% sales tax for sale purchases.

Overseas air mail orders please add additional postage: each slide program $10 ($15 for Australia and Asia), each video cassette $7, each slide set $1.

Films

Films of the work of Fritz Perls, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Rollo May, Virginia Satir, Alexander Lowen, and others, are available from Psychological Films, 110 North Wheeler Street, Orange, California 92669. For color documentaries with Alan Watts, Huston Smith, Lama Govinda, Joseph Campbell, Edgar Mitchell, Margaret Mead, and others, write Hartley Productions, Cat Rock Road, Cos Cob, Connecticut 06807. A film or video cassette on Chungliang Al Huang's work, entitled Tai Chi: The Watercourse Way, is available through KLB Productions, 490 Redwood Road, Corralitos, California 95076. Regarding the documentary on Gregory Bateson, send inquiries also to KLB Productions at the above address. Recent color videotapes of Stephen Levine and Ram Dass on "Conscious Living/Conscious Dying", and of Daniel Ellsberg, Helen Caldicott, and others on the nuclear issue are available from Original Face Video, Box 447, Grass Valley, Ca. 95945.

Announcement

Alan Watts Library

The Alan Watts Society for Comparative Philosophy, in conjunction with the Zen Center of San Francisco, is initiating a drive to raise funds for the construction of a building in which to house permanently the Alan Watts Memorial Library, with space to include the works of Lama Anagarika Govinda and Li Gotami Govinda.

This building will be located at the Green Gulch Zen Center in Marin County, across the Golden Gate Bridge from San Francisco. This close proximity to a major American city will assure that the Library will be accessible to students from all over the world.

Funds of approximately $30,000 are needed to complete this project. Any gift, large or small, will be gratefully accepted. Tax deductible donations should be made directly to the Zen Center and mailed to 300 Page Street, San Francisco, CA 94120.

General Information

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esselen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute-By Reservation Only.

Reservation Information: In order to reserve a space in any workshop we require a reservation fee of $50 for weekend groups, $100 for five-day groups, $150 for seven-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups, payable in U.S. currency only. Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks. Balance of payment is due on arrival. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year of receipt.

Please mail all reservations to:
Reservations, Esalen Institute
Big Sur, Ca. 93920

We are able to process mail reservations more effectively. If you are concerned about workshops being full or have any questions, you may make reservations by phone if you use your Mastercard, Visa, or American Express credit card number to charge your reservation fee.

Phone (408) 667-2335
Office Hours:
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

If there is no answer during our regular business hours, and the phone company confirms that our phones are out of order, please call our alternate number (408) 372-8719, for recorded up-to-date workshop, road, and transportation information.

Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 4 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive any time after lunch.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Senior Citizens' Discount Information: Esalen offers a special discount to individuals over 60 years of age. The discount for a weekend workshop is $25, and a five-day is $50. Discounts are available only when you make your reservations. Please present proof of age when you register.

Ongoing Residence Program: Offered from October through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Many community programs are also open to residents. The cost is $1800 per 26-day period.

Health Services: We are unable to provide medical supervision or pharmaceutical supplies. If you are on a health-care program and you plan to spend several weeks at Esalen, please arrive prepared to administer to your health-care needs.

Room and Board: Bed spaces not required for workshop participants are sometimes available for room and board. Accommodations are shared and the rate is $60 per person per day, which includes dinner on the day of arrival and breakfast and lunch the following day. Private rooms are sometimes available at $100 per day, or $110 per day per couple. Special family rates are available. Please phone the office for additional information.

Bus Service: We have bus service from the Monterey Greyhound station at 4:45 pm and from the Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm on Fridays and Sundays. If you plan to use this service, please inform the Esalen office at least 24 hours prior to your arrival. The charge for one-way service is $20, payable to the Esalen office when you check in. Return reservations may be made at the same time. Bus service to Esalen is not available at any other time.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are expected to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff, usually in the kitchen. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of certificates or diplomas, such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Contributions to Esalen Institute are tax-deductible.

The expenses of attending Esalen, including travel, are deductible for federal income tax purposes as an educational expense if incurred to maintain or improve professional or work skills. (See Income Tax Regulation 1.162-5.)

Esalen Institute reserves the right to cancel any program at any time.

Esalen Institute Reservations

This form is for your convenience in reserving a space in Esalen workshops. In completing the form, please indicate the name, address, and telephone number of each person registering and clearly indicate the title of the workshop for which each person is reserving a place. A registration fee for each person registering and each workshop applied for must accompany this form. (See General Information, page 50.)

(Please Print)

Name _____ Sex M ☐ F ☐

Address _____

City, State _____ Zip _____ Occupation _____

Telephone Number: Day: Area Code ( ) _____ Evening: Area Code ( ) _____

There are sometimes unexpected situations that may require us to contact you immediately before your stay here. If you will not be at the above numbers during the two weeks prior to the workshop, where may we reach you? If you can't be reached please call us before your scheduled arrival for final confirmation.

(On additional paper please repeat the above information for every person in your party making a reservation. Mail all reservations to Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920.)

Check if you want: ☐ shared room with friend: _____ ☐ housing as a couple

Do you smoke? _____

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. (For further details see Ways of Being at Esalen, page 12.)

Bus Service:

I want bus service from (check one):

_____ Monterey Airport

_____ Monterey Greyhound Bus Station

at 5:00 pm on _____ (date of arrival, Fridays & Sundays only)

The $20 per person charge is payable on arrival at Esalen. If your plans for use of the bus change after you submit this reservation, please notify us. Esalen bus service is not available at any time other than 5 pm.

Check here ☐ if you do not want us to give out your number for the purposes of ride sharing.

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

License Number:
(for registered nurses wanting CEU's) _____ (for physicians wanting CEU's) _____

Name of Person Registering	Date(s)	Leader's Name/Title of Workshop	Deposit Enclosed

Total amount enclosed: $ _____

Please make checks payable to Esalen Institute in U.S. currency only.

Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks.

Your reservation can be charged to:

MasterCard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express ☐

Card No. _____

Expiration Date _____

All workshops require nonrefundable reservation fees. See page 50. The balance of program fees becomes payable at the time of check-in.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some people, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Its activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

Esalen Institute
Big Sur
California 93920

DATED MATTER

The Esalen Catalog

January-June, 1985

Contents

Volume XXIV, Number 1

Audio Recordings 48–49
Big Sur Wilderness Experience 15
Biographical Information 43–47
Catalog Subscription Information 47
Conferences at Esalen 15
Esalen Seminars 16–35
Experiencing Esalen 14
Experiencing Esalen: The Body 14
Features:

Games Soviets and Americans Play 4–7
Keith Thompson with Robert Bathurst

Remembering Moshe 9
Thomas Hanna

Feldenkrais and Esalen 9
Kolman Korentayer

Moshe Feldenkrais: A Legacy of Hope 9
Patrick Douce

Conjunctions 10–11

The Ins and Outs of Addiction 12
Keith Thompson

Esalen Update 13

Friends of Esalen 47
Future Programs 42
General Information 50
Gestalt Practice 15
Media Center 49
Medical Programs 42
Reservations Form 51
Scholarship Information 15
Special Programs 40–41
Ways of Being at Esalen 14–15
Wilderness Programs 42
Winter Study Programs 37–39
Work Study Program and Application 36

Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920
Phone (408) 667-2335

Monday, Tuesday, Thursday
& Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

Catalog Editor: Nancy Knapp
Features Editor: Keith Thompson
Consulting Editor: Nancy Kaye Lunney

Graphic Design: Barbara Adamson
Art Direction: Barbara Adamson
& Joyce Rogers Lyke
Cover Photograph: David Nelson

Esalen Board of Trustees:
Harold Benjamin
Steven Donovan
Jack Downing
Victoria Elliot
Stanislav Grof
Richard Gunther
Nancy Kaye Lunney
Michael Murphy
Mary Payne
John Perry

©1985 Esalen Institute
All Rights Reserved.

©Bonnie Freer 1984

Moshe Feldenkrais 1904-1984

CIARDELLI

GAMES

SOVIETS AND AMERICANS PLAY

Keith Thompson Talks with Robert Bathurst

The room was full. The American representatives sat on one side, the Soviets on the other. At times the tensions were enormous. Deadlock seemed inevitable. War, while remaining unthinkable, no longer seemed impossible . . .

This is not a description of arms reduction negotiations in Vienna, but of a series of seminars at Esalen on cross-cultural understanding between Soviets and Americans. (See "Soviet-American Relationships," February 8-10.) These seminars deal with the cultural patterns governing a nation's behavior in international relations, how it negotiates, when it goes to war, how it handles foreign proposals, how it conducts business. The mode for exploring such issues? Games. Aggression games, decision games, risk games, role-playing games. The workshops bring together two groups: one of Americans, primarily business people, counselors, therapists, and management-level government employees; and a second of Russian emigres or Soviet citizens from the same occupations.

The seminars were conceived and organized by Robert Bathurst, adjunct professor of National Security Affairs at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey and a Visitor at Harvard University's Russian Research Center. Dr. Bathurst, who wrote a doctoral dissertation on Russian intellectual history, served as Assistant Naval Attache at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. "The purpose of the games," he remarks, "is to identify underlying cultural patterns and to have an interesting and amusing time doing it. There are no teachers and pupils, no grades or scores, rights or wrongs."

Keith Thompson recently sat down with Bathurst for a talk about Soviet-American game-playing. The conversation began with Thompson observing that Americans seem not to understand Soviets very well, and there must be some good reasons for this. With that, their colloquium began.

ROBERT: It's true, Americans don't understand the Soviet Union. Why? Consider the thinking of anthropologist Edward Hall, who divides cultures into two broad groups: high-context and low-context. The Soviet Union is a high-context culture, which means Soviets place more importance on the setting in which a message is received, and less importance on the message itself. In terms of problem-solving, the first step for Soviets is to consider the problem in terms of an overall, over-riding generalization, which is never considered separable from considerations. For example, it is nearly impossible to talk with a Soviet official about a contemporary political issue without the official mentioning the heavy Soviet losses during World War II. In other words, they go for the big picture, emphasizing the general over the particular, stability over change, history over concerns of the moment. "What does this particular issue mean in the larger context of the history of U.S-Soviet relations?" That's the question Soviets ask.

The United States is probably the lowest-context industrial nation on earth. The American cultural tendency is always to pay more attention to what's actually being said in a given message than to the larger context in which the message is given and received. If Soviets emphasize stability, Americans emphasize specificity of content, adaptability, change, and novelty of approach. Americans take a complex problem and break it down into its components, all the little bits and tasks which comprise what is, to the Soviets, a complex matter which cannot be separated from the context in which particular problems emerge.

So we already have a great distinction between the ways Soviets and Americans think and see the world. Keep in mind, though, that no culture is monolithically high-or low-context. These comparisons are meant to help us make useful generalizations, and they aren't a judgment of which is better or worse. They're descriptions of different cultural styles. Americans aren't always low-context. We get high-context when dealing with our kids: "Why are they behaving like this? What's it related to? How will it affect their future?" But then, when we think about Russia, we get very low-context. We say things like, "We'll create a cultural exchange and show them what nice people we are, and therefore they'll abolish collectivization and get out of the Third World."

The result is that we look like children to the Russians, who see our perspective as naive. We Americans are so trained in the low-context mind-set that when we do turn around and become analytical and comprehensive, we do it in the low-context way called "mirror-imaging," in which we project our cultural self-image onto the Russians. Rather than appreciating the ways in which Soviet culture is vastly different than American, we imagine that "the Russians really are like us and they will behave like us." The assumption is that Soviet-American relations are not complex, and this is a dangerous assumption.

KEITH: The typical American emphasis on adaptability, novelty, fresh beginnings and constant change are reflected in the also typically American notion that "it's all happening here and now, moment to moment." Whereas Russian culture, because it's so much older, would have a very different relationship with time, which helps explain their fear of change and passion for stability.

ROBERT: Absolutely true. Americans think of what's happening instant to instant, or maybe election to election, while Soviets tend to think primarily in terms of the future, as in "when Paradise does come for the worker;" and in terms of the past, as in their constant references to the 20 million Soviet lives lost during World War II. Maybe it's because the mainland of the United States has never been attacked that Americans simply can't comprehend why the Soviets still think and talk so much about the Second World War, and why it should affect their relations with us today.

KEITH: In terms of the perspective you're outlining, perhaps the ultimate in low-context American thinking was when President Carter realized in utter amazement that the Soviet Union had invaded Afghanistan.

ROBERT: Yes, the American view of history is so myopic that we are unable to see how high-context Soviet strategy really is. The idea of world-wide Marxist revolution is actually a very simple concept to grasp, especially with daily Soviet elaborations in Pravda and Tass. But the American perspective is so low-context that we say things like: "Well, obviously, it's a metaphor, they don't mean literal revolution, there must be some hidden meaning."

Remember that President Carter, who is a brilliant man, but also very low-context, received regular intelligence reports about the Soviet Union. He'd been educated at the U.S. Naval Academy, which features a relatively hard-line on the Soviets. Yet, as you mention, he was totally surprised by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, and he became quite angry, and set about punishing them through a boycott of the Moscow Olympics. This is very dangerous, when frustrated expectations—unrealistic expectations at that—head to anger. It's how wars begin. Jimmy Carter, the most powerful man in the world, was totally unprepared for an act which for the Soviets followed as night follows day; while Brezhnev, the second most powerful man in the world, was absolutely dumbfounded that Carter couldn't understand the Soviet imperative to enter Afghanistan.

KEITH: To what extent are these international stances reflected in the games seminar? How do the games work?

ROBERT: First, the premise of the games, a premise which by no means originates with me, is that we learn not only with our minds but with our bodies and emotions. I had been worrying for years about why Americans don't better understand the Russians, and was foraging around for some way to make a contribution to real understanding and communication between these two great cultures. Eventually the idea came to me: negotiations can only happen in groups, so why not bring Russians and Americans together and play games?

One of my favorites is a negotiating game which incorporates elements not unlike the Cuban missile crisis. There are two teams of players, one consisting of emigres from Russia who now live in America, the other of Americans from different professions and walks of life. Each team appoints an ambassador, a spokesperson, to negotiate with the other side, and instructs this person what to say and what not to say.

KEITH: How are the ambassadors chosen?

ROBERT: The American players go through an extraordinarily complex process to select their representative: everyone's ego has to be attended to, every view considered, even though it's usually more or less apparent from the start who's going to be the leader. And of course everyone acts as if he doesn't want the leadership role so as not to appear too ambitious! The process takes a very long time. Everyone has to have his or her input—the American process at work, or at play.

In contrast, on the Soviet side, a leader simply emerges out of what appears to Americans to be general chaos. Everyone allows the strongest person to be the leader, even if this person takes positions the rest of them don't share. They don't argue about it, but instead get to the business of organizing their strategy.

KEITH: How do the negotiating postures of each side differ? Do they reflect the larger cultural differences you've mentioned?

ROBERT: As the game gets started, it in many ways tells the entire story of U.S.-Soviet relations. That's an exaggeration, but what emerges is striking. The American players, for example, begin by assuring the Soviet players that "we want peace, honesty, good will and friendship"—thereby giving away their power from the start. The Americans, anxious to convey that they are nice, friendly people, proceed to set up a happy, pleasant environment for the negotiations. The Soviet players invariably try to take advantage of this. They send out an ambassador who begins asking questions about overall Soviet-American relations. They take the high-context route, bringing current issues into association with past Soviet-American concerns—in other words, linking the content of what's being said into an overall emphasis on the setting in which it's said. So while the Russians insist on exploring the big picture, the Americans usually get low-context fast, taking the "lets break it down into individual bits we can solve one by one" approach. Then the Americans begin setting up timetables for solving each discrete problem, which of course is not the Soviet way of doing business.

KEITH: It sounds like a classic dead-lock is just about to come.

ROBERT: Not quite yet. In past games the Soviets have tried to confuse the Americans by making many, many proposals, advancing a general chaotic tone. The Americans don't know how to deal with this, so they continue trying to break the complex of demands and proposals into tiny problem-bits that can be handled one by one. The Soviets won't let them do that, although the Americans keep trying to do it; eventually the scene is totally confused. Then the Soviets start playing one American off against another, based on their knowledge that each American player has his or her own position and wants to be heard as an individual, which amuses the Russians. Usually, then, the Soviets dispatch one of their people as a spy whose only function is to watch and overhear whatever the Americans are discussing. The American players never think of doing this. Good people, friendly people, don't send out spies—this is the tone of the American position.

KEITH: So it ends in stalemate, or with a treaty, or how?

Americans think of what's happening instant to instant, or maybe election to election, while Soviets tend to think primarily in terms of the future.

ROBERT: Well, it ends differently each time. The ending of the last game was funny, but also quite sad. The Americans, who started off with strong protestations of their desire for peace and understanding, ended up so angry and frustrated by the intransigence of the Soviet players that they started throwing pillows at them. In other words, there was war. It was a classic example of an action-chain, or a sequence of events between two teams: frustrated expectations lead to anger, lead to war. And if you fear that this is too simplistic an explanation, think back again to President Carter, whose high hopes for friendship were frustrated by Soviet actions, leading him to organize the Olympics boycott. The parallels are striking.

Obviously the way Soviets feel about their space and Americans about theirs says a lot about whether or not there will be war.

KEITH: Who are you seeking for your February 8-10 workshop, "Soviet-American Relations"?

ROBERT: It doesn't matter whether they're thinkers, tailors, soldiers, or spies. What does matter is their willingness to understand the Soviet Union. That's essential. The theory is that we have an American pattern for behaving toward foreign cultures, and that this pattern works, at least so far, in the games setting. A corollary assumption is that each culture responds in its own way to the same stimuli, reflecting its own cultural patterns and laws, not those of the other side. This includes the way each culture feels about and responds to space, time, danger, security, and of course, to the question "what will the other side do if our side does such-and-such?" The consistencies in behavior are themselves a classroom, incredible to watch and study.

KEITH: You said earlier that body-learning is just as important for participants in these games as intellect-learning.

ROBERT: Yes, we do some movement exercises in order to explore how each side relates to space. Obviously the way Soviets feel about their space and Americans about theirs says a lot about whether or not there will be war. The Soviet downing of the Korean airline was very much related to this question of space, territory, borders, limits. And when the Americans threw pillows, they were bringing their cultural formations into the open on some of these same questions.

One thing I've noticed is that during periods of relaxation after a game is completed, the American players are often out in the middle of the circle, smiling, being open, while the Russians are always sitting against the wall, protecting their backs. They convey a sense of vulnerability which we Americans don't seem to have.

KEITH: Increasing numbers of Americans, alarmed at the lethal animosity between Washington and Moscow and frustrated by the deadlock on arms reductions, are visiting the Soviet Union each year. Some are attempting to organize cultural exchanges, while others want to make contact with fellow scientists and writers, while still others just want to make contact with the people there. How do such "citizen diplomacy" efforts figure into the Soviet-American equation?

ROBERT: These efforts can be useful when participants know what they are doing, and they can also be extremely dangerous and counter-productive. I'll give you a few examples of the second type. When Billy Graham, the American evangelist, went to Russia some months ago, his hosts gave him a guided tour which included a few visits to churches. Graham returned to America with news that religious freedom really does exist in the Soviet Union, which was a betrayal of the millions who suffer and are persecuted for their faith. The Soviets are masters at manipulating distinguished naive visitors into making silly remarks like that, and their success retards our progress toward peace. These statements by Americans help convince oppressed Soviets who are working for change that we have eyes but do not see, and ears but do not hear.

You should read Hollander's book, Political Pilgrims. It's the best study yet of the sad history of Western intellectuals and officials who go to Russia unprepared and come back mouthing nonsense. Joseph Davies, our ambassador in the 1930's, was unusual even for diplomats in that he spent three years there without catching on. He saw Soviet purge victims who had been tortured and beaten, and still thought Stalin was a kind leader who shared power with his comrades.

Even the highest officials are not immune to this. A Western delegation headed by American Vice President Wallace went on a tour in the area of the worst Soviet prison camps after World War II. Well, the prisoners were all starving to death and of course couldn't be shown to foreigners, so they were shunted into the woods for the day. The Soviets then dressed the administrative personnel in prison uniforms, and displayed administrative buildings as if they were prison buildings, to avoid showing the hell-holes in which prisoners really lived. It may be hard to believe, but this charade fooled the Western delegation, which came back with news that "Soviet prisons are really not so bad!"

KEITH: It's a sobering picture you're painting. But are there ways in which well-informed Americans can make a contribution by going to Moscow?

ROBERT: The question which must be asked by Americans who go to Moscow is, "Am I on an ego trip, or do I want to advance our hope for peace?" People on an ego trip will have no difficulty parading through Moscow, knowing practically nothing about Soviet culture, drinking toasts to Soviet-American friendship in Moscow hotels where ordinary Soviet citizens are not even permitted entry. People on an ego trip will not bother to consider that the Russians who agree to meet them are often designated to meet them. Clearly the secret police are not so all-pervasive that your every meeting will be monitored, but it's just as certain that all official contacts are cleared by the secret police. You can be sure that any time you meet with Soviet officials at the various academies, everything you say and do is made available to the KGB.

People who want to make a contribution of value are a different story. Yes, I'm all for talking, all for making contact, but informal contact. The key is: get smart first. Do your homework. Read the many good books currently available about Soviet culture and the history of Soviet-American relations. Learn to speak some tourist Russian so you won't be totally in the hands of the KGB controlled tourist officer. Join with others who are also well informed. Then, by all means, go to Russia and make contact. If we want peace, we really have to get smart.

REMEMBERING MOSHE

©Bonnie Freer 1984

Remembering Moshe

by Thomas Hanna

When he walked into a room everyone turned to look at him, which was remarkable, given the fact that Moshe Feldenkrais was rather short and rotund. Some said he looked like Israel's former prime minister, David Ben-Gurion, with his stocky, powerful figure and a laurel of thin gray hair fringing the sides and back of his skull. His over-all resemblance, however, was nearer to that of a fellow Russian, Nikita Khrushchev. Both were formidable men whose presence was an alternating display of delightful charm and stubborn aggression.

The yin aspects of Feldenkrais were just as remarkable as the yang aspects. Like Janus, he presented to the world two sharply different aspects, and the alternation of these two personae constituted much of the dramatic attraction of the man.

During the morning hours of Monday, July, 2, 1984, Moshe Feldenkrais died. For several months he had lain in his apartment in Tel Aviv, an oxygen tent and intravenous feedings sustaining a life increasingly enfeebled after brain tumor surgery.

He left a legacy of immense significance—the importance of which will take some time to become recognized. Nietzsche wryly commented that "Some men are born posthumously." This applies to Feldenkrais and his legacy, and it underscores his often repeated frustration that "no one understands my work."

The frustration was well founded. Feldenkrais had discovered relationships between brain and body that were revolutionary in import. He had put together certain known neurological facts into a methodology that consistently produced "miracles." The hallmark of this system was that it was educational. It produced "miracles" of bodily change, not by doing something to people, but by teaching people to be aware of their bodily functions in such a way that they were able to control them. Feldenkrais discovered that human awareness, the human motor system and the brain's center of voluntary action, the neo-cortex, formed a cybernetic unity.

Cybernetics involves using new input of information to produce a new output of behavior. From its beginning, cybernetics theory described the human central nervous system as an information system in which motor actions were controlled by sensory information. Feldenkrais simply put cybernetics to practical use: using his hands, he moved the body to create new sensory input so as to produce different motor behavior.

In practice, that meant the lame "miraculously" walked and the paralyzed began to move. Feldenkrais had opened up a realm of which medical physiology had only the faintest notion. Feldenkrais demonstrated his somatic cybernetics throughout the world to astonished audiences. What they saw was so far beyond their comprehension that they literally could not make sense of it, except in the most simplistic terms; e.g., "Is this some form of chiropractic?" "How does this relate to Rolfing?" The agonizing frustration felt by Feldenkrais before such questions was the fuel for the tirades for which he was famous.

The nearest parallel to Feldenkrais' system is another cybernetic technique: biofeedback. Some of the same principles are involved. Just as biofeedback is now powerfully changing the way we think about health care, so will future health care programs inevitably make use of his one-to-one method of Functional Integration and his exercise program of Awareness through Movement.

Those of us who knew Moshe Feldenkrais and learned his way of thinking and teaching were acutely aware of the revolutionary nature of his vision. This vision is a legacy that will be born and reborn in shapes and fashions that will extend our own vision of the farther reaches of human nature.

Thomas Hanna founded and directed the first American training course in Functional Integration by Moshe Feldenkrais, which took place 1975-77 in San Francisco. Hanna's book, The Body of Life (Knopf) is an account of the theory of Feldenkrais' method and a collection of case histories of Hanna's clinical applications of this method.

Feldenkrais and Esalen

by Kolman Korentayer

Moshe Feldenkrais would beguile you, taunt you, humor you, lovingly scold you, and excite you with his personal commitment to his work and his great desire to share it with you.

Esalen was the first place that Moshe did a workshop in North America, and was his introduction to the human potential movement. Moshe's first program was organized by Will Schutz. Among those attending were Betty Fuller, Ilana Rubenfeld, Stanley Keleman, and Richard Price. These individuals made a significant contribution to the blossoming and spreading of his ideas and work throughout North America.

Kolman Korentayer, a gestalt and Feldenkrais practitioner, was North American Coordinator of Feldenkrais Programs, 1970-1979.

Moshe Feldenkrais: A Legacy of Hope

by Patrick Douce

The legacy left by Moshe Feldenkrais affects not only those of us who were his students, but the entire human race. This legacy involves hope; hope for millions of human beings who have been told that there is nothing that can be done to help them and that there is nothing they can do to help themselves; hope for persons suffering from chronic pain—arthritis, sciatica, neck and shoulder pain, lower back pain, persons afflicted with cerebral palsy, brain damage, and scores of other problems often described as "incurable." He gave us this hope in the form of knowledge, knowledge he formed with the belief that no matter what the difficulty, each person can learn to improve. Moshe Feldenkrais developed his system based on his training in physics and judo. In a field of "bodywork" he developed a science, a science of human learning based on movement—movements that are easy, pleasant, and useful for surviving in a technological society that is often at odds with the health of our human bodies.

Moshe was a very human man, a very stubborn and determined man. Armed with the best of training in 20th century science and movement, he refused to believe that there was anyone he couldn't help as long as they were willing to learn and improve. He applied his methods to the best athletes and dancers as well as the most crippled individuals. His belief in human potential to learn overshadowed his doubts as he continued his career, often with strong opposition from "established" professionals.

He was a man providing a technologically-based answer to many of the infirmities of this technological age. Answers that are simple, easy and understandable to any human who has the desire to learn and improve. This is the legacy that now his students have taken on, not only to continue the teachings, but to continue to improve them. This is the legacy of hope in human learning he has given us all who are concerned with the exploration of the potential of the human being. Moshe Feldenkrais has died—his work is just being born.

Patrick Douce, an Esalen resident since 1972, teaches classes in Feldenkrais Awareness through Movement and is available for individual sessions in Functional Integration.

CONJUNCTIONS

{conjunction, Latin, coniunction-em}
1. a joining together; combination; association; in alchemy, the union of body and spirit.
2. coincidence {L. co-together, and incidere-to fall upon}: occuring simultaneously.
3. the meeting of two or more stars or planets in the same degree of the zodiac.

"We will unite the White Rose and the Red. Smile heaven upon this faire conjunction . . ."
—Shakespeare, Richard III

TRENDS: "What appears to be happening in the world is a simultaneous march of events in opposite directions," writes political scientist Walt Anderson. "Going one way, a parade of decentralist and separatist movements—there is scarcely a national government in the world that is not struggling with one or more of these—and, going the other way, an unprecedented increase of global trade, global communication, global migration, global interdependence. Things flying apart and at the same time coming together." Anderson and seventeen others address public policy appropriate to this bi-directional shift in Rethinking Liberalism, published by Avon, 1983.

• • •

DOGGED: "Every great ideal gets stood on its head as soon as people get involved," remarked R. H. Cravens, Contributing Editor of Aperture, at the magazine's 1982 Esalen symposium. Agreeing, Dick Price added, "I've thought at times about making my dog the chairman of the board." Well, try as she might, Dick's dog Aurora hasn't been able to get people out of her picture: "Hiking and Gestalt" (April 19-26) lists Price and Steve Harper as Aurora's co-leaders.

• • •

NOT BOOKED: For the first time in quite a while, George Leonard is not writing a book. But don't assume that the author of The Transformation, Education and Ecstasy, and The Ultimate Athlete is allowing his typewriter to gather dust. Leonard has signed on as a contributing editor of Esquire, to which he brings 17 years of experience as West Coast editor of LOOK. He and Annie Styron-Leonard also continue to develop the Energy Training Institute (P.O. Box 609, Mill Valley, CA 94942), and offer seminars throughout the country, and, of course, at Esalen. (There are now 13 certified Leonard Energy Training instructors teaching what Leonard describes as "alternative ways of dealing with life situations and of enhancing the flow of vital energy").

• • •

DEAD TONGUE?: We continue to hear a glib unchallenged assertion, namely that "Latin is a dead language." But some of us who hang around linguistics circles like to think that this venerable tongue is merely resting up for a strong come-back, once English is finally buried by politicians, advertisers, and psychology-theorists. We make our point: In what other tongue can one with such elegance admonish a friend: "Noli irritare leones" ("Do not irritate lions")? Or, how about "Naturam expellas furca tamen usque recurret" ("Though you drive out Nature with a pitchfork, yet will she ever return")? And, of course, "Cucullus non facit monachum" ("The cowl does not make the friar," or as simple English has it, never trust appearances.) More to come . . .

• • •

HUMUS AD: Ralph Blum ("Introduction to the Viking Runes," June 21-23) advises that the word rune comes from the old gothic German runa—meaning, approximately, "a whispered or secret thing." Runemal, or rune-casting, is a symbolic system of the Vikings, comparable to the I Ching and Tarot. "Runes are a system for helping people ignore what's unimportant," Blum says. "They act on a user's life in a manner best described as 'yeasting.' If I were to package the runes for mass sale, the guarantee I'd attach would be similar to the promise you'd find on a good bag of fertilizer."

• • •

FURTHERING: "No matter what you do, you're still solving the same problem," says Rosemary Feitis ("Furthering: A Workshop for a Work in Progress," January 6-11). "If I'm in the kitchen cooking, or trying to write an article, or dabbling around with water colors, I'm working on the same issues." A skillful move is to switch modalities: "If you're writing, and nothing is coming, try switching to movement of some kind, or painting, or cleaning the house. You'll start to see what it is you keep bumping up against. Either this change in activity will give you what you need to solve the problem, or else you'll say to yourself, 'Oh, so this is the problem, not what I thought it was.'" (As for switching, Pablo Picasso, who also was known to dabble with water colors and whose works in progress regularly progressed, once said with the nonchalant shrug common to genius: "When I haven't any blue, I use red.") Rosemary comments that pacing is also important: "If I have a day of writing, then I need a day of dithering, and then another day of writing." She and co-leader Crystal Miller will offer a framework for furthering creative projects you've started but don't know how to continue.

• • •

TART NEWS: The Open Mind is Charles Tart's bi-monthly periodical featuring recent articles on lucid dreams, the fear we have of psychic powers, what's possible when vision and will are united, and common sense tips on choosing a spiritual path. "The closed mind," Tart says, "is dulled by habit and fantasy, fears what's not understood, and avoids doubt through mental rigidity. By contrast, the open mind is curious about all sorts of things, appreciates living in a marvelous and mysterious universe, and constantly seeks increased self-knowledge." $20 for one year subscription ($14 for full-time students), payable to PPI, P.O. Box 371, El Cerrito, CA 94530.

• • •

KEEP TALKING: From another perspective, no language says it better than French, a tongue far from dead: "Une fois n'est past coutume" ("One act does not constitute a habit"), or the same idea, from a slightly different perspective: "Vive la bagatelle!" ("Long live folly!"). As usual, a voice of experience shouts the last word from the bleachers: "Le cout ote le gout" ("The cost takes away the taste").

• • •

ENOUGH, MORE THAN: "You are addicted if you cannot control when you start or stop the activity," say Harvey Milkman and Stanley Sunderwirth (June 28-30). Along similar lines: writer/philosopher Sam Keen, after a disjointed conversation with a burned-out veteran of the seminar circuit, remarked with a weary smile: "Now that's why no one should ever take more than 350 workshops."

• • •

SELF-DIRECTION: "I began to realize how much of my life had been dominatd by other people's values, especially those of my family," Lenore Lefer recently said. "At the same time, I began to come into contact with my own will, and with my sense that while some of my values were parallel to other peoples', I also had my own values. Then I started questioning how I was making my own choices, and to consider that I could be more causal and initiatory toward, and responsible for, my life and behavior." That's how Lenore describes what led her in the early '70s to teach "The Art of Self Direction" (February 22-24). How has her perspective changed in ten years? "Well, I later became involved with others in a group working with psychological and spiritual teachings—a group which I thought mirrored my own sense of values. I discovered over time that I was in fact surrendering some of my values and beliefs to a system which I'd make responsible for my life choices." Personal choice and authority, joining and participating in groups, social responsibility, how to respond to things which happen to us that we don't recall choosing; these are some of the issues Lenore will explore in her workshop on "creating, initiating, and directing change."

• • •

ESPANOL: Okay, the best advice yet today comes not in Latin or in French, but in the tongue that keeps the Equator moistly glued to the globe, Spanish: "Ni firmes corta que no leas, ni bebas agua que no veas" ("Never sign a paper you have not read nor drink water you have not examined"). For the obvious corollary, we circle back to French: "En vieillissant on devient plus fou et plus sage" ("As we grow older, we become more foolish and more wise").

• • •

GAZEBO: A mailing list is being developed to keep parents, teachers, grandparents, and others informed of early childhood education and related activities through the Gazebo School, founded by Esalen staff member Janet Lederman, who describes the school as "a learning environment that utilizes its natural surroundings and the inherent curiosity of children as motivators for acquiring knowledge." To receive regular mailings, send names and addresses to Janet, c/o Gazebo School, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

• • •

MANY SELVES: "My orientation as an analyst is that personality is not single, but multiple. The ego takes on the role of leader in the outer world, but inside, in dreams, fantasy, or breakdown, we meet—and are sometimes overwhelmed by—the 'other people,' the fragments," remarks Roger Woolger ("Other Lives/Other Selves," June 14-16). What interests Roger and his wife and colleague Jennifer Woolger is "when these persons arrive in our psyches, and in our clients' psyches, wearing historical dress. We don't raise the question of whether these personalities did live historically, or whether they are, indeed, us in another lifetime. Instead of focusing on proving or disproving reincarnation, we simply observe that when you ask questions of the characters themselves, they provide very detailed historical scenarios—and more important, emotional scenarios. We see this as a very rich way of getting to know our secondary or "shadow" personalities, to see how they're acting in the background, pushing or pulling us in different directions." Roger and Jennifer use a three-level model in their work. Level one: the "literal-cathartic," in which participants enact the stories as if they are, very literally, true past-life experiences. Level two: upon the death of the "past-life person," participants explore for symbolic and metaphorical themes, focusing on how the person died ("getting shot through the heart, losing one's guts in a disemboweling," etc). Level three: the "integral-mystical," in which participants see that they're playing many parts in many plays at once. Roger describes this as "the sense that we ourselves are being dreamed, that our life plays are the dreams of the personae or forces or gods who animate and personify a ground of identity beyond our normal ego restrictions."

• • •

BEING BORN: "The Ritual of Birth" is a videotape available for rental and purchase from the Childbirth Education Project of Big Sur. The project's objectives, says Peggy Morrison Horan, are to "educate and support the pregnant family from prenatal to early parenting." Classes are taught by three Big Sur mothers, each having assisted and coached over thirty births. The project is building an extensive library of birth-related books and videos and is part of a nationwide network of birth educators. Peggy seeks financial contributions (mailed in care of Esalen) to help build the Childbirth Education Project.

• • •

AND, DYING: At age 123, Arthur Reed attributed his longevity to the fact that "I never smoked nothing, and I got drunk only once, about 75 years ago in Buffalo." He avoided liquor because "I don't want to do nothing so when I drop my hat I can't pick it up." Born in 1860, the year Lincoln was elected president, Arthur Reed didn't let his poor health and failing eyesight keep him from looking for the right woman. "If I get over this sick spell," he said when he turned 122, "maybe I will find me a wife." Asked by an interviewer how he managed to live for so long, Mr. Reed replied: "You have to ask God about that. He made me out of good dirt." The San Francisco Chronicle reports that Arthur Reed was the oldest man in America (and possibly in the world) when he died last April, at home in Oakland, just short of his 124th birthday.

What are you up to? let us know at CONJUNCTIONS, P.O. Box 5055, Mill Valley, CA 94942.

We welcome your reactions to Conjunctions and other catalog features, and your commentary on various aspects of human potential: physical, psychological, sociopolitical, spiritual, educational, et.al.

THE INS AND OUTS OF ADDICTION

By Keith Thompson

"Are criminals, cocaine users, sky divers, police and lovers motivated by a similar adrenaline rush? Are comparable needs being met through alcoholism, overeating and membership in a spiritually oriented group?—Harvey Milkman and Stanley Sunderwirth (See "Sojourn: The Consciousness and Chemistry of Escape," June 28-30).

Are we living in the age of addiction? It's a safe guess, judging by labels the media gives to various addiction-syndromes: workaholism, wealth addiction, love compulsion, sex addiction, substance addiction, food obsession, pleasure addiction. Webster traces addict to the Latin addere, which means "to deliver over." Is ours a culture finally unable to contain itself?

"The media tend to re-invent the wheel every time they discover a new compulsion to label the "addiction of the month," said Dr. Harvey Milkman in a telephone interview. "The problem with focusing on a variety of seemingly unconnected compulsions is that they're not unconnected at all. There are underlying psychological, social, and biochemical principles common to all addictive behaviors, although of course these factors are not all equally present in every compulsion."

What exactly is an addiction? How do you know when your compulsions are hurting you? Drs. Milkman and Stanley Sunderwirth give these guides: "When you can't control when you start or stop the activity, when it begins to damage you and your close relationships, you're addicted." They add that compulsiveness, loss of control, and continuity of harmful behaviors are not just temporary reactions to stress, but represent predictable progression through clear stages.

"Many alcoholics rationalize their behavior by saying their drinking is just a temporary situation because they're under so much pressure," Dr. Milkman said. "Until they're able to see the progression of the disease, the all-consuming nature of the addiction, they maintain that they drink just to be sociable and can quit anytime they want."

Coming to terms with self-esteem issues is essential, he believes, in dealing with addictive behaviors. For the addict, self-esteem often depends upon achieving some external reward. For the sex addict, it's the next sexual conquest. For the compulsive gambler, it's the next big win, which of course is always just around the corner. For the compulsive buyer, it's how many new things can be purchased in one day. When people begin to explore and work with their addictions, they begin to see that their self-worth doesn't really depend on whether they bring a new lover home tonight or buy a new blouse or new car."

Dr. Milkman, when speaking about addiction and escape, makes frequent references to three major "motivational styles" of addiction.

When you can't control when you start or stop the activity, when it begins to damage you and your close relationships, you're addicted.

Arousal addicts are drawn to crime, extreme risk-taking, confrontation, gambling, and use of stimulants such as cocaine or amphetamines. Satiation addicts get hooked on media (especially television and movies), eating (anorexia and bulimia are extremes), and depressive drugs (which encourage passive-withdrawal coping strategies). Fantasy addicts often are compulsive with hallucinogenic drugs, religious cults, bizarre ideation, and non-stop artistic preoccupation.

But wait a minute—isn't there something a little simplistic in all of this? Isn't it unfair to imply that passion and intensity are pathological? Robert Bly recently wrote that learning the art of the poet has taught him to learn to trust his obsessions. "It is surely a great calamity for a human being to have no obsessions," he said. And what about "positive addiction" such as the "aerobic high" experienced by dancers and runners? Isn't there an obsessed, yet health-enhancing, quality in the agony and euphoria experienced by artists and yogis?

Never fear, reassures Dr. Milkman. Although he finds the term "positive addiction" contradictory and misleading, he's quick to agree that if you find a project or activity life-enhancing, fulfilling, compelling—if it becomes your raison d'etre and you want to do that seven days a week, that's fine—that's commitment, not addiction. "But keep this in mind: if you can't control when you start or stop the activity, and if that activity begins to damage you and your close relationships, and if that damage increases with time, then your 'commitment' is actually compulsion."

Dr. Milkman tells the story of science fiction writer Isaac Asimov's encounter with this issue. Asimov was approached by a woman doing a book on people who are addicted to their work. Asimov said he found the term "workaholic" offensive and refused the interview, maintaining that if you enjoy something and become intensely involved with it in a way that fills you with life, it's not fair to call it an addiction. "Call me a hedonist if you wish, call me pleasure-mad, call me a playboy, but don't call me a workaholic," Asimov insisted. "Please, get my motivation right."

Milkman and Sunderwirth's seminar will include lectures on biochemical, social, and psychological aspects of addiction; work on recognizing addictions and developing life-enhancing alternatives; and rehearsal of real-life situations, including role-playing and group feedback.

As a common real-life scenario, Dr. Milkman offers this example: "Let's say you stopped smoking two months ago, and you're proud of yourself. Then you go to your sister's wedding rehearsal where everyone lights up after dinner. What do you do? We set up scenes like this in our seminars so participants can rehearse possible courses of action."

Esalen Update

1984

Work in Progress: The Transformation Project Archive

The Transformation Project Archive was organized in 1976 to explore supernormal psychophysical functioning and various bodily transformations that support it. The Project involves compilation and analysis of a broad range of scientific, speculative, and anecdotal literature. Presently the archive contains over 8,000 scientific studies concerning extraordinary human functioning, drawn from more than sixty research fields. The archive is kept up to date with a weekly computer search of some 7,000 scientific journals.

In 1981, Michael Murphy and Steven Donovan began a comprehensive study of meditation. They have compiled a bibliography of contemporary meditation research which includes approximately 800 entries covering the period from 1931 through 1983. The Journal of Transpersonal Psychology published this compilation in Vol. 15, No. 2, 1983. The bibliography lists all the articles on meditation practice that have been located in English language scientific journals, and a number of books and masters and doctoral theses referred to in the published literature.

Murphy and Donovan are now at work on a review of meditation research which makes comparisons between the accounts of meditation results provided by traditional approaches (such as Zen, Taoism, and yoga) and accounts provided by modern scientific inquiries.

"Much—or perhaps most—of the traditional lore regarding bodily changes was not included in the written transmission of the contemplative traditions," says Murphy. "Or if it was included, it was well camouflaged. As we explore various contemplative traditions, we find only a few sentences or paragraphs, it seems, of a language that was lost or deliberately buried." Donovan adds: "Modern research might help us recover a lost heritage by revealing the complexities of bodily change produced through meditation."

Massage Practitioner Certification Program

Esalen is now offering a California State approved certificate upon successful completion of its three month work scholar or one month residential message practitioner program. Each program fulfills the state requirement of at least 130 hours of instruction, supplemented with additional study in body-mind disciplines such as yoga, gestalt awareness work, and movement.

Invited Conferences

Private invited conferences, small groups convened to discuss a particular topic or field of study, are a growing dimension of the Esalen program.

Appropriate Governance

In February of 1984 the third annual Conference on Appropriate Governance was held at Esalen, chaired by social psychologist and futures planner Donald Michael. The task this symposium has set for itself, in Michael's words, is to "explore the nature of appropriate governance for nations and groups that require both autonomy and ever-increasing interdependence." Michael reports that the week-long conversation addressed the need for heterarchical modes of governance—that is, modes which are neither anarchic nor hierarchical.

M. Brian Murphy addressed the relationships between sovereignty and interdependence, focusing on issues of power and dependency. Elsa Porter discussed constitutions (and constitutionalizing) as heterarchical devices. James Ogilvy addressed the question of the values complimentary to appropriate governance. Walter Anderson talked on international change in the political culture. Jack Fobes discussed the relationship between international agencies and governance processes. Donald Michael's presentation, "Story Telling About Story Tellers," examined the role of meta-statements in evaluating governance. Jack Ballard reflected on governance as practiced in multi-national corporations. Patrick Ophuls brought a Buddhist perspective to the deliberations. Lynton Caldwell, unable to attend this year, sent a paper on appropriate roles for the U.S. Presidency. Keith Thompson related the question of values to Garrison Keillor's radio program, "A Prairie Home Companion."

The fourth Conference on Appropriate Governance will meet at Esalen in February, 1985.

Evolution

In June of 1984 a conference on evolution was convened by Theodore Roszak at Esalen. A major participant was Rupert Sheldrake, author of A New Science of Life, a book in which he developed the concept of morphogenetic fields. This concept has been characterized by Roszak as "revolutionary." Sheldrake offers an Esalen workshop June 7-9, 1985, entitled "Formative Fields and the Habits of Nature: A New Science of Life."

A second Evolution Conference will meet at Esalen in June, 1985.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

Ways of Being at Esalen

There are various ways to experience Esalen, ranging from a visit to the hot springs on a weeknight to a long-term stay as a student or resident. The weekend and five-day workshops described throughout the catalog are the standard route for coming to Esalen and learning the various methods of personal growth and self-exploration that are available here. The Experiencing Esalen workshops are a kind of smorgasbord introduction to some of these many practices (such as gestalt, massage, sensory awareness, etc.); from such a sampling, the participant can then choose those approaches which feel most appropriate and pursue them in subsequent seminars. For those who wish an extended stay of a month or more there is an Ongoing Residence Program. Other long-term programs include the "month-longs" coordinated by individuals such as Stan Grof and David Schiffman, which frequently involve didactic seminars as well as experiential workshops. These can be particularly useful for professionals and graduate students.

A very popular way of being at Esalen, and one that allows a much greater involvement with the place and its community at a lower expense, is the Work Study Program, which entails working with the Esalen staff as well as participating in an on-going workshop designed specifically for that program. See page 36 for more information and an application form.

In addition, there are other events which enrich life at Esalen. There are frequent forums in which various writers and thinkers, both visiting and resident, share their ideas with the community. On Wednesday nights, there may be lectures, films, dance performances, choirs, puppet shows, or other forms of entertainment. Body work of various kinds is available by appointment with individual practitioners, including massage, deep tissue, polarity, and Rolfing®. Individual sessions are also available for various types of process work, including gestalt, neo-Reichian emotional release, vision improvement, music gestalt, etc. Finally, there is a Community Workshop program which goes on daily, and provides many opportunities for engaging in personal self-exploration or learning new approaches to human growth.

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt & John Soper

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness, group process, guided fantasy, meditation, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim, Fritz Perls (Bantam).

Schedule:

January 13–18	$450
January 25–27	$230
March 1–3	$230
March 22–24	$230
March 31–April 5	$450
April 7–12	$450
April 26–28	$230
May 5–10	$450
May 31–June 2	$230
June 2–7	$450
June 14–16	$230
June 16–21	$450

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Andrea Juhan

We spend much of our time on "automatic pilot," oblivious to many messages from our bodies, missing opportunities to open more fully to the subtleties of sensing, to greater ranges of physical expression, to health, vitality, and the many ways of "being a body." There are various entry points to increased awareness, practices that help cultivate the countless dialects of body language. These include dance, aerobic and stretching exercise, movement theater, postural analysis, hiking, meditation, massage, and nutritional education. Experiencing Esalen: The Body draws from varying combinations of these approaches in each workshop. Emphasis is placed on developing greater freedom and variety of movement, as well as on the quality of awareness as we move. This program is designed to give participants some basic tools for continuing to develop body awareness.

Schedule:

January 18–20	$230
February 22–24	$230
March 15–17	$230
April 5–7	$230
April 14–19	$450
May 3–5	$230
May 19–24	$450
June 21–23	$230

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff
Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
and used—is inexhaustible.
—Lao Tzu

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, non-coercive, non-judgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Participants are explicitly not patients but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The leader functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth, rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Although open seat work is the primary form of this practice, guided fantasy, breath meditations, and movement sessions may be included. Each gestalt practice group will have a member of the Esalen gestalt staff as its primary leader. The name of this leader will be listed in the office three weeks in advance of the workshop. Please call if you want this information. Other leaders may be involved in single sessions.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

Suggested reading: Gestalt Therapy Verbatim and Ego, Hunger and Aggression, Fritz Perls; Tao Te Ching, Lao Tzu; The Power of Mindfulness, Nyanponika Thera; Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg, J. C. Pearce; Illusions, Richard Bach.

Schedule:

January 4–6	$230
January 6–11	$450
February 3–8	$450
March 15–17	$230
March 17–April 14	$1350
April 7–12	$450
May 5–10	$450
May 24–26	$230
June 2–7	$450

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff
Coordinated by Steven Harper

Located on a narrow stretch of land between the Pacific Ocean and the coastal ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains, Esalen is the trailhead to one of the world's most spectacular wilderness areas. With this natural reserve as the primary teacher, we will walk into the Los Padres National Forest. Week-long workshops will venture out on five hikes (4-10 miles in length) and weekend workshops will take two hikes (3-6 miles in length). Using Esalen as our base camp we will explore different trails through the natural beauty of the Big Sur backcountry. Days will begin and end at Esalen with short stretching and sharing sessions. Each day-hike will begin after breakfast and will conclude in time to enjoy the hot springs and dinner each evening at Esalen. We will practice basic outdoor skills such as map reading and minimum impact concepts. Participants will be taught enough skills to begin exploring the wilderness on their own after these outings. More information will be sent upon registration.

Schedule:

June 7–9	$230
June 16–21	$450

Steve Beck

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins.

The program is divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc. Information regarding special interest sections may be obtain by writing Bette Dingman, c/o Esalen.

For a full description of the Work Study Program, please turn to page 36.

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Please mention whether you are a full-time student. Allow at least three weeks for processing as we have many applications. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. No scholarship assistance is available between June 15 and September 15 or for weekend programs. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

Accreditation

Many formal educational institutions recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Conferences at Esalen

It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Esalen Seminars

David Nelson

Week of December 30–January 4

Clowning for Life: A Gestalt Workshop

Richie Wolf

"The fool who persists in his folly becomes wise." —William Blake

Clowning for Life is a study of how to be fully present. It is a search for the state of consciousness where contradictions can be embraced and where suffering and limitation are transformed through acceptance and play. Clowning is a surrender, a free-fall into being.

The workshop focuses on the joy of the full and unified expression of body, emotion, mind, and spirit. It offers an escape from the ponderous into an attitude that life is an invitation to play.

Participants are asked to bring a hat and some clothes to use as costumes. $450

Forgiveness and Letting Go of Judgement

Elizabeth Stratton

"The giving up of judgment, the obvious prerequisite for hearing God's Voice, is usually a fairly slow process, not because it is difficult, but because it is apt to be perceived as personally insulting."—A Course in Miracles

Elizabeth writes: "The training of the Western mind, both spiritually and intellectually, is oriented toward judgment. We are taught to induce, deduce, analyze, dissect, defend, debate. We are taught to feel guilty, to get sick, to engage in self punishment and the punishment of others. We are encouraged to rebuke ourselves into perfection.

"We do not know the healing quality of true remorse, or how to let go of that which we should never have held onto in the first place—the real meaning of forgiveness. In studies of people who have died and come back to talk about it, the most unifying element of their experiences was the meeting with a Being of white light who stood by with unconditional love, no judgment, and humor as they watched their lives roll before them like movies. The only judge was the person watching his/her own life.

"This workshop will be experiential. You are invited to observe the judgmental prison of your own mind, to feel the cleansing power of remorse, and to allow your heart to open to the freedom and healing that comes from forgiving yourself and others." $450

Catharsis and Beyond

Jessica Moore Britt

Insight and body-oriented practices depend on awareness and on the expression of sensations, feelings, and images that most of us ordinarily repress. Insight and catharsis by themselves, however, may not necessarily lead us into the depth that transpersonal disciplines like meditation and shamanism cultivate. Practitioners of meditation and shamanism, on the other hand, may neglect the emotional/physical clearing that often allows the opening from which our depths may emerge, be perceived, and integrated. This workshop seeks to join these two levels of practice. Using gestalt awareness practice, Reichian breath work, meditation, and chanting, we will begin to explore the relationship between the learned patterns of our personality and the depths of our being. $450

Rethinking Security

John Marks, Eric Helt, Judith & Robbie Gass

This workshop will explore the intellectual, experiential, and creative aspects necessary for international and personal security. It will provide the participants with an opportunity to experience what breakthroughs are possible on security questions, using an eclectic mix of data, process, dance, song, and cognitive discussion.

Recommended reading: Search for the Manchurian Candidate, John Marks. $450

Integration

Deborah Anne Medow

Deborah writes: "The body reflects what is going on in the mind. By working with my body physically through exercise, yoga, massage, or whatever practice it is that I do, I can affect a change in my thoughts and habits—my whole pattern of living. Conversely, changing my mental attitudes can influence a change in my body's form.

"Having integrated into my life various practices and activities including gestalt, interpersonal process, massage, hiking, and movement, I have found a new sense of awareness of the levels at which I am working and where my limitations lie in these areas. By knowing my limitations, I am able to see with more clarity where and how to proceed to bring about growth and change.

"Participants will be presented with guidelines to integrate both their own practices and those offered in the workshop. In the mornings we will come together for yoga followed by a light breakfast. In some of the sessions following, we will explore creative movement and dance, out of which can evolve a deeper understanding of each individual's inner rhythms. Other sessions will include the practices listed above and an opportunity during an afternoon hike to observe nature's cycles as a way to reflect on our own natural cycles and movements. $450

Weekend of January 4–6

A Special Weekend at Esalen

This weekend is open to all those who would like to spend time at Esalen, enjoying the grounds, the baths, and the community, without participating in a group. Massage and other work offered by individual practitioners will be available as usual. $120

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Intuition Practice

Helen Palmer

This seminar teaches the identification of personal intuition systems that can be made accessible by internal focusing practices, or that may already be operating in unrecognized ways. The practices develop the ability to discriminate between personal thoughts, fantasies projected from personal thinking, and impressions received from situations unknown to the thinking self. The psychic aspect of intuition rests on the ability to shift attention from the self to impressions received from outside the self. $230

Movement Meditation

Susan Harper

The workshop will focus on individual movement and group energetics, exploring the interplay of motion across a wide spectrum. There may be tiny micro-movements, deeply sensual undulates, and dynamic movements in space. You are encouraged to widen and narrow the lens of your attention, to see the possibility of infinite variation in every activity of the organism.

Susan describes her experience of movement in this way: "In dancing, the sense of self, the cultural self, disappears. One dissolves into the waves of life motion. Within every cell of our bodies is a deep biological intelligence that knew how to create our complexity when we were in our mother's womb. It is the intelligence that creates life. We can merge with that and allow it to speak to us of creation . . . of the formation of primal earth, of early creatures, and one-celled organisms . . . of the time we swam in the oceans and took to the air.

"Sometimes the sense of all forms and creatures drops away and there is just the movement of something unknown. And sometimes there is just the moving.

"When we are living in that kind of creative flow, we feel the most aligned with the natural life force of this planet. One feels the power of the vision of life, the wholeness of life. To dance, to envision, to be playfully inspired, are the qualities which widen our human perspectives and take us joyfully into the unknown." $230

Love and Work

Anne & John Caple

"Work is love made visible," wrote Kahlil Gibran. In this workshop, participants will examine their work-life and work options in the context of their love for themselves, for others, and for the larger world. Working from a conceptual base, the group will use integrative exercises, art, body work, and gestalt processes to seek answers and consider life decisions. The goal is for participants to see more clearly what they want and how to get it. One outcome will be a specific action plan.

This weekend is for those who want more value in their work-life, for career changers and potential career changers, for re-entry persons, and for those who influence others in career choices. Some time will be available for individual life / work issues during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs.

Suggested reading: Careercycles, John Caple (Prentice-Hall). $230

Week of January 6–11

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Five Day Massage Intensive

Bill Liles & Peggy Morrison Horan

In this beginning massage course, participants will learn the fundamentals of self-grounding, quality of touch, and sustained contact. Instruction will familiarize participants with general anatomy, a basic understanding of the relationship between stress and muscular tensions, and specific methods for working with each part of the body. The seminar's goal is to provide participants with the fundamental elements necessary to give a pleasurable and beneficial full-body massage. $450

Furthering: A Workshop for a Work-in-Progress

Rosemary Feitis & Crystal Miller

Creating a work usually involves a compromise between the impulse and the material. Problems in one area can often be unplugged by moving to another area for a while. A prerequisite for this workshop is to be actively engaged in a work-in-progress: thesis, artwork, client list, portfolio. (Seeing yourself as a work-in-progress, however, is a little like biting your own tail.) Bring your creations with you and we will offer a framework in which to take them to the next step. $450

I Ching: Easy Learning from the Center

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

Chungliang writes: "This seminar helps you delve deeper within the superficial understandings and fringe benefits of your I Ching searchings. Penetrate into this resourceful ancient book of wisdom: begin from the core of wholeness, balance the yin / yang polarity, evolve into eight trigram variations, then create the 64 hexagrams holographically.

"You can do it all from the beginning with Chinese brush strokes, the corresponding ideo-pictogram meanings, and the t'ai chi movement motifs. You may draw references from Wilhelm / Baynes and other translations, and from my personal collaborative learnings from John Blofeld and Lama Govinda. Prepare yourself by reading pages 72-96 of Quantum Soup. Do away with the linear mind and body. One of the meanings of I (as in I Ching) is EASY. Dance the I Ching!"

Recommended reading: by Huang: Quantum Soup (E. P. Dutton); Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); with Watts, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); I Ching (translated by John Blofeld); The Book of Transformations, Lama Anagarika Govinda. $450

Celebration of the Sensitivity of Self

Daniel Bianchetta

This seminar will focus on the integration of body, mind, and spirit through intuitive and energy awareness, massage, meditation, movement, gestalt, and play. Using these tools and gentle risk-taking can help in opening to our own aliveness and ability to be more at home with ourselves. Participants will explore practical and portable ways of nourishing and trusting the inherent wisdom of the self. $450

Weekend of January 11–13

Anatomy for Trager Students

Deane Juhan

This seminar is offered as a continuation of the professional training for students of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics®. It will examine the anatomical structures of the body and their kinesthetic relationships, with specific reference to how these structures and relationships are handled by the Trager approach.

Half of the time will be used for slide presentations, lecture, and discussion concerning particular areas of the body. The rest will be spent practicing aspects of a Trager session which correspond to those areas. The emphasis will be on clarifying for the student the intent of the various hand positions and movements, based upon an understanding of structure, function, and motor reflex.

Since supervised Trager table work will be an important part of the class, a beginning Trager training is a prerequisite. $230

Inside / Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies,

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

Paul and Chungliang will celebrate and share with us their joyous collaboration in nature, music, dance, t'ai chi, jazz, improvisation, meditation, and world travel experiences.

Recommended reading and listening: by Huang: Quantum Soup (E. P. Dutton); Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); with Watts, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); Paul Horn's albums: Inside, Heart to Heart, China, The Magic of Findhorn, and Jupiter 8. $260

Introduction to Vipassana Meditation

Jamie Baraz

Vipassana (insight) meditation practice is a systematic examination of the mind / body process through calm and focused awareness. Learning to observe experience from a place of stillness enables one to relate to life without fear or clinging. One begins to accept pleasure and pain, fear and joy with increasing equanimity and balance. Life is seen as a constantly changing process. Insight is the deepening experience of the process itself, free of interpretation, leading to wisdom and compassion. The seminar is designed for those who have had no previous meditation experience as well as for those who wish to deepen their practice. Meditation instruction, the philosophy behind the practice, group discussions, and actual practice periods will be offered. Special emphasis will be placed on how to integrate vipassana practice in daily life after the workshop is over. $230

Self-Exploration with Kinesiology and Interdimensional Harp Music

Joel Andrews

Joel writes: "After the 'outer activity' of Christmas this is an opportunity to get back in touch with the core of your being. With kinesiology we can unlock the deeper wisdom of the body and with harp improvisations we invite it to move and dance.

"Sessions will alternate between inner and outer movement, using 'healing tapes,' demonstrations of subpersonalities, and practicing (in pairs) general muscle-testing." $230

January 11–13

Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Anne Calloway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 42. $225

Week of January 13–18

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Inside / Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chunglang Al Huang

For workshop description see January 11-13. $480

Transpersonal Psychology: New Perspectives in Counseling and Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will explore theoretically and experientially the rapidly developing field of transpersonal psychology. The discussion will focus on the implications of modern consciousness research for understanding the dimensions of the psyche, various forms of emotional and psychosomatic disorders, new mechanisms of healing and personality transformation, and strategies of counseling and self-exploration.

The emphasis in experiential work will be on the method of "holonomic integration" developed by the workshop leaders, which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, focused body work, and mandala drawing. It mediates access to unfinished biographical material, sequences of psychological death and (re)birth, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. Special attention will be paid to the problems of "spiritual emergencies" and constructive approaches to transpersonal crises. $450

Goddess, Sky Father, Universe, Atman, The Great Unknown . . .

Chris & Tom O'Reilly

There are as many different experiences of God as there are people, yet we continually find our experiences limited to old concepts of God—who, what, where he-she-it is. We can go beyond our screens and images, and develop a relationship with God which is as immediate as the air we breathe and as individual as each one of us. We will explore the power of surrender to the unknown, maps for building on spiritual experiences, and Indian classical dance—a highly disciplined and structured art form which combines abstract dance with mime, stories of God and the ecstatic energy with the earth. $450

January 13–February 8

Month Long Professional Body Work Intensive

Deb Leigh

For workshop description see Winter Study Programs, page 37. $1800

Weekend of January 18–20

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Weekend Massage Intensive

Brita Ostrom & Vicky Topp

In this introductory seminar participants will learn to give a competent full-body massage. The emphasis will be on developing a soothing and penetrating contact, on sustaining that contact to create a relaxing and integrating experience, and on centering physical and mental energies while working. The intent of the seminar is to introduce massage as a practical approach to developing greater sensory awareness and bringing relief from stress. $230

Gestalt Awareness and Personal Meditation

Jack Downing & Lyn Davis Gesell

The leaders write: "The enhancement and guided utilization of the awareness process is common to both gestalt and to certain types of meditation. We have combined these methods for the purpose of speeding up the recall, re-experiencing, and integration phases of gestalt. In addition, we have found various useful, at times fascinating, consciousness expansion effects from meditation-derived self-realization methods." $230

The Giraffe Workshop

John Graham

John writes: "Our good green earth is threatened by problems that can seem overwhelming: problems like the threat of nuclear war and the persistence of pollution, hunger, poverty, and violence. Hundreds of organizations and thousands of experts are working on such problems, yet progress is dangerously slow.

"I think the reason is that too many of us are not involved, that we're still playing ostrich, sticking our heads in the sand and hoping someone else will make it all better—that Science or The Experts or They will fix it, but that's not good enough, not if we're going to have the world we want. We can't wait for leaders on white horses to show us the way. The solutions that we need and want will come from those of us who choose not to wait for leadership but to become leaders; from the brave and caring people who stick their necks out and take responsibility for themselves and for their world: from Giraffes.

"The Giraffe Workshop teaches people

- to recognize and accept their unique assignments in the world, tapping the surge of creative energy that always flows with that assent;
- to use that power wisely, compassionately and effectively, sticking their necks out to make a difference on specific, real problems important to them;
- to use effective alternatives to the 'I Win / You Lose' strategies that cripple both institutions and individuals and more.

"Giraffes are action-oriented creatures; participants are asked to come prepared to get involved, to test and practice new insights and skills." $230

Week of January 20–25

Experiencing Your Psychic / Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

In this workshop, which is open to professionals and others interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their own psi abilities, Anne and Jim will use special exercises to aid participants in exploring these abilities.

They have found through their professional workshops that most of those in the helping professions are already using their sensitivity and need only learn to recognize their styles and trust the intuitive input they normally receive. During the exercises Anne will use her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity. One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive / psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $450

The Foundations of Body Image

Andrea & Dixon Johns

This is a course for the improvement of your relationship with the body—your own and those you contact personally and professionally. Each major area of the body will be studied and experienced in turn. The sessions allotted for each area will include: slides and discussion to familiarize the group with the basic anatomical structures, specific stretches and exercises to isolate the muscles and joints in question; movement, dance, and visualization to explore the psychological dimensions of each body part; instruction in massage methods designed to locate and alleviate common problems.

The intent is to provide enough concrete experience for each participant to feel a change for the better in self image; to provide enough discussion to understand how the improvements occurred and how they may be sustained; and, particularly, to help you contact your images of your physical self—the body you do have, the body you think you have, and the body you could have. $450

Open Seat

Paul Rebillot

Paul Rebillot writes: "The concept of 'open seat' is an open space into which people may enter in order to work through their resistances, express their feelings, and reorder their way of being in the world. As a gestalt facilitator I help people find ways of healing themselves by combining the principles of gestalt with concepts of ritual and theater. I assist people in working with their subconscious material, such as dreams and fantasies, in order to augment their ways of living and dealing with day to day problems. I encourage people to become more expressive in all ways: in their personal lives; in their communities; and in the political situations to which they feel committed. I can help people develop a clear sense of responsibility, not only for their own life process, but also for the world." $450

Weekend of January 25–27

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

The Gentle Art of Becoming–Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

This workshop will focus on the renewalcreating and developing of positive, mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of loving and personal integrity. Participants will work at their beliefs and habits through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, guided imagery, and gestalt awareness methods. $230

Joyce Rogers Lyke

The Intelligent Body, The Sensuous Body

Thomas Hanna

Premise: Clarity of self-awareness and clarity of body control grow together or decline together. We'll explore how greater sensitivity to our inner selves enhances the body's ability to act and to relax, and how this ability in turn enhances kinesthetic awareness.

The program involves gentle movements and use of imagery as well as instruction in the principles of the many different kinds of body work and exercise systems—particularly that of Moshe Feldenkrais.

Thomas Hanna adds: "There will also be demonstrations of how new sensory information can lead to dramatic changes in posture. Those who wish advanced knowledge in systems of body work will find the weekend profitable, as will those who have habitual aches or have difficulty relaxing."

Recommended reading: The Body of Life, Bodies in Revolt, A Primer in Somatic Thinking, Thomas Hanna. $230

Body, Heart, and Spirit

Paul Rebillot

The workshop is divided into three segments, dealing first with tensions and energy patterns in the body, then with the relationship of these to the emotions, and finally with their relationship to the mind, to thought. By connecting thought, feeling, and body experience in one gestalt, we seek to open the being to the inpouring of the spirit, to the state of grace. This is the goal of shamanic dances and of many tribal rites. The process includes body work and open seat gestalt work, as well as rituals, dancing, chanting, and celebration. $230

January 25–27

Sierra Ski-Touring: The Art of the Telemark Turn

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 42. $245

January 27–February 3

Shamanic Healing, Journeying, and the Afterlife Experience: Basic and Intermediate Shamanic Practice

Michael Harner

Shamanism is an ancient human strategy for personal learning and acting on that learning, especially for well-being and healing. In this experiential workshop the participants will practice the methods of the shaman (a type of medicine man or woman), to see and to activate power to resist illness and maintain personal health. With the aid of traditional sonic-driving and dancing methods, the group will engage in archetypal exercises and rituals practiced by North and South American Indian shamans to awaken dormant human capabilities and forgotten connections with the powers of nature. Practice will include shamanic journeys to both the Lower- and Upperworlds for knowledge and power, work with animal and plant powers, divination, clairvoyance, and shamanic methods of healing, including the extraction of spiritual pain and illness. There will be an introduction to the Ghost Dance method and to shamanic ways of exploring the afterlife experience. Participants will be taught shamanic methods of helping the terminally ill and their families, and the work of the shaman as psychopomp or conductor of souls.

This seven day workshop is both for beginners and for those who have previously taken a workshop with Michael Harner.

It is recommended that participants read beforehand Michael Harner's book, The Way of the Shaman: a Guide to Power and Healing (Bantam; also Harper & Row), and bring a notebook and pen to preserve their experiences for their own shamanic development. They are also invited to bring drums and rattles. $680

Week of January 27–February 1

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Anything which is forced or misunderstood can never be beautiful."—Xenophon

People, like plants, need special attention to thrive and blossom. To naturally grow beyond what they've been requires strength, sensitivity, and a deeply compassionate awareness. The courage to let go of self-defeating patterns from the past, the willingness to master fresh skills and create new dreams for the future: these are the turning points that nourish and sustain us.

In this workshop the group will come together in the spirit of being simply and lovingly at home in themselves. They will create a community whose aim is to explore and move through individual turning points, in a climate of trust, goodwill, and authenticity. The program will be structured to include intensive individual work, using practices from gestalt, psychosynthesis, and bioenergetics, as well as creative movement, music, guided imagery, group rituals, and celebrations. $450

Weekend of February 1–3

The Body Has Its Reasons

Peter Levine

When we are hurt, we build our own fortress around the wound and thus insulate ourselves against further pain. An armor develops in the muscles of our bodies and breathing becomes controlled to reduce our level of feeling. The strength of these walls depends upon the degree of the hurt. Some fortresses have walls so thin that with a little help we can easily move through them and we are out again. Others are much deeper and have a life and tenacity of their own. They are reflected in rigid roles and are solidified in our bodies as chronic tensions and patterns of bodily attitudes. Our sense of the body is lessened and our connectedness is diminished.

In this workshop body approaches, dream work, and gestalt will be incorporated to teach us how to trust more fully in our bodies, and enhance our excitement and passion. Through a vital sense of the body and feelings, we can understand our dreams, impulses, and actions more deeply. Avenues will be explored in redeveloping a sense of pleasure, ease, and self-esteem. Without storming our citadels by force, we can soften body armor by allowing the body to express itself, in its own language, within its own rhythm. This return toward grace, which is our birthright, is the wisdom of the body. $230

Physics Weekend: Bell's Theorem and the Nature of Reality

Nick Herbert & Saul-Paul Sirag

Quantum theory is universally successful in describing nature at all levels accessible to experiment. However, this comprehensive practical success is accompanied by an unprecedented disagreement as to what quantum theory actually means, and a corresponding confusion as to what sort of reality supports the phenomenal world.

Controversy over the nature of deep reality has been sharpened by Bell's Theorem, which proves that any conceivable objective reality underlying the facts of experience must be independent of space and time. Thus either there is no ultimate objective reality, or this reality is more peculiar than we have been led (by ordinary physics) to believe. The impact of Bell's Theorem is just beginning to be felt in the world of physics, but it is rather like the situation of the Michelson-Morley experiment, which led to Einstein's theory of relativity. Just what the current controversy in the foundations of physics will lead to is not yet clear, but the various possibilities will be explored in this weekend presentation.

Recommended reading: Quantum Reality, Nick Herbert (Doubleday). $230

Week of February 3–8

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

The Body Has Its Reasons

Peter Levine

This workshop will continue the experiential base of the February 1-3 weekend incorporating further discussion of the ideas and methods explored. The workshop is designed to be of interest to professionals, though it is also open to non-professionals. Either workshop may be taken alone or as a seven day sequence. $450

Sven Rogers Lyke

Weekend of February 8–10

A Course in Miracles for Non-Beginners

Julian Silverman

This seminar is for people who have been studying A Course in Miracles and want to clarify their approach to working with its ideas. Learning to "see through" things, the recognition of Spirit in ordinary relationships, and one's relationship with God are a few of the ideas which will be focused on.

Prerequisite: Completion of at least the first 35 Lessons in the Workbook; completion of the first 65 pages of the Text. $230

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

This will be an introduction to intensive intraphysic work using Reichian breath work and gestalt practice. Reichian work utilizes breath and sound to energize and deepen the process of self-awareness by softening the body's patterns of physical tension and emotional holding. Gestalt practice is an awareness approach focusing on physical sensation, image, thought, and emotion. By emphasizing a person's experience in the present moment, gestalt moves toward developing a more conscious sense of self. In a supportive group atmosphere, participants will have the opportunity to explore thoughts and feelings formed by past experiences. With this exploration the possibility is opened to come to a truer concept of self, with an expanded ability to respond in the present. This workshop is limited to ten participants. $230

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

This is a workshop in Soviet-American, cross-cultural understanding. Through bargaining, mediating, and role-playing games, participants can discover the subconscious cultural imperatives that impel the two nations apart and begin to identify those elements that bring them together. The workshop sets out to shatter egotistical mirror-imaging and begin the construction of authentic Soviet-American relationships in the world as it now exists.

For the workshop, there needs to be a balance between recent Soviet emigrés and American players. Thus, if there are ten Americans, there need to be ten or so Soviets. $230

Successful Business Behavior for Women, or "Act like a lady, think like a man, and work like a dog."

Victoria Elliot

In this workshop we will learn about the social issues vs. the business issues of being a woman: how to make decisions better and faster, how to get to the botton line, and how to communicate to get what you want from the people you work with. $230

Week of February 10–15

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

This workshop will combine individual work with discussion of principles and concepts which nourish the process of clange. Individual work will stress deepening awaeness of one's sense of direction and personal obstacles. Participants will explore the implications of their choices and the ways they retad or encourage the expression of self.

The workshop will include: psychosynthesis, transpersonal and cathartic methods which emphasize learning, and skills to release and transform blocked energies. Paricipants will focus on aligning their motivatin and will with the natural process of change aid integration. $450

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani)

This is a week of intense bodywork, structured for those who want to le go of past anger, fear, and pain, which arereflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, nd a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, eelings held in since childhood can be releasedand positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and leasure can be experienced more fully.

A most important feature of th workshop is the individual Radix®-Reichianntensive, done in a safe, supportive environmet. By also using dreamwork, hypnosis, chiropracc, bioenergetics, massage, dance, and grop interaction as one lets go/moves on, a new cpacity for living can emerge. $450

February 10–March 8

Gestalt as an Art Form

Paul Rebillot

For workshop description see Inter Study Programs, page 38. $1800

Weekend of February 15–17

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

"For one human being to love another: that is perhaps the most difficult of all our tasks, the ultimate, the last test and proof, the work for which all other work is but preparation."
—Rainer Maria Rilke

The goal of this weekend is to provide a context in which couples can focus and explore their relationship in the areas of communication, closeness, conflict, and individuality. A balance of structured and spontaneous interactions will be used within the framework of the large group, subgroups, and the couple. Limited to ten couples. $230

Psychic Experiences in Science and Everyday Life

Keith Harary

Are psychic experiences worth having in a society that doesn't encourage people to have them? Exploring your psychic capabilities can help you become a happier, more self-actualized person, or lead to anxiety, alienation, and identity confusion. How can you tell the difference between genuine psychic experiences and exaggerated claims, imagination, or delusions? Is there any real difference between people who call themselves "psychics" and the rest of us? We will discuss experimental, clinical, and subjective approaches to psychic abilities, and examine the treatment of psychic experiences in popular American culture. We will also explore ways in which you may make the most of your own psychic potential without losing touch with everyday reality or buying into externally-imposed belief systems.

Suggested reading: The Mind Race: Understanding and Using Psychic Abilities, Russell Targ and Keith Harary (Villard Books, Random House.) $230

Massage and Movement

Andrea Juhan & Deborah Anne Medow

One of the most effective and enjoyable ways to learn about the human body is to know your own body through movement. The focus of this workshop is to use the different rhythms of yoga, aerobics, and creative movement to enhance participants' awareness of their own bodies. This increased awareness can then be used as a tool for enriching the experience of giving and receiving a massage. $230

Steve Beck

Week of February 17–22

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

This workshop focuses on how we may consciously unfold ourselves—physically, emotionally, sexually, mentally, and spiritually. Past anger, fear, sadness, and grief, often reflected in the body as tension, pain, lack of spontaneity, and diminished vitality, can keep one from being fully present and alive. By contacting tension (stuck, accumulated energy) and allowing emotions which have been locked in the body, often since early infancy, there is an opportunity to open ourselves to the creative flow of life energy within. Allowing this life energy meaningful expression—true communication with self and others—is the essence of this work.

Some of the areas to be explored this week include: recognizing and releasing tensions which block emotion in the body; the use of breath and sound to energize and soften the body's tension and emotional holding; ways of contacting and allowing unexpressed sadness and pain, increasing the capacity for heartfulness, pleasure and joy; practices for expressing and releasing anger constructively, which can deepen compassion and love while also releasing blocked sexual energy; learning about the nature of fear and moving toward greater trust of self and others. Paying special attention to the mental processes that shape the emotional and physical body, participants will be shown ways to trust their bodies' responsiveness and inner direction.

This workshop will utilize Reichian body and breath work, emotional release, gestalt practice, the Bates system of eye relaxation, massage, dance, meditation, and various other approaches. $450

February 17–March 15

Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Transpersonal Crises

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see Winter Study Programs, page 38. $1800

Weekend of February 22–24

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Alternative Cancer Treatment

Laya Kline

Cancer, a manifestation of a weakened immune system, is the ultimate degenerative disease—and the disease of this century. Cancer can be triggered by poor dietary patterns, an unsafe environment, stress, and dissociation between mind and body. Yet cancer and death do not have to be synonymous.

Laya writes: "What I present is information about an array of alternative approaches—non-toxic methods of stimulating the body's own defenses. Using an open format, practitioners will learn to consider these options which can be administered by the patients themselves. Videos, guided visualizations, life/death transition facilitation, and demonstrations of detoxifying dietary methods will be included." $230

The Art of Self-Direction

Lenore Lefer

This workshop is about personal, social, and cultural change. It is about creating, initiating, and directing change as well as responding to those alterations that we seem not to choose. We will explore how to be casual around change and how to include our deepest values. Do we know what is meaningful, and how do we integrate that into our life? It is an art to lead a self-directed life that includes both personal and social responsibility.

Founded conceptually in psychosynthesis, the focus of this self-exploration will be experiential, using imagery, inner dialogue, meditation, and individual and group process. The environment will be supportive and evocative. This workshop is appropriate for professionals who deal with transitional crises in their own work.

Recommended reading: What We May Be, Pierro Ferucci; The Act of Will, Roberto Assagioli. $230

Week of February 24–March 1

Five Day Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Meadow & Laurie Muller (Lioness)

For workshop description see January 6-11. $450

Letting Go of Futile Habits

Leslie Pam & Ann Christie

Much of what we discover when we try to control habits is that our conscious minds are not very good at changing long-term ingrained behaviors such as smoking, overeating, drug and alcohol abuse, insomnia, inability to concentrate, procrastination, and sexual problems. Combining the pre-existing talents of one's mind with the ability of one's body to create new ways of changing unwanted behavior, participants will have the opportunity to experience the body's natural ability to initiate habit reversal. Methods will include a series of mind and body exercises utilizing Ericksonian practice with primal work.

Recommended reading: Revolution in Hypnosis, Sheila Rossi, Leslie Pam, Ann Christie. $450

Health and Creativity

Will Schutz & Ailuh Mellard

We can choose health and creativity by increasing self-awareness and letting go of fear.

This workshop will deal with why—the causes not the mechanics—we choose specific illnesses and with ways in which we block our ability to think. Seminarians will be presented with ways for being healthy and for expanding one's ability to think creatively and logically.

Recommended reading: Profound Simplicity, Will Schutz (University Assoc.); Synectics, William Gordon. $450

Weekend of March 1–3

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Zero Balancing: Advanced Workshop

Fritz Smith

This workshop is for people who have completed at least one introductory zero balancing program. Following a review of basic concepts, time will be spent on answering specific questions and giving individual instruction as needed. New work will focus on exploring the direct perception and assessment of energy currents in the body, refinement of evaluating and balancing the foundation joints, and the discussion of nonfoundation joints, including the small joints of the body. Theory will be clarified by demonstration and individual practice, using each other as models.

This is an accredited program toward zero balancing certification. $230

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self-concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and group process methods, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive creative functioning. $230

Week of March 3–8

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrancy of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, participants will clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $450

March 3–22

Sustaining Integration: Body, Self, and Soul

Jack Rosenberg

For workshop description see Winter Study Programs, page 38. $1570

March 3–24

Continuum Dance Meditation Intensive: Waves and Whispers

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper

For workshop description see Winter Study Programs, page 38. $1660

March 10–April 5

Massage Month Long Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see Winter Study Programs, page 39. $1800

Weekend of March 15–17

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

March 17–April 5

Still Points, Turning Points: A New Curriculum for Change

David Schiffman, Elisa Lodge Schiffman & Esalen Staff

For workshop description see Winter Study Programs, page 39. $1120

March 17–April 14

Gestalt Practice: An Intensive Practicum

Coordinated by Christine & Richard Price

For workshop description see Winter Study Programs, page 39. $1350

Weekend of March 22–24

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Week of March 24–29

Our Myth-Body to Live By

Joseph Campbell & Chunghiang Al Huang

Joseph and Chunghiang continue with their annual collaboration (seventh year at Esalen), exploring the mythic dimensions in body, mind, and spirit with lively stories, music, and Tai Ji dancing. A celebration!

Suggested readings: by Campbell: The Mythic Image, Myths to Live By (Bantam), The Way of the Animal Power (Ban der Marck), and The Hero with a Thousand Faces (Bollingen); by Huang: Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E.P. Dutton), Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press), and with Watts: Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon). $480

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

The process of self-exploration in this workshop will be based theoretically and practically on observations from modern consciousness research. The method of "holonomic integration," developed by the workshop leaders, combines evocative music, controlled breathing, facilitative body work, and mandala drawing. It uses a model of the psyche that includes the biographical-recollective level, the dynamics of the death-rebirth process, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be in the roles of experiencers as well as facilitators or "sitters." Special emphasis will be placed on the relevance of this work for management of transpersonal crisis. $450

Margaret Stevens

Weekend of March 29–31

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

For workshop description see February 8-10. $230

Living Music

Paul Winter

This workshop focuses on the music in our life, being the music within and around us through a process of improvisation—using sound, body movement, and poetry, and consorting—combining our natural instincts, our natural music, and our inclination to share in expressing the music of the world. We will embrace the instruments and voices of musical traditions of the world: folk, jazz, symphonic, tribal, rock, homemade, and animal. Participants are encouraged to bring any musical instruments (whether or not they can play them), including their voices. No musical experience is required, only an interest in self-expression. $230

Week of March 31–April 5

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Living Music, Living Tao

Paul Winter & Chunghiang Al Huang

Paul and Chunghiang will share their collaborative passion for the music and dance of nature, the wisdom of our planet earth and her ancient inhabitants, in whales, wolves, loons, and Lao-Tzu. Also, in J.S. Bach, jazz, and the rhythmic joy of Africa and South America. Always with Tai Ji dancing.

Recommended listening and reading: By Winter: Missa Gaia, Callings, and Sunsinger (three recordings), and Icarus, Common Ground (Paul Winter Consort); by Huang: Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E.P. Dutton), Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press), and with Watts: Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon). $480

Weekend of April 5–7

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Joyce Rogers Lyke

On the Nature of Evil: A Seminar on Ancient and Modern Visions of the "Dark Side of the Forest"

Joseph Campbell & Sam Keen

This seminar is all about: devils, demons, fallen angels, powers, principalities, sin, estrangements, autonomous complexes, karma, banality, and "spiritual wickedness in high places." Come prepared to re-own your shadow and become better acquainted with the night. $260

Herbs and Human Consciousness

Michael Tierra

Participants will learn the potential for integrating western and oriental herbs as "special foods" into their lives, and how herbs can be aids in preparing for higher levels of growth and energy. The knowledge and use of herbs was part of an ancient system for purification and stimulation of the organism: promoting virility, longevity, and mental clarity; healing chronic and acute diseases; and activating the ability to remain calm and centered in the face of environmental and psychological stress.

We will present a number of the most important herbs, and methods for preparing and taking them. Participants will be given individual guidance and direction. $230

Death and Resurrection

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

This workshop offers the opportunity to confront, rather than avoid, one of life's most real situations and its only inevitability: your own death. On a wider scale, it explores ways to move creatively through life's many transitions, letting go of the old and welcoming the new.

We will prepare for our deaths by reviewing our lives, completing unfinished business, writing wills. We will plan and celebrate our own funerals. Attachments to persons, things, and self-images are gradually severed until, surrendering all to the ultimate unknown, we are able to experience the birth of the truly new. Reborn, we can begin to create a new life the way we want it. $230

Week of April 7–12

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Reflectors

Jenny O'Connor & the NINE

"In this form we become bridge between whole and unwhole, happy and sad, good and bad. We are thought form, the first thought as you, as mankind, assumed shape and the last thought as you choose to leave. What remains is afterthought or vibration as we know it, and so the form begins again. The vibration came before the chicken."—The NINE

"This workshop is an invitation to spend time with The NINE in dialogue and self-discovery. As they move to answer questions, they create a kind of language that bypasses the mental structures of the brain and enters through the pores of the body. It can be beyond expectation because it enters the space between all expectations and, caught unawares, you may find yourself looking at a reflection of yourself that is shockingly familiar, for there may be more of you than you ever believed possible. You may well be compelled to reach across that space between the masks you carry and the self you don't quite yet believe possible and so put the strain of your theater to rest for a while. All this through a meeting, a few questions that seem simple enough in the asking but may rebound in a way that strikes far beyond what you thought you asked. It is a very fast way to know yourself better, in a form that teaches through compassion, humor, intelligence, and a vital concern for the future of us and our planet." – Jenny O'Connor $450

The Lover's Journey: A Quest for the Inner Man, the Inner Woman

Paul Rebillot

Paul Rebillot writes: "My study of Carl Jung's Psychology of the Transference stimulated me to look into the concept of the alchemical marriage as a process of owning and uniting the various archetypal aspects of ourselves. By exploring my own polarities, I saw how they affect the organization of my personality. By becoming aware of four aspects of myself, the negative and positive man, and the negative and positive woman, I discovered when I am being authentic with others and when I am not. All four must live together within me if I am to experience my wholeness.

"Consequently, I created a process in which people, by developing these roles, can discover how they liberate or how they confuse relationship. By playing out these roles and having fun with them, they become options rather than determinations.

"At the climax of this workshop, participants design and act out a ritual of joining together, a wedding celebration whereby they create the possibility of these four aspects actually uniting within themselves, awakening the seed of individuation." $450

Weekend of April 12–14

Weekend Massage Intensive

Brita Ostrom & Diane Miller Lesty

For workshop description see January 18-20. $230

Miracles of Infancy

Laurie Schutz Munyer, Arthur Munyer & Jezaniah Canyon Munyer

Laurie and Arthur write: "This will be a time to celebrate the profound miracle of new life and parenthood. The workshop will provide an opportunity for new parents and their infants (two years old or younger) to come together harmoniously and joyfully. We will guide both parent and infant through a creative experience in an atmosphere of warmth. Our approaches will be drawn from massage, creative movement, music, communication, and nurturing touch. We will bring awareness to how our children can be our teachers."

Some infant care will be available. $230

Toward a More Sensitive Relating

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

This workshop is an introduction to sensing, for more meaningful contact with our own nature and with the world around us.

How we relate to our deep inner needs, to other people, or to different tasks and situations depends on how we perceive them and how we trust our own findings. When perception is clear and full, we cannot make mistakes. Our whole organism is geared to respond appropriately. We have come, however, to see through a fog of preconceptions, a bewildering fabric of the ideas and judgements of others. Our own experience has been belittled; our perceptive faculties have lost their edge. The true I and the true you no longer meet. Both life and death have become often-threatening fantasies.

Sensory awareness is a practice for rediscovering and reviving full sensory functioning. Through the gradual quieting of premature and inappropriate intellectual activity, it directs our attention both inward and outward to the actuality of the present moment. As perceptivity revives, true relationship becomes possible. Each everyday occasion in living gains its own freshness, its own uniqueness. We can become content again, like healthy children, as quality begins to make quantity unimportant.

Suggested reading: Sensory Awareness, Charles Brooks (Santa Barbara Press). $230

April 12–26

Spiritual/Esoteric Practice: The Key to Intuitive and Psychic Development

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 40. $1120

Week of April 14–19

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Toward a More Sensitive Relating

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

For workshop description see April 12-14. $450

April 14–May 10

Psychosynthesis Training

Harry Sloan

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 40. $1800

April 19–26

Fitness of the Body, Inside and Out

Jessica Moore Britt & Andrea Juhan

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 40. $680

April 19–26

Hiking and Gestalt Practice

Steven Harper, Richard Price & Aurora Price

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 40. $680

April 19–28

The Body Has Its Reasons

Peter Levine

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 40. $770

Weekend of April 26–28

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see March 1-3. $230

April 26–May 3

The Enneagram: A Tool for Identifying and Developing Intuition

Helen Palmer

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 41. $680

Week of April 28–May 3

Human Potential Theory and Practice

John Heider

This workshop will consist of a synthesis of group process, gestalt, body work, and meditation. The purpose is to educate the human potential, which means the ability people have to become more aware or conscious of themselves and of the world around them. While the workshop will be mostly experiential, there will be time for questions and answers, and for discussion of the work. $450

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

To make effective, creative choices you need courage, imagination, and the willingness to know your heart and be true to the dreams that live inside it. Choosing this deeper wisdom can often involve the risk of breaking set—the choice to move against the powerful grain of old fears, habits, and the constant pressures of other people's expectations. To foster this spirit means contacting the elemental-instinctual parts of our natures, befriending rather than suppressing or denying the sexuality and the power out of which initiative and enthusiasm spring.

In this week we will focus on how to develop those qualities in ourselves that contribute to a more adventurous, resourceful, and buoyant way of living. In an atmosphere based in warmth and humor we will explore our capacity for mutual tenderness, respect, and honesty. Traditional psychological practices such as gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis will be used for intensive individual work, as well as non-traditional innovative approaches in body work, kinesthetic retraining, music, and guided imagery. $450

Weekend of May 3–5

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see February 15-17. $230

Songs of Innocence, Songs of Experience

Nancy Kaye Lunney & Jack Cirie

This weekend is for people who want to sing but are afraid or worried about what others think, for shower singers and choir members who dream of hitting the big time, and for accomplished singers who want to improve their performance. The simple movement exercise and balancing and centering practices of Leonard Energy Training (LET) will be offered to enhance the singer's sense of power and presence. Piano accompaniment and video feedback will be part of a supportive environment for self-expression. Participants are invited to bring their favorite song titles. There will also be a variety of music to choose from at Esalen. $230

Dream Discovery

Joyce Frazee

Joyce writes: "An ancient figure in many mythologies is that of the sleeper dreaming the world into being. Our ordinary, conscious mind is only a tiny sliver of all that we are, but in the dream time we are fluid. We move into, inhabit, our personal and family histories, our social and cultural histories, and the world unwinds, strand upon intertwining strand, from the dream time.

"We all dream. A beginning is to remember. The smallest dream fragment can be the first step in the journey of discovery. What we see first as discrete clues, decipherable as parts of a puzzle, become patterns, personal kaleidoscopes. The patterns, finally, are larger than any limitation of conscious meaning.

"In this workshop we will enter the dream time through exercises in recall, gestalt dream work, psychosynthesis, and through the practices of the Senoi dreamers." $230

May 3–11

Big Sur Wilderness Journey from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Jessica Moore Britt & Steven Harper

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 42. $475

Week of May 5–10

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Five Day Massage Intensive

George King & Peggy Morrison Horan

For workshop description see January 6-11. $450

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura Dessaccio

For workshop description see February 17-22. $450

Weekend of May 10–12

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

For workshop description see February 8-10. $230

Issues in Early Childhood Development: A Gazebo Workshop

Perry Holloman & Lia Thompson

As children gather information about themselves, their environment and others, they learn to make decisions based upon their experiences. As parent/teachers, to what degree do/should we intrude on or interfere with this information-gathering process?

We will look at cycles of aggression, sexuality, and danger in early childhood, and consider how children move toward courage, compassion, and creativity. Esalen's Gazebo School staff endeavor to allow children to exercise their initiative within a structure of safety in order to come to their own resolutions. This is a time for families to come together to explore and seek options in their unique situations, however challenging. $230

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send names and address to Janet Lederman, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Leonard Energy Training and the Art of Love

George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

How can we escape sexual stereotypes? Does intimacy always have to lead to boredom? Or can we, by recognizing the uniqueness and mystery of each individual, keep our erotic life alive and exciting? In this workshop, we use the simple movement exercises and visualizations of Leonard Energy Training to explore communications and creativity in the erotic realm. Our purpose is not to prescribe new methods but rather to transform the way you experience your intimate relationships, as inspired by George Leonard's book, The End of Sex. The workshop is appropriate for individuals as well as couples.

Recommended reading: The Silent Pulse and The End of Sex, George Leonard. $230

The Challenge of Change: Findhorn to Mount Shasta

Peter Caddy

Co-founder of Findhorn community in northern Scotland, and visitor, director, and advisor to many communities around the world, Peter will share his recent experience of starting a new center and community in northern California near Mount Shasta, one of the sacred mountains of the world. A quest for wholeness culminating in a new marriage and fatherhood at age 67 provide additional insight regarding the vital importance of balancing masculine / feminine principles.

Peter will discuss: spiritual principles applicable to daily life (trusting inner guidance, power of attunement, laws of manifestation, and cooperation with nature); principles for building relationships, community, and effective networks; challenges of the '80's and prophecies of earth changes, with an understanding of how we can actually co-create a more positive future together. $230

Week of May 12–17

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see February 10-15. $450

The Foundations of Body Image

Andrea & Deane Juhan

For workshop description see January 20-25. $450

The Hero's Journey

Paul Rebillot

Paul Rebillot writes, "Again and again, in my work with people, I have seen the suffering and confusion caused by our society's lack of significant rites of passage. Without shamans or ritual masters to guide them, modern women and men must find their own lonely and usually traumatic paths from one stage of life to another—whether it be a child's discovery that there is no Santa Claus, the adolescent's awkward approach to puberty, marriage or the ending of a marriage, or a change of career. Every such change requires a movement from one level of being to another.

"Seeing this need, I created a rite of passage universal enough to allow people to discover the pattern of change, whatever that change might be. That pattern is exemplified in the myth of the hero. The new stage of life that is to be reached calls forth a heroic action on the part of the person taking the journey. At the same time, as soon as a new goal begins to emerge, all of the resistance to that goal emerges as well. I call these two forces 'the hero' and 'the demon.' In order for the new state of being to be realized, these two forces must discover how to communicate with each other and how to work together. The old forms must fall away so that the new form can emerge.

"My purpose is to give people a chance to experience a rite of passage so that they can go into the changes in their lives with a sense of joy and greater context. My hope is that through this process people will awaken to their own creative genius and enter into the drama of their lives with imagination and delight."

Recommended reading: Joseph Campbell, The Hero With a Thousand Faces (Bollingen) and Myths to Live By (Bantam). $450

Transforming Fear

George Pennington

George writes: "Fear is—and has always been—the Great Stopper, the Guardian of the Threshold. Every true growth experience, every new step in life is preceded by fear. Sometimes it is so powerful that every cell of our body seems to scream: "Stop! Stay where you are! This is not for you!" Then it is hard to keep going. It seems so much easier to quit, and in fact we often do.

"We can, however, learn to lose our fear of being afraid. In this workshop we will encounter all the symptoms of fear: pounding heart, sweaty hands, cold feet, knot in the stomach, blank mind . . . Step by step, we will learn to face our fears, in full awareness: the small and the big, the personal, social, and existential. The safe frame of the group will allow us to do this in a very practical, honest, and humorous way. Fear is thus transformed; from a terrifying demon it changes into a familiar friend and advisor on the path."

Recommended reading: George Pennington, Little Manual for the Players of the Glass Bead Game (Elements Books, Great Britain). $450

May 12–June 7

Frontiers of Modern Consciousness Research: Dawning of a New Paradigm

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 41. $1800

Weekend of May 17–19

Leonard Energy Training: The State of the Art

George Leonard
& the Leonard Energy Training Staff

In the world of Leonard Energy Training, problems become opportunities. Stress and pain become gifts of energy. Personal and social options are multiplied. The flow of vital energy is enhanced. Leonard Energy Training is derived from the eastern art of aikido as well as from western psychology and physical theory. It is a comprehensive body of work that teaches practical, alternative ways of dealing with life situations. It is not physically demanding. It does not aim at emotional catharsis. Most of the training involves simple movement exercises in which the body itself becomes a learning facility. Participants will practice such things as centering, relaxing under pressure, bending, and alternative ways of being. They will also be discussions of applications to education, sports, management, relationships, social transformation, and personal growth.

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Ultimate Athlete and The Silent Pulse. $230

Exorcising the Demon "Should"

Paul Rebillot

Within each of us there lives a demon—our own personal critic—whose greatest joy comes from criticizing, denigrating, and destroying every experience we have. We're either too early or too late, too old or too young, too fat or too thin, and when we fall in love, we're never good enough.

This demon, who commands us to be who we aren't in order to satisfy someone we can never satisfy, is the demon that we will seek to exorcise during the weekend.

What if you actually tried to be everything you think you should be? This monumental task is made easier when confronted with laughter. We will build up that image, and then act it out as fully as we possibly can. We'll contrast that with the experience of ourselves as we are spontaneously. With the help of this experience in contrasts, we will explore our possibilities of movement between the two, and in this way open up our options to the full range of our own authentic being. $230

Awakening the Heart, Opening the Mind: Buddhist Teaching in Meditation and Compassion

Sogyal Rinpoche

Out of the practice of sitting meditation can come a calmness of mind, bringing clarity, warmth and confidence. This is the basis for 'taming' the mind to go beyond its self-centered concerns and generate good heart and compassion for others. Rinpoche will base his teaching on the famous text Training the Mind in Seven Points by the great Indian master Atisha, who taught in Tibet about 1000 A.D. He will draw upon commentaries on this teaching by other masters, and introduce specific exercises designed to generate compassion. $230

Week of May 19–24

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Rolfing®, Feldenkrais, and Other Methods for Releasing Pain and Tension

Dub Leigh & Dee Dee Lozier

This workshop is designed for people who want to learn to move with more freedom, ease, and awareness, and to get release from chronic pain and tension. Through different types of body work, participants will have the opportunity to explore experientially methods to free up constricted movements.

The leaders will offer participants sessions in body work and instruction in group movement including: Moshe Feldendrais' awareness work, deep tissue work as taught by Ida Rolf, and trigger point work. $450

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman
assisted by Maria & Perry Holloman

For many people, feelings are something mysterious, something to keep to one's self, or something to think about. This workshop is about all the steps involved in learning to experience, respect, and honor one's feeling process in a way that will increase vitality and personal effectiveness. Participants can learn to separate feelings from thoughts, learn from their own body rhythms, learn to contact their own wisdom, and participate, in a safe environment, in the choice of expression or depression. $450

Change and Self-Esteem

Phyllis Shankman

Change is an ever-present aspect of living which must be accepted and used creatively if we are to sustain a healthy, interesting and exciting life. Most often we find ourselves actively or passively resisting change while we talk about wanting it. Self-esteem, which includes self-acceptance, self-appreciation and self-confidence is the aspect of self which enables us to confront our resistance and fear, and increases our willingness to change and take risks.

In this workshop we will move through a unique, in-depth process that will focus on the ability of each individual in the group to find and allow more personal self-acceptance and a sense of well-being that will enable them to creatively confront the opportunities for potential change and growth that will be presented during the week. Group activities will include gestalt process work, group discussions, massage, meditation, music, dance, art-imagery exercises, and whatever else happens spontaneously. $450

Weekend of May 24-26

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Weekend Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Arthur Munyer

For workshop description see January 18-20. $230

The Gentle Art of Becoming-Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Shiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 25-27. $230

Burnout in Relationship

Ayala Pines

Relationships burn out most commonly through gradual erosion, gradual increase in boredom, and gradual buildup of petty annoyances and small dissatisfactions. It is often difficult to single out one precipitating cause of the stress. Like the straw that broke the camel's back, marriages are broken by the accumulated weight of daily hassles and pressures.

While burnout can be an extraordinarily painful experience, it can be conquered. As is the case with most difficult emotional experiences, if properly dealt with, burnout can provide a trigger for relationship enrichment, increased closeness, and growth. Consequently, couples who have experienced burnout, and have learned to cope with it effectively, many times end up with a better, fuller, more exciting relationship than if they had not experienced burnout at all.

The workshop is recommended for marriage and family counselors and especially for couples committed to keeping the spark alive in their relationship. $230

Week of May 26-31

Wild Dance: Movement in Wilderness

Susan Harper & Steve Harper

"Wild Dance" is an invitation to explore natural movements inspired within the human organism by participation in nature. We listen to impulses within and to impulses of wilderness until "inner" and "outer" disappear. As we surrender to the intelligence which creates life in all its varied forms, we find ourselves moving in unexpected ways. Our awareness expands. We can feel a larger sense of self and wilderness, and the creative wholeness of a greater dance.

Sessions will be both indoors and outdoors. Evenings, some day sessions, and most meals will be at Esalen. We will also take short day hikes in Big Sur's backcountry. Participants need not have previous experience in hiking or dance. Come willing and ready to participate in nature's range of motion. $450

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

It is very rare for most people to use painting purely for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to do it just for the process of exploration, not for the result. This workshop will focus upon the painting experience as a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to creative expression. Emphasis will be placed upon the practical experience of creative painting in which participants will be given the support and stimulation to discover a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling. The mechanisms and patterns that prevent creative action will be discussed in order to integrate understanding with experience. The work will take place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, and a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. An audio-visual program will illustrate the development of inner expression during the painting process.

The workshop has proved to be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122. (415) 564-8515. $450 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders)

Advanced Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Vicki Topp

This workshop will include morning and afternoon practice sessions with various instructors, yoga, movement, evening lectures and discussions, and demonstrations of specific practices designed to increase the range of conditions with which participants can deal effectively. The following concerns will receive emphasis: how to sustain one's energy through a day of treatments; how to clear negative energy released by the client; how to use weight and leverage. As one massages more and more deeply, emotional changes can be triggered by the unravelling of blocked muscular energy. As these emotions present themselves, they will provide group members with some first hand practice in productive ways to move through them.

The format and pace of this course will presume some previous massage experience—at least an introductory five day intensive or its equivalent. $450

Integrity

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

In this workshop participants will join to build a community whose foundation is trust, good will, and authenticity. This community will be a place in which each participant can sense and experience clearly his or her own capacity for tenderness, strength, and self-respect. Participants will explore the boundaries of their emotional, physical, and mental potentials and how they affect sexuality, relation to power, friendships, creativity, and expectations of self and others. $450

Steve Beck

Weekend of May 31–June 2

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14 $230

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

The work of Moshe Feldenkrais is based on the natural process by which we learned to move as children. During this workshop soft, easy, gentle movements will be used to increase awareness of the body and to improve the ease and ability of movement. Special emphasis will be placed on the difficulties in movement that arise from chronic conditions such as lower back and neck pain, shoulder pain, tension in the neck and shoulders, and knee injuries, all of which can improve by approaching the difficulties as problems in learning rather than as therapeutic troubles. Situations which were "incurable" become "reeducable." Workshop participants will also be introduced to methods to improve their ability to sense each others bodies through touch and massage.

Although this workshop will be of value to anyone interested in learning more about their bodies through direct experience, it may be of special interest and benefit to dancers, athletes, doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists, health-care professionals, and elderly citizens, who may find themselves discovering new ways of moving with ease and increased flexibility—painlessly and immediately. $230

Inner Sound and Voice

Jill Purce

By freeing our voice, we make contact with deep levels of the Self, releasing untapped energy sources. In this workshop we will explore sound for healing and transforming consciousness. We will work with the psycho-physical effects of breathing through chanting and mantra, and sonic meditations. We will develop breath and sound to enable body-mind resonance. We will learn to give sonic massages, to heal and tune the chakras and subtle body.

We will focus on discovering our own note and inner sound, using mystical sound practices from traditional cultures, exploring trance and mind-transforming music, mantra, and musical medicine. $230

Near Death Experiences and Human Evolution

Kenneth Ring

In the mid-1970's, tremendous interest in the experience of dying was kindled by the work of Elizabeth Kubler-Ross and Raymond Moody (author of Life After Life). Since then abundant scientific documentation of their basic findings has been compiled. Recently there has been great interest in exploring the spiritual implications of the near-death experience (NDE) and the ways we can draw on this research in dealing with death and dying.

This workshop will begin by reviewing the most recent research in the field and will continue with an in-depth examination of the significance of NDE's, for both everyday life and planetary evolution. Featured in this workshop will be material from Kenneth Ring's new book, Heading Toward Omega, which deals primarily with the transformative power of NDE's.

Although oriented toward persons who are attuned to the spiritual significance of NDE's, this program will also be of special interest to nurses and others involved in the health professions. People who have undergone NDE's are particularly welcome to attend this workshop. Films and video tapes will be incorporated into the workshop which will encompass a combination of didactic and experiential formats.

Recommended reading: Life at Death and Heading Toward Omega, Kenneth Ring (Morrow, NY). $230

Week of June 2–7

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14 $450

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14 $450

Resolving Patterns of Stress

Peter Levine & Michael Salzman

Stress affects the nervous system and body structure. Effects can be reversed by appropriately resolving the muscular and neurological holding patterns which contribute to maintaining the stressed state.

Concepts and methods from nervous-system research, clinical practice, and direct body approaches will be presented and discussed in the context of perceiving body types, and understanding physiological signals. Tools will be offered for interpreting and working with tension patterns, posture, movement, emotion, and respiratory-autonomic (stress) responses. These aspects of practice will be integrated into an assessment by the health-care planner.

This workshop would be of particular use to professionals in the fields of physical health-care, chiropractic, body work, counseling, biofeedback, nursing, and general medicine. $450

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter & Marianne Paschke-Carter

"Wisdom is the intelligence of the system as a whole." —Gregory Bateson

"Your conscious mind is very intelligent, and your unconscious mind is a hell of a lot smarter." —M.H. Erickson

Paul writes: "We have an intelligence obtained from our wholeness that is far greater than we are ordinarily conscious of. Erickson called it the 'unconscious mind.' Accessing and integrating this intelligence formed the basis of his hypnotic work.

"This workshop is designed for people who work with people and would like experience with Ericksonian hypnosis, communication, and problem-solving. The emphasis will be on developing a practical understanding of the principles of this approach including trance as a natural and necessary part of health and the idea that people are paradoxical and so too must their communication and problem-solving be paradoxical.

"Through guided exercises and demonstrations, participants will be taught the hypnotic use of metaphor in movement, sound, image, and story, as well as the hypnotic realities of age-regression, age-progression (traveling into futures), lucid dreaming, dissociation, and deep-trance identification (a process of deepening self-awareness through identification with different persona in and out of trance).

"Additional exploration will include the recognition and use of spontaneous trance states that commonly occur in the course of body work, acupuncture, movement and dance, sports, counseling, and everyday stress situations; the art of using all of the system, including the 'bad, sick, crazy, and resistant parts; the value of humor, confusion, pattern interruption, and paradox in accessing unconscious creativity and resources; and an integrative approach to problem-solving and self-healing as described in my soon-to-be published book, The Parts Model.

"Course prerequisites: a sense of humor, a warm heart, a little skepticism, a little trust, and an unconscious mind."

Suggested readings: Uncommon Therapy, Jay Haley (W.W. Norton & Co.); Ericksonian Approaches to Hypnosis and Psychotherapy, Jeffrey Zeig, Editor (Brunner & Mazel). $450

Weekend of June 7–9

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $230

The Emerging Curriculum

Lila Thompson, Riley Thompson-Clark, Perry & Maya Holloman

We will consider the conditions for optimal development in early childhood. A child's knowledge of the world develops through body movement and sensory contact with his/her surroundings. The emerging curriculum is an organic process in which the physical/social environment is the classroom at any moment. Using the Gazebo school's learning center and the Esalen grounds, we will explore the concept of intelligence as developed through full interaction with the environment. $230

***

Alternatives for Managers

Susan & Joel Kirsch

Whether you manage a small business, a household, a work group, or a major corporation, you probably wrestle with these questions: How can I respond to the changes that constantly bombard me? What can I do to deal with the stress of my job? How can I provide the most effective leadership? Is it possible to convert difficulties and problems into opportunities for further growth and development?

This management program is based on a unique reliance on the body as teacher. Simple physical movement activities, derived from the sophisticated martial art of aikido and Leonard Energy Training, provide an experiential foundation for discovering managerial principles. The physical activities serve as a complement to the cognitive and are used in conjunction with group discussion, role play, lectures, and paper-pencil activities. Participants will have a chance to apply the principles to current work-related issues and to experiment with alternative ways to enhance personal and professional performance. $230

Formative Fields and the Habits of Nature: A New Science of Life

Rupert Sheldrake

The hypothesis of formative causation may provide the basis for a new scientific paradigm which goes far beyond the currently predominant mechanistic theory of life. The idea that the form and behavior of living organisms are shaped by morphogenetic fields, themselves molded by the form and behavior of past similar organisms, leads to a new interpretation of heredity and the evolutionary process. Memories need no longer be thought of as somehow stored inside the brain. They may depend on direct connections with the organism's own past due to morphic resonance, and tuning in to the experience of other members of the species may give rise to a pooled or collective memory. In this workshop some of the implications of formative causation for biology, psychology, parapsychology, philosophy, and religion will be explored and discussed.

Recommended reading: Rupert Sheldrake, A New Science of Life (J.P. Tarcher). $230

Week of June 9–14

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see February 17-22. $450

Integration

Deborah Anne Medow

For workshop description see December 30-January 4. $450

Joyce Rogers Lyke

New Light on Earth: The Near-Death Experience and Human Transformation

Kenneth Ring

In the past decade, much research has been done to establish that the near-death experience (NDE) is an authentic and widespread phenomenon of our time. Recently, as a result of new studies demonstrating the transformative power of the NDE, it has begun to appear that NDEs are one modern form of initiation into ancient mysteries. According to a Gallup poll, literally millions of people within a short span of time have undergone life-changing transformations associated with NDEs.

We will be exploring implications of NDEs for human transformation and planetary culture in the New Age. We will consider in depth such topics as: recent research into the NDE and its after-effects; the new mythology of death emerging from the field of near-death studies; and the evolutionary nature of the NDE. In addition to didactic sessions and discussion, the workshop will include experiential exercises, films, and video tapes.

This program is intended for anyone who is interested in learning about NDEs, and is especially designed for persons seeking to understand how they may better align themselves with the transformative power of the NDE itself. Those people who have had an NDE or a similar experience are particularly encouraged to participate. $450

Aggression, Sexuality, and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Janet Lederman & Gazebo Staff

How do children gather information and learn to make decisions based on what they have gathered? As parents and teachers, to what degree do/should we intrude or interfere in this information-gathering process? We will examine the critical role that parents, teachers, and other children play in the development of a child's total abilities.

The Gazebo staff believe that allowing a child full interaction with his/her environment, imposing as few limitations as possible, greatly enhances the child's social skills. Particularly in the areas of conflict resolution and natural sexual exploration, the Gazebo experience has enabled children to exercise their initiative successfully. Families may come together in this workshop to discover some of their own resolutions for current challenging situations. $450

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send names and address to Janet Lederman, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

The Return of Encounter

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

Will Schutz writes: "Encounter groups in the early '70's spread rapidly across the United States and Europe, helped Esalen become nationally known, and then came upon hard times. Encounters for some became anathema, an activity to be shunned. Rather than disappearing, however, encounter donned new clothes and titles, surfacing as communications, human relations, consciousness-raising, and process groups.

"This seminar will explore encounter's maturing and continuing value. In its best form, it is a method for the non-judgmental exploration of self and relationships, basically little more than telling the truth both to others and to yourself, and taking responsibility for yourself."

Recommended reading: By Will Schutz: Elements of Encounter, Profound Simplicity, and The Truth Option (all available through WSA, Box 259, Muir Beach, CA 94965). $450

Weekend of June 14–16

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Weekend Massage Intensive

Jaime Morton & Vicki Topp

For workshop description see January 18-20. $230

Other Lives, Other Selves

Roger & Jennifer Woolger

This workshop teaches a specific form of Jung's method of active imagination whereby we can easily enter the collective unconscious and vividly recall detailed memories of other eras through an ego consciousness quite different from our present identity. Each other "life" we remember can be understood psychologically in much the way that secondary personalities in our dreams can reflect integrated parts of the Self. This "remembering" of other lives can offer a number of valuable benefits: cathartic release from deep-seated fears and bodily tensions; glimpses of unexplored potentials in ourselves; new and often startling light on areas in our lives where we feel stuck and hopeless; personal experience of the death transition to higher states of consciousness. In the workshop there will be individual demonstrations, supervised work in pairs, and group processing and discussion of the material. $230

Reprinting: A New Growth Process

Hector Prestera

How does one become un-stuck from imprinted experiences and more fully realize inner power? Through various approaches including body reading, light trance work, and anchoring (Erickson), participants can explore how powerful the unconscious is in keeping old behavioral patterns locked in, and consider opening up new doors toward growth and freedom. New models of behavior can become available.

The workshop will feature individual and group processes, including body release approaches.

Suggested reading: The Body Reveals, Prestera & Kurtz (Harper & Row). $230

The Future of the Body: The Transformation Project

Michael Murphy & Steven Donovan

In his novel, Jacob Atabet, Michael Murphy speculated that a next stage of human development might involve the power to alter the physical body at will. He is developing this idea more thoroughly in a book, The Future of the Body, and through the Transformation Project, organized in 1976 to compile and analyze a broad range of scientific, speculative, and anecdotal literature on bodily transformation. Murphy will discuss some of the major ideas of his current book, and Donovan will present results to date of the Transformation Project.

Recommended reading: Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports, Michael Murphy. $230

Week of June 16–21

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $450

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $450

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Beny Langdon & Staff

"Freedom: A state of being in which man's relatedness to life is unobstructed."
—M.C. Richards, Centering

Stress-related tension and emotional blocks restrict our capacity for feelings and expressions of aliveness. This workshop is a carefully chosen introduction to a variety of body approaches that release limiting patterns to promote kinesthetic awareness, spontaneity, grace, and mental flexibility. Methods may include imagery, sensory awareness, Feldenkrais, gestalt, Rolf®-movement, massage, Reichian breath work, and video feedback. $450

Five Days with Jack Rosenberg

This workshop is aimed at awakening and sustaining awareness of body, self, and soul, as well as examining the anatomy and function of intimate relationships. The method can be described as gestalt body work with a distinct leaning toward the transpersonal aspects of life. During the workshop participants will explore many aspects of Jack Rosenberg's energetic approach to sexuality, the energetic field of the body, and the belief systems which keep us locked in obsolete behavior patterns. $450

Weekend of June 21–23

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $230

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see March 1-3. $230

The Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program: An Update

James L. Hickman
& the Exchange Program Staff

Since its inception in 1979, the Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program has demonstrated significant success in pioneering innovative and imaginative approaches to Soviet-American cooperation. Based on our two nations' common interest in human potential and consciousness, our non-governmental approach to peacemaking emphasizes the need for understanding both the similarities and the differences in disparate cultures.

This project has emerged over the past 10 years as members of the Exchange have traveled extensively throughout the Soviet Union establishing personal relationships with Soviets from all walks of life including scientists, political philosophers, artists, athletes, and government officials.

In this seminar we will review the projects in the Exchange Program to date: exchanges of professionals from the two nations; the creation of an international forum for cosmonaut/astronaut dialogues; the dramatic potential for using the latest satellite communications technology for linking together large groups of Soviets and Americans, the collaboration between Esalen and the Soviet Ministry of Health in the areas of holistic health, wellness and physical fitness, the establishment of a Soviet Studies Center at Esalen's Big Sur facility.

We will share our insights about the intellectual, cultural, and spiritual aspects of the transformational journey on which we have embarked with our Soviet friends and colleagues. We will include a multimedia presentation on travel in the USSR, offer guidelines based on our experiences in citizen diplomacy, and conduct experiential sessions examining our own cultural conditioning and perceptions. The seminar leaders believe that if Americans evolve a deeper understanding of Soviet culture, the United States government might evolve a more creative Soviet-American policy.

Recommended reading: Hedrick Smith, The Russians; David Shipler's "Russia: Broken Idols, Solemn Dreams," the New Age magazine cover story on citizen diplomacy, January, 1984. $230

Introduction to the Viking Runes

Ralph Blum

For almost 2000 years, western peoples possessed a system for divination and insight into the present and the future—the Runes. Described as "the I Ching of the Vikings," the Runes served as an oracle—each symbol having a specific meaning and message—and Runecasters, often women, accompanied the Vikings on their long voyages. Then, for three centuries, the Runes were eclipsed, their practice and wisdom lost.

In 1975, Ralph Blum began working with the most ancient Germanic Runes, rediscovering meanings for the individual Rune stones and devising methods for their use. Margaret Mead said of his work: "It's high time someone treated the Runes as part of living western shamanism. We need our shamans, and you don't have to make an appointment to see your Runes."

In this introductory workshop, he will present the origin, history, meaning of the Runes, and how to work with them for self-counseling, decision making, obtaining information at a distance.

There will be individual Rune readings for workshop participants.

Recommended reading: The Book of Runes, Ralph Blum (St. Martin's Press; Rune stones & bag come with book). $230

Awake in Your Dreams

Stephen LaBerge

Lucid dreaming means dreaming while knowing that we are dreaming. The presence of consciousness during this extraordinary state of consciousness allows us to respond flexibly and creatively to the flow of dream experience. We are in a unique position to control our dreams; this control brings within reach a remarkable range of possibilities from indulging your wildest fantasies to fulfilling your highest spiritual aspirations.

For most of us, lucid dreams are as rare as the waking peak experiences to which they are analogous. This need not be so; workshop participants will learn how to develop the skill of lucid dreaming. The results of recent scientific research will be presented and participants will be exposed to a wide variety of uses to which the world of lucid dreaming can be put, including self-exploration, creative probem solving, healing, adventure, and, perhaps most importantly, a way of self-integration leading to the transpersonal realms.

The emphasis will be on improving the quality of the dreamer's experience while in the dream. This means self-control, not dream control; changing the context rather than the content of the dream. Ann Faraday has called lucid dreaming "one of the most exciting frontiers of human experience." This workshop will provide an opportunity to find out why.

Recommended reading: Stephen LaBerge, Lucid Dreaming (Tarcher). $230

Week of June 23–28

Five Day Massage Intensive

Bill Liles & Brita Ostrom

For workshop description see January 6-11. $450

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see March 3-8. $450

The Mystical Quest

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will include theoretical and experiential exploration of the transpersonal dimensions of the human psyche and the importance of the spiritual impulse in human beings. Special attention will be paid to the emerging world-view that integrates science and mysticism, and to the problem of "spiritual emergencies"—emotional and psychosomatic crises that can be associated with consciousness evolution. In the experiential work, we will use "holonomic integration," which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, and focused body work, and has the potential to mediate experiential access to the mystical domain. $450

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

This seminar will focus on the integration of body, mind, and spirit through intuitive and energy awareness, massage, meditation, movement, gestalt, and play. Using these tools and gentle risk-taking can help in opening to our own aliveness and ability to be more at home with ourselves. Participants will explore practical and portable ways of nourishing and trusting the inherent wisdom of the self. $450

Weekend of June 28–30

Love and Work

Anne & John Caple

"Work is love made visible," wrote Kahlil Gibran. In this workshop, participants will examine their work-life and work options in the context of their love for themselves, for others, and for the larger world. Working from a conceptual base, the group will use integrative exercises, art, body work, and gestalt processes to seek answers and consider life decisions. The goal is for participants to see more clearly what they want and how to get it. One outcome will be a specific action plan.

This weekend is for those who want more value in their work-life, for career changers and potential career changers, for re-entry persons, and for those who influence others in career choices. Some time will be available for individual life / work issues during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs.

Suggested reating: Careercycles, John Caple (Prentice-Hall). $230

Experiencing Your Psychic / Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

In this workshop, which is open to professionals and others interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their own psi abilities, Anne and Jim will use special exercises to aid participants in exploring these abilities.

They have found through their professional workshops that most of those in the helping professions are already using their sensitivity and need only learn to recognize their styles and trust the intuitive input they normally receive. During the exercises Anne will use her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity. One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive / psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $230

Sojourn: The Consciousness and Chemistry of Escape

Harvey Milkman & Stanley Sunderwirth

Are criminals, cocaine users, sky divers, police, and lovers motivated by a similar adrenalin rush? Are comparable needs being met through alcoholism, overeating, and membership in a spiritually oriented group? The term addiction was once reserved for dependence on drugs. Today it is applied to a range of compulsive behaviors as disparate as working too hard and eating too much chocolate. In fact, there are essential biological, psychological, and social common denominators between drug use and other habitual behaviors. Whether your pleasure is meditation or mescaline, cocaine or cults, you are addicted if you cannot control when you start or stop the activity. Indeed, in the arena of addiction, experience is the protagonist and the users' drugs or activities of choice are merely supporting actors.

This workshop will provide participants with an understanding of critical factors which underlie causation and treatment of a broad spectrum of compulsive problem or fantasy experiences. Teaching methods are geared towards increased learning through simultaneous activation of right and left brain channels of comprehension. Information is presented via visual imagery and logical explanation, thus enhancing conceptual understanding and learning retention.

The workshop will also focus on the experiential acquisition of skills to overcome the wide variety of behaviors characterized by compulsion, loss of control, and continuation despite harmful consequences. Contemporary treatment methods will be demonstrated and practiced. $230

Honoring the Self

Devers & Nathaniel Branden

An experiential, participatory workshop in which we explore the psychology of self-esteem and its relationship to personal evolution. I cannot think of a single psychological problem—from anxiety and depression, to fear of intimacy or of success, to spouse battering or child molestation, to suicide and crimes of violence—that is not traceable to the problem of a poor self-concept. Of all the judgments we pass in life, none is as important as the one we pass on ourself. Through a variety of exercises and processes, plus some explicit teaching, in this workshop we will look at the kind of behaviors that raise self-esteem and the kind that subvert it. We will see in how many ways self-concept is destiny. $230

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs. No participants will be accepted as work scholars in Gazebo or the office until they have fulfilled a minimum of one month in one of the aforementioned departments.

Most evenings and two intensive weekends are spent together as a group exploring different practices and approaches available at Esalen, with specifically assigned leaders who will be with the group throughout the month, coordinating the study schedule and facilitating many of the evening sessions.

The program is usually divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc.

Focused programs planned thus far for 1985 include:

January 6–March 3: Jessica Moore Britt coordinates a two month program which integrates body work awareness, Reichian breath practice, and gestalt. For further information and recommended reading see the leader's workshop description for February 8-10.

March 31–June 23: The Esalen massage practitioners will be offering a three month program in body work, with intensive instruction in massage, movement, and self-care. After the satisfactory completion of the program and an additional 30 recorded massage sessions, a California state-approved certificate will be issued.

April 28–May 26: Robert Bathurst offers a special section, focused on a search for an understanding of Russia: its people, politics, literature, and relationships with peace and war.

June 23–July 21: Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita) and Vicki Topp offer a program emphasizing body awareness, including gestalt and Reichian bodywork, massage, and creative movement.

July 21–September 15: Seymour Carter coordinates a two month program focusing on gestalt practice. Recommended reading: Karen Horney, Neurosis and Human Growth.

October 13–November 10: Deborah Medow leads a program focused on body awareness, including such activities as yoga, creative movement and dance, theater games, interpersonal process and massage.

November 10–December 8: Andrea Juhan and Deborah Medow offer a program of movement studies which can be taken alone or as a combined program with body awareness, October 13-November 10.

December 8–January 6: Neil and Pat Lamper lead a program emphasizing gestalt awareness, using massage, the baths, movement, music, personal imagery, outdoor awareness, group nurture, and group gaiety.

In as much as the Work Study Program is a complete program in itself, please do not plan to take regularly scheduled catalog workshops during your stay. Professional services, such as massage and Rolfing® are available at staff rates.

Accommodations are shared, with up to three people to a room, usually at South Coast Center, a staff living complex located 1½ miles north of Esalen.

The 28 day Work Study Program costs $600 for the first month. A $300 deposit in U.S. currency is required with your application. Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second month, at a cost of $550, or a third month at a cost of $500 depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

NOTE: This application is not a registration in the program. Registration is made only after approval of application and upon receipt of deposit. Please return this form with your deposit to:

Work Study Program,
Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.
Telephone: (408) 667-2335.

The balance of the fee is due on arrival. Of the original deposit, $100 is non-refundable, and may be transferred to other Esalen programs within one year of receipt.

Available dates: January 6–February 3; February 3–March 3; March 3–March 31; March 31–April 28; April 28–May 26; May 26–June 23; June 23–July 21; July 21–August 18; August 18–September 15; September 15–October 13; October 13–November 10; November 10–December 8; December 8–January 5; etc.

Application to the Work Study Program

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Date of Birth _____ Occupation _____ Place of Employment _____

Daytime Telephone (_____) _____ Date of Application _____

Evening Telephone (_____) _____ Male ☐ Female ☐ Smoker ☐ Non-smoker ☐

I prefer the general interest program: yes ☐ no ☐ I prefer the focused program in: _____

The Work Study Program is for 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. Please list the dates of your choice, listing two alternative dates as well.

1st: _____ to _____ 2nd: _____ to _____ 3rd: _____ to _____

Work scholars may sometimes be invited to remain for a second or third month, depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. If an invitation is extended, please indicate your availability. ☐ no extension ☐ one month extension ☐ two month extension

Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs.

If you have emergency medical skills, (M.D., E.M.T. or R.N.) and are willing to make those skills available during your stay, please check here. ☐

Please attach a personal statement about your interest in the Work Study Program, including: your available skills, especially English language skills, which are essential for participation in the program; any medical difficulties which might affect your working in any departments; any Esalen workshops you have attended (please list program titles, group leaders, and dates).

Winter Study Programs

David Nelson

January 13–February 8
Month Long Professional Body Work Intensive

Dub Leigh

The premise of this workshop is that an unwell body tends to be shortened, thick, and suffering from pain and stress, and that a healthy body tends to be long, balanced, and supple.

In this workshop we will emphasize how to transform an unhealthy body into a long, supple, organized body by inquiring into ways pain can be erased. Further questions to be considered are: how can short tissue be lengthened, hard tissue be softened and made more resilient; how may tissue be repositioned and balanced, constriction be removed from organs and joints, a general heaviness be replaced by a lightness and lift, and body armor and old buried trauma be eliminated?

We will explore four premises: first, by Ida Rolf, that the body is plastic and segmented and therefore its structure can be reorganized, repositioned, and balanced as ordered; second, by Feldenkrais, that the nervous system can be reprogrammed so as to bring the desired changes in the body's function and structure; third, by Selye, that stress can end in pain and disease and that it does not need to; and fourth by Cyriax, that all pain arises from a lesion and that treatment must reach the lesion and exert a beneficial effect on it. We will also explore Reich's body armor and Ron Hubbard's stored trauma concepts.

The workshop will be limited to ten professional body workers who want to improve their expertise. From time to time various body experts will be brought into class. Participants will have the opportunity to do as much body work as desired and to experience body work each day of the class, being taught as they work. In the course of the workshop, participants will receive many hours of work from one another and Dub Leigh. The goal is to have each participant return to his/her practice with a new level of knowledge and ability.

Interested participants should submit an application, addressed to Dub Leigh, c/o Esalen, with a short personal history explaining their qualifications in body work. As enrollment is limited applications should be sent early. Applicants will be notified when they are accepted. $1800

January 27–February 22
Tutorial Program in Shamanic Practice

Michael Harner

Michael Harner will be offering a tutorial program in shamanic practice. Persons interested should write for information to Michael Harner, Center for Shamanic Studies, Box 673, Belden Station, Norwalk, Connecticut 06852.

February 10–March 8
Gestalt as an Art Form

Paul Rebillot

Paul writes: "Most psychological suffering is caused by blocked energy, energy that goes round and round within the system because it cannot find access to expression. Once such a block is destructured and the circle has been broken, the person can experience a flood of vitality and excitement—but what does he do with it? I have found that if the energy is not given some new mode of expression, it will tend to slide back into its former habitual pattern. An important aspect of my work is to offer people alternative ways of expressing their vitality once it is released—creative forms that allow the psyche to discover and liberate its own dormant potentials.

"The focus of this month-long, therefore, will be on teaching the basic principles of gestalt as an art form—the materials of that form being our own human process of individuation. Participants are invited to think of themselves as artists engaged in the great work of creating their own life process. With the basic tools and concepts of gestalt, we will combine elements of myth, ritual, and dreams; music, drama, and dance; the plastic arts, painting, and drawing—so that people will leave at the end of the month with a rich palette to play with in the process of unfolding their own life-stories.

"The workshop will be both a practicum in gestalt and related art forms for those engaged in the helping professions, and an experiential group for those seeking personal expansion. Previous experience with gestalt process is necessary, but it is not necessary to have previous experience as a gestalt facilitator.

"Looking at gestalt as an art form takes away the necessity for immediate results and absolute resolution of problems. In working with myth and ritual, we can go beyond the historical biographical material of our personal life, beyond even the personalized symbolical and archetypal information that comes through dreams, into the dreams and goals of the human race. We seek ourselves in the Self of humanity. Whatever comes out of us in working with an art form—whether it be clay or paints, drama or dance—becomes material for an open seat session, to be explored in order to expand our consciousness of ourselves and our capacity for living and being.

"In the first week, we will concentrate on the basic concepts and tools of gestalt, individual open seat work, and gestalt principles for daily living. In the second week, we will make use of gestalt tools and other art forms to explore our own dream material. In the third and fourth weeks, we will explore mythological and fairy tale structures and begin to create personal rituals in which we seek to relate our biographies to the great dreams of humanity. Please bring notebooks, paper, and colors, and if you like, paints. It is also good to listen to the tapes of The Hero's Journey that I have made; these give a good idea of the combination of gestalt, myth, ritual, and drama that I work with."

Recommended reading: by Joseph Campbell: Hero With a Thousand Faces (Bollingen), Myths to Live By (Bantam); by Bruno Bettelheim: The Uses of Enchantment (Random House). $1800

February 17–March 15
Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Transpersonal Crises

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This four week interdisciplinary program is for professionals and students in the areas of psychiatry, psychology, anthropology, and religion. The workshop has been specifically designed for intensive and focused exploration of the new concept of "spiritual emergency," an important sub-group of unusual states of consciousness that contemporary psychiatry labels as psychosis. It is part of a systematic effort to create an international network of individuals qualified to facilitate the process of personal transformation and to assist others during transpersonal crises. The program will focus on the following areas:

Historical and Anthropological Perspectives on Psychosis: We will review the evidence suggesting that many ancient and non-Western cultures have developed deep knowledge of transpersonal crises and maps of consciousness that can be used as guidelines in the process of personal transformation. Shamanism, spiritual practices of the great Oriental religions and philosophies, aboriginal rites of passage, and the ancient death-rebirth mysteries provide not only maps, but also tools to initiate and facilitate such a process.

The Concept of Transpersonal Crisis and Western Science: This aspect of the program will focus on observations that support the new approach, such as the healing, evolutionary, and problem-solving potential of certain psychotic states; results of clinical studies using placebo; pioneering work in psychotherapy of psychoses and family studies of schizophrenia; modern kundalini research; and psychedelic studies. We will explore new developments in various disciplines—consciousness research, quantum-relativistic physics, information theory, biology, and neurophysiology—that provide a solid scientific basis for an alternative understanding of psychosis.

Transpersonal Crisis Intervention: We will explore various strategies that are useful in the management of spiritual emergencies and in facilitating personality transformation.

Self-Exploration and Group Process: The workshops of this series use an experimental educational format that combines lectures with experiential approaches and group process. For this purpose, we will use controlled breathing, music, mandala drawing, gestalt practice, and various forms of body work. The coordinators and the Esalen staff will function as facilitators for participants all through the workshop.

Reservations should be addressed to Christina Grof, c/o Esalen. $1800

March 3–22
Sustaining Integration: Body, Self, and Soul

Jack Rosenberg

This workshop will start wherever you are in your inner journey. The work is an in-depth integration of body and gestalt practices and the transformative process of consciousness.

The course will cover:

Psychology of the Self: Working with early unfinished situations that interrupt our sense of well-being and interfere with our relationships in the present. Sexual implications of this work will be dealt with in body work and in lecture.

Body Work (Integrative Body Approach): Theoretical and practical application, combining Integrative Body Practice, yoga, and aerobics and massage, assisted by Andrea Juhan.

Transformative Process of Consciousness: As our inner journey progresses, our figure/ground is shifted from "doing" and "having" to "being" and to our relationship with the eternal. We will explore ways to integrate and sustain these new awarenesses in our everyday life. $1570

March 3–24
Continuum Dance Meditation Intensive: Waves and Whispers

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper

Within our skin is a world of movement, not just the familiar movement of liquids and organs, but a dance of intelligent life. This is an invitation to dance.

This inner movement is different from spatial movements such as walking. We call it "intrinsic movement." It is a great facilitator of our body's healing powers, a source for the development of an organic awareness that is fundamental to all intelligence, and a way to understand movement as what we are, rather than an activity we do.

The workshop will be focused on breath, sound, and what we call the "movement of movements."

Each breath is like a motif or theme of a musical composition. The implications of this orchestration involve a re-ordering of our nervous system, refinement of our sense perception, and the ability to pay attention at the deeply organic levels of movement where molecules spin and cells commune.

Sound also plays an enormous part in these orchestrations, making the breath audible. Through audible breath we create new possibilities in our ability to affect ourselves, both as healers and as a way to tune ourselves to the evolutionary thrust on Earth.

The movement of movements is the overall flow to the many currents of eddying patterns of motion. Some of the movements can be experienced as wavelike undulates, some are pulsing micro-movements, some have the vibratory hum of tissue, and some the sparkling charge of an electrical current. When all these different movements flow together without interference, we call this "fluidity."

The workshop will be open to both advanced and beginning participants. $1660

March 10–April 5
Month Long Esalen Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This month long program offers, at a professional level, intensive instruction in massage practice, movement, and self-care. The emphasis will be on developing basic massage skills through daily lecture-demonstrations including "hands-on" practice sessions using one another as models, illustrated anatomy classes, and instruction in the basic principles of alignment. Meditation and gestalt awareness sessions will be scheduled regularly throughout the program, allowing participants the opportunity to experience the psyche / soma relationship on a deeper, more integrative level. Body work will be studied as a function of optimal well-being and stress reduction, and as a valued aid to transpersonal growth. Workshop sessions will meet Sunday through Friday and on alternate weekends. At the satisfactory completion of the program, and after an additional 30 recorded massage sessions, a California state-approved certificate of completion will be issued. $1800

March 17–April 14
Gestalt Practice: An Intensive Practicum

Coordinated by Christine & Richard Price

Gestalt practice is an experiential form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, non-judgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls. In this practice the quality of one's awareness is made primary, especially as focused on breath and physical sensation. See page 14 for a more detailed description.

This program is designed for people with established client-oriented practices, such as counselors, body workers, nurses, teachers, etc., who would like to integrate gestalt practice skills in their professional life as well as have concentrated time to attend to their personal growth. The curriculum will include sessions in which participants work individually with the leaders in a group setting ("open seat" work) as well as practicum sessions when group members work with each other in supervised situations. Many sessions will be videotaped for review and discussion. Although gestalt practice is the primary focus, related approaches will be presented, especially those which enhance ability to focus awareness on breath and the body.

This is a scholarship program and all participants are required to work sixteen hours per week in the Esalen community. This work commitment is part of the program and participation is contingent on its fulfillment. Some additional scholarship assistance is available. To apply for the workshop, send a brief letter describing your present work and how you imagine this experience would relate to your professional and personal growth. Address applications to Christine Price, c / o Esalen. $1350

March 17–April 5
Still Points, Turning Points: A New Curriculum for Change

David Schiffman, Elisa Lodge Schiffman & Esalen Staff

"Anything which is forced or misunderstood can never be beautiful."—Xenophon

People, like plants, need special care and attention to thrive and blossom. To naturally grow beyond what we've been requires strength, sensitivity, and a deeply compassionate awareness. What are the most important elements that support this transformation and renewal? And how might this process be effectively shared with others? Out of the answers to these questions has emerged the dream of combining the best of Esalen's human potential practice work with the spirit of adventure found in Outward Bound's wilderness programs, along with the gracious informality of living and working together in one of the most beautiful and peaceful settings in the world.

The aim of this unique curriculum will be to explore and develop a new model for learning, one that not only deepens the experience of traditional self exploration, but also breaks new ground in erasing the line between intensive group and individual work and the ordinary world of everyday life.

Among the areas we will touch on during these two weeks are:

The Body and its Functions: as a temple for the spirit; as a reflection, and as a turning point from past habits, fears, and attitudes; as a source of grace, ease, and fluidity in movement and in contact; as a kinetic homebase for exuberance, playfulness, and balance; and as a healing source of touch.

The Emotional Realm: exploring and opening the limits of temperament; redirecting negative feelings for inspiration and power; cultivating passion and strength as the core of integrity; resolving inner and outer turmoil simply and peacefully.

The Mind: developing the powers of the imagination for self-affirmation and creativity; deepening the ability to see, hear, and understand so that one can range easily from the practical to the transcendental; strengthening the sense of fair-witness and developing the skillful use of the will; using the perspective of humor to heal separation.

Coming together in the spirit of being simply and lovingly at home in ourselves, the group will create a community whose foundation is based on trust, good will, and authenticity.

During the month each participant will have the opportunity to clarify and develop his / her own style and artfulness as an individual guide and group facilitator doing in-depth study of gestalt practice, body work, psychosynthesis methods, and the meditative arts. The program will be structured to include: intensive individual work; creative music and movement; supervised observations; practicum work in group leading and individual counseling skills; video feedback; illustrated lectures and didactic theoretical sessions.

The emphasis throughout will be on creating a personally integrated perspective that will bring buoyancy and lightness into life and work. This workshop is designed for people from all walks of life. $1120

March 29–April 28
Human Potential and Organizations

Will Schutz is offering a special focused program, an integration of human potential theory and practice with western science, applied to organizations. Workshops are open to individuals, couples, and members of organizations. Interested community groups and others please contact WSA at Box 259, Muir Beach, CA 94965 or (415) 383-8275.

Special Programs

April 12-26
Spiritual/Esoteric Practice: The Key to Intuitive and Psychic Development

Anne & Jim Armstrong

Anne & Jim write: "We feel that a well-developed, directable intuition is a natural, healthy outgrowth of self-realization. But unless we are willing to create the proper environment through self-discipline, meditation, and being mindful of everything we think, feel, say, or do, this powerful force will remain dormant within us. This two-week workshop will concentrate on building a firm esoteric/spiritual foundation for serious students interested in using intuition as a factor in their lives and professions. This will be accomplished by drawing from many ancient and modern spiritual disciplines, including meditation and yoga, while emphasizing the spiritual and ethical use of the intuitive/psychic process. Participants will be given intensive instruction and practice in the practical aspects of intuitive work—in counseling and other professions as well as in everyday living. They will also receive instruction on learning to recognize, trust, and apply their own psi abilities through lecture, basic exercises, and practice on selected cases. During the exercises Anne will use her "tracking" abilities to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity.

"Although esoteric and metaphysical explanations and background will be presented where appropriate, this is not a primary goal of the program. Particular attention will be placed on helping the participants differentiate between perception and projection, and between psychic and intuitive input." $1120

April 14-May 10
Psychosynthesis Training

Harry Sloan

Learn your techniques well and be prepared to let go of them when you touch the human soul.
—Carl Jung

Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for the familiar—a technique, map, or model. This leads to the mechanical experience of "going through the motions," and using rote interventions. In those moments, if we can stretch for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, dissonance often opens to insight, with a decidedly different effect upon both client and guide—that ineffable sense of capturing the moment. The interventions that follow are dynamic, uniquely suited to the particular needs of the client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for the essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice tends to develop our inherent wisdom and intuition, a context which transcends methodologies.

I must create a system of my own or be enslaved by another man's.—William Blake

For people to strengthen their own systems, training programs need to self-correct for the tendency to emphasize techniques, maps and models at the expense of developing the participants' intuition. At its extreme, the blind adoption of form creates a cloning of a leader's approach and/or style. The challenge of this training will be two-fold: to hold the door open to our intuition (our own system); and to utilize creatively the methods of psychosynthesis and the skills of disciplines with which we have identified. The program can be useful for anyone in the helping professions who wants a more creative relationship with their discipline. The format will combine experiential seminars, meditative practice, process work, body work, readings, supervision, and practicum. Psychosynthesis leaders will be invited in at times to offer their specialty. Participants will have the opportunity to recognize and work with the process of psychosynthesis in themselves and in others, and to develop the practical experience needed to begin applying the methods of psychosynthesis in their work. Some of the themes covered in this program are: guiding as a meditation, developing and aligning the major aspects of our personality, body, feelings, and mind; principles and practice of guided imagery; multiplicity, conflict, and integration in the personality; balance and synthesis of opposites; utilizing the superconscious or transpersonal dimension to recognize, release, and transform blocked energies; the dynamic energy of love as a vehicle for change and healing; grounding (the process of translating psychological awareness and insight into deliberate behavioral change); levels of perception—intellect, intuition; spontaneity and the fear of making mistakes; the principle of synthesis as a quality of the will and as the unifying principle of individual growth and human evolution.

Psychosynthesis is a name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration, recognizing that each human being is spiritual in essence, and that the fundamental opportunity available to us is to realize and express this essence, or Higher Self, as fully as possible in the world of everyday personal and social existence.

A packet of reading materials is available on receipt of a $20 check payable to Harry Sloan, P.O. Box 18185, San Francisco, CA 94118. $1800

April 19-26
Fitness of the Body, Inside and Out

Jessica Moore Britt & Andrea Juhan

This program is an in-depth exploration of the interplay of our physical structure, tone, capacity, and appearance, and our internal feelings and thoughts, and how these create our concept of self and well-being. Each week there will be integrated sessions in: Fitness and Relaxation: including stretching, aerobics, dancing, hiking, Feldenkrais work, massage, and meditation. Personal Awareness Work: using gestalt practice, Reichian breath work, movement, and video in order to explore conditioned images and feelings and to provide an opportunity to explore alternatives.

In lectures and demonstrations guest faculty will discuss anatomy and physiology, and the psychology of the relationship between the physical body and states of being. Diet and nutritional information and guidelines will be provided.

This week is for participants to create new patterns in their individual life process, and to reinforce this new behavior in a supportive environment. The course is designed to be a step towards a lifelong program of well-being. A fact sheet of detailed scheduling is available upon request. $680

April 19-26
Hiking and Gestalt Practice

Steven Harper, Richard Price & Aurora Price

This workshop brings together gestalt practice and hiking. Both are practices in awareness. Both offer a chance to explore "inner" and "outer" wilderness.

There will be a balance of gestalt practice at Esalen and short to medium range day-hikes into the Big Sur backcountry. For more specific descriptions of these two approaches, refer to "Gestalt Practice" and "Big Sur Wilderness Experience" on page 15. $680

April 19-28
The Body Has Its Reasons

Peter Levine

When we are hurt, we build our own fortress around the wound and thus insulate ourselves against further pain. An armor develops in the muscles of our bodies and breathing becomes controlled to reduce our level of feeling. The strength of these walls depends upon the degree of the hurt. Some fortresses have walls so thin that with a little help we can easily move through them and we are out again. Others are much deeper and have a life and tenacity of their own. They are reflected in rigid roles and are solidified in our bodies as chronic tensions and patterns of bodily attitudes. Our sense of the body is lessened and our connectedness is diminished.

In this workshop body approaches, dream work, and gestalt will be incorporated to teach us how to trust more fully in our bodies and enhance our excitement and passion. Through a vital sense of the body and feelings we can understand our dreams, impulses, and actions more deeply. Avenues will be explored in redeveloping a sense of pleasure, ease, and self-esteem. Without storming our citadels by force, we can soften body armor by allowing the body to express itself, in its own language, within its own rhythm. This return toward grace, which is our birthright, is the wisdom of the body. $770

April 26–May 3
The Enneagram: A Tool for Identifying and Developing Intuition

Helen Palmer

Helen writes: "For the past several years I have been teaching people how to develop their intuition as a reliable source of information. It has become increasingly clear that adults are especially sensitive to issues and situations that, as children, they were attracted to or needed to defend themselves against. For example, a loved child may develop the ability to merge with the wishes of others and so become highly intuitive about the means of gaining their approval. A child who has had a frightening early life can become precognitively sensitized to anger or negativity in other people. These psychic abilities, centered around the survival issues of childhood, then become an integral part of the adult personality, but the grown up child is usually not conscious of operating from anything other than intellectual information. The key idea is that each person's intuitive style seems to be closely associated with a particular set of issues that derive from early experience.

"The Enneagram is a Sufi system that acts as a bridge between intellect and intuition. It has been taught for generations in the oral tradition. In its present form, it uses the language of psychology to identify nine personality types and their interrelationships. Each personality type has a unique way of looking at the world, and this viewpoint is reflected in a set of preoccupying thoughts and a related intuitive style. Thus, once the focal points of internal attention are identified, a person has a place to begin to look for the related intuitive ability.

"The function of a teacher in the oral tradition is to work first with a group of people who have the same personality type, and to develop a line of questioning which demonstrates the operation of their particular thought strategy. By observing such exemplars, workshop participants will be able to discover their own personality type in this system, and thus their own preoccupying issues and the ways in which they internally sense the presence of these issues. The task is then to be able to distinguish between thoughts about an external situation and intuitive information about that same situation. The second half of the workshop will be devoted to the internal focusing practices that enable one to develop the ability to shift attention between thought and intuitive perception, and to discriminate between psychic and intellectual information.

"The Enneagram workshop is useful to people who wish to develop their intuitive abilities and are working to separate their psychic impressions from their projections. It is particularly useful to anyone who works in a situation where reliable access to intuitive information is important." $680

May 12–June 7
Frontiers of Modern Consciousness Research: Dawning of A New Paradigm

Coordinated by Christina & Stanislav Grof

This four-week interdisciplinary educational program is designed for professionals and students in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, medicine, anthropology, history, art, religion, and philosophy. We will focus on the following areas:

1. Ancient and Non-Western Maps of Consciousness. We will explore theoretically and experientially shamanism, aboriginal ritual practices, various mystical traditions, and the great Oriental spiritual philosophies.

2. Modern Clinical and Laboratory Consciousness Research. Prominent researchers in various fields who have contributed to the new paradigm will review with participants revolutionary observations from modern science that represent a critical challenge to Newtonian-Cartesian thinking. This will include psychedelic counseling, modern experiential counseling, laboratory methods of altering consciousness, field anthropology, parapsychology, study of near-death experiences, UFO phenomena and multiple personalities, brain research, and quantum-relativistic physics.

3. Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Evolutionary Crises. This aspect of the program will focus on observations, suggesting that certain non-ordinary states of consciousness—if supported rather than suppressed—are conducive to emotional and psychosomatic healing, personality transformation, and consciousness evolution. We will experiment with methods which are useful in facilitating a positive resolution of such crises.

4. Self-Exploration and Group Process. The format of these workshops combines didactic input with deep personal experience. We will use controlled breathing, evocative music, body work, mandala drawing, gestalt practice, meditation, and other approaches. The coordinators and the Esalen staff will function as facilitators for the participants throughout the workshop.

Reservations should be addressed to: Christina Grof, c/o Esalen Institute. $1800

Healthspring Traveling Workshops

The Esalen massage teachers and their associates have created Healthspring, an independent organization devoted to extending their work into an outreach program. The workshops offer practices to help increase physical and spiritual health and awareness within the body, and can be designed to suit the needs of individual groups. The curriculum combines such approaches as massage, meditation, dance, neo-Reichian work, creative movement, gestalt, yoga, breath enhancement, anatomy, and other health-strengthening disciplines.

Healthspring will conduct workshops at locations outside of Esalen in your hometown or city. For more information on scheduling a Healthspring group in your community, write to: Healthspring Traveling Workshops, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Integrative Body Practice Training Program

Integrative Body Practice (IBP) uses breathing as a vehicle for the integration of body, mind, emotions, and spirit and is based on the work of Jack Lee Rosenberg, author of Total Orgasm, and Body, Self and Soul: Sustaining Integration with Marjorie L. Rand (October, 1984).

There are three ways of being in the IBP professional training program at Esalen: professional certification in IBP if you are already a licensed mental health practitioner (CEU available); master's degree in clinical/counseling psychology (BA required, submit transcripts); Ph.D. in clinical/counseling psychology (48 unit master's degree in psychology required, submit transcripts). Degrees are awarded by California approved degree-granting institutions (not by Esalen), allowing the student to sit for California licensing exams (Marriage, Family and Child Counseling license at MA level, and Clinical Psychologist at Ph.D. level).

For details write: the Rosenberg Institute, 1107 W. Washington Bl., Venice, Ca. 90291, c/o Dr. Marjorie Rand.

Wilderness Programs

Esalen Wilderness Programs Refund Policy

Most expenses in wilderness programs are incurred preparing for your arrival. The refund policy reflects the fact that few of these expenses can be recovered.

To reserve a space in a wilderness workshop, we require the following deposit:

Up to 3 days	$50
4-7 days	$100
Over 8 days	$200

The balance of the fee is due 14 days before the program begins. If you cancel prior to 30 days before the program begins, your non-refundable deposit may be applied to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year. If you cancel from 30 days up to the starting date of the trip, your deposit is forfeited.

January 11-13
Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

Ski-touring is a state of mind, a balance of boldness and caution, an ease and grace of motion, and an exploration of the ever-changing winter wilderness. The Sierra Nevada becomes a silent, magical place when the snow begins to fall in November. We have the range to ourselves to glide through meadow and forest savoring the sparkle and solitude only ski-touring affords. Touring is an easy skill to learn. After a few hours of instruction you can be ready for your first tour.

Whether you're a beginner or intermediate cross-country skier, this weekend can help perfect your technique quickly and easily. Expert instruction and the use of videotapes help you master the effortless kick-and-glide of the accomplished skier. On Saturday, we will ski on the set tracks, being taught how to move easily. Sunday, we will pack our lunch and ski-tour through gently rolling terrain. Both nights we will stay in cozy cabins at Sorenson's Resort, where we can sample delicious meals and top off the day's activities in the nearby hot springs. Skis, boots, poles, lodging, and all meals are included. The trip begins Friday afternoon and ends Sunday afternoon at the airport in South Lake Tahoe. $225

January 25-27
Sierra Ski-Touring: The Art of the Telemark Turn

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

This weekend is the sequel to Annie and Dick's Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking weekend January 11-13. The course takes us from flat terrain to the gentle groomed slopes and lifts of Kirkwood's downhill ski area. Skiing on metal-edged skis with stout cross-country boots, we will review the wedge turn and the telemark turn. Video equipment and expert instruction will help us with the basics in just a few hours. Sunday we will ski off the trail through the quiet rolling forests and meadows of Carson Pass, where breath-taking views of the surrounding mountains command one's attention. Skiers will be taught how to evaluate snow conditions, to use skins and wax, and to practice turning in different snow conditions. Both nights we will dine and lodge at Sorenson's Resort, topping off the day's activities in the nearby hot springs. Skis, boots, poles, lodging, and Saturday lift tickets are included. The trip begins Friday afternoon and ends Sunday afternoon at the airport in South Lake Tahoe.

$245

Future Programs

September 13-October 11
Earth Wisdom, Body Wisdom

Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt & Steven Harper

We can learn about ourselves by learning with/about the earth we live on and we can learn about the earth through learning about ourselves. This is a study-work program at Esalen and in the wilderness. We will weave together wisdom of the elements of earth and body, synthesizing wilderness exploration, solo/vision quest time, and personal awareness work involving gestalt, Reichian breath work, movement and sound practice. The month will culminate in the preparation for our last eight days together on a wilderness trip.

While at Esalen participants will work sixteen hours per week with our lands department in order to have practical experience with self and the earth. As this is a scholarship program the work is required for participation. $1350

May 3-11
Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Jessica Moore Britt & Steven Harper

Nature can provide us with opportunities to stretch our limits and explore our inner wilderness. By living in a natural environment we can expand our sense of self and depth of being.

The group will spend a day and a night at Esalen, leaving the next morning to hike through the Ventana wilderness. We will travel "light," with instruction in minimum impact camping, ecology, and the geography and cultural history of the area

With the wilderness as our mirror, we will explore our inner world of dreams, feelings, and sensations as they emerge, using gestalt awareness practice and group process. Taking inspiration from natural and native purification practices, we will create a time of cleansing and contemplation, culminating in a 24-hour period alone. The group will hike on to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center, deep in a rugged wilderness valley, with natural hot springs, for our last night together. There, meditation instruction will be available for those who wish it. Backpacking experience is not necessary, though participants should be prepared for the challenge of vigorous physical activity. More information will be sent upon registration.

$475

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state-approved provider for continuing education for health professionals. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category 1 approval. Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Consult future catalogs for continuing eduation credit courses.

Biographical Information

A

Joel Andrews, p. 18 — harpist and psychic channel, has completed 1900 individual attunements and gives concerts and workshops intended to call forth inner spirituality.

Anne Armstrong p. 19, 27, 35, 40 — has been doing transpersonal counseling for over 18 years and has trained professionals to use their own intuitive abilities.

Jim Armstrong, p. 19, 27, 35, 40 — a former engineer, is a life-long student and teacher of esoteric studies.

B

Jamie Baraz p. 18 — has taught vipassana meditation with Joseph Goldstein, Jack Kornfield, Stephen Levine, and others in the U.S. and Asia. He has led classes in the Bay Area since 1977.

Robert Bathurst, p. 22, 28, 36 — professor, writer, former diplomat and naval officer, has specialized in Soviet literature and Soviet strategy since he was an interpreter at Camp David during the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks.

Daniel Bianchetta p. 18, 35 — practices intuitive readings, shiatsu, and deep tissue work at Esalen. He is a teacher and student of Siddha yoga.

Ralph Blum, p. 34 — author of The Book of Runes, is a writer, publisher, and storyteller who has spent the last eight years working with Runes as a counseling tool.

Devers Branden, p. 35 — a Los Angeles-based counselor, is co-author of The Romantic Love Question and Answer Book.

Nathaniel Branden p. 35 — is a Los Angeles based psychologist/psychotherapist, author of Honoring the Self.

Jessica Moore Britt p. 14, 17, 22, 25, 27, 28, 36, 40, 42 — is a registered nurse who is presently a member of the Esalen community and a practitioner of gestalt, Reichian, and wilderness approaches to healing and well-being.

Charles Brooks, p. 27 — author of Sensory Awareness, the Rediscovery of Experiencing, has been a teacher of sensory awareness since 1963, often in conjunction with Charlotte Selver.

C

Peter Caddy p. 28 — is the founder of the Findhorn Foundation, and is presently engaged in visiting and assisting in the link-up of communities, groups, and movements for the process of planetary transformation.

Annie Callaway-Galland, p. 19, 20, 42 — professional wilderness guide and counselor, hatha yoga teacher, and writer, has been leading Esalen trips for many years.

Joseph Campbell p. 25, 26 — is a professor emeritus at Sarah Lawrence College. He is a mythologist, lecurer, and author of The Hero With a Thousand Faces, The Masks of God, and Myths to Live By.

Anne Caple p. 18, 35 — is a student of transpersonal psychology, a technical writer, editor, and fiber artist.

John Caple p. 18, 35 — is a career counselor, worklife advisor to business, and college professor with an earlier career in management.

Paul Carter, p. 32 — co-founder and director of Meta-Education and Training Arts since 1976, leads workshops in the U.S. and Europe in Ericksonian hypnosis, family therapy, creativity, and learning.

Michell Cassou p. 30 — is the founder of an original approach to painting designed to stimulate and unblock creativity. She is director of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Stanford Eugene Cates p. 26 — works and trains with Paul Rebillot, assisting and co-leading groups. He has trained in Trager Psychophysical Integration, and is a minister.

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, p. 24, 38 — a professional dancer and teacher of movement, has studied and performed ballet, modern jazz, Afro-Cuban, and primitive dance in New York and the West Indies.

Ann Christie p. 24 — is former director of the Primal Institute, co-author of the forthcoming book Revolution in Hypnosis, and is in private practice in west Los Angeles.

Jack Cirie, p. 28 — certified Leonard Energy Training Instructor and aikido practitioner, has led workshops in the eastern U.S. in body awareness and performance from centered and balanced stances.

Stewart Cubley, p. 30 — artist and scientist, is a co-founder of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

D

Laura DeNuccio, p. 23, 28, 33, 36 — a certified Radix® teacher on the Esalen faculty, has twelve years experience combining Reichian bodywork, gestalt, Bates vision work, movement, and meditation in group and private instruction.

Patrick Douce, p. 31 — a resident at Esalen since 1972, teaches ongoing classes in Feldenkrais awareness through movement and is available for individual sessions in functional integration.

Steven Donovan p. 34 — is director of The Transformation Project and an Esalen trustee.

E

Jack Downing, p. 19 — M.D., is a psychiatrist with a comprehensive background in gestalt, Rolfing®, Arica, applied kinesiology, and neurolinguistic programming.

Victoria Elliot, p. 22 — an Esalen trustee, is president of Norman H. Gershman Consultants, executive recruiters and management consultants to the securities business.

F

Rosemary Feitis, p. 18 — a certified Rolfer® and editor of Ida Rolf Talks, has been rolfing for 15 years.

G

Joyce Frazee ..... is a gestaltist whose training includes art, group process, bioenergetics, body awareness, and psychosynthesis.
p. 28

Dick Galland, ... professional wilderness guide and fly fishing instructor, was founding director of Southwest Outward Bound and currently heads Clearwater Trout Tours. He has led Esalen trips for several years.
p. 19, 20, 42

Robbie Gass ..... is a clinical psychologist, co-founder (with Judith Gass) of the Spring Hill Center in Ashby, Massachusetts, and musical director of the recording group On Wings of Song.
p. 17

Judith Gass ..... is a teacher, consultant, counselor, dancer and story-teller.
p. 17

Merri Goldenson (Devarani) ..... is a chiropractor, certified Radix® teacher, Bates vision instructor, and is in private practice in west Los Angeles and San Francisco.
p. 22, 29

John Graham ..... is a former U.S. diplomat. His "Politics That Heal" seminars and lectures have been offered in North America and Europe to help people find and use the power of their own ideals.
p. 19

Christina Grof ..... studied with Swami Muktananda and has a special interest in the relationship between mysticism and psychosis. She is founder of the Spiritual Emergency Network and co-author of Beyond Death.
p. 19, 23, 25, 29, 35, 38, 41

Stanislav Grof ..... is a psychiatrist with almost three decades experience in consciousness research with and without psychedelics. He is author of Realms of the Human Unconscious and LSD Psychotherapy.
p. 19, 23, 25, 29, 35, 38, 41

H

Betsy Hand, ... former resident staff member of the Gestalt Institute of Canada, has 20 years experience with families, couples, and groups. She is in private practice in Kentfield, California.
p. 22, 28

Thomas Hanna ..... is director of the Navato Institute for Somatic Research and Training, editor of Somatics magazine, and author of The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt.
p. 20

Keith Harary, ... clinical counselor, experimental psychologist, and co-author of The Mind Race, has conducted psi research for over fifteen years and has authored more than 25 scientific and clinical articles.
p. 22

Michael Harner, ... an anthropologist who has studied shamanism among South and North American Indians for more than two decades, is the author of The Way of the Shaman and Hallucinogens and Shamanism.
p. 20, 28

Steven Harper ..... teaches for Colorado Outward Bound and the National Outdoor Leadership School, and is currently the coordinator of the Esalen Wilderness Programs.
p. 15, 27, 28, 30, 40, 42

Susan Harper ..... teaches Continuum Dance Meditation workshops in Los Angeles and San Francisco, leads "Dance the River" trips on wild rivers, and has presented at the Joy-Spangler Asilomar Conference.
p. 17, 24, 30, 38

John Heider, ... a psychologist in private practice in Coconut Grove, Florida, is a group leader and teacher of group leaders. He was part of the Esalen Residential program from 1967-71.
p. 28

Eric Helt, ... program director of the Breakthrough Foundation, was formerly a faculty member of the University of Michigan and Boston University and director of health planning for the state of Vermont.
p. 17

Nick Herbert, ... an independent researcher in the foundations of physics, is completing a popular book on quantum foundations entitled Quantum Reality: Beyond the New Physics (Doubleday).
p. 21

James Hickman ..... is director of Esalen's Soviet-American Exchange Program.
p. 34

Maria Holloman ..... has studied gestalt and deep tissue and practiced spiritual massage at Esalen for the last five years. She was formerly a lawyer in Brazil.
p. 30

Maya Holloman ..... has been a student at Gazebo since she was six months old.
p. 32

Perry Holloman, ... a former teacher at Gazebo School, currently is a member of both Experiencing Esalen and Gazebo workshop staffs.
p. 28, 30, 32

Peggy Morrison Horan ..... is an Esalen masseuse and teacher, and coordinator of the Esalen Childbirth Education Program.
p. 18, 28

Paul Horn ..... is a flutist, jazz musician, creator of the Inside albums, and teacher of meditation.
p. 18, 19

Chungliang Al Huang ..... is a Tai Ji dancer, artist-calligrapher, and philosophical entertainer. He is founder / president of Living Tao Foundation, Urbana, Illinois.
p. 18, 19, 25

J

Andrea Juhan ..... is an Esalen deep tissue and massage practitioner, leads movement exploration classes for various group leaders, and conducts Esalen community classes in stretch exercises, aerobics, and dance.
p. 19, 22, 27, 29, 36, 40

Deane Juhan, ... a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years, is a certified practitioner of Trager psychophysical integration.
p. 18, 19, 29

K

Sam Keen ..... is an explorer of inner space, a philosopher, and author of Apology for Wonder, To a Dancing God, and Beginnings Without End.
p. 26

George King, ... a massage practitioner for 22 years, has worked throughout the U.S., Europe, and South America.
p. 28

Joel Kirsch ..... is a founding member of the Energy Training Institute, Executive Director of the Esalen Sports Center, and sports psychologist for the San Francisco Giants.
p. 33

Susan Kirsch ..... is a founding member of the Energy Training Institute, president of Kirsch Associates, a management training firm, and an instructor at Golden Gate University, San Francisco.
p. 33

L

Laya Kline ..... is a practitioner, counselor, teacher, and certified nutritional consultant who focuses on cancer treatment. As a registered nurse, she is involved in a nurse support group and patient advocacy.
p. 23

Stephen LaBerge ..... is a scientist dedicated to the transformation of human consciousness. He teaches and does research on conscious or "lucid" dreaming at Stanford University.
p. 35

Benj Langdon, ... former coordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body, is currently exploring transformation through body practices.
p. 34

Janet Lederman ..... is an artist, teacher, and creator of the Gazebo.
p. 33

Lenore Lefer, ... currently maintaining a private practice in San Francisco, is on the training staff of the Psychosynthesis Institutes of London and San Francisco.
p. 24

Dub Leigh ..... has been trained by Ida Rolf and Moshe Feldenkrais and has studied with Lauren Berry and Milton Trager.
p. 19, 29, 37

Annie Styron Leonard ..... is an associate director of Wellness Associates of Mill Valley, California, where she teaches workshops and classes in energy awareness and its application to wellness.
p. 28

George Leonard, ... author of Education and Ecstasy, The Transformation, The Ultimate Athlete, and The Silent Pulse, holds a black belt in aikido, from which he derives his present work.
p. 28, 29

Diane Miller Lesty ..... has been a resident Esalen gestalt and Halprin movement facilitator and massage staff member for the past ten years.
p. 27

Peter Levine ..... has practiced and taught Reichian body work for many years. He holds doctorates in medical biophysics and psychology. His interests include the effects of stress on children and infants.
p. 21, 27, 31, 40

Bill Liles, ... a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years, integrates polarity with traditional Esalen massage.
p. 18, 35

DeeDee Lozier ..... is a Feldenkrais practitioner who studied with Moshe Feldenkrais in the United States and Israel.
p. 29

Nancy Kaye Lunney ..... is gestaltist and musician on Esalen's faculty, has specialized in work with professionals in the creative arts, does individual as well as group work, and is manager of programming at Esalen.
p. 28

M

John Marks ..... is director of Search for Common Ground in Washington, fellow of Harvard's Institute of Politics, and associate of Harvard's Department of Psychology and Social Relations.
p. 17

Deborah Anne Medow, ... Esalen body work practitioner and group leader since 1969, teaches ashtanga yoga, massage, creative movement, and related healing disciplines, and studies Native American tradition.
p. 17, 22, 24, 30, 33, 36

Ailish Mellard, ... holistic health practitioner and body worker for 12 years, is currently organizational consultant for Will Schutz Associates, which teaches human potential concepts to various organizations.
p. 24, 33

Harvey Milkman, ... professor of psychology at Metropolitan State College, Denver, Colorado, and is co-editor of Addictions: Multidisciplinary Perspectives and Treatments.
p. 35

Crystal Miller ..... is a dancer and former consultant to the National Endowment for the Arts.
p. 18

Jaime Morton ..... is a teacher of massage, a counselor, and an earth artist.
p. 34

Laurie Muller (Lioness), ... a member of the Esalen massage crew and teaching staff since 1974, integrates traditional and innovative approaches to healing the body, mind, and spirit.
p. 24

Arthur Munyer ..... is a long time resident of Esalen and a member of the massage crew. He was one of the first faculty members at the Gazebo School at Esalen.
p. 27, 30

Jezariah Canyon Munyer, ... born February 11, 1983, is his parents' favorite teacher.
p. 27

Laurie Schutz Munyer ..... has been a long time resident of Esalen, a staff member in several capacities, and has assisted at Gazebo. She is now a member of the Esalen massage crew.
p. 27

Michael Murphy ..... is co-founder of Esalen Institute and founder of The Transformation Project. He is author of Golf in the Kingdom, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports, and An End to Ordinary History.
p. 34

N

The NINE ..... "We are pure thought human fantasy seeking a road to the birth canal of reality where we will be seen as 'The NINE'."
p. 26

O

Jenny O'Connor ..... is a psychic from England, and is a channel for "The NINE."
p. 26

Chris O'Reilly ..... has taught non-verbal communication for over ten years. She is currently writing a book on relationship to God and is a student of Indian Classical dance.
p. 19

Tim O'Reilly ..... is a writer, teacher, and businessman. His teaching is based on maps of consciousness originally developed by George Simon.
p. 19

Brita Ostrom, ... a longtime Esalen massage practitioner, incorporates Trager training with the personal energetic connection of the Esalen massage.
p. 19, 27, 35

P

Helen Palmer, ... a clairvoyant counselor, is director of the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition. Her approach uses personality issues as access points to psychic perception and the inner life.
p. 17, 27, 41

Leslie Pam, ... former director of the Primal Institute, marriage and family counselor, is co-author of the forthcoming book Revolution in Hypnosis, and is in private practice in Los Angeles.
p. 24

Marianne Paschke-Carter ..... combines movement, hypnosis, conscious breathing, and Trager psychophysical integration in her work with individuals, families, and groups.
p. 32

George Pennington, ... a staff member of the Coloman Growth Center in Bavaria, West Germany, works to combine modern psychological approaches with Buddhist and shamanic consciousness techniques.
p. 29

Ayala Pines, ... research associate in the psychology department, U.C. Berkeley, is the author of Exploring Social Psychology and Burnout: From Tedium to Personal Growth.
p. 30

Hector Prestera, ... a physician, acupuncturist, Rolfer®, certified neurolinguistic trainer, and practitioner of Ericksonian hypnotherapy, is in private practice in Monterey.
p. 34

Aurora Price ..... is an experienced hiking companion with four legs and white fur.
p. 27, 40

Christine Stewart Price ..... combines gestalt awareness practice with creative visualization. She is a born-again pagan. She is currently studying with Linda Tellington Jones in awareness and body work with animals.
p. 14, 24, 39

Richard Price ..... is the co-founder of Esalen and has been practicing gestalt as a facilitator for over twelve years.
p. 24, 27, 39, 40

Jill Purce ..... is author of The Mystic Spiral. She studied the mystical dimension of sound with Karl Heinz Stockhausen, and the magical use of the voice and overtone chanting with tibetan lamas.
p. 31

R

Paul Rebillot ..... was founding director of the Gestalt Fool Theater Family in San Francisco and has been a resident group leader at Esalen.
p. 20, 22, 26, 27, 29, 38

Kenneth Ring, ... active in the field of near-death studies since 1977, is a psychology professor and president of the International Association for Near-Death Studies at the University of Connecticut.
p. 31, 33

Sogyal Rinpoche, ... Tibetan incarnate Lama, scholar and meditation master, was raised by Buddhist master Jamyang Khyentse Chokyi Lodro and studied at Cambridge University.
p. 29

Jack Rosenberg, ... author of Total Orgasm, has trained in gestalt and Reichian work. He has worked with cancer research and transformation of consciousness, and is currently in private practice in Venice, Ca.
p. 24, 34, 38, 41

S

Michael Salveson, ... instructor and former president of the Rolf Institute, and co-founder of the Aspen Research Institute, practices Rolfing® and has researched biological effects of electromagnetic fields.
p. 31

David Schiffman, ... a longtime leader at Esalen, is involved in developing full expression of mental, physical, and spiritual states of being.
p. 20, 21, 24, 27, 28, 30, 34, 35, 39

Elisa Lodge Schiffman ..... trained in structural integration with Ida Rolf and is an advanced teacher of Rolf®-movement integration.
p. 20, 21, 24, 28, 30, 34, 35, 39

Will Schutz, ... founder of the Antioch holistic studies department, is the creator of The Human Element, a set of training materials for organizations, and author of Joy and Profound Simplicity.
p. 24, 33, 39

Charlotte Selver ..... teaches sensory awareness, perception, and non-verbal and verbal communication. A center has been built for her long-term study groups at Green Gulch Farm through the Zen Center, San Francisco.
p. 27

Phyllis Shankman, ... a licensed psychotherapist in private practice in West Lost Angeles, specializes in group process, taught Women's Studies at UCLA Extension for many years and is interested in change.
p. 30

Rupert Sheldrake ..... is a biologist and author of A New Science of Life.
p. 33

Julian Silverman ..... is director of counseling and psychological services at U.C. Santa Cruz.
p. 22

Saul-Paul Sirag ..... has published two physics papers in Nature and has authored a theory on the size of the universe. In 1977 he founded the Consciousness Theory Group, which he directs.
p. 21

Harry Sloan, ... a 1969 Esalen resident fellow, former dentist, and playwright, worked with Dr. Roberto Assagioli, the founder of psychosynthesis, and is in private practice in San Francisco.
p. 22, 27, 40

Fritz Smith ..... is a physician, cranial osteopath, certified acupuncturist, and founder of zero balancing. He is in a private holistic health practice in Watsonville, California.
p. 24

Gerald Smith ..... is a psychologist in Belmont, California. He is the author of Hidden Meanings and Couple Therapy.
p. 22, 28

John Soper ..... came to gestalt from a highly successful international career in business. Resident at Esalen since 1978, he practices both interpersonal and intrapersonal gestalt.
p. 14

Elizabeth Stratton, ... a psychic healer and counselor in private practice in New York City, leads workshops in self-healing, psychic self-defense, and psychic development for health professionals.
p. 17

Stanley Sunderwirth, ... vice president for academic affairs at Metropolitan State College, Denver, Colorado, is co-author of "The Chemistry of Craving," Psychology Today, October, 1983.
p. 35

T

Lia Thompson ..... has been a Gazebo teacher for five years. She is currently a member of both the Experiencing Esalen: The Body workshop staff and Gazebo workshop staff.
p. 28, 32

Riley Thompson-Clark ..... has been a student at Gazebo since she was three months old.
p. 32

Michael Tierra ..... is an herbalist, musician and yogi. He is director of the Garden of Sanjivani center for the study of herbs and holistic health in Santa Cruz.
p. 26

W

Z

Vicki Topp ..... joined the Esalen massage staff in 1968, and is currently interested in integrating emotional release work and the transpersonal aspects of body work.
p. 19, 30, 36

Paul Winter ..... is an environmentalist, musician and recording artist. He is founder / artistic director of Paul Winter Consort, and of Living Music Foundation in Litchfield, Connecticut.
p. 25

Rickie Wolf, ... director of the Tokyo Gestalt Institute, is a research fellow at the University of Tokyo in psychosomatic medicine. She is a professional clown and storyteller.
p. 17

Jennifer Woolger ..... is a gestalt therapist specializing in past-life therapy, family and women's issues. She has a wide background in community mental health.
p. 34

Roger Woolger ..... trained as a Junian analyst at the Zurich Jung Institute and holds degrees in psychology and comparative religion from Oxford and Longon Universities.
p. 34

Janet Zuckerman ..... was an emotional release and group process teacher at Esalen for twelve years. She has a private practice in San Francisco.
p. 30

Catalog Subscription Information

The Esalen Catalog is published tri-annually. Subscription cost for one year, including postage and handling, is $8 for the United States, $10 for Canada and Mexico, $14 for Europe and South America, and $16 for all other countries. Please make all payments in U.S. currency. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920.

☐ To obtain future issues of the Esalen Catalog and occasional mailings for one year, please send a check or money order in U.S. currency only to: Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. A preaddressed envelope is included in this catalog for your convenience.
(Note: People who attend an Esalen workshop or conference will receive a free subscription for one year.)

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ Please send a complimentary copy of the Esalen Catalog to the person listed below:

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Please notify us if you change your address and check here ☐ if you are receiving duplicates of the catalog.

Friends of Esalen

We invite you to join us in our organization—Friends of Esalen.

Friends of Esalen provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

We believe that one of our first priorities is to make our programs available on a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions to fund such scholarships.

In addition to knowing that you have given someone else the opportunity to experience Esalen, you will receive the Esalen Catalog for one year. We hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the sharing and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

☐ I wish to become a Friend of Esalen and I enclose my check for the category circled.

☐ I wish to renew my membership in Friends of Esalen.

One Year Student $15
One Year Individual $25
One Year Donor $50
One Year Sponsor $100
One Year Patron $500
(Contributions are tax-deductible)

Name _____ Student Affiliation _____

Street _____

City, State _____ Zip Code _____ Date _____

Please mail to: Friends of Esalen, Big Sur, California 93920

Food for the Senses

a book of recipes and artwork by people of the Esalen community is now available. To order by mail, use the following form.

Please send me _____ copies of Food for the Senses at $5.95 each, plus an additional $1.20 per book for postage and handling, or a total of $7.15. (California residents add $.35 tax.) I am enclosing a total of $ _____

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Please mail to: Food for the Senses, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920. Make checks payable to Esalen Institute. Allow 6 weeks for delivery.

Audio Recordings

The Dolphin Series

The human potential movement continues to produce unusual events which in turn produce unusual recordings. Each issue of the Esalen Catalog lists a number of new titles and also includes some from the Big Sur Recordings archives. Nearly all tapes are stereo, from live events, and tape length is normally 1 to 1½ hours.

Single-tape titles are $10 with prepayment (purchase orders add $1 per tape):

Paul Rebillot: The Pluto Story: Journey into Madness, 1984
Joseph Campbell: The Hero's Journey (Sword and Flute), 1984
Julian Silverman: A Light Hearted Course In Miracles, 1984
Daniel Ellsberg: The Policy Catastrophe, 1982

Gregory Bateson: Eternal Verities of Life
Sogyal Rinpoche: Interview on Death and Dying
Robert Anton Wilson: The Prism Lecture

Terence McKenna: New and Old Maps of Hyperspace
Albert Hofmann: LSD and the Nature of Reality
Michael Harner: Drumming for the Shamanic Journey

Robert Bly: The Six Powers of Poetry
Gioia Timpanelli: Fairy Tales: The Enduring Stories
Ram Dass: Involvement with Life, 1974

Anne Armstrong: On Being a Psychic, 1971
Joseph Wheelwright: Psychological Types, 1971
Baba Ram Dass: Yoga of Daily Life, 1970
Aldous Huxley: Human Potentialities, 1962
Aldous Huxley: Visionary Experience, 1962

Two-tape titles are $18 with prepayment (purchase order price is $20):

Jean Houston: (2) The Possible Human, 1979
Arthur M. Young: (2) Interview Tapes: His Life and Work, 1983
Frank Herbert: (2) Conversations at home with Frank and Bev, 1983
Charlotte Selver/Charles Brooks: (2) Sensory Awareness, 1980-1982

Paul Rebillot: (2) The Hero's Journey (A Guided Experience), 1982
Andrew Weil: (2) Use and Abuse of Beneficial Plants, 1982
Andrew Weil: (2) Interplay of Mind and Body Realities, 1982

Baba Ram Dass: (2) One Man's Journey to the East, 1968
Poetry of Robinson Jeffers: (2) A Dramatic Presentation, 1972

Please add $2 to your order for handling and mailing. California residents include 6% tax. Please mail your order with check payable to: DOLPHIN TAPES, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920. Suggestions regarding recordings are appreciated.

The Dolphin Album Sets

Joseph Campbell Celebration: Symposium on The Hero's Journey, 1984 (4 tapes) $39
Father Bede Griffiths: Return to the Center (The Ojai Series), 1983 (4 tapes) $39
Donald Keys: Inner Peace and Social Action, 1982 (4 tapes) $39
Robert Bly and Angeles Arrien: Love in the Western World, 1984 (6 tapes) $56
Julian Silverman: Further Commentaries on A Course In Miracles, 1982 (6 tapes) $56
Ken Dychtwald: Bodymind Health, Longevity, and Optimal Performance (6 tapes) $60
Emmett Miller: Self-Hypnosis and Personal Development (6 tapes) $60
Andrew Weil: Integrated Consciousness and Health (6 tapes) $60
The 1983 Santa Barbara Conference: Entheogens: The Sacred Psychedelics (6 tapes) $60
Ruthy Alon: Awareness Through Movement—Series I (12 lessons) (6 tapes) $60
Ruthy Alon: Lessons in The Feldenkrais Method—Series II (9 hours) (6 tapes) $60
Moshe Feldenkrais: Awareness Through Movement—Series I (10 lessons) (6 tapes) $72
Jack Rosenberg: Sustained Integration: Body, Self, and Soul (10 hours) (8 tapes) $72
The San Francisco Symposium: Faces of the Enemy, 1983 (12 hours) (8 tapes) $72
Terence McKenna: True Hallucinations: A Talking Book, 1984 (The Amazon Experience) (8 tapes) $80
Buckminster Fuller: The Pajaro Dunes Tapes: A Weekend Seminar, 1977 (12 hours) (8 tapes) $80

Please add $2 for mailing each vinyl album set ($4 if you wish priority mail). California residents include 6% tax. (Purchase orders without prepayment add 10% to album cost.) Please mail your order with check payable to: DOLPHIN TAPES, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920.

The Planet Series

Audio recordings from conferences promoting personal, social and global development.

Jean Houston: The Possible Human; The Possible Society
Marilyn Ferguson: Our Dreams Work in the World
Rupert Sheldrake: Morphic Resonance
Fritjof Capra: The New Vision of Reality
Thomas Szasz: The Myth of Psychotherapy

Joseph Chilton Pearce: Role Models & Child Development
Father Bede Griffiths: The Christian Doctrine of New Creation
Mother Theresa: Bombay Address & Press Conference
Donald Keys: Choosing a New World
Helen Caldicott: Prescription for a Nuclear Survival

Elmer & Alyce Green: Introduction to Bio-Feedback (2 tapes)

Stanislav Grof: Holonomic Consciousness
Stan & Christina Grof: Introduction to Holonomic Ingetration
R. D. Laing: The Voice of Experience
John & Toni Lilly: Reality and Beliefs
Claudio Naranjo: Bringing Meditation into Psychotherapy

Robert Muller: Towards a Global Community
Dana Meadows: Groping in the Dark
Norman Lear: Communications, Liberty & the New Right
Robert Schwartz: Business: The Barometer of Social Change
Warren Bennis: Leadership in America

Buckminster Fuller: The Critical Path (2 tapes)

Audio Recordings

About the Speakers

Dr. Thomas Szasz: Professor of Psychiatry, State University of New York (Upstate Medical Center), Author. A compelling indictment of the coercive and punitive way in which our society treats people who are classified as mentally ill.

Robert Muller: Assistant Secretary-General of the United Nations, often called "Philosopher of the U.N." An expression of hope for a new and higher language based on love, human values, and creation of a peaceful global community.

Dana Meadows: Co-author of the Club of Rome Report The Limits to Growth, author of Groping in the Dark, professor at Dartmouth University. A look at global modeling and a view of the world with social and economic integrity.

Norman Lear: Writer, celebrated television producer (All in the Family & others), founder of People for the American Way. A discussion of the political uses of humor and the endangering of the American tradition of free speech.

Robert Schwartz: Director of the Tarrytown House Executive Conference Center, Chairman of the Tarrytown Group, Entrepreneur. A discussion of the market-place and its relationship to the emerging global paradigm.

Warren Bennis: Author of Taking Charge, editor of New Management, professor of management for the University of Southern California, psychologist. Looking at the qualities which make a good leader.

All tapes are $10 each (2 tape titles are $18), the complete set of 24 tapes is $160. All orders prepaid with check, money order or Mastercard / VISA. Please add $3 to total order of single tapes and $6 for each complete set for mailing and handling within the U.S. California residents add 6% sales tax. Please make checks payable to: PLANET TAPES / Burns Creek, Big Sur, CA 93920.

PLEASE NOTE: At the time this issue of the Esalen Catalog goes to press, Esalen Institute is in the process of clarifying the Esalen-sponsored audio tape recordings library.

The tapes listed on this page are not necessarily Esalen-owned or Esalen-related. They are produced by two private companies, Dolphin Tapes and Planet Tapes. They are presented here as an advertisement. Esalen assumes no responsibility for the product.

You may send for a more complete list of available tapes by addressing your inquiry to: Esalen Tape Series (Attention: Paul B. Herbert), Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

The Media Center

Esalen Videotape

This 18-minute videotape, which tells Esalen's story from its early history to the present, is an inexpensive way to view the general offerings available at Esalen. The visuals consist of 130 color slides featuring scenes of the Big Sur coast, Esalen's garden, grounds, and various workshops and activities. The musical soundtrack is by Paul Horn, Joel Andrews, and "Pinchey Pete" Velasquez.

Cost: For Rent:

½" VHS color video cassette ..... per week $10.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette ..... per week $15.00

Cost: For Sale:

½" VHS color video cassette $35.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette $40.00

This program is available for purchase in its original form—a two-projector slide dissolve show which can also be viewed with a single projector.

Cost: For Sale:
Slide Program—including 130 slides, cassette tape, and script (pulsed tape for Entré 7610 dissolve unit available on request)..... $150.00

Color Slide Set

A set of five scenes of Esalen—the Big Sur coast, the Esalen grounds, garden, the outdoor hot baths, t'ai chi on the pool deck—is available for $5.50.

Please address your order with a check payable to the Esalen Media Center, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. California residents add 6% sales tax for sale purchases.

Overseas air mail orders please add additional postage: each slide program $10 ($15 for Australia and Asia), each video cassette $7, each slide set $1.

Films

Films of the work of Fritz Perls, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Rollo May, Virginia Satir, Alexander Lowen, and others, are available from Psychological Films, 110 North Wheeler Street, Orange, California 92669. For color documentaries with Alan Watts, Huston Smith, Lama Govinda, Joseph Campbell, Edgar Mitchell, Margaret Mead, and others, write Hartley Productions, Cat Rock Road, Cos Cob, Connecticut 06807. A film or video cassette on Chungliang Al Huang's work, entitled Tai Chi: The Watercourse Way, is available through KLB Productions, 490 Redwood Road, Corralitos, California 95076. Regarding the documentary on Gregory Bateson, send inquiries also to KLB Productions at the above address. Recent color videotapes of Stephen Levine and Ram Dass on "Conscious Living / Conscious Dying", and of Daniel Ellsberg, Helen Caldicott, and others on the nuclear issue are available from Original Face Video, Box 447, Grass Valley, Ca. 95945.

General Information

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esselen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute-By Reservation Only.

Reservation Information: In order to reserve a space in any workshop we require a reservation fee of $50 for weekend groups, $100 for five-day groups, $150 for seven-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups, payable in U.S. currency only. Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks. Balance of payment is due on arrival. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year of receipt. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is cancelled and we are unable to reach you.

Please mail all reservations to:
Reservations, Esalen Institute
Big Sur, Ca. 93920

We are able to process mail reservations more effectively. If you are concerned about workshops being full or have any questions, you may make reservations by phone if you use your Mastercard, Visa, or American Express credit card number to charge your reservation fee.

Phone (408) 667-2335
Office Hours:
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

If there is no answer during our regular business hours, and the phone company confirms that our phones are out of order, please call our alternate number (408) 372-8719, for recorded up-to-date workshop, road, and transportation information.

Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 4 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive any time after lunch.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Senior Citizens' Discount Information: Esalen offers a special discount to individuals over 60 years of age. The discount for a weekend workshop is $25, and a five-day is $50. Discounts are available only when you make your reservations. Please present proof of age when you register.

Ongoing Residence Program: Offered from October through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Many community programs are also open to residents. The cost is $1800 per 26-day period.

Health Services: We are unable to provide medical supervision or pharmaceutical supplies. If you are on a health-care program and you plan to spend several weeks at Esalen, please arrive prepared to administer to your health-care needs.

Room and Board: Bed spaces not required for workshop participants are sometimes available for room and board. Accommodations are shared and the rate is $60 per person per day, which includes dinner on the day of arrival and breakfast and lunch the following day. Private rooms are sometimes available at $100 per day, or $110 per day per couple. Special family rates are available. Please phone the office for additional information.

Bus Service: We have bus service from the Monterey Greyhound station at 4:45 pm and from the Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm on Fridays and Sundays. If you plan to use this service, please inform the Esalen office at least 24 hours prior to your arrival. The charge for one-way service is $20, payable to the Esalen office when you check in. Return reservations may be made at the same time. Bus service to Esalen is not available at any other time.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are requested to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff, usually in the kitchen. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of certificates or diplomas, such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Contributions to Esalen Institute are tax-deductible.

The expenses of attending Esalen, including travel, are deductible for federal income tax purposes as an educational expense if incurred to maintain or improve professional or work skills. (See Income Tax Regulation 1.162-5.)

Esalen Institute reserves the right to cancel any program at any time.

Conferences at Esalen: It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Announcement

The address of The Trager Institute for Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics was incorrectly listed in the previous Esalen Catalog. The correct address is:

10 Old Mill Street
Mill Valley, CA 94941

Telephone (415) 388-2688

Esalen Institute Reservations

This form is for your convenience in reserving a space in Esalen workshops. In completing the form, please indicate the name, address, and telephone number of each person registering and clearly indicate the title of the workshop for which each person is reserving a place. A registration fee for each person registering and each workshop applied for must accompany this form. (See General Information, page 50.)

(Please Print)

Name _____ Sex M ☐ F ☐

Address _____

City, State _____ Zip _____ Occupation _____

Telephone Number: Day: Area Code ( ) _____ Evening: Area Code ( ) _____

There are sometimes unexpected situations that may require us to contact you immediately before your stay here. If you will not be at the above numbers during the two weeks prior to the workshop, where may we reach you? If you can't be reached please call us before your scheduled arrival for final confirmation.

(On additional paper please repeat the above information for every person in your party making a reservation. Mail all reservations to Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920.)

Check if you want: ☐ shared room with friend: _____ ☐ housing as a couple

Do you smoke? _____

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. (For further details see Ways of Being at Esalen, page 14.)

Bus Service:

I want bus service from (check one):

_____ Monterey Airport

_____ Monterey Greyhound Bus Station

at 5:00 pm on _____ (date of arrival, Fridays & Sundays only)

The $20 per person charge is payable on arrival at Esalen. If your plans for use of the bus change after you submit this reservation, please notify us. Esalen bus service is not available at any time other than 5 pm.

Check here ☐ if you do not want us to give out your number for the purposes of ride sharing.

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

License Number:
(for registered nurses wanting CEU's) _____ (for physicians wanting CEU's) _____

Name of Person Registering	Date(s)	Leader's Name/Title of Workshop	Deposit Enclosed

Total amount enclosed: $ _____

Please make checks payable to Esalen Institute in U.S. currency only.

Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks.

Your reservation can be charged to:

MasterCard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express ☐

Card No. _____

Expiration Date _____

All workshops require nonrefundable reservation fees. See page 50. The balance of program fees becomes payable at the time of check-in.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some people, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Its activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

Esalen Institute
Big Sur
California 93920

DATED MATTER

The Esalen Catalog

May-October, 1985

Contents

Volume XXIV, Number 2

Audio Recordings 52–53
Big Sur Wilderness Experience 13
Biographical Information 45–51
Catalog Subscription Information 51
Conferences at Esalen 13
Esalen Seminars 14–40
Experiencing Esalen 12
Experiencing Esalen: The Body 12
Features:

The Selling of the Senoi 4–5
Anne Faraday and John Wren-Lewis

The Nicest Race in the Whole World 6–7
Alan Schwartz

A Zen-America Tale 8–10
Keith Thompson Talks with Baker-roshi

Esalen Notes 11

Friends of Esalen 51
Future Programs 44
General Information 54
Gestalt Practice 12
Media Center 53
Medical Programs 44
Reservations Form 55
Scholarship Information 13
Special Programs 44
Ways of Being at Esalen 12–13
Wilderness Programs 42–43
Work Study Program and Application 41

Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920
Phone (408) 667-2335

Monday, Tuesday, Thursday
& Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

Catalog Editor: Nancy Knapp
Contributing Editor: Keith Thompson
Consulting Editor: Nancy Kaye Lunney
Editorial Assistance: Jaelitza, Sharon Wigner, Sara Halprin

Graphic Design: Barbara Adamson
Art Direction: Barbara Adamson
& Joyce Rogers Lyke
Cover Photograph: Joyce Rogers Lyke

Esalen Board of Trustees:
Steven Donovan
Jack Downing
Victoria Elliot
Stanislav Grof
Nancy Kaye Lunney
Michael Murphy
Bokara Legendre
Mary Payne

©1985 Esalen Institute
All Rights Reserved.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Contact is the appreciation of differences.
—Fritz Perls

. . . and the recognition of similarities . . .

THE SELLING OF THE SENOI

David Nelson

Ann Faraday and John Wren-Lewis

It has been said that when religions are faced with new discoveries challenging their authority, they react in three predictable stages: first, "It's not true;" second, "It's wicked;" and third, "We knew it all along so why make a fuss about it?" A remarkably similar process is currently taking place amongst True Believers in the religion of so-called "Senoi dream control."

Their first protest, when reports began to appear in the late 1970s denying that the Senoi tribe of Malaysia really practice dream manipulation, was to accuse the "militaristic Malaysian government" of suppressing both the gentle aborigines and their secret of non-violence. It was even seriously suggested that all visitors, including professional researchers, were ushered into jungle "concentration camps" where brainwashed Temiar, speaking through government interpreters, denied all knowledge of a dream control culture. Great care was taken, so the story went, to see that outsiders never penetrated to the hidden remnant of Temiar/Senoi who had escaped from government surveillance to keep their traditions alive in the jungle depths.

When all such wish-fulfillment fantasies had been exposed as nonsense—and we can personally attest to the fact that there are no brainwashed Temiar living in concentration camps, and that anyone who is seriously interested can visit the deepest jungle villages without finding any trace of dream control—the armchair romantics progressed to stage two. It is wicked, they now argue, to impugn the scientific reputations of these two great anthropologists, Pat Noone and Kilton Stewart, and their classic research of the 1930s; if contemporary Temiar don't practice dream manipulation, it must mean that their ancient culture has been destroyed by modernization.

Well, we have now spent over a year in Malaysia, living and working in Temiar villages without any government interpreters to distort the record of officials whose presence might have imposed inhibitions, and it would be hard to imagine a people more dedicated to preserving their traditions intact despite all the changes going on around them. We spent night after night listening to tales of olden days or joining in their frequent trance/dance sessions in which dream-inspired songs are used to call spirits, and our welcome would have been short-lived had we not scrupulously observed their time-hallowed rituals and taboos. We made a special point of talking to elders who could recall the 1930s, and one of them, who actually told his dreams to Noone and Stewart, became a key informant in our investigations. We also sought out the dreamers named by Stewart in his PhD thesis, finding two of them still living and interviewing the families of others.

Sadly, we must report that not a single Temiar recalled any form of dream control education in childhood or any such practice amongst adults; in fact they vehemently denied that dream manipulation has ever been part of their culture. And dreams play such an integral part in their whole religious life that we cannot conceive of a major dream-practice being allowed to fade into oblivion when the religion itself is so very much alive. There is an elaborate Temiar lore for interpreting dreams as warnings or omens (though only the shaman's interpretations have ever been given serious credence), and great heed has always been paid to anyone receiving a song or dance in dreams, for this indicates the emergence of a new shaman to invoke spirits for healing or protection of the village.

But no one, absolutely no one, would ever have presumed to ask for, still less demand, such a gift from a dream-character, as Western "Senoi dream theory" advocates. This would be high heresy for Temiar religion, in which the gunig or protective spirit always chooses its human vehicle and would be repelled by any hint of coercion; in fact the Temiar abhor coercion of any kind, dreaming or waking. They dismiss as nonsense the idea that children can be trained to confront hostile dream-characters, and boggle at the idea of converting such a figure into a gunig by fighting or killing it. On a more mundane level, they deny any tradition of offering gifts the next day to neighbors who have threatened or attacked them in dreams, and they can make no sense of the notion that sex dreams "should" always end in orgasm. For some Temiar, indeed, succumbing to sex in a dream is interpreted as seduction by a bad spirit, and all our informants insisted that incestuous dream sex portends disaster. Normally a good sex dream is either taken literally or interpreted as a kill in tomorrow's hunt.

Another point we took special pains to probe was whether Temiar culture had ever given any place to what is now in the West called dream lucidity, awareness within a dream that one is dreaming. We framed our questions very carefully (an essential precaution in any investigation like this) and were interested to find that many Temiars, and notably all our shaman informants, understood at once what we were asking. In other words, they had no difficulty in grasping that one might have such awareness in a dream—but they emphatically denied that it played any part in their tradition. As one old and reputedly powerful tiger-shaman put it, when a dream character speaks or touches you in a song, it seems at the time like an ordinary person or animal (and as we all know, there is nothing odd about animals speaking in dreams). Only on waking is the figure interpreted as a spirit guide, and waking interpretation—dismissed as irrelevant by many Western dream advocates—is central to all Temiar dream lore.

As more and more evidence along these lines reaches Western literature (and there is plenty more still to come), True Believers are moving to stage three—"Why all the fuss? Does it matter what these little people in Malaysia do or did? They have served, through the writings of Stewart and others, to provide an inspiring myth of noble savages from whom the West might learn the art of self-improvement through dream manipulation. Now that we've gotten started, and have found that the techniques work for us, we can conveniently dump the real Senoi."

Perhaps, if you've no qualms of conscience about committing intellectual genocide—but in any event we must put a ban on the misuse of their name, which proponents of dream control seem reluctant to do. Just enclosing the word "Senoi" in inverted commas isn't good enough, for the real Senoi have a real dream culture of which they are very proud, and they become quite indignant when they hear their name identified with concepts utterly alien from their own. Some smart leaders even suggested to us that their newly-formed tribal association could sue, or perhaps insist on a royalty from every book or workshop that takes their name in vain! Meanwhile, writings are already in the pipeline, from ourselves and others, which will bring real Senoi dream culture firmly into Western literature, so nothing but confusion can come from retaining the name for psychological techniques invented in America. Howard Revic's term "American Senoi dreamwork" must surely be the ultimate confusion and the deepest ethnic insult, for the values of real Senoi dream culture are poles apart from the self-improvement cults of the contemporary West.

The argument that the word "Senoi" is so firmly entrenched in the literature as a synonym of dream control that it will have to stay is sheer evasion. There is still time to set the record straight, and we shall see that it is done in the new editions of Ann's books Dream Power and The Dream Game—in fact this was the main reason why we took time out to visit Malaysia. Meanwhile perhaps readers . . . could suggest an alternative term. "Stewart dreamwork" has already been suggested, but this too could be misleading, for many ideas found in modern so-called Senoi dream workshops have little connection with his writings. (The puzzle of how Stewart reached his conclusions is another fascinating story, to be told elsewhere in due course.) Probably the only truly honest way out will be for every group leader to take personal responsibility for whatever techniques he or she wishes to promote, and let them stand entirely on their own feet.

As for real Senoi dream culture, we believe it will be of far more than academic interest in the West, precisely because it involves concepts quite different from those of contemporary psychology. While we ourselves do not yet understand fully the experiential meaning of the communion with nature-spirits which the Senoi claim to enjoy in their dreams and trances/dances, still less what these spirits "really" mean in psychological or theological terms, there seems no doubt that the shaman, and through him the rest of the people, can tune in to the natural environment in subtle ways quite unknown to most Westerners. (A notable exception seems to have been William Blake, who anticipated Senoi shamanism in his vision of nature's "fearful symmetry" as a tiger burning in the forests of the night.) We both had many dreams of strange mystical intensity while living in the jungle, convincing us that these gentle people and their strange religion had touched off some long-neglected faculty for "spiritual communion" with nature. And is it not just some such faculty, rather than more techniques of control, which is essential to save our planet from destruction?

This article is reprinted with permission from Lucidity Letter, Vol. 3 No. 1, March, 1984, edited by Dr. Jayne Gackenbach, Department of Psychology, University of Northern Iowa, Cedar Falls, Iowa.

THE NICEST RACE IN THE WHOLE WORLD

Alan Schwartz

October 23, 1984 is the Tuesday before the New York Marathon, and I find myself working out around the reservoir in Central Park, looking for some of the interesting runners who come into town early in order to combine the race with sightseeing. It's quiet, though, as I run north from 83rd Street on the West Side. I meet Chris from the Lenox Hill Hospital at 90th and Fifth Avenue, about the three-mile mark into the run, and I turn around to retrace the miles I've just finished with her as company.

Chris is a technician who, a few weeks ago, administers my first stress test to me. At 52, I decide that it is time for that, having been informed that there are irregularities in my heartbeat during a recent physical. Although I find the test exhausting, I am given a rousing ovation by Chris, and it is generally agreed that whatever I am doing to maintain my health level ought to be continued. Everything is normal and, in addition, I am found to have strengthened my physiology due to my running program. As we run the steep northern hills of the park, Chris comments that I am running strongly. It couldn't have been said at a better time. On Thursday I fly to Monterey, California to spend the weekend with my extended family and community at Big Sur's Esalen Institute, and to take part in the Big Sur River Run on Saturday, October 27th.

I am flying away from the New York Marathon. Somehow, there is excitement with that thought. I have run in three New York Marathons and I am hooked. Yet, in 1983 my entry form is rejected. I am too late with the mails—I would not spend the night with the thousands of other applicants in front of the main post office in New York City in order to make sure I am one of the lucky ones. At first I am very angry. This is my marathon! This is my running club! Reality dawns, however, and I run instead in the Marine Corps Marathon in Washington, D.C. in November of 1983. A shot of hypothermia and THE WALL and I decide enough is enough. I retire.

On Thursday, October 25, Jim Doty picks me up at the Monterey airport. Jim works in the Gazebo at Esalen Institute where I have been a teacher and group leader for more than a dozen years. He is in his mid-twenties and runs a ten-kilometer time of around 33 minutes. We talk running, races, injuries and the like as we head toward the Big Sur State Park some 30-35 miles south of Monterey. We decide to jog the course so I will be familiar with it. It is a crisp autumn afternoon. We park at the ballfield. As we jog the course the sun disappears behind the sharp Big Sur hills, and the giant redwoods add their shade to the early twilight. I am entranced with the beauty of these campgrounds and surprised at the number of campers already there on this Thursday afternoon. We meet the race director on our run and chat briefly, and I tell him that I've come three thousand miles to participate in this race. He is impressed and I am impressed. I am beginning to have one hell of a good time!

On our way down to Esalen, some thirteen miles south of the park, we discuss others from the community who are participating in Saturday's run. Kathy Mausshardt, Gazebo staff member, is one of the favored women in the race. Brian Lyke, Esalen's General Manager, Joyce Rogers Lyke of the Media Office, Jaime and Lauren from the massage staff, Lois, Esalen's versatile gourmet chef, and Kelly, Leon, Steve, Neil, Daniel, and April are all running, some for the first time. Thursday night, after a dinner of the healthiest food I've eaten since my last trip to Esalen, I visit with Nancy Lunney and console her about not being able to run because of a foot injury. On Friday I spend as much time in the famous Esalen hot sulphur baths as my body permits. I am staying with Brian and Joyce and their two children. At nine p.m. Friday I am unconscious.

Saturday morning I am shocked to find that Joyce stocks only decaffeinated coffee. I am counting on three cups of caffeine to charge my energy system into racing mode. I go outside, jump up and down five or six times and yell loudly. I am now either charged or crazy, but after all there is a race to be run! The start is at ten. We arrive an hour early and the place is really filling up. It's Big Sur's block party. Of the 1100 runners, it is estimated that just under half are local people. Esalen Institute, in addition to being well represented in the race, is a co-sponsor of the event. The tee-shirts are superior and there is a wild boar-naming contest (the winning name—Cyrano DeBOARgerac). Friends mingle excitedly. There is that wonderful downhome quality that I experience at races in Bloomfield, Connecticut and the Bronx in New York.

Before the race some runners drink coffee, some drink beer. Joyce and April breastfeed their babies minutes before the start. Blankets are spread for later picnics. I am chanting silently: "Lord, please let me finish without having to walk!" It is exactly ten a.m., and we're off!

The humidity is low, the temperature hovers around 50. I run the first mile in 6:10, and I have a feeling it's going to be a fast day. The course winds in and out of the campgrounds. Soon the runners are running toward one another as the loops intertwine. I see Jim roaring toward me and I yell encouragement. I hear my name yelled and I wave to institute staff and community lining the road. Would you believe a group of bagpipers less than a mile into the race? What a lift! A little later on, I pass a string quartet. I think that if I have to experience any more of this beauty here among the redwoods along the Big Sur river I will be unable to concentrate on my running. Just then, I run past two women sitting before music stands playing flutes. By this time I have gone into physical, emotional and spiritual orbit. Running is secondary, and I now know why I've spent all this money to come to California to run in this event. I'm on a spiritual retreat, and the reality as well as the metaphor of racing here is nourishing my soul.

Jim takes fourth of the 1100 runners. Kathy takes third of the women and 64th in the race. I take fifth of the over-fifty crowd and 80th in the race. My 39:47 for the 6.2 miles is very fast for me and I am thrilled with the achievement. I am no more thrilled, however, than Joyce, who roars across the finish line into the waiting arms of her husband nearly half an hour later, no more thrilled than the rest of the Big Sur community, who turn the day into a kind of high school or college homecoming celebration. What a wonderful lesson about athletic activity as community contact! We retire to Nepenthe for brunch. I find former institute staff members working there. It's a joy to see Ken again and to have Jane cook my omelette. We spend the rest of the afternoon in the sulphur baths soothing tired muscles. I am in bed by nine p.m.

The next morning Brian and I watch the New York Marathon at Steve and Barbara's, via the dish antenna. I remember my first New York City Marathon in similar conditions, hot and humid, and I am uncomfortable as I watch. Yet, it is exciting—it always is. I realize that I have completed my transition from being marathon-centered to running and racing for fun. I appreciate my own excitement and fears as I witness runners fighting the heat. I appreciate Joyce and April as I appreciate Greta Waitz and Joan Benoit. I appreciate beautiful Lake Waramaug, my home course in Connecticut, as I appreciate my fellow runners in Central Park. I appreciate Gerry Vanasse for the lovely acceptance speech he gave after winning a hometown race last summer. I appreciate the warmth and excitement with which Esalen Institute approaches the Big Sur River Run each year. I appreciate runners because so many of them have been able to assimilate this physical activity into the action of their spirit. This is the true runners' high. It is not hyperbole to suggest that runners really run for love, not for only achievement, glory, money, vanity. I even appreciate Fred Lebow, president of the New York Road Runner's Club.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Alan Schwartz, Jim Doty, Brian Lyke, Kathy Mausshardt

See you next year, Cyrano DeBOARgerac!

Those interested in future Big Sur River Runs are referred to the Esalen Seminars section of this catalog, October 25-27.

A ZEN-AMERICA TALE

Keith Thompson Talks with Baker-roshi on Culture and the Zen Frontier

The essence of spirit, he thought to himself, was to choose the thing which did not better one's position, but made it more perilous. That was why the world he knew was poor, for it insisted morality and caution were identical. —D. H. Lawrence

"It's our standards now."—Zen Center student

On May 23, 1959, Shunryu Suzuki flew from Tokyo to San Francisco. By the time of his death in 1971, he had established the community of study and practice which was to become known as San Francisco Zen Center. The Japanese word for master is "roshi." In the mid-1960s, Suzuki-roshi chose Richard Baker as his heir and successor. In November, 1971, two weeks before Suzuki-roshi's death, Richard Baker was formally installed as chief priest of Zen Center.

With the creation of Zen Center, writes Buddhist scholar Rick Fields, Suzuki-roshi "had discovered the authentic voice of American Buddhism . . . . His life was complete."

Twelve years later, Baker-roshi resigned his position, stating that his role as leader had become "more damaging . . . than any help I may add by staying." The resignation climaxed an organizational crisis during which Zen Center became divided over Baker-roshi's leadership. To explore this story, Esalen Catalog Contributing Editor Keith Thompson went to Santa Fe for nearly twenty hours of tape-recorded conversation with Baker-roshi, who will teach at Esalen September 1-6, and 6-8. Thompson reports:

"Richard Baker inaugurated and presided over a period of fierce development for Zen Center, including the establishment of three successful businesses and Green Gulch Farm in Marin County. During this same period the membership of Zen Center grew from 100 to 500 students, creating a new set of organizational questions: When does a residential meditation center become too big? How are residential and community needs to be distinguished from those of religious practice? What are the dangers of "communalism" in a residential setting?

"As I went about transcribing the conversations, Michael Murphy suggested focusing on these kinds of questions. We agree that the particulars of the Zen Center crisis give new insight into the often subterranean structural, psychological, and ideological dynamics of social groups and organizations. The interview does not resolve, but helps raise, questions about opportunities and dilemmas inherent in the teacher-student relationship, and we felt this would be of interest to readers as well.

"An interesting anecdote: A former Zen Center student, whom I knew to be outraged over Baker-roshi's increased inaccessibility as a personal teacher at Zen Center, telephoned me to say, with no small amount of grief in his voice, that he had come to recognize his anger at Baker-roshi as thinly-disguised fury toward his father's remoteness. He told me he now understands what Freud had meant by 'primal horde,' and then proceeded to read to me over the phone the best analysis he had heard of the Zen Center crisis, from Freud's Totem and Taboo: 'One day the brothers . . . came together, killed and devoured the father . . . . United, they had the courage to do what would have been impossible for them individually.'"

• • •

THOMPSON: Lately I've been wondering: where in Buddhism is Eros? Not in Freud's sense of undifferentiated libido, but in the sense of the full range of human love and passion, psychic relatedness, the impulse to union, unity. Buddhism emphasizes emptiness, the void, impermanence, suffering, dying to each moment—but is there Eros in Buddhism?

BAKER: (Reaches for dictionary, reads aloud:) Here Eros is defined as "the god of love in Greek mythology; the sum of all self-preservative, as contrasted with self-destructive, instincts." In Western culture, religion is identified with communalism—the monks live together, preserve a larger self together, pray together, work together, go out together to form new orders, live their entire lives in monasteries. In Buddhism, it's not like this. Monasteries exist to assist the practitioner to realize his or her own independence—we say like a rhinoceros gazing at the patterns on the moon. Buddhism identifies religion with individuation and the means to freedom from your culture. Of course, we in the West come from a culture that emphasizes individuality (and confuses that with equality). Oriental culture emphasizes communality. That is, Buddhism assumes relatedness, and teaches relativeness, emptiness, independence, detachment. Christianity assumes separateness, the Fall, and teaches union, connectedness, love, communalism. Western culture assumes space is what separates objects; Oriental Buddhist culture assumes space is what connects objects. So, to say meditation is like empty space has a different feeling-meaning for an Oriental than for us.

THOMPSON: What about sangha—isn't that the word for those who live together, sometimes in monasteries, and practice Buddhism?

BAKER: That is a popular misconception. Sangha simply means "those people who study the truth"—its meaning does not imply or assume a base in or necessity for group or monastic life. Of course, there are rules for the ordered life, and for life when it is lived together. But again, the rules are for helping each person study and realize the truth, and their independence and interdependence. Communalism, as a social form or ideal, has nothing inherently to do with Buddhist religious practice. The spirit of communalism may well grow up among monks and lay practitioners, but it's not essential to Buddhist practice, and if identified with practice, or as a goal of practice, it can be harmful, distracting, even perverting, as I've discovered. Japanese and Chinese cultures are, from the American perspective, already based on group identity; there's no reason for religion to reinforce this. Buddhism emphasizes the opposite of communalism: individuation, non-attachment.

THOMPSON: Just as Oriental culture has a well-established group sense, American culture celebrates the rugged individual over relatedness, separation and independence over inclusiveness and context. Isn't the task one of learning to distinguish communalism from community and individualism from individuation?

BAKER: Buddhism places emphasis on oneness with all things, but it's a oneness of particularity. It takes one to know one. But it's a oneness that is not communalism's emphasis on merging with the ocean. Instead, it's the drop that includes the ocean.

There are four interrelated choices a person makes in coming to Buddhist practice. First, the choice to practice. Second, the choice of a teacher. Third, the choice of with whom you practice, and fourth, the choice of where you practice. In the beginning, the first two choices are decisive, and then later, communalism, friendship, and the stability of residence begin to take precedence and become decisive. I've found out that, when nit comes to grit, most people choose and reinforce their social and personal identities when there's any threat to them. At San Francisco Zen Center, many of the students stated clearly to me that they had to choose the bonds they had developed with other students in a communalistic setting over questions of whether they were in fact practicing Buddhism, over how they were practicing, and over who was their teacher.

THOMPSON: There's a weird sense in which a leader of a group is half-in, half-out. In Slater's book Microcosm, Evan Wolarsky is quoted to this effect: When group members confront their realization that the leader is not under their control, they'll try either to make the leader one of them or get rid of him altogether.

BAKER: That's interesting, given that one of the criticisms of me was that I didn't care about the community. And they were right—I didn't, in the sense of community as communalism, as an end in itself. But I certainly loved the individuals in the community. I created and developed the Zen Center community as a way to build an economic base upon which Zen practice could thrive and diversify into the larger community of San Francisco, and as a way of supporting many individual students so they could continue practice. I never saw the fact of Zen students living together as a particularly important part of Zen practice and Zen teaching. But as time passed, many of the students did value communal life more than the practice, or at least found themselves more connected to communal life than practice. Among my many failings is that I underestimated how attached they were to their own style of communalism, particularly as I was about to try to lead the practice away from an identification with, and dependence upon, communalism.

THOMPSON: I think I understand you to be saying that communalism, under pressure and stress, drives people not to Zen teaching per se but back upon their spoken (and unspoken) group identities. It would follow that they would turn their anger toward the teacher, especially if—as in your case— you were unable to give equal amounts of personal teaching attention to the rapidly proliferating community population.

BAKER: Yes, I would say that's true. When sangha is mis-defined as "a group of people practicing Buddhism in the same community," a fundamental confusion is created at the start. When that happens, the community becomes a big family, the teacher becomes everyone's parent, spouse, or psychotherapist—and Freud and psychology have certainly identified our multi-layered ambivalence toward the father.

I was struck by something one student said after I resigned. She told me how grateful she was to me for my creating Zen Center. She said there is no place like Zen Center anywhere in Europe or elsewhere in the United States. I said, "To the extent that is true, thank you, and how do you feel about my resigning?" She responded: "Oh, I'm glad you're gone." I asked her why she was glad.

"Well, I was scared of you," she said. And I answered, "But you seldom had to see me except during dokusan at sesshin" [Dokusan is the name for the individual meeting between student and teacher; sesshin is a seven day meditation retreat]. To which she responded: "Well, I never knew what to say to you." And I replied, "You sat one or at most two sesshins a year, which means you saw me for ten or twenty minutes a year. Can't you accept that much being scared against all the good for which you tell me you're grateful? We have to accept a little bad with the good! Doesn't that make you feel a little selfish?" She answered, "Yes, but I try not to think about it."

I thought that was wonderfully up-front of her, but my curiosity was still not satisfied, so I pressed her: "Why do you like it better now at Zen Center without me there?" She looked at me and said, simply, "It's our standards now."

I couldn't argue with that.

THOMPSON: Well, look—here we are in Santa Fe, at the site of a small center you're calling the Dharma Sangha. Unlike San Francisco Zen Center, you've chosen to have a few students, not a few hundred. Yet there's still the teacher-student relationship. You are Suzuki-roshi's heir of the Zen tradition, which he acknowledged in the mid-60s, and formally transmitted to you in Japan a few years later, and then he made you his successor as abbot of Zen Center. You're the living keeper-of-the-flame . . .

BAKER: Does that mean I'm a vestal virgin?

THOMPSON: I won't go that far! But you are committed to imparting or transmitting the teachings. My question is, why and how won't you face the same problems of potential communalism, and of students wanting you to be their "good and loving daddy," and all the rest? What will be different?

BAKER: Well, I understand the dangers much better now. And I understand people more thoroughly—I hope I do. I have a healthy respect now for the power, the tenacious, adhesive, irreducible identification of people with their culturally defined personal, social, and psychological needs, especially when stressed. Abe Maslow's hierarchy of human needs is helpful in understanding this. Stressed, Buddhism peeled like a veneer off people's unfulfilled needs for self-esteem, security, belongingness, etc. There's an atomic power, a molecular bonding, in cultural identity, especially in the unexamined, unindividuated life.

I'm now more aware of the dangers of the emerging frontier between East and West. Now I'm insisting of my older students that they share with me the responsibility of instructing newer students what a Buddhist teacher is and is not. A Buddhist teacher is not a guru. A Buddhist teacher is more like our concept of an artist or a scientist than our concept of a Catholic monk.

I also now see the necessity for being more clear on the question of who is one of my students and who is not. In the past I tended to avoid this issue, and I think it caused some of the problems at Zen Center. I tended to refer to students as "Zen Center students" rather than as "my students." This was a kind of modesty on my part, but it was also an avoidance or lack of acknowledgement of why students were there and what my responsibility was to them as students. I assumed it was apparent that there were various degrees of commitment I could or would make to different students. But this turned out not to be apparent to most students, especially coming from the romantic, idealistic, everything-is-possible 1960s. This was a stupid mistake on my part.

Now I want students who are peers in our mutual uniqueness, or more than peers, who can still use the specificity of the teacher-student relationship.

Our Western culture has two well-established singular relationships that cover/touch everything in our life, relationships that we could say have an infinite coastline and an endless interior. One is the bond, the love, between parents and children. The other is the spousal relationship—the intimate, committed, usually sexual relationship. In the Orient, there's a third singular relationship that touches/covers everything, and that's the student-teacher bond. In our culture there is not the constellated mold, the social equipment or calibration, that permits the student-teacher relationship to be maintained. The spousal and parental relationships, while they may often be neurotically confused, do have their own distinct definitions, molds, and calibrations in our culture. The student-teacher relationship, lacking specific definition or tradition, shifts easily—especially when stressed—into spousal and parental relationships. Part of Western Buddhist practice is going to be how to develop a distinct mold, use, tradition, in our culture for the student-teacher relationship.

THOMPSON: In what ways did you contribute to the confusion?

BAKER: Many ways—do you want the ten minute or the two month answer? I took it for granted that Zen Center students understood that the teacher-student relationship was neither parental nor spousal. Also, I did not sufficiently see the danger in the developing connection of communalism and practice. I was also stunned for a while by a no-holds-barred-win-at-any-cost attack and by the amount of political and religious ambition, jealousy, frustration, and insecurity in the community. It took me time to realize that a person could be socially exemplary, attracted to the good, yet personally unscrupulous, willing to do anything, and willing and able to hide it from everyone.

THOMPSON: It seems that Zen itself is going through white water and difficult times in America, wouldn't you say? Many—or is it most—Zen Centers in the United States have gone through one kind of upheaval or another in the past few years. At Zen Center, you seemed to want to bring Zen to America in a way unique to American culture. You weren't content to allow the Buddhist lineage you represent to become a little enclave unto itself. Yet there's a tension in this kind of an approach. There you were wanting to weave Buddhism with related realms of thought and action, including the nuclear arms race, and its likely accidental outcome, while clearly the motivation of many who came to the Zen Center was to get away from the world, from social and political dimensions, from the secular world of their parents. In retrospect, perhaps your impulse to make Zen relevant to the dynamic side of American culture wrongly rubbed students intent on withdrawing from their culture, which they see not as dynamic but as manic?

BAKER: Oh, yes. I'm an idiosyncratic Buddhist, but I trust the direction of my idiosyncrasies. In my leaving, Zen Center shifted from having an idiosyncratic Zen teacher to wanting a traditional and predictable one. In the excitement, hope and idealism of the '60s, many people made unevolved decisions to commit themselves to a bohemian, religious, mystic, communal, or artistic life, thinking they would find perfection or completion through their decision. By the '80s, many hadn't fulfilled their dreams, and they had less than their more conventional peers, and many were bitter and didn't like it. This has contributed to the conservativism of the 1980s. Yet, the counter-culture position—an anti-political, anti-business stance—had been imprinted upon American views of Zen. In Europe, where culture is much more secure, the practice of Buddhism or yoga or acupuncture are not considered counter-culture phenomena.

THOMPSON: It's not hard to visualize a young person living at Zen Center, feeling emotionally remote from his or her father and adult males in general—which seems more the rule than the exception—feeling an intense emotional involvement with you as teacher, and watching the resentment grow as the number of Zen students increases rapidly. The hurt would probably increase precisely to the extent that you're less and less involved with individual teaching as there are more students, and more visibly involved with making connections between Buddhism and the larger culture. This has almost perfect Central Casting potential for a kill-the-father outcome!

BAKER: Yes. I see now how great a problem was the seemingly enormous power I had in other people's lives. I didn't realized then how much power they assumed and gave me in their lives. As the institution developed around me, I found myself landlord, mayor, administrator, entrepreneur and fund-raiser, as well as abbot and teacher. This was too much power to have, and many people couldn't handle it over time. Even though I never fired or evicted anyone, the fact that I had this power, unexercised or not, was too impressive and disempowering to many people. I understand this now, and I didn't then. I lived my life as well as I could—I successfully resisted the persona and archetype, but I could have shed the projections better.

THOMPSON: It sounds like Zen Center went crazy.

BAKER: Well, the community for a while had a fit of political, social and religious ambition and retreated from the social and Buddhist vision we had to a much more conservative personal, religious and social identity. I have enough faith in Buddhist teaching to believe that most of the individuals, and probably the institution, will get through it somehow.

THOMPSON: After all of it, what do you think now about Utopia?

BAKER: I now feel Utopia really is "no place," which is the literal meaning of the word—especially when it ignores the larger discontinuous non-holographic "heterotopia" we actually live in.

Keith Thompson © 1985
All Rights Reserved

Esalen Notes

HAZEL HENDERSON is busy. Now that her nationally syndicated program, Creating Alternative Futures, is being rebroadcast on selected public televisions around the country, the self-described "independent, self-employed futurist" is working with the University of Florida's Alternative Futures Program.

"I'm focusing lately on the world's electronic spectrum," says Ms. Henderson. "Ninety per cent of radio and television frequencies and most of the good satellite orbits are held in the Northern hemisphere of the planet. Given the critical dimensions of the North-South dialogue, it's essential that we in the overdeveloped North stop talking so much and begin listening to the underdeveloped South. One way to do this is for Northern communication technology to avail itself of more media offerings from the South." Hazel Henderson's workshop, "Citizenship in the Solar Age: Thinking Globally, Acting Locally," will be at Esalen August 16-18.

• • •

James Hillman states: "From my perspective as depth psychologist, I see that those who have a connection with story are in better shape and have a better prognosis than those to whom story must be introduced." He continues: "To have "story-awareness" is per se psychologically therapeutic." PHIL COUSINEAU and TOM SCHLESINGER take these thoughts as a starting point for their August 4-9 seminar, "Myth, Dream, and Movies," making use of Joseph Campbell's model of the Hero's Journey to explore the screenwriter's role in contemporary filmmaking/storytelling. Says Schlesinger: "The Hero's Journey charts the movement of the main character through the basic stages of the story—separation, initiation, and return. What's interesting is that this journey involves not only the journey of the hero in the film, but the journey of the screenwriter/filmmaker, and the journey of the audience." Adds Cousineau: "As myths tell us where we came from and how, and dreams show us where we are, movies are myths told as narratives and felt like dreams."

Schlesinger and Cousineau report that although their classes were originally designed for determined screenwriters, they have increasingly attracted closet creative writers, sculptors, painters, psychologists, counselors, and other individuals whose passion is imagination. The seminar features: lectures on plot development, narrative flow, and story integrity; ample time to brainstorm about works-in-progress; slides, film clips and film scores, and guided imagery and movement work to explore the basic "moving-magic" of film.

• • •

A recent issue of Mothering magazine devoted its cover story to fathering, which may help male readers learn more about parenting, but surely also adds to the confusion which defines fathering as mothering. Says ROBERT SAYERS: "A continuing problem in parenting is the popular belief that the most important qualities of a 'good' parent are those traditionally considered 'female': affectionate, warm, sensitive, compassionate, nurturing, tender and understanding. Equally important are traditionally 'male' qualities: assertiveness, independence, ambition, forcefulness, competitiveness, adventurousness and objectivity."

Sayers, author of Fathering: It's Not the Same (published by The Nurtury Family School, Larkspur, California), argues that the crux of the ambivalence fathers feel about fatherhood is the conflict between the qualities they were brought up with, and the social archetype of a "good parent." Because many fathers have difficulty integrating their roles as parent with other masculine interests, and feel confused by the ambivalence of being a "female parent" in a male body, they often withdraw as active fathers and move toward "the stronger, congruent and socially rewarded masculine roles." How men can move beyond prevailing parenting (mothering) roles, and find balance in parenting roles and behaviors, is a focus of Sayers' seminar October 11-13.

• • •

STARHAWK also offers a workshop October 11-13. Here are excerpts from her book, Dreaming the Dark.

"The word Goddess makes many people who would define themselves as "political" uneasy. It implies religion, secularism, and can be mistaken for the worship of an external being. "Goddess" also makes many people who would define themselves as "spiritual" or "religious" uneasy; it smacks of Paganism, of blood, darkness, and sexuality, of lower powers.

"Yet power-from-within is the power of the low, the dark, the earth; the power that arises from our blood, and our lives, and our passionate desire for each other's living flesh. And the political issues of our times are also issues of spirit, conflicts between paradigms or underlying principles. If we are to survive the question becomes: how do we overthrow, not those presently in power, but the principle of power-over? How do we shape a society based on the principle of power-from-within?

"Let us be clear that when I say Goddess I am not talking about a being somewhere outside of this world, nor am I proposing a new belief system. I am talking about choosing an attitude: choosing to take this living world, the people and creatures on it, as the ultimate meaning and purpose of life, to see the world, the earth, and our lives as sacred.

"For women, the symbol of the Goddess is profoundly liberating, restoring a sense of authority and power to the female body and all the life processes: birth, growth, lovemaking, aging, and death.

"The answers I propose involve magic, which I define as the art of changing consciousness at will. According to that definition, magic encompasses political action, which is aimed at changing consciousness and thereby causing change.

"Magical techniques are effective for and based upon the calling forth of power-from-within, because magic is the psychology/technology of immanence, of the understanding that everything is connected.

"Transforming the inner landscape is only a first step. Unless we change the structures of the culture, we will mirror them again and again; we will be caught in a constant battle to avoid being molded again into an image of domination. Reclaiming personal power gives us the courage to demand a change in the basis of society's power."

• • •

Last August word spread of a meeting of individuals interested in facilitating information exchange and organizing work in the new effort to form an American, democratic, decentralist ecological political organization with kinship to the "Greens" of Europe.

CHARLENE SPRETNAK and FRITJOF CAPRA, authors of Green Politics: The Global Promise, will talk October 4-6 about this conference and the plans that have sprung from it. A tentative list of values has emerged—values the participants feel are not being addressed by the left/right political spectrum: ecological wisdom, decentralization, grassroots democracy, cooperative economics, global responsibility, inclusiveness, feminist values, personal and social responsibility, nonviolence, and "future focus," or learning to image the long-range future and move beyond short-range selfish interest.

Ways of Being at Esalen

There are various ways to experience Esalen, ranging from a visit to the hot springs on a week night to a long-term stay as a student or resident. The weekend and five-day workshops described throughout the catalog are the standard route for coming to Esalen and learning the various methods of personal growth and self-exploration that are available here. The Experiencing Esalen workshops are a kind of smorgasbord introduction to some of these many practices (such as gestalt, massage, sensory awareness, etc.); from such a sampling, the participant can then choose those approaches which feel most appropriate and pursue them in subsequent seminars. For those who wish an extended stay of a month or more there is an Ongoing Residence Program. Other long-term programs include the "month-longs" coordinated by individuals such as Stan Grof and David Schiffman, which frequently involve didactic seminars as well as experiential workshops. These can be particularly useful for professionals and graduate students.

A very popular way of being at Esalen, and one that allows a much greater involvement with the place and its community at a lower expense, is the Work Study Program, which entails working with the Esalen staff as well as participating in an on-going workshop designed specifically for that program. See page 42 for more information and an application form.

In addition, there are other events which enrich life at Esalen. There are frequent forums in which various writers and thinkers, both visiting and resident, share their ideas with the community. On Wednesday nights, there may be lectures, films, dance performances, choirs, puppet shows, or other forms of entertainment. Body work of various kinds is available by appointment with individual practitioners, including massage, deep tissue, polarity, and Rolfing®. Individual sessions are also available for various types of process work, including gestalt, neo-Reichian emotional release, vision improvement, music gestalt, etc. Finally, there is a Community Workshop program which goes on daily, and provides many opportunities for engaging in personal self-exploration or learning new approaches to human growth.

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt & John Soper

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness, group process, guided fantasy, meditation, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim, (Bantam).

Schedule:

May 5–10	$450
May 31–June 2	$230
June 2–7	$450
June 14–16	$230
June 16–21	$450
July 14–19	$450
July 26–28	$230
July 28–August 2	$450
August 23–25	$230
August 25–30	$450
September 13–15	$230
September 29–October 4	$450
October 11–13	$230
October 20–25	$450

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Lia Thompson & Deborah Anne Medow

We spend much of our time on "automatic pilot," oblivious to many messages from our bodies, missing opportunities to open more fully to the subtleties of sensing, to greater ranges of physical expression, to health, vitality, and the many ways of "being a body." There are various entry points to increased awareness, practices that help cultivate the countless dialects of body language. These include dance, aerobic and stretching exercise, movement theater, postural analysis, hiking, meditation, massage, and nutritional education. Experiencing Esalen: The Body draws from varying combinations of these approaches in each workshop. Emphasis is placed on developing greater freedom and variety of movement, as well as on the quality of awareness as we move. This program is designed to give participants some basic tools for continuing to develop body awareness.

Schedule:

May 3–5	$230
May 19–24	$450
June 21–23	$230
June 30–July 5	$450
July 12–14	$230
August 16–18	$230
September 1–6	$450
September 27–29	$230
October 11–13	$230
October 20–25	$450

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff
Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
and used—is inexhaustible.
—Lao Tzu

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, non-coercive, non-judgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Participants are explicitly not patients but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The leader functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth, rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Although open seat work is the primary form of this practice, guided fantasy, breath meditations, and movement sessions may be included. Each gestalt practice group will have a member of the Esalen gestalt staff as its primary leader. The name of this leader will be listed in the office three weeks in advance of the workshop. Please call if you want this information. Other leaders may be involved in single sessions.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim and Ego, Hunger and Aggression; Lao Tze, Tao Te Ching, Nyanponika Thera, The Power of Mindfulness; J.C. Pearce, Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg; Richard Bach, Illusions.

Schedule:

May 5–10	$450
May 24–26	$230
June 2–7	$450
July 7–12	$450
August 11–16	$450
September 15–20	$450
October 13–18	$450

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff
Coordinated by Steven Harper

Located on a narrow stretch of land between the Pacific Ocean and the coastal ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains, Esalen is the trailhead to one of the world's most spectacular wilderness areas. With this natural reserve as the primary teacher, we will walk into the Los Padres National Forest. Week-long workshops will venture out on five hikes (4-10 miles in length) and weekend workshops will take two hikes (3-6 miles in length). Using Esalen as our base camp we will explore different trails through the natural beauty of the Big Sur backcountry. Days will begin and end at Esalen with short stretching and sharing sessions. Each day-hike will begin after breakfast and will conclude in time to enjoy the hot springs and dinner each evening at Esalen. We will practice basic outdoor skills such as map reading and minimum impact concepts. Participants will be taught enough skills to begin exploring the wilderness on their own after these outings. More information will be sent upon registration.

Schedule:

June 7–9	$230
June 16–21	$450
August 30–September 1	$230
September 1–6	$450

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins.

The program is divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc. Information regarding special interest sections may be obtain by writing Bette Dingman, c/o Esalen.

For a full description of the Work Study Program, please turn to page 41.

Accreditation

Many formal educational institutions recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Conferences at Esalen

It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

David Nelson

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Please mention whether you are a full-time student. Allow at least three weeks for processing as we have many applications. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

Esalen Seminars

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Weekend of May 3–5

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

"For one human being to love another: that is perhaps the most difficult of all our tasks, the ultimate, the last test and proof, the work for which all other work is but preparation."
—Rainer Maria Rilke

The goal of this weekend is to provide a context in which couples can focus and explore their relationship in the areas of communication, closeness, conflict, and individuality. A balance of structured and spontaneous interactions will be used within the framework of the large group, subgroups, and the couple. Limited to ten couples. $230

Songs of Innocence, Songs of Experience

Nancy Kaye Lunney & Jack Cirie

This weekend is for people who want to sing but are afraid or worried about what others think, for shower singers and choir members who dream of hitting the big time, and for accomplished singers who want to improve their performance. Simple movement exercises and balancing and centering practices of Leonard Energy Training (LET) will be offered to enhance the singer's sense of power and presence. Piano accompaniment and video feedback will be part of a supportive environment for self-expression. Participants are invited to bring their favorite song titles. There will also be a variety of music to choose from at Esalen. $230

Dream Discovery

Joyce Frazee

Joyce writes: "An ancient figure in many mythologies is that of the sleeper dreaming the world into being. Our ordinary, conscious mind is only a tiny sliver of all that we are, but in the dream time we are fluid. We move into, inhabit, our personal and family histories, our social and cultural histories, and the world unwinds, strand upon intertwining strand, from the dream time.

"We all dream. A beginning is to remember. The smallest dream fragment can be the first step in the journey of discovery. What we see first as discrete clues, decipherable as parts of a puzzle, become patterns, personal kaleidoscopes. The patterns, finally, are larger than any limitation of conscious meaning.

"In this workshop we will enter the dream time through exercises in recall, gestalt dream work, psychosynthesis, and the practices of the Senoi dreamers." $230

May 3–11

Big Sur Wilderness Journey from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Jessica Moore Britt & Steven Harper

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 42. $475

Week of May 5–10

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Peggy Morrison Horan & George King

In this beginning massage course, participants will be instructed in basic methods used in giving a full body massage. Related areas of work, such as breath awareness, grounding, movement, and quality of touch, will be introduced, and participants will be instructed in ways to release stress and muscular tension. The goal of this workshop is to provide the fundamental elements necessary to give a pleasurable and beneficial full body massage. $450

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

This workshop focuses on how we may consciously unfold ourselves—emotionally, sexually, mentally, and spiritually. Past anger, fear, sadness, and grief, often reflected in the body as tension, pain, lack of spontaneity, and diminished vitality, can keep one from being fully present and alive. By contacting tension and allowing emotion which has been frozen in the body, there is an opportunity to open to the creative flow of life energy within. Allowing this life energy meaningful expression, through true communication with self and others, is the essence of this work.

Some of the areas to be explored this week include: recognizing and releasing tensions which block emotion in the body; using breath and sound to energize and soften the body's tension and emotional holding; contacting and allowing unexpressed sadness and pain, which can increase the capacity for heartfulness, pleasure, and joy; expressing and releasing anger constructively, which can deepen compassion and love while also releasing blocked sexual energy; learning about the nature of fear, and moving toward greater trust of self and others. Paying special attention to the mental processes that shape the emotional and physical body, participants will be shown ways to trust their bodies' responsiveness and inner direction.

This workshop will utilize Reichian body and breath work, emotional release, gestalt practice, the Bates system of eye relaxation, massage, dance, meditation, and various other approaches. $450

Weekend of May 10–12

Leonard Energy Training and the Art of Love

George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

How can we escape sexual stereotypes? Does intimacy always have to lead to boredom? Or can we, by recognizing the uniqueness and mystery of each individual, keep our erotic life alive and exciting? In this workshop, we use the simple movement exercises and visualizations of Leonard Energy Training to explore communications and creativity in the erotic realm. Our purpose, as inspired by George Leonard's book, "The End of Sex," is not to prescribe new methods but rather to transform the way you experience your intimate relationships. The workshop is appropriate for individuals as well as couples.

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Silent Pulse and The End of Sex. $230

Issues in Early Childhood Development: A Gazebo Workshop

Lia Thompson & Perry Holloman, with Riley Thompson-Clark & Maya Holloman

As children gather information about themselves, their environment, and others, they learn to make decisions based upon their experiences. As parents/teachers, to what degree do/should we intrude on or interfere with this information-gathering process?

We will look at cycles of aggression, sexuality, and danger in early childhood, and consider how children move toward courage, compassion, and creativity. Esalen's Gazebo School staff endeavors to allow children to exercise their initiative within a structure of safety in order to come to their own resolutions. This is a time for families to come together to explore and seek options in their unique situations, however challenging. $230

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

The Challenge of Change: Findhorn to Mount Shasta

Peter Caddy

Peter will share his recent experiences of starting a new center and community in Northern California near Mount Shasta. A quest for wholeness culminating in a new marriage and fatherhood at age 67 provides additional insight regarding the vital importance of balancing masculine / feminine principles.

Peter will discuss: spiritual principles applicable to daily life (trusting inner guidance, power of attunement, laws of manifestation, and cooperation with nature); principles for building relationships, community, and effective networks; and challenges of the '80s and prophesies of earth changes, with an understanding of how we can actually co-create a more positive future together. $230

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

This is a workshop on Soviet-American cross-cultural understanding. Through bargaining, mediating, and role-playing, participants can discover the subconscious cultural imperatives that impel the two nations apart and begin to identify those elements that bring them together. The workshop sets out to shatter egotistical mirror-imaging and begin the construction of authentic Soviet-American relationships in the world as it now exists. $230

Week of May 12–17

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani)

This is a week of intense body work, structured for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, and a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released and positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and pleasure can be experienced more fully. A most important feature of the workshop is the individual Radix® —Reichian intensive, done in a safe, supportive environment. A new capacity for living can emerge through use of dreamwork, hypnosis, chiropractic, bioenergetics, massage, dance, and group interaction as one lets go and moves on. $450

Transforming Fear

George Pennington

George writes: "Fear is—and has always been—the Great Stopper, the Guardian of the Threshold. Every true growth experience, every new step in life is preceded by fear. Sometimes it is so powerful that every cell of our body seems to scream: "Stop! Stay where you are! This is not for you!" Then it is hard to keep going. It seems so much easier to quit, and in fact we often do.

"We can, however, learn to lose our fear of being afraid. In this workshop we will encounter all the symptoms of fear: pounding heart, sweaty hands, cold feet, knot in the stomach, blank mind. Step by step, we will learn to face our fears, in full awareness: the small and the big, the personal, social, and existential. The safe frame of the group will allow us to do this in a very practical, honest, and humorous way. Fear is thus transformed; from a terrifying demon it changes into a familiar friend and advisor on the path."

Recommended reading: George Pennington, Little Manual for the Players of the Glass Bead Game (Elements Books, Great Britain). $450

The Hero's Journey

Paul Rebillot

Paul Rebillot writes: "Again and again, in my work with people, I have seen the suffering and confusion caused by our society's lack of significant rites of passage. Without shamans or ritual masters to guide them, modern women and men must find their own lonely and usually traumatic paths from one stage of life to another—whether it be a child's discovery that there is no Santa Claus, the adolescent's awkward approach to puberty, marriage or the ending of a marriage, or a change of career. Every such change requires a movement from one level of being to another.

"Seeing this need, I created a rite of passage universal enough to allow people to discover the pattern of change, whatever that change might be. That pattern is exemplified in the myth of the hero. The new stage of life that is to be reached calls forth a heroic action on the part of the person taking the journey. At the same time, as soon as a new goal begins to emerge, all of the resistance to that goal emerges as well. I call these two forces 'the hero' and 'the demon.' In order for the new state of being to be realized, these two forces must discover how to communicate with each other and how to work together. The old forms must fall away so that the new form can emerge.

"My purpose is to give people a chance to experience a rite of passage so that they can go into the changes in their lives with a sense of joy and greater context. My hope is that through this process people will awaken to their own creative genius and enter into the drama of their lives with imagination and delight."

Recommended reading: Joseph Campbell, The Hero With a Thousand Faces (Bollingen) and Myths to Live By (Bantam). $450

May 12–June 7

Frontiers of Modern Consciousness Research: Emergence of a New Paradigm

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 44. $1800

Weekend of May 17–19

Leonard Energy Training: The State of the Art

George Leonard
& Leonard Energy Training Staff

In the world of Leonard Energy Training, problems can become opportunities. Stress and pain become gifts of energy. Personal and social options may be multiplied and the flow of vital energy enhanced. Leonard Energy Training is derived from the Eastern art of aikido as well as from Western psychology and physical theory. It is a comprehensive body of work that teaches practical, alternative ways of dealing with life situations. It is not physically demanding. It does not aim at emotional catharsis. Most of the training involves simple movement exercises in which the body itself becomes a learning facility. Participants will practice such things as centering, relaxing under pressure, blending, and alternative ways of being. There will also be discussions of applications to education, sports, management, relationships, social transformation, and personal growth.

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Ultimate Athlete and The Silent Pulse. $230

Exorcising the Demon "Should"

Paul Rebillot

Within each of us there lives a demon—our own personal critic—whose greatest joy comes from criticizing, denigrating, and destroying every experience we have. We're either too early or too late, too old or too young, too fat or too thin, and when we fall in love, we're never good enough.

This demon, who commands us to be who we aren't in order to satisfy someone we can never satisfy, is the demon that we will seek to exorcise during the weekend.

What if you actually tried to be everything you think you should be? This monumental task is made easier when confronted with laughter. We will build up that image, and then act it out as fully as we possibly can. We'll contrast that with the experience of ourselves as we are spontaneously. With the help of this experience in contrasts, we will explore our possibilities of movement between the two, and in this way open up our options to the full range of our own authentic being. $230

Awakening the Heart, Opening the Mind: Buddhist Teaching in Meditation and Compassion

Sogyal Rinpoche

Out of the practice of sitting meditation can come a calmness of mind, bringing clarity, warmth, and confidence. This is the basis for 'taming' the mind to go beyond its self-centered concerns and generate good heart and compassion for others. Rinpoche will base his teaching on the text Training the Mind in Seven Points by the great Indian master Atisha, who taught in Tibet about 1000 A.D. He will draw upon commentaries on this teaching by other masters, and introduce specific exercises designed to generate compassion. $230

Week of May 19–24

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Change and Self-Esteem

Phyllis Shankman

Change is an ever-present aspect of living which must be accepted and used creatively if we are to sustain a healthy, interesting and exciting life. Most often we find ourselves actively or passively resisting change while we talk about wanting it. Self-esteem, which includes self-acceptance, self-appreciation, and self-confidence, is the aspect of self which enables us to confront our resistance and fear, and increases our willingness to change and to take risks.

In this workshop we will focus on the ability of each individual in the group to find and allow more self-acceptance and a sense of well-being that will enable them creatively to confront opportunities for potential growth during the week. Group activities will include gestalt process work, group discussions, massage, meditation, music, dance, art imagery exercises, and whatever else happens spontaneously. $450

Rolfing®, Feldenkrais, and Other Methods for Releasing Pain and Tension

Dub Leigh & Dee Dee Lozier

This workshop is designed for people who want to learn to move with more freedom, ease, and awareness, and to get release from chronic pain and tension. Through different types of body work, participants will have the opportunity to explore experientially methods to free up constricted movements.

The leaders will offer participants sessions in body work and instruction in group movement including: Moshe Feldenkrais' awareness work, deep tissue work as taught by Ida Rolf, and trigger point work. $450

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman
assisted by Maria & Perry Holloman

For many people, feelings are something mysterious, something to keep to one's self, or something to think about. This workshop is about all the steps involved in learning to experience, respect, and honor one's feeling process in a way that will increase vitality and personal effectiveness. Participants can learn to separate feelings from thoughts, learn from their own body rhythms, learn to contact their own wisdom, and participate, in a safe environment, in the choice of expression or depression. $450

Weekend of May 24–26

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Weekend Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Arthur Munyer

This weekend workshop provides instruction in basic methods used in giving a massage, with additional work on quality of touch, breath awareness, centering, and sensitive rapport between partners. The purpose of the workshop is to introduce massage as a practical approach to developing greater sensory awareness and relief from stress. $230

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self-concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and group process methods, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive functioning. $230

Burnout in Relationship

Ayala Pines

Relationships burn out most commonly through gradual erosion, gradual increase in boredom, and gradual buildup of petty annoyances and small dissatisfactions. It is often difficult to single out one precipitating cause of the stress. Like the straw that broke the camel's back, marriages are broken by the accumulated weight of daily hassles and pressures.

While burnout can be an extraordinarily painful experience, it can be conquered. As is the case with most difficult emotional experiences, if properly dealt with, burnout can provide a trigger for relationship enrichment, increased closeness, and growth. Consequently, couples who have experienced burnout and have learned to cope with it effectively, often end up with a better, fuller, more exciting relationship than if they had not experienced burnout at all.

The workshop is recommended for marriage and family counselors and especially for couples committed to keeping the spark alive in their relationship. $230

Week of May 26–31

Advanced Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Vicki Topp

This workshop will include morning and afternoon practice sessions with various instructors, yoga, movement, evening lectures and discussions, and demonstrations of specific practices designed to increase the range of conditions with which participants can deal effectively. The following concerns will receive emphasis: how to sustain one's energy through a day of treatments; how to clear negative energy released by the client; how to use weight and leverage. As one massages more and more deeply, emotional changes can be triggered by the unravelling of blocked muscular energy. As these emotions present themselves, they will provide group members with some first hand practice in productive ways to move through them.

The format and pace of this course will presume some previous massage experience—at least an introductory five-day intensive or its equivalent. With your deposit, please include a list of your previous massage experience. $450

Integrity

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

In this workshop participants will join to build a community whose foundation is trust, good will, and authenticity. This community will be a place in which each participant can sense and experience clearly his or her own capacity for tenderness, strength, and self-respect. Participants will explore the boundaries of their emotional, physical, and mental potentials and how they affect sexuality, relation to power, friendships, creativity, and expectations of self and others. $450

Wild Dance: Movement in Wilderness

Susan Harper & Steven Harper

"Wild Dance" is an invitation to explore natural movements inspired within the human organism by participation in nature. We listen to impulses within and to impulses of wilderness until "inner" and "outer" disappear. As we surrender to the intelligence which creates life in all its varied forms, we may find ourselves moving in unexpected ways. Our awareness may expand. We may feel a larger sense of self and wilderness, and the creative wholeness of a greater dance.

Sessions will be both indoors and outdoors. Evenings, some day sessions, and most meals will be at Esalen. We will also take short day hikes in Big Sur's backcountry. Participants need not have previous experience in hiking or dance. Come willing and ready to participate in nature's range of motion. $450

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

It is rare for most people to use painting for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to paint purely for the process of exploration, not for the result.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide a setting to explore the deepest parts of ourselves through painting—to discover in form and color a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to emotional and spiritual expression. Participants are given the opportunity to discover a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling.

The work takes place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, and a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. The workshop may be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122. (415) 564-8515. $450 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders)

May 26–June 2

Seasons of a Woman's Life: Self-Exploration in the Wilderness

Annie Callaway-Galland & Marilyn Mason

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 42. $495

Weekend of May 31–June 2

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

The work of Moshe Feldenkrais is based on the natural process by which we learned to move as children. During this workshop soft, easy, gentle movements will be used to increase awareness of the body and to improve the ease and ability of movement. Special emphasis will be placed on the difficulties in movement that arise from chronic conditions such as lower back and neck pain, shoulder pain, tension in the neck and shoulders, and knee injuries. Such conditions can be improved by approaching the difficulties as problems in learning rather than as therapeutic troubles. Situations which were "incurable" become "reeducable." Workshop participants will also be introduced to methods to improve their ability to sense each others' bodies through touch and massage.

Although this workshop will be of value to anyone interested in learning more about their bodies through direct experience, it may be of special interest and benefit to dancers, athletes, doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists, health-care professionals, and elderly citizens, who may find themselves discovering new ways of moving with ease and increased flexibility—painlessly and immediately. $230

Near Death Experiences and Human Evolution

Kenneth Ring

In the mid-1970s, tremendous interest in the experience of dying was kindled by the work of Elizabeth Kubler-Ross and Raymond Moody (author of Life After Life). Since then abundant scientific documentation of their basic findings has been compiled. Recently there has been great interest in exploring the spiritual implications of the near-death experience (NDE) and the ways we can draw on this research in dealing with death and dying.

This workshop will begin by reviewing the most recent research in the field and will continue with an in-depth examination of the significance of NDE's, for both everyday life and planetary evolution. Featured in this workshop will be material from Kenneth Ring's new book, Heading Toward Omega, which deals primarily with the transformative power of NDE's.

Although oriented toward persons who are attuned to the spiritual significance of NDE's, this program will also be of special interest to nurses and others involved in the health professions. People who have undergone NDE's are particularly welcome to attend this workshop. Films and video tapes will be incorporated into the workshop which will encompass a combination of didactic and experiential formats.

Recommended reading: Kenneth Ring, Life at Death and Heading Toward Omega (Morrow, N.Y.). $230

Inner Sound and Voice

Jill Purce

By freeing our voice, we make contact with deep levels of the Self, releasing untapped energy sources. In this workshop we will explore sound for healing and transforming consciousness. We will work with the psychophysical effects of breathing through chanting and mantric and sonic meditations. We will develop breath and sound to enable body-mind resonance. We will learn to give sonic massages, to heal and tune the chakras and subtle body.

We will focus on discovering our own note and inner sound, using mystical sound practices from traditional cultures, exploring trance and mind-transforming music, mantra, and musical medicine. $230

Week of June 2–7

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Resolving Patterns of Stress

Peter Levine & Michael Salveson

Stress affects the nervous system and body structure adversely. Many negative effects can be reversed by appropriately resolving the muscular and neurological holding patterns which contribute to maintaining the stressed state.

Concepts and methods from nervous-system research, clinical practice, and direct body approaches will be presented and discussed in the context of perceiving body types, and understanding physiological signals. Tools will be offered for interpreting and working with tension patterns, posture, movement, emotion, and respiratory-autonomic (stress) responses. These aspects of practice will be integrated into an assessment by the health-care planner.

This workshop would be of particular use to professionals in the fields of physical health-care, chiropractic, body work, counseling, biofeedback, nursing, and general medicine. $450

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter & Marianne Paschke-Carter

"Wisdom is the intelligence of the system as a whole."—Gregory Bateson

"Your conscious mind is very intelligent, and your unconscious mind is a hell of a lot smarter," —M.H. Erickson

Paul writes: "We have an intelligence obtained from our wholeness that is far greater than we are ordinarily conscious of. Erickson called it the 'unconscious mind.' Accessing and integrating this intelligence formed the basis of his hypnotic work.

"This workshop is designed for people who work with people and would like experience with Ericksonian hypnosis, communication, and problem-solving. The emphasis will be on developing a practical understanding of the principles of this approach including trance as a natural and necessary part of health and the idea that people are paradoxical and so too must their communication and problem-solving be paradoxical.

"Through guided exercises and demonstrations, participants will be taught the hypnotic use of metaphor in movement, sound, image, and story, as well as the hypnotic realities of age-regression, age-progression (traveling into futures), lucid dreaming, dissociation, and deep-trance identification (a process of deepening self-awareness through identification with different persons in and out of trance).

"Additional exploration will include: the recognition and use of spontaneous trance states that commonly occur in the course of body work, acupuncture, movement and dance, sports, counseling, and everyday stress situations; the art of using all of the system, including the bad, sick, crazy, and resistant parts; the value of humor, confusion, pattern interruption, and paradox in accessing unconscious creativity and resources; and an integrative approach to problem-solving and self-healing as described in my soon-to-be published book, The Parts Model.

"Course prerequisites: a sense of humor, a warm heart, a little skepticism, a little trust, and an unconscious mind."

Recommended reading: Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (W.W. Norton & Co.); Jeffrey Zeig, Editor, Ericksonian Approaches to Hypnosis and Psychotherapy (Brunner & Mazel). $450

Weekend of June 7–9

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 13. $230

Alternatives for Managers

Susan & Joel Kirsch

Whether you manage a small business, a household, a work group, or a major corporation, you probably wrestle with these questions: How can I respond to the changes that constantly bombard me? What can I do to deal with the stress of my job? How can I provide the most effective leadership? Is it possible to convert difficulties and problems into opportunities for further growth and development?

This workshop is based on a unique reliance on the body as teacher. Simple physical movement activities, derived from the sophisticated martial art of aikido and Leonard Energy Training, provide an experiential foundation for discovering managerial principles. The physical activities serve as a complement to the cognitive and are used in conjunction with group discussion, role play, lectures, and paper-pencil activities. Participants will have a chance to apply the principles to current work-related issues and to experiment with alternative ways to enhance personal and professional performance. $230

Morphic Resonance: the Presence of the Past

Rupert Sheldrake

The hypothesis of formative causation, first put forward in 1981 in A New Science of Life, proposes that the form and behavior of organisms are influenced by past organisms of the same species through morphogenetic fields, by the process of morphic resonance. These fields represent a kind of collective memory. The hypothesis predicts that when some members of a species learn something new, the ability to learn it should increase all over the world. There is already experimental evidence that this remarkable effect actually occurs.

After a preliminary discussion of this hypothesis and the latest experimental results, we will explore some of its many implications, particularly in relation to inheritance, memory, paranormal phenomena, and ritual.

Recommended reading: Rupert Sheldrake, A New Science of Life (J.P. Tarcher). $230

The Emerging Curriculum: A Gazebo Workshop

Lia Thompson & Perry Holloman with Riley Thompson-Clark & Maya Holloman

We will consider the conditions for optimal development in early childhood. A child's knowledge of the world develops through body movement and sensory contact with his/her surroundings. The emerging curriculum is an organic process in which the physical/social environment is the classroom at any moment. Using the Gazebo school's learning center and the Esalen grounds, we will explore the concept of intelligence as developed through full interaction with the environment. $230

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Week of June 9–14

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see May 5-10. $450

New Light on Earth: The Near-Death Experience and Human Transformation

Kenneth Ring

In the past decade, much research has been done to establish that the near-death experience (NDE) is an authentic and widespread phenomenon of our time. Recently, as a result of new studies demonstrating the transformative power of the NDE, it has begun to appear that NDE's are one modern form of initiation into ancient mysteries. According to a Gallup poll, literally millions of people within a short span of time have undergone life-changing transformations associated with NDE's.

We will be exploring implications of NDE's for human transformation and planetary culture in the New Age. We will consider in depth such topics as: recent research into the NDE and its after-effects; the new mythology of death emerging from the field of near-death studies; and the evolutionary nature of the NDE. In addition to didactic sessions and discussion, the workshop will include experiential exercises, films, and video tapes.

This program is intended for anyone who is interested in learning about NDE's, and is especially designed for persons seeking to understand how they may better align themselves with the transformative power of the NDE itself. Those people who have had an NDE or a similar experience are particularly encouraged to participate. $450

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Creating Musical Theater: The Stray Cat Strut

The Return of Encounter

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

Will Schutz writes: "Encounter groups in the early '70s spread rapidly across the United States and Europe, helped Esalen become nationally known, and then came upon hard times. Encounter for some became anathema, an activity to be shunned. Rather than disappearing, however, encounter donned new clothes and titles, surfacing as communications, human relations, consciousness-raising, and process groups.

"This workshop will explore encounter's maturing and continuing value. In its best form, it is a method for the non-judgmental exploration of self and relationships, basically little more than telling the truth both to others and to yourself, and taking responsibility for yourself."

Recommended reading: Will Schutz, Elements of Encounter, Profound Simplicity, and The Truth Option (all available through WSA, Box 259, Muir Beach, CA 94965). $450

Integration

Deborah Anne Medow

Deborah writes: "The body reflects what is going on in the mind. By working with my body through exercise, yoga, massage, or whatever practice it is that I do, I can influence my thoughts and habits—my whole pattern of living. Conversely, changing my mental attitudes can effect a gradual transformation of my body.

"Having integrated into my life various practices and activities including yoga, massage, movement, hiking, gestalt, and interpersonal process, I have found a new awareness of the levels at which I am working and where my limitations lie in these areas. By recognizing my limitations, I am able to see with more clarity where and how to proceed to bring about growth and change.

"Participants will be presented with guidelines to integrate both their own practices and those offered in the workshop. In the mornings we will come together for yoga followed by a light breakfast. In some of the sessions following, we will explore creative movement and dance, out of which can evolve a deeper understanding of each individual's inner rhythms. Other sessions will include the practices listed above and an opportunity during an afternoon hike to observe nature's cycles as a way to reflect on our own natural cycles and movements." $450

Aggression, Sexuality, and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Janet Lederman & Gazebo Staff

How do children gather information and learn to make decisions based on what they have gathered? As parents and teachers, to what degree do/should we intrude or interfere in this information-gathering process? We will examine the critical role that parents, teachers, and other children play in the development of a child's total abilities.

The Gazebo staff believe that allowing a child full interaction with his/her environment, imposing as few limitations as possible, greatly enhances the child's social skills. Particularly in the areas of conflict resolution and natural sexual exploration, the Gazebo experience has enabled children to exercise their initiative successfully. Families may come together in this workshop to discover some of their own resolutions for current challenging situations. $450

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Weekend of June 14–16

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Weekend Massage Intensive

Jaime Morton & Vicki Topp

For workshop description see May 24-26. $230

Reprinting: A Growth Process

Hector Prestera

How does one become un-stuck from imprinted experiences and more fully realize inner power? Through various approaches including body reading, light trance work, and anchoring (Erickson), participants can explore how powerful the unconscious is in keeping old behavioral patterns locked in, and consider opening new doors toward growth and freedom. New models of behavior can become available.

The workshop will feature individual and group processes, including body release approaches.

Recommended reading: Hector Prestera and Ron Kurtz, The Body Reveals (Harper & Row). $230

Other Lives, Other Selves

Jennifer & Roger Woolger

This workshop teaches a specific form of Jung's method of active imagination whereby we can easily enter the collective unconscious and vividly recall detailed memories of other eras through an ego consciousness quite different from our present identity. Each other "life" we remember can be understood psychologically in much the way that secondary personalities in our dreams can reflect integrated parts of the self. This "remembering" of other lives can offer a number of valuable benefits: cathartic release from deep-seated fears and bodily tensions; glimpses of unexplored potentials in ourselves; new and often startling light on areas in our lives where we feel stuck and hopeless; personal experience of the death transition to higher states of consciousness. In the workshop there will be individual demonstrations, supervised work in pairs, and group processing and discussion of the material. $230

The Future of the Body: The Transformation Project

Michael Murphy & Steven Donovan

In his novel, Jacob Atabet, Michael Murphy speculated that a next stage of human development might involve the power to alter the physical body at will. He is developing this idea more thoroughly in a book, The Future of the Body, and through the Transformation Project, organized in 1976 to compile and analyze a broad range of scientific, speculative, and anecdotal literature on bodily transformation. Murphy will discuss some of the major ideas of his current book, and Donovan will present results to date of the Transformation Project.

Recommended reading: Michael Murphy, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports. $230

Week of June 16–21

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 13. $450

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

"Freedom: A state of being in which man's relatedness to life is unobstructed."
—M.C. Richards, Centering

Stress-related tension and emotional blocks restrict our capacity for feelings and expressions of aliveness. This workshop is a carefully chosen introduction to a variety of body approaches that release limiting patterns to promote kinesthetic awareness, spontaneity, grace, and mental flexibility. Methods may include imagery, sensory awareness, Feldenkrais, gestalt, Rolf® movement, massage, Reichian breath work, and video feedback. $450

Five Days with Jack Rosenberg

This workshop is aimed at awakening and sustaining awareness of body, self, and soul, as well as examining the anatomy and function of intimate relationships. The method can be described as gestalt body work with a distinct leaning toward the transpersonal aspects of life. During the workshop participants will explore many aspects of Jack Rosenberg's energetic approach to sexuality, the energetic field of the body, and the belief systems which keep us locked in obsolete behavior patterns. $450

Weekend of June 21–23

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and developing of positive, mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of loving and personal integrity. Participants will work with their beliefs and habits through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, guided imagery, and gestalt awareness methods. $230

Awake in Your Dreams

Stephen LaBerge

Lucid dreaming means dreaming while knowing that we are dreaming. The presence of consciousness during this extraordinary state of consciousness allows us to respond flexibly and creatively to the flow of dream experience. We are in a unique position to control our dreams; this control brings within reach a remarkable range of possibilities from indulging your wildest fantasies to fulfilling your highest spiritual aspirations.

For most of us, lucid dreams are as rare as the waking peak experiences to which they are analogous. This need not be so; workshop participants will learn how to develop the skill of lucid dreaming. The results of recent scientific research will be presented and participants will be exposed to a wide variety of uses to which the world of lucid dreaming can be put, including self-exploration, creative problem solving, healing, adventure, and, perhaps most importantly, a way of self-integration leading to the transpersonal realms.

The emphasis will be on improving the quality of the dreamer's experience while in the dream. This means self-control, not dream control; changing the context rather than the content of the dream. Ann Faraday has called lucid dreaming "one of the most exciting frontiers of human experience." This workshop will provide an opportunity to find out why.

Recommended reading: Stephen LaBerge, Lucid Dreaming (J.P. Tarcher). $230

Introduction to the Viking Runes

Ralph Blum

For almost 2000 years, western peoples possessed a system for divination and insight into the present and the future—the Runes. Described as "the I Ching of the Vikings," the Runes served as an oracle—each symbol having a specific meaning and message—and rune-casters, often women, accompanied the Vikings on their long voyages. Then, for three centuries, the Runes were eclipsed, their practice and wisdom lost.

In 1975, Ralph Blum began working with the most ancient Germanic Runes, rediscovering meaning for the individual Rune stones and devising methods for their use. Margaret Mead said of his work: "It's high time someone treated the Runes as part of living western shamanism. We need our shamans, and you don't have to make an appointment to see your Runes."

In this introductory workshop, he will present the origin, history, meaning of the Runes, and how to work with them for self-counseling, decision making, obtaining information at a distance.

There will be individual Rune readings for workshop participants.

Recommended reading: Ralph Blum, The Book of Runes (St. Martin's Press; Rune stones and bag come with book). $230

The Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program: An Update

James Hickman
& the Exchange Program Staff

Since its inception in 1979, the Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program has demonstrated significant success in pioneering innovative and imaginative approaches to Soviet-American cooperation. Based on our two nations' common interest in human potential and consciousness, our non-governmental approach to peacemaking emphasizes the need for understanding both the similarities and the differences in disparate cultures.

This project has emerged over the past ten years as members of the Exchange have traveled extensively throughout the Soviet Union establishing personal relationships with Soviets from all walks of life including scientists, political philosophers, artists, athletes, and government officials.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Viking Rune Stones

In this seminar we will review the projects in the Exchange Program to date: exchanges of professionals from the two nations; the creation of an international forum for cosmonaut / astronaut dialogues; the dramatic potential for using the latest satellite communications technology for linking together large groups of Soviets and Americans; the collaboration between Esalen and the Soviet Ministry of Health in the areas of holistic health, wellness and physical fitness; the establishment of a Soviet Studies Center at Esalen's Big Sur facility.

We will share our insights about the intellectual, cultural, and spiritual aspects of the transformational journey on which we have embarked with our Soviet friends and colleagues. We will include a multimedia presentation on travel in the USSR, offer guidelines based on our experiences in citizen diplomacy, and conduct experiential sessions examining our own cultural conditioning and perceptions. The seminar leaders believe that if Americans evolve a deeper understanding of Soviet culture, the United States government might evolve a more creative Soviet-American policy.

Recommended reading: Hedrick Smith, The Russians; David Shipler, "Russia: Broken Idols, Solemn Dreams," the New Age magazine cover story on citizen diplomacy, January, 1984. $230

Week of June 23–28

Five Day Massage Intensive

George King & Brita Ostrom

For workshop description see May 5-10. $450

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support participants will clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $450

The Mystical Quest

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will include theoretical and experiential exploration of the transpersonal dimensions of the human psyche and the importance of the spiritual impulse in human beings. Special attention will be paid to the emerging world-view that integrates science and mysticism, and to the problem of "spiritual emergencies"—emotional and psychosomatic crises that can be associated with consciousness evolution. In the experiential work, we will use "holonomic integration," which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, and focused body work, and has the potential to mediate experiential access to the mystical domain. $450

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

This seminar will focus on the integration of body, mind, and spirit through intuitive and energy awareness, massage, meditation, movement, gestalt, and play. Using these tools and gentle risk-taking can help in opening to our own aliveness and ability to be more at home with ourselves. Participants will explore practical and portable ways of nourishing and trusting the inherent wisdom of the self. $450

Weekend of June 28–30

Honoring the Self

Devers & Nathaniel Branden

Nathaniel Branden writes: "In this experiential, participatory workshop, we explore the psychology of self-esteem and its relationship to personal evolution. I cannot think of a single psychological problem—from anxiety and depression, to fear of intimacy or of success, to spouse battering or child molestation, to suicide and crimes of violence—that is not traceable to the problem of a poor self-concept. Of all the judgements we pass in life, none is as important as the one we pass on ourselves. Through a variety of exercises and processes, plus some explicit teaching, we will look at the kind of behaviors that raise self-esteem and the kind that subvert it. We will see in how many ways self-concept is destiny." $230

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

In this workshop, which is open to professionals and others interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their own psi abilities, Anne and Jim will use special exercises to aid participants in exploring these abilities. They have found through their professional workshops that most of those in the helping professions are already using their sensitivity and need only learn to recognize their styles and trust the intuitive input they normally receive. During the exercises Anne will use her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity. One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive/psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $230

Love and Work

Anne & John Caple

"Work is love made visible," wrote Kahlil Gibran. In this workshop, participants will examine their work-life and work options in the context of their love for themselves, for others, and for the larger world. Working from a conceptual base, the group will use integrative exercises, art, body work, and gestalt processes to seek answers and consider life decisions. The goal is for participants to see more clearly what they want and how to get it. One outcome will be a specific action plan.

This weekend is for those who want more value in their work-life, for career changers and potential career changers, for re-entry persons, and for those who influence others in career choices. Some time will be available for individual life/work issues during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs.

Recommended reading: John Caple, Careercycles (Prentice-Hall). $230

Sojourn: The Consciousness and Chemistry of Escape

Harvey Milkman & Stanley Sunderwirth

Are criminals, cocaine users, sky divers, police, and lovers motivated by a similar adrenalin rush? Are comparable needs being met through alcoholism, overeating, and membership in a spiritually oriented group? The term addiction was once reserved for dependence on drugs. Today it is applied to a range of compulsive behaviors as disparate as working too hard and eating too much chocolate. In fact, there are essential biological, psychological, and social common denominators between drug use and other habitual behaviors. Whether your pleasure is meditation or mescaline, cocaine or cults, you are addicted if you cannot control when you start or stop the activity. Indeed, in the arena of addiction, experience is the protagonist and the users' drugs or activities of choice are merely supporting actors.

This workshop will provide participants with an understanding of critical factors which underlie causation and treatment of a broad spectrum of compulsive problem or fantasy experiences. Teaching methods are geared towards increased learning through simultaneous activation of right and left brain channels of comprehension. Information is presented via visual imagery and logical explanation, thus enhancing conceptual understanding and learning retention.

The workshop will also focus on the experiential acquisition of skills to overcome the wide variety of behaviors characterized by compulsion, loss of control, and continuation despite harmful consequences. Contemporary treatment methods will be demonstrated and practiced. $230

Week of June 30–July 5

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see May 12-17. $450

Living Hypnotically

Norman Katz & Marc Lehrer

To "live hypnotically" is to live with the benefits of greater perceptual awareness, to enhance personal creativity and most particularly to develop an ongoing relationship with the unconscious mind.

This five day seminar in altered states and hypnosis is intended to acquaint the participants with living a "hypnotic lifestyle." By understanding basic principles, participants can learn to use hypnosis as an aid to transform themselves in powerful and unique ways. Participants will be offered an opportunity to recall altered states and then to produce these states by hypnosis. $450

June 30–July 7

A Seven-Day Beginning Trager Training

Betty Fuller & Deane Juhan

In this professional training, participants are instructed in Trager table work, receiving sessions from experienced practitioners, giving to and receiving from each other under supervision. In addition, participants learn to practice and teach mentastics, learn basic communication skills, clearing exercises, and simple meditations, and have time in the group to share and process their experience. This training is open to professionals in education, body work, holistic health care, counseling, psychology, medicine, chiropractic, sports, performing arts, and other disciplines which see movement as a primary means of learning.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 44. $680

Weekend of July 5–7

Weekend Massage Intensive

Brita Ostrom & Jaime Morton

For workshop description see May 24-26. $230

Reflexology

Laura Norman

Reflexology can be a powerful healing tool which relaxes the body, recharges the mind, and revitalizes energy. It is a massage of the feet which can clear away stress and tension, stimulate the body's natural healing abilities, and help balance the system.

Participants in this workshop will have opportunity to learn specific methods as they work on one another and may then be prepared to work on themselves, loved ones, and friends. Health care professionals may wish to integrate reflexology into their work.

This workshop offers basic knowledge of reflexology, its roots and practice; the benefits of reflexology and how it can help relieve minor aches and pains as well as chronic health conditions such as back, sinus, and weight problems; an understanding of the relationship of the feet to the body—how the feet are considered mini-maps of the entire body with each "reflex point" in the foot representing and corresponding to an organ, gland or part of the body. $230

Creating Our Future

Prem Das & Rutuma

Prem Das writes: "In this workshop we will explore the origins of our personal universe. Drawing on the ancient wisdom passed down to us by shamans and yogis, we will probe into our latent potential as co-creators of the world-universe, and thus of our future."

Recommended reading: Peter Russell, The Global Brain (J.P. Tarcher); Vasily Nalimov, Realms of the Unconscious: The Enchanted Frontier (ISI Press). $230

Achieving Sustained High Performance

Jerry Fletcher

Everyone has had the experience of suddenly doing something much better than expected, yet until recently little has been known about these high performance experiences. People assumed such times were lucky accidents. More significantly, even if they could perform at a high level for short times, they have assumed there was no way to sustain such performance without stress, fatigue, and eventual burnout.

After more than six years of careful research and testing, it is clear that these times of exceptional performance are not capricious. Each individual has a unique set of conditions under which he or she performs surprisingly well. Furthermore, once people learn their personal high performance patterns, they can deliberately create the conditions they need to sustain their own high performance behavior. They do not need to subject themselves to the strain of short peak periods of high output, followed by long recovery cycles.

This seminar presents a carefully developed process for individuals to learn what their high performance patterns are, and how to adjust the way they do things to fit the conditions under which they perform exceptionally well. This seminar is a program developed through years of work with experienced, successful managers, executives, and professionals about how to go beyond competent performance in a way that can be sustained. $230

Week of July 7–12

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Emotional Crisis: Disease or Evolutionary Opportunity?

Christina & Stanislav Grof

In this workshop, participants will explore theoretically and experientially the concept that many episodes of emotional crisis and turmoil are not necessarily pathological conditions and indications of "mental disease." If properly understood and supported, they can be conducive to psychosomatic healing, personality transformation, and consciousness evolution.

Using controlled breathing, sound technology, and focused body work, we will experiment with methods for constructive support and intervention during such episodes, using a model of the psyche which includes the biographical level, the dynamics of the death-rebirth process, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experience. This workshop might be of particular interest to counselors and relatives or friends of persons in emotional crisis. $450

Zero Balancing: Beginning/Intermediate Workshop

Fritz Smith

Zero balancing is a simple yet powerful method for aligning the body structure and energy field. The structural/energetic interface of the body is beneath our conscious awareness and when imbalances occur at this level, the body tends to compensate around them rather than resolve them directly. This asymmetry often leads to loss of vitality, chronic body pain, increasing stress, and less potential for vibrant health. Zero balancing assists in overcoming these patterns of imbalance.

In this program Western anatomy, physiology, and kinesiology are reviewed and Eastern concepts of chi energy, its movement in the body, and the chakra systems are discussed. With this background information, the system of zero balancing is presented including specific guidelines for evaluating and balancing the structural/energetic interface of the body. The workshop is both didactic and experiential with the main emphasis on teaching the participants new skills in body handling. This is an accredited program toward zero balancing certification.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 44. $450

Body, Mind, and Soul in Cancer Work

Wolf Buentig

In this workshop, based on a holistic understanding of cancer, a variety of methods will be presented to those for whom cancer is an issue.

Some of the issues touched upon will be: personality, stress and host resistance; a psychosomatic model of cancer; the repression of despair, a bioenergetic process; the breakdown of communication on a cellular, organismic, interpersonal, global, and cosmic level; a systems view of cancer development; cancer as suicide; and the search for meaning. The workshop, however, will be primarily experiential, using gestalt, guided imagery, trance induction, anecdotes, and laughter. $450

Transformation Within and Without

Frances Belmonte, Charles Brandon, Cheryl Colton, Matthew Fox & Nick Herbert

Richard Falk, Milbank Professor of International Law at Princeton University writes: "Often deep transformations in structure are virtually 'invisible' to those who experience them."

It is our thesis that just such a deep transformation in structure is now taking place and that the personal and external aspects of the transformation are inter-related and in fact inseparable. It has been our experience that the awareness of the transformation of the whole can lead to a transformation of the person.

In this seminar we will explore this transformation process—both within and without—on many levels. We will renew our appreciation of mythology and will survey the extraordinary changes taking place in many areas, including physics, theology, and women's rights and roles. We will examine the proposition that these changes are facets of a singular, elemental, global process. Through the use of dramatic audio-visual material, we will accompany former astronaut Russell Schweickart on his voyage into space aboard Apollo 9 and view our home planet from a new perspective. Through another multi-screen audio-visual presentation we will examine the four major myths that have informed our view of the nature of reality: the animistic, the theological, the Newtonian physical, and the emerging quantum myth.

The workshop will provide opportunities for the sharing and processing of our experiences of the loss of old myths, of personal and global transformation, and of our visions of the future. $450

Weekend of July 12–14

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Issues in Early Childhood Development: A Gazebo Workshop

Lia Thompson & Perry Holloman with Riley Thompson-Clark & Maya Holloman

For workshop description see May 10-12. $230

Zero Balancing: Advanced Workshop

Fritz Smith

This workshop is for people who have completed at least one introductory zero balancing program. Following a review of basic concepts, we will spend time answering questions and giving individual instruction as needed. New work will focus on exploring the direct perception and assessment of energy currents in the body, refinement of evaluating and balancing the foundation joints, and discussion of non-foundation joints, including the small joints of the body. Theory will be clarified by demonstration and individual practice, using each other as models.

This is an accredited program toward zero balancing certification. $230

Sound and the Exploration of Consciousness

Terence McKenna & Ralph Metzner

In this workshop we will study and experience the relationship between sound, visions, and altered states of consciousness. We will draw on psychedelic research, shamanism, yoga, alchemy, linguistics, and ethnomusicology to explore such concepts as toning, mantra, auditory driving, morphogenetic resonance, modulation of awareness, harmonic overtones, and glossolalia. Through listening, chanting, sound-making, breathing, and movement, we can experience the primal power of sound and its evocative effects on consciousness.

Participants are encouraged to bring instruments and recorders. $230

Feeling and Relating

Joel Dueck, Anne Ruderman & Linda Rice-Mandigo

This workshop focuses on growth as a possible source of wonder, inspiration, and delight.

By using Reichian emotional release methods, such as the Radix® intensive, and by working individually within small supportive groups, participants will be given the opportunity to find that the deeply held emotions of pain, anger, and fear can be released. Such release can soften chronic unconscious patterns of tension and a new capacity for pleasure, love, and trust can follow.

As a complement to the emotional release work, approaches to group process will be introduced, providing for the subtler patterns of relating to emerge. Thus, each participant's capacity to translate personal growth into quality interaction can be developed experientially. $230

Week of July 14–19

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Feeling and Relating

Joel Dueck, Anne Ruderman & Linda Rice-Mandigo

For workshop description see July 12-14. $450

Crossroads: Awareness of Possibility of Life Change and Personal Growth

Anne Nechama Simkin

This workshop is for people who have reached an impasse in life, who feel they are at a crossroad and/or are seeking more vitality and excitement. Participants may find it is possible to become aware of exactly where they are and how they got there, and to explore ways to mobilize their energy to choose and act. Special attention will be given to the ways in which one stops seeking options, immobilizes oneself, and arrests advancing and adventuring in new directions. Emphasis will be on risk-taking in the safe, supportive milieu of the group. $450

Dreams: Energy, Imagery, Psyche, and Spirit

Kenneth Kelzer

Dreams are an ever present source of energy and imagery. These "raw materials of the psyche," when refined and assimilated, serve to elevate our lives to new dimensions. Dreams serve many important functions: returning the lost parts of the self to the conscious mind, enhancing creativity, firing the imagination, offering outrageous humor and sometimes pure inspiration. This workshop will delve into the dream state to explore its widest possible range, including the psi potential of dreams. We will use gestalt, psychodrama, Jung's depth psychology, intuition processes, and creative art media as some of our principal tools. In addition, the dream will be viewd as a channel for spiritual expansion and artistic creation, with special emphasis on the new frontier of lucid dreaming. Participants will have time to explore their own dreams during the workshop. $450

Polarity

Edward Jarvis & David Fuess

The focus of this seminar will be an understanding of the electromagnetic fields which govern the human body, with a reliance on the teaching of the late Dr. Randolph Stone, founder of modern polarity. Students will learn to find fulcrum points where the most energy may be moved with the least effort. Powerful methods to release back, pelvic, neck, and cranial blockages will be taught. Emphasis will be placed on sensitizing the student to his/her own energy system and that of the client.

David Fuess will teach the first three days and Ed Jarvis will teach the final two days. $450

July 14–18

A White Water Adventure on Idaho's Salmon River

Seymour Carter & Bob Doppelt

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 42. $550

Weekend of July 19–21

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see May 3-5. $230

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see May 24-26. $230

Making Dances

Rhonda Martyn

Rhonda writes: "In this workshop about making dances, participants will experience a good physical workout as well as the sense of accomplishment and community that derives from making and performing in the creation of dances.

"We'll begin by exploring the basic elements of movement and the craft of choreography. Then, using games, exercises, rituals, and problem solving, we'll begin to play with the creative process. As a professional choreographer, I will use workshop participants as I would professional dancers—calling on their creativity and sensibilities to help in the process of building dances. I will also coach and assist participants in making their own studies and/or dances.

"Making Dances is for people with no dance experience and with much dance experience. It's an opportunity to be both a dancer and a maker of dances." $230

Physics Weekend: Bell's Theorem and the Nature of Reality

Nick Herbert & Heinz Pagels

Quantum theory is universally successful in describing nature at all levels accessible to experiment. However, this comprehensive practical success is accompanied by an unprecedented disagreement as to what quantum theory actually means, and a corresponding confusion as to what sort of reality supports the phenomenal world.

Controversy over the nature of deep reality has been sharpened by Bell's Theorem, which proves that any conceivable objective reality underlying the facts of experience must be independent of space and time. Thus either there is no ultimate objective reality, or this reality is more peculiar than we have been led (by ordinary physics) to believe. The impact of Bell's Theorem is just beginning to be felt in the world of physics, but it is rather like the situation of the Michelson-Morley experiment, which led to Einstein's theory of relativity. Just what the current controversy in the foundations of physics will lead to is not yet clear, but the various possibilities will be explored in this weekend presentation.

Recommended reading: Nick Herbert, Quantum Reality (Doubleday, 1985); Heinz Pagels, The Cosmic Code (Simon & Schuster). $230

Week of July 21–26

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Peggy Morrison Horan & Brita Ostrom

For workshop description see May 5-10. $450

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

For workshop description see June 16-21. $450

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

To make effective, creative choices you need courage, imagination, and the willingness to know your heart and be true to the dreams that live inside it. Choosing this deeper wisdom can often involve the risk of breaking set—the choice to move against the powerful grain of old fears, habits, and the constant pressures of other people's expectations. To foster this spirit means contacting the elemental-instinctual parts of our natures, befriending rather than suppressing or denying the sexuality and the power out of which initiative and enthusiasm spring.

In this week we will focus on how to develop those qualities in ourselves that contribute to a more adventurous, resourceful, and buoyant way of living. In an atmosphere based in warmth and humor we will explore our capacity for mutual tenderness, respect, and honesty. Traditional psychological practices such as gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis will be used for intensive individual work, as well as non-traditional innovative approaches in body work, kinesthetic retraining, music, and guided imagery. $450

NLP, Hypnosis, and Reichian Bodywork

David Silverstein & Yvonne Ginsberg

This workshop will allow individuals to explore their process using Reichian bodywork, neurolinguistic programming (NLP), and hypnosis. Each person will have ample opportunity to work individually as well as in group. By loosening the body armor through Reichian work, participants may become more receptive to exploring their emotions and their unconscious. Hypnosis will be used to help experience and re-experience fantasies, dreams, and unfinished situations. NLP offers the possibility of changing beliefs and criteria that keep our lives limited to familiar patterns. Throughout the workshop there will be gentle encouraging to realize that our experience is within our means to define and create. In bringing together these approaches to human development, we wish to create an environment which respects each individual's natural growth process. $450

Reflectors

Jenny O'Conner & the NINE

"In this form we become bridge between whole and unwhole, happy and sad, good and bad. We are thought form, the first thought as you, as mankind, assumed shape and the last thought as you choose to leave. What remains is afterthought or vibration as we know it, and so the form begins again. The vibration came before the chicken."—The NINE

"This workshop is an invitation to spend time with The NINE in dialogue and self-discovery. As they move to answer questions, they create a kind of language that bypasses the mental structures of the brain and enters through the pores of the body. It can be beyond expectation because it enters the space between all expectations and, caught unawares, you may find yourself looking at a reflection of yourself that is shockingly familiar, for there may be more of you than you ever believed possible. You may well be compelled to reach across that space between the masks you carry and the self you don't quite yet believe possible and so put the strain of your theater to rest for a while. All this through a meeting, a few questions that seem simple enough in the asking but may rebound in a way that strikes far beyond what you thought you asked. It is a very fast way to know yourself better, in a form that teaches through compassion, humor, intelligence, and a vital concern for the future of us and our planet."—Jenny O'Connor $450

July 21–27

The Grand Tetons: A Mountain Odyssey

Annie Callaway-Galland & Dick Galland

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 43. $525

Weekend of July 26–28

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see June 28-30. $230

Relating: The Easy Way

Wendy Oser & Tom Taussig

The quality of life is intimately connected to how people relate: to those they love, to coworkers and, especially to themselves.

During this weekend we will provide opportunities to share strategies, notice beliefs, and clarify priorities. We will use individual and group processes as well as video feedback to discover how to bring more ease into relationship.

Kathleen Thormod

Our purpose is to move away from stress and dissatisfaction in the interest of more delight and greater equilibrium. The weekend is intended to be a practice session in doing it the easy way. $230

Watercolor Painting and Energy Awareness

Annie Styron Leonard & Jackie Kirk

"The 'presence' of Rembrandt's portraits was, in part, in the very act of moving his hand and conveying his energy to bring these figures to life . . . Rembrandt transmits his own energy, his own life, in the act of making a brushstroke."
—Nathan Oliveira

This workshop is designed to help us tap into our vital energy, the force that makes it possible for us to express ourselves through art. By combining Leonard Energy Training (LET) exercises with watercolor painting, we'll use our entire body to help us see the world around us more clearly as well as learn how to be more centered, relaxed, and creative while painting. Activities will include demonstrations in watercolor and LET, short field trips, individual instruction, and discussions of our class experience. Bring whatever watercolor material you have and be prepared to paint. $230

July 26–August 2

Awareness Through Movement and Functional Integration: the Feldenkrais Method

Mia Segal

Movement is the key to life. We come to understand our internal organization only by learning to become aware of our patterns of movement—how we do what we do; i.e., how we carry out what we intend. Only when we know what we do, can we do what we want.

This workshop is to introduce you to the means whereby you can discover such patterns. A series of verbal instructions will guide you towards awareness-through-movement, and this will be enhanced by demonstrations of the nonverbal procedures of functional integration. $680

Week of July 28–August 2

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

An Experiment in Self-Knowledge

Jessica Moore Britt

Insight and body-oriented practices depend upon awareness and the expression of sensations, feelings, and images that most of us ordinarily repress. Insight and catharsis by themselves, however, may not necessarily lead us into the depths of our nature that transpersonal disciplines like meditation and shamanism cultivate. Practitioners of meditation and shamanism, in like manner, may neglect the emotional/physical clearing that often allows the opening from which our depths may emerge, to be perceived and integrated. This workshop will seek to join these two levels of personal practice. Using gestalt awareness practice and Reichian breath work, meditation, and ritual, we will begin to explore the relationship between the learned patterns of our personality and the depths of our being. $450

Presence . . . Reclaiming Personal Power

Elisa Lodge Schiffman

During this week participants will explore the elements that contribute to presence, a timeless inner atmosphere of fluidity and ease. Together we will look at the ways in which we can live more freely and imaginatively, and cultivate a more healthy, responsive, and well-balanced lifestyle. Our aim together will be to strengthen our abilities to experience and share our emotional needs, as well as to reawaken child-like qualities of freshness and curiosity. Through the use of video feedback, each participant will have ample opportunity to experiment with ways of being. Movement and body work will be featured to create a more accepting and loving attitude toward ourselves. $450

Next Step: Transformational Neurolinguistics

Eli Jaxon-Bear & Yvonne Ginsberg

If all the world's a stage and we are the players, then who writes the script? Each day is an opportunity to participate in life and its evolution. This workshop focuses on developing practical tools for self-transformation and increased ability to communicate successfully. Problems are opportunities to grow in the areas of our lives that await transformation.

You may learn to expand your ability to gain perspective in any situation and develop options for feelings and behaviors that better suit who you want to be. You may discover greater clarity in what it is you want and how to achieve it, professionally or personally. You may also find how the very limitations you encounter can be transformed into your allies for success.

Neurolinguistics presents an array of practical methods for people to assist themselves and others in achieving the changes they want in an unusually direct way. This experiential workshop will present methods for helping people who are interested in transforming their own lives and for professionals who want to increase the range of their own current approaches. $450

July 29–August 3

Zen and the Art of Fly Fishing in Yellowstone National Park

Dick Galland

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 43. $575

Weekend of August 2–4

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

The process of self-exploration in this workshop will be based theoretically and practically on observations from modern consciousness research. The method of "holonomic integration," developed by the workshop leaders, combines evocative music, controlled breathing, facilitative body work, and mandala drawing. It uses a model of the psyche that includes the biographical-recollective level, the dynamics of the death-rebirth process, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be in the roles of experiencers as well as facilitators or "sitters." Special emphasis will be placed on the relevance of this work for management of transpersonal crisis. $230

Psychic Self-Defense

Elizabeth Stratton

The power of psychic energy cannot be overestimated. We are constantly bombarded by the emotions and thoughts of people around us, as well as by the accumulated energies of the environments in which we live and work. We can also be affected by the physical illnesses of people we are close to, sometimes to the point of actually manifesting those illnesses as if they were our own.

This workshop will give you an opportunity to explore the weaknesses in your psychic defense system, to learn how to release the negative energies you pick up, to repair and strengthen your aura, and to develop your psychic sight so that you can protect yourself from absorbing unwanted energies in the future. $230

The Human Energy System and Gestalt Process

Alan Schwartz

The human being's movement toward a stable and balanced organism undergoes many adjustments in direct proportion to his/her responses to parental and environmental messages. The result is the formulation of stratified patterns of visible physiology and behavior. These join to form that which is usually called personality, one's individual energy system. Two common examples of energy system responses to life stress are those personalities who collapse under stress and those who control. There are many more. This will be a weekend to explore and understand our individual energy systems and their relation to how we make and inhibit intrapersonal and interpersonal contact. One focus will be on the simple task of being present, physiologically and emotionally, being aware that contact refers to our consistent awareness process and the autonomous expression of who we are. For additional information read the August 4-9 description. $230

The National Media From the Inside

Charles Kaiser

Who decides what gets on the front page of the New York Times? Why do Time and Newsweek run the same cover so often? How are reporters manipulated by public figures? What are their most frequent ethical conflicts? How are reporters treated differently from ordinary Americans? Charles Kaiser, media editor of Newsweek, and a veteran of the New York Times, where he was a reporter for five years, has also written for Saturday Review, The New Republic, Rolling Stone, and The American Lawyer. This seminar will explain how editors decide which stories are big news while others are ignored altogether. At the conclusion, seminar participants will be given eight real stories and asked to draw their own sample New York Times' front page. $230

Seminar in Executive Dynamics

Fred Kalmus & James Moore

Whatever you do, you are involved in communication of one type or another every day. Whether working on a team, dealing with customers, the government, or the public, managing, selling, negotiating, training, counseling, or purchasing, you are only as effective as your communication skills allow you to be. By developing effective interactive skills, you can maximize your potential and increase the output of others. These skills include problem solving, conflict resolution, anxiety reduction, and persuasiveness. This seminar is designed to improve organizational and personal effectiveness. $230

August 3–10

A Gentle Trip in the High Sierra

Maurica Anderson & Rob Cooley

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 43. $450

Week of August 4–9

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura De Nuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see May 5-10. $450

Forgiveness and Letting Go of Judgement

Elizabeth Stratton

"The giving up of judgment, the obvious prerequisite for hearing God's Voice, is usually a fairly slow process, not because it is difficult, but because it is apt to be perceived as personally insulting."—A Course in Miracles

Elizabeth writes: "The training of the Western mind, both spiritually and intellectually, is oriented toward judgment. We are taught to induce, deduce, analyze, dissect, defend, debate. We are taught to feel guilty, to get sick, to engage in self-punishment and the punishment of others. We are encouraged to rebuke ourselves into perfection.

"We do not know the healing quality of true remorse, or how to let go of that which we should never have held onto in the first place—the real meaning of forgiveness. In studies of people who have died and come back to talk about it, the most unifying element of their experiences was the meeting with a Being of white light who stood by with unconditional love, no judgment, and humor as they watched their lives roll before them like movies. The only judge was the person watching his/her own life.

"This workshop will be experiential. You are invited to observe the judgmental prison of your own mind, to feel the cleansing power of remorse, and to allow your heart to open to the freedom and healing that comes from forgiving yourself and others." $450

Effecting Change: The Human Energy System and Risk

Alan Schwartz

This is a week for recognizing the relationship between personal growth/change and economic/environmental realities. This is a week for designing a growth pattern for your individual energy system to provide more stable contact with the difficulties of the emerging decade.

The human energy system represents a constantly changing personality dimension. Often neglected in the system's movement towards maturity is the development of the consistency of strength. We hear metaphors not only of physical strength, but strength of character, strong emotions, and the spiritual and psychic strengths of perception. Lack of strength development leads each of us to develop compensations in order to be able to function in our chosen worlds. Some of the obvious are psychosomatic problems, blame, denial, and indiscriminate sexual functioning. Power over self, people, things is often a major compensation for the strength that allows us the experience of self, people, and things.

Risk involves awareness of our individual compensations, trusting self and the group process enough to experiment with mobilizing more energy. This means rendering more alive the strength of the physiology, feelings, conceptual process, and psychic perceptiveness. The result is clarity and stability and a deeper awareness of the balance of self as we contact the very real issues of the decade that is upon us. For further information, read the August 2-4 workshop description. $450

Emotions of Desire: Protecting the Limits of Love and Commitment

Ayala Pines & Gordon Clanton

Love, jealousy, envy, anger, and other powerful emotions are generated in intimate relationships. These emotions are not useless flights of irrationality. Emotions are useful. They are signals we can learn to interpret. They are also shock-absorbers which can facilitate personal growth and relationship enrichment.

Group discussions, gestalt, role playing, and shared fantasy will be used to increase awareness of the varieties of love and the combinations of love-styles that are formed in intimate relationships. In the supportive, nonjudgmental workshop context it is possible to learn and practice constructive ways of protecting love relationships and positive ways of expressing legitimate anger, thus minimizing the pain of jealousy and envy.

This workshop is for individuals and couples who are seeking a better understanding of the emotions of desire. It is especially helpful for couples who are seeking to define and protect the limits of their relationships and for counselors who work with people for whom these issues are important. $450

Myth, Dream, and the Movies

Phil Cousineau & Tom Schlesinger

In the study of our images we discover our deep selves. From the transcendent metaphors of mythology to the inner carnival of dream and the kaleidoscope of art, the soul of a culture realizes itself into imagery. With the richly inventive world of the movies we find a waking dream, a visual metaphor of a culture's self image.

By probing the deeply rooted urge to explain ourselves through the ancient art of storytelling, and by considering the common thread of archetypal fantasy in myth, dream, and the movies, we can discover the power of "healing fiction," the perennial attempt to re-imagine, revision ancient themes for modern needs.

Our workshop will blend a poetic appreciation of film with an experiential emphasis on stories and their images, the stained glass of the soul. Classical dramatic structure and the model of the hero's journey from myths, legends, and fairy tales will be used to study the creation, analysis, and impact of the film story. Together with extensive film clips, lectures, group discussion, and guided imagery, we will study the ways in which narrative form lends meaning to our experience. Then we will create our own scenarios, script them, act them out, and tape them to explore the uniquely collaborative world of movie making.

Participants are encouraged to bring writing utensils, masks, costumes, and any movie memorabilia (books, stills, posters, film scores, etc.).

The workshop is designed for the socially conscious film maker, visual artist and film buff alike. $450

Weekend of August 9-11

Weekend Massage Intensive

George King & Peggy Morrison Horan

For workshop description see May 24-26. $230

Burnout: Causes and Cures

Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines

This workshop is designed for people who give service to others and who are experiencing burnout. It deals with the impact of burnout on both the service provider and the client, ways of finding and recognizing support resources on the job, and positive methods of dealing with burnout and life tedium. Through lectures, group discussions, and input from the participants themselves, individuals will have the opportunity to increase their understanding of those aspects of their own work and life which could cause burnout. In addition they will be provided with the tools and opportunity to learn how to handle these problems in order to increase the productivity and creativity of their relationships with clients and colleagues. C.E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 44. $230

Pattern and Paradox: Explorations in Communication and Framing Experience

Paul Lounsbury & Nancy Winston

Drawing from the evolutionary paradigm of Gregory Bateson and the hypnotic approaches of Dr. Milton Erickson, the leaders will establish a context for participants to explore individual communication processes. Guidance will be provided for participants to discover greater access to and appreciation of their unique and unconscious intelligence.

We will use Milton Erickson's naturalistic approaches to hypnosis as a model for exploring the dynamics of influence in communication. We will also explore individual signal and symbol systems as part of the communicative process.

Habitual patterns of organizing and processing sensory information will be explored and participants will be invited to experiment with novel forms of framing and contextualizing sensory experience. The natural paradoxes that arise in language and communication will be damned, dignified, and employed as allies in this learning excursion. Trance phenomena will also be induced and utilized throughout the workshop to assist participants in by-passing conscious limitations and in discovering personal resources. Included will be: time distortion, age-regression, dissociation, amnesia, and positive and negative hallucinations.

While some people may find this workshop controversial, it will be most suitable for interested professionals and others who enjoy expanding personal thresholds and who recognize that play is the transition from fantasy to reality. $230

Rajneeshism

Edward Mann

This workshop is designed for people with an interest in or curiosity about Rajneesh, the Indian guru whose commune in Oregon has aroused great controversy. A one-time teacher of philosophy, Rajneesh established an exceptional ashram in India, which attracted thousands of Westerners and provided a wide spectrum of human potential groups. Rajneesh's daily lectures there were turned into several hundred books, selling world-wide.

The workshop will answer such questions as the following: Wherein lies the power of Rajneeshism to attract so many from the human potential movement? What is the secret of its rapid expansion and capacity to elicit such media attention? What are his major ideas? Why have so many regular followers and notable leaders from the human potential movement quit the movement? What are their major criticisms? How valid are they? What is the future of this new religion?

Our encounter with Rajneesh will be both experiential and didactic. We will listen to tapes of some of his lectures; we will participate in the two most popular of the meditations he created, the kundalini and dynamic. We will view videos of his arrival in America and events and celebrations at the Oregon commune. We will listen to audio tapes of some ex-disciples discussing the movement and why they left it. We will discuss his theory of "devices," means supposed to aid seekers to reach enlightenment. A systematic critique of the movement and how it has changed over time will be presented. Then, drawing upon evidence from three years' research, we will attempt to distinguish hype from reality, and draw parallels between this movement and others such as Synanon, Mormonism, and Muktananda's Siddha Yoga. Finally, we will attempt to assess the spiritual wisdom of the man and then predict the future of his religion. $230

Introduction to The Fourth Way

Charles Tart

Ordinary consciousness is a kind of waking sleep, an absorption in our own and our culture's illusions. How can we awaken? Our essential selves were invalidated and suppressed in childhood, as part of "education." How can we rediscover and nourish them? Instinctual and sensory wisdom is buried under cultural noise. How do we come to our senses?

The Fourth Way was Gurdjieff's name for psychological and spiritual development approaches that emphasized balanced work on the mind, emotions, instincts, and body. In this workshop we will examine Gurdjieff's main ideas, integrating them with modern growth psychology.

Self-remembering will be taught and practiced throughout the weekend as a primary means for increasing self-understanding and living more effectively in the present. Basic practices adapted from aikido will be used to illustrate how one can develop bodily intelligence, with emphasis on practicing Fourth Way methods as part of everyday life. $230

Week of August 11–16

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Pattern and Paradox: Explorations in Communication and Framing Experience

Paul Lounsbury & Nancy Winston

For workshop description see August 9-11. $450

The Polynesian Triune Model: How to Deal Effectively with Guilt and Self-Denigration Through Self-Integration

Murray Korngold & Jack Downing

The Kahunas of the Polynesian order of Kane have mastered practices for making friends with the subconscious, linking up with the divine via the higher self.

In this workshop, our lectures and exercises are directed toward an alliance between the conscious and inner selves. Using this ally, participants will be introduced to the higher self, the source of healing and other powers.

The triune configuration of conscious, inner, and higher selves, integrates rational thought, automatic body functions, stored memories, healing, and spiritual functions. With instruction and application, the three can converge to become one. $450

Energy Strategies

Nancy Rosanoff

Energy Strategies is a course in the self-management of psychic and intuitive abilities. Participants can learn to organize the vast amount of intuitive information available to them and apply it to their present needs. Whether changing careers, setting goals, improving personal and professional relationships, or solving everyday situations, the intuitive mind can help us to discover the best approach. The course uses several visualization and psychic development exercises. The subtle chakra energy system is also studied and used as a guide to greater sensitivity. Energy Strategies is a means to greater understanding of ourselves and others. By strengthening our intuitions we can strengthen our self-trust. The goal of energy strategies is to tap that which is truly unique about us and build it into personal strength. $450

The Performer in You: Achieving Stage Presence

David Feldshuh

Much of our everyday lives is performance: we present ourselves to other people; we give speeches or run meetings; we tell jokes or stories; we play sports. There is an optimum psycho-physical presence for performing anything: a mind-body condition that is clear of tension, centered, free, and spontaneous. The first step in developing this presence is awareness of individual physical and mental resistances. Next, one must learn practical ways to work through these resistances. The goal is stage presence: the ability as a performer to occupy time and space and the willingness to feel entitled to occupy that time and that space. These qualities can be learned. We can learn to perform so that we allow ourselves to be successful instead of bracing ourselves for failure. We can also learn to act more readily from a region beyond the boundaries of conscious control or judgmental intelligence, a region requiring the capacity to surrender to the moment and live fully in it.

Using exercises from mime, karate, theater games, voice, and mask work as well as methods adapted from gestalt and Zen meditation, this workshop will attempt to cultivate the performer in each participant regardless of previous performing experience. $450

August 11–18

Seasons of a Woman's Life

Annie Callaway-Galland & Marilyn Mason

For workshop description see May 26-June 2. $495

Weekend of August 16–18

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see May 12-17. $230

Joyce Rogers Lyke

The Emerging Curriculum: A Gazebo Workshop

Lia Thompson & Perry Holloman with Riley Thompson-Clark & Maya Holloman

For workshop description see June 7-9. $230

Citizenship in the Solar Age; Thinking Globally, Acting Locally

Hazel Henderson

Hazel Henderson writes: "An integral aspect of personal growth and development is healthy interaction within groups. As we resolve internal fears and conflicts and achieve a greater sense of empowerment, it becomes natural to seek further challenge and wider social interaction. Abraham Maslow identified these higher, growth-oriented needs as including the desire for social harmony, justice, order, and beauty in our communities and environment. We know that we have the power to heal our own bodies and minds, and similarly, we know how to heal our fragmented social relationships. And when we honor this knowledge, action for social change can be healing and integrative, rather than "need-oriented" activism which projects one's inner conflicts onto issues and ends up in divisiveness or coercive organizing.

"This workshop explores the interface between personal growth and holistic social action. I am interested in addressing theoretical, strategic, spiritual, and practical ways of becoming effective planetary citizens. There are no hard formulas for this—we will all be learners together. Some of the themes of great interest to me are: personal growth as a prerequisite to healthy social change, and social action as a prerequisite to further personal growth; the emergence of transformation paradigms in science, literature, art, and music which suggest greater planetary awareness and global networking; the vital new role of non-governmental organizations; learning to demystify economics (economics as politics in disguise); the mass media as the nervous system of the body politic (gaining media access for citizens, groups, and community issues, and evaluating various media as channels for social renewal); and identifying the winning coalitions for the new societies of the Solar Age.

"The world needs truly mindful, responsible, social-change activism and leadership as never before, just as developing self-actualizers need the risk-taking and challenge of relating to ever-more complex patterns of social, ecological and planetary interdependence. I am interested in teaching and learning how to accept the challenge of helping to heal our divisive, competitive, nationalistic, industrial societies (East and West); how to move beyond their narrow technological rationalism and militaristic posturing; and how to help foster viable alternative futures which can operate peacefully and fairly on our inter-connected planet."

Recommended reading: Hazel Henderson, The Politics of the Solar Age: Alternatives to Economics (Doubleday, Anchor paperback, N.Y.); Marilyn Ferguson, The Aquarian Conspiracy (J.P. Tarcher); Theodore Roszak, Person/Planet (Doubleday); Mark Satin, New Age Politics (Delta); Fritjof Capra, The Turning Point (Simon & Schuster); Charlene Spretnak, The Politics of Women's Spirituality (Doubleday); John Naisbitt, MegaTrends: Ten New Directions That Are Transforming Our Lives (Warner Communications, N.Y.). $230

August 16–23

A Seven-Day Workshop in Rubenfeld Synergy Method

Ilana Rubenfeld

The sea always has waves . . . waves are the sea . . . sea and waves are one. To speak of waves apart from the sea is a delusion—so mind and body are one!

The Rubenfeld Synergy Method is a system for the dynamic integration of body, mind, and emotions. The focus in this workshop will be on experiencing one's own body and emotions as a total organism. Emotions and memories are often stored in our bodies, resulting in tension and imbalance. A unique blend of gestalt, Alexander method, and Feldenkrais exercises will be used as a gateway to contact, express, and work through deep feelings. Massage staff will be on hand to assist the workshop.

We can choose to contact ourselves and each other with joy, sadness, compassion, humor, ideas, and with the body—the whole person. $680

Week of August 18–23

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see May 12-17. $450

Creative Attachment: The Art of Making Affectional Bonds

George Kohlrieser

From cradle to grave, life involves a changing script of "affectional bonds." These bonds are different from dependency and essential for growth, health, and happiness. Attachment theory is a way to conceptualize the tendency of humans (and other mammals) to make strong affectional bonds with particular others; a way to explain many forms of physical, emotional, and spiritual distress including emotional detachment, depression, and burnout. Life energy is connected to the quality and depth of emotional contact. This experiential workshop will focus on the patterns of forming, maintaining, breaking, and renewing affectional bonds. Methods include guided affective imagery, emotional release, group process, and intense bonding work to understand, create, and celebrate positive emotional attachments. $450

Body Changes: Feldenkrais, Rolfing®, and Berry Methods

Dub Leigh, Dee Dee Lozier & Michael Joyce

This is a workshop for individuals interested in beginning or accelerating their process of body change. Through private and group sessions, simple, gentle, and progressive Feldenkrais and Rolf®-patterning exercises will provide participants the chance to experience such changes within the body as increased comfort and awareness, and more harmoniously integrated movement.

The two or more private sessions included in the workshop will focus on resolution of individual functional problems in neuromuscular and connective tissue organization of the body. Participants will be guided in the development of a personal program for continuing improvement at home. $450

Shamanism, Alchemy, and the Millenium

Terence McKenna & Friends

Terence writes: "This will be a five-day intensive immersion in theories, images, and approaches to the impact of psychedelics on the evolution of consciousness that is thoroughly McKennacal. The Brothers McKenna will use rousing dialogue, brilliantly eccentric special guests, and curious readings drawn from forgotten byways of knowledge to give experiential immediacy to the novel model of reality that the McKennas have fashioned out of their years of pursuit of ethno-hallucinogenic gnosis and ecstasy. We look forward to this time as a chance to get to know those friends who have requested an opportunity to explore in depth our vision of a shamanic eschatology outside of history." $450

Weekend of August 23–25

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see June 21-23. $230

The Dancing Path

Gabrielle Roth

"Be open, be available, be exposed, be skinless! Skinless? Dance around your bones."
—Wallace Stegner

The dancing path is the road to yourself, to all that you are meant to be. It is the journey from inertia to ecstasy, from body to spirit. It is the way of the warrior.

Dance is a dialogue between spirit and flesh, a tool for awakening and attuning to the rhythms of life, and a catalyst for release of the feelings and attitudes that imprison the human spirit.

The fastest way to still your mind is to move your body. The most effective way to set your feelings in motion is to move your body. The best way to move your body is to dance—your dance, the dance only you can do. $230

Coincidance: Synchronicity and Isomorphism in Finnegans Wake, I Ching, and Modern Science

Robert Anton Wilson

"Now let the centuple celves of my egourge . . . reamalgamerge in that coincidance of contraries . . ." Finnegans Wake

This seminar is both an introduction to James Joyce's Finnegans Wake and an outline of significant isomorphisms (similarities in structure) to be found not only in Joyce's epic but in systems as diverse as I Ching, the genetic code, quantum mechanics, world-wide myth patterns, and even in such popular "classics" as Gone With The Wind and Star Wars. The quasi-mathematical symbols employed by Joyce himself in his notebooks, will be used to show both the archetypal meanings these symbols have in folk-lore, myth, and art, and also their structural similarity to more abstract symbolisms found in I Ching and modern science.

Participants will be invited to explore and enjoy for themselves the multiple meanings in Joyce's hilarious polyglot prose while also discovering the deep structure of what Buddhists call the "treasury mind" (alayavijnana) which underlies every possible organization of conscious or unconscious cognition. A new and enlarged understanding of the concept of synchronicity will emerge, which also sheds an original light on some of the most puzzling discoveries of quantum physics. $230

August 23–30

Psychosynthesis: A Seven-Day Workshop for Professionals

Harry Sloan

Harry Sloan writes: "Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea of what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for what is most familiar—a technique, map, or model. This can lead to the mechanical experience of 'going through the motions' and rote interventions. However, if we could reach for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, the dissonance might open to insight. The result of capturing the moment and responding to the need of the client and to the dynamics of the situation can have a decidedly different effect upon both the guide and client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice can lead to developing wisdom and intuition, transcending the methodologies we use.

"The format will combine individual work within the group setting with seminars, group exercises, and practicum. This program will be useful not only to those who are interested in psychosynthesis, but also to anyone in the helping professions who wants to come into a more creative relationship with his/her discipline.

"Psychosynthesis is the name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration. It recognizes that each human being is spiritual in essence and encourages the realization and expression of this essence, or higher self, as fully as possible in personal and social existence." $680

Week of August 25–30

Integrity

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see May 26-31. $450

Mirrors

Gabrielle Roth

"I never dreamed of being Shakespeare or Goethe, and I never expected to hold the great mirror of truth up before the world; I dreamed only of being a little pocket mirror, . . . one that reflects small blemishes, and some great beauties, when held close enough to the heart."—Peter Altenberg

This ritual theater lab, a marriage of art and healing, is a way to "know thyself" in intense, honest, creative explorations of your psyche, its patterns, cycles, and movements. The unique theater and dance processes developed by Gabrielle inspire you to dig deeply into your own life experience and to share and dramatize your insights in movement and performance. $450

Mothers And Daughters: Confluence Into Contact

Lois Stewart, Gail Stewart, Christine Stewart Price & Jennifer Price

The relationship between mother and daughter is one of the deepest and most intimate of connections. The experience of feeling that deep connection while also knowing oneself as a separate and whole individual can lead to the richness that comes when one matures out of confluence and into contact. The group's four leaders span three generations of women from one family and bring to the group skills in gestalt practice, group process, Reichian breath work, massage, and theater improvisation. This is a workshop for mothers and daughters to attend together and explore the issues that prevent clear contact between them and celebrate the nourishment that they can find with each other. $450

Weekend of August 30–September 1

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 13. $230

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

For workshop description see May 31-June 2. $230

Reprinting: A Growth Process

Hector Prestera

For workshop description see June 14-16. $230

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see August 2-4. $230

The Face of God—The Face of Man

James Kavanaugh

James writes: "One's vision of God is a reflection of one's own self-image. Thus salvation, guilt, sin, authority, law, marriage, divorce, sexuality, heaven, hell, judgment, etc. are colored by one's personal vision and experience. In a sense, such theological notions are defined by each of us in a different way according to our personal freedom and self knowledge. As Nietzsche said, 'After Christ came the Christians.'"

This seminar is for individuals who have left the institutional church and are searching for a personal spirituality. The seminar deals particularly with the traditional myths of historic Christianity and Judaism and attempts to replace ancient and ineffective symbols with contemporary and real ones.

Recommended reading: James Kavanaugh, There Are Men Too Gentle to Live Among Wolves (E. P. Dutton). $230

August 31–September 7

The Aspen Alps: A Modest Peak Ascent

Annie Callaway-Galland & Dick Galland

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 43. $525

Week of September 1–6

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 13. $450

Zen Shiatsu

Shirley and Reuho Yamada

Participants in this workshop will be introduced to the fundamentals of meditation, healing, and shiatsu practice. Emphasis will be placed on developing our natural powers to heal ourselves and each other through guided practice. Talks will include elucidations of Buddha's computer logic, Shinto cosmology, and the meaning of wellness, spirituality, and enlightenment. The workshop is open to individuals at any level of experience in the healing arts. $450

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman

Janet writes: "This workshop will provide a safe environment for exploring the 'unfinished business' in our lives.

"I believe that unfinished business from the past gets projected into all current relationships and prevents us from clearly and fully experiencing each other in the here and now.

"The emotional release methods that I have developed over the past decade support completion of this unfinished business through the honest expression of feelings." $450

The Healing Power of Dreams

Stephen Aizenstat

Dreams, as looking-glass parables, provide a connection to the voices and images of the psyche. In ancient Greece, in the cult of Asklepios (the Divine healer), dreams were honored as the medicine of the soul. When a person was wounded psychologically and/or physically, it was to the dream he/she often time turned for guidance and healing. Drawing from archetypal psychology, systems theory, and Asklepian dream practices, dream work will be presented which explores this healing potential of the psyche.

Holonomic dream work is a process of healing and making whole which realizes the patterns of relationship connecting personal experience (physical symptoms and emotional moods) with archetypal imagery of the psyche in the world. The holonomic approach is based on the belief that the dream is a reflection of an inter-related body-mind-world system.

This workshop is both theoretical and experiential. Using the holonomic approach, participants will have the opportunity to unfold healing imagery found in their own dreams. $450

Weekend of September 6–8

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman

For workshop description see May 19-24. $230

Food for Health and Wellness

Joe D. Goldstrich

This is a workshop for people who want to assume responsibility for their health care management. The emphasis will be on learning what to eat to create vitality, energy, and health. A unique integration of the Pritikin diet, macrobiotics, and live food will be presented. Special attention will be given to increasing complex carbohydrate and fiber while decreasing simple sugar. We will examine the optimum amount of fat and cholesterol needed to both prevent and reverse atherosclerotic cardiovascular disease. Ideal protein intake for various levels of physical activity and health states will be examined and protein combinations to obtain complete sources will be demystified. Participants will receive a personalized health plan to work with at home.

Recommended reading: Joe D. Goldstrich, The Best Chance Diet (Humanics Limited). $230

Teaching of the Shields: A Shamanic and Buddhist World View

Joan Halifax

Joan writes: "At the root of all traditions of the sacred lies the aboriginal pulse of shamanism, humankind's archaic spiritual heritage, reaching back 40,000 years or more into pre-history. The tradition of shamanism has always drawn its tremendous power and wisdom from direct contact with earth, her plants and animals, the realms of spirit and sky, and the teacher of death and change. Even as the teachings of the aboriginal continuity have moved across the boundaries of time and culture, so also have the profound teachings of Buddhist philosophy and psychology. Both the Guatama Buddha and Guru Padmasambhava prophesied that Buddhism would travel to the Land of the Red People. The peoples of Turtle Island prophesied as well that from the East would come great teachers. In this decade these two traditions of Earth and Sky are encountering one another as allies sharing their respective teachings on warriorship and compassion.

"The teachings, ceremonies, and practices to be given in this workshop are an interpretation of Buddhism and shamanism in the light of each other and in response to Western culture. The Sacred Sweet Medicine Sundance teachings of Wheels and Keys will be given in relation to Buddhist teachings in compassion and the perfections. Practices will include meditation, chant, visualization, and Ceremonies of the Flowering Tree." $230

Japan: The Missing Link in Western Culture

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard writes: "Japan has evolved the other great possibility for structuring the world of perceptions, awareness, intentionality, and activity. In this weekend workshop, we will identify the fundamental assumptions and the modes of perception that define the Japanese social, mental, cultural, and physical world, and we will 'try on' their assumptions ourselves to see if we can get a feel for their mind and culture, for the inner empire of the Japanese. If you can find an intimacy with their culture, you will recognize Japan and the Japanese within yourself. This workshop is not just for the purpose of understanding the Japanese; it is also an opportunity to understand the dynamics of our own culture and how we ourselves think. Given how different from us Japan is, and yet how well we resonate with it, Japan may be the missing link in Western culture—and Japan and the West together the basis for a new world culture.

Our society can be changed, but first we must learn to recognize the hidden frontiers of change. Arnold Toynbee said that the meeting of East and West is the central challenge and adventure of our time. Social and cultural pioneers, architects, entrepreneurs, and guerillas are welcome." $230

Week of September 8–13

Five Days with Jack Rosenberg

For workshop description see June 16-21. $450

Massage and Movement

Andrea Juhan & Deborah Anne Medow

One of the most effective and enjoyable ways to learn about the human body is to know your own body through movement. The focus of this workshop is to use the different rhythms of yoga, aerobics, and creative movement to enhance participants' awareness of their own bodies. This increased awareness can then be used as a tool for enriching the experience of giving and receiving a massage. $450

Intuition Practice

Helen Palmer

This seminar teaches the identification of personal intuition systems that can be made accessible by internal focusing practices, or that may already be operating in unrecognized ways. The practices develop the ability to discriminate between personal thoughts, fantasies projected from personal thinking, and impressions received from situations outside the self. The psychic aspect of intuition rests on the ability to shift attention from the self to impressions received from outside the self. $450

Opening the Feelings

Dale Cummings & Gena Mayer

Participants will employ Radix® and neo-Reichian methods of emotional release, the most important of which is the Radix® intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting which can provide emotional support among participants. Grief or pain, fear and rage that have been held in since childhood can emerge. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he or she may discover a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience may change as feelings of tenderness and sexuality intensify and merge. $450

Weaving the Mindstream, Cutting the Mindstream, Generating the Source

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard writes: "One of the great teachings of Buddhism is that we can have conscious, causal, and consequential participation in our own mindstream. For all of us willing to try on a world without a God, and without a rule book of revealed truth, this recognition and teaching is essential if we are to be able to examine, trust, and find our own way. We do not live in the world; we live in a world that is an envelope or bubble of our own perceptions. Every feeling, action, and thought is contained and clothed in the inherited fabric of our culture, attitudes, and language. Before we can effectively practice emptiness, detachment, non-self, cutting the mindstream, we must first find how to live with strength, initiation, and consciousness within our own mindstream.

"In China, Zen developed and quintessentially expressed in koans a kind of acupuncture of language, action, and culture that allows us to see and shape our world. Discussing one or two koans in great detail, we will find ways together to use this means of thinking, insight, and mindstream intervention.

"The insight, philosophy, and practices of Buddhism are based on the body and mind of meditative absorption and concentration. We realize this body of absorption by the practice of cutting the mindstream and freeing the body from the defining, discursive, comparing, adhesive mind. This meditative body is not the body that carts the brain around, but body with its own wisdom, articulation, and power. This body is the entrance to an instance of the wide, inclusive mind of awareness and systemic intelligence.

"The point of these five days will be to offer insight into and an intimation, taste, experience of this Big Mind. Practices of 'generating the Source' will be discussed. There will be instruction in basic forms and skills of meditation. There are no prerequisites or readings required, other than an awareness of your own mind and body. The meditation schedule can be participated in according to your desire and experience." $450

Weekend of September 13–15

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

For workshop description see May 10-12. $230

Songs of Innocence, Songs of Experience

Nancy Kaye Lunney

This weekend is for people who want to sing but are afraid or worried about what others think, for shower singers and choir members who dream of hitting the big time, and for accomplished singers who want to improve their performance. Piano accompaniment and video feedback will be part of a supportive environment for self-expression. Participants are invited to bring their favorite song titles. There will also be a variety of music to choose from at Esalen. $230

Health and Creativity

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

We can choose health and creativity by increasing self-awareness and letting go of fear.

This workshop will deal with why—the causes not the mechanics—we choose specific illnesses and with ways in which we block our ability to think. Participants will be presented with ways for being healthy and for expanding one's ability to think creatively and logically.

Recommended reading: Will Schutz, Profound Simplicity (University Assoc.); William Gordon, Synectics. $230

Applied Vulnerability

Donald Michael

Don Michael writes: "In my work to help organizations and individuals plan more intelligently for the future, I've come to feel that the main task we face in the next crucial twenty years is that of learning to be better learners. This sounds obvious but consider for a moment how much effort we expend disguising our uncertainty and ignorance and acting as if we really know what we are doing and how to do it. There is a parallel between what happens when people begin to pay close attention to the processes of their mind (in meditation, for instance), and when they begin to study the vastly complex political, social, and economic processes and systems of our world. In both cases, we begin to see how little we really know about ourselves as individuals and about the world. This recognition of our ignorance about our situation is the starting point for embracing that ignorance and the profound sense of vulnerability it entails so that we can apply it to constructive engagement with our private and public worlds.

"During our time together I will introduce several skills, or what I call 'new competences' that are necessary for humane and effective decisions in situations where uncertainty can be our best occasion for learning: in our organizational or independent work places and in our interpersonal and family situations. These skills include acknowledging high levels of uncertainty, error embracing, being future responsive, boundary spanning, self-knowledge, and interpersonal competence. Our focus will be both on acquiring the cognitive understanding of why these new competencies are necessary and on experiencing them by practicing them. Even in so short a period as this workshop, we can learn to be more comfortable with our uncertainty, to reduce the need to act over-cautiously out of fear of making a mistake and the need for those defensive posturings that make it so hard to act responsibly and compassionately. As a previous participant put it, 'This workshop is for those who are ready to move beyond the personal and want to effect change.'" $230

Week of September 15–20

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

For workshop description see May 26-31. $450

Integration

Deborah Anne Medow

For workshop description see June 9-14. $450

Move and Dance

Anna Halprin & Daria Halprin-Khalighi

From the delight-maker (Koshares) of the American Indian dances to the comedy within the Greek tragedy, the role of humor has been an important factor in releasing stress and tension on the personal as well as social level. Yet it seems as if many of us in our daily lives, both personally and professionally, have forgotten this age-old art, and are not enjoying as much play, lightness, and creativity as we might like.

In this workshop, we will have the opportunity to recapture the fun and excitement of dance and to use humor, play, and serious study to break through emotional, physical, and mental blocks that interfere with our creativity. Specific skills developed at the Tamalpa Institute of San Francisco Dancers' Workshop will be used to increase movement range, imagination, and artistic development.

This workshop is for students, potential students for Tamalpa trainings, educators, health practitioners, counselors, handicapped and little people, couples, elders, performing artists, and others.

For further information about this workshop write: Tamalpa Institute of SF Dancers' Workshop, Fort Mason Center, San Francisco, CA 94123. (415) 771-1212.

Recommended reading: Anna Halprin, Movement Ritual I (available at Esalen); Collected Writings II (available by writing SF Dancers' Workshop). $450

Optimizing Health and Performance

Neil Fiore

Most of us manage the stress in our lives, and even enjoy it to some extent. But too often we pay the price of weakened health and less than optimal performance when stress becomes chronic and enthusiasm is dampened. In careers and lifestyles that are challenging and developing, we could all use greater control over stress, the ability to rapidly relax and recuperate, and skill at tapping the creative ability of the unconscious mind.

In this workshop we will draw on the wizardry of Dr. Milton H. Erickson and Bandler and Grinder, and on elements of stress management, cognitive-behavior modification, and assertiveness work.

We will provide methods for: identifying patterns and beliefs that evoke the stress response, rechanneling stress into problem resolution, concentrating on task and goal accomplishment, and developing deep relaxation and recuperation.

Recommended reading: Neil Fiore, The Road Back to Health (Bantam). $450

Weekend of September 20–22

Alternatives for Managers

Susan & Joel Kirsch

For workshop description see June 7-9. $230

Aggression, Sexuality and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Janet Lederman & Gazebo Staff

For workshop description see June 9-14. $230

Weekend Advanced Massage Intensive

Vicki Topp & Deborah Anne Medow

This seminar is designed for people who have experience in giving massages. Through demonstrations and practice sessions, participants will be taught how to increase the effectiveness and efficiency of their massage skills and have the opportunity to add fresh approaches to their work. The intent is to help participants make deeper and more sensitive contact, and to heighten their awareness of the responses they are creating.

When you send in your deposit, please list your previous massage experience. $230

Gestalt Practice

Seymour Carter

Seymour writes: "I intend to introduce the notion of gestalt as a practice, like meditation, that will provide a form for a daily internal housecleaning. We will approach gestalt as an experience of mindfulness.

"We will examine the influence of inner dialogue, body/mind relationship, and the nature of impasse, as well as tendencies in ourselves towards psychological completion and well being. Each participant will be treated as unique with his/her own process of development, a process to be honored and encouraged. The basis of this work is the gestalt method, supported by various body disciplines including sensory awareness, bioenergetics, Rolfing®, and aikido." $230

On Letting Go

Judyth Weaver

In everything we do we have choices, but do we recognize them? We can perform the same actions in a stressful or a relaxed manner, wastefully or economically. We can hold on tightly or let go. We can have fun or suffer. The more in touch we are with our feelings and abilities, the more options are available to us.

This workshop will focus on rediscovering awareness of self—mentally, physically, and spiritually—to develop and integrate as many options as possible. It is through this awareness that we can acquire choice of how to live.

We will work with deep sensing of our organism, with gentle breathing methods for stress reduction, t'ai chi ch'uan for relaxed exercises, gestalt, movement, massage, and meditations. All these explorations can lead to a sense of centered grounding and balance with which to develop and enhance an economic, energetic, pleasurable, and effective life. $230

Week of September 22–27

Similiarities and Differences

Seymour Carter & Laszlo Honti

An existentialist gestalt counselor from California and an existentialist client-centered counselor from Hungary combine forces to explore implications of similar work in differing political zones. The workshop format includes individual work, paired exercises, and group dynamics. $450

Idiosyncratic Thinking

Richard Feynman, assisted by Ralph Leighton, Faustin Bray & Brian Wallace

The leaders write: "The aim of the week is to help participants develop a unique personal philosophy which can bring peace of mind and enjoyment of life's contradictions.

"In science, when we look at common things from some new or unexpected viewpoint, we achieve a new and deeper understanding. When this same approach is applied to personal problems, useful unexpected insights are often realized. This concept will be illustrated in two ways: through discussions of personal human ideas such as doubt, uncertainty, remorse, guilt, responsibility, dignity, and freedom; and by looking at nature as a teacher with these ideas in mind. Participants are invited to contribute their thoughts for discussion in the sessions.

"The thinking and experiencing process will be integrated using a blend of esoteric skills, music, visual arts, and fun. You are invited to bring rhythm instruments."

Recommended reading: Richard Feynman, Character of Physical Law (MIT Press); Nova, The Pleasure of Finding Things Out (Transcript) (WGBH, Box 322, Boston, Mass 02134). $3 Payable to WGBH Transcripts. $450

Yoga: A Week of Rejuvenation

Ganga White & Tracey Rich

This course will aim at giving participants the inspiration and understanding necessary to create a personal practice of yoga. Yoga brings about a strong, healthy, and flexible body, mind, and spirit. We offer a unique, holisitic approach that is flowing and graceful and combines asana (posture), pranayama (breathing), and dhyana (meditation). In addition, our approach can be highly aerobic for those wanting to condition the cardio-vascular system.

The course is open to students of all levels, from beginners to advanced. Students will be shown how to develop a 45-minute daily practice that includes all elements necessary for maintaining optimum fitness. Other topics will include learning how yoga works, aligning and restructuring the body, diet and nutrition, and meditation. A special feature will be "double yoga," a system created by Ganga that allows you to share your practice with a friend.

For additional information or questions you may contact Ganga or Tracey at: White Lotus, 3463 State No. 205, Santa Barbara, CA 93105, (805) 964-1944.

Recommended reading: Ganga White, Double Yoga (Penguin). $450

The Power of Love

Rita Rohen

Rita Rohen writes: "Most of us fear the power of love. We use only a fraction of our capacity for love, trust, and joy. Inspired by my experiences in the Far East, this workshop will encourage participants in the full expression of their inner love and light, by creating an attitude of abundance on all levels of awareness. Using gestalt from a transpersonal perspective, controlled breathing, and other approaches, including humor, we may open ourselves to deeper-than-ordinary levels of consciousness—and thereby achieve a new integration of mind, body, and spirit. By getting in touch with the beauty and peace within ourselves, we may learn how to apply the power of love to our own lives, and extend it to other persons and to the planet." $450

Weekend of September 27–29

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see May 3-5. $230

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see May 24-26. $230

Hypnosis and Parapsychology

Lee Pulos

All participants will be taught to experience beginning and advanced methods of self-hypnosis. There will be a number of opportunities throughout the workshop to practice hypnosis for personal habit changes and to learn how to use hypnotic uncovering practices such as automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. In addition to brief lecturettes explaining and demystifying hypnosis, the workshop will include exploratory use of hypnosis as a bridge to other realities. Trance states for opening up psychic and telepathic channels can be experienced and these may lead into turning one's visions inward to the possibility of multiple dimensions and existences. A feature of the workshop will be to teach how to use hypnosis for health maintenance. $230

Homeopathic Medicine for Self-Care and Professional Practice

Dana Ullman

Animal poisons such as snake and bee venoms, minerals such as arsenic and mercury, and plants such as belladonna and poison oak are all valuable and effective medicines commonly used by homeopaths. Each are individually prescribed to a person based on the specific symptoms they cause in overdose, and then they are given in specially prepared non-toxic doses. Since symptoms of a sick person are the body's efforts to adapt to the various stresses he or she is experiencing, it is logical and ultimately effective to give a medicine that would create in overdose these similar symptoms. Homeopathic medicines go with, rather than against, the body's efforts to heal itself.

This workshop will provide an overview of homeopathic philosophy and homeopathic self-care. Reference to developments in new physics, Jungian psychology, and energy medicine will provide us with helpful understanding of homeopathy. Homeopathic methodology and clinical practice will be discussed with a particular emphasis on how participants can practically apply homeopathic principles and medicines in professional practice or self-care. Participants will be taught how to use at least 20 different homeopathic medicines for self-care applications.

Recommended reading: Stephen Cummings & Dana Ullman, Homeopathic Medicine for the Family (J.P. Tarcher). $230

Week of September 29–October 4

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see June 23-28. $450

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

This personal workshop will combine individual work with discussion of principles and concepts which nourish the process of change. Individual work will stress deepening awareness of one's sense of direction and personal obstacles. Participants will focus on change through exploring the implications of their choices and the ways they retard or encourage the expression of self. The workshop will include psychosynthesis, transpersonal and cathartic methods which emphasize learning, and skills to release and transform blocked energies. Participants will focus on aligning their motivation and will with the natural process of change and integration. $450

September 29–October 6

Educating the Genius Within—The Feldenkrais Method

Harriet Goslins

"By my body's actions . . . teach my mind."
—Shakespeare

The habitual way you sit, stand, or move reflects patterns that are "wired-in" to your nervous system. This information can be erased or changed. By re-educating the brain/muscle connection, restrictions in your movement are freed, freeing also the life-time habits that have organized around that movement.

Awareness-through-movement lessons are a relearning of the ease and fluidity you took for granted as a child and lost somewhere along the way. Physical injury, emotional trauma, or on-going stress all evoke a protective response from the body. These patterns, necessary at the time, remain when no longer needed, outside of our awareness, and continue to cause discomfort and unnecessary limitation. Freeing them results in relief of chronic pain or tightness, a more restful sleep, and a higher energy level. When you change how you hold your muscles, your entire protective posture is altered, deeply affecting the body's habitual defense system. Thus, new movement possibilities mean new self-image possibilities.

This workshop is for those who are physically active and fit and want to increase their skills while learning to reduce risk of injury, for the sedentary or those dealing with after-effects of injuries, and for the average person who feels chronically tired and stressed and wants to learn how to take better care of his neck, shoulders, and back, to improve his posture and breathing, and to live and move with more flexibility and comfort.

Recommended reading: Moshe Feldenkrais, Awareness Through Movement. $680

Weekend of October 4–6

Clairvoyant and Clairsentient Practices

Helen Palmer & Wendy Palmer

The two most identifiable aspects of intuition are the ability to see and the ability to sense a range of information that is unavailable to the thinking self. Clear sight and clear sensing have their historical bases of training in the traditions of visualization and martial arts practices.

This workshop will be an introduction to the internal focusing practices that can provide access to the intuitive state of mind. The particular visualization and martial arts exercises are presented in such a way that they can form the basis of discrimination between personal projections and accurate visual and sentient impressions from situations unknown to the thinking self. $230

Green Politics

Fritjof Capra & Charlene Spretnak

Green politics is the political manifestation of a current cultural shift from mechanistic world view and patriarchal value system to a new vision of reality. It is an ecological, holistic, and feminist movement that transcends the old political framework of left versus right. In this workshop the leaders present a history of the European Green movement and basic principles of Green politics with special emphasis on the implications for future politics and spiritual values in the United States. $230

Creativity Workshop

Paul Horn

You will be guided in a joyful way to opening the creative flow within you through musical improvisation, movement, and meditation. These disciplines can enable one to develop deeper and more meaningful communication, improve intuitional faculties, and increase centering and focusing powers. Bring instruments if you have them. No previous musical experience necessary.

Recommended listening: Paul Horn, Inside; Inside the Great Pyramid; China; Jupiter 8.

Recommended reading: Yogi Ramacharaka, The Science of Breath (Yogi Publication Society); Manly P. Hall, The Therapeutic Value of Music (Philosophical Research Society). $230

Week of October 6–11

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Vicki Topp & Peggy Morrison Horan

For workshop description see May 5-10. $450

The Nature of Movement: Aikido and Wilderness

Steven Harper & Wendy Palmer

In this week-long workshop we will work indoors with energy awareness and principles derived from aikido, and outdoors on short day-hikes into Big Sur's backcountry to directly explore the movement that nature inspires within us. Both aikido and hiking are moving meditations which, done well, require us to be in harmony with the natural world. There will be opportunity to take what we learn on the aikido mat out into the natural world and bring what we learn from nature onto the aikido mat. We can then begin to integrate what we learn from aikido and from nature into our lives.

All evenings and most meals will be at Esalen. Participants need not have previous experience in aikido or hiking. Come ready to move.

$450

Breaking Away: The Loss of Innocence

Jacob Blass

There are many hundreds, perhaps thousands of people who in recent years have broken away from "new age" spiritual movements and growth organizations. It is an extraordinary action, frequently caused by a dramatic occurrence such as a scandal involving the leader, a breach or lack of integrity in the organization, or a major shift in the follower's consciousness.

As a significant event, it frequently results in a cathartic and revolutionary redefinition of a person's life. Depending on the individual's involvement with the group, it is a time often accompanied by rage, fear, grief, and a lack of contextual organization to the meanings and experiences of life. For many, a remarkable array of experiences and feelings can be expected. These include betrayal and doubts in relation to God, abandonment of relationships by former associates in the group, divorce or separation in partner relationships, shame, guilt, a sense of wasted years, lack of faith in one's ability to choose wisely and, perhaps most destructively, lack of belief in oneself.

To the degree that a person moves through these experiences, it is also a time rich in growth and individuation, as externally imposed structures and beliefs can now give way to those formed through the person's own experiences.

This workshop is designed for people who have left spiritual and growth organizations and want to facilitate a greater understanding and experience of that action. It is not a deprograming workshop, nor is it a place to impose new beliefs. Rather it is an opportunity, through structured exercises, group interactions, individual sharings, and reflection, to put the past in perspective and successfully shape the present. $450

The Approaches of Milton H. Erickson, M.D.

Jane Parsons assisted by Francis Lu

This is a course designed for professionals in the mental health field. Dr. Erickson's approaches are of particular value because of his exquisite understanding of the use of verbal and nonverbal communication to affect physiological changes. A clinician who knows how to talk to a client's unconscious mind, which Erickson defines as a rich storehouse of learning potential, can call upon abilities and experiences unique to that client and can evoke hitherto unrecognized strengths and "patterns of happiness." These patterns can come alive even in a hospital bed and can have powerful beneficial effects.

This course will teach clinicians to discover and develop their own unique resources that can enhance and refine their methods and that can enable them to sharpen their sensory skills so that they can understand and utilize minimal nonverbal responses.

Dr. Erickson's understanding of how the mind works will be explored didactically and experientially. We will watch his training sessions on video, and will integrate these with practical exercises that gradually build up technical skills. Clinicians will be invited to present cases for discussion.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Workshop attendance is limited to mental health professionals with graduate degrees (M.S., Ph.D., M.S.W., D.D.S., etc.) in health related fields from accredited institutions and to graduate students in accredited programs in the above fields who supply a letter from their departmental chairperson certifying their student status.

Recommended reading: Sidney Rosen, My Voice Will Go With You (Norton & Co., N.Y.); Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (Norton & Co., N.Y.); Strategies of Psychotherapy, and Advanced Techniques of Hypnosis and Therapy: Selected Papers of Milton Erickson (Grune & Stratton, N.Y.).

C.E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 44. $450

Weekend of October 11–13

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $230

Dream Discovery

Joyce Frazee

For workshop description see May 3-5. $230

Women's Mysteries (for women only)

Starhawk

In this weekend workshop, we will create a sacred women's space in which we can meet the five-fold Goddess of birth, initiation, consummation, repose, and death. Drawing on the ancient history and mythology of the religions of the Great Goddess, on feminist process, and on the tools of intuition, meditation, trance journeys, and ritual, we will gain a new understanding of our own women's cycles and of how to channel transformative power in the relationships, projects, and movements we carry on.

Recommended reading: Starhawk, The Spiral Dance: A Rebirth of the Ancient Religion of the Great Goddess (Harper & Row) and Dreaming the Dark: Magic, Sex, and Politics (Beacon). $230

The Re-Invention of Fatherhood (for men only)

Robert Sayers & John Franklin

Men have always been fathers biologically. The social and psychological role of the father, however, is a recent invention. Today, changes in roles, institutions, and personal consciousness require the re-invention of fatherhood. The reframing of the "paternal instinct" from a position of social roles to that of personal consciousness is the basis for this re-invention.

Through strengthening the experience of conscious fathering, men are able to heal past wounds of father absence and accept their power to love and nurture, provide and protect. Conscious fathering allows men to re-parent themselves, to heal the father wound, and to reclaim the power of self love and acceptance.

Conscious fathering requires both greater masculine power and strength and a more assertive love to complement and support "maternal love" in the world and in the family. Conscious fathering brings balance to maternal and paternal power and creates renewed purposefulness, form, and commitment in families.

Using story telling, imagery, movement and ritual, participants will explore and re-invent the past, present, and future of their own fatherhood. This weekend will help in connecting men with the personal and cultural power of being fathers. $230

Week of October 13–18

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Relationships: Deepening the Connection Between Men and Women

Joel Kramer & Diana Alstad

This workshop will provide an environment for open communication and understanding between men and women. We will look at such basic issues as: trust, freedom and commitment, power, jealousy, adequacy, and sexuality; why relationships fall apart; what men and women don't know about each other; the male point of view—what feminism left out; why we are often attracted to people who aren't "good" for us; why some "autonomous" women still lose themselves in relationships with men; keeping relationships new once the newness has worn off; using the mind to open the heart.

Awareness and intelligence can help keep passion and sexuality alive over time. A process will be presented which can enable you to move beyond the patterns and blind spots that may prevent a relationship from forming, or that may keep an existing relationship from growing. Understanding yourself and examining how you interact with others can eliminate many seemingly hopeless conflicts.

This workshop is open to couples or individuals. There will be discussions, group interaction, and exercises focusing on specific issues relevant to the participants. $450

Weekend of October 18–20

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

This will be an introduction to intensive intraphysic work using Reichian breath work and gestalt practice. Reichian work utilizes breath and sound to energize and deepen the process of self-awareness by softening the body's patterns of physical tension and emotional holding. Gestalt practice is an awareness approach focusing on physical sensation, image, thought, and emotion. By emphasizing a person's experience in the present moment, gestalt moves toward developing a more conscious sense of self. In a supportive group atmosphere, participants will have the opportunity to explore thoughts and feelings formed by past experiences. With this exploration the possibility is opened to come to a truer concept of self, with an expanded ability to respond in the present. This workshop is limited to ten participants. $230

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Anything which is forced or misunderstood can never be beautiful." — Xenophon

People, like plants, need special attention to thrive and blossom. To naturally grow beyond what they've been requires strength, sensitivity, and a deeply compassionate awareness. The courage to let go of self-defeating patterns from the past, the willingness to master fresh skills and create new dreams for the future: these are the turning points that nourish and sustain us.

In this workshop the group will come together in the spirit of being simply and lovingly at home in themselves. They will create a community whose aim is to explore and move through individual turning points, in a climate of trust, goodwill, and authenticity. The program will be structured to include intensive individual work, using practices from gestalt, psychosynthesis, and bioenergetics, as well as creative movement, music, guided imagery, group rituals, and celebrations. $230

At the Crossroads: Playing the Inner Game of Global Security

Gordon Feller

An entirely new peace effort is arising with great force in our midst. It's not oriented toward resisting the latest and deadliest first strike military hardware, nor is it fixated on "managing the U.S.-Soviet competition," as arms control experts like to say. Instead the new search for global security focuses action at the point of interplay between inner consciousness and social change. Drawing on the spiritual insights of ancient teachings, it traces current geopolitical trends back to their systemic and psychological roots.

Creating global security will require more than protest, more than even a transnational perspective alone can offer. It demands of us a geopolitics of the person, a shift toward a planetary loyalty that includes, but goes far beyond, our identity with this or that separate and partial nation-state.

With an experienced guide, we will explore: How do person and planet merge in the arenas of peace and disarmament? What can supplant military means of resolving conflict? Why is working for global transformation increasingly the path of the self-actualizing person? Is the failure of liberal politics, at its source, the failure of change agents to become truly changed people? How does an altered experience of reality and a new consciousness of ourselves get translated in the tough boys' world of superpower arms racing? What can one person do to break the myth of powerlessness, or to create dynamic visions and images of peace that are the picture-forms of a sacred Earth-mythology for humanity? What role does meditation have in creating this new order? $230

The Right Work

John Caple

The right work is central to creating the life we want. In this workshop participants will rediscover work-related dreams, draw power from work experiences, and clarify their vision of what they want their worklife to be. Our approach will be practical, though grounded in the longings of the soul, and worldly, though enriched by the resources and culture of Esalen. We will see how the right work is a process as well as a power.

This weekend is for those who seek change in their work: more fulfillment, different challenges, a new job, a new career. Some time will be available for individual work during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs. Each participant will have the opportunity to create a life plan.

Recommended reading: John Caple, Chapters 1-7 in Careercycles (Prentice-Hall). $230

Miracles of Infancy

Laurie Schutz Munyer & Arthur Munyer with Jezariah Canyon Munyer

Laurie and Arthur write: "This will be a time to celebrate the profound miracle of new life and parenthood. The workshop will provide an opportunity for new parents and their infants (birth to two years) to come together in a harmonious and joyous way. In an atmosphere of warmth we will guide both parent and infant through a creative experience. Our approaches will be drawn from massage, creative movement, music, communication, and nurturing touch. We will bring awareness to how our children can be our teachers."

Some infant care will be available. $230

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Week of October 20–25

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 12. $450

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Bill Liles & Char Pias Brenner

For workshop description see May 5-10. $450

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter & Marianne Paschke-Carter

For workshop description see June 2-7. $450

Laughing Your Way Through Very Serious Relationships

Annette Goodheart

In this workshop we will explore the use of supportive and connecting laughter with those very serious aspects of our primary and secondary relationships, including mates, children, friends, sexual partners, parents, co-workers, IRS auditors, neighbors, doctors, pets, lawyers, patients, God, etc. The format will include lecture, discussion, demonstrations, and experiential exercises designed to inform and train the participants in the art of laughing as a tool for enhancing relationships.

We will examine the mythology and physiology of laughter and the use of laughter as a natural tension reliever for acute and chronic physical, emotional, and spiritual pain. Particular attention will be put to other cathartic processes, especially tears, and how they interface with laughter. We will take a look at our culture's damaging use of jokes, teasing, and tickling as sources of laughter, and demonstrate ways to effectively interrupt this behavior in those we love. $450

Weekend of October 25–27

Weekend Massage Intensive

Bill Liles & George King

For workshop description see May 24-26. $230

The Fifth Annual Big Sur River Run: A Ten Kilometer Foot Race

Coordinated by Steven Harper

This is a time to enjoy Esalen and one of the most beautiful runs in the country. The Big Sur River Run is a flat course on blacktop road through redwoods and oak groves alongside the Big Sur River.

Friday evening we will look at the course, discuss procedures, and stretch. Saturday's race begins at 10:00 a.m. We'll picnic after the race and look at the video in the evening. On Sunday we'll stretch, take a short hike, and soak in the tubs or massage. The entry fee and a T-shirt are included. The run is for beginners as well as advanced runners. Race entry and further information will be sent upon registration. $230

The Possibility of Being for Human Beings: Colloquium with Werner Erhard

"Desires by themselves," wrote Jacob Needleman in The Heart of Philosophy (Knopf, NY, 1982) "are perhaps not the enemy that the traditional teachings speak about, but they become quite another thing when they assume in ourselves the status of 'I'; when they feel like 'myself.' These innumerable 'myselves'—are they not the reason man forgets truth and being?" Needleman goes on to describe an extraordinary moment of his life, a moment of joy, or ecstasy. "The sense of ecstasy or joy was, perhaps, not less than is reported by some mystics." says Needleman, "yet it was not caused by a direct experience of a higher reality, but, on the contrary, by a direct experience of a lower reality, by the unmistakable experience of a question about myself."

This colloquium will raise the question, through a distinctive method of inquiry, of what it means to be a human being. The commitment of the inquiry is to provide an avenue for its impact to show up really, practically, as empowerment in one's everyday concerns. The colloquium will be concluded on Saturday evening. Participants will have the facilities of Esalen available for their use on Sunday. $230

Week of October 27–November 1

Resolving Patterns of Stress

Peter Levine & Michael Salveson

For workshop description see June 2-7. $450

Self Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see June 23-28. $450

Creating Musical Theater

Bradley Bernstein, Didi Conn, Nancy Kaye Lunney & David Shire

Theater! Music! Lights! Make-up! Join us for a week of creating original musical theater. Now's your chance to be a writer, a lighting technician, an actor, designer, or a stage manager. Through Spolin exercises and other group games we will engage in the process of creating: from receptivity, through focus, to expression.

This is a week to rediscover your talents; a chance to experience spontaneity, creativity, and being part-of-the-whole. No experience is needed.

The faculty includes Didi Conn, stage, film, and television actress, and founder of "The First Stage" in Los Angeles, which is a group of actors, directors, and writers that develop new plays for stage and screen; David Shire, Academy Award-winning composer of many film scores and of the Broadway hit Baby; Nancy Kaye Lunney, former vocal coach and accompanist who regularly leads singing workshops at Esalen, and Bradley Bernstein, director of shows at Juilliard and other schools and theaters in the United States, Canada, and Australia.

Use your own interests and abilities, be a creative player at whatever you'd like to do. This will be a very active week!

Recommended reading: Viola Spolin, Improvisation for the Theater. $450

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs. No participants will be accepted as work scholars in Gazebo or the office until they have fulfilled a minimum of one month in one of the aforementioned departments.

Most evenings and two intensive weekends are spent together as a group exploring different practices and approaches available at Esalen, with specifically assigned leaders who will be with the group throughout the month, coordinating the study schedule and facilitating many of the evening sessions.

The program is usually divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc.

Focused programs planned thus far for 1985 include:

June 23–July 21: Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita) and Vicki Topp offer a program emphasizing body awareness, including gestalt and Reichian bodywork, massage, and creative movement.

July 21–September 15: Seymour Carter and Wolf Buentig coordinate a two-month program focusing on gestalt practice, with emphasis for, but not limited to, professionals. Recommended reading: Karen Horney, Neurosis and Human Growth.

October 13–November 10: Deborah Medow leads a program focused on body awareness, including such activities as yoga, creative movement and dance, theater games, interpersonal process, and massage.

November 10–December 8: Andrea Juhan and Deborah Medow offer a program of movement studies which can be taken alone or as a combined program with body awareness, October 13–November 10.

December 8–January 5: Neil and Pat Lamper lead a program emphasizing gestalt awareness, using massage, the baths, movement, music, personal imagery, outdoor awareness, group nurture, and group gaiety.

In as much as the Work Study Program is a complete program in itself, please do not plan to take regularly scheduled catalog workshops during your stay. Professional services, such as massage and Rolfing®, are available at staff rates.

Accommodations are shared, with up to three people to a room, usually at South Coast Center, a staff living complex located 1½ miles north of Esalen.

The 28 day Work Study Program costs $600 for the first month. A $300 deposit in U.S. currency is required with your application. Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second month, at a cost of $550, or a third month at a cost of $500 depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

NOTE: This application is not a registration in the program. Registration is made only after approval of application and upon receipt of deposit. Please return this form with your deposit to:

Work Study Program,
Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.
Telephone: (408) 667-2335.

The balance of the fee is due on arrival. Of the original deposit, $100 is non-refundable, and may be transferred to other Esalen programs within one year of receipt.

Available dates: May 26–June 23; June 23–July 21; July 21–August 18; August 18–September 15; September 15–October 13; October 13–November 10; November 10–December 8; December 8–January 5; January 5–February 2; February 2–March 2; March 2–March 30; March 30–April 27; etc.

Application to the Work Study Program

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Date of Birth _____ Occupation _____ Place of Employment _____

Daytime Telephone (_____) _____ Date of Application _____

Evening Telephone (_____) _____ Male ☐ Female ☐ Smoker ☐ Non-smoker ☐

I prefer the general interest program: yes ☐ no ☐ I prefer the focused program in: _____

The Work Study Program is for 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. Please list the dates of your choice, listing two alternative dates as well.

1st: _____ to _____ 2nd: _____ to _____ 3rd: _____ to _____

Work scholars may sometimes be invited to remain for a second or third month, depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. If an invitation is extended, please indicate your availability. ☐ no extension ☐ one month extension ☐ two month extension
Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs.

If you have emergency medical skills, (M.D., E.M.T. or R.N.) and are willing to make those skills available during your stay, please check here. ☐

Please attach a personal statement about your interest in the Work Study Program, including: your available skills, especially English language skills, which are essential for participation in the program; any medical difficulties which might affect your working in any departments; any Esalen workshops you have attended (please list program titles, group leaders, and dates).

Wilderness Programs

Esalen Wilderness Programs Refund Policy

Most expenses in wilderness programs are incurred preparing for your arrival. The refund policy reflects the fact that few of these expenses can be recovered.

To reserve a space in a wilderness workshop, we require the following deposit:

Up to 3 days	$50
4-7 days	$100
Over 8 days	$200

The balance of the fee is due 14 days before the program begins. If you cancel prior to 30 days before the program begins, your non-refundable deposit may be applied to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year. If you cancel from 30 days up to the starting date of the trip, your deposit is forfeited.

May 3-11
Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Jessica Moore Britt & Steven Harper

Nature can provide us with opportunities to stretch our limits and explore our inner wilderness. By living in a natural environment we can expand our sense of self and depth of being.

The group will spend a day and a night at Esalen, leaving the next morning to hike through the Ventana wilderness. We will travel "light," with instruction in minimum impact camping, ecology, and the geography and cultural history of the area

With the wilderness as our mirror, we will explore our inner world of dreams, feelings, and sensations as they emerge, using gestalt awareness practice and group process. Taking inspiration from natural and native purification practices, we will create a time of cleansing and contemplation, culminating in a 24-hour period alone. The group will hike on to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center, deep in a rugged wilderness valley, with natural hot springs, for our last night together. There, meditation instruction will be available for those who wish it. Backpacking experience is not necessary, though participants should be prepared for the challenge of vigorous physical activity. More information will be sent upon registration. $475

May 26-June 2
Seasons of a Woman's Life: Self-Exploration in the Wilderness

Annie Callaway-Galland & Marilyn Mason

Women are discovering that their life cycles and crises differ substantially from life experiences of men. Most adult developmental models, however, are male-oriented and women find themselves with road maps that don't fit. Through an outdoor adventure and aided by the use of an evolving feminist model of adult development, the focus of this workshop will be to help women identify and make clear choices about which "season of their life" they are living.

Reflecting on our own inner seasons, we will hike together exploring nature in the summer, acquiring wilderness skills, and becoming infused with the rich lore of the Ventana wilderness —from the dry chapparal to the spectacular Big Sur Coast ridges.

We will camp at Esalen our first night, drive to the trailhead the next afternoon, and return to Esalen the following Sunday morning to enjoy the hot springs and lunch. No previous wilderness experience is necessary. A complete equipment list and reading list will be sent upon registration. $495

July 14-18
A White Water Adventure on Idaho's Salmon River

Seymour Carter & Bob Doppelt

Workshop participants will be involved with rowing the rafts and all other aspects of this river trip. The focus will be on exploration as participants float the "River of No Return." The Salmon River offers eighty miles of rapids, and scenery combining sheer walled canyons with wide open vistas and vast wilderness. No previous wilderness experience is necessary. Basic wilderness and river skills will be complemented by a variety of approaches to inner development. Participants are responsible for transportation to and from Lewiston, Idaho.

For further information, those interested should write to Bob Doppelt, 1935 Hayes Street, Eugene, Oregon 97405. $550

July 21-27
The Grand Tetons: A Mountain Odyssey

Annie Callaway-Galland & Dick Galland

The Grand Teton, the centerpiece of the Teton Range, rises abruptly from the valley called Jackson Hole. Its soaring granite form has captured the imagination of explorers and adventurers since the early 1800s. During this week-long adventure we travel up an easy canyon on the range's western side to gain access to the high country. From here we enjoy spectacular views north and south, dominated always by the "Grand" itself. We carry all we need in our packs, camping by streams and bright mountain lakes. From our base camp in a high 1000 ft. meadow we explore the surrounding forest and ridges. We spend a day at beginning rock climbing and rappelling, and perhaps ascend a nearby peak. Near the end of the week we each spend 24 hours alone in reflection and contemplation. We learn a variety of mountain skills, including campcraft, and map and compass travel. There is ample time for fishing, relaxing, eating gourmet backpacking food, and simply enjoying the exhilaration of the high mountains.

This program is based upon the notion that one's responses to the challenges of the mountains reflect responses to challenges of daily life. From the real and immediate lessons of the wilderness, we can come to know ourselves better and to act with a greater sense of clarity and purpose. During this week, journal keeping, natural history storytelling, guided fantasy, and other approaches will help us to understand these lessons more completely. Campfires will focus around our experiences and the rich lore of the moutain men and women who explored these peaks before us. No previous experience is required, though participants should be fit and in good health. Complete information on clothing, equipment, and travel will be sent upon registration. We meet in Idaho Falls, Idaho on July 21. $525

July 29-August 3
Zen and the Art of Fly Fishing in Yellowstone National Park

Dick Galland

In Yellowstone National Park, among geysers, travertine pools, and abundant wildlife, are the best trout waters in the West. This is the perfect setting in which to learn the skills necessary to become an accomplished fly fisher. We will fish an incredible variety of waters, from the slicks and rich hatches of the Firehole to the riffles and runs of the Yellowstone and Madison.

Fly fishing calls for subtlety of movement and a focus akin to the Eastern meditative disciplines. The trout must be approached with delicacy and grace. Learning to fly fish has more to do with disciplining the body and mind and tuning the senses than with killing trout. Indeed it is the most ecologically sensitive way to fish, as the trout may be released unharmed.

During this week, we camp together at the center of the Park, preparing gourmet meals over campstoves, sleeping in cozy tents, and enjoying the pleasures of campfire comraderie. Each day we travel by van to a different stream or river to learn a full range of fishing skills, from basic casting to advanced nymph and streamer fishing. The small group size allows ample time for individual instruction on the water.

Whether you are a novice intrigued by the delicacy of fly fishing or an old hand wishing to experience the extraordinary waters of the

David Nelson

Park, this program will have you catching lots of fish. Open to men and women, the program begins in West Yellowstone, Montana. A detailed information package will be sent upon registration. $575

August 3-10
A Gentle Trip in the High Sierra

Maurica Anderson & Rob Cooley

During this seven-day workshop in wildflower season we will hike eight miles to a clear mountain lake (9,700') off the main trails in the Minarets Wilderness area on the western side of the High Sierra. Mules will carry in all of the personal gear and food, enabling us to have outrageously good food (fresh or frozen rather than freeze-dried). You need carry nothing but lunch, rain gear, and water on the hike in. The lake is off the main trails, and is surrounded by other lakes, grassy meadows, wildflowers, and cold streams fed by the surrounding snow fields.

We will camp by the lake for six nights, taking short day hikes to other beautiful areas, working with body awareness, massage, psychodrama, gestalt, and group process—and laughing a lot. During the week we'll also put up a sauna, take some strenuous but optional side hikes, and have some time for doing nothing.

We will be concentrating on the sights and sounds and smells of the high country, on getting to know the mountains, ourselves, and one another.

Mountaineering experience is not necessary, but applicants should possess a good sense of humor and be capable of hiking uphill at altitudes of up to 10,500 feet. A detailed information sheet will be supplied upon request or registration. Fee includes food, wine, permits, and packers in and out.

For a detailed information sheet on this program, write or call: Maurica Anderson, 1112 Curtis St., Albany, CA 94706 [(415) 526-5814]. $450

August 31-September 7
The Aspen Alps: A Modest Peak Ascent

Annie Callaway-Galland & Dick Galland

Surrounded by the snow-clad peaks of the Colorado Rockies, Aspen will be the starting point for an expedition into the adjacent Snowmass Wilderness.

We will explore the heart of this pristine region on our week-long adventure. Carrying all we need in our packs, we start at 9000 ft. hiking to a secluded alpine lake of surpassing beauty at 10,000 ft. From this base camp, we will learn about rock climbing, rappelling, wilderness cooking of gourmet food, and the skills needed to travel and live comfortably in the high country. The culmination of our adventure will be a day ascent, hiking without packs up 14,000 ft. Snowmass Peak. From the top we will enjoy a 360' view of the Rockies' most breathtaking scenery: mountains and valleys on all sides, clouds seeming to brush our heads. The peak climb will be challenging but within the abilities of the enthusiastic hiker.

This program and the peak climb are a metaphor, a means of gaining new understanding of how each of us as individuals prepares for, and accomplishes "peak experiences" in our daily lives. From the practical experience of preparing for and climbing Snowmass we may come to better understand the ways in which we deal with newness and challenge. Each of us will have an opportunity to reflect and contemplate on this experience on a 24-hour solo near the end of our week. No backpacking or mountain experience necessary. You should be healthy and reasonably fit and able to go to higher elevations. We will move slowly so everyone will have a chance to become used to the elevation. A full packet of information on clothing, equipment, and travel will be sent upon registration. This program begins and ends in Aspen, Colorado. $525

Special Programs

May 12–June 7
Frontiers of Modern Consciousness Research: Emergence of A New Paradigm

Coordinated by Stanislav and Christina Grof

This four-week interdisciplinary educational program is designed for professionals and students in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, medicine, anthropology, history, art, religion, and philosophy. We will focus on the following areas:

1. Ancient and Non-Western Maps of Consciousness. We will explore theoretically and experientially shamanism, aboriginal ritual practices, various mystical traditions, and the great Oriental spiritual philosophies.

2. Modern Clinical and Laboratory Consciousness Research. Prominent researchers in various fields who have contributed to the new paradigm will review with participants revolutionary observations from modern science that represent a critical challenge to Newtonian-Cartesian thinking. This will include psychedelic counseling, modern experiential counseling, laboratory methods of altering consciousness, field anthropology, parapsychology, study of near-death experiences, UFO phenomena and multiple personalities, brain research, and quantum-relativistic physics.

3. Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Evolutionary Crises. This aspect of the program will focus on observations, suggesting that certain non-ordinary states of consciousness—if supported rather than suppressed—are conducive to emotional and psychosomatic healing, personality transformation, and consciousness evolution. We will experiment with methods which are useful in facilitating a positive resolution of such crises.

4. Self-Exploration and Group Process. The format of these workshops combines didactic input with deep personal experience. We will use controlled breathing, evocative music, body work, mandala drawing, gestalt practice, meditation, and other approaches. The coordinators and the Esalen staff will function as facilitators for the participants throughout the workshop.

Among participants will be: Fritjof Capra, Karl Pribram, Rupert Sheldrake, Jill Purce, Anne and Jim Armstrong, Jack Kornfield, and Russell Targ.

Reservations should be addressed to: Christina Grof, c/o Esalen Institute. $1800

Healthspring Traveling Workshops

The Esalen massage teachers and their associates have created Healthspring, an independent organization devoted to extending their work into an outreach program. The workshops offer practices to help increase physical and spiritual health and awareness within the body, and can be designed to suit the needs of individual groups. The curriculum combines such approaches as massage, meditation, dance, neo-Reichian work, creative movement, gestalt, yoga, breath enhancement, anatomy, and other health-strengthening disciplines.

Healthspring will conduct workshops at locations outside of Esalen in your hometown or city. For more information on scheduling a Healthspring group in your community, write to: Healthspring Traveling Workshops, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Massage Practitioner Certification Program

Easlen is now offering a California state-approved certificate upon successful completion of its three month work-scholar program or one month residential massage practitioner program, and 30 additional massages. Each program fulfills the state requirement of at least 130 hours of instruction, supplemented with additional study in body-mind disciplines such as yoga, gestalt awareness work, and movement.

Integrative Body Practice Training Program

Integrative Body Practice (IBP) uses breathing as a vehicle for the integration of body, mind, emotions, and spirit and is based on the work of Jack Lee Rosenberg, author of Total Orgasm, and Body, Self and Soul: Sustaining Integration with Marjorie L. Rand (October, 1984).

There are three ways of being in the IBP professional training program at Esalen: professional certification in IBP if you are already a licensed mental health practitioner (CEU available); master's degree in clinical/counseling psychology (BA required, submit transcripts); Ph.D. in clinical/counseling psychology (48 unit master's degree in psychology required, submit transcripts). Degrees are awarded by California approved degree-granting institutions (not by Esalen).

For details write the Rosenberg Institute, 1107 W. Washington Bl., Venice, Ca. 90291, c/o Dr. Marjorie Rand.

Future Programs

November 3–29
Transpersonal Psychology

Christina & Stanislav Grof

In this month-long program, participants will explore, experientially and theoretically, the rapidly developing field of transpersonal psychology. Among the guest faculty will be people who have made significant contributions to the transpersonal psychology field. $1800

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state-approved provider for continuing education for health professionals. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category 1 approval. Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Physicians

August 9–10
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines
10 hours

October 6–11
The Approaches of Milton H. Erickson, M.D.
Jane Parsons, A.C.S.W. assisted by Francis Lu, M.D.
30 hours

Registered Nurses

June 30–July 5
Seven-Day Beginning Trager Training
Betty Fuller & Deane Juhan
30 hours

July 7–12
Zero Balancing:
Beginning/Intermediate Workshop
Fritz Smith, M.D.
30 hours

August 9–11
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines
10 hours

October 6–11
The Approaches of Milton H. Erickson, M.D.
Jane Parsons, A.C.S.W. assisted by Francis Lu, M.D.
30 hours

Biographical Information

A

Stephen Aizenstat, p. 33 ..... clinical director of the Human Relations Institute, has conducted dream groups throughout the U.S. and recently completed a comprehensive research project on theories and methods of dream analysis.

Diana Alstad p. 39 ..... taught the first women's studies courses at Yale and Duke. She has led male/female groups with Joel Kramer in North America, Europe, and Asia.

Maurica Anderson p. 28, 43 ..... regularly uses psychodrama and other practices at alcohol treatment centers and for organizational development. She has led Esalen High Sierra wilderness trips for many years.

Anne Armstrong p. 23, 26 ..... has been doing transpersonal counseling for over 18 years and has trained professionals to use their own intuitive abilities.

Jim Armstrong, p. 23, 26 ..... a former engineer, is a life-long student and teacher of esoteric studies.

Elliot Aronson, p. 29, 44 ..... professor of psychology at the University of California, Santa Cruz, is author of twelve books, including Burnout (with Ayala Pines).

B

Richard Baker-roshi p. 34 ..... is presently abbot and head teacher of Dharma Sangha Zen Meditation and Study Center in San Francisco and Santa Fe.

Robert Bathurst, p. 16, 35 ..... professor, writer, former diplomat and naval officer, has specialized in Soviet literature and Soviet strategy since he was an interpreter at Camp David during the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks.

Frances Belmonte p. 24 ..... is a theologian, teacher, and lecturer. She is currently on the faculty of Loyola University of Chicago.

Bradley Bernstein, p. 40 ..... a theater director, studied with Viola Spolin, and holds a doctorate in clinical psychology. He develops original theater with professional groups and with psychiatric patients.

Daniel Bianchetta p. 23 ..... practices intuitive readings, shiatsu, and deep tissue work at Esalen. He is a teacher and student of Siddha yoga.

Jacob Blass p. 38 ..... is a Los Angeles management consultant. As a former member of a spiritual group, he counsels people who have left spiritual groups.

Ralph Blum, p. 22 ..... author of The Book of Runes, is a writer, publisher, and storyteller who has spent the last eight years working with Runes as a counseling tool.

Devers Branden, p. 23 ..... a Los Angeles-based counselor, is co-author (with Nathaniel Branden) of The Romantic Love Question and Answer Book.

Nathaniel Branden, p. 23 ..... a Los Angeles based psychologist/counselor, is author of Honoring the Self.

Charles Brandon, p. 24 ..... chairman of The Reality Foundation, physicist, and co-founder of a major corporation, has followed transformations in various disciplines for nine years.

Faustin Bray, p. 36 ..... performing musician and media artist, founder of Island and Flying Machine International Mobile Schools, specializes in instigating and integrating creativity using yoga, fine arts, science, and travel.

Char Pias Brenner p. 40 ..... is a dancer, singer, performing artist, and massage teacher. Since joining the Esalen community in 1977, she has worked with family care and healing arts and rituals.

Jessica Moore Britt, p. 12, 15, 27, 29, 39, 42 ..... R.N., presently a member of the Esalen community, is a practitioner of gestalt, Reichian, and wilderness approaches to healing and essential development.

Wolf Buentig, p. 24, 41 ..... counselor, is founder and director of Zist, a humanistic growth center in West Germany.

C

Peter Caddy p. 16 ..... is the founder of the Findhorn Foundation, and is presently engaged in visiting and assisting in the link-up of communities, groups, and movements for the process of planetary transformation.

Annie Callaway-Galland, p. 18, 26, 30, 33, 42, 43 ..... professional wilderness guide and counselor, hatha yoga teacher, and writer, has been leading Esalen trips for many years.

Anne Caple p. 23 ..... is a student of transpersonal psychology, a technical writer, editor, and fiber artist.

John Caple p. 23, 40 ..... is a career counselor, worklife advisor to organizations, and teacher, with an earlier career in business management.

Fritjof Capra p. 37 ..... is author of The Tao of Physics, The Turning Point, and co-author, with Charlene Spretnak, of Green Politics.

Paul Carter, p. 19, 40 ..... co-founder and director of Meta-Education and Training Arts since 1976, leads workshops in the U.S. and Europe in Ericksonian hypnosis, creativity, and learning.

Seymour Carter, p. 25, 36, 41, 43 ..... longtime gestalt teacher at Esalen and in Europe, brings to his work studies in sensory awareness, Zen Buddhism, aikido, and other body-oriented practices.

Michell Cassou p. 18, 35 ..... is the founder of an original approach to painting designed to stimulate and unblock creativity. She is director of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Jack Cirie, p. 15 ..... certified Leonard Energy Training Instructor and aikido practitioner, has led workshops in the eastern U.S. in body awareness and performance from centered and balanced stances.

Gordon Clanton ..... teaches sociology at San Diego State University. His book Jealousy was featured in Psychology Today and on network television.
p. 29

Cheryl Colton, ... a licensed social worker, does spirituality and retreat work, as well as private practice counseling at Stritch Awareness Center in Memphis.
p. 24

Didi Conn ..... starred in the movies You Light Up My Life and Grease (I & II), and was featured regularly in the TV series, Benson.
p. 40

Rob Cooley ..... does family counseling with Oregon's Children's Services Division during most of the year; in the summer he is a white water river guide.
p. 28, 43

Phil Cousineau, ... a professional screenwriter and script consultant, has taught and lectured nationwide for the American Film Institute, and is co-author of the forthcoming book The Screenwriter as Storyteller.
p. 29

Stewart Cubley, ... artist and scientist, is a co-founder of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.
p. 18, 35

Dale Cummings, ... certified Radix® teacher and counselor in private practice in West Los Angeles, is director of first-year training for the Radix Institute at Ojai.
p. 34

D

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita), ... a certified Radix® teacher on the Esalen faculty, has twelve years of experience combining Reichian bodywork, gestalt, Bates vision work, movement, and meditation in group and private instruction.
p. 15, 19, 28, 41

Steven Donovan ..... is director of The Transformation Project and an Esalen trustee.
p. 21

Bob Doppelt ..... has been a river guide for over 17 years and is owner of Oregon River Experiences Inc.
p. 25, 43

Patrick Douce, ... a resident at Esalen since 1972, teaches ongoing classes in Feldenkrais awareness through movement and is available for individual sessions in functional integration.
p. 18, 33

Jack Downing, ... M.D., is a psychiatrist with a comprehensive background in gestalt, Rolfing®, Arica, applied kinesiology, and neurolinguistic programming.
p. 30

Joel Dweck, ... certified Radix® teacher, is director of a Reichian training program in Santa Monica, and has a private practice there.
p. 25, 26

E

Werner Erhard ..... is the founder of a body of work which provides an approach to being, through a distinctive method of inquiry.
p. 40

F

David Feldshuh ..... is a professional director, actor, and teacher. He is currently artistic director of Theater Cornell, Cornell University.
p. 30

Gordon Feller, ... author of Peace and World Order Studies and Between Two Worlds, has headed global security organizations for over a decade.
p. 39

Richard Feynman ..... has been a professor of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology since 1950 and has received many awards for his contributions to quantum theory.
p. 36

Neil Fiore, ... a licensed psychologist practicing hypnosis, is working on the effects of stress and anxiety on performance and health.
p. 35

Jerry Fletcher ..... is president and founder of High Performance Dynamics, Inc., a management consulting and training company based in Richmond, California.
p. 24

Matthew Fox, ... founder of the Institute in Culture and Creation Spirituality, is author of numerous books.
p. 24

John Franklin, ... founding director of the Fathers' Center, Pennsylvania, is an individual and family counselor using a psychosynthesis and psycho-spiritual model.
p. 39

Joyce Frazee, ... gestalt and dream work practitioner in Vancouver, Canada, for fourteen years, has training in Jungian dream analysis, bioenergetics, and group process.
p. 15, 39

David Fuess ..... has been practicing polarity for nine years. He has taught in France, Canada, Mexico, and across the United States.
p. 25

Betty Fuller, ... director of Trager Institute and instructor of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics®, is a certified practitioner of Feldenkrais' awareness-through-movement and functional integration.
p. 23, 44

G

Dick Galland, ... professional wilderness guide and fly fishing instructor, was founding director of Southwest Outward Bound and currently heads Clearwater Trout Tours. He has led Esalen trips for many years.
p. 26, 28, 33, 43

Yvonne Ginsberg, ... NLP practitioner and Ericksonian hypnotist, has ten years of intensive vipassana meditation experience. She is in private practice in the Bay Area.
p. 26, 28

Merri Goldenson (Devarani) ..... is a chiropractor, certified Radix® teacher, Bates vision instructor, and is in private practice in Los Angeles and San Francisco.
p. 16, 23, 31, 32

Joe D. Goldstrich ..... is a cardiologist, and a former medical director of the Pritikin Longevity Center, and is in private practice in Santa Monica, California.
p. 33

Annette Goodheart, ... a licensed marriage, family, and child counselor and educator, has led workshops on laughter, aging, relationships, sex, and sensuality. As a painter she has had numerous private gallery exhibitions.
p. 40

Harriet Goslins ..... is a Feldenkrais practitioner and an awareness-through-movement teacher with a background in psychosynthesis and applied kinesiology.
p. 37

Christina Grof ..... studied with Swami Muktananda and has a special interest in the relationship between mysticism and psychosis. She is founder of the Spiritual Emergency Network and co-author of Beyond Death.
p. 16, 23, 24, 28, 33, 44

Stanislav Grof ..... is a psychiatrist with almost three decades experience in consciousness research with and without psychedelics. He is author of Realms of the Human Unconscious and LSD Psychotherapy.
p. 16, 23, 24, 28, 33, 44

H

Joan Halifax, ... author of Shamanic Voices and Shaman the Wounded Healer, teaches in Europe, Mexico, and America, and is director of the Ojai Foundation.
p. 34

Anna Halprin, ... founder of the San Francisco Dancers' Workshop and co-founder and teacher at the Tamalpa Training Institute in Marin County, is the author of Movement Ritual I and Collected Writings.
p. 35

Daria Halprin-Khalighi ..... is a gestalt movement facilitator and is co-founder and teacher at the Tamalpa Institute in Marin County.
p. 35

Betsy Hand, ... former resident staff member of the Gestalt Institute of Canada, has 20 years experience with families, couples, and groups. She is in private practice in Kentfield, California.
p. 15, 25, 36

Steven Harper ..... teaches for Colorado Outward Bound and the National Outdoor Leadership School, and is currently the coordinator of the Esalen Wilderness Programs.
p. 13, 15, 18, 37, 40, 42

Susan Harper ..... teaches Continuum Dance Meditation workshops in Los Angeles and San Francisco, leads "Dance the River" trips on wild rivers, and has presented at the Joy-Spangler Asilomar Conference.
p. 18

Hazel Henderson ..... is an independent futurist, author, lecturer, and radio and television moderator.
p. 31

Nick Herbert, ... an independent researcher in the foundations of physics, is completing a popular book on quantum foundations entitled Quantum Reality: Beyond the New Physics (Doubleday).
p. 24, 26

James Hickman ..... is director of Esalen's Soviet-American Exchange Program.
p. 22

Maria Holloman ..... has studied gestalt and deep tissue and practiced spiritual massage at Esalen for the last five years. She was formerly a lawyer in Brazil.
p. 17

Maya Holloman ..... has been a student at Gazebo since she was six months old.
p. 15, 19, 25, 31

Perry Holloman, ... a former teacher at Gazebo School, currently is a member of both Experiencing Esalen and Gazebo workshop staffs.
p. 15, 17, 19, 25, 31

Laszlo Honti, ... president of the Hungarian Humanistic Psychology Association, focuses his work on the development of East-West communication.
p. 36

Peggy Morrison Horan ..... is an Esalen masseuse and teacher, and coordinator of the Esalen Childbirth Education Program.
p. 15, 26, 29, 37

Paul Horn ..... is a flutist, jazz musician, creator of the Inside albums, philosopher, and teacher of meditation. He works with improvisation and movement as a means to open the creative flow.
p. 37

J

Edward Jarvis ..... is a noted chiropractor in Pacific Grove, California. He is a widely respected polarity practitioner and has lectured on polarity at Palmer College of Chiropractic.
p. 25

Eli Jaxon-Bear, ... former director of a Buddhist meditation center, is a master practitioner of neurolinguistics who integrates this work with Ericksonian hypnotic practice and Eastern philosophies.
p. 28

Michael Joyce, ... a somatologist and Feldenkrais teacher in private practice in Nevada and California, is author of works on physiological learning and functional intelligence.
p. 32

Andrea Juhan ..... is an Esalen deep tissue and massage practitioner, leads movement exploration classes for various group leaders, and conducts Esalen community classes in stretch exercises, aerobics, and dance.
p. 34, 41

Deane Juhan, ... a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years, is a certified practitioner of Trager psychophysical integration.
p. 23, 44

K

Charles Kaiser ..... is a reporter for the New York bureau of the Wall Street Journal. He is writing a book about the '60s, to be published by William Morrow.
p. 28

Fred Kalmus, ... co-founder of the Alternative Choice Counseling Program, leads workshops in stress management for corporations and individuals.
p. 28

Norman Katz ..... is director of the Milton Erickson Institute of Hypnosis and the Behavioral Sciences of New Mexico.
p. 23

James Kavanaugh, ... former priest, psychologist, novelist, and poet, is the author of twenty books and director of an institute in Santa Barbara, sponsoring SEARCH workshops.
p. 33

Kenneth Kelzer ..... works as a transpersonal educator and counselor in California. Using dreamwork, he has been conducting classes and groups for over ten years.
p. 25

George King, ... a massage practitioner for 22 years, has worked throughout the U.S., Europe, and South America.
p. 15, 22, 29, 40

Jackie Kirk ..... teaches watercolor at the College of Marin, UC extension, and is Artist-in Residence for Marin County Schools.
p. 27

Joel Kirsch ..... is former sports psychologist for the San Francisco Giants baseball team, and co-founder of Kirsch Associates.
p. 19, 35

Susan Kirsch ..... is a founding member of the Energy Training Institute, president of Kirsch Associates, a management training firm, and an instructor at Golden Gate University, San Francisco.
p. 19, 35

George Kohlrieser ..... is director of Shiloah, Center for Human Growth in Dayton, Ohio, where he works with individuals, families, and groups.
p. 32

Murray Korngold ..... is a certified acupuncturist and a teacher and speaker on parapsychology and psychic healing.
p. 30

Joel Kramer, ... a western master of physical and mental yoga, has taught with Diana Alstad throughout the world on the evolution of awareness and male/female relationships.
p. 39

L

Stephen LaBerge ..... is a scientist dedicated to the transformation of human consciousness. He teaches and does research on conscious or "lucid" dreaming at Stanford University.
p. 21

Neil Lamper, ... longtime university professor and gestalt teacher for over 20 years, is currently working in Philadelphia, Toronto and on a Michigan farm. Current teachers are his five granddaughters.
p. 41

Pat Lamper ..... is a counselor and teacher, co-founder and director of Farm Center in Michigan and extended member of Gazebo.
p. 41

Benj Langdon, ... former coordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body, is currently exploring transformation through body practices.
p. 21, 26

Janet Lederman, ... creator of the Gazebo school and philosophy, is an educational consultant to corporations concerned with child care facilities.
p. 20, 35

Marc Lehrer ..... is director of Medical Hypnosis Seminars of San Francisco.
p. 23

Dub Leigh ..... has been trained by Ida Rolf and Moshe Feldenkrais and has studied with Lauren Berry and Milton Trager.
p. 17, 32

Ralph Leighton ..... has taught math for many years, and, combining this talent with an interest in ethnic music, he has developed considerable facility in creating rhythms.
p. 36

Annie Styron Leonard ..... is an associate director of Wellness Associates of Mill Valley, California, where she teaches workshops and classes in energy awareness and its application to wellness.
p. 15, 27

George Leonard, ... author of Education and Ecstasy, The Transformation, The Ultimate Athlete, and The Silent Pulse, holds a black belt in aikido, from which he derives his present work.
p. 15, 16

Peter Levine ..... has practiced and taught Reichian body work for many years. He holds doctorates in medical biophysics and psychology. His interests include the effects of stress on children and infants.
p. 18, 40

Bill Liles, ... member of the Esalen bodywork team since 1972, practices and teaches polarity bodywork through the form of Esalen massage. His interests include backpacking, wilderness, and natural history.
p. 40

Paul Lounsbury ..... has studied extensively with Milton Erickson and has conducted numerous training seminars on the use of hypnosis and strategic counseling. He is in private practice in New York.
p. 29, 30

DeeDee Lozier ..... is a Feldenkrais practitioner who studied with Moshe Feldenkrais in the United States and Israel.
p. 17, 32

Francis Lu, ... with a background in gestalt, psychosynthesis, and transpersonal psychology, is assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of California, San Francisco.
p. 38, 44

Nancy Kaye Lunney ..... is gestaltist and musician on Esalen's faculty, has specialized in work with professionals in the creative arts, does individual as well as group work, and is manager of programming at Esalen.
p. 15, 35, 40

M

Edward Mann ..... is a sociologist, former Anglican priest, and author of two books on Wilhelm Reich, and is now publishing a critical study of Rajneeshism.
p. 30

Marilyn Mason ..... is founder and director of Wilderness Learning Institute and is a professional wilderness counselor. She is also a family and sex counselor at Family Therapy Institute in Minneapolis.
p. 18, 30, 42

Rhonda Martyn, ... former artistic director of the San Francisco Moving Company, is an award-winning choreographer and dancer now living in New York.
p. 25

Gena Mayer, ... MFCC, is in private practice in San Jose and San Francisco. She holds an adjunct certificate as a Radix® teacher.
p. 34

Terence McKenna ..... authored The Invisible Landscape and Psilocybin: Magic Mushroom Grower's Guide. He studied shamanism at U.C. Berkeley and has lived in tropical Asia and the Amazon.
p. 25, 32

Deborah Anne Medow, ... Esalen body work practitioner and group leader since 1969, teaches ashtanga yoga, massage, creative movement, and related healing disciplines, and studies Native American tradition.
p. 12, 17, 20, 34, 35, 36, 41

Ailish Mellard, ... holistic health practitioner and body worker for 12 years, is currently organizational consultant for Will Schutz Associates, which teaches human potential concepts to various organizations.
p. 20, 35

Ralph Metzner, ... California Institute of Integral Studies professor and dean, is author of Maps of Consciousness.
p. 25

Donald Michael ..... is author of On Learning to Plan and Planning to Learn and professor emeritus in planning and public policy at the University of Michigan.
p. 35

Harvey Milkman, ... professor of psychology at Metropolitan State College, Denver, Colorado, is co-editor of Addictions: Multidisciplinary Perspectives and Treatments.
p. 23

James Moore, ... chief executive and program designer, established several training corporations, providing programs to the public, government agencies, and corporate clients.
p. 28

Jaime Morton ..... is a teacher of massage, a counselor, and an earth artist.
p. 21, 24

N

O

P

R

Arthur Munyer p. 17, 40 ... is a long time resident of Esalen and a member of the massage crew. He was one of the first faculty members at the Gazebo School at Esalen.

Jezariah Canyon Munyer, p. 40 ... born February 11, 1983, is his parents' favorite teacher.

Laurie Schutz Munyer p. 40 ... has been a long time resident of Esalen, a staff member in several capacities, and has assisted at Gazebo. She is now a member of the Esalen massage crew.

Michael Murphy p. 21 ... is co-founder of Esalen Institute and founder of The Transformation Project. He is author of Golf in the Kingdom, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports, and An End to Ordinary History.

Laura Norman p. 24 ... has been a registered certified reflexologist and massage practitioner for fourteen years, and is listed in Who's Who Among American Women.

The NINE p. 26 ... "We are pure thought human fantasy seeking a road to the birth canal of reality where we will be seen as "The NINE."

Jenny O'Connor p. 26 ... is a psychic from England, and is a channel for "The NINE."

Wendy Oser, p. 26 ... founder and director of Video Feedback Service of Berkeley, and creator of Video Insight, specializes in transpersonal, professional, and personal applications of video.

Brita Ostrom, p. 22, 24, 26 ... a longtime Esalen massage practitioner, incorporates Trager training with the personal energetic connection of the Esalen massage.

Heinz Pagels, p. 26 ... executive director of the New York Academy of Sciences, author of The Cosmic Code, professes physics in New York City.

Helen Palmer, p. 34, 37 ... a clairvoyant counselor, directs the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition, and uses personality issues as access to psychic perception and the inner life.

Wendy Palmer, p. 37 ... a teacher and director of the Lomi School, holds a black belt in aikido and is co-founder of the Tamalpais Aikido and International Movement Arts Center.

Jane Parsons p. 38, 44 ... was facilitator in individual, group, and family treatment in the department of psychiatry at Mount Sinai Hospital for 12 years, and is in private practice in New York City.

Marianne Paschke-Carter p. 19, 40 ... combines movement, hypnosis, conscious breathing, and Trager psychophysical integration in her work with individuals, families, and groups.

George Pennington, p. 16 ... a staff member of the Coloman Growth Center in Bavaria, West Germany, works to combine modern psychological approaches with Buddhist and shamanic consciousness practices.

Ayala Pines, p. 17, 29, 44 ... research associate in the psychology department, UC Berkeley, is the author of Exploring Social Psychology and Burnout: From Tedium to Personal Growth.

Prem Das (Paul Adams) p. 24 ... completed a six year apprenticeship with the Huichol Indian Shaman, don Jose Matsuwa, and studied/practiced Raja yoga with Baba Hari Das in India.

Hector Prestera, p. 21, 33 ... a physician, acupuncturist, Rolfer®, certified neurolinguistic trainer, and practitioner of Ericksonian work, is in private practice in Monterey.

Christine Stewart Price p. 12, 33 ... combines gestalt awareness with creative visualization. She is a born-again pagan (Paganism: religion of the earth).

Jennifer Price, p. 33 ... age ten, was born at Esalen, is an alumna of the Gazebo, and is a junior staff member there.

Lee Pulos p. 36 ... is a clinical psychologist whose career has ranged from traditional clinical practice in hypnosis to his current interests in gathering cross-cultural data on paranormal healing.

Jill Purce p. 18 ... is author of The Mystic Spiral. She studied the mystical dimension of sound with Karl Heinz Stockhausen, and the magical use of the voice and overtone chanting with Tibetan lamas.

Paul Rebillot p. 16 ... was founding director of the Gestalt Fool Theater Family in San Francisco and has been a resident group leader at Esalen.

Linda Rice-Mandigo p. 25, 26 ... is a counselor in private practice in New York.

Tracey Rich p. 36 ... is a director of the White Lotus Yoga Retreat in Santa Barbara and leads seminars nationally.

Kenneth Ring, p. 18, 19 ... active in the field of near-death studies since 1977, is a psychology professor and president of the International Association for Near-Death Studies at the University of Connecticut.

Sogyal Rinpoche, p. 17 ... Tibetan incarnate lama, scholar, and meditation master, was raised by Buddhist master Jamyang Khyentse Chokyi Lodro, and studied at Cambridge University.

Rita Rohen, p. 36 ... an international group leader and body worker, has recently traveled and led workshops in Japan and Nepal. Her background includes family work and organizational development.

Nancy Rosanoff p. 30 ... teaches Energy Strategies and creativity as a private counselor and business consultant. She is based in New York City.

Jack Rosenberg, p. 21, 34, 44 ... author of Total Orgasm, has trained in gestalt and Reichian work. He has worked with cancer research and transformation of consciousness, and is currently in private practice in Venice, Ca.

S

Gabrielle Roth ..... is the creator of the Moving Center method of catalyzing natural movements. She lives on the East Coast, where she directs and performs with her own theater/dance company.
p. 32, 33

Ilana Rubenfeld ..... is the originator of her own integration called "gestalt synergy." She trained with Fritz and Laura Perls and Moshe Feldenkrais, and is on the faculty of New York University.
p. 31

Anne Ruderman, ... a certified Radix® teacher and clinical social worker, is in private practice in Santa Monica, California.
p. 25, 26

Rutuima, ... Prem Das' wife and don Jose's brother's (don Carlos') granddaughter, is a mother and teacher of Huichol.
p. 24

Michael Salveson, ... instructor and former president of the Rolf Institute, and co-founder of the Aspen Research Institute, practices Rolfing®, and has researched biological effects of electromagnetic fields.
p. 18, 40

Robert Sayers, ... developmental psychologist, educator, and founder of the Nurtury Family Institute is author of Fathering: It's Not The Same.
p. 39

David Schiffman, ... a longtime group leader at Esalen, is involved in developing full expression of mental, physical, and spiritual states of being.
p. 17, 21, 22, 25, 26, 32, 36, 37, 39, 40

Elisa Lodge Schiffman ..... trained in structural integration with Ida Rolf and is an advanced teacher of Rolf®-movement integration.
p. 17, 21, 22, 25, 26, 27, 32, 36, 37, 39, 40

Tom Schlesinger, ... whose screenplay, Power Play, is presently in production, is a film educator and moderator of seminars for the American Film Institute.
p. 29

Will Schutz, ... founder of the Antioch holistic studies department, is the creator of The Human Element, a set of training materials for organizations, and author of Joy and Profound Simplicity.
p. 20, 35

Alan Schwartz, ... longtime Esalen group leader, college professor, and gestaltist, is completing his book, Systemics: The Art & Science of the Human Energy System.
p. 28, 29

Mia Segal ..... was Moshe Feldenkrais' first assistant, is an Alexander teacher, and holds a judo black belt. She teaches and leads workshops in the U.S. and Europe.
p. 27

Phyllis Shankman, ... a licensed counselor in private practice in West Los Angeles, specializes in group process, taught Women's Studies at UCLA Extension for many years, and is interested in change.
p. 17

David Shire, ... Oscar-winner for the film score of Norma Rae, has written many film scores, including: All the President's Men, The Conversation, and Return to Oz.
p. 40

Rupert Sheldrake ..... is a biologist and author of A New Science of Life.
p. 19

David Silverstein ..... works with hypnosis and is a neo-Reichian practitioner in private practice in Berkeley, Ca.
p. 26

Anna Nechama Simkin ..... trained in gestalt with Erv and Miriam Polster and Jim Simkin, and has conducted workshops internationally.
p. 25

Harry Sloan, ... a 1969 Esalen resident fellow, former dentist, and playwright, worked with Dr. Roberto Assagioli, the founder of psychosynthesis, and is in private practice in San Francisco.
p. 32, 37

Fritz Smith ..... is a physician, cranial osteopath, certified acupuncturist, and founder of zero balancing. He is in a private holistic health practice in Watsonville, California.
p. 24, 25, 44

Gerald Smith ..... is a psychologist in Belmont, California. He is the author of Hidden Meanings and Couple Therapy.
p. 15, 25, 36

John Soper ..... came to gestalt from a highly successful international career in business. Resident at Esalen since 1978, he practices both interpersonal and intrapersonal gestalt.
p. 12

Charlene Spretnak ..... is author of Lost Goddesses of Early Greece, editor of The Politics of Women's Spirituality, and co-author, with Fritjof Capra, of Green Politics.
p. 37

Starhawk, ... a feminist and peace activist, is a counselor in private practice in San Francisco, and a teacher of the European goddess tradition, often called witchcraft.
p. 39

Gail Stewart, ... a Trager Institute instructor, is director of reSource, a Berkeley, California, bodywork school. She has practiced and taught body/mind work for 14 years.
p. 33

Lois Stewart, ... a trainer in interpersonal communication skills, has a private practice near Washington, D.C. and has 63 years of practice in learning to be a human.
p. 33

Elizabeth Stratton, ... a psychic healer and counselor in private practice in New York City, leads workshops in self-healing, psychic self-defense, and psychic development for health professionals.
p. 28

Stanley Sunderwirth ..... is vice president for academic affairs at Metropolitan State College, Denver, Colorado. He is co-author of "The Chemistry of Craving," Psychology Today, October, 1983.
p. 23

T

Charles Tart ..... has worked with altered states of consciousness, parapsychology, and human potential for 25 years. He is currently writing a new presentation of Gurdjieff's psychological system.
p. 30

Tom Taussig ..... teaches psychology and computer science, and is irreverently committed to life being easy.
p. 26

Lia Thompson ..... has been a Gazebo teacher for six years. She is currently a member of both the Experiencing Esalen: The Body workshop staff and Gazebo workshop staff.
p. 12, 15, 19, 25, 31

Riley Thompson-Clark ..... has been a student at Gazebo since she was three months old.
p. 15, 19, 25, 31

Vicki Topp ..... joined the Esalen massage staff in 1968, and is currently interested in integrating emotional release work and the transpersonal aspects of body work.
p. 17, 21, 36, 37, 41

U

Dana Ullman, ... author of Homeopathic Medicine for the Family, is an educator, publisher, practitioner, and public policy advisor specializing in homeopathy, alternative health-care, and self-care.
p. 37

W

Brian Wallace ..... is an international musician, composer, and media artist noted for creating a dramatic environment. He has performed solo and in companies for 20 years.
p. 36

Judyth Weaver, ... a Reichian counselor, certified teacher of t'ai chi ch'uan, and student of Buddhism and Taoism, holds a doctorate in psychology and teaches at the California Institute of Integral Studies.
p. 36

Ganga White, ... an internationally known teacher and master of yoga, is author of Double Yoga and has received the titles "Yogacharya" and "Yogiraj" (King of Yogis) in India.
p. 36

Robert Anton Wilson, ... former Playboy editor and author of eighteen books, frequently addresses futurist and libertarian gatherings.
p. 32

Nancy Winston ..... is a counselor in New York City who has studied with Milton Erickson and has taught and trained clinicians in the use of hypnosis and counseling throughout North America.
p. 29, 30

Jennifer Woolger, ... educator and counselor, integrates her love of theater with her training in gestalt practice and bodywork.
p. 21

Roger Woolger, ... graduate of C.G. Jung Institute in Zurich, is a teacher, counselor, and author of articles on psychology and spiritual practices.
p. 21

Y

Reuho Yamada ..... is head priest of Choshoji, a Zen temple in Beppu, Japan. He taught and practiced Zen and Zen shiatsu in California for eight years.
p. 33

Shirley Yamada ..... is managing director of Choshoji, a Zen temple in Beppu, and is the first American woman to function in this capacity in Japan.
p. 33

Z

Janet Zuckerman ..... was an emotional release and group process teacher at Esalen for twelve years. She has a private practice in San Francisco.
p. 17, 33

Catalog Subscription Information

The Esalen Catalog is published triannually. Subscription cost for one year, including postage and handling, is $8 for the United States, $10 for Canada and Mexico, $14 for Europe and South America, and $16 for all other countries. Please make all payments in U.S. currency. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920.

☐ To obtain future issues of the Esalen Catalog and occasional mailings for one year, please send a check or money order in U.S. currency only to: Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. A preaddressed envelope is included in this catalog for your convenience.
(Note: People who attend an Esalen workshop or conference will receive a free subscription for one year.)

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ Please send a complimentary copy of the Esalen Catalog to the person listed below:

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Please notify us if you change your address and check here ☐ if you are receiving duplicates of the catalog.

Friends of Esalen

Friends of Esalen provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

We believe that one of our first priorities is to make our programs available on a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions to fund such scholarships.

In addition to knowing that you have given someone else the opportunity to experience Esalen, you will receive the Esalen Catalog for one year. We hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the sharing and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

☐ I wish to become a Friend of Esalen and I enclose my check for the category circled.

☐ I wish to renew my membership in Friends of Esalen.

One Year Student	$15	One Year Donor	$50	One Year Patron	$500
One Year Individual	$25	One Year Sponsor	$100	(Contributions are tax-deductible)

Name _____ Student Affiliation _____

Street _____

City, State _____ Zip Code _____ Date _____

Please mail to: Friends of Esalen, Big Sur, California 93920

Audio Recordings

The Dolphin Tape Series

The human potential movement generates unusual events which produce unusual recordings. Each issue of the Esalen Catalog lists new titles and also a few from the Big Sur Recordings archives. Nearly all tapes are stereo, from live events, and tape length is normally 1 to 1½ hours.

Single-tape titles are $10 with prepayment (purchase orders add $1 per tape):

Joseph Campbell: The Hero's Journey (80th year), 1984
Paul Rebillot: The Pluto Story: Journey into Madness, 1984
Robert Anton Wilson: The I in the Triangle, 1984
Richard Feynman: Tiny Machines, 1984
Terence McKenna: Scenario for a Psychedelic Society, 1984

Julian Silverman: A Light Hearted Course in Miracles, 1984
Daniel Ellsberg: The Policy Catastrophe, 1982
Anna Halprin: Peace Meditation, 1983
Sogyal Rinpoche: Technologies of the Sacred, 1984

Stanley Krippner: Multiple Personality Disorder, 1983
Paul Rebillot: Conflicts at the Ego Frontier, 1983

Jule Eisenbud: Psi Experience in Psychotherapy, 1984
Jan Ehrenwald: Psi Experience and the Bergsonian Filter, 1984
Charles Tart: Our Fear of Psychic Abilities, 1984

Terence McKenna: Mind, Molecules and Magic, 1984
Dennis McKenna: Activity of Ayahuasca and Oo-Kozy, 1984
Richard Yensen: The Use of LSD in Psychotherapy, 1984

Sogyal Rinpoche: Interview on Death and Dying, 1982
Christina Grof: Kundalini Awakening and Spiritual Emergency, 1981
Jack Kornfield: Simplicity of Spiritual Practice, 1982

Robert Anton Wilson: The Prism Lecture (Santa Cruz), 1982
Terence McKenna: New and Old Maps of Hyperspace, 1982
Albert Hofmann: LSD and the Nature of Reality, 1978

Robert Bly: The Six Powers of Poetry, 1983
Gioia Timpanelli: Fairy Tales: The Enduring Stories, 1983
Ram Dass: Involvement With Life, 1974
Anne Armstrong: On Being a Psychic, 1971

Reb Anderson: Entry Into Buddhist Meditation, 1984
Reb Anderson: Basic Points of Buddhist Meditation, 1984

Henry Munn: Mushrooms and Culture, 1977
Henry Munn: Fable of the Vision Drink, 1977

Alan Watts: Divine Madness, 1968
Fritz Perls: Dream Theory and Demonstration, 1968
Carl Rogers: The Intensive Group, 1966
Abraham H. Maslow: Self-Actualization, 1966
Aldous Huxley: Human Potentialities, 1962

Two-tape titles are $18 with prepayment (purchase order price is $20):

David Finkelstein: (2) Ancient, Medieval and Classical Physics, 1984
Father Bede Griffiths: (2) Convergence of Religions, 1983
Frank Barr: (2) History of Philosophy, 1983

Ralph Metzner: (2) Varieties of Human Transformation, 1984
Jean Houston: (2) The Possible Human (Boston ATP Conference), 1979
Stanislav Grof: (2) Geometry of Psychopathology, 1984
Stan & Christina Grof: (2) Holonomic Consciousness Paradigm, 1982

Andrew Weil: (2) Use and Abuse of Beneficial Plants, 1982
Andrew Weil: (2) Interplay of Mind and Body Realities, 1982

Ilana Rubenfeld: (2) Gestalt Synergy Method, 1982
Charlotte Selver/Charles Brooks: (2) Sensory Awareness, 1980-1982
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Story of Basque Mysticism, 1982
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Egyptian Tarot, 1982

Ram Dass: (2) One Man's Journey to the East, 1968
Wilson Van Dusen: (2) Interviewed by Michael Murphy, 1963
Fritz Perls: (2) Neurosis, Psychosis and Dreams, 1968
Joseph Campbell: (2) Myths of Alienation and Rapture, 1970

Four-tape titles are $36 with prepayment (purchase order price is $40):

Father Bede Griffiths: (4) Return to the Center (The Ojai Series), 1983
David Steindl-Rast: (4) Health and the Christian Myths, 1984
Donald Keys: (4) Personal Growth and Social Change, 1982

Jack Kornfield: (4) Buddhist Meditation and Practice, 1981
Joseph Campbell: (4) Imagery in the Novels of James Joyce, 1968
Jack Rosenberg: (4) A New Understanding of Relationships, 1982

Rollo May: (4) The F. Scott Fitzgerald Myth and Your Own, 1982
Theodore Roszak: (4) The Unfinished Animal, 1982
Anne & Jim Armstrong: (4) A Psychic Training Program, 1981
Anne & Jim Armstrong: (4) Thoughts and Meditations, 1984

The Dolphin Vinyl Album Sets

Robert Bly & Angeles Arrien: (6 tapes) Love in the Western World, 1984	$60
Joseph Campbell: (6) Courtly Love and The Grail, 1983	$60
Entheogens: (6) The Spiritual Psychedelics (The Santa Barbara Conference), 1983	$60
Andrew Weil: (6) Integrated Consciousness and Health (The Mann Ranch), 1976	$60
Julian Silverman: (6) Further Commentaries on A Course in Miracles, 1981	$60
Ken Dychtwald: (6) Bodymind Health, Longevity, and Optimal Performance, 1981	$60
Fritz Perls: (6) The Perls Encounter: A Complete Weekend, 1968	$60
Ruthy Alon: (6) Awareness Through Movement: The Feldenkrais Method—Series I	$60
Ruthy Alon: (6) Further Lessons in The Feldenkrais Method —Series II	$60
Moshe Feldenkrais: (6) Awareness Through Movement—Series I	$72
Julian Silverman: (8) Commentaries on A Course In Miracles, 1980	$72
Jack Rosenberg: (8) Sustained Integration: Body, Self, and Soul, 1981	$72
Faces of the Enemy: (8) The San Francisco Symposium, 1983	$72
Terence McKenna: (8) True Hallucinations: A Talking Book, 1984 (The Amazon Experience)	$80
Buckminster Fuller: (8) The Pajaro Dunes Tapes: A Weekend Seminar, 1977	$80
Joseph Campbell: (10) World Mythology and The Individual Adventure, 1969	$88
Gregory Bateson: (12) The Informal Esalen Lectures 1975-1980 (Library Archives)	$98

Please add $2 with your complete order for handling and mailing. Add $2 for mailing each vinyl album set ($4 if you wish priority mail). California residents include 6% tax. (Institutional purchase orders please add 10% to album cost unless check is enclosed.) Please mail your order with check payable to: DOLPHIN TAPES, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920.

The tapes listed on this page are not necessarily Esalen-owned or Esalen-related. They are produced by a private company, Dolphin Tapes. They are presented here as an advertisement. Esalen assumes no responsibility for the product.

You may send for a more complete list of available tapes by addressing your inquiry to: Esalen Tape Series (Attention: Paul B. Herbert), Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

The Media Center

Esalen Videotape

This 18-minute videotape, which tells Esalen's story from its early history to the present, is an inexpensive way to view the general offerings available at Esalen. The visuals consist of 130 color slides featuring scenes of the Big Sur coast, Esalen's garden, grounds, and various workshops and activities. The musical soundtrack is by Paul Horn, Joel Andrews, and "Pinchey Pete" Velasquez.

Cost: For Rent:

½" VHS color video cassette ..... per week $10.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette ..... per week $15.00

Cost: For Sale:

½" VHS color video cassette $35.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette $40.00

This program is available for purchase in its original form—a two-projector slide dissolve show which can also be viewed with a single projector.

Cost: For Sale:
Slide Program—including 130 slides, cassette tape, and script (pulsed tape for Entre 7610 dissolve unit available on request)..... $150.00

Please address your order (with a check payable to Esalen Institute): Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. A $10 deposit is required on all rental tapes; please send a separate deposit check. California residents add 6% sales tax for sale purchases. Overseas air mail orders please add additional postage: each slide program $10 ($15 for Australia and Asia), each video cassette $7, each slide set $1.

Films

Films of the work of Fritz Perls, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Rollo May, Virginia Satir, Alexander Lowen, and others, are available from Psychological Films, 110 North Wheeler Street, Orange, California 92669. For color documentaries with Alan Watts, Huston Smith, Lama Govinda, Joseph Campbell, Edgar Mitchell, Margaret Mead, and others, write Hartley Productions, Cat Rock Road, Cos Cob, Connecticut 06807. A film or video cassette on Chunghiang Al Huang's work, entitled Tai Chi: The Watercourse Way, is available through KLB Productions, 490 Redwood Road, Corralitos, California 95076. Regarding the documentary on Gregory Bateson, send inquiries also to KLB Productions at the above address. Recent color videotapes of Stephen Levine and Ram Dass on "Conscious Living/Conscious Dying", and of Daniel Ellsberg, Helen Caldicott, and others on the nuclear issue are available from Original Face Video, Box 447, Grass Valley, Ca. 95945.

Kathleen Thormod

General Information

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esselen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute-By Reservation Only.

Reservation Information: In order to reserve a space in any workshop we require a reservation fee of $50 for weekend groups, $100 for five-day groups, $150 for seven-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups, payable in U.S. currency only. Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks. Balance of payment is due on arrival. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year of receipt. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

Please mail all reservations to:
Reservations, Esalen Institute
Big Sur, Ca. 93920

We are able to process mail reservations more effectively. If you are concerned about workshops being full or have any questions, you may make reservations by phone if you use your Mastercard, Visa, or American Express credit card number to charge your reservation fee.

Phone (408) 667-2335
Office Hours:
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

If there is no answer during our regular business hours, and the phone company confirms that our phones are out of order, please call our alternate number (408) 372-8719, for recorded up-to-date workshop, road, and transportation information.

Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Rooms become available at 4 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive any time after lunch.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Gazebo School: Any requests for child care should be sent at least one month in advance, to Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Senior Citizens' Discount Information: Esalen offers a special discount to individuals over 60 years of age. The discount for a weekend workshop is $25, and a five-day is $50. Discounts are available only when you make your reservations. Please present proof of age when you register.

Ongoing Residence Program: Offered from October through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are cancelled, so second choices are advised. Many community programs are also open to residents. The cost is $1800 per 26-day period.

Health Services: We are unable to provide medical supervision or pharmaceutical supplies. If you are on a health-care program and you plan to spend several weeks at Esalen, please arrive prepared to administer to your health-care needs.

Illegal Drugs: In accordance with state and federal laws, the possession or use of illegal drugs on Esalen grounds is strictly prohibited.

Room and Board: Bed spaces not required for workshop participants are sometimes available for room and board. Accommodations are shared and the rate is $60 per person per day, which includes dinner on the day of arrival and breakfast and lunch the following day. Private rooms are sometimes available at $100 per day, or $110 per day per couple. Special family rates are available. Please phone the office for additional information.

Bus Service: We have bus service from the Monterey Greyhound station at 4:45 pm and from the Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm on Fridays and Sundays. If you plan to use this service, please inform the Esalen office at least 24 hours prior to your arrival. The charge for one-way service is $20, payable to the Esalen office when you check in. Return reservations may be made at the same time. Bus service to Esalen is not available at any other time.

Seminarians as Staff (Karma Yoga): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are requested to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff, usually in the kitchen. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of certificates or diplomas, such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Contributions to Esalen Institute are tax-deductible.

The expenses of attending Esalen, including travel, are deductible for federal income tax purposes as an educational expense if incurred to maintain or improve professional or work skills. (See Income Tax Regulation 1.162-5.)

Esalen Institute reserves the right to cancel any program at any time.

Conferences at Esalen: It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Esalen Institute Reservations

This form is for your convenience in reserving a space in Esalen workshops. In completing the form, please indicate the name, address, and telephone number of each person registering and clearly indicate the title of the workshop for which each person is reserving a place. A registration fee for each person registering and each workshop applied for must accompany this form. (See General Information, page 54.)

(Please Print)

Name _____ Sex M ☐ F ☐

Address _____

City, State _____ Zip _____ Occupation _____

Telephone Number: Day: Area Code ( ) _____ Evening: Area Code ( ) _____

There are sometimes unexpected situations that may require us to contact you immediately before your stay here. If you will not be at the above numbers during the two weeks prior to the workshop, where may we reach you? If you can't be reached, please call us before your scheduled arrival for final confirmation. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

(On additional paper please repeat the above information for every person in your party making a reservation. Mail all reservations to Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920.)

Check if you want: ☐ shared room with friend: _____ ☐ housing as a couple

Do you smoke? _____

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. (For further details see Ways of Being at Esalen, page 12.)

Bus Service:

I want bus service from (check one):

_____ Monterey Airport

_____ Monterey Greyhound Bus Station

at 5:00 pm on _____ (date of arrival, Fridays & Sundays only)

The $20 per person charge is payable on arrival at Esalen. If your plans for use of the bus change after you submit this reservation, please notify us. Esalen bus service is not available at any time other than 5 pm.

Check here ☐ if you do not want us to give out your number for the purposes of ride sharing.

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

License Number:
(for registered nurses wanting CEU's) _____ (for physicians wanting CEU's) _____

Name of Person Registering	Date(s)	Leader's Name/Title of Workshop	Deposit Enclosed

Total amount enclosed: $ _____

Please make checks payable to Esalen Institute in U.S. currency only.

Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks.

Your reservation can be charged to:

MasterCard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express ☐

Card No. _____

Expiration Date _____

All workshops require nonrefundable reservation fees. See page 54. The balance of program fees becomes payable at the time of check-in.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some people, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Its activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

Esalen Institute
Big Sur
California 93920

DATED MATTER

Non-Profit Org.
U.S. Postage
PAID
San Francisco, CA.
Permit No. 9059

The Esalen Catalog

September 1985-February 1986

Contents

Volume XXIV, Number 3

Audio Recordings 44-45
Big Sur Wilderness Experience 11
Biographical Information 38-43
Catalog Subscription Information 43
Conferences at Esalen 11
Esalen Seminars 12-32
Experiencing Esalen 10
Experiencing Esalen: The Body 10
Features:
The Future of the Body 4-5
Keith Thompson Talks with Michael Murphy
Misuse of Psychiatric Drugs East and West 6-7
Notes 8-9
Friends of Esalen 43
Future Programs 47
General Information 46
Gestalt Practice 11
Media Center 45
Medical Programs 37
Reservations Form 47
Scholarship Information 11
Special Programs 34-35
Ways of Being at Esalen 10
Wilderness Programs 36-37
Work Study Program and Application 33

Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920
Phone (408) 667-2335
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday
& Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

Catalog Editor: Nancy Knapp
Contributing Editor: Keith Thompson
Consulting Editor: Nancy Kaye Lunney
Editorial Assistance: Jaelitza, Jane Beaver, Sara Halprin, Susan McIntosh, Rene Oschin

Graphic Design: Barbara Adamson
Art Direction: Barbara Adamson
& Joyce Rogers Lyke
Cover Photograph: Joyce Rogers Lyke

Esalen Board of Trustees:
Steven Donovan
Jack Downing
Victoria Elliot
Stanislav Grof
Richard Gunther
Nancy Kaye Lunney
Michael Murphy
Bokara Legendre
Mary Payne

©1985 Esalen Institute
All Rights Reserved.

Contact is the appreciation of differences.
—Fritz Perls

Joyce Rogers Lyke

. . . and the recognition of similarities . . .

THE FUTURE OF THE BODY

Keith Thompson Talks with Michael Murphy

KEITH: What is the theme of your forthcoming book, The Future of the Body?

MICHAEL: The major is the body's stunning transformability, and the amazing effects that supernormal bodily functioning can have.

KEITH: How did you get interested in such a study?

MICHAEL: There hasn't been, to my knowledge, a systematic comparative study of physical functioning that accompanies expanded consciousness. There have been several important studies of altered states, religious consciousness—Marguerita Laski's Ecstasy, James' Varieties of Religious Experience, Maslow's studies of peak experience, to name a few. The blind spot in these studies, or so it seems to me, is a lack of attention to what's happening with the body while consciousness is changing. When there's a change in consciousness, there's always a change of some kind in the body, and that is my concern.

KEITH: The nonchalance toward the body's participation isn't new, is it?

MICHAEL: No, it's not new at all. In the great contemplative traditions, enlightenment or liberation is always conceived in spiritual, not in material terms. The aim is to get out of the body when you achieve moksha or liberation. Many of them stress ending the cycle of physical incarnations, or as one Buddhist sect puts it, never to have another birthday. There are profound reasons for this, of course. The body dies, while that part of us which we know as eternal will not pass away. Spiritual traditions naturally gravitate back toward the Source, the Ground of Being, as the first aim of spiritual life. As far as I'm concerned that will always be the first aim of self-knowledge.

But, at the same time, we are engaged in this stupendous adventure of our evolutionary universe, and this fact was simply not known during the time the great religions were conceived. Evolutionary thinking is a very recent development.

KEITH: It wasn't all that long ago—the seventeenth century, I believe—that Archbishop Usher pronounced definitively that our universe was created in 4004 B.C.

MICHAEL: Yes, and just a few hundred years later we've learned that the universe is actually somewhere between 13 and 20 billion years old. So, in a very real sense, we're still learning to think in evolutionary terms.

The Hindus, for example, believe in samsara, the wheel of death and rebirth. The world is regarded as the product of maya, illusion, and the goal of spiritual practice is to see through this illusion and return to the divine Source, in part by transcending the body. Without an evolutionary framework, these religious assumptions seem to make sense. They get directly at the dichotomy we feel between the eternal as we know it in contemplation, and the passing nature of the human body and the physical world. It's no wonder that, given the tension of this dichotomy, contemplatives are drawn to the spiritual source first.

KEITH: So, the premise of your research is that the body participates in the "adventure of spirit" in a way that's not generally appreciated?

MICHAEL: That's one of the premises. The co-evolution of form and consciousness, mind and body, the inside and the outside of the universe, is what I'm trying to understand, for it seems to me that the body's development is not finished yet.

KEITH: When I looked through your manuscript, I sensed that in your research procedure, you pay a lot of attention to the particulars of bodily change. It reminded me of Darwin's procedure as he sailed through the Galapagos Islands and noticed, "Hmmm, the finches on this island seem different from the finches on that island. What shall we make of this?"

MICHAEL: Yes, I feel a real kinship with Darwin's methods. I like to think of the research as a kind of natural history. The Transformation Project Archive, of which Steve Donovan is director, is full of scientific studies and anecdotal material from many fields of experience: contemplative life, the study of multiple personality, biofeedback and hypnosis, shamanism, sport, spiritual healing. But instead of collecting birds and butterflies the way the old natural historians did, we're collecting specimens of supernormal (or extra normal) behavior and consciousness, and the bodily changes that accompany them. By collecting these diverse phenomena, we may perhaps find the patterns by which supernormal functioning is mediated and supported.

KEITH: You've written quite a lot about Catholic saints. How did you find your way into that?

MICHAEL: I was surprised when I first started to discover the wealth of anecdote regarding the physical phenomena of Christian sanctity. The Catholic Church has put a tremendous premium on exactitude, on knocking down superstitious stories or pious fraud. When the Church makes someone a saint, it wants to make sure that he or she really is a saint. Canonization procedures are run, in large part, like a vast law trial, where depositions are taken and evidence put forth. Persons who give evidence are under oath, and if they lie, that's a sin. Also, by lasting so long, the Church has developed a real connossieurship that gives it an ability to knock down fraudulent claims. Finally, since around 1800 the Church has been very sensitive to modern science and modern scholarship, and has incorporated those methods into its own inquiries.

KEITH: What sorts of Christian phenomena are so extraordinary that they merit this kind of judicial evaluation?

MICHAEL: I've been studying the twenty or so major "charisms," the extraordinary phenomena, either mental or physical, that may accompany a life of prayer, meditation, or religious passion. These are not considered normal in spiritual development, and they're not in themselves evidence of sanctity or morality or spiritual insight. Stigmata, for example, are bruises, welts, or bleeding wounds on the hands, feet, and side which correspond to the places where Christ was nailed to the cross and stabbed by a Roman soldier. There are well-documented reports that these marks have appeared on the bodies of at least sixty people since the death of St. Francis of Assisi in 1226. Hundreds more examples are less well-documented, though impressive. In the book I go into detail on the processes and standards through which these reports have been judged.

Stigmata aren't the only transformative effects that a deeply focused consciousness can have upon the body. Complete abstinence from food and drink for long periods (inedia); the odor of sanctity; extraordinary heat, or incendium amoris, caused by passionate love of God; luminous phenomena, the absence of rigidity and decay in cadavers—all these have been frequently ascribed to saints and mystics of the Roman Church. The fact that similar phenomena have been attributed to the adepts of other traditions suggests that mystical realization is accompanied by both universal and culture-specific kinds of physical change. Because they so closely resemble the exceptional physical attributes developed with other traditions, and because they appear so frequently in dissimilar places without being sought, these events seem to show that human beings universally possess supernormal capacities which begin to function once certain conditions of body and mind are established, whether their recipient anticipates them or not.

The regularity and spontaneity with which such powers are released by transformative disciplines in every culture makes it conceivable that all of us harbor the same latent supernature.

KEITH: Maybe so, but I think I'll pass when the stigmata wagon comes to my neighborhood. What are the implications of these psychophysical events for daily life, and for transformations of a useful, beneficial sort?

MICHAEL: I think that these kinds of phenomena, which are odd and even grotesque in some cases, only become significant in the context of the evolutionary world view I mentioned earlier. I remain convinced that as a species—and as persons—we either grow or die. If we deny the actuality of these uncharted powers, they either stagnate within us or erupt painfully and perversely, as in certain psychosomatic afflictions, or get expressed in curious ways like the religious stigmata.

This entire study is predicated on the possibility that as individuals get a glimpse of these possibilities, which can appear both beautiful and terrifying, they would begin to undergo serious transformative disciplines and help guide a process of physical and spiritual dvelopment that is pressing to be born in us. One has to mount a significant effort to achieve these high-level functionings in such a way that they are health-giving, life-enhancing, and not mere curiosities or pathologies. More than that, we'd need to find what are the central qualities of the body, just as other studies have asked what are the central qualities of mind and spirit, of what's called "enlightenment" in different spiritual traditions.

KEITH: Given that you find many religious philosophies inadequate, in that they are grounded in a static, non-evolutionary worldview, what you're proposing, and what your research points to, is a revisioning of the role of the body, and of physicality itself, in relation to spiritual development?

MICHAEL: Yes. The spiritual traditions, as I said, tend to view the world either as illusory or static, or as a way-station to some disembodied Higher Truth, whether it be nirvana or moksha or union with God. The evolutionary insight—the view that this universe is still unfolding, developing, emerging—combined with the wisdom of the Perennial Philosophy, gives us a key to this treasure-trove of physical phenomena. When these two domains are brought together, the value of physical phenomena is increased automatically. When we focus upon the co-evolution of form and consciousness, the body side of the equation is no longer seen to be inferior. In most mystical traditions, extraordinary physical phenomena are regarded as powers which stand in the way of liberation, or as a kind of phantasmagoria unrelated to the heart of spiritual practice. So, yes, I'm interested in revisioning that kind of thinking. Lewis Thomas has recently called evolution mankind's greatest story, simply for the number of fields it's able to bring together: physics, astronomy, biology, and cultural studies. But it's all conceived in material terms, which leads to the cyborg scenario, in which we gradually become one extended prosthetic device, and rely on genetic engineering. Do you remember that scene in Huxley's After Many a Summer Dies the Swan where the old couple whose lives have been extended by eating carp are still alive? The awful irony and tragedy lay in the fact that these two wizened, horrible old things live in their same old shrunken consciousness.

The aspects of "enlightened consciousness"—grace and bliss, delight of being, heartfulness, quality, mastery, empathy—are essential, if extending the physical is to be considered worthwhile. Integral transformation, or the evolution of both form and consciousness, would join the celebrational aspects of the universe with its agonies and sufferings. It's a way of conceiving the universe as a kind of improvisational, delightful, though dangerous, happening back to God. Or, as the vast celebration of the multiplicity, the illumined multiplicity of the Divine as it returns to its primal consciousness.

KEITH: Let me close by asking you how you imagine the future when it comes to the social body—the body politic.

MICHAEL: Well, the Indian scriptures invariably end with the celebration of Ananda, the Delight that rules the world. This outcome of so many sacred teachings would become manifest in the transformed body, I believe. Yet bodies of this kind will require a moral and spiritual transformation to broaden our nobler emotions, our sympathy for others, our courage, our sense of unity with the world at large. Otherwise, supernatural capacities might be used destructively. Our joys would have to be linked with the well-being of others. Their sufferings would be ours. Ultimately, perhaps the developing strength and pleasure of a transformed body would be a resource for everyone. Its beauty and joy might be contagious. We all glimpse this already in the bodies of dancers, in the movements of great athletes, in the faces of lovers and saints. We are fatally attracted by it. A developing beauty of the human form, conceivably, might quicken our efforts to explore these possibilities. That's my hope.

Keith Thompson © 1985, All Rights Reserved

Michael Murphy's next book, The Future of the Body, will be published by J. P. Tarcher.

MISUSE OF PSYCHIATRIC

The following comments are excerpts from phone conversations and correspondence with Peter Breggin, a Bethesda, Maryland, psychiatrist, founder of the Center for the Study of Psychiatry, and from his book, Psychiatric Drugs: Hazards to the Brain (Springer Publishing Company, 1983).

"The drugs used to 'torture' Russian political dissidents are exactly the same drugs used to 'treat' mental patients throughout the Western world. We are appalled to hear that Russian dissidents are having their minds blunted and bodies tortured by major tranquilizers, but we tolerate the same treatment of those of our citizens who have been labeled mentally ill by the psychiatric establishment. From the viewpoint of the victim, whether political prisoner or patient, the horror of the experience is identical." . . . . (telephone commentary, 1985)

From Peter R. Breggin, Psychiatric Drugs: Hazards to the Brain, pp. 4, 19-25. Copyright © 1983 by Peter R. Breggin. Published by Springer Publishing Company, Inc., New York. Used by permission of the author and the publisher.

" . . . . the major psychiatric drugs include the following three groups: (1) the major tranquilizers, which are also called anti-psychotic agents, ataraxics, and neuroleptics; (2) the most commonly used powerful antidepressants; and (3) lithium {and} exclude the minor tranquilizers, such as Valium and Librium.

"All the major psychiatric drugs are highly neurotoxic (poisonous to nerve cells); all frequently produce widespread brain dysfunction in their routine therapeutic dose range; and all achieve their primary, overriding effect on the patient by producing some degree of brain dysfunction.

. . . "the major tranquilizers are the most common drugs used in mental hospitals and other institutions. . . . they produce severe, permanent neurologic damage (tardive dyskinesia) and should be presumed to cause dementia, lobotomy effects, and permanent psychoses.

"The antidepressants in most common use today are closely related to the major tranquilizers in both clinical effect and in chemical structure, and can possibly produce tardive dyskinesia. They have a particularly great capacity to produce severe disruption of the mental faculties.

"Lithium is a metal that is used in its salt form as a therapy for mania (extreme euphoric excitement) and sometimes for depression, as well as for the long-term prevention of extreme mood

Mick Wiggins

DRUGS - EAST AND WEST

swings. It, too, is highly neurotoxic, and in its effective dose range typically produces widespread disruption of mental processes. Like all brain-disabling therapies, it can be used to suppress or control any animal or any individual."

. . . .

"The proposition that the major tranquilizers are brain-disabling, mind-leveling agents is nowhere more strongly bolstered than in the range of patients and nonpatients who are controlled by these drugs in many types of institutions. As we shall see, the major tranquilizers have been used and are used in virtually every setting in which docility, passivity, and emotional indifference are the top priorities. The paradigm for this is the state mental hospital, where many diverse individuals are confined. But the drugs are also used extensively in other institutions, including nursing homes, institutions for the retarded, prisons, and, in the Soviet Union, political prison-hospitals. The effect of these drugs, far from being specific for the treatment of schizophrenia, is everywhere the same—the enforcement of conformity to authority within the institution.

"One of the most tragic uses of the tranquilizers takes place on a routine basis in the typical nursing home. In many the major tranquilizers are the most frequently prescribed drugs, and in some nearly all the patients are made listless and docile until death overtakes them. There is no pretense at diagnosing 'schizophrenia' in order to justify drug administration; management needs are the frank, blatant criteria for drug administration."

. . . .

"Very little information is available concerning the use of the major tranquilizers in prisons. A recent exception appeared in the American Journal of Psychiatry, in which Kaufman (1980) described the use of major tranquilizers for outright purposes of inmate control in juvenile and adult penal institutions. In addition, occasional newspaper scandals and reports made by former prisoners indicate that the control of nonpsychotic unruly inmates with the major tranquilizers is widespread."

. . . .

"Often some attempt will be made to redefine prisoners as 'mental patients.' Sometimes this is accomplished by transfer to the medical wing of the prison. On occasion an individual may actually be transferred out of the institution to a state facility for the criminally insane." . . . .

"On other occasions prisoners will be drugged without any attempt to redefine their status from prisoner to patient. Nonmedical prison personnel may be empowered to give injections of the major tranquilizers to any inmates of a cellblock who are making trouble. In a manner that approaches outright torture, prisoners confined in solitary may be forcibly given large, mentally disruptive and physically painful doses of the drug.

. . . .

"Psychologist and lawyer Edward Opton has shown great concern about the use of psychiatric treatments as punishment in prisons. Opton (1974) describes a prisoner's reaction to his treatment with intramuscular injections every two weeks for six weeks. The prisoner complained of the various extremely unpleasant physical effects, 'so bad you can't stand it,' including spasms, cramps, difficulty controlling the tongue and facial muscles, and 'an itching type ache' that made resting impossible. . . . he described mental dysfunction as well." . . . .

"Leonard Frank, a former psychiatric inmate and a vigorous critic of psychiatric oppression, has helped to publicize the fundamental similarity between the use of the major tranquilizes in the American psychiatric system and in Soviet political prisons. He has broadened this perspective by reminding us that these same drugs were used to subdue and control dissidents in a hospital facility in the Jonestown commune under the dictatorship of the Reverend Jim Jones (Frank, 1979).

"The lobotomy-like effects of the major tranquilizers have been described by those protesting the use of these drugs on Russian political dissidents." . . . .

"The identical use of psychiatric drugs is described in the detail in Sidney Block and Peter Reddaway's Psychiatric Terror (1977). One of the authors, Block, is a British psychiatrist; he is trapped by the irony that drugs that he promotes in Britain for 'the mentally ill' are used to torture and subdue political dissidents in Russia. In defense of the psychiatric drugs, Block and Reddaway write that 'most psychiatrists . . . respect the inestimable value of the tranquilizers in treating psychoses . . . .' Furthermore, 'From all accounts, Soviet psychiatrists employ the tranquilizers in a similar fashion to their counterparts in the West.'

But if the drugs are the same, how can this description of their effects and their function be reconciled with promotion of the drugs as a treatment for psychosis? Why is it that the 'mentally ill' are helped by the treatment, while political dissenters are reduced to a 'state of apathy, lethargy, depression, and physical deterioration'? Block and Reddaway offer no explanation. There is no explanation.

. . . .

Peter Breggin, in correspondence in 1985, commented:

"Many patients are given the major tranquilizers against their will under the actual or real threat of involuntary psychiatric treatment. But all those who take the drugs are in a sense involuntary because they . . . have not been told the full story of their devastating effects on the mind and body."

. . . .

"Nowadays it has become increasingly difficult to convince unhappy and upset individuals that they have personal problems which can be overcome with better approaches to life. Routinely in my psychiatric practice, patients come to seek help after having read the latest newspaper article on how depression, phobia, eating problems, alcoholism, or anxiety attacks are caused by chemical imbalances and subject to drug therapy. It becomes increasingly difficult to help patients take responsibility for their lives because psychiatry itself is telling them that they aren't responsible. Psychiatry thus brings out and reinforces the worst tendencies within those who have given up responsibility for themselves."

. . . .

"The dire result is threefold: first, the concept of individual responsibility is undermined as persons are no longer seen as suffering from moral, spiritual, and psychological conflicts; second, the concept of social responsibility is undermined, as we turn to medical technology instead of social reform and improved human services as a solution to our larger social problems; third, we justify the inhumane treatment of millions of people throughout the world who are literally tortured against their will 'for their own good.'"

NOTES

Esalen Artists-in-Residence Program

In recognition and appreciation of the visual and performing arts, Esalen each year invites several influential and provocative artists to share their work. Some recent and upcoming projects are described below.

Silver Mountain Foundation / Aperture magazine held the Photography '82 Symposium at Esalen. Michael Hoffman, executive director of the foundation, is working with Esalen staff to continue an association which may involve photography workshops and book publication.

Rhonda Martyn, described by Jennifer Dunning (New York Times, April 3, 1985) as "one of the most literate and sophisticated choreographers around these days," occasionally brings a small group of dancers to develop new material, practice, and perform. Much of the material used in her recent work in New York came from experiments during her Esalen residency in summer, 1984.

André Gregory, theater director, actor, teacher, and author featured in My Dinner With André, periodically offers workshops with limited enrollment such as the one October 11-18, in this catalog.

Ron Field, Tony award-winning Broadway director and choreographer who choreographed the opening ceremony of the 1984 Summer Olympics, plans to be in residence at Esalen with a company of dancers who will share in the development of a Broadway musical he has conceived.

David Feldshuh, artistic director of Theater Cornell, Cornell University, offers workshops on stage presence, for those with or without professional performance experience.

Members of the Roy Hart Theater Company, of Malérargues, France, will join with psychologists James Hillman and Patricia Berry, March 16-21, to present a week of workshops in theater and imaginal psychology. The theater company received the 1985 OBIE Award for an off-Broadway performance at LaMama Theater.

Musicians Paul Horn and Paul Winter regularly offer workshops at Esalen.

* * * *

Psychosocial Alternatives to Traditional Psychiatric Care: Report on an Esalen Invited Conference

Laurence Telles and Loren Mosher

Attempts to provide person to person, rather than doctor to patient, care for those who find themselves in persistent or acute psychological distress include residential treatment, vocational and housing programs, self-help groups, and social centers. Each year, a group of those who have participated in such programs as clients, staff, administrators, or planners, meets at an invited conference at Esalen. They step back from the details of work in their communities, in an effort to increase the level of sophistication of concepts and language in this field, and to expand the field itself.

The conference has each year prompted activities intended to promote the views developed through discussion. For example, although data exists in some quantity regarding the effectiveness of specific programs, and of psychosocial alternatives to medical treatment in general, this data has not significantly influenced academic training in psychology or the training of psychiatrists and other clinicians. As one result of these conferences, efforts are presently underway to persuade academic institutions to provide training and advanced degrees in the field of community-based psychosocial treatment and rehabilitation.

Another facet of the conference work has been clarifying language in a field which lacks a language of its own. To use a key example, "schizophrenia" is a psychiatric diagnostic term which separates one category of people for unique treatment. "Psychological distress" names what is experienced by all of us, although by some of us more intensely, and more often, than by others. Thinking about, and thinking about how one thinks about those two terms, tends to change the way one offers help to those who have received a psychiatric diagnosis.

Overall, the most important outcome of these conferences has been the contact and conversation between those who agree on the basic principles of psychosocial alternatives to traditional psychiatric care. From those conversations has come the elucidation of those basic principles and productive disagreement about details.

The group that meets shares, to a greater or lesser extent, an alternative belief system. They believe that disturbed and disturbing behavior grows out of difficulties with, failures of, and / or loss of important human relationships. Thus, the practices they have evolved, while showing considerable variation among them, are focused on the development of potentially healing relationships. They have organized a variety of social contexts within which they could attempt to facilitate this psychosocially-oriented healing process. These environments ordinarily mute hierarchies, share control, preserve personal power, and offer relationships that are peer-oriented, open, reciprocal, and flexible.

Most of the participants have personally experienced degradation as part of pursuing this type of work; usually around issues of power, control and territoriality. However, as a consequence, they have accumulated an invaluable body of experience. The group meeting provides an opportunity to share, compare, contrast and learn from each others' experiences.

Although a number of these experiences are available in mental health literature, they have had limited impact on practice in the field. As a result of the meetings the group has begun to formulate a strategy for addressing, in order to overcome them, the reasons for this body of experience having been kept marginalized.

* * * *

The Spiritual Emergency Network

The Spiritual Emergency Network (SEN) moved to a new home during the past year. The network referral service is now located at the California Institute of Transpersonal Psychology (CITP) in Menlo Park. SEN grew out of the work of Christina and Stanislav Grof and others at Esalen Institute in the last several years. The network is dedicated to serving as a source of referral and support for people wanting assistance in moving through their own time of crisis, and to providing enhanced understanding of spiritual emergency. SEN at CITP presently operates a referral service for people in need of assistance, maintains an adjunct library through which material is collected and researched, provides information and training, coordinates 35 regional centers throughout the world, and publishes the semi-annual SEN newsletter.

In order to be able to continue to expand its work, SEN needs to be financially stable. The network is a fledgling yet broad-based program that has grown from the needs and visions of people who understand and behave in the transpersonal paradigm. It seems only fitting that SEN should seek its support and nurturing from those who believe in the services it offers. We invite your support and assistance in carrying forward this work.

Please send any contributions, or requests for information, to SEN / CITP, 250 Oak Grove Avenue, Menlo Park, CA 94025, (415) 327-2776.

* * * *

Lia Thompson, Gazebo school staff member, recently received an intriguing letter, excerpted below:

"11 April 1985

"Dear Lia,

. . . .

"We have to ask for your permission to public the film which we filmed at Esalen Institute at Oct. 1980.

"We used a part of them for our scientific educational film 'Human Beings,' and this time we want to public another part of them which filmed you as a exhibition at Tsukuba Exposition '85.

"When we visited Esalen Institute, you showed us a moving scene, a human communication between you and a crying infant. You were trying unification with him by feigh crying with him and then tenderly touch him and so you composed his mind. And you told us when we interviewed you about education and human communication, 'For example when a child is falling . . . we don't necessarily run to pick him up, we listen to find out what kind of fall that was and watch the situation and give him plenty of support for picking themselves up. Not being picked up continually.' We felt sympathy toward you.

"The theme of our exhibition is 'A Heart in Science.' We want to express that we never forget especially that medical science is based in love for humanity, we must be thinking how to have human meeting at medical treatment.

"When we began to think how to express the theme, we recalled your scene at first . . . .

"The running time of the scene is two minutes, and the method of the exhibition is by a 27-inches-TV in a exhibition room 'Cell Universe,' at Health & Sports Pavilion in Tsukuba Exposition '85, a world science exposition. This room, Cell Universe is our image united macro-cosmos and micro-cosmos which life is lived in and is surrounded. . . .

"Please forgive us generously and give us permission to use the scene continuously.

. . . .

Sincerely yours,
(Tomoko Kawamura)
Assistant Director
Cine-Science Co., Ltd. . . .
No. 28-14, Tokiwadai 3-chome,
Itabashi-ku, Tokyo, 174 Japan"

* * * *

Cecelia Hurwich, leader of the "Vitality and Aging" workshop November 8-10, is a researcher and consultant on aging, life planning, and health promotion. She conducts programs for professional organizations, health facilities, and universities, and has most recently done so through a tour of Australia and New Zealand.

* * * *

Gerrit Verschuur leads the "Astronomy Weekend" workshop December 6-8, which could be one of the best times for viewing Halley's Comet from the Northern Hemisphere. One of his current interests is a search for extraterrestrials.

* * * *

Brother David Steindl-Rast, who offers a workshop January 24-26, "Approaches to Christian Mysticism," responded to a recent inquiry: "What are my current interests and concerns? Well, there is one issue that concerns all of us: survival. For the sake of this over-riding interest, I am concerned with ventures like the Lumbini Project, Track Two diplomacy, Greenpeace, Bread for the World, and other efforts to use creative imagination to make peace happen. I am interested in a neglected question: what is the price each of us must be prepared to pay for peace? The price I myself must pay is traveling, ecumenical meetings, conferences between spokespersons of science and religion. But the real interests of my heart are gardening and poetry. When I doubledig or chant in the little garden I tend, peace has already begun, where it must begin."

* * * *

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Michael and Dulce Murphy, with MacKenzie Wilmott Murphy, born December 28, 1984.

* * * *

Sheron Tyminski, editor of Common Ground, an alternative resource journal in Toronto, Canada, wrote regarding The Wyebridge Center for Creative Living, a residential learning center, indicating an ideal that a growth center emphasize "impartial multiplicity of approach; . . . free-spirited openness and absence of commercial hype; a highly supportive atmosphere."

* * * *

"Nothing else seemed to be working; so I had to try being myself."
(Jane Beaver, Esalen office staff)

* * * *

Evening

The sky puts on the darkening blue coat held for it by a row of ancient trees;
you watch; and the lands grow distant in your sight,
one journeying to heaven, one that falls;

and leave you, not at home in either one,
not quite so still and dark as the darkened houses, not calling to eternity with the passion of what becomes a star each night and rises;

and leave you, (inexpressibly to unravel)
your life with its immensity and fear, so that, now bounded, now immeasurable,
it is alternately stone in you and star.

Rainer Maria Rilke
(shared by Kate Bradley, Esalen garden staff)

* * * *

The poem "Evening" is in The Selected Poetry of Rainer Maria Rilke, edited and translated by Stephen Mitchell, ©1982 by Stephen Mitchell, published by Vintage Books, and reprinted by permission of Random House, Inc.

Ways of Being at Esalen

There are various ways to experience Esalen, ranging from a visit to the hot springs on a week night to a long-term stay as a student or resident. The weekend and five-day workshops described throughout the catalog are the standard route for coming to Esalen and learning the various methods of personal growth and self-exploration that are available here. The Experiencing Esalen workshops are a kind of smorgasbord introduction to some of these many practices (such as gestalt, massage, sensory awareness, etc.); from such a sampling, the participant can then choose those approaches which feel most appropriate and pursue them in subsequent seminars. For those who wish an extended stay of a month or more there is an Ongoing Residence Program. Other long-term programs include the "month-longs" coordinated by individuals such as Stan Grof and David Schiffman, which frequently involve didactic seminars as well as experiential workshops. These can be particularly useful for professionals and graduate students.

A very popular way of being at Esalen, and one that allows a much greater involvement with the place and its community at a lower expense, is the Work Study Program, which entails working with the Esalen staff as well as participating in an ongoing workshop designed specifically for that program. See page 33 for more information and an application form.

In addition, there are other events which enrich life at Esalen. There are frequent forums in which various writers and thinkers, both visiting and resident, share their ideas with the community. On Wednesday nights, there may be lectures, films, dance performances, choirs, or other forms of entertainment. Body work of various kinds is available by appointment with individual practitioners, including massage, deep tissue, polarity, and Rolfing®. Individual sessions are also available for various types of process work, including gestalt, neo-Reichian emotional release, vision improvement, music gestalt, etc. Finally, there is a Community Workshop program which goes on daily, and provides many opportunities for engaging in personal self-exploration or learning new approaches to human growth.

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt & John Soper

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness, group process, guided fantasy, meditation, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim, (Bantam).

Schedule:

September 13–15	$230
September 29–October 4	$450
October 11–13	$230
October 20–25	$450
November 1–3	$250
December 1–6	$490
December 20–22	$250
December 27–29	$250
December 29–January 3	$490
January 17–19	$250
January 19–24	$490
January 31–February 2	$250
February 9–14	$490
February 28–March 2	$250

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Lia Thompson
& Deborah Anne Medow

We spend much of our time on "automatic pilot," oblivious to many messages from our bodies, missing opportunities to open more fully to the subtleties of sensing, to greater ranges of physical expression, to health, vitality, and the many ways of "being a body." There are various entry points to increased awareness, practices that help cultivate the countless dialects of body language. These include dance, aerobic and stretching exercise, movement, theater, postural analysis, hiking, meditation, massage, and nutritional education. Experiencing Esalen: The Body draws from varying combinations of these approaches in each workshop. Emphasis is placed on developing greater freedom and variety of movement, as well as on the quality of awareness as we move. This program is designed to give participants some basic tools for continuing to develop body awareness.

Schedule:

September 1–6	$450
September 27–29	$230
October 27–November 1	$450
November 8–10	$250
November 24–29	$490
December 13–15	$250
January 3–5	$250
February 7–9	$250
February 16–21	$490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff
Coordinated by Christine Price

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
and used—is inexhaustible.
—Lao Tzu

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Participants are explicitly not patients but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The leader functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth, rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Although open seat work is the primary form of this practice, guided fantasy, breath meditations, and movement sessions may be included. Each gestalt practice group will have a member of the Esalen gestalt staff as its primary leader. The name of this leader will be listed in the office three weeks in advance of the workshop. Please call if you want this information. Other leaders may be involved in single sessions.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim and Ego, Hunger and Aggression; Lao Tze, Tao Te Ching; Nyanponika Thera, The Power of Mindfulness; J.C. Pearce, Exploring the Crack in the Cosmic Egg; Richard Bach, Illusions.

Schedule:

September 15–20	$450
October 13–18	$450
November 1–3	$250
November 10–15	$490
December 15–20	$490
January 12–17	$490
February 9–14	$490
February 21–23	$250

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff
Coordinated by Steven Harper

Located on a narrow stretch of land between the Pacific Ocean and the coastal ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains, Esalen is the trailhead to one of the world's most spectacular wilderness areas. With this natural reserve as the primary teacher, we will walk into the Los Padres National Forest. Week-long workshops will venture out on five hikes (4-10 miles in length) and weekend workshops will take two hikes (3-6 miles in length). Using Esalen as our base camp we will explore different trails through the natural beauty of the Big Sur backcountry. Days will begin and end at Esalen with short stretching and sharing sessions. Each day-hike will begin after breakfast and will conclude in time to enjoy the hot springs and dinner each evening at Esalen. We will practice basic outdoor skills such as map reading and minimum impact concepts. Participants will be taught enough skills to begin exploring the wilderness on their own after these outings. More information will be sent upon registration.

Schedule:
September 1-6. $450

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins.

The program is divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc. Information regarding special interest sections may be obtained by writing Bette Dingman, c/o Esalen.

For a full description of the Work Study Program, please turn to page 33.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Conferences at Esalen

It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Accreditation

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing as we have many applications. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. Scholarship recipients may be asked to bring a sleeping bag to use, especially during peak attendance periods. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

Esalen Seminars

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Week of September 1–6

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $450

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 11. $450

Zen Shiatsu

Shirley and Reuho Yamada

Participants in this workshop will be introduced to the fundamentals of meditation, healing, and shiatsu practice. Emphasis will be placed on developing our natural powers to heal ourselves and each other through guided practice. Talks will include elucidations of Buddha's computer logic, Shinto cosmology, and the meaning of wellness, spirituality, and enlightenment. The workshop is open to individuals at any level of experience in the healing arts. $450

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman

Janet writes: "This workshop will provide a safe environment for exploring the unfinished business in our lives.

"I believe that unfinished business from the past gets projected into all current relationships and prevents us from clearly and fully experiencing each other in the here and now.

"The emotional release methods that I have developed over the past decade support completion of this unfinished business through the honest expression of feelings." $450

The Healing Power of Dreams

Stephen Aizenstat

Dreams, as looking-glass parables, provide a connection to the voices and images of the psyche. In ancient Greece, in the cult of Asklepios (the Divine healer), dreams were honored as the medicine of the soul. When a person was wounded psychologically and/or physically, it was to the dream he/she often turned for guidance and healing. Drawing from archetypal psychology, systems theory, and Asklepian dream practices, dream work will be presented which explores this healing potential of the psyche.

Holonomic dream work is a process of healing and making whole which realizes the patterns of relationship connecting personal experience (physical symptoms and emotional moods) with archetypal imagery of the psyche in the world. The holonomic approach is based on the belief that the dream is a reflection of an inter-related body-mind-world system.

This workshop is both theoretical and experiential. Using the holonomic approach, participants will have the opportunity to unfold healing imagery found in their own dreams. $450

Weekend of September 6–8

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman
assisted by Maria & Perry Holloman

For many people, feelings are something mysterious, something to keep to one's self, or something to think about. This workshop is about all the steps involved in learning to experience, respect, and honor one's feeling process in a way that will increase vitality and personal effectiveness. Participants can learn to separate feelings from thoughts, learn from their own body rhythms, learn to contact their own wisdom, and participate, in a safe environment, in the choice of expression or depression. $230

Food for Health and Wellness

Joe D. Goldstrich

This is a workshop for people who want to assume responsibility for their health care management. The emphasis will be on learning what to eat to create vitality, energy, and health. A unique integration of the Pritikin diet, macrobiotics, and live food will be presented. Special attention will be given to increasing complex carbohydrate and fiber while decreasing simple sugar. We will examine the optimum amount of fat and cholesterol needed to both prevent and reverse atherosclerotic cardiovascular disease. Ideal protein intake for various levels of physical activity and health states will be examined and protein combinations to obtain complete sources will be demystified. Participants will receive a personalized health plan to work with at home.

Recommended reading: Joe D. Goldstrich, The Best Chance Diet (Humanics Limited). $230

Teaching of the Shields: A Shamanic and Buddhist World View

Joan Halifax

Joan writes: "At the root of all traditions of the sacred lies the aboriginal pulse of shamanism, humankind's archaic spiritual heritage, reaching back 40,000 years or more into pre-history. The tradition of shamanism has always drawn its tremendous power and wisdom from direct contact with earth, her plants and animals, the realms of spirit and sky, and the teacher of death and change. Even as the teachings of the aboriginal continuity have moved across the boundaries of time and culture, so also have the profound teachings of Buddhist philosophy and psychology. Both the Guatama Buddha and Guru Padmasambhava prophesied that Buddhism would travel to the Land of the Red People. The peoples of Turtle Island prophesied as well that from the East would come great teachers. In this decade these two traditions of Earth and Sky are encountering one another as allies sharing their respective teachings on warriorship and compassion.

"The teachings, ceremonies, and practices to be given in this workshop are an interpretation of Buddhism and shamanism in the light of each other and in response to Western culture. The Sacred Sweet Medicine Sundance teachings of Wheels and Keys will be given in relation to Buddhist teachings in compassion and the perfections. Practices will include meditation, chanting, visualization, and Ceremonies of the Flowering Tree." $230

Japan: The Missing Link in Western Culture

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard writes: "Japan has evolved the other great possibility for structuring the world of perceptions, awareness, intentionality, and activity. In this weekend workshop, we will identify the fundamental assumptions and the modes of perception that define the Japanese social, mental, cultural, and physical world, and we will 'try on' their assumptions ourselves to see if we can get a feel for their mind and culture, for the inner empire of the Japanese. If you can find an intimacy with their culture, you will recognize Japan and the Japanese within yourself. This workshop is not just for the purpose of understanding the Japanese; it is also an opportunity to understand the dynamics of our own culture and how we ourselves think. Given how different from us Japan is, and yet how well we resonate with it, Japan may be the missing link in Western culture—and Japan and the West together the basis for a new world culture.

"Our society can be changed, but first we must learn to recognize the hidden frontiers of change. Arnold Toynbee said that the meeting of East and West is the central challenge and adventure of our time. Social and cultural pioneers, architects, entrepreneurs, and guerillas are welcome." $230

Week of September 8–13

Massage and Movement

Andrea Juhan & Deborah Anne Medow

One of the most effective and enjoyable ways to learn about the human body is to know your own body through movement. The focus of this workshop is to use the different rhythms of yoga, aerobics, and creative movement to enhance participants' awareness of their own bodies. This increased awareness can then be used as a tool for enriching the experience of giving and receiving a massage. $450

Intuition Practice

Helen Palmer

This seminar teaches the identification of personal intuition systems that can be made accessible by internal focusing practices, or that may already be operating in unrecognized ways. The practices develop the ability to discriminate between personal thoughts, fantasies projected from personal thinking, and impressions received from situations outside the personal self. The psychic aspect of intuition rests on the ability to shift attention from the self to impressions perceived from outside the self. $450

Opening the Feelings

Dale Cummings & Gena Mayer

Participants will employ Radix® and neo-Reichian methods of emotional release, the most important of which is the Radix® intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting which can provide emotional support among participants. Grief or pain, fear and rage that have been held in since childhood can emerge. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he or she may discover a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time the sexual experience may change as feelings of tenderness and sexuality intensify and merge. $450

Five Days with Jack Rosenberg

This workshop is aimed at awakening and sustaining awareness of body, self, and soul, as well as examining the anatomy and function of intimate relationships. The method can be described as gestalt body work with a distinct leaning toward the transpersonal aspects of life. During the workshop participants will explore many aspects of Jack Rosenberg's energetic approach to sexuality, the energetic field of the body, and the belief systems which keep us locked in obsolete behavior patterns. $450

Weaving the Mindstream, Cutting the Mindstream, Generating the Source

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard writes: "One of the great teachings of Buddhism is that we can have conscious, causal, and consequential participation in our own mindstream. For all of us willing to try on a world without a God, and without a rule book of revealed truth, this recognition and teaching is essential if we are to be able to examine, trust, and find our own way. We do not live in the world; we live in a world that is an envelope or bubble of our own perceptions. Every feeling, action, and thought is contained and clothed in the inherited fabric of our culture, attitudes, and language. Before we can effectively practice emptiness, detachment, non-self, cutting the mindstream, we must first find how to live with strength, initiation, and consciousness within our own mindstream.

"In China, Zen developed and quintessentially expressed in koans a kind of acupuncture of language, action, and culture that allows us to see and shape our world. Discussing one or two koans in great detail, we will find ways together to use this means of thinking, insight, and mindstream intervention.

"The insight, philosophy, and practices of Buddhism are based on the body and mind of meditative absorption and concentration. We realize this body of absorption by the practice of cutting the mindstream and freeing the body from the defining, discursive, comparing, adhesive mind. This meditative body is not the body that carts the brain around, but body with its own wisdom, articulation, and power. This body is the entrance to an instance of the wide, inclusive mind of awareness and systemic intelligence.

"The point of these five days will be to offer insight into and an intimation, taste, experience of this Big Mind. Practices of 'generating the Source' will be discussed. There will be instruction in basic forms and skills of meditation. There are no prerequisites or readings required, other than an awareness of your own mind and body. The meditation schedule can be participated in according to your desire and experience." $450

Weekend of September 13–15

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $230

Songs of Innocence, Songs of Experience

Nancy Kaye Lunney

This weekend is for people who want to sing but are afraid or worried about what others think, for shower singers and choir members who dream of hitting the big time, and for accomplished singers who want to improve their performance. Piano accompaniment and video feedback will be part of a supportive environment for self-expression. Participants are invited to bring their favorite song titles. There will also be a variety of music to choose from at Esalen. $230

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

This is a workshop in Soviet-American, cross-cultural understanding. Through bargaining, mediating, and role-playing games, participants can discover the subconscious cultural imperatives that impel the two nations apart and begin to identify those elements that bring them together. The workshop sets out to shatter egotistical mirror-imaging and begin the construction of authentic Soviet-American relationships in the world as it now exists.

For the workshop, there needs to be a balance between recent Soviet emigrés and American players. Thus, if there are ten Americans, there need to be ten or so Soviets. $230

Health and Creativity

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

We can choose health and creativity by increasing self-awareness and letting go of fear.

This workshop will deal with why—the causes not the mechanics—we choose specific illnesses and with ways in which we block our ability to think. Participants will be presented with ways for being healthy and for expanding one's ability to think creatively and logically.

Recommended reading: Will Schutz, Profound Simplicity (University Assoc.); William Gordon, Synectics. $230

Applied Vulnerability

Donald Michael

Don Michael writes: "In my work to help organizations and individuals plan more intelligently for the future, I've come to feel a crucial task is discovering how to be better learners. When we begin to pay close attention to the processes of our minds (in meditation, for example) and when we begin to study the vastly complex political, social, and economic processes and systems of our world, we can begin to see how little we know about ourselves and about the world. A recognition of our ignorance and the profound vulnerability it entails can open us to a more constructive engagement with our private and public worlds.

"During our time together I will introduce several skills that can guide us in making humane and effective decisions in the face of uncertainty. These skills include acknowledging high levels of uncertainty, a willingness to recognize error, and a development of the ability to span categories and become responsive to the future. Our focus is on applying these skills directly in our lives—in the decisions we make in the workplace as well as in family situations, and in all the various circumstances in which we have the chance to make ignorance and uncertainty our best teachers. My experience has been that, even in so short a period as this workshop, as we learn to be more comfortable with our uncertainty, we can win freedom from the need to act over-cautiously out of fear of making a mistake and from the need for those defensive, interpersonal posturings that make it so hard to act responsibly and compassionately. The workshop is appropriate for those who are interested in applying these skills to their personal lives as well as for persons interested in professional and vocational applications." $230

Week of September 15–20

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $450

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

It is rare for most people to use painting for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to paint purely for the process of exploration, not for the result.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide a setting to explore the deepest parts of ourselves through painting—to discover in form and color a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to emotional and spiritual expression. Participants are given the opportunity to discover a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling.

The work takes place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, and a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. The workshop may be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122. (415) 564-8515. $450 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders)

Integration

Deborah Anne Medow

Deborah writes: "The body reflects what is going on in the mind. By working with my body through exercise, yoga, massage, or whatever practice it is that I do, I can influence my thoughts and habits—my whole pattern of living. Conversely, changing my mental attitudes can effect a gradual transformation of my body.

"Having integrated into my life various practices and activities including yoga, massage, movement, hiking, gestalt, and interpersonal process, I have found a new awareness of the levels at which I am working and where my limitations lie in these areas. By recognizing my limitations, I am able to see with more clarity where and how to proceed to bring about growth and change.

"Participants will be presented with guidelines to integrate both their own practices and those offered in the workshop. In the mornings we will come together for yoga followed by a light breakfast. In some of the sessions following, we will explore creative movement and dance, out of which can evolve a deeper understanding of each individual's inner rhythms. Other sessions will include the practices listed above and an opportunity during an afternoon hike to observe nature's cycles as a way to reflect on our own natural cycles and movements." $450

Move and Dance

Anna Halprin & Daria Halprin-Khalighi

From the delight-maker (Koshares) of the American Indian dances to the comedy within the Greek tragedy, the role of humor has been an important factor in releasing stress and tension on the personal as well as social level. Yet it seems as if many of us in our daily lives, both personally and professionally, have forgotten this age-old art, and are not enjoying as much play, lightness, and creativity as we might like.

In this workshop, we will have the opportunity to recapture the fun and excitement of dance and to use humor, play, and serious study to break through emotional, physical, and mental blocks that interfere with our creativity. Specific skills developed at the Tamalpa Institute of San Francisco Dancers' Workshop will be used to increase movement range, imagination, and artistic development.

This workshop is for students, potential students for Tamalpa trainings, educators, health practitioners, counselors, handicapped and little people, couples, elders, performing artists, and others.

For further information about this workshop write: Tamalpa Institute of SF Dancers' Workshop, Fort Mason Center, San Francisco, CA 94123. (415) 771-1212.

Recommended reading: Anna Halprin, Movement Ritual I (available at Esalen); Collected Writings II (available by writing SF Dancers' Workshop). $450

Optimizing Health and Performance

Neil Fiore

Most of us manage the stress in our lives, and even enjoy it to some extent. But too often we pay the price of weakened health and less than optimal performance when stress becomes chronic and enthusiasm is dampened. In careers and lifestyles that are challenging and developing, we could all use greater control over stress, the ability to rapidly relax and recuperate, and skill at tapping the creative ability of the unconscious mind.

In this workshop we will draw on the wizardry of Dr. Milton H. Erickson and Bandler and Grinder, and on elements of stress management, cognitive-behavior modification, and assertiveness work.

We will provide methods for: identifying patterns and beliefs that evoke the stress response, rechanneling stress into problem resolution, concentrating on task and goal accomplishment, and developing deep relaxation and recuperation.

Recommended reading: Neil Fiore, The Road Back to Health (Bantam). $450

Weekend of September 20–22

Weekend Advanced Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Vicki Topp

This seminar is designed for people who have experience in giving massages. Through demonstrations and practice sessions, participants will be taught how to increase the effectiveness and efficiency of their massage skills and have the opportunity to add fresh approaches to their work. The intent is to help participants make deeper and more sensitive contact, and to heighten their awareness of the responses they are creating.

When you send in your deposit, please list your previous massage experience. $230

Gestalt

Seymour Carter

Seymour writes: "I intend to introduce the notion of gestalt as a practice, like meditation, that will provide a form for a daily internal housecleaning. We will approach gestalt as an experience of mindfulness.

"We will examine the influence of inner dialogue, body / mind relationship, and the nature of impasse, as well as tendencies in ourselves towards psychological completion and well being. Each participant will be treated as unique with his / her own process of development, a process to be honored and encouraged. The basis of this work is the gestalt method, supported by various body disciplines including sensory awareness, bioenergetics, Rolfing®, and aikido." $230

Alternatives for Managers

Susan & Joel Kirsch

Whether you manage a small business, a household, a work group, or a major corporation, you probably wrestle with these questions: How can I respond to the changes that constantly bombard me? What can I do to deal with the stress of my job? How can I provide the most effective leadership? Is it possible to convert difficulties and problems into opportunities for further growth and development?

This workshop is based on a unique reliance on the body as teacher. Simple physical movement activities, derived from the sophisticated martial art of aikido and Leonard Energy Training, provide an experiential foundation for discovering managerial principles. The physical activities serve as a complement to the cognitive and are used in conjunction with group discussion, role play, lectures, and paper-pencil activities. Participants will have a chance to apply the principles to current work-related issues and to experiment with alternative ways to enhance personal and professional performance. $230

On Letting Go

Judyth Weaver

In everything we do we have choices, but do we recognize them? We can perform the same actions in a stressful or a relaxed manner, wastefully or economically. We can hold on tightly or let go. We can have fun or suffer. The more in touch we are with our feelings and abilities, the more options are available to us.

This workshop will focus on rediscovering awareness of self—mentally, physically, and spiritually—to develop and integrate as many options as possible. It is through this awareness that we can acquire choice of how to live.

We will work with deep sensing of our organism, with gentle breathing methods for stress reduction, t'ai chi ch'uan for relaxed exercises, gestalt, movement, massage, and meditations. All these explorations can lead to a sense of centered grounding and balance with which to develop and enhance an economic, energetic, pleasurable, and effective life. $230

Aggression, Sexuality, and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Janet Lederman & Gazebo Staff

How do children gather information and learn to make decisions based on what they have gathered? As parents and teachers, to what degree do / should we intrude or interfere in this information-gathering process? We will examine the critical role that parents, teachers, and other children play in the development of a child's total abilities.

The Gazebo staff believe that allowing a child full interaction with his / her environment, imposing as few limitations as possible, greatly enhances the child's social skills. Particularly in the areas of conflict resolution and natural sexual exploration, the Gazebo experience has enabled children to exercise their initiative successfully. Families may come together in this workshop to discover some of their own resolutions for current challenging situations. $230

• • • •

Yoga: A Week of Rejuvenation

Ganga White & Tracey Rich

This course will aim at giving participants the inspiration and understanding necessary to create a personal practice of yoga. Yoga can bring about a strong, healthy, and flexible body, mind, and spirit. We offer a unique, holistic approach that is flowing and graceful and combines asana (posture), pranayama (breathing), and dhyana (meditation). In addition, our approach can be highly aerobic for those wanting to condition the cardio vascular system.

The course is open to students of all levels, from beginners to advanced. Students will be shown how to develop a 45-minute daily practice that includes all elements necessary for maintaining optimum fitness. Other topics will include learning how yoga works, aligning and restructuring the body, diet and nutrition, and meditation. A special feature will be "double yoga," a system created by Ganga that allows you to share your practice with a friend.

For additional information or questions you may contact Ganga or Tracey at: White Lotus, 3463 State No. 205, Santa Barbara, CA 93105, (805) 964-1944.

Recommended reading: Ganga White, Double Yoga (Penguin). $450

The Power of Love

Rita Rohen

Rita Rohen writes: "Most of us fear the power of love. We use only a fraction of our capacity for love, trust, and joy. Inspired by my experiences in the Far East, this workshop will encourage participants in the full expression of their inner love and light, by creating an attitude of abundance on all levels of awareness. Using gestalt from a transpersonal perspective, controlled breathing, and other approaches, including humor, we may open ourselves to deeper-than-ordinary levels of consciousness—and thereby achieve a new integration of mind, body, and spirit. By getting in touch with the beauty and peace within ourselves, we may learn how to apply the power of love to our own lives, and extend it to other persons and to the planet." $450

Weekend of September 27–29

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $230

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

"For one human being to love another: that is perhaps the most difficult of all our tasks, the ultimate, the last test and proof, the work for which all other work is but preparation."
—Rainer Maria Rilke

The goal of this weekend is to provide a context in which couples can focus and explore their relationship in the areas of communication, closeness, conflict, and individuality. A balance of structured and spontaneous interactions will be used within the framework of the large group, subgroups, and the couple. Limited to ten couples. $230

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self-concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and group process methods, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers, as a means of achieving productive functioning. $230

Hypnosis and Parapsychology

Lee Pulos

All participants will be taught to experience beginning and advanced methods of self-hypnosis. There will be a number of opportunities throughout the workshop to practice hypnosis for personal habit changes and to learn how to use hypnotic uncovering practices such as automatic writing and ideo-motor questioning. In addition to brief lectures explaining and demystifying hypnosis, the workshop will include exploratory use of hypnosis as a bridge to other realities. Trance states for opening up psychic and telepathic channels can be experienced, and these may lead into turning one's visions inward to the possibility of multiple dimensions and existences. A feature of the workshop will be to teach how to use hypnosis for health maintenance. $230

Homeopathic Medicine for Self-Care and Professional Practice

Dana Ullman

Animal poisons such as snake and bee venoms, minerals such as arsenic and mercury, and plants such as belladonna and poison oak are all valuable and effective medicines commonly used by homeopaths. Each are individually prescribed to a person based on the specific symptoms they cause in overdose, and then they are given in specially prepared non-toxic doses. Since symptoms of a sick person are the body's efforts to adapt to the various stresses he or she is experiencing, it is logical and ultimately effective to give a medicine that would create in overdose these similar symptoms. Homeopathic medicines go with, rather than against, the body's efforts to heal itself.

This workshop will provide an overview of homeopathic philosophy and homeopathic self-care. Reference to developments in new physics, Jungian psychology, and energy medicine will provide us with helpful understanding of homeopathy. Homeopathic methodology and clinical practice will be discussed with a particular emphasis on how participants can practically apply homeopathic principles and medicines in professional practice or self-care. Participants will be taught how to use at least 20 different homeopathic medicines for self-care applications.

Recommended reading: Stephen Cummings & Dana Ullman, Homeopathic Medicine for the Family (J.P. Tarcher). $230

Week of September 29–October 4

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $450

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support participants can clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, bioenergetics, and journal work. $450

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

This personal workshop will combine individual work with discussion of principles and concepts which nourish the process of change. Individual work will stress deepening awareness of one's sense of direction and personal obstacles. Participants will focus on change through exploring the implications of their choices and the ways they retard or encourage the expression of self.

The workshop will include psychosynthesis, transpersonal and cathartic methods which emphasize learning, and skills to release and transform blocked energies. Participants will focus on aligning their motivation and will with the natural process of change and integration. $450

September 29–October 6

Educating the Genius Within—The Feldenkrais Method

Harriet Goslins

"By my body's actions . . . teach my mind."
—Shakespeare

The habitual way you sit, stand, or move reflects patterns that are "wired-in" to your nervous system. This information can be erased or changed. By re-educating the brain/muscle connection, restrictions in your movement are freed, freeing also the life-time habits that have organized around that movement.

Awareness-through-movement lessons are a relearning of the ease and fluidity you took for granted as a child and lost somewhere along the way. Physical injury, emotional trauma, or on-going stress all evoke a protective response from the body. These patterns, necessary at the time, remain when no longer needed, outside of our awareness, and continue to cause discomfort and unnecessary limitation. Freeing them results in relief of chronic pain or tightness, a more restful sleep, and a higher energy level. When you change how you hold your muscles, your entire protective posture is altered, deeply affecting the body's habitual defense system. Thus, new movement possibilities mean new self-image possibilities.

This workshop is for those who are physically active and fit and want to increase their skills while learning to reduce risk of injury, for the sedentary or those dealing with after effects of injuries, and for the average person who feels chronically tired and stressed and wants to learn how to take better care of his neck, shoulders, and back, to improve his posture and breathing, and to live and move with more flexibility and comfort.

Recommended reading: Moshe Feldenkrais, Awareness Through Movement. $680

Weekend of October 4–6

Clairvoyant and Clairsentient Practices

Helen Palmer & Wendy Palmer

The two most identifiable aspects of intuition are the ability to see and the ability to sense a range of information that is unavailable to the thinking self. Clear sight and clear sensing have their historical bases of training in the traditions of visualization and martial arts practices. This workshop will be an introduction to the internal focusing practices that can provide access to the intuitive state of mind. Particular visualization and martial arts exercises are presented in such a way that they can form the basis of discrimination between personal projections and accurate visual and sentient impressions from situations unknown to the thinking self. $230

Green Politics

Fritjof Capra & Charlene Spretnak

Green politics is the political manifestation of a current cultural shift from mechanistic world view and patriarchal value system to a new vision of reality. It is an ecological, holistic, and feminist movement that transcends the old political framework of left versus right. In this workshop the leaders present a history of the European Green movement and basic principles of Green politics, with special emphasis on the implications for future politics and spiritual values in the United States. $230

Creativity Workshop

Paul Horn

You will be guided in a joyful way to opening the creative flow within you through musical improvisation, movement, and meditation. These disciplines can enable one to develop deeper and more meaningful communication, improve intuitional faculties, and increase centering and focusing powers. Bring instruments if you have them. No previous musical experience necessary.

Recommended listening: Paul Horn, Inside; Inside the Great Pyramid; China; Jupiter 8.

Recommended reading: Yogi Ramacharaka, The Science of Breath (Yogi Publication Society); Manly P. Hall, The Therapeutic Value of Music (Philosophical Research Society). $230

Week of October 6–11

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Peggy Morrison Horan & Vicki Topp

In this beginning massage course, participants will be instructed in basic methods used in giving a full body massage. Related areas of work, such as breath awareness, grounding, movement, and quality of touch, will be introduced, and participants will be instructed in ways to release stress and muscular tension. The goal of this workshop is to provide the fundamental elements necessary to give a pleasurable and beneficial full body massage. $450

The Nature of Movement: Aikido and Wilderness

Steven Harper & Wendy Palmer

In this week-long workshop we will work indoors with energy awareness and principles derived from aikido, and outdoors on short day-hikes into Big Sur's backcountry to explore directly the movement that nature inspires within us. Both aikido and hiking are moving meditations which, done well, require us to be in harmony with the natural world. There will be opportunity to take what we learn on the aikido mat out into the natural world and bring what we learn from nature onto the aikido mat. We can then begin to integrate what we learn from aikido and from nature into our lives.

All evenings and most meals will be at Esalen. Participants need not have previous experience in aikido or hiking. Come ready to move. $450

Breaking Away: The Loss of Innocence

Jacob Blass

There are many hundreds, perhaps thousands, of people who in recent years have broken away from "new age" spiritual movements and growth organizations. It is an extraordinary action, frequently caused by a dramatic occurrence such as a scandal involving the leader, a breach or lack of integrity in the organization, or a major shift in the follower's consciousness.

As a significant event, it frequently results in a cathartic and revolutionary redefinition of a person's life. Depending on the individual's involvement with the group, it is a time often accompanied by rage, fear, grief, and a lack of contextual organization to the meanings and experiences of life. For many, a remarkable array of experiences and feelings can be expected. These include betrayal and doubts in relation to God, abandonment of relationships by former associates in the group, divorce or separation in partner relationships, shame, guilt, a sense of wasted years, lack of faith in one's ability to choose wisely and, perhaps most destructively, lack of belief in oneself.

To the degree that a person moves through these experiences, it is also a time rich in growth and individuation, as externally imposed structures and beliefs can now give way to those formed through the person's own experiences.

This workshop is designed for people who have left spiritual and growth organizations and want to facilitate a greater understanding and experience of that action. It is not a deprogramming workshop, nor is it a place to impose new beliefs. Rather it is an opportunity, through structured exercises, group interactions, individual sharings, and reflection, to put the past in perspective and successfully shape the present. $450

The Approaches of Milton H. Erickson, M.D.

Jane Parsons assisted by Francis Lu

This is a course designed for professionals in the mental health field. Dr. Erickson's approaches are of particular value because of his exquisite understanding of the use of verbal and nonverbal communication to affect physiological changes. A clinician who knows how to talk to a client's unconscious mind, which Erickson defines as a rich storehouse of learning potential, can call upon abilities and experiences unique to that client and can evoke hitherto unrecognized strengths and "patterns of happiness." These patterns can come alive even in a hospital bed and can have powerful beneficial effects.

This course will teach clinicians to discover and develop their own unique resources that can enhance and refine their methods and can enable them to sharpen their sensory skills so that they can understand and utilize minimal nonverbal responses.

Dr. Erickson's understanding of how the mind works will be explored didactically and experientially. We will watch his training sessions on video, and will integrate these with practical exercises that gradually build up technical skills. Clinicians will be invited to present cases for discussion.

Workshop attendance is limited to mental health professionals with graduate degrees (M.S., Ph.D., M.S.W., D.D.S., etc.) in health related fields from accredited institutions and to graduate students in accredited programs in the above fields who supply a letter from their departmental chairperson certifying their student status.

Recommended reading: Sidney Rosen, My Voice Will Go With You (Norton & Co.); Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (Norton & Co.); Strategies of Psychotherapy, and Advanced Techniques of Hypnosis and Therapy: Selected Papers of Milton Erickson (Grune & Stratton).

C.E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 37. $450

Weekend of October 11–13

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $230

Dream Discovery

Joyce Frazee

Joyce writes: "An ancient figure in many mythologies is that of the sleeper dreaming the world into being. Our ordinary, conscious mind is only a tiny sliver of all that we are, but in the dream time we are fluid. We move into, inhabit, our personal and family histories, our social and cultural histories, and the world unwinds, strand upon intertwining strand, from the dream time.

"We all dream. A beginning is to remember. The smallest dream fragment can be the first step in the journey of discovery. What we see first as discrete clues, decipherable as parts of a puzzle, become patterns, personal kaleidoscopes. The patterns, finally, are larger than any limitation of conscious meaning.

"In this workshop we will enter the dream time through exercises in recall, gestalt dream work, psychosynthesis, and the practices of the Senoi dreamers." $230

Women's Mysteries (for women only)

Starhawk

In this weekend workshop, we will create a sacred women's space in which we can meet the fivefold Goddess of birth, initiation, consummation, repose, and death. Drawing on the ancient history and mythology of the religions of the Great Goddess, on feminist process, and on the tools of intuition, meditation, trance journeys, and ritual, we can gain a new understanding of our own women's cycles and of how to channel transformative power in the relationships, projects, and movements we carry on.

Recommended reading: Starhawk, The Spiral Dance: A Rebirth of the Ancient Religion of the Great Goddess (Harper & Row) and Dreaming the Dark: Magic, Sex, and Politics (Beacon). $230

The Reinvention of Fatherhood (for men only)

Robert Sayers & John Franklin

Men have always been fathers biologically. The social and psychological role of the father, however, is a recent invention. Today, changes in roles, institutions, and personal consciousness require the reinvention of fatherhood. The reframing of the "paternal instinct" from a position of social roles to that of personal consciousness is the basis for this reinvention.

Through strengthening the experience of conscious fathering, men are often able to heal past wounds of father absence and accept their power to love and nurture, provide and protect. Conscious fathering allows men to re-parent themselves, to heal the father wound, and to reclaim the power of self love and acceptance.

Conscious fathering requires both greater masculine power and strength and a more assertive love to complement and support "maternal love" in the world and in the family. Conscious fathering brings balance to maternal and paternal power and creates renewed purposefulness, form, and commitment in families.

Using storytelling, imagery, movement and ritual, participants will explore and re-invent the past, present, and future of their own fatherhood. This weekend will help in connecting men with the personal and cultural power of being fathers. $230

October 11–18

Research Center for Human Disarmament

André Gregory

André: "Here's the story that I like a lot. Especially at this time of my life. It sounds true. It goes like this: Somewhere in the Mideast, there are nomads, Bedouins, tribes who wander, sometimes for years, in the desert, looking for an uninhabited oasis. They are date farmers. They look for an oasis where they can farm the dates. Perhaps, after years of wandering, they finally find the place. They unpack their meager belongings, they settle down, and on this uninhabited oasis of date trees, they begin to farm the land. For years they nurture the land, they reap the harvest, they pick the dates, and when a wandering caravan arrives, they send the dates to be sold in far-off cities. They have children, they pray at sunset, they enjoy the life of the oasis that it took so many years to find. Then suddenly one morning, the entire tribe wakes up and they know it is time to leave. There is no rational reason for this, but they know they must leave. They all know it. With mixed feelings of wonder, confusion, rage, and joy, they all set off once again into the desert. They will wander, perhaps for many years, looking for another uninhabited oasis where they can farm the dates.

"I would like to conduct a seven-day active experience for actors and other artists who are packing up to leave." $680

Week of October 13–18

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $450

Relationships: Deepening the Connection Between Men and Women

Joel Kramer & Diana Alstad

This workshop will provide an environment for open communication and understanding between men and women. We will look at such basic issues as: trust, freedom and commitment, power, jealousy, adequacy, and sexuality; why relationships fall apart; what men and women don't know about each other; the male point of view—what feminism left out; why we are often attracted to people who aren't "good" for us; why some "autonomous" women still lose themselves in relationships with men; keeping relationships new once the newness has worn off; using the mind to open the heart.

Awareness and intelligence can help keep passion and sexuality alive over time. A process will be presented which can enable you to move beyond the patterns and blind spots that may prevent a relationship from forming, or that may keep an existing relationship from growing. Understanding yourself and examining how you interact with others can eliminate many seemingly hopeless conflicts.

This workshop is open to couples or individuals. There will be discussions, group interaction, and exercises focusing on specific issues relevant to the participants. $450

Weekend of October 18–20

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

This will be an introduction to intensive intraphysic work using Reichian breath work and gestalt practice. Reichian work utilizes breath and sound to energize and deepen the process of self-awareness by softening the body's patterns of physical tension and emotional holding. Gestalt practice is an awareness approach focusing on physical sensation, image, thought, and emotion. By emphasizing a person's experience in the present moment, gestalt moves toward developing a more conscious sense of self. In a supportive group atmosphere, participants will have the opportunity to explore thoughts and feelings formed by past experiences. With this exploration the possibility is opened to come to a truer concept of self, with an expanded ability to respond in the present. This workshop is limited to ten participants. $230

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Anything which is forced or misunderstood can never be beautiful." – Xenophon

People, like plants, need special attention to thrive and blossom. To naturally grow beyond what they've been requires strength, sensitivity, and a deeply compassionate awareness. The courage to let go of self-defeating patterns from the past, the willingness to master fresh skills and create new dreams for the future: these are the turning points that nourish and sustain us.

In this workshop the group will come together in the spirit of being simply and lovingly at home in themselves. They will create a community whose aim is to explore and move through individual turning points, in a climate of trust, goodwill, and authenticity. The program will be structured to include intensive individual work, using practices from gestalt, psychosynthesis, and bioenergetics, as well as creative movement, music, guided imagery, group rituals, and celebrations. $230

The Right Work

John Caple

The right work is central to creating the life we want. In this workshop participants will rediscover work-related dreams, draw power from work experiences, and clarify their vision of what they want their worklife to be. Our approach will be practical, though grounded in the longings of the soul, and worldly, though enriched by the resources and culture of Esalen. We will see how the right work is a process as well as a power.

This weekend is for those who seek change in their work: more fulfillment, different challenges, a new job, a new career. Some time will be available for individual work during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs. Each participant will have the opportunity to create a life plan.

Recommended reading: John Caple, Chapters 1-7 in Careercycles (Prentice-Hall). $230

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Miracles of Infancy

Laurie Schutz Munyer & Arthur Eric Munyer with Jezariah Canyon Munyer

Laurie and Arthur write: "This will be a time to celebrate the profound miracle of new life and parenthood. The workshop will provide an opportunity for new parents and their infants (birth to two years) to come together in a harmonious and joyous way. In an atmosphere of warmth we will guide both parent and infant through a creative learning experience. Our approaches will be drawn from massage, creative movement, music, communication, and nurturing touch. We will bring awareness to how our children can be our teachers."

Some infant care will be available. $230

***

patients, God, etc. The format will include lecture, discussion, demonstrations, and experiential exercises designed to inform and train the participants in the art of laughing as a tool for enhancing relationships.

We will examine the mythology and physiology of laughter and the use of laughter as a natural tension reliever for acute and chronic physical, emotional, and spiritual pain. Particular attention will be put to other cathartic processes, especially tears, and how they interface with laughter. We will take a look at our culture's damaging use of jokes, teasing, and tickling as sources of laughter, and demonstrate ways to effectively interrupt this behavior in those we love. $450

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter & Marianne Paschke-Carter

"Wisdom is the intelligence of the system as a whole."—Gregory Bateson

"Your conscious mind is very intelligent, and your unconscious mind is a hell of a lot smarter." —M.H. Erickson

Paul writes: "We have an intelligence obtained from our wholeness that is far greater than we are ordinarily conscious of. Erickson called it the 'unconscious mind.' Accessing and integrating this intelligence formed the basis of his hypnotic work.

"This workshop is designed for people who work with people and would like experience with Ericksonian hypnosis, communication, and problem-solving. The emphasis will be on developing a practical understanding of the principles of this approach including trance as a natural and necessary part of health and the idea that people are paradoxical and so too must their communication and problem-solving be paradoxical.

"Through guided exercises and demonstrations, participants will be taught the hypnotic use of metaphor in movement, sound, image, and story, as well as the hypnotic realities of age-regression, age-progression (traveling into futures), lucid dreaming, dissociation, and deep-trance identification (a process of deepening self-awareness through identification with different persons in and out of trance).

"Additional exploration will include: the recognition and use of spontaneous trance states that commonly occur in the course of body work, acupuncture, movement and dance, sports, counseling, and everyday stress situations; the art of using all of the system, including the bad, sick, crazy, and resistant parts; the value of humor, confusion, pattern interruption, and paradox in accessing unconscious creativity and resources; and an integrative approach to problem-solving and self-healing as described in my soon-to-be published book, The Parts Model.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

"Course prerequisites: a sense of humor, a warm heart, a little skepticism, a little trust, and an unconscious mind."

Recommended reading: Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (W.W. Norton & Co.); Jeffrey Zeig, Editor, Ericksonian Approaches to Hypnosis and Psychotherapy (Brunner & Mazel). $450

Weekend of October 25–27

Weekend Massage Intensive

George King & Bill Liles

This weekend workshop provides instruction in basic methods used in giving a massage, with additional work on quality of touch, breath awareness, centering, and sensitive rapport between partners. The purpose of the workshop is to introduce massage as a practical approach to developing greater sensory awareness and relief from stress. $230

The Fifth Annual Big Sur River Run: A Ten Kilometer Foot Race

Coordinated by Steven Harper

This is a time to enjoy Esalen and one of the most beautiful runs in the country. The Big Sur River Run is a flat course on blacktop road through redwoods and oak groves alongside the Big Sur River.

Friday evening we will look at the course, discuss procedures, and stretch. Saturday's race begins at 10:00 a.m. We'll picnic after the race and look at the video in the evening. On Sunday we'll stretch, take a short hike, and soak in the tubs or massage. The entry fee and a T-shirt are included. The run is for beginners as well as advanced runners. Race entry and further information will be sent upon registration. $230

The Possibility of Being for Human Beings: Colloquium with Werner Erhard

"Desires by themselves," wrote Jacob Needleman in The Heart of Philosophy (Knopf, 1982) "are perhaps not the enemy that the traditional teachings speak about, but they become quite another thing when they assume in ourselves the status of 'I'; when they feel like 'myself.' These innumerable 'myselves'—are they not the reason man forgets truth and being?" Needleman goes on to describe an extraordinary moment of his life, a moment of joy, or ecstasy. "The sense of ecstasy or joy was, perhaps, not less than is reported by some mystics," says Needleman, "yet it was not caused by a direct experience of a higher reality, but, on the contrary, by a direct experience of a lower reality, by the unmistakable experience of a question about myself."

This colloquium will raise the question, through a distinctive method of inquiry, of what it means to be a human being. The commitment of the inquiry is to provide an avenue for its impact to show up really, practically, as empowerment in one's everyday concerns. The colloquium will be concluded on Saturday evening. Participants will have the facilities of Esalen available for their use on Sunday. $230

October 25-27

Women's Vertical Dance: A Rock Climbing Weekend Near Big Sur

Annie Callaway-Galland

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 36. $195

Week of October 27-November 1

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $450

Self Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Eliza Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see September 29-October 4. $450

Weekend of November 1-3

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Community-Based Alternatives to Psychiatric Treatment

Lawrence Telles & Steve Fields

Many people, in many communities, have made attempts to provide person to person, rather than doctor to patient, care for those who find themselves in desperate, persistent, and acute psychological distress. The results are such services as halfway houses, vocational and housing programs, self-help groups, and social centers.

The epistemological and ideological positions imbedded in these alternatives programs are based on historical views about the nature of the self and current issues in the philosophy of science. There are also broad political issues at stake in these challenges to traditional psychiatry. Attempts to humanize care for the psychologically distressed succeed or fail in a political atmosphere which transcends local battles about zoning laws.

We will step back from the details of your struggle in your community to the broadest, most abstract perspective on the work you do. These discussions will be most relevant to those who have participated in alternative care programs as clients, staff, administrators, planners, or the loyal opposition. $250

The Complementarity of Art and Physics

Leonard Shlain

Workshop participants will explore the connection between two languages: art and physics. Each describes and interprets the world in a different way, yet there is an underlying unity in how each apprehends reality. The artist's image and the physicist's formulae are the same vision, conveyed with different symbols.

The works of da Vinci, Monet, Cezanne, Picasso, Pollock, and many others will be compared with the insights of Aristotle, Newton, Einstein, Bohr, and Heisenberg, through a slide presentation and group discussion. Anyone with an interest in either field may find the weekend provocative. $250

Anatomy for Trager Students

Deane Juhan

This seminar is offered as a continuation of the professional training for students of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics®. It will examine the anatomical structures of the body and their kinesthetic relationships, with specific reference to how these structures and relationships are handled by the Trager approach.

Half of the time will be used for slide presentations, lectures, and discussions concerning particular areas of the body. The rest will be spent practicing aspects of a Trager session which correspond to those areas. The emphasis will be on clarifying for the student the intent of the various hand positions and movements, based upon an understanding of structure, function, and motor reflex.

Since supervised Trager table work will be an important part of the class, a beginning Trager training is a prerequisite. C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 37. $250

Week of November 3-8

Five Days with Jack Rosenberg

For catalog description see September 8-13. $490

Creating Musical Theater

Bradley Bernstein, Didi Conn, Nancy Kaye Lunney & David Shire

Theater! Music! Lights! Make-up! Join us for a week of creating original musical theater. Now's your chance to be a writer, a lighting technician, an actor, designer, or a stage manager. Through Spolin exercises and other group games we will engage in the process of creating: from receptivity, through focus, to expression.

This is a week to rediscover your talents; a chance to experience spontaneity, creativity, and being part-of-the-whole. No experience is needed.

The faculty includes Didi Conn, stage, film, and television actress, and founder of "The First Stage" in Los Angeles, which is a group of actors, directors, and writers that develop new plays for stage and screen; David Shire, Academy Award-winning composer of many film scores and of the Broadway hit Baby; Nancy Kaye Lunney, former vocal coach and accompanist who regularly leads singing workshops at Esalen; and Bradley Bernstein, director of shows at Juilliard and other schools and theaters in the United States, Canada, and Australia.

Use your own interests and abilities, be a creative player at whatever you'd like to do. This will be a very active week!

Recommended reading: Improvisation for the Theater, Viola Spolin. $490

November 3-29

Transpersonal Psychology

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 34. $1960

Weekend of November 8-10

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Vitality and Aging

Cecelia Hurwich

Exciting findings on women in their later years are becoming available. Research presented in "Vital Women in Their 70s and 80s"[Master's thesis, Cecelia Hurwich] revealed characteristic life patterns which can be used as models for life enhancement, renewal, and growth. Workshop participants will have an opportunity to learn to live in the present and prepare for the future—taking risks, being adaptable and productive, establishing and maintaining relationships with people of all ages, and continuing interest in sexual activity and zestful living.

We will explore life patterns that contribute to well-being, growth, and development in later years; examine stereotypes, in the media and within family systems, that perpetuate negative images of older women; and create personal life/work plans. Participants may examine new theories on the brain and aging, and the effects of work on well-being. One's present life may be explored with such questions as: What is important to me? What do I want to do? How do I want to live? Where do I go from here? How do I go about it? The weekend may be of value to women who want to explore new approaches to aging, to people dealing with aging family members, and to professionals working with older women. $250

Vision Improvement: Our Willingness to See

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

The purpose of this workshop is to discover: (1) how we distort the present reality by past feelings, attitudes, and beliefs and (2) how we can clear and re-educate the eye and the self to see.

We will utilize alternative methods such as Reichian breath and body work, gestalt practice, bio-energetics, the Bates method of eye relaxation, and other body/mind approaches.

Together, we can explore, discover, experience, and expand our vision of the possibilities for ourselves and the world in which we live.

Recommended reading: Aldous Huxley, The Art of Seeing; Lisette Scholl, Visionetics; Fritjof Capra, The Turning Point; The Foundation for Inner Peace, A Course in Miracles. $250

November 9–15

The Northern California Trophy Trout Tour

Dick Galland

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 37. $550

Week of November 10–15

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Peggy Morrison Horan & Bill Liles

For workshop description see October 6-11. $490

Presence . . . Reclaiming Personal Power

Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Presence is a power arising from a deep sense of self-worth that grows from our natural reverence for life. During this week participants will explore the elements that contribute to this timeless inner atmosphere of fluidity and ease. Together we will look at the ways in which we can live more freely and imaginatively and cultivate a more healthy, responsive, lifestyle. Our aim together will be to strengthen our abilities to experience and share our emotional needs, as well as to reawaken child-like qualities of freshness and curiosity. Through the use of video feedback, participants will have opportunity to experiment with more balanced ways of being. A special form of movement work will be featured to help create a more accepting and loving attitude toward ourselves, and to increase our awareness of spirit which is ageless and wise. $490

Returning to the Wisdom of Our Earth/Bodies

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

"If a proper reverence for the sanctity of the earth and the diversity of its people is the secret of peace and survival, then the adventure of self-discovery stands before us as the most practical of pleasures."—Theodore Roszak, Person/Planet

Learning about our bodies, our natural instincts and responses, can lead us back to the ancient wisdom of the earth—returning us to our sacredness and wholeness.

The focus of this workshop is to regain an intimate relationship with the natural pulsations and expressions of our bodies, as well as our environment, through a conscious unfolding of our selves physically, emotionally, mentally, sexually and spiritually.

In nature, we can observe the rhythms and patterns that occur in every aspect of life—from the pulsation of the cell, to the ebb and flow of our deepest emotions, to the movement and expansion of the universe itself.

The natural world will be our teacher as we explore the "inner" terrain of our physical and emotional bodies and the "outer" terrain of Esalen and Big Sur.

We will use Reichian gestalt awareness and breath work, deep emotional release, sound, creative movement, and meditation to balance and transform energy blocks in the body (see Dec. 8-13 description). In addition, we will use music, dance, prayer, and ritual to express our relationship with the earth and each other.

No previous experience is needed, except a willingness to explore this adventure of spirit and discover a deepened sense of the interconnectedness that is inherent in all life-forms.

Recommended reading: Fields, et.al., Chop Wood, Carry Water. (J.P. Tarcher); Shakti Gawain, Creative Visualization (Whatever Publishing); Peter Russell, The Global Brain (J.P. Tarcher); Ken Keyes, Jr., The Hundredth Monkey (Vision Books). $490

Weekend of November 15–17

Play and the Person: Come Out, Come Out, Wherever You Are!

Bradley Bernstein

Using the improvisational theater work of Viola Spolin and many traditional games, we will find and release the intuitive, creative parts of ourselves. The impulse to play, so much a part of childhood, is thwarted or choked by years of restricted action and thinking. Through play we re-form ourselves: reawakening the child and allowing the full benefits of liveliness, humor and spontaneity within each of us.

During the workshop we will explore the qualities of play and how to bring them into our daily lives. We can have the experience of being fellow players—and the spirit of community that is brought about by playing together.

This will be an active weekend, a weekend to play! $250

The Hoffman Quadrenity Process: A Succinct Overview

Jack Downing & Robert Hoffman

The focus of this experiential weekend is on spiritual awareness as a guide to completing the urgent unfinished business of childhood and parenting. Methods selected from the Hoffman Quadrenity Process may facilitate a lasting revision of a selected life problem.

Recommended reading: Robert Hoffman, No One Is to Blame. $250

Toward a More Sensitive Relating

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

This workshop is an introduction to sensing for more meaningful contact with our own nature and with the world around us.

How we relate to our deep inner needs, to other people, or to different tasks and situations depends on how we perceive them and how we trust our own findings. When perception is clear and full, we cannot make mistakes. Our whole organism is geared to respond appropriately. We have come, however, to see through a fog of preconceptions, a bewildering fabric of the ideas and judgements of others. Our own experience has been belittled; our perceptive faculties have lost their edge. The true I and the true you no longer meet. Both life and death have become often-threatening fantasies.

Sensory awareness is a practice for rediscovering and reviving full sensory functioning. Through the gradual quieting of premature and inappropriate intellectual activity, it directs our attention both inward and outward to the actuality of the present moment. As perceptivity revives, true relationship becomes possible. Each everyday occasion in living gains its own freshness, its own uniqueness. We can become content again, like healthy children, as quality begins to make quantity unimportant.

Suggested reading: Sensory Awareness, Charles Brooks (Santa Barbara Press). $250

Week of November 17–22

Toward a More Sensitive Relating

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

For workshop description see November 15-17. $490

Doorways of Perception

Jessica Moore Britt

Insight and body-oriented practices depend upon awareness and the expression of sensations, feelings, images, and ideas that most of us ordinarily repress. Insight and catharsis by themselves, however, may not necessarily lead us into the depths of our nature that transpersonal disciplines like meditation and shamanism cultivate. Practitioners of meditation and shamanism, in like manner, may neglect the emotional/physical clearing that often allows the opening from which our truths may emerge, be perceived and integrated. In this workshop we will seek to join these two levels of personal practice, sensitizing and expanding our perception of reality. Using gestalt awareness practice, Reichian breath work, meditation, and ritual, we may begin to perceive the relationship between the learned patterns of our personality and the depths of our being. $490

Somewhere Between Freedom and Security

Phyllis Shankman

Living is often experienced as a delicate balance between one's desire for personal freedom or growth and the need for security and attachment. In this workshop, participants will explore the issues of independence/dependence, self-esteem, trust, risk-taking, work, love, and relationship. During the week, participants may use meditation, massage, music, movement, and the Esalen/Big Sur environs to slow down, relax, open, and experience themselves fully. Gestalt process work will be used to increase self-awareness. $490

Weekend of November 22–24

Weekend Massage Intensive

Bill Liles & Brita Ostrom

For workshop description see October 25-27. $250

Gestalt

Seymour Carter

For workshop description see September 20-22. $250

The Yoga of Healing and Transformation

Sogyal Rinpoche

Underlying the Buddhist approach to healing is the principle of basic healthiness and wholeness, which is our natural state of being. Health is the state where all aspects of the body and mind are in balance. Healing practice involves working deeply, but gently, on stress, negative karma, and destructive emotions, which are the causes of suffering.

Purification through the meditation and mantra of Vajrasattva (who represents our inherent self-radiant purity) is central to the practice of healing in the Tantric Buddhist tradition of Tibet. Centuries of practice by both medical and spiritual practitioners have indicated this purification to be a powerful practice in removing the deeply-rooted illnesses, harmful influences, and blockages that plague this age. It is now being successfully used in the West, both alone and with Tibetan medicines, particularly in the treatment of cancer, allergies, and other "incurable" diseases.

In this workshop, Rinpoche will present Buddhist healing and purification practices, using meditation, mantra, and visualization. C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 37. $250

Week of November 24–29

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

In this workshop, which is open to professionals and others interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their own psi abilities, Anne and Jim will use special exercises to aid participants in exploring these abilities.

They have found through their professional workshops that most of those in the helping professions are already using their sensitivity and need only learn to recognize their styles and trust the intuitive input they normally receive. During the exercises Anne will use her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity. One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive/psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

To make effective, creative choices, you need courage, imagination, and the willingness to know your heart and be true to the dreams that live inside it. Choosing this deeper wisdom can often involve the risk of breaking set—the choice to move against the powerful grain of old fears, habits, and the constant pressures of other people's expectations. To foster this spirit means contacting the elemental-instinctual parts of our natures, befriending rather than suppressing or denying the sexuality and the power out of which initiative and enthusiasm spring.

In this week we will focus on how to develop those qualities in ourselves that contribute to a more adventurous, resourceful, and buoyant way of living. In an atmosphere based in warmth and humor we will explore our capacity for mutual tenderness, respect, and honesty. Traditional psychological practices such as gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis will be used for intensive individual work, as well as non-traditional innovative approaches in body work, kinesthetic retraining, music, and guided imagery. $490

Weekend of November 29–December 1

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see September 27-29. $250

Cranial Self-Care

Richard Bernard

Given that the cranium houses the brain, and that the brain is the controlling unit of the body, the phrase "getting your head together" isn't just a cliché. Encircling and protecting the brain, the skull has micromovement at the joints as well as between eight cranial bones. This synchronous, harmonious movement is necessary for normal nerve and energy patterns throughout the body. Improper cranial respiratory function may develop for many reasons: jamming of the soft, movable skull during birth; concussions; auto accidents. The leading cause of improper cranial function, however, is stress which tightens the muscles and membranes that control and motivate these cranial structures. Common symptomatic problems include: headaches, sinus problems, visual disturbances, popping jaws, teeth pains, ear dysfunctions, upper and lower back pains.

In this workshop, Richard Bernard will demonstrate a series of exercises based on the principles of sacro-occipital work designed to help restore normal balance of brain function and output. He will also discuss the role of diet, exercise, visualization, and stress control in cranial self-care.

Richard writes: "The premise of craniopathy is that health is a function of balance between our psychological, chemical, and structural dimensions. My objective in this workshop is to teach some basic ways to eliminate cranial stress and enhance vitality and inner peace." $250

Ashtanga Yoga

Deborah Anne Medow

"The body is a boat which carries the soul in the ocean of the world. If it is not strong or it has a hole, then it can't cross the ocean. So the first duty is to fix the boat."—Baba Hari Dass

The primary focus of this workshop is to utilize the methods of the ancient system of ashtanga yoga in "fixing the leaky boat." Throughout this weekend a cleansing diet and various integrated sessions will be combined to encourage workshop participants to develop a solid basis for further development of the physical, mental, and spiritual aspects of yoga practice. Topics covered will include yoga theory, yoga purification and breathing exercises, and meditation, with particular emphasis on asanas (postures). $250

Week of December 1–6

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman

For workshop description see September 1-6. $490

Zen Training for Self Development

Dub Leigh, Tom Morelli & Mike Sayama

This workshop will focus on the practices of meditation, values clarification, body work, and communication. Concepts and exercises will be drawn from Zen, the martial arts, Feldenkrais, Rolfing, and transpersonal psychology. A heightened sense of clarity, a greater sensitivity to your body, and a feeling of having extended your limits are some of the possibilities this workshop offers. $490

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

This is a week of intense body work, structured for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, and a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released and positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and pleasure can be experienced more fully.

A most important feature of the workshop is the individual Radix®-Reichian intensive, done in a safe, supportive environment. By also using dreamwork, hypnosis, chiropractic, bioenergetics, massage, dance, and group interaction as one lets go/moves on, a new capacity for living can emerge. $490

Weekend of December 6–8

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman
assisted by Maria & Perry Holloman

For workshop description see September 6-8. $250

Astronomy Weekend: The Living Universe

Gerrit Verschuur

We will go beyond a tour of the constellations and explore the dynamics of the living universe in which our planet drifts in quiet serenity. Astronomers have revealed vivid details of the birth-life-death cycle of stars, and of galaxies and quasars which eject gigantic clouds of incandescent particles in explosive fury; inferred the existence of enormous black holes; and discovered cauldrons of chemical activity in giant clouds of organic molecules drifting between the stars.

This weekend is for those who wish to absorb themselves in an exploration of our relationship to the cosmos. Some astronomers believe that life itself may have originated out amongst the stars. One species, on at least one planet, questions its origins. Are there others like us out there?

Bring binoculars if you wish. Esalen skies can be some of the clearest you will find anywhere in the world, and Halley's Comet may form a timely addition to our workshop. $250

Transitions

Elliot Aronson & Gabriel Thompson

Transitions are passages from one state to another. As part of the process of moving on, some disorganization is required to make reorganization possible. We are almost constantly in a state of transition—whether it is getting married, beginning a new career, becoming a parent, letting go of a relationship, or moving on to the next stage in the lifecycle. These changes can be exciting and, at the same time, can evoke a loss of internal balance, which may result in a lack of self-esteem, anxiety, loss of identity, confusion, and doubts about one's own perceptions. New thoughts and ideas are fragile at these times of change and need protection and nurturance.

The goal of this workshop is to gain a perspective on the process of making transitions. Through didactic presentations, group discussions, and input from participants, individuals will have an opportunity to understand the emotional stresses involved in their personal transitions. In addition, participants can learn how to increase their sense of security. $250

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

The process of self-exploration in this workshop will be based theoretically and practically on observations from modern consciousness research. The method of "holonomic integration," developed by the workshop leaders, combines evocative music, controlled breathing, facilitative body work, and mandala drawing. It uses a model of the psyche that includes the biographical-recollective level, the dynamics of the death-rebirth process, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be in the roles of experiencers as well as facilitators or "sitters." Special emphasis will be placed on the relevance of this work for management of transpersonal crisis. $250

Week of December 8–13

Charts of the Brain, Journeys of the Spirit

William Roll & Jeannie Lagle

Modern science and parapsychology are revealing a matrix which connects people with each other, with their physical environment and with persons who are no longer living. Tapping into this knowledge may help participants to experience themselves and the universe with a new consciousness. The workshop will offer ways to develop psychic sensitivity through energy dance and energy scanning, means of using brain function as a gateway to psychic awareness, guided practice in psychometry, and the use and limitations of the pendulum and automatic writing. An emphasis will be placed on integrating discoveries into one's everyday life. $490

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

This workshop focuses on how we may consciously unfold ourselves—emotionally, sexually, mentally, and spiritually. Past anger, fear, sadness, and grief, often reflected in the body as tension, pain, lack of spontaneity, and diminished vitality, can keep one from being fully present and alive. By contacting tension and allowing emotion which has been frozen in the body, there is an opportunity to open to the creative flow of life energy within. Allowing this life energy meaningful expression, through true communication with self and others, is the essence of this work.

Some of the areas to be explored this week include: recognizing and releasing tensions which block emotion in the body; using breath and sound to energize and soften the body's tension and emotional holding; contacting and allowing unexpressed sadness and pain, which can increase the capacity for heartfulness, pleasure, and joy; expressing and releasing anger constructively, which can deepen compassion and love while also releasing blocked sexual energy; learning about the nature of fear, and moving toward greater trust of self and others. Paying special attention to the mental processes that shape the emotional and physical body, participants will be shown ways to trust their bodies' responsiveness and inner direction.

This workshop will utilize Reichian body and breath work, emotional release, gestalt practice, the Bates system of eye relaxation, massage, dance, meditation, and various other approaches. $490

Week of December 8–15

Beginning Trager Training

Betty Fuller

In this professional training, participants are instructed in Trager table work, receiving sessions from experienced practitioners, giving to and receiving from each other under supervision. In addition, participants learn to practice and teach mentastics, learn basic communication skills, clearing exercises, and simple meditation, and have time in the group to share and process their experience. This training is open to professionals in education, body work, holistic health care, counseling, psychology, medicine, chiropractic, sports, performing arts, and other disciplines which see movement as a primary means of learning.

A prerequisite for enrolling in this training is membership in the Trager Institute, 10 Old Mill Street, Mill Valley, CA 94941.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 37. $740

December 8–15

Psychosynthesis: A Workshop for Professionals

Harry Sloan

Harry Sloan writes: "Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea of what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for what is most familiar—a technique, map, or model. This can lead to the mechanical experience of 'going through the motions' and rote interventions. However, if we could reach for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, the dissonance might open to insight. The result of capturing the moment and responding to the need of the client and to the dynamics of the situation can have a decidedly different effect upon both the guide and client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice can lead to developing wisdom and intuition, transcending the methodologies we use.

"The format will combine individual work within the group setting with seminars, group exercises, and practicum. This program will be useful not only to those who are interested in psychosynthesis, but also to anyone in the helping professions who wants to come into a more creative relationship with his/her discipline.

"Psychosynthesis is the name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration. It recognizes that each human being is spiritual in essence and encourages the realization and expression of this essence, or higher self, as fully as possible in personal and social existence." $740

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Weekend of December 13–15

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Advanced Massage Intensive

Peggy Morrison Horan
& Laurie Muller (Lioness)

For workshop description see September 20-22. $250

Week of December 15–20

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Five-Day Massage Intensive

George King & Diane Miller Lesty

For workshop description see October 6-11. $490

Clowning for Life: A Gestalt Workshop

Rickie Wolf

"The fool who persists in his folly becomes wise."
—William Blake

Clowning for Life is a study of how to be fully present. It is a search for the state of consciousness where contradictions can be embraced and where suffering and limitation are transformed through acceptance and play. Clowning is a surrender, a free-fall into being.

The workshop focuses on the joy of the full and unified expression of body, emotion, mind, and spirit. It offers an escape from the ponderous into an attitude that life is an invitation to play.

Participants are asked to bring a hat and some clothes to use as costumes. $490

The Mystical Quest

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will include theoretical and experiential exploration of the transpersonal dimensions of the human psyche and the importance of the spiritual impulse in human beings. Special attention will be paid to the emerging world-view that integrates science and mysticism, and to the problem of "spiritual emergencies"—emotional and psychosomatic crises that can be associated with consciousness evolution. In the experiential work, we will use "holonomic integration," which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, and focused body work, and has the potential to mediate experiential access to the mystical domain. $490

The Breath of Life

Jessica Moore Britt

The most obvious is often the most elusive. Our life, with its potential for fullness and richness, is reflected in our relationship with our breath, our inhalation and exhalation. During this week together we will explore the full range of our life, our breath: stillness from stuckness to rest; movement from pain to compassion, anger to passion, fear to joy. Our main ally in our exploration will be our breath rhythms of contraction and expansion, experienced through Reichian breath work, movement, sound, and touch. $490

Weekend of December 20–22

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see November 24-29. $250

Gestalt and Dream Work

Marty Fromm

Using gestalt practice and theory, participants will focus on feelings, thoughts, and behaviors happening right now, and observe when experiencing is cut off by explanations, promises, resolutions, scolding, etc. Special emphasis will be placed on the gestalt approach in using dreams to provide integration of disowned parts of one's personality, insight into one's inner life, and direction for the future.

Participants are urged to keep a dream journal for the week prior to the workshop. $250

The Birth of the Sun

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

The winter solstice is a time for restful introspection as the earth's outer darkness allows the inner sun of the soul to regenerate and find expression. Traditional cultures the world over have rested, fasted, and feasted during this time of the year in celebration of the turning point, the cyclic return.

We will join together to create our own ritual and pageant. Using a variety of practices, such as gestalt, guided fantasy, movement, massage, and more, we will integrate our personal rituals into a group presentation. $250

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

The work of Moshe Feldenkrais is based on the natural process by which we learned to move as children. During this workshop soft, easy, gentle movements will be used to increase awareness of the body and to improve the ease and ability of movement. Special emphasis will be placed on the difficulties in movement that arise from chronic conditions such as lower back and neck pain, shoulder pain, tension in the neck and shoulders, and knee injuries, all of which can improve by approaching the difficulties as problems in learning rather than as therapeutic troubles. Situations which were "incurable" become "reeducable." Workshop participants will also be introduced to methods which can improve their ability to sense each others' bodies through touch and massage.

Although this workshop will be of value to anyone interested in learning more about his body through direct experience, it may be of special interest and benefit to dancers, athletes, doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists, health-care professionals, and elderly citizens who may find themselves discovering new ways of moving with ease and increased flexibility—painlessly and immediately. $250

Week of December 22–27

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

For workshop description see September 15-20. $490

Gestalt

Seymour Carter

For workshop description see September 20-22. $490

Christmas Present

Paul Rebillot

We've idealized birth in the Christmas story—the newborn child surrounded by adoring parents, singing angels, comforting animals; worshipped by the wise and the simple; welcomed into the world and loved for nothing that he does, but for simply being who he is. Most of us were not welcomed in that way, and at Christmastime our disillusionment peaks. Our despondency and regrets are based on unfulfilled ideals, promises, and fairy tales. Using gestalt, guided fantasy, theater games, and rituals, we will seek to release ourselves from the excess baggage of past regrets and future expectations in order to return to the divine simplicity of our own present being. Out of that simplicity, we will create our own "Christmas present," a celebration in which each of us singly and all of us together can give ourselves our self for Christmas. $490

Awakening Inner Power —A Celebration of Life

Mary Tesoro & Deborah Anne Medow

At the threshold of the new year, let us pause to renew our energy and regain balance of body, mind, and spirit. We will explore different ways of gathering our inner power. Yoga, meditation, and Leonard Energy Training can provide a foundation for personal growth and change. Massage, movement, theater games, and music will be interwoven with elements of gestalt and aikido to contact and express alternative ways of being. $490

Weekend of December 27–29

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Forgiveness and Letting Go of Judgement

Elizabeth Stratton

"The giving up of judgment, the obvious prerequisite for hearing God's Voice, is usually a fairly slow process, not because it is difficult, but because it is apt to be perceived as personally insulting."—A Course in Miracles

Elizabeth writes: "The training of the Western mind, both spiritually and intellectually, is oriented toward judgment. We are taught to induce, deduce, analyze, dissect, defend, debate. We are taught to feel guilty, to get sick, to engage in self punishment and the punishment of others. We are encouraged to rebuke ourselves into perfection.

"We do not know the healing quality of true remorse, or how to let go of that which we should never have held onto in the first place—the real meaning of forgiveness. In studies of people who have died and come back to talk about it, the most unifying element of their experiences was the meeting with a Being of white light who stood by with unconditional love, no judgment, and humor as they watched their lives roll before them like movies. The only judge was the person watching his/her own life.

"This workshop will be experiential. You are invited to observe the judgmental prison of your own mind, to feel the cleansing power of remorse, and to allow your heart to open to the freedom and healing that comes from forgiving yourself and others." $250

The Human Energy System and Gestalt Process

Alan Schwartz

The human being's movement toward a stable and balanced organism undergoes many adjustments in direct proportion to his/her responses to parental and environmental messages. The result is the formulation of stratified patterns of visible physiology and behavior. These join to form that which is usually called personality, one's individual energy system. Two common examples of energy system responses to life stress are those personalities who collapse under stress and those who control. There are many more. This will be a weekend to explore and understand our individual energy systems and their relation to how we make and inhibit intrapersonal and interpersonal contact. One focus will be on the simple task of being present, physiologically and emotionally, being aware that contact refers to our consistent awareness process and the autonomous expression of who we are. For additional information read the December 27-January 3 description. $250

December 27–January 3

Rubenfeld Synergy Method

Ilana Rubenfeld

The sea always has waves . . . waves are the sea . . . sea and waves are one. To speak of waves apart from the sea is a delusion—so mind and body are one!

The Rubenfeld Synergy Method is a system for the dynamic integration of body, mind, and emotions. The focus in this workshop will be on experiencing one's own body and emotions as a total organism. Emotions and memories are often stored in our bodies, resulting in tension and imbalance. A unique blend of gestalt, Alexander method, and Feldenkrais exercises will be used as a gateway to contact, express, and work through deep feelings. Massage staff will be on hand to assist the workshop.

We can choose to contact ourselves and each other with joy, sadness, compassion, humor, ideas, and with the body—the whole person. $740

Week of December 29–January 3

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Psychic Healing: Healer as Visionary

Elizabeth Stratton

To see into a person's essence, into the heart and soul beneath the defenses, is the first step the psychic healer takes when confronted with someone who needs healing. To then mirror back this essence, over and over during the healing process, affords the person an opportunity to choose this vision of wholeness.

Almost everyone has wished, at times, to be able to reach someone who needs healing, but who seems to be resistant. This workshop is for both non-professionals and professionals who would like to learn how to make the kind of healing contact that can lead to transformation.

The workshop will explore: the physical, psychic, and spiritual dimensions of energy; the blocking of energy that can lead to the formation of illness; the will to live, the will to die; illness and death as learning, not punishment; releasing judgment and allowing forgiveness; requirements for recovery in long term, short term, and instantaneous healing; the role of the healer; and chanelling healing energy through the heart, eyes, voice, and laying on of hands. $490

Effecting Change: The Human Energy System and Risk

Alan Schwartz

This is a week for recognizing the relationship between personal growth/change and economic/environmental realities. This is a week for designing a growth pattern for your individual energy system to provide more stable contact with the difficulties of the emerging decade.

The human energy system represents a constantly changing personality dimension. Often neglected in the system's movement towards maturity is the development of the consistency of strength. We hear metaphors not only of physical strength, but strength of character, strong emotions, and the spiritual and psychic strengths of perception. Lack of strength development leads each of us to develop compensations in order to be able to function in our chosen worlds. Some of the obvious are psychosomatic problems, blame, denial, and indiscriminate sexual functioning. Power over self, people, things is often a major compensation for the strength that allows us the experience of self, people, and things.

Risk involves awareness of our individual compensations, trusting self and the group process enough to experiment with mobilizing more energy. This means rendering more alive the strength of the physiology, feelings, conceptual process, and psychic perceptiveness. The result is clarity and stability and a deeper awareness of the balance of self as we contact the very real issues of the decade that is upon us. For further information, read the December 27-29 workshop description. $490

Weekend of January 3–5

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and developing of positive, mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of loving and personal integrity. Participants will work at their beliefs and habits through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, guided imagery, and gestalt awareness methods.

$250 per participant

Living, Loving, and Leading

John Caple

"True leaders are always led."—C. G. Jung

Our society's need for leadership is everywhere manifest, yet we often discourage this impulse in ourselves. In this workshop, participants may rediscover their leadership potentialities, learn more about their leadership style, and decide on new ways to use their abilities. We will use art, bodywork, movement, and open seat work, all enriched by the resources of Esalen. Our aim will be to become clearer about our ability to lead and our intent to lead.

This workshop is particularly designed for current and prospective leaders in organizational settings, for managers and aspiring managers, for those burned out or facing new leadership challenges, and for those who lead workshops and groups.

Recomended reading: John Caple, Careercycles (Prentice-Hall). $250

Health and Well-Being

Joe D. Goldstrich

Joe D. writes: "Over the past decade I have explored many approaches to health, including nutrition, homeopathy, acupuncture, and psychic healing as well as Rolfing®, Hellerwork, and Feldenkrais. In this weekend workshop we will examine these and other approaches to well-being, looking at their value and limitations. Our focus will help you formulate a plan for a healthy 1986." $250

Personal Mythology: Our Epic Journey

Stanley Krippner & David Feinstein

This seminar focuses on personal myths—the deep forces of the psyche that shape who we are, what we think, and what we do. Operating largely outside of conscious awareness, our personal myths nonetheless pave our journey through life, our place in society, and our relationship to the broader or spiritual context of existence. Showing participants how to reach deeply into realms of unconscious mythological wisdom, we will speak to our need to find the visions that will nourish and inspire us. Drawing upon a range of systems including Jungian psychology, gestalt, psychosynthesis, dream interpretation, and cognitive psychology, participants will be led through a powerful and moving sequence of experiences that can rework a problematic area of their personal mythology. These experiences can be used again later to identify and work with other personal myths that may be creating problems in one's life. Participants are asked to bring a notebook or personal journal and are encouraged to record their dreams in it prior to the workshop.

Recommended reading: Stanley Krippner, Human Possibilities (Anchor). $250

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Week of January 5–10

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see October 18-20. $490

Warriors on Magic Mountain: Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Tai Ji Intensive)

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

New Year renewal with the fundamentals of T'ai Chi practice. Chungliang will share with us the crystallization of his most essential learnings. He will lead us daily in sunrise movement meditation, five-elements form, I-Ching eight-trigrams metaphors in action, life-force revitalization exercises with Taoist philosophical and aesthetic dialogues and discourses. Music, dancing, and celebration!

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup (E. P. Dutton), Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press), with Alan Watts, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); John Blofeld, translator, I Ching; Lama Anagarika Govinda, The Book of Transformations. $490

Dreams: Energy, Imagery, Psyche, and Spirit

Kenneth Kelzer

Dreams are an ever present source of energy and imagery. These "raw materials of the psyche," when refined and assimilated, serve to elevate our lives to new dimensions. Dreams serve many important functions: returning the lost parts of the self to the conscious mind, enhancing creativity, firing the imagination, offering outrageous humor and sometimes pure inspiration. This workshop will delve into the dream state to explore its widest possible range, including the psi potential of dreams. We will use gestalt, psychodrama, Jung's depth psychology, intuition processes, and creative art media as some of our principal tools. In addition, the dream will be viewed as a channel for spiritual expansion and artistic creation, with special emphasis on the new frontier of lucid dreaming. Participants will have time to explore their own dreams during the workshop.

Recommended reading: Black Elk Speaks, chapters 3, 13, and 14; Patricia Garfield, Creative Dreaming, chapter 5; Carl Jung, Man and His Symbols, chapter 1; Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim. $490

Weekend of January 10–12

Inside/Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

Paul and Chungliang will celebrate and share with us their joyous collaboration in nature, music, dance, t'ai chi, jazz, improvisation, meditation, and world travel experiences.

Recommended reading and listening: by Huang: Quantum Soup (E. P. Dutton); Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); with Watts, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); Paul Horn's albums: Inside, Heart to Heart, China, The Magic of Findhorn, and Jupiter 8. $280

Awake in Your Dreams

Stephen LaBerge

Lucid dreaming means dreaming while knowing that we are dreaming. The presence of consciousness during this extraordinary state of consciousness allows us to respond flexibly and creatively to the flow of dream experience. We are in a unique position to control our dreams; this control brings within reach a remarkable range of possibilities from indulging your wildest fantasies to fulfilling your highest spiritual aspirations.

For most of us, lucid dreams are as rare as the waking peak experiences to which they are analogous. This need not be so; workshop participants will learn how to develop the skill of lucid dreaming. The results of recent scientific research will be presented and participants will be exposed to a wide variety of uses to which the world of lucid dreaming can be put, including self-exploration, creative problem solving, healing, adventure, and, perhaps most importantly, a way of self-integration leading to the transpersonal realms.

The emphasis will be on improving the quality of the dreamer's experience while in the dream. This means self-control, not dream control; changing the context rather than the content of the dream. Ann Faraday has called lucid dreaming "one of the most exciting frontiers of human experience." This workshop will provide an opportunity to find out why.

Recommended reading: Stephen LaBerge, Lucid Dreaming (J. P. Tarcher). $250

January 10–12

Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 37. $265

Week of January 12–17

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Brita Ostrom & Staff

For workshop description see October 6-11. $490

Inside/Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chunghang Al Huang

For workshop description see January 10-12. $520

Weekend of January 17–19

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

Vicki Topp & Staff

For workshop description see October 25-27. $250

The Fine Art of Journal Writing

Nancy Mayer

"We must turn to ourselves as a creative piece of work, not only in the arts, but in the creation of our lives."—Anaïs Nin.

Facing the empty page, reaching out to put words on paper, we all feel vulnerable. This journal workshop is based on the belief that everyone can write easily and pleasurably. In a silent, supportive atmosphere necessary for the inward journey, we will learn how to overcome our fears of writing, surmount writer's block, and get to know our "inner critic." This workshop is for people who claim they cannot write, or find the process painful; and for those who want to tap into their inner truth. Participants will learn new ways to record their experiences, memories, and dreams, as keys to understanding their lives. They will also discover how to gain better access to their intuitive, imaginative self.

Nancy writes: "When we record our experiences in a journal we expand and deepen our lives, finding new meaning and purpose. In the process we move from the personal to the universal, learning to accept ourselves, and others, more fully. We gain perspective on the past and guidance for the future."

Recommended reading: Tristine Rainer, The New Diary; Ira Progroff, At A Journal Workshop. $250

Introduction to Vipassana Meditation

Jamie Baraz

Vipassana (insight) meditation practice is a systematic examination of the mind/body process through calm and focused awareness. Learning to observe experience from a place of stillness enables one to relate to life without fear or clinging. One begins to accept pleasure and pain, fear and joy, with increasing equanimity and balance. Life is seen as a constantly changing process. Insight is the deepening experience of the process itself, free of interpretation, leading to wisdom and compassion. The seminar is designed for those who have had no previous meditation experience as well as for those who wish to deepen their practice. Meditation instruction, the philosophy behind the practice, group discussions, and actual pactice periods will be offered. Special emphasis will be placed on how to integrate vipassana practice in daily life after the workshop is over.

Recommended reading: Joseph Goldstein, The Experience of Insight (Shambula). $250

Week of January 19–24

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see November 24-29. $490

The Embodiment of the Essential Self

Karen Johnson

You may find yourself seeking zest for life and a sense of purpose. The greatest joy can be in discovering our true beloved, the beauty and truth of our essential self. Our essence, known by the Sufi as the true friend, is a presence we can touch within ourselves. Essence is beyond thoughts, emotions, and the physical; it is life itself.

In this workshop we will explore and experience ways of moving toward more presence and the embodiment of our essential nature. Sufi awareness methods will be utilized, along with individual work in a group setting, using breath work and touch to facilitate transformation. $490

Weekend of January 24–26

Anatomy for Trager Students

Deane Juhan

For workshop description see November 1-3. $250

Awareness, Balance, and Options

Judyth Weaver

This workshop will focus on rediscovering and integrating awareness of our full selves—mentally, physically, and spiritually. We will work deeply with our senses, and gently with our breath, explore T'ai Chi Ch'uan for relaxed exercise, and practice meditation, massage, movement, and gestalt.

All these explorations can help us realize the choices we have. We can perform the same actions in a stressful or relaxed manner, wastefully or economically. We can hold on tightly or let go. We can suffer or have fun. The more in touch we are with our feelings and abilities, the more options are available to us. Using these options with awareness, we can develop a sense of centered grounding and balance, with which to enhance an energetic, economic, pleasurable, and effective life. $250

Approaches to Christian Mysticism

Brother David Steindl-Rast

Awareness of Eastern mysticism makes many people ask: what of the mystical tradition in the West? Is it still alive? Can one find meaning in it today? Brother David has spent more than thirty years in both Eastern and Western monasteries exploring the roots of mysticism in the human heart. He will lead participants in discovering these roots in their own life experience. We shall ask what the pursuit of the path of the heart demands from each one personally, and how it can be practiced in one's daily life.

Like Thomas Merton, his late fellow monk and friend, Brother David is a bridge-builder between East and West. The focus of this weekend, however, will be on the Christian tradition and on our need to wrestle with it. Input and question periods will alternate with silent time for guided experience.

Recommended reading: Rainer Maria Rilke, Letters to a Young Poet (Norton); Thomas Merton, Conjectures of a Guilty Bystander (Doubleday); Thomas Matus, Yoga and the Jesus Prayer Tradition (Paulist Press); David Steindl-Rast, A Listening Heart (Crossroads), Gratefulness The Heart of Prayer (Paulist Press). $250

Week of January 26–31

Health and Creativity

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

For workshop description see September 13-15. $490

Mindfulness Meditation

Jacqueline Mandell

Mindfulness meditation can allow us deeper experiences of our sensitivity, clarity, and wisdom. Meditation practices will focus on our mental and physical process, especially the natural breathing process. Using our senses as objects of awareness, we can discover the possibility of living in the present moment, calm, concentrated, and aware.

Meditation will be practiced in silence, with emphasis on sitting and walking meditation. There will be time for discussions, individual guidance, and relaxation. This workshop is suitable for both experienced and inexperienced meditators. Please wear comfortable clothing and shoes. $490

Free to Be You

Leslie Pam & Ann Christie

We are all born connected to our real selves. If, however, as children we experience feelings of rejection and hurt, we develop a system of protection that becomes a self-restricting pattern. As adults we experience that pattern as a block affecting our ability to know what or why we feel, or limiting our ability to communicate fully with others, be intimate, open, or fulfilled. Working through such blocks can leave the self free to discover richer ways of giving and receiving. This workshop includes structured group process, utilizing primal work, Ericksonian hypnosis, and massage.

Recommended reading: Arthur Janov, The Primal Scream (Perigee); Sidney Rosen, My Voice Will Go With You (Norton). $490

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

"Freedom: A state of being in which man's relatedness to life is unobstructed."
—M.C. Richards, Centering

Stress-related tension and emotional blocks restrict our capacity for feelings and expressions of aliveness. This workshop is a carefully chosen introduction to a variety of body approaches that can release limiting patterns to promote kinesthetic awareness, spontaneity, grace, and mental flexibility. Methods may include imagery, sensory awareness, Feldenkrais, gestalt, Rolf®-movement, massage, Reichian breath work, and video feedback. $490

Weekend of January 31–February 2

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see September 27-29. $250

Miracles of Infancy

Laurie Schutz Munyer & Arthur Eric Munyer with Jezariah Canyon Munyer

For workshop description see October 18-20. $250

For Men Only

Richard Gunther

If you are male, between the ages of 30 and 60, and asking such questions as "What am I doing with my life?" or "What else is there for me?" welcome to mid-life, a time of examination, possibly of crises, a time offering the opportunity for major changes in how you view yourself and the world in which you function.

We live in a demanding, controling society, and the effect on each of us is not always clear. In the words of Marcel Proust, "The real voyage of discovery consists not in seeing new landscapes, but in having new eyes." With new eyes we can see the possibility of outgrowing our social conditioning and connecting with a deeper self.

In this workshop limited to 12 participants we will focus on the issues of work and career, their changing importance at mid-life; relationships, examining the shift in needs, tasks, and roles; the body and sex, which changes are real, which imagined; and spirituality, exploring the need for a transcendent vision. $250

The Intelligent Body, The Sensuous Body

Thomas Hanna

Premise: Clarity of self-awareness and clarity of body control grow together or decline together. We'll explore how greater sensitivity to our inner selves enhances the body's ability to act and to relax, and how this ability in turn enhances kinesthetic awareness.

The program involves gentle movements and use of imagery as well as instruction in the principles of many different kinds of body work and exercise systems—particularly that of Moshe Feldenkrais.

Thomas Hanna adds: "There will also be demonstrations of how new sensory information can lead to dramatic changes in posture. Those who wish advanced knowledge in systems of body work will find the weekend profitable, as will those who have habitual aches or have difficulty relaxing."

Recommended reading: Thomas Hanna, The Body of Life, Bodies in Revolt: A Primer in Somatic Thinking. $250

Week of February 2–7

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see September 29-October 4. $490

Clairsentient and Clairvoyant Practices

Wendy Palmer & Helen Palmer

The two most identifiable aspects of intuition are the ability to sense and the ability to see a range of information that is unavailable to the thinking self. Clear sensing and clear sight have their historical bases of training in the traditions of martial arts and visualization practices.

This workshop will be an introduction to the internal focusing practices that can provide access to the intuitive state of mind. The particular martial arts and visualization exercises are presented in such a way that they can form the basis of discrimination between personal projections and accurate sentient and visual impressions unknown to the thinking self. $490

Owning the Shadow

Paul Rebillot

"We have seen the enemy and they is us."
—Pogo, Walt Kelly

Paul Rebillot writes: "In my work I have come to realize that one of the most important and frequently avoided themes in our lives is the ability to own the part of ourselves we don't like, the part Jung called the shadow. As a result, we become projectors of our own disowned energy.

"In this workshop, we will seek to discover within ourselves the bad guy we have been projecting onto, and hating in others. By facing and communicating with this negative self, we may discover in our shadow not the enemy but the friend and challenger to growth of the heart and consciousness." $490

Weekend of February 7–9

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see September 27-29. $250

Body, Heart, and Spirit

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

The workshop is divided into three segments, dealing first with tensions and energy patterns in the body, then with the relationship of these to the emotions, and finally with their relationship to the mind, to thought. By connecting thought, feeling, and body experience in one gestalt, we seek to open the being to the inpouring of the spirit, to the state of grace. This is the goal of shamanic dances and of many tribal rites. The process includes body work and open seat gestalt work, as well as rituals, dancing, chanting, and celebration. $250

Rethinking Security/ Toward Common Ground

John Marks & Jack Cirie

This workshop is designed for those who are convinced they have the answers to questions of war and peace and are frustrated by not being able to make their view prevail; and for those who are convinced they do not have the answers and are frustrated that neither they nor anyone else seems to. The workshop combines cognitive and non-cognitive, linear and non-linear approaches. The metaphor and physical experience of aikido are used to facilitate exploration of new ways of framing—hence acting on—security questions. Participants may move beyond their conventional thinking to discover fresh and innovative ways for establishing real security in the world. $250

Week of February 9–14

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

This seminar will focus on the integration of body, mind, and spirit through intuitive and energy awareness, massage, meditation, movement, gestalt, and play. Using these tools and gentle risk-taking can help in opening to our own aliveness and ability to be more at home with ourselves. Participants will explore practical and portable ways of nourishing and trusting the inherent wisdom of the self. $490

Craniosacral System: Basic Workshop

Jim Asher & Jane Harrington

This workshop will offer an opportunity to learn and practice gentle yet powerful skills to bring the craniosacral system into balance. The class will combine lectures and slides on functional anatomy of the membrane system, cerebrospinal fluid movement, and related methods. There will be hands-on demonstrations of a variety of methods for tapping into bone and membrane motion, rhythm, amplitude quality, restriction, and interference. Demonstrations will be followed by supervised practice. Time will also be spent evoking and developing palpatory sensitivity and fine-tuning the quality of touch.

This workshop is for people with a strong interest in developing hands-on skills, and those already practicing body work or counseling. Much of our focus will be on the head, jaw, neck, pelvis, and diaphragm systems. Cranial work can be effective in shifting emotional holding patterns and draining accumulated stresses in the nervous system.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 37. $490

Weekend of February 14–16

Intuition Practice

Helen Palmer

For workshop description see September 8-13. $250

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

For workshop description see September 13-15. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

George King & Deborah Anne Medow

For workshop description see October 25-27. $250

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

For workshop description see December 1-6. $250

Word Magic: Self-Discovery Through Writing

Nancy Bacal

We all have stories inside and the capacity to tell them, but when asked to translate them onto the page, many of us are inhibited by self-judgment. Through the years, Nancy Bacal has evolved a series of writing exercises designed to bypass blockages, to move beyond the controlling arm of the critic, and bring participants to a deep and direct experience of themselves.

This writing workshop can provide a safe, stimulating environment for the non-writer, the would-be writer, and the professional. It offers an opportunity to expand preconceived ideas of what writing can be, chiefly by exploring individual creative forms and processes. The "hidden writer" is encouraged to open the heart, to tap the vast reservoir of material within, and to see the world in a new way.

Nancy says: "To experience life as potential story is to activate awareness of oneself, and to invoke the magical properties of words—enriching our day-to-day lives with wonder and surprise." $250

Week of February 16–21

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $490

Letting Go—Moving On

Merri Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see December 1-6. $490

Psychic Abilities in Science and Everyday Life

Keith Harary & Darlene Moore

Are psychic experiences worth having in a society that doesn't encourage people to have them? Exploring your psychic capabilities can help you become a happier, more self-actualized person, or lead to anxiety, alienation, and identity confusion. How can you tell the difference between genuine psychic experiences and exaggerated claims, imagination, or delusions? Is there any real difference between people who call themselves psychics and the rest of us? Through extensive practice exercises in small and large groups, we will explore ways in which you may develop and make the most of your own psychic potential without losing touch with everyday reality or buying into externally imposed belief systems. We will also discuss experimental, clinical, and subjective approaches to psychic abilities in the United States and the Soviet Union, and examine the treatment of psychic experiences in popular American culture. $490

Weekend of February 21–23

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

Zero Balancing: Advanced Workshop

Fritz Smith

This workshop is for people who have completed at least one introductory zero balancing program. Following a review of basic concepts, time will be spent on answering specific questions and giving individual instruction as needed. New work will focus on exploring the direct perception and assessment of energy currents in the body, refinement of evaluating and balancing the foundation joints, and the discussion of nonfoundation joints, including the small joints of the body. Theory will be clarified by demonstration and individual practice, using each other as models.

This is an accredited program toward zero balancing certification.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 37. $250

The Art of Self-Direction

Lenore Lefer

This workshop is about personal, social, and cultural change. It is about creating, initiating, and directing change as well as responding to those alterations that we seem not to choose. We will explore how to be causal around change and how to include our deepest values. Do we know what is meaningful, and how do we integrate that into our lives? It is an art to lead a self-directed life that includes both personal and social responsibility.

Founded conceptually in psychosynthesis, the focus of this self-exploration will be experiential, using imagery, inner dialogue, meditation, and individual and group process. The environment will be supportive and evocative. This workshop is appropriate for professionals who deal with transitional crises in their own work.

Recommended reading: Pierro Ferucci, What We May Be (J. P. Tarcher); Roberto Assagioli, The Act of Will. $250

Wild and Useful Plants

Jesse Longacre

This weekend is for people interested in learning some of the edible and medicinal plants of Big Sur—from the tidepools of the Pacific to the Santa Lucia mountain ridges. We'll begin with a slide show of some of the taste treats we'll be seeking. On Saturday we'll be outside all day in search of herbs, seaweeds, and mushrooms, always with an eye for the bigger circles that make nature the ultimate teacher. The hiking will be relatively light. Saturday night we'll examine, identify, and discuss our specimens together and share our insights on the day. At our final meeting Sunday morning we'll feast on our gatherings.

If you want to discover survival foods, add new foods to your diet, or just be with nature and learn something about what you see, this could be a very practical, enjoyable, and tasty weekend. $250

The Bhagavad Gita as a Guide to Counseling

Harry Sloan

"Better is one's own dharma [own style], though imperfect, than the dharma of another well performed. He who does the duty ordained by his own nature incurs no sin."—The Bhagavad Gita

Similarly, William Blake said, "I must create a system of my own or be enslaved by another man's." To the extent we clone someone else's approach or style, even though we perform the task well, if it is at the expense of our true nature we dishonor ourselves.

The Bhagavad Gita is an ancient and sacred text of the Hindus. What the Gita is to the East, the Bible is to the West. The story of the Gita is about a battle. Metaphorically, it is the struggle of honoring our duty to ourselves, and not capitulating to the obstacles and familiar habits that impede deepening and expressing our unique sense of Self. For a counselor the message of the Gita is the struggle to resist the temptation to settle for rote interventions or techniques at the expense of reaching deeper within ourselves for insight and discovery of our own system.

This program may be useful not only for the counselor, but for any in the helping professions who would like to deepen their own unique sense of Self in the process of their professional work. The format will blend experiential exercises with discussion focusing on the pertinent sutras of the Gita that reflect the above theme.

Recommended reading: Swami Nikhilananda, The Bhagavad Gita (Ramakrishna-Vivekananda Center). $250

Week of February 23–28

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Arthur Eric Munyer

For workshop description see October 6-11. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see November 24-29. $490

February 23–March 9

Gestalt as an Art Form

Paul Rebillot

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 35. $1230

February 23–March 16

Continuum Dance Meditation Intensive: Waves and Whispers

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper

For workshop description see Special Programs, Page 35. $1720

Weekend of February 28–March 2

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 10. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see November 29-December 1. $250

Reprinting: A Growth Process

Hector Prestera

How does one become un-stuck from imprinted experiences and more fully realize the inner power? Through various approaches including body reading, light trance work, and anchoring (Erickson), participants can explore how powerful the unconscious is in keeping old behavioral patterns locked in, and consider opening new doors toward growth and freedom. New models of behavior can become available.

The workshop will feature individual and group processes, including body release approaches.

Recommended reading: Hector Prestera and Ron Kurtz, The Body Reveals (Harper & Row). $250

February 28–March 2

Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, January 10-12, page 37. $265

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs. No participants will be accepted as work scholars in Gazebo or the office until they have fulfilled a minimum of one month in one of the aforementioned departments.

Most evenings and two intensive weekends are spent together as a group exploring different practices and approaches available at Esalen, with specifically assigned leaders who will be with the group throughout the month, coordinating the study schedule and facilitating many of the evening sessions.

The program is usually divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc.

Focused programs planned thus far for 1985-1986 include:

October 13–November 10: Deborah Anne Medow leads a program focused on body awareness, including such activities as yoga, movement and dance, theater games, interpersonal process, and massage.

November 10–December 8: Andrea Juhan and Deborah Anne Medow offer a program of movement studies which can be taken alone or as a combined program with body awareness, October 13-November 10.

December 8–January 5: Neil and Pat Lamper lead a program emphasizing gestalt awareness, using massage, the baths, movement, music, imagery, outdoor awareness, group nurture, and group gaiety.

January 5–March 2: Lauren Armstrong and Jessica Moore Britt lead a committed two-month program with emphasis on recognizing and developing essential states of being, through subtle body theory, self-remembering, gestalt and Reichian awareness practices, journal writing, meditation, and an optional wilderness overnight.

March 2–30: Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita) and Daniel Bianchetta offer a program integrating gestalt practice, Reichian breath and body work, creative movement, intuition practice, and energy awareness.

March 2–30: Benj Langdon coordinates a program emphasizing the body as an instrument for awareness and transformation of psychological patterns. Practices may include imagery, Feldenkrais, gestalt, Rolf® -movement, massage, Hakomi, contact improvisation, and other forms of creative movement.

April 27–July 20: The Esalen massage practitioners will be offering a three-month program in body work, with intensive instruction in massage, movement, and self-care. After the satisfactory completion of the program and an additional 30 recorded massage sessions, a California state-approved certificate will be issued.

July 20–September 14: Seymour Carter coordinates a two-month program focusing on gestalt practice, with emphasis for, but not limited to, professionals. Recommended reading: Karen Horney, Neurosis and Human Growth.

In as much as the Work Study Program is a complete program in itself, please do not plan to take regularly scheduled catalog workshops during your stay. Professional services, such as massage and Rolfing®, are available at staff rates.

Accommodations are shared, with up to four people to a room, usually at South Coast Center, a staff complex located 1½ miles north of Esalen.

The 28 day Work Study Program costs $600 for the first month. A $300 deposit in U.S. currency is required with your application. Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second month, at a cost of $550, or a third month at a cost of $500 depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

NOTE: This application is not a registration in the program. Registration is made only after approval of application and upon receipt of deposit. Please return this form with your deposit to:

Work Study Program, Esalen Institute,
Big Sur, California 93920. Telephone: (408) 667-2335.

The balance of the fee is due on arrival. Of the original deposit, $100 is non-refundable, and may be transferred to other Esalen programs within one year of receipt.

Available dates: September 15–October 13; October 13–November 10; November 10–December 8; December 8–January 5; January 5–February 2; February 2–March 2; March 2–March 30; March 30–April 27; April 27–May 25; May 25–June 22; June 22–July 20; July 20–August 17; August 17–September 14; September 14–October 12; October 12–November 9; November 9–December 7; December 7–January 4; etc.

Application to the Work Study Program

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Date of Birth _____ Occupation _____ Place of Employment _____

Daytime Telephone (_____) _____ Date of Application _____

Evening Telephone (_____) _____ Male ☐ Female ☐ Smoker ☐ Non-smoker ☐

I prefer the general interest program: yes ☐ no ☐ I prefer the focused program in: _____

The Work Study Program is for 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. Please list the dates of your choice, listing two alternative dates as well.

1st: _____ to _____ 2nd: _____ to _____ 3rd: _____ to _____

Work scholars may sometimes be invited to remain for a second or third month, depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. If an invitation is extended, please indicate your availability. ☐ no extension ☐ one-month extension ☐ two-month extension

Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs.

If you have emergency medical skills (M.D., E.M.T. or R.N.) and are willing to make those skills available during your stay, please check here. ☐

Please attach a personal statement about your interest in the Work Study Program, including: your available skills, especially English language skills, which are essential for participation in the program; any medical difficulties which might affect your working in any departments; any Esalen workshops you have attended (please list program titles, group leaders, and dates).

Special Programs

September 1-27
Tutorial Program

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard Baker-roshi may be offering a tutorial program. Interested persons should write for information to: Richard Baker-roshi, 1404 Cerro Gordo Rd., Santa Fe, NM 87501.

Integrative Body Practice Training Program

Integrative Body Practice (IBP) uses breathing as a vehicle for the integration of body, mind, emotions, and spirit and is based on the work of Jack Lee Rosenberg, author of Total Orgasm, and Body, Self and Soul: Sustaining Integration with Marjorie L. Rand (October, 1984).

There are three ways of being in the IBP professional training program at Esalen: professional certification in IBP if you are already a licensed mental health practitioner (CEU available); master's degree in clinical/counseling psychology (BA required, submit transcripts); Ph.D. in clinical/counseling psychology (48 unit master's degree in psychology required, submit transcripts). Degrees are awarded by California-approved degree-granting institutions (not by Esalen).

For details write the Rosenberg Institute, 1107 W. Washington Bl., Venice, Ca. 90291, c/o Marjorie Rand.

September 29-October 25
Tutorial Program

Jack Rosenberg

Persons interested in this program should write to the Rosenberg Institute at the above address.

November 3-29
Transpersonal Psychology

Christina and Stanislav Grof

This four-week workshop is designed for professionals and students in the areas of psychology, psychiatry, medicine, anthropology, and comparative religion interested in the interface between science and spirituality. Educational programs of this series combine theory with deep personal experience and body work.

We will focus on the following thematic areas:

1. Theory and Practice of Transpersonal Psychology. Pioneers and prominent representatives of transpersonal psychology and the coordinators will explore with participants the history of this field, transpersonal techniques of self-exploration, and the most important areas of transpersonal interest—the ancient and Oriental spiritual philosophies and practices, anthropological field work, study of death and near-death experiences, multiple personality, and observations from psychedelic research.

2. The Emerging Paradigm. We will focus on revolutionary developments in Western science that provide a conceptual framework for transpersonal psychology—new physics and its convergence with mysticism; Gregory Bateson's work in cybernetics, information theory and systems theory; Rupert Sheldrake's contributions to biology; and holonomic theories of David Bohm and Karl Pribram.

3. Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Transpersonal Crises. This aspect of the program focuses on the concept that many non-ordinary states of consciousness, currently seen as psychotic, are actually transpersonal crises with evolutionary potential.

4. Self-Exploration and Group Process. All through the workshop participants will have the opportunity for self-exploration and will also practice techniques of facilitating such a process. $1960

December 6-15
Human Potential and Organizations

Will Schutz

Will Schutz is offering a special focused program, an integration of human potential theory and practice with Western science, applied to organizations. Workshops are open to individuals, couples, and members of organizations. Interested community groups and others please contact WSA at Box 259, Muir Beach, CA 94965 or (415) 383-8275.

January 5-31
Tutorial Program in Shamanic Practice

Michael Harner

Michael Harner will be offering a tutorial program in shamanic practice. Persons interested should write for information to Michael Harner, Center for Shamanic Studies, Box 673, Belden Station, Norwalk, Connecticut 06852.

February 21-28
Quality Life: Senior Executives

John Soper

A special program is being offered to senior executives interested in living life at its highest quality. The workshop is open to a small number of participants who are not limited by resources. Please contact John Soper, Burns Creek, Big Sur, CA 93920, or call (408) 667-2431.

February 23-March 9
Gestalt as an Art Form

Paul Rebillot

The focus of this workshop will be on teaching the basic principles of gestalt as an art form—the materials of that form being our own human process of individuation. Participants are invited to think of themselves as artists engaged in the great work of creating their own life process. With the basic tools and concepts of gestalt, we will combine elements of myth, ritual, and dreams; music, drama, and dance; the plastic arts, painting, and drawing—so that people will leave at the end of the workshop with a rich palette to play with in the process of unfolding their own life stories.

The workshop will be both a practicum in gestalt and related art forms for those engaged in the helping professions, and an experiential group for those seeking personal expansion. Previous experience with gestalt process is necessary, but it is not necessary to have previous experience as a gestalt facilitator.

Looking at gestalt as an art form takes away the necessity for immediate results and absolute resolution of problems. In working with myth and ritual, we can go beyond the historical biographical material of our personal lives, beyond even the personalized symbolic and archetypal information that comes through dreams, into the dreams and goals of the human race. We seek ourselves in the Self of humanity. Whatever comes out of us in working with an art form—whether it be clay or paint, drama or dance—becomes material for an open seat session, to be explored in order to expand our consciousness of ourselves and our capacity for living and being.

Please bring notebooks, paper, and colors, and if you like, paints.

Recommended reading: by Joseph Campbell: Hero With a Thousand Faces (Bollingen), Myths to Live By (Bantam); by Bruno Bettelheim: The Uses of Enchantment (Random House). $1230

February 23-March 16
Continuum Dance Meditation Intensive: Waves and Whispers

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper

Within our skin is a world of movement, not just the familiar movement of liquids and organs, but a dance of intelligent life. This is an invitation to dance.

The inner movement is different from spatial movements such as walking. We call it "intrinsic movement." It is a great facilitator of our body's healing powers, a source for the development of an organic awareness that is fundamental to all intelligence, and a way to understand movement as what we are, rather than an activity we do.

The workshop will be focused on breath, sound, and what we call the "movement of movements."

Each breath is like a motif or theme of a musical composition. The implications of this orchestration involve a re-ordering of our nervous system, refinement of our sense perception, and the ability to pay attention at the deeply organic levels of movement where molecules spin and cells commune.

Sound also plays an enormous part in these orchestrations, making the breath audible. Through audible breath we create new possibilities in our ability to affect ourselves, both as healers and as a way to tune ourselves to the evolutionary thrust on earth.

The movement of movements is the overall flow in the many currents of eddying patterns of motion. Some of the movements can be experienced as wavelike undulates, some are pulsing micro-movements, some have the vibratory hum of tissue, and some the sparkling charge of an electrical current. When all these different movements flow together without interference, we call this "fluidity."

The workshop will be open to both advanced and beginning participants. $1720

Massage Practitioner Certification Program

Esalen is now offering a California state-approved certificate upon successful completion of its three month work-scholar program or one month residential massage practitioner program, and 30 additional massages. Each program fulfills the state requirement of at least 130 hours of instruction, supplemented with additional study in body-mind disciplines such as yoga, gestalt awareness work, and movement.

Healthspring Traveling Workshops

The Esalen massage teachers and their associates have created Healthspring, an independent organization devoted to extending their work into an outreach program. The workshops offer practices to help increase physical and spiritual health and awareness within the body, and can be designed to suit the needs of individual groups. The curriculum combines such approaches as massage, meditation, dance, neo-Reichian work, creative movement, gestalt, yoga, breath enhancement, anatomy, and other health-strengthening disciplines.

Healthspring will conduct workshops at locations outside of Esalen in your hometown or city. For more information on scheduling a Healthspring group in your community, write to: Healthspring Traveling Workshops, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Wilderness Programs

Kathleen Thormod Carr

Esalen Wilderness Programs Refund Policy

Most expenses in wilderness programs are incurred preparing for your arrival. The refund policy reflects the fact that few of these expenses can be recovered.

To reserve a space in a wilderness workshop, we require the following deposit:

Up to 3 days	$50
4-7 days	$100
Over 8 days	$200

The balance of the fee is due 14 days before the program begins. If you cancel prior to 30 days before the program begins, your nonrefundable deposit may be applied to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year. If you cancel from 30 days up to the starting date of the trip, your deposit is forfeited.

October 25-27 Women's Vertical Dance: A Rock-Climbing Weekend Near Big Sur

Annie Callaway-Galland

"There is an art in finding one's direction in the lower regions by the memory of what one saw higher up. When one can no longer see, one can at least still know." – René Dumal

Rock climbing is a dance done in a vertical world, a dance of grace, balance, and simplicity. It is an opportunity for stretching limits, extending ourselves, exploring our own edges. Our responses to the challenges of climbing offer a metaphor for looking at the ways we deal with stress and challenge in our daily lives. During the day we will play on the sunny boulders and low rock faces at Pinnacles National Monument, three hours east of Esalen. We'll learn basic movements, such as how to rappel and belay, building trust in our hands and feet and each other. Safety ropes free us to experiment and to discover our inner heroes. We'll prepare our gourmet meals together over a crackling fire and camp beneath the stars, sharing insights from the day's adventure. This weekend begins Friday and ends Sunday evening at the Monterey Airport. A shuttle bus operates between the airport and Esalen, and we'll travel by van to and from the Pinnacles. No previous climbing or camping experience is necessary. Minimum equipment will be needed. Complete information will be sent upon registration. $195

November 9-15 The Northern California Trophy Trout Tour

Dick Galland

Autumn is trophy trout time on northern California's blue ribbon streams. As the days grow shorter and the nights become crisp, the fish begin to feed voraciously. The water is low and clear and we have the streams to ourselves. Normally wary brown trout move into the shallows in preparation for spawning. During this week we concentrate on the riffle water at Hat Creek and on the McCloud, where browns over twenty inches, up from Shasta Lake, are not uncommon. Much of the fishing is with nymphs and streamers, although there are often excellent mid-day mayfly hatches. If you are willing to take a chance with changeable weather in return for autumn colors, solitude, and the best chance of the season for truly large fish, the trophy trout tour is for you. $550

January 10–12
Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

Ski-touring is a state of mind, a balance of boldness and caution, and an exploration of the ever-changing winter wilderness. The Sierra Nevada becomes a silent, magical place when the snow begins to fall in November. We have the range to ourselves to glide through meadow and forest, savoring the sparkle and solitude only ski-touring affords. Touring is an easy skill to learn. After a few hours of instruction you can be ready for your first tour.

Whether you're a beginner or intermediate cross-country skier, this weekend can help perfect your technique quickly and easily. Expert instruction and the use of videotapes help you master the effortless kick-and-glide of the accomplished skier. On Saturday, we will ski on the set tracks and be taught how to move easily. Sunday, we will pack our lunch and ski-tour through gently rolling terrain, where, for those who wish, we review and teach the wedge turn and the telemark turn. Both nights we will stay in cozy cabins at Kirkwood where we can sample delicious meals and top off the day's activities in the nearby hot springs. Skis, boots, poles, lodging, and all meals are included. The trip begins Friday afternoon and ends Sunday afternoon at the airport in South Lake Tahoe. $265

February 28–March 2
Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see January 10-12 on this page. $265

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state-approved provider for continuing education for health professionals. Only those programs specifically listed below offer continuing education credit. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category 1 approval. Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Registered Nurses

October 27–November 1
Resolving Patterns of Stress
Peter Levine & Michael Salveson
30 hours

November 1–3
Anatomy for Trager Students
Deane Juhan
12 hours; C. E. credit is available through the Trager Institute.

November 22–24
The Yoga of Healing and Transformation
Sogyal Rinpoche
10 hours

December 8–15
Beginning Trager Training
Betty Fuller
30 hours

January 24–26
Anatomy for Trager Students
Deane Juhan
12 hours; C. E. credit is available through the Trager Institute

February 9–14
Craniosacral System: Basic Workshop
Jim Asher & Jane Harrington
30 hours

February 21–23
Zero-Balancing: Advanced Workshop
Fritz Smith
10 hours

Future Programs

March 2–21
Sustaining Integration: Body, Self, and Soul
Jack Rosenberg
$1595

March 2–28
Body Work, Energy Medicine, and the Natural Healing Process
Craig Carr
For more information, please write to Craig Carr, c/o Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920.
$1960

March 30–April 25
Gestalt Practice: A Practicum
Coordinated by Christine & Richard Price
For a more complete workshop description write to Christine Price, c/o Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920.
$1485

March 30–April 25
Month Long Esalen Massage Practitioner Program
Esalen Massage Practitioners
$1960

April 4–18
Spiritual/Esoteric Practice: The Key to Intuitive and Psychic Development
Anne & Jim Armstrong
$1230

April 6–20
Educating the Genius Within—The Feldenkrais Method
Harriet Goslins
$1230

May 11–June 6
Psychosynthesis Training
Harry Sloan & Elisa Lodge Schiffman
$1960

Biographical Information

A

Stephen Aizenstat, p. 12 ... clinical director of the Human Relations Institute, has conducted dream groups throughout the U.S. and recently completed a comprehensive research project on methods of dream analysis.

Diana Alstad p. 18 ... taught the first women's studies courses at Yale and Duke. She has led male/female groups with Joel Kramer in North America, Europe, and Asia.

Anne Armstrong p. 23, 26, 29, 37 ... has been doing transpersonal counseling for over 18 years and has trained professionals to use their own intuitive abilities.

Jim Armstrong, p. 23, 26, 29, 37 ... a former engineer, is a life-long student and teacher of esoteric studies.

Lauren Armstrong, p. 33 ... a bodywork practitioner since 1975, has for the last seven years worked to connect essential development with massage and Reichian breath work.

Elliot Aronson, p. 24 ... professor of psychology at the University of California, Santa Cruz, is author of 12 books, including Burnout (with Ayala Pines).

Jim Asher p. 31, 37 ... has been practicing cranial work since 1973. He is a Rolfing® teacher and an advanced Rolfer®, certified by Ida P. Rolf.

B

Nancy Bacal, p. 31 ... novelist, lyricist, and filmmaker, has taught writing workshops across the country for years. Her work includes the award-winning film "Raga," starring Ravi Shankar.

Richard Baker-roshi p. 13, 34 ... is presently abbot and head teacher of Dharma Sangha Zen Meditation and Study Center in San Francisco and Santa Fe.

Jamie Baraz p. 29 ... has taught vipassana (insight) meditation with Joseph Goldstein, Jack Kornfield, Stephen Levine, and others in the U.S. and Asia. He has led San Francisco area classes and retreats since 1977.

Robert Bathurst, p. 14, 31 ... professor, writer, former diplomat and naval officer, has specialized in Soviet literature and Soviet strategy since he was an interpreter at Camp David during the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks.

Richard Bernard p. 23 ... a graduate of Palmer Chiropractic School in Davenport, Iowa, practices craniopathy in Mill Valley, California.

Bradley Bernstein, p. 21, 22 ... a professional theater director and counselor, was trained by Viola Spolin. He has worked with groups in hospitals, schools, prisons, and community settings throughout the U.S., Canada, and Australia.

Daniel Bianchetta p. 31, 33 ... practices intuitive readings, shiatsu, and deep tissue work at Esalen. He is a teacher and student of Siddha yoga.

Jacob Blass p. 17 ... is a Los Angeles management consultant. As a former member of a spiritual group, he counsels people who have left spiritual groups.

Faustin Bray, p. 15 ... performing musician and media artist, founder of Island and Flying Machine International Mobile Schools, specializes in instigating and integrating creativity using yoga, fine arts, science, and travel.

Char Pias Brenner p. 19 ... is a dancer, singer, performing artist, and massage teacher. Since joining the Esalen community in 1977, she has worked with family care and healing arts and rituals.

Jessica Moore Britt, p. 10, 19, 23, 26, 33 ... coordinator of Esalen in-house programming, is a practitioner of gestalt, Reichian, and wilderness approaches to healing and essential development.

Charles Brooks, p. 22 ... author of Sensory Awareness, the Rediscovery of Experiencing, has been a teacher of sensory awareness since 1963, often in conjunction with Charlotte Selver.

C

Annie Callaway-Galland, p. 21, 29, 32, 36, 37 ... professional wilderness guide, family counselor, and hatha yoga teacher, has been leading Esalen trips for many years.

John Caple p. 19, 28 ... is a corporate board chairman who leads workshops on leadership for managers and college students.

Fritjof Capra p. 17 ... is author of The Tao of Physics and The Turning Point, and co-author, with Charlene Spretnak, of Green Politics.

Craig Carr p. 37 ... is a licensed acupuncturist, certified zero-balancer, and Esalen deep-tissue practitioner, working in Big Sur, and Monterey, California.

Paul Carter, p. 20 ... co-founder and director of Meta-Education and Training Arts since 1976, leads workshops in the U.S. and Europe in Ericksonian hypnosis, creativity, and learning.

Seymour Carter, p. 15, 23, 26, 33 ... longtime gestalt teacher at Esalen and in Europe, brings to his work studies in sensory awareness, Zen Buddhism, aikido, and other body-oriented practices.

Michell Cassou p. 14, 26 ... is the founder of an original approach to painting designed to stimulate and unblock creativity. She is director of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Stanford Eugene Cates p. 26, 31 ... works and trains with Paul Rebillot, assisting and co-leading groups. He has trained in Trager psychophysical integration, and is a minister.

Ann Christie p. 30 ... received a primal certificate while training with Arthur Janov and is a specialist in Ericksonian hypnosis in private practice in Los Angeles.

Jack Cirie p. 31 ... is a certified Leonard Energy Training instructor and aikido practitioner, and an experienced leader of workshops on conflict resolution, body awareness, and performance.

D

E

F

G

H

Didi Conn ..... starred in the Movies You Light Up My Life and Grease (I & II), and was featured regularly in the TV series, Benson.
p. 21

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, ... a professional dancer and teacher of movement, has studied and performed ballet, modern jazz, Afro-Cuban, and primitive dance in New York and the West Indies.
p. 32, 34

Stewart Cubley, ... artist and scientist, is a co-founder of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.
p. 14, 26

Dale Cummings, ... certified Radix® teacher and counselor in private practice in West Los Angeles, is director of first-year training for the Radix Institute at Ojai.
p. 13

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita), ... a certified Radix® teacher on the Esalen faculty, has 12 years of experience combining Reichian body work, gestalt, Bates vision work, movement, and meditation in group and private instruction.
p. 22, 24, 33

Patrick Douce, ... a resident at Esalen since 1972, teaches ongoing classes in Feldenkrais awareness-through-movement and is available for individual sessions in functional integration.
p. 26

Jack Downing ..... is a psychiatrist with a comprehensive background in gestalt, Rolfing®, Arica, applied kinesiology, and neurolinguistic programming.
p. 22

Werner Erhard ..... is the founder of a body of work which provides an approach to being, through a distinctive method of inquiry.
p. 20

David Feinstein, ... a psychologist, is director of Innersource in Ashland, Oregon, and has taught at Antioch College and the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.
p. 28

Gordon Feller, ... author of Peace and World Order Studies and Between Two Worlds, has headed global security organizations for over a decade.
p. 19

Richard Feynman ..... has been a professor of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology since 1950 and has received many awards for his contributions to quantum theory.
p. 15

Steve Fields, ... director of Progress Foundation, has developed and advocated alternatives to institutional psychiatric treatment for 15 years.
p. 21

Neil Fiore, ... a licensed psychologist practicing hypnosis, is working on the effects of stress and anxiety on performance and health.
p. 15

John Franklin, ... founding director of the Fathers' Center, Pennsylvania, is an individual and family counselor using a psychosynthesis and psycho-spiritual model.
p. 18

Joyce Frazee, ... gestalt and dream work practitioner in Vancouver, Canada, for 14 years, has training in Jungian dream analysis, bioenergetics, and group process.
p. 18

Marty Fromm ..... trained with Fritz Perls for three years. Some aspects of their relationship are described in In and Out the Garbage Pail.
p. 26

Betty Fuller, ... director of Trager Institute and instructor of Trager psychophysical integration and Mentastics , is a certified practitioner of Feldenkrais awareness-through-movement and functional integration.
p. 25, 37

Dick Galland, ... professional wilderness guide and fly fishing instructor, was founding director of Southwest Outward Bound and currently heads Clearwater Trout Tours. He has led Esalen trips for many years.
p. 22, 29, 32, 36, 37

Merri Goldenson (Devarani) ..... is a chiropractor, certified Radix® teacher, Bates vision instructor, and is in private practice in Los Angeles and San Francisco.
p. 24, 31

Joe D. Goldstrich, ... author of The Best Chance Diet, cardiologist, and past medical director of the Pritikin Longevity Center, currently practices homeopathy in Pacific Palisades, California.
p. 12, 28

Annette Goodheart, ... a licensed marriage, family, and child counselor and educator, has led workshops on laughter, aging, relationships, sex, and sensuality. As a painter she has had numerous private gallery exhibitions.
p. 19

Harriet Goslins ..... is a Feldenkrais practitioner and an awareness-through-movement teacher with a background in psychosynthesis and applied kinesiology.
p. 17, 37

André Gregory ..... is a theater director, actor, teacher, and author, featured in My Dinner With André. He has been married 26 years and has two children.
p. 18

Christina Grof ..... studied with Swami Muktananda and has a special interest in the relationship between mysticism and psychosis. She is founder of the Spiritual Emergency Network and co-author of Beyond Death.
p. 21, 24, 26, 34

Stanislav Grof ..... is a psychiatrist with almost three decades experience in consciousness research with and without psychedelics. He is author of Realms of the Human Unconscious and LSD Psychotherapy.
p. 21, 24, 26, 34

Richard Gunther, ... a business entrepreneur, has for 25 years studied the problems and possibilities of mid-life, and is co-author of Who Needs Mid-Life at Your Age?
p. 30

Joan Halifax, ... author of Shamanic Voices and Shaman the Wounded Healer, teaches in Europe, Mexico, and the U.S., and is director of the Ojai Foundation.
p. 13

Anna Halprin, ... founder of the San Francisco Dancers' Workshop and co-founder and teacher at the Tamalpa Training Institute in Marin County, is the author of Movement Ritual I and Collected Writings.
p. 14

Daria Halprin-Khalighi ..... is a gestalt movement facilitator and is co-founder and teacher at the Tamalpa Institute in Marin County.
p. 14

Betsy Hand, ... former resident staff member of the Gestalt Institute of Canada, has 20 years experience with families, couples, and groups. She is in private practice in Kentfield, California.
p. 16, 31

Thomas Hanna ..... is director of the Navato Institute for Somatic Research and Training, editor of Somatics magazine, and author of The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt.
p. 30

Keith Harary, ... a psychologist who has been conducting psi research as a scientist and remote viewer for over 15 years, is co-author of The Mind Race.
p. 31

Michael Harner, ... an anthropologist who has studied shamanism among South and North American Indians for more than two decades, is the author of The Way of the Shaman and Hallucinogens and Shamanism.
p. 34

Steven Harper ..... teaches for Colorado Outward Bound and the National Outdoor Leadership School, and is currently the coordinator of the Esalen Wilderness Programs.
p. 11, 17, 20

Susan Harper ..... teaches Continuum Dance Meditation workshops in Los Angeles and San Francisco, leads "Dance the River" trips on wild rivers, and has presented at the Joy-Spangler Asilomar Conference.
p. 32, 34

Jane Harrington ..... holds a masters degree from Lone Mountain College and is a certified Rolf® -movement teacher with extensive craniosacral experience.
p. 31, 37

Robert Hoffman ..... is founder of Hoffman Quadrenity Process, and author of No One Is to Blame.
p. 22

Maria Holloman ..... has studied gestalt and deep tissue and practiced spiritual massage at Esalen for the last five years. She was formerly a lawyer in Brazil.
p. 12, 24

Perry Holloman, ... a former teacher at Gazebo school, currently is a member of both Experiencing Esalen and Gazebo workshop staffs.
p. 12, 24

Laszlo Honti, ... president of the Hungarian Humanistic Psychology Association, focuses his work on the development of East-West communication.
p. 15

Peggy Morrison Horan ..... is an Esalen masseuse and teacher, and coordinator of the Esalen Childbirth Education Program.
p. 17, 22, 26

Paul Horn ..... is a flutist, jazz musician, creator of the Inside albums, philosopher, and teacher of meditation.
p. 17, 28, 29

Chungliang Al Huang ..... is a T'ai Ji dancer, artist-calligrapher, and philosophical entertainer. He is founder / president of Living Tao Foundation, Urbana, Illinois.
p. 28, 29

Cecelia Hurwich ..... is a holistic psychologist with a background in art and movement. She is the author of Vital Women in Their 70s and 80s.
p. 21

J

Karen Johnson ..... is co-founder of the Ridhwan Institute, a work school dedicated to the discovery, development, and preservation of the human essence.
p. 29

Andrea Juhan ..... is an Esalen deep tissue and massage practitioner, leads movement exploration classes for various group leaders, and conducts Esalen community classes in stretch exercises, aerobics, and dance.
p. 13, 33

Deane Juhan, ... a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years, is a certified practitioner of Trager psychophysical integration.
p. 21, 29, 37

K

Fred Kalmus, ... co-founder of the Alternative Choice Counseling Program, leads workshops in stress management for corporations and individuals.
p. 24, 31

Kenneth Kelzer ..... works as a transpersonal educator and counselor in California. Using dreamwork, he has been conducting classes and groups for over 10 years.
p. 28

George King, ... a massage practitioner for 22 years, has worked throughout the U.S., Europe, and South America.
p. 20, 26, 31

Joel Kirsch ..... is former sports psychologist for the San Francisco Giants baseball team, and co-founder of Kirsch Associates.
p. 15

Susan Kirsch ..... is a founding member of the Energy Training Institute, president of Kirsch Associates, a management training firm, and an instructor at Golden Gate University, San Francisco.
p. 15

Joel Kramer, ... a Western master of physical and mental yoga, has taught with Diana Alstad throughout the world on the evolution of awareness and male / female relationships.
p. 18

Stanley Krippner, ... psychologist, researcher, and director of Saybrook Institute's Center for Consciousness Studies, authored / co-authored Human Possibilities, Realms of Healing, and Dream Telepathy.
p. 28

L

Stephen LaBerge ..... is a scientist dedicated to the transformation of human consciousness. He teaches and does research at Stanford University on conscious or "lucid" dreaming.
p. 28

Jeannie Lagle, ... a clinical psychologist in private practice and consultant for the Psychical Research Foundation, is trained in biofeedback and hypnosis.
p. 24

Neil Lamper, ... longtime university professor and gestalt teacher for over 20 years, is currently working in Philadelphia, Toronto, and on a Michigan farm. Current teachers are his five granddaughters.
p. 33

Pat Lamper ..... is a counselor and teacher, co-founder and director of Farm Center in Michigan and extended staff member of Gazebo.
p. 33

Benj Langdon, ... former coordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body, is currently exploring transformation through body practices.
p. 30, 33

Janet Lederman, ... creator of the Gazebo school and philosophy, is an educational consultant to corporations concerned with child care facilities.
p. 15

Lenore Lefer, ... currently maintaining a private practice in San Francisco, is on the training staff of the Psychosynthesis Institutes of London and San Francisco.
p. 32

Dub Leigh ..... was trained by Ida Rolf and Moshe Feldenkrais, and is currently studying with Tanouye Tenshin-roshi at Hawaii Zen Center.
p. 24

Ralph Leighton ..... has taught math for many years, and, combining this talent with an interest in ethnic music, he has developed considerable facility in creating rhythms.
p. 15

Diane Miller Lesty ..... has been a resident Esalen gestalt and Halprin movement facilitator and massage staff member for the past 10 years.
p. 26

Bill Liles, ... member of the Esalen body work team since 1972, practices and teaches polarity bodywork through the form of Esalen massage. His interests include backpacking, wilderness, and natural history.
p. 19, 20, 22, 23

Jesse Longacre ..... is a naturalist, specializing in the uses of plants, seaweeds, and mushrooms. He now teaches at the California School of Herbal Studies.
p. 32

Francis Lu, ... with a background in gestalt, psychosynthesis, and transpersonal psychology, is assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of California, San Francisco.
p. 18

Nancy Kaye Lunney ..... is a gestaltist and musician on Esalen's faculty, has specialized in work with professionals in the creative arts, does individual as well as group work, and is manager of programming at Esalen.
p. 14, 21

M

Jacqueline Mandell ..... is a meditation teacher who leads retreats and workshops in the U.S., Canada, and Europe, and is currently writing a book on spirituality.
p. 30

John Marks ..... is director of Search for Common Ground in Washington, D.C., fellow of Harvard's Institute of Politics, and associate of Harvard's Department of Psychology and Social Relations.
p. 31

Gena Mayer, ... MFCC, is in private practice in San Jose and San Francisco. She holds an adjunct certificate as a Radix® teacher.
p. 13

Nancy Mayer ..... is the author of The Male Mid-Life Crisis: Fresh Starts After 40, and has been practicing the art of journal writing for 15 years.
p. 29

Deborah Anne Medow, ... Esalen group leader and body work practitioner since 1969, teaches ashtanga yoga, massage, creative movement, gestalt awareness, and related healing disciplines throughout the U.S. and Europe.
p. 10, 13, 14, 15, 24, 26, 31, 32, 33

Ailish Mellard, ... holistic health practitioner and body worker for 12 years, is currently organizational consultant for Will Schutz Associates, which teaches human potential concepts for various organizations.
p. 14, 30

Donald Michael ..... is author of On Learning to Plan and Planning to Learn and professor emeritus in planning and public policy at the University of Michigan.
p. 14

Darlene Moore ..... is a writer who is currently authoring a science fiction novel about psychic experiences, and co-authoring The Psychology of Psychic Experiences with Keith Harary.
p. 31

Tom Morelli ..... is a psychiatrist in private practice and a director of The International Zen Dojo. He is a student of Tanouye Tenshin-roshi.
p. 24

Laurie Muller (Lioness), ... a member of the Esalen massage crew and teaching staff since 1974, integrates traditional and innovative approaches to healing the body, mind, and spirit.
p. 26

Arthur Eric Munyer ..... is a teacher and practitioner on the Esalen massage crew and was one of the first faculty members at Gazebo school.
p. 19, 30, 32

Jezariah Canyon Munyer, ... born February 11, 1983, is his parents' favorite teacher.
p. 19, 30

Laurie Schutz Munyer, ... a long-time Esalen resident and former staff member, has worked at Gazebo school and is a practitioner and teacher of Esalen massage.
p. 19, 30

O

Brita Ostrom, ... a long-time Esalen massage practitioner, incorporates Trager training with the personal energetic connection of the Esalen massage.
p. 23, 29

P

Helen Palmer, ... a clairvoyant counselor, directs the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition. Her approach uses personality issues as access points to psychic perception and the inner life.
p. 13, 17, 30, 31

Wendy Palmer, ... a teacher and director of the Lomi School, holds a black belt in aikido and is co-founder of the Tamalpais Aikido and International Movement Arts Center.
p. 17, 30

Leslie Pam, ... president of the Los Angeles chapter of Marriage and Family Counselors and a former director of The Primal Institute, specializes in Ericksonian hypnosis in private practice in Los Angeles.
p. 30

Jane Parsons ..... was facilitator in individual, group, and family practice in the department of psychiatry at Mount Sinai Hospital for 12 years, and is in private practice in New York City.
p. 18

Marianne Paschke-Carter ..... combines movement, hypnosis, conscious breathing, and Trager psychophysical integration in her work with individuals, families, and groups.
p. 20

Hector Prestera, ... a physician, acupuncturist, Rolfer®, certified neurolinguistic trainer, and practitioner of Ericksonian work, is in private practice in Monterey, CA.
p. 32

Richard Price ..... is the co-founder of Esalen and has been practicing gestalt as a facilitator for over 12 years.
p. 37

Christine Price ..... combines gestalt awareness with creative visualization. She is a born-again pagan (Paganism: religion of the earth).
p. 10, 37

Lee Pulos ..... is a clinical psychologist whose career has ranged from traditional clinical practice in hypnosis to his current interests in gathering cross-cultural data on paranormal healing.
p. 16

R

Paul Rebillot ..... was founding director of the Gestalt Fool Theater Family in San Francisco and has been a resident group leader at Esalen.
p. 26, 30, 31, 32, 34

Tracey Rich ..... is a director of the White Lotus Yoga Retreat in Santa Barbara and leads seminars nationally.
p. 16

Sogyal Rinpoche, ... Tibetan incarnate lama, scholar, and meditation master, was raised by Buddhist master Jamyang Khyentse Chokyi Lodro, and studied at Cambridge University.
p. 23, 37

Rita Rohen, ... an international group leader and body worker, has recently traveled to and led workshops in Japan and Nepal. Her background includes family work and organizational development.
p. 16

William Roll ..... is research director at the Psychical Research Foundation, Chapel Hill, N. C. He is a lay Zen monk affiliated with Dai Bosatsu Zendo, N. Y.
p. 24

Jack Rosenberg, ... author of Total Orgasm, has trained in gestalt and Reichian work. He has worked with cancer research and transformation of consciousness, and is currently in private practice in Venice, CA.
p. 13, 21, 34, 37

Ilana Rubenfeld ..... is the originator of her own integration called "gestalt synergy." She trained with Fritz and Laura Perls and Moshe Feldenkrais, and is on the faculty of New York University.
p. 27

S

Mike Sayama ..... has trained for 10 years under Tanouye Tenshin-roshi. He is a counselor and the author of Samadhi, Zen Training for Self Development.
p. 24

Robert Sayers, ... developmental psychologist, educator, and founder of the Nurtury Family Institute, is author of Fathering: It's Not the Same.
p. 18

David Schiffman, ... a long-time group leader at Esalen, is involved in developing full expression of mental, physical, and spiritual states of being.
p. 16, 19, 21, 23, 27, 28, 30, 32

Elisa Lodge Schiffman ..... trained in structural integration with Ida Rolf and is an advanced teacher of Rolf®-movement integration.
p. 16, 19, 21, 22, 23, 27, 28, 30, 32, 37

Will Schutz, ... founder of the Antioch holistic studies department, is the creator of The Human Element, a set of training materials for organizations, and author of Joy and Profound Simplicity.
p. 14, 30, 34

Alan Schwartz, ... long-time Esalen group leader, college professor, and gestaltist, is completing his book, Systemics: The Art & Science of the Human Energy System.
p. 27

Charlotte Selver ..... teaches sensory awareness, perception, and non-verbal and verbal communication. A center has been built for her long-term study groups at Green Gulch Farm through the Zen Center, San Francisco.
p. 22

Phyllis Shankman, ... a licensed counselor in private practice in West Los Angeles, specializes in group process, and is interested in self-acceptance and change.
p. 23

David Shire ..... won an Oscar for his song "Norma Rae," and has written numerous film scores, as well as the music for the Tony-nominated Broadway show Baby.
p. 21

Leonard Shlain, ... a practicing surgeon in San Francisco, is an educator who has lectured on the twin endeavors of art and physics.
p. 21

Harry Sloan, ... a 1969 Esalen resident fellow, former dentist, and playwright, worked with Roberto Assagioli, the founder of psychosynthesis, and is in private practice in San Francisco.
p. 16, 25, 32, 37

Fritz Smith ..... is a physician, cranial osteopath, certified acupuncturist, and founder of zero balancing. He is in a private holistic health practice in Watsonville, California.
p. 32, 37

Gerald Smith ..... is a psychologist in Belmont, California. He is the author of Hidden Meanings and Couple Therapy.
p. 16, 31

John Soper ..... came to gestalt from a highly successful international career in business. Resident at Esalen since 1978, he practices both interpersonal and intrapersonal gestalt.
p. 10, 34

Charlene Spretnak ..... is author of Lost Goddesses of Early Greece, editor of The Politics of Women's Spirituality, and co-author, with Fritjof Capra, of Green Politics.
p. 17

Starhawk, ... a feminist and peace activist, is a counselor in private practice in San Francisco, and a teacher of the European goddess tradition, often called witchcraft.
p. 18

Brother David Steindl-Rast, ... Benedictine monk, hermit, psychologist, and author, has lectured on all five continents. He is concerned with the spiritual challenges of our time.
p. 29

Elizabeth Stratton, ... a psychic healer and counselor in private practice in New York City, leads workshops in self-healing, psychic self-defense, and psychic development for health professionals.
p. 27

T

Lawrence Telles ..... trained as an academic philosopher, and has directed psychosocial rehabilitation programs since 1976.
p. 21

Mary Tesoro ..... is a certified Leonard Energy Training (LET) instructor, writer, and aikido practitioner, whose work embraces issues of human health, potential, and peak performance.
p. 26

Gabriel Thompson ..... is in private practice in Palo Alto. The focus of her work is on the development of the self and the sense of identity. She has given workshops in Australia, New Zealand, and Europe.
p. 24

Lia Thompson ..... has been a Gazebo teacher for six years. She is currently a co-ordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body workshop staff and a member of the Gazebo workshop staff.
p. 10

Vicki Topp, ... Esalen massage staff member since 1968, teaches soft and sensitive use of pressure point and deep tissue massage combined with emotional and transpersonal body practices.
p. 15, 17, 29

U

Dana Ullman, p. 16 ... co-author of Everybody's Guide to Homeopathic Medicines, is an educator, publisher, practitioner, and public policy advisor specializing in homeopathy, alternative health-care, and self-care.

W

Gerrit Verschuur p. 24 ... is a radio astronomer, writer, and former planetarium director who has published a hundred popular and technical articles and five books on astronomy.

Brian Wallace p. 15 ... is an international musician, composer, and media artist noted for creating a dramatic environment. He has performed solo and in companies for 20 years.

Judyth Weaver, p. 15, 29 ... a Reichian counselor, certified teacher of t'ai chi ch'uan, and student of Buddhism and Taoism, holds a doctorate in psychology and teaches at the California Institute of Integral Studies.

Ganga White, p. 16 ... an internationally known teacher and master of yoga, is author of Double Yoga and has received the titles "Yogacharya" and "Yogiraj" (King of Yogis) in India.

Rickie Wolf, p. 26 ... director of the Tokyo Gestalt Institute, is a research fellow in psychosomatic medicine at the University of Tokyo. She is a professional clown and storyteller.

Y

Reuho Yamada p. 12 ... is head priest of Choshoji, a Zen temple in Beppu, Japan. He taught and practiced Zen and Zen shiatsu in California for eight years.

Shirley Yamada p. 12 ... is managing director of Choshoji, a Zen temple in Beppu, and is the first American woman to function in this capacity in Japan.

Z

Janet Zuckerman p. 12, 24 ... was an emotional release and group process teacher at Esalen for 12 years. She has a private practice in San Francisco.

Catalog Subscription Information

The Esalen Catalog is published triannually. Subscription cost for one year is $10 for the United States, $12 for Canada and Mexico, $16 for Europe and South America, and $18 for all other countries. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

☐ To obtain future issues of the Esalen Catalog for one year, please send a check or money order in U.S. currency drawn on a U.S. bank only to: Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920. A pre-addressed envelope is included in this catalog for your convenience.
(Note: People who attend an Esalen workshop or conference will receive a free subscription for one year.)

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ Please send a complimentary copy of the Esalen Catalog to the person listed below:

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Please notify us if you change your address and check here ☐ if you are receiving duplicates of the catalog.

Friends of Esalen

We invite you to join us in our organization—Friends of Esalen.

Friends of Esalen provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

We believe that one of our first priorities is to make our programs available on a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions to fund such scholarships.

In addition to knowing that you have given someone else the opportunity to experience Esalen, you will receive the Esalen Catalog for one year. We hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the sharing and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

☐ I wish to become a Friend of Esalen and I enclose my check for the category circled.

☐ I wish to renew my membership in Friends of Esalen.

One Year Student	$15	One Year Donor	$50	One Year Patron	$500
One Year Individual	$25	One Year Sponsor	$100	(Contributions are tax-deductible)

Name _____ Student Affiliation _____

Street _____

City, State _____ Zip Code _____ Date _____

Please mail to: Friends of Esalen, Big Sur, California 93920

Audio Recordings

The Dolphin Tape Series

The human potential movement generates unusual events which produce unusual recordings. Each issue of the Esalen Catalog lists new titles and also a few from the Big Sur Recordings archives. Nearly all tapes are stereo, from live events, and tape length is normally 1 to 1½ hours.

Single-tape titles are $10 with prepayment (purchase orders add $1 per tape):

Joseph Campbell: The Hero's Journey (80th year), 1984
Paul Rebillot: The Pluto Story: Journey into Madness, 1984
Robert Anton Wilson: The I in the Triangle, 1984
Richard Feynman: Tiny Machines, 1984
Terence McKenna: Scenario for a Psychedelic Society, 1984

Julian Silverman: A Light Hearted Course in Miracles, 1984
Daniel Ellsberg: The Policy Catastrophe, 1982
Anna Halprin: Peace Meditation, 1983
Sogyal Rinpoche: Technologies of the Sacred, 1984

Stanley Krippner: Multiple Personality Disorder, 1983
Paul Rebillot: Conflicts at the Ego Frontier, 1983

Jule Eisenbud: Psi Experience in Psychotherapy, 1984
Jan Ehrenwald: Psi Experience and the Bergsonian Filter, 1984
Charles Tart: Our Fear of Psychic Abilities, 1984

Terence McKenna: Mind, Molecules and Magic, 1984
Dennis McKenna: Activity of Ayahuasca and Oo-Koey, 1984
Richard Yensen: The Use of LSD in Psychotherapy, 1984

Sogyal Rinpoche: Interview on Death and Dying, 1982
Christina Grof: Kundalini Awakening and Spiritual Emergency, 1981
Jack Kornfield: Simplicity of Spiritual Practice, 1982

Robert Anton Wilson: The Prism Lecture (Santa Cruz), 1982
Terence McKenna: New and Old Maps of Hyperspace, 1982
Albert Hofmann: LSD and the Nature of Reality, 1978

Robert Bly: The Six Powers of Poetry, 1983
Ram Dass: Involvement With Life, 1974
Anne Armstrong: On Being a Psychic, 1971

Reb Anderson: Entry Into Buddhist Meditation, 1984
Reb Anderson: Basic Points of Buddhist Meditation, 1984

Henry Munn: Mushrooms and Culture, 1977
Henry Munn: Fable of the Vision Drink, 1977

Alan Watts: Divine Madness, 1968
Fritz Perls: Dream Theory and Demonstration, 1968
Carl Rogers: The Intensive Group, 1966
Abraham Maslow: Self-Actualization, 1966
Aldous Huxley: Human Potentialities, 1962

Two-tape titles are $18 with prepayment (purchase order price is $20):

David Finkelstein: (2) Ancient, Medieval and Classical Physics, 1984
Father Bede Griffiths: (2) Convergence of Religions, 1983
Frank Barr: (2) History of Philosophy, 1983

Ralph Metzner: (2) Varieties of Human Transformation, 1984
Jean Houston: (2) The Possible Human (Boston ATP Conference), 1979
Stanislav Grof: (2) Geometry of Psychopathology, 1984
Stan & Christina Grof: (2) Holonomic Consciousness Paradigm, 1982

Andrew Weil: (2) Use and Abuse of Beneficial Plants, 1982
Andrew Weil: (2) Interplay of Mind and Body Realities, 1982

Ilana Rubenfeld: (2) Gestalt Synergy Method, 1982
Charlotte Selver/Charles Brooks: (2) Sensory Awareness, 1980-1982
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Story of Basque Mysticism, 1982
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Egyptian Tarot, 1982

Ram Dass: (2) One Man's Journey to the East, 1968
Wilson Van Dusen: (2) Interviewed by Michael Murphy, 1963
Fritz Perls: (2) Neurosis, Psychosis and Dreams, 1968
Joseph Campbell: (2) Myths of Alienation and Rapture, 1970
Joseph Chilton Pearce: (2) The Magical Child, 1975

Four-tape titles are $36 with prepayment (purchase order price is $40):

Father Bede Griffiths: (4) Return to the Center (The Ojai Series), 1983
David Steindl-Rast: (4) Health and the Christian Myths, 1984
Donald Keys: (4) Personal Growth and Social Change, 1982

Jack Kornfield: (4) Buddhist Meditation and Practice, 1981
Joseph Campbell: (4) Imagery in the Novels of James Joyce, 1968
Jack Rosenberg: (4) A New Understanding of Relationships, 1982
James Fadiman: (4) A Weekend of Stories, 1984

Rollo May: (4) The F. Scott Fitzgerald Myth and Your Own, 1982
Theodore Roszak: (4) The Unfinished Animal, 1982
Anne & Jim Armstrong: (4) A Psychic Training Program, 1981
Anne & Jim Armstrong: (4) Thoughts and Meditations, 1984

The Dolphin Vinyl Album Sets

Joseph Campbell: (6) Courtly Love and The Grail, 1983	$60
Robert Anton Wilson: (6) Seminar on the I in the Triangle, 1984	$60
Robert Bly & Angeles Arrien: (6) Love in the Western World, 1984	$60
Entheogens: (6) The Spiritual Psychedelics (The Santa Barbara Conference), 1983	$60
Andrew Weil: (6) Integrated Consciousness and Health (The Mann Ranch), 1976	$60
Julian Silverman: (6) Further Commentaries on A Course in Miracles, 1981	$60
Ken Dychtwald: (6) Bodymind Health, Longevity, and Optimal Performance, 1981	$60
Fritz Perls: (6) The Perls Encounter: A Complete Weekend, 1968	$60
Ruthy Alon: (6) The Feldenkrais Method—Series I	$60
Ruthy Alon: (6) The Feldenkrais Method—Series II	$60
Moshe Feldenkrais: (6) Awareness Through Movement—Series I	$72
Julian Silverman: (8) Commentaries on A Course in Miracles, 1980	$72
Jack Rosenberg: (8) Sustained Integration: Body, Self, and Soul, 1981	$72
Faces of the Enemy: (8) The San Francisco Symposium, 1983	$72
Terence McKenna: (8) True Hallucinations: A Talking Book, 1984 (The Amazon Experience)	$80
Buckminster Fuller: (8) The Pajaro Dunes Tapes: A Weekend Seminar, 1977	$80
Joseph Campbell: (10) World Mythology and the Individual Adventure, 1969	$88
Gregory Bateson: (12) The Informal Esalen Lectures 1975-1980 (Library Archives)	$98

Please add $2 to your complete order for handling and mailing, plus $2 for mailing each vinyl album set ($4 if you wish priority mail). California residents include 6% tax. (Institutional purchase orders please add 10% to album cost unless check is enclosed.) Please mail your order with check payable to: DOLPHIN TAPES, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, California 93920.

The tapes listed on this page are not necessarily Esalen-owned or Esalen-related. They are produced by a private company, Dolphin Tapes. They are presented here as an advertisement. Esalen assumes no responsibility for the product.

You may send for a more complete list of available tapes by addressing your inquiry to: Esalen Tape Series (Attention: Paul B. Herbert), Esalen Institute, Big Sur, California 93920.

The Media Center

Esalen Videotape

This 18-minute videotape, which tells Esalen's story from its early history to the present, is an inexpensive way to view the general offerings available at Esalen. The visuals consist of 130 color slides featuring scenes of the Big Sur coast, Esalen's garden, grounds, and various workshops and activities. The musical soundtrack is by Paul Horn, Joel Andrews, and "Pinchey Pete" Velasquez.

Cost: For Rent:

½" VHS color video cassette ..... per week $10.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette ..... per week $15.00

Cost: For Sale:

½" VHS color video cassette $35.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette $40.00

This program is available for purchase in its original form—a two-projector slide dissolve show which can also be viewed with a single projector.

Cost: For Sale:
Slide Program—including 130 slides, cassette tape, and script (pulsed tape for Entré 7610 dissolve unit available on request)..... $150.00

Please address your order (with a check payable to Esalen Institute): Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. A $10 deposit is required on all rental tapes; please send a separate deposit check. California residents add 6% sales tax for sale purchases. Overseas air mail orders please add additional postage: each slide program $10 ($15 for Australia and Asia), each video cassette $7.

Films

Films of the work of Fritz Perls, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Rollo May, Virginia Satir, Alexander Lowen, and others, are available from Psychological Films, 110 North Wheeler Street, Orange, California 92669. For color documentaries with Alan Watts, Huston Smith, Lama Govinda, Joseph Campbell, Edgar Mitchell, Margaret Mead, and others, write Hartley Productions, Cat Rock Road, Cos Cob, Connecticut 06807. A film or video cassette on Chungliang Al Huang's work, entitled Tai Chi: The Watercourse Way, is available through KLB Productions, 490 Redwood Road, Corralitos, California 95076. Regarding the documentary on Gregory Bateson, send inquiries also to KLB Productions at the above address. Recent color videotapes of Stephen Levine and Ram Dass on "Conscious Living/Conscious Dying," and of Daniel Ellsberg, Helen Caldicott, and others on the nuclear issue are available from Original Face Video, Box 447, Grass Valley, Ca. 95945.

David Nelson

General Information

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esselen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute-By Reservation Only.

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop, for phone numbers of other guests coming from your area.

Reservation Information: In order to reserve a space in any workshop we require a reservation fee of $50 for weekend groups, $100 for five-day groups, $150 for seven-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups, payable in U.S. currency only. Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks. Balance of payment is due on arrival. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year of receipt. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

Please mail all reservations to:
Reservations, Esalen Institute
Big Sur, CA 93920

We are able to process mail reservations more effectively. If you are concerned about workshops being full or have any questions, you may make reservations by phone if you use your MasterCard, Visa, or American Express credit card number to charge your reservation fee.

Phone (408) 667-2335
Office Hours:
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

If there is no answer during our regular business hours, and the phone company confirms that our phones are out of order, please call our alternate number (408) 372-8719, for recorded up-to-date workshop, road, and transportation information.

Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Check-out time is noon of departure day. Rooms become available at 4 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive any time after lunch.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Gazebo School: Any requests for child care should be sent at least one month in advance, to Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Senior Citizens' Discount Information: Esalen offers a special discount to individuals over 60 years of age. The discount for a weekend workshop is $25, and a five-day is $50. Discounts are available only when you make your reservations. Please present proof of age when you register. Senior discounts are not available for Wilderness Programs.

Ongoing Residence Program: Offered from October through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are canceled, so second choices are advised. Many community programs are also open to residents. Prior to November 1, the cost is $1800 per 26 day period; November 1 and after, the cost is $1960 per 26 day period.

Health Services: We are unable to provide medical supervision or pharmaceutical supplies. If you are on a health-care program and you plan to spend several weeks at Esalen, please arrive prepared to administer to your health-care needs.

Illegal Drugs: In accordance with state and federal laws, the possession or use of illegal drugs on Esalen grounds is strictly prohibited.

Room and Board: Bed spaces not required for workshop participants are sometimes available for room and board. Accommodations are shared and the rate is $60 per person per day, which includes dinner on the day of arrival and breakfast and lunch the following day. Private rooms are sometimes available at $100 per day, or $110 per day per couple. Special family rates are available. Please phone the office for additional information, and for new rates beginning November 1.

Bus Service: We have bus service from the Monterey Greyhound station at 4:45 pm and from the Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm on Fridays and Sundays. If you plan to use this service, please inform the Esalen office at least 24 hours prior to your arrival. The charge for one-way service is $20, payable to the Esalen office when you check in. Return reservations may be made at the same time. The bus leaves Esalen at approximately 6:30 pm. Bus service to Esalen is not available at any other time.

Seminarians as Staff (Volunteers): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are requested to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff, usually in the kitchen. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Contributions to Esalen Institute are tax-deductible.

The expenses of attending Esalen, including travel, are deductible for federal income tax purposes as an educational expense if incurred to maintain or improve professional or work skills. (See Income Tax Regulation 1.162-5.)

Esalen Institute reserves the right to cancel any program at any time.

Conferences at Esalen: It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Esalen Institute Reservations

This form is for your convenience in reserving a space in Esalen workshops. In completing the form, please indicate the name, address, and telephone number of each person registering and clearly indicate the title of the workshop for which each person is reserving a place. A registration fee for each person registering and each workshop applied for must accompany this form. (See General Information, page 46.)

(Please Print)

Name _____ Sex M ☐ F ☐

Address _____

City, State _____ Zip _____ Occupation _____

Telephone Number: Home: Area Code ( ) _____ Work: Area Code ( ) _____

There are sometimes unexpected situations that may require us to contact you immediately before your stay here. If you will not be at the above numbers during the two weeks prior to the workshop, where may we reach you? If you can't be reached, please call us before your scheduled arrival for final confirmation. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

(On additional paper please repeat the above information for every person in your party making a reservation. Mail to Reservations, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920.)

Check if you want: ☐ housing as a couple, shared bed

Do you smoke? _____

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. (For further details see Ways of Being at Esalen, page 10.)

Bus Service:

I want bus service from (check one):

_____ Monterey Greyhound Bus Station at 4:45 pm

_____ Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm

on _____ (date of arrival, Fridays & Sundays only)

The $20 per person charge is payable on arrival at Esalen. If your plans for use of the bus change after you submit this reservation, please notify us. Esalen bus service is not available at any time other than as listed above.

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop, for phone numbers of other guests from your area.

Check here ☐ if you do not want us to give out your number for the purposes of ride sharing.

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Name of Person Registering	Date(s)	Leader's Name/Title of Workshop	Deposit Enclosed

Total amount enclosed: $ _____

Please make checks payable to Esalen Institute in U.S. currency only.

Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks.

Your reservation can be charged to:

MasterCard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express ☐

Card No. _____

Expiration Date _____

All workshops require nonrefundable reservation fees. See page 46. The balance of program fees becomes payable at the time of check-in.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some people, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence.
Its activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

Esalen Institute
Big Sur
California 93920
DATED MATTER

The Esalen Catalog

January-June, 1986

Contents

Volume XXV, Number 1

Audio Recordings 44–45
Big Sur Wilderness Experience 15
Biographical Information 39–43
Catalog Subscription Information 43
Conferences at Esalen 15
Esalen Seminars 16–33
Experiencing Esalen 14
Experiencing Esalen: The Body 14
Features:
Lan Ting Institute 4–8
Health Promotion Book Exhibition (Soviet-American Exchange Program) 9
On Not Getting Well Too Soon 10–11
Keith Thompson Talks with Mike Brown
Notes 12–13
Friends of Esalen 43
Future Programs 38
General Information 47
Gestalt Practice 14
Media Center 45
Medical Programs 38
Reservations Form 46
Scholarship Information 15
Special Programs 35–37
Ways of Being at Esalen 14
Wilderness Programs 38
Work Study Program and Application 34

Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920
Phone (408) 667-2335
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday
& Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

Catalog Editor: Nancy Knapp
Graphic Design: Barbara Adamson
Art Direction: Barbara Adamson
& Joyce Rogers Lyke

Contributing Editor: Keith Thompson
Consulting Editor: Nancy Kaye Lunney
Editorial Assistance: Susan McIntosh, René Oschin, Jaelitza, Daniel Robbins, Anya Kucharev, Carolyn Peck-Register
Editorial Review: George Leonard
Cover Photograph: Cynthia Johnson

Esalen Board of Trustees:
Steven Donovan
Jack Downing
Victoria Elliot
Stanislav Grof
Richard Gunther
Bokara Legendre
Nancy Kaye Lunney
Michael Murphy
Mary Payne

©1986 Esalen Institute
All Rights Reserved.

Contact is the appreciation of differences.
—Fritz Perls

. . . and the recognition of similarities . . .

LAN TING INSTITUTE

A January, 1985 meeting in China between the Chinese government and a group of Western educators produced a joint contract establishing a fine arts study center called the Lan Ting Institute.

Lan Ting Institute is located in the southern Chinese province of Fujian, at Wu Yi Mountain Scenic Reserve District, where artists and scholars have come for centuries for creative stimulation and contemplation. Deep river-cut gorges mix with cloud-shrouded mountains to produce a landscape of outstanding beauty.

Chungliang Al Huang, the President of Living Tao Foundation, is the Director of the Lan Ting Institute. Born in China, he received his training in the classic, fine, and martial arts before coming to the United States. He has developed a reputation as a master teacher, calligrapher, and dancer. Alan Watts wrote "to work with Al Huang is to learn to move with the wind and the water." Huang collaborates in seminars, workshops and performances with artists and academicians around the world.

Al Huang brings a unique vision of East/West understanding to the development of Lan Ting Institute. His excellent relationship with the Chinese government provides a fertile framework for producing successful cross-cultural events. In January, 1985, Huang was invited back to China to sign an agreement to create the Lan Ting Institute as a joint effort with the Chinese government to protect China's traditional cultural identity while absorbing Western technology. The story was front-page news in many Chinese dailies.

Lan Ting ('Orchid Pavilion') was a place where poets and calligraphers, artists and musicians of the Yung-Ho (Eternal Harmony) reign of the Jin Dynasty (353 A.D.) convened. They gathered at a favorite mountain stream to practice and share their arts. Amidst flutes and laughter, watercourse ways and their lively dance of t'ai chi and brushes, they sipped wine from goblets floating to them on lily pads . . . and examined the universe.

The Wu Yi Mountain location has its own contemplative stream, treasured by the Chinese as one of their most beautiful spots to visit and return to. Chu Hsi, the Sung Dynasty scholar-philosopher, taught and established his Institute for higher learning here. Zi Yang Academy's original foundation stones are still there. Lan Ting Institute will continue the tradition, this time for international cultural-arts exchange.

Huang hopes his institute will continue the tradition of his friend and colleague, the late

Si Chi Ko

The faculty, headed by Director Chungliang Al Huang, consisted of a select group of Chinese artists and professors from schools around the country including Xiamen and Fujian Normal Universities.

Judith Mintz

Courses in Chinese fine arts were mixed with specialty classes.

Alan Watts, a scholarly Englishman widely respected for his ability to translate Eastern mysticism into terms the Western mind could grasp.

"There has been so much destruction with all the anti-religion, anti-Confucianism, anti-Taoism. They felt the old traditions were so binding that they weren't serving people any more," Huang said during a recent interview in Los Angeles. "But now, many Chinese are looking back on all the destruction with regrets and remorse. They have twice as much incentive to really create something good."

Lan Ting Institute comes at a time when reduced government controls on religious practice have sparked what some observers see as a spiritual revival in China among Christians, Buddhists, and "followers of the Tao." Taoism, the oldest surviving religion of China, paradoxically proclaims the most ephemeral message of those three faiths. The symbol of Taoism, a black and white figure surrounded by a circular pattern of geometric shapes, stands for what Taoists believe are the two basic forces in the universe—yin, female, and represented by a dark shape and broken lines, and yang, male, and denoted by a white shape and solid lines.

Taoists hesitantly describe the Tao, or the Way, as an essentially metaphysical, eternal, all-pervading, inexhaustible and fathomless source of all things. Water—which follows the path of least resistance yet eventually wears away rock—is a popular Taoist metaphor.

Meditative martial arts, such as the soft slow-moving discipline of t'ai chi are practiced to both maintain health and get in touch with the Tao. Huang, the author of four books on t'ai chi and Taoist philosophy, teaches t'ai chi in a lighthearted, unorthodox way, combining music and modern dance with the traditional series of postures. Rejecting the meticulous detail and lengthy preparation demanded by "serious" teachers, Huang encourages his students to express themselves by growing their own t'ai chi forms.

Judith Mintz

The Wu Yi Mountain location has its own contemplative stream, treasured by the Chinese as one of their most beautiful spots to visit and return to.

This time, as Huang returns to China, it's East meets West with a twist. Last year, for example, Huang's group realized that its Chinese tour guide had never heard of Lao Tzu, the Chinese sage who reputedly wrote the Taoist classic, the Tao Te Ching, five centuries before Christ. Shocked by the guide's lack of knowledge of Chinese cultural history, members of Huang's tour group took it upon themselves to teach him the Tao Te Ching, one chapter a day.

Then there was the afternoon at Wu Yi Mountain, when Huang was brush-painting Chinese characters in the old style used before the Communist simplified the language. Huang was trying to show the Chinese how the new system, while easier to write, lost much of the beauty and subtlety of the classical form. It has "amputated the legs of the dancers." He got his message across by painting the old character for "love," which contained within it the character for the word "heart." "I wrote my character for 'love' alongside their character for 'love.' Then I just looked down on them, side by side. Suddenly, it dawned on them what had happened. They'd never realized it before. 'My gosh,' one of them said. 'We've taken the heart out of love.'"

"We are re-establishing the 3,000-year tradition of spiritual pilgrimage and higher learning at Wu Yi Mountain," said Zhang Mu-Liang, the bureau chief of Wu Yi Mountain

Judith Mintz

The Lan Ting Institute

Scenic Reserve District, whose position resembles that of the director of Yosemite National Park.

Zhang said more than a dozen of China's prominent scholars and artists have offered to be on the guest faculty. Work is already under way to renovate the Sung Dynasty School of Chu Hsi, named after a neo-Confucian scholar / philosopher who taught there for 50 years. The institute is designed to be the home of an ongoing series of cross-cultural seminars.

The inaugural study course took place from October 8-31, 1985. A group of Westerners traveled to Wu Yi Mountain to participate in special opening ceremonies. Each day there were movement meditations and classes in t'ai chi, brush calligraphy and philosophy. The faculty, headed by Director Chungliang Al Huang, consisted of a select group of Chinese artists and professors from schools around the country including Xiamen and Fujian Normal Universities. Courses in Chinese fine arts were mixed with specialty classes designed for each seminar curriculum.

Participants in this first study program could experience the excitement of China's new cross-cultural openness—a part of the dramatic change in social environment in China. An in-depth course of study is coupled with a living situation away from the normal Western tourist routes. There is tremendous enthusiasm among the Chinese for this project, and they are providing excellent support in both personnel and funding.

Lan Ting Institute has a singular opportunity to promote a new level of cultural exchange and study between Western and Eastern peoples.

The descriptions above are gleaned from material graciously shared by the Lan Ting Institute.

ON NOT GETTING WELL TOO SOON

Keith Thompson Talks with Mike Brown

In the summer of 1967, an experimental black-white encounter group convened at Esalen, led by Price Cobbs, author of Black Rage, and journalist George Leonard, in an attempt to get at the roots of the often unconscious attitudes that hold racism in place. Leonard recalls that the turn toward breakthrough occurred when several white participants began revealing themselves and group members sensed that something momentous might be possible.

What's happened to the sense of possibility that flickered in the 1960s when the Federal Civil Rights Act was signed into law? From one view, much overt racism is gone: blacks are no longer prohibited from voting, buying a home, eating in any restaurant, sitting where they want on the bus. From another view, once-obvious racism has now gone underground, becoming more subtle and insidious. Many blacks claim white America has abandoned its commitment to racial justice; many whites respond by saying blacks are asking for preferential treatment.

To explore this debate Keith Thompson interviewed Mike Brown, co-founder with Price Cobbs of the San Francisco-based Pacific Management Systems. Brown leads seminars on ways in which racial and ethnic issues manifest, particularly in corporate America. The following dialogue is excerpted from a much longer conversation.

THOMPSON: How did you get started?

BROWN: We began with the issue of race in its most immediate expressions, and only later decided to form a company. From the beginning our goal was to bring the encounter approach to bear on inter-racial situations. When we got into this work, there was no such thing as affirmative action programs. It was a time when black people and white people were barely able to talk with each other. We got started with racial consciousness work out of our own experience, our own belief systems, not as social science observers but as participants trying to come to grips with the grievous alienation between blacks and whites.

THOMPSON: Give me an example of that alienation.

BROWN: In 1969, we were asked to mediate a dispute between the police force and the black community of a northern California town. We worked in black-white pairs as facilitators, and Jack Downing, who's white and a damned good facilitator, worked with us on this one. We went to the town once a week for six to eight weeks. The black participants ranged from teenagers to middle-aged, all male. The police participants were volunteers, not assigned to attend. The first group was successful, so we scheduled a second series.

That's when things got sticky. The local police officers' association had gotten wind of the sessions, and decided to raise a little hell by insisting that since this was a training, the police officers should be considered to be on-duty, and thus required to wear their revolvers. In the first series, guns weren't an issue, weren't present. You have to remember that this was a time when there was a lot of right-wing literature going around about the parallels between something called "sensitivity training" and Communist brainwashing techniques. The police officers' association didn't like it.

THOMPSON: And I'll bet the black participants weren't too crazy about being part of an encounter group with uniformed white men wearing guns!

BROWN: You've got it. The guns quickly became an issue. Some of the black participants said, look, why don't you just lock the guns in your car trunks so we can talk? But the police participants wouldn't do that. So the black folks said, well then, why don't you give us guns too? That idea was rejected even faster.

The argument quickly grew heated. Remember, this was 1969. Martin Luther King had been murdered. American cities were burning. Black young men often wore berets, leather jackets, "Free Huey" buttons, Black Panther emblems. The moment of truth came when a young black man stood up and pointed to an officer and said: "Don't you see how intimidating it is for me to open up and be vulnerable while you're wearing a loaded gun? Can't you get that?" The police officer—without blinking—pointed back and said: "One thing you'd better realize is that I'm as intimidated by and fearful of your Black Power buttons as you are of my gun."

Now, Keith, that's a powerful statement. When I heard that, I got a deeper gut feeling for just how polarized the street scene was between blacks and police officers. If this officer was telling the truth about how he equated fear of loaded guns with fear of political badges, then if he had to stop a black kid on a street and there was any kind of disagreement, his instinct would have to be: "I've got to fight." How many times does this dynamic get played out in big city neighborhoods?

The gun issue never got resolved at the sessions. The police proposed to continue the series at the police academy, where guns were considered appropriate. The blacks said no, we agreed to do it on neutral grounds. It all just degenerated from there on.

THOMPSON: In twenty years, what's changed? Now that federal laws forbid discrimination based on race, how does the residue of overt racism manifest in the workplace?

BROWN: That's exactly the right word: residue. By the time I was 25, most of the overt discrimination was over, but racism has become more subtle, fuzzier, elusive. Sometimes I think that white America doesn't understand this shift from overt to covert racism. The tone

HEALTH PROMOTION BOOK EXHIBITION

(Soviet American Exchange Program)

In January and February of 1985, more than 1,000 American books in the health promotion field went on display in the Soviet Union. Three months later, in Los Angeles and San Francisco, over 1,000 of the latest Soviet books in health promotion were exhibited. This mutual exchange and exhibition of books on health, the first of its kind, resulted from months of intense collaboration between the Goskomizdat (State Publishing Committee) of the USSR and Esalen's Soviet-American Exchange Program.

The idea for an official exchange of health-related books was conceived by Dulce Murphy, Director of the Esalen Soviet-American Health Promotion Project. "It seemed natural to recognize that the growing body of insight and research into wellness and holistic health in the United States might be useful to the medical, psychological and athletic establishments in the Soviet Union," said Murphy. "It seemed equally clear that we Americans could benefit from the Soviet work in health promotion. The exchange of books is but one step in a continuing effort to bring together Soviet and American experts to exchange insights and experience in the fields of health and wellness."

In March of 1984, Dulce Murphy, representing Esalen, signed a protocol for the book exchange with the General Directorate of the International Book Exhibitions and Fairs of the USSR. The agreement authorized each party to select and send up to 1,000 titles in categories including: medical sciences; psychology; physical fitness and sports; diet; herbs and nutrition; maternity and child care; stress; longevity; adaptation; alternative therapies; and public health.

A delegation of American medical experts, headed by Jim Hickman, Director of Esalen's Soviet-American Exchange Program, accompanied the American books which were exhibited in Moscow from January 23-29 and in Novosibirsk, Siberia from February 4-9. The delegation members met with Soviet experts in the health and medical sciences and gave lectures and seminars to the Soviet public. Americans included Dr. John Mack, professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School; Dr. Myrin Borysenko, psychoneuroimmunologist and professor of cellular biology and anatomy at Tufts University School of Medicine; Dr. Joan Ullyot, a specialist in sports medicine and physical fitness; and Sharon Ranieri, an information specialist who served as manager of the Health Promotion Book Exhibitions.

"Forty years ago, a friendly handshake across the Elbe River united Soviet and American soldiers—victors and allies in the great battle against fascism," said Jim Hickman at a Moscow press conference opening the book fair. "Our present scientific 'handshake,' so to speak, symbolizes cooperation in another sphere of undeniable mutual interest: the field of health care."

The American exhibit in Moscow was a great success, judging from the response of Soviet participants who filled the exhibition hall and educational seminars. The Minister of Health and the Minister of Publishing attended the opening of the Moscow Exhibition, marking the first time in several years that two Soviet ministers have attended a Soviet-American cultural event.

The Soviet delegation arrived in Los Angeles on April 16, headed by Vasily Slasteonenko, Deputy Director of Goskomizdat. The delegation also included Mr. N. Furmanov, Deputy to the Head of International Relations of Gozkomizdat; Mrs. Iraida Bogatyreova, Consultant to Goskomizdat and Director of the USSR Health Promotion Book Exhibition; Professor Vladimir Kartzev, Director of Mir Publishers, the main Soviet publisher in scientific and technical fields; Professor Aron Belkin, Head of the Department of Psychoneuroendocrinology at the Moscow Institute of Psychiatry and Head of the National Center for Psychoneuroendocrinology Research; Professor Alexander Vishnevsky, Deputy Science Director of the Vishnevsky Institute of Surgery at the Soviet Academy of Medical Sciences and head of National Research in Lung Surgery; and Dr. Yuri Lisitsin, Corresponding Member of the Academy of Medical Sciences and Director of Meditsina Publishing House.

After a four-day exhibition of Soviet titles at UCLA attended by hundreds of Southern Californians, the Soviet delegation traveled to San Francisco, where the books were on display at Fort Mason. The soviets were officially welcomed to Los Angeles by Mayor Tom Bradley, and to San Francisco by City Supervisor Louise Renne. In both cities various members of the visiting delegation were on hand for discussion and questions. En route from Los Angeles to San Francisco, delegation members made appearances in Santa Barbara, at Ojai Foundation, and at Esalen.

The signing of the book fair agreement represented the culmination of more than four years of research by Dulce Murphy on preventive medicine in the Soviet Union.

Studies by both American and Soviet researchers have shown that fitness and health contribute to higher worker motivation, higher productivity and less absenteeism. The psychological benefits that most fitness enthusiasts claim to derive from regular training include increased self-esteem and self-confidence, increased ability to tolerate stress, and a general improvement in the quality of life.

"In the light of these discoveries, many corporations in the U.S., Japan and Western Europe have instituted health programs for their employees," Murphy states. "Our project will bring fitness and health promotion experts from the corporate community together with Soviet managers to exchange insights and experience in these fields."

With the first book exchange completed, members of the Health Promotion Project are turning their attention to other ongoing tasks:

- An exchange of literature between the appropriate organizations in health-related fields. This will include the collection of scientific evidence for high-level human functioning that has been collected by Esalen Transformation Project Archive.
- Lectures, seminars and workshops by Soviet and American doctors, educators, and other health practitioners in both the Soviet Union and the United States.
- Scientific conferences and book exhibitions presenting current research in health promotion.
- Groups from both nations cooperating in the design of experimental health promotion projects to demonstrate the efficacy of methods being explored by the exchange.
- Implementation of training programs in Moscow with Soviet and American faculty.

Murphy lists the following broad areas of concentration in the Health Promotion Project: productivity in the workplace; motivation through high level health; stress reduction, including psychological methods of relaxation and biofeedback; nutrition; physical attractiveness through physiological and mental disciplines; health benefits of exercise; and recreational sports for the purpose of physical fitness, including aerobic conditioning.

of what I often hear from white managers is: "We've gotten well, we now have affirmative action programs to end discrimination, the Jim Crow laws are gone, so stop nagging." My response is always one of affirmation: yes, much obvious discrimination and injustice are gone, amen to that. But it's important not to think we're getting well faster than we really are, not to want to get well too soon. Just when you think you're well again, a relapse occurs, and often the symptoms are more chronic, more painful. Precisely to the extent that racism becomes more covert, more subtle, it becomes more insidious, less conscious, harder to touch.

THOMPSON: Working with issues of race seems a specific dimension of the larger problem of how to work with differences.

BROWN: Exactly right—coming to terms with and honoring differences. We do an awareness game when we work on black-white issues in corporate settings. We'll go in and say: between tonight and tomorrow, we want to think about the first time you really noticed something called "differences." We ask: When did the concept and reality of differences become real for you? The point is simply to get people hooked on the notion of the pervasiveness of differences, whether they're acknowledged or not.

Interesting, that a good number of the white participants don't have much of a sense of differences based on race or religion or class. A common white response is: "Well, I grew up knowing that blacks (or Italians, Irish, or Jews) were different, but we didn't live near any, so there's not much that comes to mind. It's kind of vague." Or "We heard about race riots in Detroit, but things were pretty much OK in our town." But the blacks in these groups, and the Jewish participants, were extremely well-tuned to differences. Women, whether black or white, also have a clear sense of how differences make a difference. People who grow up as "The Other," "The Different," are always more aware of differences on all levels.

By the way, we attach no judgement to this. We just aim to point out that in so many areas we don't manage differences very well in our society; race is one of these areas.

THOMPSON: What you're saying suggests that white male participants are less conscious of differences than blacks and women. How does this get played out in your seminars?

BROWN: Take the word "racism." In one group a white manager said to us: "When you use the word 'racism' I think of lynch mobs, police dogs, overt symptoms of racial hatred." Other whites agreed: the word was too harsh, sharp-edged, extreme. In contrast, when blacks hear that word, their response is, "What's new? Big deal." It became clear that the word "racism" sounds very different to white participants than to black participants. Measured in terms of overt behaviors, surely some of the worst of racism has disappeared, so of course many whites think "racism" is a thing of the past. But measured in terms more subtle, something called racism still is active, yet more subtle, because it's covert.

THOMPSON: Yet precisely because it does become more subtle, less objectively obvious, it's harder to pin down. What a black person feels as racism, a well-intending white person might not even see. Do you have a working definition of what constitutes subtle racism?

BROWN: I'll answer that by describing our approach. One of the most common requests of black participants is to learn how to effectively manage rage. You must try to appreciate the degree to which many blacks in the mostly white corporate world learn to live with a constant low-grade sense of anger and rage. Many black professionals tell about the anger they feel when their authority is questioned by a white supervisor in ways different from exchanges between whites. A very frequent report by blacks is of remarks by white co-workers to the effect that they only have their jobs because of affirmative action and wouldn't have to be tolerated otherwise. Can you imagine how infuriating and shaming that kind of remark is?

Another common dynamic: the white supervisor no longer consciously feels that blacks are dumb and shiftless, but he still feels he should take a "second look" at the black employee's work—an implied suggestion that the black's standards are a little off. The black employee sees that his white co-workers aren't evaluated in this way; he knows a double standard is operating, but because it's so subtle he simply swallows his rage over time. Now, part of the work in these sessions is to get black participants to confront the extent to which they themselves still buy into those old stereotypes. But it's important not to leave it there. Once they've done the inner work, we use role-playing and other methods to discover ways of bringing specific changes in specific situations. We try to show ways for blacks to take the rage they've been swallowing and use its energy to make constructive changes in their work relationships, and in every part of their lives.

THOMPSON: I'm still ruminating on my earlier question about the elusiveness of something called subtle or unconscious racism. I have no doubt that black rage is based on real insults to dignity and self-esteem. Yet it strikes me that much of what blacks feel along these lines isn't always racism per se, but the same problems white people have in trying to be fully human in the hierarchical, overly-centralized corporate world. In this respect, blacks and whites both suffer.

BROWN: Increasingly I try to help blacks in these workshops, especially young blacks just getting started, learn to make distinctions. In a given situation a black person will feel demeaned by something said or by an action taken. Is the insult he experiences truly race-related, and if so, to what extent? Is it related to the broader issues of corporate dehumanization which you just mentioned, and if so, to what extent? When is it healthy to feel paranoia, in the sense of being on guard for potential situations of harm? When is paranoia unhealthy and counter-productive?

It became clear that the word "racism" sounds very different to white participants than to black participants.

The challenge is to keep subtle or unconscious racism in mind as a category, to be attentive to its appearances in the workplace and in the rest of our lives, but not to have it so broadly or vaguely defined as to be meaningless, or to let it be a mask for other issues. The reports of blacks in the workplace are too consistent for me to believe there is not a residue of subtle racism that still exists. Yet in working with that residue, trying to bring it to the surface, here's the tension: precisely because it is unconscious, many people will say, "Oh, you guys are just never satisfied, you're looking for racism everywhere, under your pancakes, in every drawer," etc.

By the way, it often occurs that when blacks talk in terms of the rage they feel, white participants will begin to encounter their own sense of victimhood. One white manager, upon hearing a black man describe his rage and humiliation, said he had been agonizing over his own feeling of rage, not knowing what it was, how to articulate it. The white manager said: "For the first time I have a sense of my own vulnerability. For the first time I can talk about that with another man." It was a powerful moment for everyone there, white and black.

THOMPSON: What do you see as the main obstacle to black-white relations now?

BROWN: The attitude that if we don't talk about issues of race, maybe they'll go away. That doesn't seem to work—not in the workplace, not in our neighborhoods, not in South Africa, where these issues are being played out for the world to watch.

THOMPSON: Are you hopeful?

BROWN: Some days, yes; other days, no. There's a lot of work to be done.

Keith Thompson © 1985, All Rights Reserved

NOTES

Geraldine Lutten Posner

Mrs. Posner, a Soviet citizen, died of natural causes while visiting Esalen as a guest of the Soviet-American Exchange Program. She was the mother of Vladimir Posner and Paval Posner.

April 1, 1910–May 28, 1985

Expressions in Creativity

Michell Cassou

In creativity we want to focus on the process, what happens between us and the painting, instead of what we get as a result. It's not the product that's important, it's ourselves. If we do things for ourselves, it brings the fulfillment right there at the moment.

We live in a time in which we have come to believe that there is not much inside us—only the things that teachers, parents and other people have put there. And we think that the only thing that we can do is to take this information and change its form and move it around and give it back. We think it is necessary to learn points of reference, rules and techniques to exercise creativity.

Creativity does not require anything from outside—it is in everyone right from birth. That's why children, as soon as they are born, start moving, putting things together, scribbling, playing. And when children have the possibility to paint in an environment where they can express themselves freely—where they are not taught to do things—they very soon become more confident, more healthy. The function of expression and play is the same for us as adults, it's just that we have buried it more.

There is often a tendency to want to paint something important, deep, essential. I tell people just to do the little thing—a point, a line, a scribble—as long as you do it with integrity. Instead of fighting and wanting the big thing to happen, you do what you can do. And that already is enormous, because it's the first gesture to come from within, without listening to the pressures of how you should develop, what you should do.

After all, we cannot know what we are going to express. What is really creative is bound to be a surprise because it's something we couldn't have thought of. This is the thing we resist the most. We want to know where we are going, why we are doing it, and what it is going to give to us. We want to know it all. To be creative means becoming more familiar with being a little lost. If we are always full of what we want to do, there is no room for the new.

There is always a moment in every painting where we don't know where to go. These difficult spots are very important, because they mean something is being born. It's like a plant: the seed is beneath the earth that is growing. So I encourage people to keep painting during these times, to dig further into themselves until they discover that after every hard moment there is an opening, where very old feelings begin to move. In doing this, they start revealing themselves to themselves, and surprise comes. When people start tasting what happens after these hard moments, it is like nothing else, it is a feeling that brings everything alive.

To be creative is really just to do what we want. But this is very hard. We find that we don't know what we want to do. It is very rare for most people to dare, to first look and see if they want to do something, and second to do it. We have lost contact with this daring, this desire to connect with oneself in a way that's deeper than that of thought. But underneath, it's what we really want—we want the connection, we want the discovery with the feeling.

It's very important to find the right environment, where we can allow ourselves to paint in this way—without judgment, comparison or criticism—because it frees the perceptions for other things. Creativity is not reserved for one subject, like painting. When it starts moving it moves everywhere, that's why it is so interesting.

Reprinted by permission of the author. It originally appeared in January, 1980, in City Arts, a former local arts newspaper in the San Francisco area.

Michell Cassou leads classes and workshops in creative expression at the Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega, San Francisco. Her Esalen workshop, The Painting Experience, will be offered May 23-30.

Roy Hart Theatre is an international theater company which has become known for its research into the use of voice in theater—an exploration and integration of the dramatic relationship between sound and movement. The company's theatrical and cultural research has centered on the study and tradition of image in the Western world, through exchanges with contemporary theorists in the realms of mythology and psychology. Working in collaboration with Jungian archetypal psychologists, the company explores the confluence of voice, movement, and image in theater.

In February 1985 the Roy Hart Theatre presented its version of Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" at LaMama, New York, winning the 1985 OBIE Off-Broadway Theater award. Based in the south of France, members of the company tour and teach throughout Europe, Scandinavia, and North and South America, combining workshops, study, and performances.

The company transforms traditional theater works, paring away the trappings of performance and using extraordinary vocal techniques to expose and explore raw, expressive forms. They continue the work done by mentors Roy Hart and Alfred Wolfson, who studied voice as a route to understanding individual psychology.

Members of the Roy Hart Theatre Company will lead an Esalen workshop on The Sound of the Image, with Jungian psychologists James Hillman and Patricia Berry Hillman, on March 16-21.

Psychic Research Conference

For several years, Esalen has hosted conferences on psychic research. The first meeting, on biological and physical time, was held in January, 1981. It was organized by physicist Russell Targ and biologist David Deamer. Participants looked into the data for precognition as it relates to new ideas in modern physics, and concluded that the prevailing metaphor of "time flowing like a river" is not compatible with the data from psi research, and is not required by physics. From this conference came a very useful series of experiments that showed that in certain cases the future can affect the past (although it can not, of course, change the past).

The second conference in July, 1982, also considered aspects of the methodology of psi research, such as the effect that an experimenter's expectation has on the outcome of an experiment. As in counseling, a psi experiment is unlikely to succeed if the experimenter is ambivalent about what he or she is doing. Helmut Schmidt described his many experiments on psychokinetic interactions with random event generators. Other data pertained to precognition research, showing that it is no more difficult to forecast an unlikely future than a likely one.

As a result of the Esalen meeting on Time and Psi, the Parapsychological Association held a symposium on this subject with many of the same participants at their 1982 meeting. These initial meetings were the nucleus for a ninety-minute BBC television program, "The Case of ESP," which was shown and re-shown by the U.S. science program NOVA in 1984. Keith Harary and Russell Targ have written a book dealing explicitly with many of these issues: The Mind Race (Villard/Random House, 1984).

In November, 1983, Russell Targ and psychologist Charles Tart held the third Invitational Esalen Conference on Research in Parapsychology. The meeting included many psi researchers and practitioners of psi. The purpose of the meeting was to discover, through conversations and experience, how a psychic person separates the true psi impression from the mental noise of memory and imagination that can interfere with such impressions. It dealt with methods of response in psi; that is, how do the most successful psychics actually process their mental images and information to extract the psi signal from the mental noise; and what is the nature of that noise?

The fourth conference in July, 1984, dealt with the application of psi abilities to the marketplace and to real life situations. Discussion focused on the best ways to use what is known about both psi and information processing, to achieve the best results. Critics and many friends still seem to be saying: "Yes. Psi is certainly important, but only if it can be shown to exist." The application of psi to unambiguous tasks may greatly improve this situation for researchers in the field.

The fifth conference, New Directions in Psi Research, was held in June, 1985. These workshops have brought together researchers from all parts of the U.S.

• •

Soviet-American Exchange Program

One of the major projects supported by Esalen over the past five years has been an exploration into the very complex and difficult realm of Soviet-American relations. The staff of Esalen's Soviet-American Exchange Program has worked with a growing network of Soviet citizens who are as dedicated to exploring the fundamental questions of human potential in the Soviet Union as their colleagues are here in the United States.

In the process of working with the Soviets, the Exchange Program has helped pioneer the field of citizen diplomacy—non-governmental American initiatives with Soviet individuals and institutions, created to bring both sides together as equals in endeavors that help our peoples move beyond the differences that currently divide us. Dozens of non-profit organizations across America have been started or inspired as a result of the Esalen Program's work. The Exchange Program has also helped to initiate a variety of activities in the private business sector, particularly in the areas of satellite communication and entertainment.

Current projects include the following:

1) Individual Exchanges which will sponsor trips by Dr. Stanley Krippner, Director of the Center for Consciousness Studies, Saybrook Institute, and Dr. Rupert Sheldrake, noted scientist and the author of A New Science of Life, to the Soviet Union; and Victor Osipov, Foreign Relations Division, USSR Academy of Sciences, and Vladimir Kartzev, Director of Mir Publishers in Moscow, to the United States.

2) Astronaut/Cosmonaut Dialogues which have brought American Astronauts and Soviet Cosmonauts together to form the Association of Space Explorers.

3) Satellite Link-ups linking the Soviet Academy of Sciences and several American universities for discussions on a broad range of topics.

4) The Health Promotion Project, which after completing reciprocal book exhibitions in the field of health promotion, is now working with the Soviet Ministry of Health to develop a monograph on Soviet and American approaches to health.

5) A Writers' Exchange will host a delegation of Soviet writers to Esalen in July 1986.

6) The Human Potential Commission to establish a permanent Soviet-American cultural/scientific exchange that would promote high level human development.

7) Public Seminars feature Soviet specialist Robert Bathurst, exploring the differences and similarities between Soviet and American attitudes and cultures.

8) Invitational Conferences include the Erikson Symposium on the political psychology of Soviet-American relations.

The Exchange Program is also planning two invitational conferences, one at Esalen, to bring citizen diplomats together to share their experiences and discuss ways of collaborating more effectively in the future.

To coordinate all these activities, Jim Garrison has been hired as Administrative Director to implement a management design that can serve both ongoing creativity and the need for financial accountability. The Exchange Program has also embarked on a three-year financial campaign to provide financial viability for continued expansion of programs.

• •

Invitational Conferences

These conferences will be available to a very limited number of observer-participants who have demonstrated a serious interest and have some background in the field. These special participants will be given an orientation by the conference leader, and may attend each conference session. A fee of $1500, which will be considered a tax-deductible donation, will help cover overall conference costs. An additional room and board fee of $60 per person per day will be charged; this may be deductible (please see General Information, p. 47). For more information regarding this opportunity, please contact the Esalen Program Office.

• •

Editorial Note

In the Winter 1985-1986 catalog report on the Esalen invited conference on Psychosocial Alternatives to Traditional Psychiatric Care (page 8), the sixth paragraph should read "Most of the participants have personally experienced degradation ceremonies . . ." Although attempts at degradation may have been made, these were not necessarily successful.

Ways of Being at Esalen

There are various ways to experience Esalen, ranging from a visit to the hot springs on a week night to a long-term stay as a student or resident. The weekend and five-day workshops described throughout the catalog are the standard route for coming to Esalen and learning the various methods of personal growth and self-exploration that are available here. The Experiencing Esalen workshops are a kind of smorgasbord introduction to some of these many practices (such as gestalt, massage, sensory awareness, etc.); from such a sampling, the participant can then choose those approaches which feel most appropriate and pursue them in subsequent seminars. For those who wish an extended stay of a month or more there is an Ongoing Residence Program. Other long-term programs include the "month-longs" coordinated by leaders such as the Grofs and Schiffmans, which frequently involve didactic seminars as well as experiential workshops. These can be particularly useful for professionals and graduate students.

A very popular way of being at Esalen, and one that allows a much greater involvement with the place and its community at a lower expense, is the Work Study Program, which entails working with the Esalen staff as well as participating in an ongoing workshop designed specifically for that program. See page 34 for more information and an application form.

In addition, there are other events which enrich life at Esalen. There are frequent forums in which various writers and thinkers, both visiting and resident, share their ideas with the community. On Wednesday nights, there may be lectures, films, dance performances, choirs, or other forms of entertainment. Body work of various kinds is available by appointment with individual practitioners, including massage, deep tissue, polarity, Feldenkrais, and Rolfing®. Individual sessions are also available for various types of process work, including gestalt, neo-Reichian emotional release, vision improvement, music gestalt, etc. Finally, there is a Community Workshop program which goes on daily, and provides many opportunities for engaging in personal self-exploration or learning new approaches to human growth.

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt & John Soper

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness, group process, guided fantasy, meditation, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Bantam).

Schedule:

January 17–19	$250
January 19–24	$490
January 31–February 2	$250
February 9–14	$490
February 28–March 2	$250
March 7–9	$250
March 16–21	$490
March 28–30	$250
April 27–May 2	$490
May 9–11	$250
May 25–30	$490
June 6–8	$250
June 15–20	$490
June 27–29	$250

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Lia Thompson
& Deborah Anne Medow

These workshops offer opportunities to experience body awareness and movement in Esalen's supportive environment. Various types of dance, massage, music, meditation, yoga, and theater are offered. Five-day groups may also have time to explore the magnificent coast and trails near Esalen.

Schedule:

January 3–5	$250
February 7–9	$250
February 16–21	$490
March 21–23	$250
April 27–May 2	$490
May 2–4	$250
May 16–18	$250
June 22–27	$490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff
Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
and used—is inexhaustible.
—Lao Tzu

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Participants are explicitly not patients but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The leader functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth, rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Although open seat work is the primary form of this practice, guided fantasy, breath meditations, and movement sessions may be included. Each gestalt practice group will have a member of the Esalen gestalt staff as its primary leader. The name of this leader will be listed in the office three weeks in advance of the workshop. Please call if you want this information. Other leaders may be involved in some sessions.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim and In and Out the Garbage Pail; John Heider, The Tao of Leadership (Humanics, Ltd.).

Schedule:

January 12–17	$490
February 9–14	$490
February 21–23	$250
March 2–7	$490
March 21–23	$250
May 18–23	$490
June 15–20	$490

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff
Coordinated by Steven Harper

Located on a narrow stretch of land between the Pacific Ocean and the coastal ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains, Esalen is the trailhead to one of the world's most spectacular wilderness areas. With this natural reserve as the primary teacher, we will walk into the Los Padres National Forest. We will draw on various traditions, developing the quality of our awareness, and opening to the natural world. Week-long workshops will venture out on five hikes (4-10 miles in length) and weekend workshops will take two hikes (3-6 miles in length). Using Esalen as our base camp we will explore different trails through the natural beauty of the Big Sur backcountry. Days will begin and end at Esalen with short stretching and sharing sessions. Each day-hike will begin after breakfast and will conclude in time to enjoy the hot springs and dinner each evening at Esalen. We will practice basic outdoor skills such as map reading and minimum impact concepts. Participants will be taught enough skills to begin exploring the wilderness on their own after these outings. More information will be sent upon registration.

Schedule:
May 23–25	$250
June 13–15	$250

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins.

The program is divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc. Information regarding special interest sections may be obtained by writing Bette Dingman, c/o Esalen.

For a full description of the Work Study Program, please turn to page 34.

Accreditation

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing as we have many applications. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. Scholarship recipients may be asked to bring a sleeping bag to use, especially during peak attendance periods. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

Conferences at Esalen

It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Esalen Seminars

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Weekend of January 3–5

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and developing of positive, mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of loving and personal integrity. Participants will work at their beliefs and habits through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, guided imagery, and gestalt awareness methods.

$250 per participant

Living, Loving, and Leading

John Caple

"True leaders are always led."—C. G. Jung

Our society's need for leadership is everywhere manifest, yet we often discourage this impulse in ourselves. In this workshop, participants may rediscover their leadership potentialities, learn more about their leadership style, and decide on new ways to use their abilities. We will use art, body work, movement, and open seat work, all enriched by the resources of Esalen. Our aim will be to become clearer about our ability to lead and our intent to lead.

This workshop is particularly designed for current and prospective leaders in organizational settings, for managers and aspiring managers, for those burned out or facing new leadership challenges, and for those who lead workshops and groups.

Recommended reading: John Caple, Careercycles (Prentice-Hall). $250

Health and Well-Being

Joe D. Goldstrich

Joe D. writes: "Over the past decade I have explored many approaches to health, including nutrition, homeopathy, acupuncture, and psychic healing as well as Rolfing®, Hellerwork, and Feldenkrais. In this weekend workshop we will examine these and other approaches to well-being, looking at their value and limitations. Our focus can help you formulate a plan for a healthy 1986." $250

Personal Mythology: Our Epic Journey

Stanley Krippner & David Feinstein

This seminar focuses on personal myths—the deep forces of the psyche that shape who we are, what we think, and what we do. Operating largely outside of conscious awareness, our personal myths nonetheless pave our journey through life, our place in society, and our relationship to the broader or spiritual context of existence. Showing participants how to reach deeply into realms of unconscious mythological wisdom, we will speak to our need to find the visions that nourish and inspire us. Drawing upon a range of systems including Jungian psychology, gestalt, psychosynthesis, dream interpretation, and cognitive psychology, participants will be led through a sequence of experiences that can rework a problematic area of personal mythology. These experiences can be used again later to identify and work with other personal myths that may be creating problems in one's life. Participants are asked to bring a notebook or personal journal and are encouraged to record their dreams in it prior to the workshop.

Recommended reading: Stanley Krippner, Human Possibilities (Anchor). $250

Week of January 5–10

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Anything which is forced or misunderstood can never be beautiful."—Xenophon

People, like plants, need special attention to thrive and blossom. To naturally grow beyond what they've been requires strength, sensitivity, and a deeply compassionate awareness. The courage to let go of self-defeating patterns from the past, the willingness to master fresh skills and create new dreams for the future: these are the turning points that nourish and sustain us.

In this workshop the group will come together in the spirit of being simply and lovingly at home in themselves. They will create a community whose aim is to explore and move through individual turning points, in a climate of trust, goodwill, and authenticity. The program will be structured to include intensive individual work, using practices from gestalt, psychosynthesis, and bioenergetics, as well as creative movement, music, guided imagery, group rituals, and celebrations. $490

Warriors on Magic Mountain: Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (T'ai Chi Intensive)

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

This workshop offers New Year renewal with the fundamentals of t'ai chi practice. Chungliang will share the crystallization of his most essential learnings. He will lead us in sunrise movement meditation, five-elements form, I-Ching eight-trigrams metaphors in action, life-force revitalization exercises with Taoist philosophical and aesthetic dialogues and discourses. Join the music, dancing, and celebration!

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E. P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); John Blofeld, Translator, I Ching; Lama Anagarika Govinda, The Book of Transformations. $490

Dreams: Energy, Imagery, Psyche, and Spirit

Kenneth Kelzer

Dreams are an ever present source of energy and imagery. These raw materials of the psyche, when refined and assimilated, serve to elevate our lives to new dimensions. Dreams serve many important functions: returning the lost parts of the self to the conscious mind, enhancing creativity, firing the imagination, offering outrageous humor and sometimes pure inspiration. This workshop will delve into the dream state to explore its widest possible range, including the psi potential of dreams. We will use gestalt, psychodrama, Jungian psychology, intuition processes, and creative art as some of our principal tools. In addition, the dream will be viewed as a channel for spiritual expansion and artistic creation, with special emphasis on the new frontier of lucid dreaming. Participants will have time to explore their own dreams during the workshop.

Recommended reading: John Neihard, Black Elk Speaks, chapters 3, 13, and 14; Patricia Garfield, Creative Dreaming, chapter 5; Carl Jung, Man and His Symbols, chapter 1; Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim. $490

Weekend of January 10–12

Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 38. $265

Inside/Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

Paul and Chungliang will celebrate and share with us their joyous collaboration in nature, music, dance, t'ai chi, jazz, improvisation, meditation, and world travel experiences.

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E. P.

Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon).

Recommended listening: Paul Horn, Inside, Heart to Heart, China, The Magic of Findhorn, and Jupiter 8. $280

Awake in Your Dreams

Stephen LaBerge

Lucid dreaming means dreaming while knowing that we are dreaming. For most of us, lucid dreams are as rare as the waking peak experiences to which they are analogous. This need not be so; workshop participants can learn how to develop the skill of lucid dreaming. The results of recent scientific research will be presented and participants will be exposed to the various uses of lucid dreaming, including self-exploration, creative problem solving, healing, adventure, and, perhaps most importantly, a way of self-integration leading to the transpersonal realms.

The emphasis will be on improving the quality of the dreamer's experience while in the dream. This means self-control, not dream control: changing the context rather than the content of the dream. Ann Faraday has called lucid dreaming "one of the most exciting frontiers of human experience." This workshop will provide an opportunity to find out why.

Recommended reading: Stephen LaBerge, Lucid Dreaming (J. P. Tarcher). $250

Week of January 12–17

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

Inside/Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

For workshop description see January 10-12. $520

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Brita Ostrom & Staff

The goal of this beginning workshop is to provide the fundamental elements necessary to give a pleasurable and beneficial full body massage. Related areas of work, such as breath awareness, grounding, movement, and quality of touch, will be introduced, and participants will be instructed in ways to release stress and muscular tension. $490

Weekend of January 17–19

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

Vicki Topp & Staff

This weekend workshop provides instruction in basic methods used in giving a massage, with additional work on quality of touch, breath awareness, centering, and sensitive rapport between partners. The purpose of the workshop is to introduce massage as a practical approach to greater sensory awareness and relief from stress. $250

The Fine Art of Journal Writing

Nancy Mayer

"We must turn to ourselves as a creative piece of work, not only in the arts, but in the creation of our lives."—Anaïs Nin

Facing the empty page, reaching out to put words on paper, most of us feel vulnerable. This journal workshop is based on the belief that one can write easily and pleasurably. In a silent, supportive atmosphere necessary for the inward journey, we can learn how to overcome our fears of writing, surmount writer's block, and get to know our inner critic. This workshop is for people who claim they cannot write, or find the process painful, and for those who want to tap into their inner truth. Participants will explore new ways to record their experiences, memories, and dreams, as keys to understanding their lives. They may also discover how to gain better access to their intuitive, imaginative selves.

Nancy writes: "When we record our experiences in a journal we expand and deepen our lives, finding new meaning and purpose. In the process we move from the personal to the universal, learning to accept ourselves, and others, more fully. We gain perspective on the past and guidance for the future."

Recommended reading: Tristine Rainer, The New Diary; Ira Progoff, At A Journal Workshop. $250

Introduction to Vipassana Meditation

Jamie Baraz

Vipassana (insight) meditation practice is a systematic examination of the mind/body process through calm and focused awareness. Learning to observe experience from a place of stillness enables one to relate to life without fear or clinging. One begins to accept pleasure and pain, fear and joy, with increasing equanimity and balance. Life is seen as a constantly changing process. Insight is the deepening experience of the process itself, free of interpretation, leading to wisdom and compassion. The seminar is designed for those who have had no previous meditation experience as well as for those who wish to deepen their practice. Meditation instruction, the philosophy behind the practice, group discussions, and actual practice periods will be offered. Special emphasis will be placed on how to integrate vipassana practice in daily life after the workshop is over.

Recommended reading: Joseph Goldstein, The Experience of Insight (Shambhala). $250

Week of January 19–24

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

The Embodiment of the Essential Self

Karen Johnson

You may find yourself seeking zest for life and a sense of purpose. The greatest joy can be in discovering our true beloved, the beauty and truth of our essential self. Our essence, known by the Sufi as the true friend, is a presence we can touch within ourselves. Essence is beyond thoughts, emotions, and the physical; it is life itself.

In this workshop we will explore ways of moving toward more presence and the embodiment of our essential nature. Sufi awareness methods will be utilized, along with individual work in a group setting, using breath work and touch. $490

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

In this workshop, which is open to professionals and others interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their psi abilities, Anne and Jim will use exercises designed to aid participants in recognizing their styles and trusting the intuitive input they normally receive. During the exercises Anne will use her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their inner sensitivity. One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive/psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $490

Weekend of January 24–26

Anatomy for Trager Students

Deane Juhan

This seminar is offered as a continuation of the professional training for students of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics©. Participants will examine the anatomical structures of the body and their kinesthetic relationships, with specific reference to how these structures and relationships are handled by the Trager approach.

Half of the time will be used for slide presentations, lectures, and discussions concerning particular areas of the body. The rest will be spent practicing aspects of a Trager session which correspond to those areas. The emphasis will be on clarifying the intent of the various hand positions and movements, based upon an understanding of structure, function, and motor reflex.

Since supervised Trager table work will be an important part of the class, a beginning Trager training is a prerequisite.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 38. $250

Awareness, Balance, and Options

Judyth Weaver

This workshop will focus on rediscovering and integrating awareness of our full selves—mentally, physically, and spiritually. We will work deeply with our senses, and gently with our breath, explore t'ai chi ch'uan for relaxed exercise, and practice meditation, massage, movement, and gestalt.

All these explorations can help us realize the choices we have. The more in touch we are with our feelings and abilities, the more options are available to us. Using these options with awareness, we can develop a sense of centered grounding and balance, with which to enhance an energetic, economic, pleasurable, and effective life. $250

Approaches to Christian Mysticism

Brother David Steindl-Rast

Awareness of Eastern mysticism makes many people ask: what of the mystical tradition in the West? Is it still alive? Can one find meaning in it today? Brother David has spent more than 30 years in both Eastern and Western monasteries exploring the roots of mysticism in the human heart. He will lead participants in discovering these roots in their own life experience. We shall ask what the pursuit of the path of the heart demands from each one personally, and how it can be practiced in one's daily life.

Like Thomas Merton, his late fellow monk and friend, Brother David is a bridge-builder between East and West. The focus of this weekend, however, will be on the Christian tradition and on our need to wrestle with it. Input and question periods will alternate with silent time for guided experience.

Recommended reading: Rainer Maria Rilke, Letters to a Young Poet (Norton); Thomas Merton, Conjectures of a Guilty Bystander (Doubleday); Thomas Matus, Yoga and the Jesus Prayer Tradition (Paulist Press); David Steindl-Rast, A Listening Heart (Crossroads), Gratefulness The Heart of Prayer (Paulist Press). $250

Week of January 26–31

Health and Creativity

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

We can choose health and creativity by increasing self-awareness and letting go of fear.

This workshop will deal with why—the causes not the mechanics—we choose specific illnesses and with ways in which we block our ability to think. Participants will be presented with ways for being healthy and for expanding one's ability to think creatively and logically.

Recommended reading: Will Schutz, Profound Simplicity (University Associates); William Gordon, Synectics (Macmillan). $490

Mindfulness Meditation

Jacqueline Mandell

Mindfulness meditation can allow us deeper experiences of our sensitivity, clarity, and wisdom. Meditation practices will focus on our mental and physical process, especially the natural breathing process. Using our senses as objects of awareness, we can discover the possibility of living in the present moment, calm, concentrated, and aware.

Meditation will be practiced in silence, with emphasis on sitting and walking meditation. There will be time for discussions, individual guidance, and relaxation. This workshop is suitable for both experienced and inexperienced meditators. Please wear comfortable clothing and shoes. $490

Free to Be You

Leslie Pam & Ann Christie

We are all born connected to our real selves. If, however, as children we experience feelings of rejection and hurt, we develop a system of protection that becomes a self-restricting pattern. As adults we experience that pattern as a block affecting our ability to know what or why we feel, or limiting our ability to communicate fully with others, be intimate, open, or fulfilled. Working through such blocks can leave the self free to discover richer ways of giving and receiving. This workshop includes structured group process, utilizing primal work, Ericksonian hypnosis, and massage.

Recommended reading: Arthur Janov, The Primal Scream (Perigee); Sidney Rosen, My Voice Will Go With You (Norton). $490

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

"Freedom: A state of being in which man's relatedness to life is unobstructed."
—M.C. Richards, Centering

Stress-related tension and emotional blocks restrict our capacity for feelings and expressions of aliveness. This workshop is a carefully chosen introduction to a variety of body approaches that can release limiting patterns to promote kinesthetic awareness, spontaneity, grace, and mental flexibility. Methods may include imagery, sensory awareness, Feldenkrais, gestalt, Rolf®-movement, massage, Reichian breath work, and video feedback. $490

Weekend of January 31–February 2

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self-concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and group process methods, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers, as a means of achieving productive functioning. $250

Miracles of Infancy

Laurie Schutz Munyer & Arthur Eric Munyer with Jezariah Canyon Munyer

Laurie and Arthur write: "This will be a time to celebrate the profound miracle of new life and parenthood. The workshop will provide an opportunity for new parents and their infants (birth to two years) to come together in a harmonious and joyous way. In an atmosphere of warmth we will guide both parent and infant through a creative learning experience. Our approaches will be drawn from massage, creative movement, music, communication, and nurturing touch. We will bring awareness to how our children can be our teachers."

Some infant care will be available. $250

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

For Men Only

Richard Gunther

If you are male, between the ages of 30 and 60, and asking such questions as "What am I doing with my life?" or "What else is there for me?"—welcome to mid-life, a time of examination, possibly of crises, a time offering the opportunity for major changes in how you view yourself and the world in which you function.

We live in a demanding, controlling society, and the effect on each of us is not always clear. In the words of Marcel Proust, "The real voyage of discovery consists not in seeing new landscapes, but in having new eyes." With new eyes we can see the possibility of outgrowing our social conditioning and connecting with a deeper self.

In this workshop, limited to 12 participants, we will focus on the issues of work and career, their changing importance at mid-life; relationships, examining the shift in needs, tasks, and roles; the body and sex, which changes are real, which imagined; and spirituality, exploring the need for a transcendent vision. $250

The Intelligent Body, The Sensuous Body

Thomas Hanna

Premise: Clarity of self-awareness and clarity of body control grow together or decline together. We'll explore how greater sensitivity to our inner selves enhances the body's ability to act and to relax, and how this ability in turn enhances kinesthetic awareness.

The program involves gentle movements and use of imagery as well as instruction in the principles of many different kinds of body work and exercise systems—particularly that of Moshe Feldenkrais.

There will also be demonstrations of how new sensory information can lead to dramatic changes in posture. Those who wish advanced knowledge in systems of body work will find the weekend profitable, as will those who have habitual aches or have difficulty relaxing.

Recommended reading: Thomas Hanna, The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt: A Primer in Somatic Thinking. $250

Week of February 2–7

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support participants will clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $490

Clairsentient and Clairvoyant Practices

Wendy Palmer & Helen Palmer

The two most identifiable aspects of intuition are the ability to sense and the ability to see a range of information that is unavailable to the thinking self. Clear sensing and clear sight have their historical bases of training in the traditions of martial arts and visualization practices.

This workshop will be an introduction to the internal focusing practices that can provide access to the intuitive state of mind. The particular martial arts and visualization exercises are presented in such a way that they can form the basis of discrimination between personal projections and accurate sentient and visual impressions unknown to the thinking self. $490

Owning the Shadow

Paul Rebillot

"We have seen the enemy and they is us."
—Pogo, Walt Kelly

Paul Rebillot writes: "In my work I have come to realize that one of the most important and frequently avoided themes in our lives is the ability to own the part of ourselves we don't like, the part Jung called the shadow. As a result, we become projectors of our own disowned energy.

"In this workshop, we will seek to discover within ourselves the bad guy we have been projecting onto and hating in others. By facing and communicating with this negative self, we may discover in our shadow not the enemy but the friend and challenger to growth of the heart and consciousness." $490

Weekend of February 7–9

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

"For one human being to love another: that is perhaps the most difficult of all our tasks, the ultimate, the last test and proof, the work for which all other work is but preparation."
—Rainer Maria Rilke

The goal of this weekend is to provide a context in which couples can focus and explore their relationship in the areas of communication, closeness, conflict, and individuality. A balance of structured and spontaneous interactions will be used within the framework of the large group, subgroups, and the couple. Limited to ten couples. $250 per participant

Body, Heart, and Spirit

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

The workshop is divided into three segments, dealing first with tensions and energy patterns in the body, then with the relationship of these to the emotions, and finally with their relationship to the mind, to thought. By connecting thought, feeling, and body experience in one gestalt, we seek to open the being to the inpouring of the spirit, to the state of grace. This is the goal of shamanic dances and of many tribal rites. The process includes body work and open seat gestalt work, as well as rituals, dancing, chanting, and celebration. $250

Rethinking Security/ Toward Common Ground

John Marks & Jack Cirie

This workshop is designed for those who are convinced they have the answers to questions of war and peace and are frustrated by not being able to make their view prevail; and for those who are convinced they do not have the answers and are frustrated that neither they nor anyone else seems to. The workshop combines cognitive and non-cognitive, linear and non-linear approaches. The metaphor and physical experience of aikido are used to facilitate exploration of new ways of framing—hence acting on—security questions. Participants may move beyond their conventional thinking to discover fresh and innovative ways for establishing real security in the world. $250

Week of February 9–14

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

This seminar will focus on the integration of body, mind, and spirit through intuitive and energy awareness, massage, meditation, movement, gestalt, and play. Using these tools and gentle risk-taking can help in opening to our own aliveness and ability to be more at home with ourselves. Participants will explore practical and portable ways of nourishing and trusting the inherent wisdom of the self.

$490

Craniosacral System: Basic Workshop

Jim Asher & Jane Harrington

This workshop will offer an opportunity to learn and practice gentle yet powerful skills to bring the craniosacral system into balance. The class will combine lectures and slides on functional anatomy of the membrane system, cerebrospinal fluid movement, and related methods. There will be hands-on demonstrations of a variety of methods for tapping into bone and membrane motion, rhythm, amplitude quality, restriction, and interference. Demonstrations will be followed by supervised practice. Time will also be spent evoking and developing palpatory sensitivity and fine-tuning the quality of touch.

This workshop is for people with a strong interest in developing hands-on skills, and those already practicing body work or counseling. Much of our focus will be on the head, jaw, neck, pelvis, and diaphragm systems. Cranial work can be effective in shifting emotional holding patterns and draining accumulated stresses in the nervous system.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 38. $490

Weekend of February 14–16

Weekend Massage Intensive

George King & Deborah Anne Medow

For workshop description see January 17-19. $250

Cynthia Johnson

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

This is a workshop in Soviet-American, cross-cultural understanding. Through bargaining, mediating, and role-playing games, participants can discover the subconscious cultural imperatives that impel the two nations apart and begin to identify those elements that bring them together. The workshop sets out to shatter egotistical mirror-imaging and begin the construction of authentic Soviet-American relationships in the world as it now exists.

$250

Intuition Practice

Helen Palmer

This seminar teaches the identification of personal intuition systems that can be made accessible by internal focusing practices, or that may already be operating in unrecognized ways. The practices develop the ability to discriminate between personal thoughts, fantasies projected from personal thinking, and impressions received from situations outside the personal self. The psychic aspect of intuition rests on the ability to shift attention from the self to impressions perceived from outside the self.

$250

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

This is a week of intense body work, structured for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, and a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released and positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and pleasure can be experienced more fully.

A most important feature of the workshop is the individual Radix®-Reichian intensive, done in a safe, supportive environment. By also using dream work, hypnosis, chiropractic, bioenergetics, massage, dance, and group interaction as one lets go/moves on, a new capacity for living can emerge. $250

Word Magic: Self-Discovery Through Writing

Nancy Bacal

We all have stories inside and the capacity to tell them, but when asked to translate them onto the page, many of us are inhibited by self-judgment. Through the years, Nancy Bacal has evolved a series of writing exercises designed to bypass blockages, to move beyond the controlling arm of the critic, and bring participants to a deep and direct experience of themselves.

This writing workshop can provide a safe, stimulating environment for the non-writer, the would-be writer, and the professional. It offers an opportunity to expand preconceived ideas of what writing can be, chiefly by exploring individual creative forms and processes. The "hidden writer" is encouraged to open the heart, to tap the vast reservoir of material within, and to see the world in a new way.

Nancy says: "To experience life as potential story is to activate awareness of oneself, and to invoke the magical properties of words—enriching our day-to-day lives with wonder and surprise."

$250

Week of February 16–21

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see February 14-16. $490

Psychic Abilities in Science and Everyday Life

Keith Harary & Darlene Moore

Are psychic experiences worth having in a society that doesn't encourage people to have them? Exploring your psychic capabilities can help you become a happier, more self-actualized person, or lead to anxiety, alienation, and identity confusion. How can you tell the difference between genuine psychic experiences and exaggerated claims, imagination, or delusions? Is there any real difference between people who call themselves psychics and the rest of us? Through extensive practice exercises in small and large groups, we will explore ways in which you may develop and make the most of your own psychic potential without losing touch with everyday reality or buying into externally imposed belief systems. We will also discuss experimental, clinical, and subjective approaches to psychic abilities in the U.S. and the U.S.S.R., and examine the treatment of psychic experiences in popular American culture.

$490

Weekend of February 21–23

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Zero Balancing: Advanced Workshop

Fritz Smith

This workshop is for people who have completed at least one introductory zero balancing program. Following a review of basic concepts, time will be spent on answering specific questions and giving individual instruction as needed. New work will focus on exploring the direct perception and assessment of energy currents in the body, refinement of evaluating and balancing the foundation joints, and the discussion of nonfoundation joints, including the small joints of the body. Theory will be clarified by demonstration and individual practice, using each other as models.

This is an accredited program toward zero balancing certification.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 38. $250

The Art of Self-Direction

Lenore Lefer

This workshop is about personal, social, and cultural change. It is about creating, initiating, and directing change as well as responding to those alterations that we seem not to choose. We will explore how to be causal in relation to change and how to include our deepest values. Do we know what is meaningful, and how do we integrate that into our lives? It is an art to lead a self-directed life that includes both personal and social responsibility.

Founded conceptually in psychosynthesis, the focus of this self-exploration will be experiential, using imagery, inner dialogue, meditation, and individual and group process. The environment will be supportive and evocative. This workshop is appropriate for professionals who deal with transitional crises in their own work.

Recommended reading: Pierro Ferucci, What We May Be (J. P. Tarcher); Roberto Assagioli, The Act of Will (Penguin). $250

Wild and Useful Plants

Jesse Longacre

This weekend is for people interested in learning some of the edible and medicinal plants of Big Sur—from the tidepools of the Pacific to the Santa Lucia mountain ridges. We'll begin with a slide show of some of the taste treats we'll be seeking. On Saturday we'll be outside all day in search of herbs, seaweeds, and mushrooms. The hiking will be relatively light. Saturday night we'll examine, identify, and discuss our specimens together and share our insights on the day. At our final meeting Sunday morning we'll feast on our gatherings.

If you want to discover survival foods, add new foods to your diet, or just be with nature and learn something about what you see, this could be a very practical, enjoyable, and tasty weekend. $250

The Bhagavad Gita as a Guide to Counseling

Harry Sloan

"Better is one's own dharma [own style], though imperfect, than the dharma of another well performed. He who does the duty ordained by his own nature incurs no sin."—The Bhagavad Gita

Similarly, William Blake said, "I must create a system of my own or be enslaved by another man's." To the extent we clone someone else's approach or style, even though we perform the task well, if it is at the expense of our true nature we dishonor ourselves.

The Bhagavad Gita is an ancient and sacred text of the Hindus. What the Bible is to the West, the Gita is to the East. The story of the Gita is about a battle. Metaphorically, it is the struggle of honoring our duty to ourselves, and not capitulating to the obstacles and familiar habits that impede deepening and expressing our unique sense of Self. For a counselor the message of the Gita is the struggle to resist the temptation to settle for rote interventions or techniques at the expense of reaching deeper within ourselves for insight and discovery of our own system.

This program may be useful not only for the counselor, but for any in the helping professions who would like to deepen their own unique sense of Self in the process of their professional work. The format will blend experiential exercises with discussion focusing on the pertinent sutras of the Gita that reflect the above theme.

Recommended reading: Swami Nikhilananda, The Bhagavad Gita (Ramakrishna-Vivekananda Center). $250

Week of February 23–28

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Arthur Eric Munyer

For workshop description see January 12-17. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

To make effective, creative choices, you need courage, imagination, and the willingness to know your heart and be true to the dreams that live inside it. Choosing this deeper wisdom can often involve the risk of breaking set—the choice to move against the powerful grain of old fears, habits, and the constant pressures of other people's expectations. To foster this spirit means contacting the elemental-instinctual parts of our natures, befriending rather than suppressing or denying the sexuality and the power out of which initiative and enthusiasm spring.

In this week we will focus on how to develop those qualities in ourselves that contribute to a more adventurous, resourceful, and buoyant way of living. In an atmosphere based in warmth and humor we will explore our capacity for mutual tenderness, respect, and honesty. Traditional psychological practices such as gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis will be used for intensive individual work, as well as non-traditional innovative approaches in body work, kinesthetic retraining, music, and guided imagery. $490

February 23–March 9

Gestalt as an Art Form

Paul Rebillot

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 35. $1230

February 23–March 16

Continuum Dance Meditation Intensive: Waves and Whispers

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 35. $1720

Weekend of February 28–March 2

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, January 10-12, page 38. $265

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 3-5. $250

Reprinting: A Growth Process

Hector Prestera

How does one become un-stuck from imprinted experiences and more fully realize the inner power? Through various approaches including body reading, light trance work, and anchoring (Erickson), participants can explore how powerful the unconscious is in keeping old behavioral patterns locked in, and consider opening new doors toward growth and freedom. New models of behavior can become available.

The workshop will feature individual and group processes, including body release approaches.

Recommended reading: Hector Prestera and Ron Kurtz, The Body Reveals (Harper & Row). $250

Week of March 2–7

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

March 2–21

Sustaining Integration: Body, Self, and Soul

Jack Rosenberg

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 35. $1595

March 2–28

Body Work, Energy Medicine, and the Natural Healing Process

Coordinated by Craig Carr

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 35. $1960

Weekend of March 7–9

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Weekend of March 14–16

Keeping The Spark Alive

Ayala Pines

When two people are in love it seems like the magical spark between them is going to last forever. Unfortunately, more often than not, with the dampening effects of everyday pressures and stresses, the love is eroded and eventually burns out. Burnout is not caused by individual pathology or inadequacy, and it is not caused by major dramatic events. It is caused by a build-up of petty annoyances, minor dissatisfactions, and a gradual increase in boredom. How can this insidious process of love's erosion be prevented? How can a couple in love keep the romantic spark alive?

This workshop is recommended especially for couples committed to keeping the spark alive in their relationships, and for marriage and family counselors. It may also be helpful for individuals who are trying to figure out what went wrong in a relationship that burned out. $250

March 14–21

Closeness, Sex, and Feeling

Peter Levine

Most of us are limited by myths which profoundly influence how we behave sexually. The barriers to physical pleasure are the same that block spontaneity and creativity, and make sex mechanical, impersonal, and compulsive.

In this workshop we will explore, in a supportive and safe environment, ways in which we limit our playful capacity for pleasure and connectedness. We will seek our own truths about our feelings, about ourselves, and about our sexuality. As we see that sex can be part of our natural expressive process, we can begin to reclaim bodily feelings. Sex can become not an act or a goal, but rather a deep expression from within us, an integral part of our loving and being—our joyful birthright.

Methods may include direct body work, dream work, gestalt, and self-acceptance practice. The workshop will involve group participation as well as individual work, and is open to individuals as well as couples. $740

Week of March 16–21

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

The Sound of the Image

Roy Hart Theatre with James Hillman & Patricia Berry Hillman

This workshop is designed to present a field of enquiry embracing new explorations in the psychology of the image (archetypal psychology). The approach centers on how the image can be entered physically, combined with the human voice in its widest ranges, smashed, reformed, revealed in sound, gesture, and scene, and how it directly presents the mythic dimension. This approach recasts the psychological setting into a "petite drame."

We will explore the image in theater—as it is expressed by the actor and as it is perceived by the spectator; and study the anima and animus as structures of sound—the shadow as expressed unconsciously in breath and tone.

Participants will consider the voice as raw material, exploring its qualities for human and dramatic potential. The workshop will include physical exercises, individual and small-group voice work, and performances and presentations by Roy Hart Theatre members. $520

Weekend of March 21–23

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 31-February 2. $250

March 21–28

Psychosynthesis: A Seven-Day Workshop for Professionals

Harry Sloan

Harry Sloan writes: "Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea of what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for what is most familiar—a technique, map, or model. This can lead to the mechanical experience of 'going through the motions' and rote interventions. However, if we could reach for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, the dissonance might open to insight. The result of capturing the moment and responding to the need of the client and to the dynamics of the situation can have a decidedly different effect upon both the guide and client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice can lead to developing wisdom and intuition, transcending the methodologies we use.

"The format will combine individual work within the group setting with seminars, group exercises, and practicum. This program will be useful not only to those who are interested in psychosynthesis, but also to anyone in the helping professions who wants to come into a more creative relationship with his/her discipline.

"Psychosynthesis is the name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration. It recognizes that each human being is spiritual in essence and encourages the realization and expression of this essence, or higher self, as fully as possible in personal and social existence." $740

Week of March 23–28

Our Myth-Body to Live By

Joseph Campbell & Chungliang Al Huang

Joseph and Chungliang continue with their annual collaboration (eighth year at Esalen), exploring the mythic dimensions in body, mind, and spirit with lively stories, music, and t'ai chi dancing. A celebration!

Recommended reading: Joseph Campbell, The Mythic Image (Bantam), Myths to Live By (Bantam), The Way of the Animal Power (Ban der Marck), and The Hero with a Thousand Faces (Bollingen); Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E. P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon). $520

Weekend of March 28–30

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Warriors on Magic Mountain: Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (T'ai Chi Intensive)

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

For workshop description see January 5-10. $250

Death and Resurrection

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

This workshop offers the opportunity to confront, rather than avoid, one of life's most real situations and its only inevitability: your own death. On a wider scale, it explores ways to move creatively through life's many transitions, letting go of the old and welcoming the new.

We will prepare for our deaths by reviewing our lives, completing unfinished business, writing wills. We will plan and celebrate our own funerals. Attachments to persons, things, and self-images are gradually severed until, surrendering all to the ultimate unknown, we are able to experience the birth of the truly new. Reborn, we can begin to create a new life the way we want it. $250

Aggression, Sexuality, and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Lia Thompson & Perry Holloman, with Riley Thompson-Clark & Maya Holloman

How do children gather information and learn to make decisions based on what they have gathered? As parents and teachers, to what degree do/should we intrude or interfere in this information-gathering process? We will examine the critical role that parents, teachers, and other children play in the development of a child's total abilities.

The Gazebo staff believe that allowing a child full interaction with his/her environment, imposing as few limitations as possible, greatly enhances the child's social skills. Particularly in the areas of conflict resolution and natural sexual exploration, the Gazebo experience has enabled children to exercise their initiative successfully. Families may come together in this workshop to discover some of their own resolutions for current challenging situations. $250

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Week of March 30–April 4

I Ching: Easy Learning from the Center

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

Chungliang writes: "This seminar allows you to delve deeper within the superficial understandings and fringe benefits of your I Ching searchings. Penetrate into this resourceful ancient book of wisdom: begin from the core of wholeness, balance the yin/yang polarity, evolve into eight trigram variations, then create the 64 hexagrams holographically.

"You can do it all from the beginning with Chinese brush strokes, the corresponding ideopictogram meanings, and the t'ai chi movement motifs. You may draw references from Wilhelm/Baynes and other translations, and from my personal collaborative learnings from John Blofeld and Lama Govinda. Prepare yourself by reading pages 72-96 of Quantum Soup. Do away with the linear mind and body. One of the meanings of I (as in I Ching) is EASY. Dance the I Ching!"

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E. P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); John Blofeld, translator, I Ching; Lama Anagarika Govinda, Transformations. $490

The Hero's Journey

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Paul Rebillot writes, "Again and again, in my work with people, I have seen the suffering and confusion caused by our society's lack of significant rites of passage. Without shamans or ritual masters to guide them, modern women and men must find their own lonely and usually traumatic paths from one stage of life to another—whether it be a child's discovery that there is no Santa Claus, an adolescent's awkward approach to puberty, a marriage or the ending of a marriage, or a change of career. Every such change requires a movement from one level of being to another.

"Seeing this need, I created a rite of passage universal enough to allow people to discover the pattern of change, whatever that change might be. That pattern is exemplified in the myth of the hero. The new stage of life that is to be reached calls forth a heroic action on the part of the person taking the journey. At the same time, as soon as a new goal begins to emerge, all of the resistance to that goal emerges as well. I call these two forces 'the hero' and 'the demon.' In order for the new state of being to be realized, these two forces must discover how to communicate with each other and how to work together. The old forms must fall away so that the new form can emerge.

"My purpose is to give people a chance to experience a rite of passage so that they can go into the changes in their lives with a sense of joy and greater context. My hope is that through this process people will awaken to their own creative genius and enter into the drama of their lives with imagination and delight."

Recommended reading: Joseph Campbell, The Hero With a Thousand Faces (Bollingen) and Myths to Live By (Bantam). $490

March 30–April 25

Gestalt Practice: A Practicum

Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price & Richard Price

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 36. $1485

Month-Long Esalen Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 36. $1960

Weekend of April 4–6

Living Music

Paul Winter

This workshop focuses on the music in our lives—both within and around us. Through a process of improvisation (using sound, body movement, and poetry) and consorting (combining our natural instincts, our natural music, and our inclination to share in expressing the music of the world), we can embrace the instruments and voices of many traditions: folk, jazz, symphonic, tribal, rock, homemade, and animal. Participants are encouraged to bring any musical instruments (whether or not they can play them), including their voices. No musical experience is required, only an interest in self-expression. $250

April 4–18

Spiritual / Esoteric Practice: The Key to Intuitive and Psychic Development

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 36. $1230

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Week of April 6–11

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

For workshop description see February 14-16. $490

April 6–20

Educating the Genius Within—The Feldenkrais Method

Harriet Goslins

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 36. $1230

Weekend of April 11–13

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 31-February 2. $250

Week of April 13–18

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter & Marianne Paschke-Carter

"Wisdom is the intelligence of the system as a whole."—Gregory Bateson

"Your conscious mind is very intelligent, and your unconscious mind is a hell of a lot smarter."—M.H. Erickson.

Paul writes: "We have an intelligence obtained from our wholeness that is far greater than we are ordinarily conscious of. Erickson called it the 'unconscious mind.' Accessing and integrating this intelligence formed the basis of his hypnotic work.

"This workshop is designed for those who work with people and would like experience with Ericksonian hypnosis, communication, and problem-solving. The emphasis will be on developing a practical understanding of the principles of this approach including trance as a natural and necessary part of health and the idea that people are paradoxical and so too must their communication and problem-solving be paradoxical.

"Through guided exercises and demonstrations, participants will be taught the hypnotic use of metaphor in movement, sound, image, and story, as well as the hypnotic realities of age-regression, age-progression (traveling into futures), lucid dreaming, dissociation, and deep-trance identification (a process of deepening self-awareness through identification with different persons in and out of trance).

"Additional exploration will include: the recognition and use of spontaneous trance states that commonly occur in the course of body work, acupuncture, movement and dance, sports, counseling, and everyday stress situations; the art of using all of the system, including the bad, sick, crazy, and resistant parts; the value of humor, confusion, pattern interruption, and paradox in accessing unconscious creativity and resources; and an integrative approach to problem-solving and self-healing as described in my soon-to-be published book, The Parts Model.

"Course prerequisites: a sense of humor, a warm heart, a little skepticism, a little trust, and an unconscious mind."

Recommended reading: Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (W.W. Norton & Co.); Jeffrey Zeig, Editor, Ericksonian Approaches to Hypnosis and Psychotherapy (Brunner & Mazel). $490

April 18–25

Returning to the Wisdom of Our Earth / Bodies

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

"If a proper reverence for the sanctity of the earth and the diversity of its people is the secret of peace and survival, then the adventure of self-discovery stands before us as the most practical of pleasures." — Theodore Roszak, Person / Planet

Learning about our bodies, our natural instincts and responses, can lead us back to the ancient wisdom of the earth—returning us to our sacredness and wholeness.

The focus of this workshop is to regain an intimate relationship with the natural pulsations and expressions of our bodies, as well as our environment, through a conscious unfolding of our selves physically, emotionally, mentally, sexually and spiritually.

In nature, we can observe the rhythms and patterns that occur in every aspect of life—from the pulsation of the cell, to the ebb and flow of our deepest emotions, to the movement and expansion of the universe itself.

The natural world will be our teacher as we explore the "inner" terrain of our physical and emotional bodies and the "outer" terrain of Esalen and Big Sur.

We will use Reichian gestalt awareness and breath work, deep emotional release, sound, creative movement, and meditation to balance and transform energy blocks in the body (see June 22-27 description). In addition, we will use music, dance, prayer, and ritual to express our relationship with the earth and each other.

Steve Beck

No previous experience is needed, only a willingness to explore this adventure of spirit and discover a deepened sense of the interconnectedness that is inherent in all life-forms.

This workshop is limited to 12 participants.

Recommended reading: Fields, et.al., Chop Wood, Carry Water (J.P. Tarcher); Shakti Gawain, Creative Visualization (Whatever Publishing); Peter Russell, The Global Brain (J.P. Tarcher); Ken Keyes, Jr., The Hundredth Monkey (Vision Books). $740

The Enneagram: A Tool for Identifying and Developing Intuition

Helen Palmer

Helen writes: "For the past several years I have been teaching people how to develop their intuition as a reliable source of information. It has become increasingly clear that adults are especially sensitive to issues and situations that, as children, they were attracted to or needed to defend themselves against. For example, a loved child may develop the ability to merge with the wishes of others and so become highly intuitive about the means of gaining their approval. A child who has had a frightening early life can become precognitively sensitized to anger or negativity in other people. These psychic abilities, centered around the survival issues of childhood, then become an integral part of the adult personality, but the grown up child is usually not conscious of operating from anything other than intellectual information. The key idea is that each person's intuitive style seems to be closely associated with a particular set of issues that derive from early experience.

"The Enneagram is a Sufi system that acts as a bridge between intellect and intuition. It has been taught for generations in the oral tradition. In its present form, it uses the language of psychology to identify nine personality types and their interrelationships. Each personality type has a unique way of looking at the world, and this viewpoint is reflected in a set of preoccupying thoughts and a related intuitive style. Thus, once the focal points of internal attention are identified, a person has a place to begin to look for the related intuitive ability.

"The function of a teacher in the oral tradition is to work first with a group of people who have the same personality type, and to develop a line of questioning which demonstrates the operation of their particular thought strategy. By observing such exemplars, workshop participants will be able to discover their own personality type in this system, and thus their own preoccupying issues and the ways in which they internally sense the presence of these issues. The task is then to be able to distinguish between thoughts about an external situation and intuitive information about that same situation. The second half of the workshop will be devoted to the internal focusing practices that enable one to develop the ability to shift attention between thought and intuitive perception, and to discriminate between psychic and intellectual information.

"The Enneagram workshop is useful to people who wish to develop their intuitive abilities and are working to separate their psychic impressions from their projections. It is particularly useful to anyone who works in a situation where reliable access to intuitive information is important." $740

Week of April 20–25

Aikido in Daily Life

Richard Heckler

Traditional education with its emphasis on abstract thought has denied the potential of the body, leaving us ill-equipped for dealing with change and transitions in our everyday life. Working through the body we can contact an inner energy that has the wisdom to be self-educating and self-healing. We will use exercises and movements from aikido, a Japanese martial art, which can awaken the feeling and perceptive skills of this inner wisdom. The principles of center, ground, positive energy flow, receptivity, relaxation, and appropriate effort under action will be explored, with an emphasis on how they can be applied to everyday life.

The material in this seminar can teach you how to overcome obstacles during times of change and confusion, how to be more effective in stressful situations, and how to develop and trust your intuition.

Recommended reading: Richard Heckler, The Anatomy of Change (Shambhala), Aikido and the New Warrior (North Atlantic Books). $490

Weekend of April 25–27

The First Big Sur International Marathon —An Esalen Approach

Michael Murphy, Steven Donovan, & Margaret Livingston

On Sunday morning, April 27th, the first Big Sur International Marathon will be run on Highway 1 from Big Sur Valley to Carmel. This 26-mile race, run over one of the world's most beautiful and challenging courses, will benefit Big Sur and Monterey Peninsula charities and non-profit organizations. In support of the race, Esalen is creating this special seminar. During the weekend there will be ample time to look over the race course, rest, enjoy a massage, soak in the natural hot mineral springs, and participate in informal discussions on physical fitness, mental training, and other subjects of interest to runners, from research done by Esalen's Transformation Project staff.

In additional support of the race, Esalen will provide accommodations for the world class runners who have specifically been invited by the race committee.

For more information on the race and for an application to enter, write: The Big Sur International Marathon, P.O. Box 222620, Carmel, CA 93923. Phone: (408) 625-6226.

Even if you don't plan to run, come and enjoy springtime in Big Sur, and join the excitement surrounding the inaugural running of the Big Sur International Marathon. $200

Week of April 27–May 2

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see February 23-28. $490

The Lover's Journey: A Quest for the Inner Man, the Inner Woman

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Paul Rebillot writes: "My study of Carl Jung's Psychology of the Transference stimulated me to look into the concept of the alchemical marriage as a process of owning and uniting the various archetypal aspects of ourselves. By exploring my own polarities, I saw how they affect the organization of my personality. By becoming aware of four aspects of myself, the negative and positive man, and the negative and positive woman, I discovered when I am being authentic with others and when I am not. All four must live together within me if I am to experience my wholeness.

"Consequently, I created a process in which people, by developing these roles, can discover how they liberate or how they confuse relationship. By playing out these roles and having fun with them, we can recognize options rather than determinations.

"At the climax of this workshop, participants design and act out a ritual of joining together, a wedding celebration whereby they create the possibility of these four aspects actually uniting within themselves, awakening the seed of individuation." $490

Reflectors

Jenny O'Connor & the NINE

"In this form we become bridge between whole and unwhole, happy and sad, good and bad. We are thought form, the first thought as you, as mankind, assumed shape and the last thought as you choose to leave. What remains is afterthought or vibration as we know it, and so the form begins again. The vibration came before the chicken."—The NINE

"This workshop is an invitation to spend time with The NINE in dialogue and self-discovery. As they move to answer questions, they create a kind of language that bypasses the mental structures of the brain and enters through the pores of the body. It can be beyond expectation because it enters the space between all expectations and, caught unawares, you may find yourself looking at a reflection of yourself that is shockingly familiar, for there may be more of you than you ever believed possible. You may well be compelled to reach across that space between the masks you carry and the self you don't quite yet believe possible and so put the strain of your theater to rest for a while. All this through a meeting, a few questions that seem simple enough in the asking but may rebound in a way that strikes far beyond what you thought you asked. It is a very fast way to know yourself better, in a form that teaches through compassion, humor, intelligence, and a vital concern for the future of us and our planet."—Jenny O'Connor $490

Weekend of May 2–4

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

For workshop description see February 14-16. $250

Songs of Innocence, Songs of Experience

Nancy Kaye Lunney

This weekend is for people who want to sing but are afraid or worried about what others think, for shower singers and choir members who dream of hitting the big time, and for accomplished singers who want to improve their performance. Piano accompaniment and video feedback will be part of a supportive environment for self-expression. Participants are invited to bring their favorite song titles. There will also be a variety of music to choose from at Esalen. $250

Exorcising the Demon "Should"

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Within each of us there lives a demon—our own personal critic—whose greatest joy comes from criticizing, denigrating, and destroying every experience we have. We're either too early or too late, too old or too young, too fat or too thin, and when we fall in love, we're never good enough.

This demon, who commands us to be who we aren't in order to satisfy someone we can never satisfy, is the demon that we will seek to exorcise during the weekend.

What if you actually tried to be everything you think you should be? This monumental task is made easier when confronted with laughter. We will build up that image, and then act it out as fully as we possibly can. We'll contrast that with the experience of ourselves as we are spontaneously. With the help of this experience in contrasts, we will explore our possibilities for movement between the two, and in this way open up our options to the full range of our own authentic being. $250

May 2–10

Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Jessica Moore Britt & Steven Harper

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 38. $490

Weekend of May 9–11

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Leonard Energy Training: The State of the Art

George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

In the world of Leonard Energy Training (LET), problems can become opportunities. Stress and pain can become gifts of energy. Personal and social options may be multiplied, and the flow of vital energy enhanced. Participants are offered the opportunity to make daily life into a dance.

LET is derived from the Eastern art of aikido as well as from Western psychology and physical theory. It is a comprehensive body of work that teaches practical, alternative ways of dealing with life situations. It is not physically demanding. It does not aim at emotional catharsis. Most of the training involves simple movement exercises in which the body itself becomes a learning facility. Participants will practice such things as centering, relaxing under pressure, blending, and alternative ways of being. There will also be discussions of applications to education, sports, management, relationships, social transformation, and personal growth.

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Silent Pulse (Dutton), The Ultimate Athlete (Viking), The Transformation (J.P. Tarcher/Houghton Mifflin). $250

Suffering and Happiness as a Spiritual Path

Sogyal Rinpoche

According to the vision of Buddha, the suffering and happiness that we experience now can actually become the path to inner development. This teaching, written by the Tibetan master Jikme Tenpe Nyima, challenges our basic attitude to suffering and happiness, which are revealed to be sources of understanding, compassion and tranquility. Rinpoche will interweave this teaching with periods of guided sitting meditation practice. $250

Week of May 11–16

Hiking and Gestalt Practice

Steven Harper, Richard Price & Aurora Price

This workshop brings together gestalt practice and hiking. Both are practices in awareness. Both offer a chance to explore "inner" and "outer" wilderness.

There will be a balance of gestalt practice at Esalen and short to medium range day-hikes into the Big Sur backcountry. For more specific descriptions of these two approaches, refer to "Gestalt Practice" and "Big Sur Wilderness Experience" on page 15. $490

Human Potential Theory and Practice

John Heider

This workshop will consist of a synthesis of group process, gestalt, body work, and meditation. The purpose is to educate the human potential, which means the ability people have to become more aware or conscious of themselves and of the world around them. While the workshop will be mostly experiential, there will be time for questions and answers, and for discussion of the work. $490

Pain and Comfort

Dee Dee Lozier & Michael Joyce

Pain makes us grumpy and tired and lowers our self-esteem. This workshop offers opportunities to learn to release pain and create comfort and ease in our bodies.

Group sessions involving imagery, trigger point work, and Feldenkrais lessons will allow participants to explore ways to release pain, increase comfort, and move more easily. There will be opportunities to work with one's own or someone else's pain in the neck, back, and feet. Private sessions will be focused on problems in muscles, joints, and connective tissue, and appropriate use of Feldenkrais, trigger point, and deep-tissue methods. Participants will be given help in creating a program for continuing improvement at home. $490

May 11–June 6

Psychosynthesis Training

Harry Sloan & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 36. $1960

Weekend of May 16–18

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 3-5. $250

Reprinting: A Growth Process

Hector Prestera

For workshop description see February 28-March 2. $250

Week of May 18–23

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom To Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see February 2-7. $490

Shamanic Healing, Journeying, and the Afterlife Experience: Basic and Intermediate Shamanic Practice

Michael Harner

Shamanism is an ancient human strategy for personal learning and acting on that learning, especially for well-being and healing. In this experiential workshop the participants will practice the methods of the shaman (a type of medicine man or woman), to see and to activate power to resist illness and maintain personal health. With the aid of traditional sonic-driving and dancing methods, the group will engage in archetypal exercises and rituals practiced by North and South American Indian shamans to awaken dormant human capabilities and forgotten connections with the powers of nature. Practice will include shamanic journeys to both the Lower- and Upperworlds for knowledge and power, work with animal and plant powers, divination, clairvoyance, and shamanic methods of healing, including the extraction of spiritual pain and illness. There will be an introduction to the Ghost Dance method and to shamanic ways of exploring the afterlife experience. Participants will be taught shamanic methods of helping the terminally ill and their families, and the work of the shaman as psychopomp or conductor of souls.

This five-day workshop is both for beginners and for those who have previously taken a workshop with Michael Harner.

It is recommended that participants read beforehand Michael Harner's book, The Way of the Shaman: a Guide to Power and Healing (Bantam; also Harper & Row), and bring a notebook and pen to preserve their experiences for their own shamanic development. They are also invited to bring drums and rattles. $490

Weekend of May 23–25

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $250

The Further Reaches of Human Energy

George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

This workshop begins with a basic grounding in Leonard Energy Training (LET), in which problems can become opportunities, stress and pain can be transformed into gifts of energy, personal and social options can be multiplied, and the flow of vital energy enhanced. In addition to its practical applications, the workshop offers the possibility of experiencing your own latent powers of intuition and extraordinary sensing.

After their introduction to LET, participants move into experiments that push the limits of what are termed "normal" human capacities. Through such processes as scanning, tuning-in to others' energy, focused surrender and remote viewing, the group is given a chance to experience a crystalline state of intense aliveness without expectation and prejudgment. As George Leonard wrote in The Ultimate Athlete, "Simply by considering possibilities commonly ignored by our culture, we find ourselves in a far more fascinating universe. We discover adventures that do not require the burning of fuel or the rape of the planet; sensing the energy field of a friend or a tree, making connections that defy conventional space and time. . . . We realize, with the sorcerer, don Juan, that our world is awesome, mysterious, and unfathomable, and that our life is filled to the brim and altogether too short."

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Silent Pulse (Dutton), The Ultimate Athlete (Viking), and The Transformation (J.P. Tarcher / Houghton-Mifflin). $250

May 23–30

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

It is rare for most people to use painting for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to paint purely for the process of exploration, not for the result.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide a setting to explore the deepest parts of ourselves through painting—to discover in form and color a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to emotional and spiritual expression. Participants are given the opportunity to discover a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling.

The work takes place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, and a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. The workshop may be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122. (415) 564-8515. $740 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders).

Week of May 25–30

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

For workshop description see February 9-14. $490

Weekend of May 30–June 1

Being All There

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

Being all there—being fully present—was the condition of all of us at birth. The present is still our breath of life and our life-blood. As adults, however, we are often preoccupied with images and ideas of how it ought to be. Rather than responding directly to the situation at hand with all our extraordinary innate capacities, much in us has become immobilized by early conditioning, emotional problems, and habit.

Children and sages have a different way of functioning. For them the world flows into consciousness as the air into their lungs, and their responses are organismic and direct, bypassing the evaluation center which is the educated mind of the adult. It is our own lack of immediacy which is usually felt as tedium and which calls for ever stronger stimuli in the search for joy or self-discipline in the search for peace. By giving up preconceptions and gradually coming to follow our sense of reality, we begin to respond not to what should be but to what is, and the world catches fire for us.

In this workshop participants will explore direct experience, which as it becomes clearer and stronger, will slowly burn away the screen of concepts and restrictions which conditioning has interposed between ourselves and living. For the individual searching for discipline with more reality, this work may have the feeling of solid ground.

Recommended reading: Charles Brooks, Sensory Awareness (Ross Erikson). $250

Diving into the Deep: Dream Discovery

Joyce Frazee

Each night when you disappear below the surface of yourself, what is remembered from the journey is a dream. This workshop will focus on using dreams for emotional and spiritual growth, and for connection with alienated parts of ourselves, and the dreamer in ourselves and others.

Participants may experience the multidimensional aspects of a single dream, noticing the most immediate, pressing, unfinished business present in any dream, and uncovering personal symbols. By keeping a dream journal, participants may recognize that dreams come in series, presenting and exploring a continuing theme. Since many of us forget dreams, exercises in dream recall will be offered. We will work with feelings using gestalt and bioenergetics. We will draw dream mandalas and discover how these can be used for insight and healing. Methods of dream control and lucid dreaming will be discussed. $250

Ashtanga Yoga

Deborah Anne Medow

"The body is a boat which carries the soul in the ocean of the world. If it is not strong or it has a hole, then it can't cross the ocean. So the first duty is to fix the boat." — Baba Hari Dass

The primary focus of this workshop is to utilize the methods of the ancient system of ashtanga yoga in "fixing the leaky boat." Throughout this weekend a cleansing diet and various integrated sessions will be combined to encourage workshop participants to develop a solid basis for further development of the physical, mental, and spiritual aspects of yoga practice. Topics covered will include yoga theory, yoga purification and breathing exercises, and meditation, with particular emphasis on asanas (postures). $250

Week of June 1–6

Being All There

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

For workshop description see May 30-June 1. $490

Wild Dance: Movement in Wilderness

Susan Harper & Steven Harper

"Wild Dance" is an invitation to explore natural movements inspired within the human organism by participation in nature. We listen to impulses within and to impulses of wilderness until "inner" and "outer" disappear. As we surrender to the intelligence which creates life in all its varied forms, we may find ourselves moving in unexpected ways. Our awareness may expand. We may feel a larger sense of self and wilderness, and the creative wholeness of a greater dance.

Sessions will be both indoors and outdoors. Evenings, some day sessions, and most meals will be at Esalen. We will also take short day hikes in Big Sur's backcountry. Participants need not have previous experience in hiking or dance. Come willing and ready to participate in nature's range of motion. $490

Change and Self-Esteem

Phyllis Shankman

Change is an ever-present aspect of living which must be accepted and used creatively if we are to sustain a healthy, interesting and exciting life. Most often we find ourselves actively or passively resisting change while we talk about wanting it. Self-esteem, which includes self-acceptance, self-appreciation and self-confidence, is the aspect of self which enables us to confront our resistance and fear, and increases our willingness to change and take risks.

This workshop includes a unique, in-depth process focused on the ability of each individual to find and allow more personal self-acceptance and well-being, and to confront creatively opportunities for change and growth. Group activities will include gestalt process work, group discussions, massage, meditation, music, dance, art-imagery exercises, and whatever else happens spontaneously. $490

Weekend of June 6–8

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see February 7-9. $250

Inner Sound and Voice

Jill Purce

Jill describes her workshop: "Practical explorations with sound for healing and the transformation of consciousness. By liberating our voice, we can make contact with deep levels of the Self and release an untapped source of energy. Working with the psycho-physical effects of breathing, chanting, mantric, and sonic meditations. Learning to tune and listen together, moving from the intuitive level into meditative states. Developing breath and sound in ways to set different parts of the body-mind in resonance, to give sonic massage, heal and tune the chakras and subtle body. Finding our own note and hearing inner sound, entering directly into the subtle dimension of sound by magical voice techniques, Mongolian and Tibetan overtone chanting. Using mystical sound techniques from traditional cultures to discover our own voice and source of inner power. Exploring trance and mind-transforming music, mantra and musical medicine." $250

Week of June 8–13

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

For workshop description see January 26-31. $490

A Fourth Way Psychology and Characterology

Elena & Claudio Naranjo

"Fourth way" here refers not to transpersonal psychology, which followed in the West upon the "third force" of humanistic psychology, but to the Sufi tradition represented in the West by Gurdjieff and others. This workshop will comprise theory and psychospiritual exercises (both individual and group) through which participants will be led along a self-insight venture called a "protoanalysis" — an exploration of one's life and personality — with the aid of a psychological map called the "Enneagram." $490

Wednesday evening performance Joyce Rogers Lyke

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

This will be an introduction to intensive intraphysic work using Reichian breath work and gestalt practice. Reichian work utilizes breath and sound to energize and deepen the process of self-awareness by softening the body's patterns of physical tension and emotional holding. Gestalt practice is an awareness approach focusing on physical sensation, image, thought, and emotion. By emphasizing a person's experience in the present moment, gestalt moves toward developing a more conscious sense of self. In a supportive group atmosphere, participants will have the opportunity to explore thoughts and feelings formed by past experiences. With this exploration the possibility is opened to come to a truer concept of self, with an expanded ability to respond in the present. This workshop is limited to 14 participants. $490

A Workshop for Adult Children of Alcoholics and Adult Children of Abusive Parents

Karen Paine-Gernée & Terry Hunt

Growing up with parents who are either alcoholic or physically abusive produces certain predictable and specific characteristics which last throughout our lives unless we deliberately address them. If you were exposed to alcoholism or abuse as a child, you may be finding that the very defenses which protected you in that situation are now interfering with your achieving a happy and productive life.

Some of the characteristics Adult Children of Alcoholics and Abusers (ACA's) struggle with are: an inordinate need to control, an overdeveloped sense of responsibilty, fear of authority figures, difficulty with intimate relationships, inability to trust, difficulty having fun, compulsive-addictive behavior, fear of abandonment, and chronic lack of self-esteem.

Alcoholism is a disease of denial. As children in an alcoholic system, we are taught to deny what our own senses know. We tell ourselves that it really wasn't so bad, and we learn to not feel what we cannot tolerate. As we deny the pain, however, we also screen out the joy, and our adult lives are often filled with depression and hopelessness.

The good news, however, is that recovery is possible. The first stage is to begin telling the truth and identifying our childhoods for what they were. The second stage is to reclaim our feelings without being overwhelmed by them. Karen and Terry, both Adult Children themselves, have developed the concept of emotional sobriety as a path of healing. Learning to be in charge of our boundaries, at the same time surrendering to our sense of not knowing, allows us to accept ourselves for who we are. The setting of Esalen combined with the safety of being with people who have all shared similar experiences provides an opportunity to let go of the cycle of pain.

(This workshop was originally designed for Adult Children of Alcoholics, but the number of Abused Children who have come to us saying that the dynamic was the same for them has led us to include them in our invitation.)

Recommended reading: H. Gravitz & J. Bowdon, Guide to Recovery (Learning Publications); Janet Wortitz, Adult Children of Alcoholics (Health Communications); Sharon Wegsheider, Another Chance (Science and Behavior Books). $490

Weekend of June 13–15

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Esalen Wilderness Staff

For workshop description see page 15. $250

Letting Go, Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

For workshop description see February 14-16. $250

Formative Fields and the Habits of Nature: A New Science of Life

Rupert Sheldrake

The hypothesis of formative causation may provide the basis for a new scientific paradigm which goes far beyond the currently predominant mechanistic theory of life. The idea that the form and behavior of living organisms are shaped by morphogenetic fields, themselves molded by the form and behavior of past similar organisms, leads to a new interpretation of heredity and the evolutionary process. Memories need no longer be thought of as somehow stored inside the brain. They may depend on direct connections with the organism's own past due to morphic resonance, and tuning in to the experience of other members of the species may give rise to a pooled or collective memory. In this workshop some of the implications of formative causation for biology, psychology, parapsychology, philosophy, and religion will be explored and discussed.

Recommended reading: Rupert Sheldrake, A New Science of Life (J.P. Tarcher). $250

Love and Work

Anne & John Caple

"Leiben und arbeiten," Freud answered, when asked what the normal person should be capable of. "To love and to work." In this workshop, participants will examine their work lives and work options in the context of their love for themselves, for others, and for the larger world. The group will use integrative exercises, art, and gestalt processes to approach life decisions. The goal is for participants to see more clearly what they want and how to get it. One outcome will be a specific action plan.

This weekend is for those who want more value in their work lives, for career changers and potential career changers, for re-entry persons, and for those who influence others in career choices. Some time will be available for individual life/work issues during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs.

Recommended reading: John Caple, Careercycles (Prentice-Hall). $250

Week of June 15–20

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

Yoga: A Week of Rejuvenation

Ganga White & Tracey Rich

This course will aim at giving participants the inspiration and understanding necessary to create a personal practice of yoga. Yoga brings about a strong, healthy, and flexible body, mind, and spirit. We offer a unique, holistic approach that is flowing and graceful and combines asana (posture), pranayama (breathing), and dhyana (meditation). In addition, our approach can be highly aerobic for those wanting to condition the cardio-vascular system.

The course is open to students of all levels, from beginners to advanced. Students will be shown how to develop a 45-minute daily practice that includes all elements necessary for maintaining optimum fitness. Other topics will include learning how yoga works, aligning and restructuring the body, diet and nutrition, and meditation. A special feature will be "double yoga," a system created by Ganga that allows you to share your practice with a friend.

For additional information or questions you may contact Ganga or Tracey at: White Lotus, 2500 San Marcos Pass, Santa Barbara, CA 93105, (805) 964-1944.

Recommended reading: Ganga White, Double Yoga (Penguin). $490

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Ron Sand

Janet writes: "This workshop will provide a safe environment for exploring the 'unfinished business' in our lives.

"I believe that when unfinished business from the past is projected into current relationships one is prevented from fully appreciating others in the 'here and now.'

"The emotional release methods that I have developed over the past decade support completion of this unfinished business through the honest expression of feelings." $490

Inner Landscapes and Human Evolution: Pathways to Higher Consciousness and Planetary Transformation

Alise Agar, Claudio Naranjo, Kenneth Ring & Andrew Weil

By becoming more conscious of the process by which mind creates reality, it is possible to unlock a variety of pathways—meditation, the appropriate and responsible use of psychoactive drugs, and the near-death experience will be explored by leading authorities in their fields. The workshop will feature day-long programs by each of the presenters. The forum will encompass a combination of lecture, discussion, and experiential exercises. Specific topics to be addressed include: the appropriate and responsible use of psychedelics in spiritual practice and psychiatry, the maintenance of higher states of consciousness through visual imagery and varieties of meditative experiences, and the near-death experience as catalysts for personal, spiritual, and planetary evolution.

Recommended reading: Kenneth Ring, Heading Toward Omega; Claudio Naranjo, The Healing Journey; Andrew Weil, From Chocolate to Morphine and Health and Healing. $490

Weekend of June 20–22

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 31-February 2. $250

Burnout: Causes and Cures

Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines

This workshop is designed for people who give service to others and who are experiencing burnout. It deals with the impact of burnout on both the service provider and the client, ways of finding and recognizing support resources on the job, and positive methods of dealing with burnout and life tedium. Through lectures, group discussions, and input from the participants themselves, individuals will have the opportunity to increase their understanding of those aspects of their own work and life which could cause burnout. In addition they will be provided with the tools and opportunity to learn how to handle these problems in order to increase the productivity and creativity of their relationships with clients and colleagues.

C. E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 38. $250

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Ron Sand

For many people, feelings are something mysterious, something to keep to one's self, or something to think about. This workshop is about all the steps involved in learning to experience, respect, and honor one's feeling process in a way that can increase vitality and personal effectiveness. Participants can learn to separate feelings from thoughts, learn from their own body rhythms, learn to contact their own wisdom, and participate, in a safe environment, in the choice of expression or depression. $250

Minds, Madness, and Psychoactive Drugs

David Richman

In this workshop we will explore the current state of knowledge of human brains and the complex chemistry that is at the heart of brain functioning. Through dialogue, slides, and recordings a basic understanding of minds and mind-altering drugs from psychiatric to psychedelic will be presented. From Antabuse to Ativan to Atropine to Adam; from Cocaine to Caffeine to Cogentin; from Prolixin to Phenobarbital to PCP to Psilocybin; from Thorazine to THC to Transderm Scopolamine through Valium and Xanax we will journey through the spectrum of uppers and downers. The basic issue of informed consent and knowledgeable decision making concerning psychoactive drugs will be emphasized.

Recommended reading: David Richman, Dr. Caligari's Psychiatric Drugs (NAPA-Network Against Psychiatric Drugs); Robert Julien, A Primer of Drug Action (W. H. Freeman); Peter Stafford, Psychedelics Encyclopedia (And/Or Press). $250

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

The work of Moshe Feldenkrais is based on the natural process by which we learned to move as children. During this workshop soft, easy, gentle movements will be used to increase awareness of the body and to improve the ease and ability of movement. Special emphasis will be placed on the difficulties in movement that arise from chronic conditions such as lower back and neck pain, shoulder pain, tension in the neck and shoulders, and knee injuries. Such conditions can be improved by approaching the difficulties as problems in learning rather than as therapeutic troubles. Situations which were "incurable" become "reeducable." Workshop participants will also be introduced to methods to improve their ability to sense each others' bodies through touch and massage.

Although this workshop will be of value to anyone interested in learning more about their bodies through direct experience, it may be of special interest and benefit to dancers, athletes, doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists, health-care professionals, and elderly citizens, who may find themselves discovering new ways of moving with ease and increased flexibility—painlessly and immediately. $250

Week of June 22–27

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $490

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 5-10. $490

The Art of Self-Direction

Lenore Lefer

For workshop description see February 21-23. $490

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

This workshop focuses on how we may consciously unfold ourselves—physically, emotionally, sexually, mentally, and spiritually. Past anger, fear, sadness, and grief, often reflected in the body as tension, pain, lack of spontaneity, and diminished vitality, can keep one from being fully present and alive. By contacting tension and allowing emotion which has been frozen in the body, there is an opportunity to open to the creative flow of life energy within. Allowing this life energy meaningful expression, through true communication with self and others, is the essence of this work.

Some of the areas to be explored this week include: recognizing and releasing tensions which block emotion in the body; using breath and sound to energize and soften the body's tension and emotional holding; contacting and allowing unexpressed sadness and pain, which can increase the capacity for heartfulness, pleasure, and joy; expressing and releasing anger constructively, which can deepen compassion and love while also releasing blocked sexual energy; learning about the nature of fear, and moving toward greater trust of self and others. Paying special attention to the mental processes that shape the emotional and physical body, participants will be shown ways to trust their bodies' responsiveness and inner direction.

This workshop will utilize Reichian body and breath work, emotional release, gestalt practice, the Bates system of eye relaxation, massage, dance, meditation, and various other approaches. $490

Weekend of June 27–29

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 14. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see January 17-19. $250

Aggression, Sexuality, and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Lia Thompson & Perry Holloman, with Riley Thompson-Clark & Maya Holloman

For workshop description see March 28-30. $250

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

For workshop description see June 8-13. This workshop is limited to 10 participants. $250

The Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program: An Update

James Hickman & the Exchange Program Staff

Since its inception in 1979, the Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program has demonstrated significant success in pioneering innovative and imaginative approaches to Soviet-American cooperation. Based on our two nations' common interest in human potential and consciousness, our non-governmental approach to peacemaking emphasizes the need for understanding both the similarities and the differences in disparate cultures.

This project has emerged over the past ten years as members of the Exchange have traveled extensively throughout the Soviet Union establishing personal relationships with Soviets from all walks of life including scientists, political philosophers, artists, athletes, and government officials.

In this seminar we will review the projects in the Exchange Program and share our insights about the intellectual, cultural, and spiritual aspects of the transformational journey on which we have embarked with our Soviet friends and colleagues. The seminar leaders believe that if Americans evolve a deeper understanding of Soviet culture, the United States government might evolve a more creative Soviet-American policy. $250

Cynthia Johnson

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs. Participants in the focused programs must be prepared to stay at Esalen for the *full duration designated for that particular program, assuming that they meet the standards of the work-study program. No participants will be accepted as work scholars in Gazebo or the office until they have fulfilled a minimum of one month in one of the aforementioned departments.

Most evenings and two intensive weekends are spent together as a group exploring different practices and approaches available at Esalen, with specifically assigned leaders who will be with the group throughout the month, coordinating the study schedule and facilitating many of the evening sessions.

The program is usually divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc.

Focused programs planned thus far for 1986 include:

January 5–March 2: Jessica Moore Britt coordinates a two-month program on recognizing essential states of being, using subtle body theory, gestalt, Reichian, and wilderness practices.

March 2–30: Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita) and Daniel Bianchetta offer a program integrating gestalt practice, Reichian breath and body work, creative movement, intuition practice, and energy awareness.

March 2–30: Benj Langdon coordinates a program of creative movement, possibly using imagery, Feldenkrais, gestalt, Rolf®-movement, massage, Hakomi, and contact improvisation.

April 27–July 20: Esalen massage practitioners offer a three-month program in body work, with instruction in massage, movement, and self-care. For more information, see Massage Practitioner Certification Program, Special Programs, page 37. The cost of this program is: $800 first month, $750 second month, $700 third month.

July 20–August 17: George Kohlrieser offers a program integrating attachment and separation theory with neo-Reichian body work, bonding, regression, re-parenting, and group process.

July 20–September 14: Seymour Carter coordinates a two-month program focusing on gestalt practice, with emphasis for, but not limited to, professionals.

September 14–October 12: Jessica Moore Britt focalizes study of energy and pulsation using gestalt, Reichian breath work, movement, touch, and ritual.

In as much as the Work Study Program is a complete program in itself, please do not plan to take regularly scheduled catalog workshops during your stay. Professional services, such as massage and Rolfing®, are available at staff rates.

Accommodations are shared, with up to four people to a room, usually at South Coast Center, a staff complex located 1½ miles north of Esalen.

The 28 day Work Study Program costs $600 for the first month. A $300 deposit in U.S. currency is required with your application. Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second month, at a cost of $550, or a third month at a cost of $500 depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. Attention: Beginning April 27, the cost of all Work-Study Programs except the April 27-July 20 body work program is $700 first month, $650 second month, $600 third month. The deposit will be $350. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

NOTE: This application is not a registration in the program. Registration is made only after approval of application and upon receipt of deposit. Please return this form with your deposit to:

Work Study Program, Esalen Institute,
Big Sur, California 93920. Telephone: (408) 667-2335.

The balance of the fee is due on arrival. Of the original deposit, $100 is non-refundable, and may be transferred to other Esalen programs within one year of receipt.

Available dates: January 5–February 2; February 2–March 2; March 2–March 30; March 30–April 27; April 27–May 25; May 25–June 22; June 22–July 20; July 20–August 17; August 17–September 14; September 14–October 12; October 12–November 9; November 9–December 7; December 7–January 4; etc.

Application to the Work Study Program

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Date of Birth _____ Occupation _____ Place of Employment _____

Daytime Telephone (_____) _____ Date of Application _____

Evening Telephone (_____) _____ Male ☐ Female ☐ Smoker ☐ Non-smoker ☐

I prefer the general interest program: yes ☐ no ☐ I prefer the focused program in: _____

Participants in the focused programs must be prepared to stay at Esalen for the full duration designated for that particular program.

The Work Study Program is for 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. Please list the dates of your choice, listing two alternative dates as well.

1st: _____ to _____ 2nd: _____ to _____ 3rd: _____ to _____

Work scholars may sometimes be invited to remain for a second or third month, depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. If an invitation is extended, please indicate your availability. (Not applicable to focused program applicants.) ☐ no extension ☐ one-month extension ☐ two-month extension. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs.

If you have emergency medical skills (M.D., E.M.T. or R.N.) and are willing to make those skills available during your stay, please check here. ☐

Please attach a personal statement about your interest in the Work Study Program, including: your available skills, especially English language skills, which are essential for participation in the program; any medical difficulties which might affect your working in any departments; any Esalen workshops you have attended (please list program titles, group leaders, and dates).

Special Programs

January 5-31
Tutorial Program in Shamanism, Shamanic Healing, and the Harner Method of Shamanic Counseling

Michael Harner

Enrollment is limited. For information, and to apply, write to the Center for Shamanic Studies, Box 673, Belden Station, Norwalk, CT 06852, which is sponsoring the program.

February 23-28
Quality Life: Senior Executives

John Soper

A special program is being offered to senior executives interested in living life at its highest quality. The workshop is open to a small number of participants who are not limited by resources. Please contact John Soper, Burns Creek, Big Sur, CA 93920, or call (408) 667-2431.

February 23-March 9
Gestalt as an Art Form

Paul Rebillot

The focus of this workshop will be on teaching the basic principles of gestalt as an art form—the materials of that form being our own human process of individuation. Participants are invited to think of themselves as artists engaged in the great work of creating their own life process. With the basic tools and concepts of gestalt, we will combine elements of myth, ritual, and dreams; music, drama, and dance; the plastic arts, painting, and drawing—so that people will leave at the end of the workshop with a rich palette to play with in the process of unfolding their own life stories.

The workshop will be both a practicum in gestalt and related art forms for those engaged in the helping professions, and an experiential group for those seeking personal expansion. Previous experience with gestalt process is necessary, but it is not necessary to have previous experience as a gestalt facilitator.

Looking at gestalt as an art form takes away the necessity for immediate results and absolute resolution of problems. In working with myth and ritual, we can go beyond the historical biographical material of our personal lives, beyond even the personalized symbolic and archetypal information that comes through dreams, into the dreams and goals of the human race. We seek ourselves in the Self of humanity. Whatever comes out of us in working with an art form—whether it be clay or paint, drama or dance—becomes material for an open seat session, to be explored in order to expand our consciousness of ourselves and our capacity for living and being.

Please bring notebooks, paper, and colors, and if you like, paints.

Recommended reading: Joseph Campbell, Hero With a Thousand Faces (Bollingen), Myths to Live By (Bantam); Bruno Bettelheim, The Uses of Enchantment (Random House). $1230

February 23-March 16
Continuum Dance Meditation Intensive: Waves and Whispers

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper

Within our skin is a world of movement, not just the familiar movement of liquids and organs, but a dance of intelligent life. This is an invitation to dance.

The inner movement is different from spatial movements such as walking. We call it "intrinsic movement." It is a great facilitator of our body's healing powers, a source for the development of an organic awareness that is fundamental to all intelligence, and a way to understand movement as what we are, rather than an activity we do.

The workshop will be focused on breath, sound, and what we call the "movement of movements."

Each breath is like a motif or theme of a musical composition. The implications of this orchestration involve a re-ordering of our nervous system, refinement of our sense perception, and the ability to pay attention at the deeply organic levels of movement where molecules spin and cells commune.

Sound also plays an enormous part in these orchestrations, making the breath audible. Through audible breath we create new possibilities in our ability to affect ourselves, both as healers and as a way to tune ourselves to the evolutionary thrust on earth.

The movement of movements is the overall flow in the many currents of eddying patterns of motion. Some of the movements can be experienced as wavelike undulates, some are pulsing micro-movements, some have the vibratory hum of tissue, and some the sparkling charge of an electrical current. When all these different movements flow together without interference, we call this "fluidity."

The workshop will be open to both advanced and beginning participants. $1720

March 2-21
Sustaining Integration: Body, Self, and Soul

Jack Rosenberg

This workshop will start wherever you are in your inner journey. The work is an in-depth integration of body and gestalt practices and the transformative process of consciousness.

The course will cover:

Psychology of the Self: Working with early unfinished situations that interrupt our sense of well-being and interfere with our relationships in the present. Sexual implications of this work will be dealt with in body work and in lecture.

Body Work (Integrative Body Approach): Theoretical and practical application, combining Integrative Body Practice, yoga, and aerobics and massage, assisted by Andrea Juhan.

Transformative Process of Consciousness: As our inner journey progresses, our figure/ground is shifted from "doing" and "having" to "being" and to our relationship with the eternal. We will explore ways to integrate and sustain these new awarenesses in our everyday life. $1595

March 2-28
Body Work, Energy Medicine, and the Natural Healing Process

Coordinated by Craig Carr

In this four-week intensive we will explore blending body work such as massage, connective tissue work, and Trager, with newly rediscovered energetic approaches such as acupuncture, zero balancing, radionics, homeopathy, and others. Hands-on practice, zero balancing training, and didactic presentations will be the core of the workshop. Principles of gestalt will also be taught, and process sessions will be regularly scheduled. Health professionals may find integration of these practices useful in their work with clients.

Interested applicants should include a letter stating background, interests, and the goals you would meet by participating in this program. For a complete course syllabus write to Craig Carr, c/o Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Limited scholarship is available.

Recommended reading: Rosemary Feitis and Ida Rolf, Ida Rolf Talks About Rolfing and Physical Reality (Harper & Row); Connelly, Traditional Acupuncture, The Law of the Five Elements (Centre for Traditional Acupuncture, Inc., Columbia, MD); Dana Ullman, Everybody's Guide to Homeopathic Medicine (J.P. Tarcher).

C. E. credit is available for nurses, for additional information see page 38. $1960

March 30–April 25
Gestalt Practice: A Practicum

Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price & Richard Price

Gestalt practice is an experiential form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, non-judgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls. In this practice the quality of one's awareness is made primary, especially as focused on breath and physical sensation. See page 14 for a more detailed description.

This program is designed for people with established client-oriented practices, such as counselors, body workers, nurses, teachers, etc., who would like to integrate gestalt practice skills in their professional life as well as have concentrated time to attend to their personal growth. The curriculum will include sessions in which participants work individually with the leaders in a group setting ("open seat" work) as well as practicum sessions when group members work with each other in supervised situations. Some sessions will be video-taped for review and discussion. Although gestalt practice is the primary focus, related approaches will be presented, especially those which enhance ability to focus awareness on breath and the body.

This is a scholarship program and all participants are required to work sixteen hours per week in the Esalen community. This work commitment is part of the program and participation is contingent on its fulfillment. Some additional scholarship assistance is available. To apply for the workshop, send a brief letter describing your present work and how you imagine this experience would relate to your professional and personal growth. Address application to Christine Price, c/o Esalen.

$1485

March 30–April 25
Month-Long Esalen Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This month long program offers, at a professional level, intensive instruction in massage practice, movement, and self-care. The emphasis will be on developing basic massage skills through daily lecture-demonstrations including "hands-on" practice sessions using one another as models, illustrated anatomy classes, and instruction in the basic principles of alignment. Meditation and gestalt awareness sessions will be scheduled regularly throughout the program for deeper, more integrative learning. Body work will be studied as a function of optimal well-being and stress reduction, and as a valued aid to transpersonal growth. Workshop sessions will meet Sunday through Friday and on alternate weekends. At the satisfactory completion of the program, and after an additional 30 recorded massage sessions, a California state-approved certificate of completion will be issued. This is a professional program, with limited admission. Please request an application form when you make your reservation. $1960

April 4–18
Spiritual/Esoteric Practice: The Key to Intuitive and Psychic Development

Anne & Jim Armstrong

Anne & Jim write: "We feel that a well-developed, directable intuition is a natural, healthy outgrowth of self-realization. But unless we are willing to create the proper environment through self-discipline, meditation, and being mindful of everything we think, feel, say, or do, this powerful force will remain dormant within us. This two-week workshop will concentrate on building a firm esoteric/spiritual foundation for serious students interested in using intuition as a factor in their lives and professions. This will be accomplished by drawing from many ancient and modern spiritual disciplines, including meditation and yoga, while emphasizing the spiritual and ethical use of the intuitive/psychic process. Participants will be given intensive instruction and practice in the practical aspects of intuitive work—in counseling and other professions as well as in everyday living. They will also receive instruction on learning to recognize, trust, and apply their own psi abilities through lecture, basic exercises, and practice on selected cases. During the exercises Anne will use her "tracking" abilities to assist participants in developing their own inner sensitivity.

"Although esoteric and metaphysical explanations and background will be presented where appropriate, this is not a primary goal of the program. Particular attention will be placed on helping the participants differentiate between perception and projection, and between psychic and intuitive input." $1230

April 6–20
Educating the Genius Within—The Feldenkrais Method

Harriet Goslins

"By my body's actions . . . teach my mind."
—Shakespeare

The habitual way you sit, stand, or move reflects patterns that are "wired-in" to your nervous system. This information can be erased or changed. By re-educating the brain/muscle connection, restrictions in your movement are freed, freeing also the life-time habits that have organized around that movement.

Awareness-through-movement lessons are a relearning of the ease and fluidity you took for granted as a child and lost somewhere along the way. Physical injury, emotional trauma, or on-going stress all evoke a protective response from the body. These patterns, necessary at the time, remain when no longer needed, outside of our awareness, and continue to cause discomfort and unnecessary limitation. Freeing them results in relief of chronic pain or tightness, a more restful sleep, and a higher energy level. When you change how you hold your muscles, your entire protective posture is altered, deeply affecting the body's habitual defense system. Thus, new movement possibilities mean new self-image possibilities.

This workshop is for those who are physically active and fit and want to increase their skills while learning to reduce risk of injury, for the sedentary or those dealing with after-effects of injuries, and for the average person who feels chronically tired and stressed and wants to learn how to take better care of his neck, shoulders, and back, to improve his posture and breathing, and to live and move with more flexibility and comfort.

Recommended reading: Moshe Feldenkrais, Awareness Through Movement. $1230

May 11–June 6
Psychosynthesis Training

Harry Sloan & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Learn your techniques well and be prepared to let go of them when you touch the human soul.
—Carl Jung

Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for the familiar—a technique, map, or model. This leads to the mechanical experience of "going through the motions," and using rote interventions. In those moments, if we can stretch for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, dissonance often opens to insight, with a decidedly different effect upon both client and guide—that ineffable sense of capturing the moment. The interventions that follow are dynamic, uniquely suited to the particular needs of the client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for the essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice tends to develop our inherent wisdom and intuition, a context which transcends methodologies.

I must create a system of my own or be enslaved by another man's. —William Blake

For people to strengthen their own unique style, training programs need to self-correct for the tendency to emphasize techniques, maps and models at the expense of developing the participants' intuition or "own system." At its extreme, the blind adoption of form creates a cloning of a leader's approach and/or style. The challenge of this training will be two-fold: to hold the door open to our intuition (our own system); and to utilize creatively the methods of psychosynthesis and the skills of disciplines with which we have identified. The program can be useful for anyone in the helping professions who wants a more creative relationship with their discipline. The format will combine experiential seminars, meditative practice, process work, body work, readings, supervisions, and practicum. Psychosynthesis leaders will be invited in at times to offer their specialty. Participants will have the opportunity to recognize and work with the process of psychosynthesis in themselves and in others, and to develop the practical experience needed to begin applying the methods of psychosynthesis in their work. Some of the themes covered in this program are: guiding as a meditation, developing and aligning the major aspects of our personality, body, feelings, and mind; principles and practice of guided imagery; multiplicity, conflict, and integration in the personality; balance and synthesis of opposites; utilizing the superconscious or transpersonal dimension to recognize, release, and transform blocked energies; the dynamic energy of love as a vehicle for change and healing; grounding (the process of translating psychological awareness and insight into deliberate behavioral change); levels of perception—intellect, intuition; spontaneity and the fear of making mistakes; the principle of synthesis as a quality of the will and as the unifying principle of individual growth and human evolution.

Psychosynthesis is a name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration, recognizing that each human being is spiritual in essence, and that the fundamental opportunity available to us is to realize and express this essence, or Higher Self, as fully as possible in the world of everyday personal and social existence.

A packet of reading materials is available on receipt of a $20 check payable to Harry Sloan, P.O. Box 18185, San Francisco, CA 94118.

$1960

Massage Practitioner Certification Program

Esalen is now offering a California state-approved certificate upon successful completion of its three month work-scholar program or one month residential massage practitioner program, and 30 additional massages. Each program fulfills the state requirement of at least 130 hours of instruction, supplemented with additional study in body-mind disciplines such as yoga, gestalt awareness work, and movement.

Healthspring Traveling Workshops

The Esalen massage teachers and their associates have created Healthspring, an independent organization devoted to extending their work into an outreach program. The workshops offer practices to help increase physical and spiritual health and awareness within the body, and can be designed to suit the needs of individual groups. The curriculum combines such approaches as massage, meditation, dance, neo-Reichian work, creative movement, gestalt, yoga, breath enhancement, anatomy, and other health-strengthening disciplines.

Healthspring will conduct workshops at locations outside of Esalen in your hometown or city. For more information on scheduling a Healthspring group in your community, write to: Healthspring Traveling Workshops, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Wilderness Programs

Esalen Wilderness Programs Refund Policy

Most expenses in wilderness programs are incurred preparing for your arrival. The refund policy reflects the fact that few of these expenses can be recovered.

To reserve a space in a wilderness workshop, we require the following deposit:

Up to 3 days	$50
4-7 days	$100
Over 8 days	$200

The balance of the fee is due 14 days before the program begins. If you cancel prior to 30 days before the program begins, your nonrefundable deposit may be applied to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year. If you cancel from 30 days up to the starting date of the trip, your deposit is forfeited.

January 10-12
Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

Ski-touring is a state of mind, a balance of boldness and caution, and an exploration of the ever-changing winter wilderness. The Sierra Nevada becomes a silent, magical place when the snow begins to fall in November. We have the range to ourselves to glide through meadow and forest, savoring the sparkle and solitude only ski-touring affords. Touring is an easy skill to learn. After a few hours of instruction you can be ready for your first tour.

Whether you're a beginner or intermediate cross-country skier, this weekend can help perfect your technique quickly and easily. Expert instruction and the use of videotapes help you master the effortless kick-and-glide of the accomplished skier. On Saturday, we will ski on the set tracks and be taught how to move easily. Sunday, we will pack our lunch and ski-tour through gently rolling terrain, where, for those who wish, we review and teach the wedge turn and the telemark turn. Both nights we will stay in cozy cabins at Kirkwood where we can sample delicious meals and top off the day's activities in the nearby hot springs. Skis, boots, poles, lodging, and all meals are included. The trip begins Friday afternoon and ends Sunday afternoon at the airport in South Lake Tahoe. $265

February 28-March 2
Sierra Ski-Touring: Gentle Pleasure of Flat Tracking

Dick Galland, Annie Callaway-Galland & Kirkwood Touring Center Staff

For workshop description see January 10-12 on this page. $265

May 2-10
Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Jessica Moore Britt & Steven Harper

Nature can provide us with opportunities to stretch our limits and explore our inner wilderness. By living in a natural environment we can expand our sense of self and depth of being.

The group will spend a day and a night at Esalen, leaving the next morning to hike through the Ventana wilderness. We will travel "light," with instruction in minimum impact camping, ecology, and the geography and cultural history of the area.

Wilderness will be our mirror and primary teacher, as we live simply and in direct contact with nature. We will explore our inner world of dreams, feelings, and sensations as they emerge, using gestalt awareness practice and group process. Taking inspiration from natural and native purification practices, we will create a time of cleansing and contemplation, culminating in a 24-hour period alone. The group will hike on to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center, deep in a rugged wilderness valley, with natural hot springs, for our last night together. There, meditation instruction will be available for those who wish it. Backpacking experience is not necessary, though participants should be prepared for the challenge of vigorous physical activity. More information will be sent upon registration. $490

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state-approved provider for continuing education for health professionals. Only those programs specifically listed below offer continuing education credit. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category 1 approval. Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Physicians

June 20-22
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines
10 hours

Registered Nurses

January 24-26
Anatomy for Trager Students
Deane Juhan
12 hours; C. E. credit is available through the Trager Institute

February 9-14
Craniosacral System: Basic Workshop
Jim Asher & Jane Harrington
30 hours

February 21-23
Zero-Balancing: Advanced Workshop
Fritz Smith
10 hours

March 2-28
Body Work, Energy Medicine, and the Natural Healing Process
Coordinated by Craig Carr
30 hours

June 20-22
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines
10 hours

Future Programs

November 2-28
Integrative Body Practice Training Program

Jack Rosenberg

For details write the Rosenberg Institute, 1107 W. Washington Blvd., Venice, CA 90291, c/o Marjorie Rand.

Biographical Information

A

Alise Agar, p. 32 ... former program director for the Institute for the Study of Consciousness in Berkeley, California, is currently investigating the use of psychoactive drugs in psychotherapy.

Anne Armstrong p. 18, 25, 36 ... has been doing transpersonal counseling for over 18 years and has trained professionals to use their own intuitive abilities.

Jim Armstrong, p. 18, 25, 36 ... a former engineer, is a life-long student and teacher of esoteric studies.

Elliot Aronson, p. 32, 38 ... professor of psychology at UC Santa Cruz, is author of 12 books, including Burnout (with Ayala Pines).

Jim Asher p. 21, 38 ... has been practicing cranial work since 1973. He is a Rolfing® teacher and an advanced Rolfer®, certified by Ida P. Rolf.

B

Nancy Bacal, p. 21 ... novelist, lyricist, and filmmaker, has taught writing workshops across the country for years. Her work includes the award-winning film "Raga," starring Ravi Shankar.

Jamie Baraz p. 18 ... has taught vipassana (insight) meditation with Joseph Goldstein, Jack Kornfield, Stephen Levine, and others in the U.S. and Asia. He has led San Francisco area classes and retreats since 1977.

Robert Bathurst, p. 21, 28 ... professor, writer, former diplomat and naval officer, has specialized in Soviet literature and Soviet strategy since he was an interpreter at Camp David during the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks.

Daniel Bianchetta p. 21, 29 ... practices intuitive readings, shiatsu, and deep tissue work at Esalen. He is a teacher and student of Siddha yoga.

Jessica Moore Britt, p. 14, 28, 31, 33, 34, 38 ... coordinator of Esalen in-house programming, is a practitioner of gestalt, Reichian, and wilderness approaches to healing and essential development.

Charles Brooks, p. 29, 30 ... author of Sensory Awareness, the Rediscovery of Experiencing, has been a teacher of sensory awareness since 1963, often in conjunction with Charlotte Selver.

C

Annie Callaway-Galland, p. 17, 23, 38 ... professional wilderness guide, family counselor, and hatha yoga teacher, has been leading Esalen trips for many years.

Joseph Campbell p. 24 ... is a professor emeritus at Sarah Lawrence College. He is a mythologist, lecturer, and author of The Hero With a Thousand Faces, The Masks of God, and Myths to Live By.

Anne Caple p. 31 ... is a student of transpersonal psychology, technical writer, editor, and fiber artist.

John Caple p. 17, 31 ... is a career counselor, worklife advisor to business, and college professor.

Craig Carr p. 23, 35, 38 ... is a licensed acupuncturist, certified zero-balancer, and Esalen deep-tissue practitioner, working in Big Sur, and Monterey, California.

Paul Carter, p. 25 ... co-founder and director of Meta-Education and Training Arts since 1976, leads workshops in the U.S. and Europe in Ericksonian hypnosis, creativity, and learning.

Seymour Carter, p. 34 ... longtime gestalt teacher at Esalen and in Europe, brings to his work studies in sensory awareness, Zen Buddhism, aikido, and other body-oriented practices.

Michell Cassou p. 29 ... is the founder of an original approach to painting designed to stimulate and unblock creativity. She is director of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Stanford Eugene Cates p. 20, 24, 27, 28 ... is an ordained minister, gestalt facilitator, and Trager bodyworker. He has worked with Paul Rebillot in the U.S. and Europe for seven years.

Ann Christie p. 19 ... received a primal certificate while training with Arthur Janov and is a specialist in Ericksonian hypnosis in private practice in Los Angeles.

Jack Cirie p. 20 ... is a certified Leonard Energy Training instructor and aikido practitioner, and an experienced leader of workshops on conflict resolution, body awareness, and performance.

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, p. 22, 35 ... a professional dancer and teacher of movement, has studied and performed ballet, modern jazz, Afro-Cuban, and primitive dance in New York and the West Indies.

Stewart Cubley, p. 29 ... artist and scientist, is a co-founder of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

D

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita), p. 26, 33, 34 ... a certified Radix® teacher on the Esalen faculty, has over 12 years of experience combining Reichian body work, gestalt, Bates vision work, movement, and meditation in group and private instruction.

Steven Donovan p. 27 ... is director of The Transformation Project and an Esalen trustee.

E

Patrick Douce, p. 32 ... a resident at Esalen since 1972, teaches ongoing classes in Feldenkrais awareness-through-movement and is available for individual sessions in functional integration.

Esalen Massage Practitioners p. 25, 33, 34, 36 ... Peggy Morrison Horan, Deane Juhan, George King, Bill Liles, Deborah Anne Medow, Laurie Muller (Lioness), Arthur Eric Munyer, Brita Ostrom, Vicki Topp, and Attila Vaas.

F

David Feinstein, p. 17 ... a psychologist, is director of Innersource in Ashland, Oregon, and has taught at Antioch College and the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

Joyce Frazee, p. 30 — gestalt and dream work practitioner in Vancouver, Canada, for 14 years, has training in Jungian dream analysis, bioenergetics, and group process.

G

Dick Galland, p. 17, 23, 38 — professional wilderness guide and fly fishing instructor, was founding director of Southwest Outward Bound and currently heads Clearwater Trout Tours. He has led Esalen trips for many years.

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) p. 21, 25, 31 — is a chiropractor, certified Radix® teacher, Bates vision instructor, and is in private practice in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Joe D. Goldstrich, p. 17 — author of The Best Chance Diet, cardiologist, and past medical director of the Pritikin Longevity Center, currently practices homeopathy in Pacific Palisades, California.

Harriet Goslins p. 25, 36 — is a Feldenkrais practitioner and an awareness-through-movement teacher with a background in psychosynthesis and applied kinesiology.

Richard Gunther, p. 20 — a business entrepreneur, has for 25 years studied the problems and possibilities of mid-life, and is co-author of Who Needs Mid-Life at Your Age?

H

Betsy Hand, p. 20, 30 — former resident staff member of the Gestalt Institute of Canada, has 20 years experience with families, couples, and groups. She is in private practice in Kentfield, California.

Thomas Hanna p. 20 — is director of the Navato Institute for Somatic Research and Training, editor of Somatics magazine, and author of The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt.

Keith Harary, p. 22 — a psychologist who has been conducting psi research as a scientist and remote viewer for over 15 years, is co-author of The Mind Race.

Michael Harner, p. 29, 35 — an anthropologist who has studied shamanism among South and North American Indians for more than two decades, is the author of The Way of the Shaman and Hallucinogens and Shamanism.

Steven Harper p. 15, 28, 30, 38 — teaches for Colorado Outward Bound and the National Outdoor Leadership School, and is currently the coordinator of the Esalen Wilderness Programs.

Susan Harper p. 22, 30, 35 — teaches Continuum Dance Meditation workshops in Los Angeles and San Francisco, leads "Dance the River" trips on wild rivers, and has presented at the Joy-Spangler Asilomar Conference.

Jane Harrington p. 21, 38 — holds a masters degree from Lone Mountain College and is a certified Rolf®-movement teacher with extensive craniosacral experience.

Richard Heckler p. 27 — is a psychologist, author, and co-founder of the Lomi School. He has a third-degree black belt in aikido.

John Heider, p. 28 — a psychologist in private practice in Coconut Grove, Florida, is a group leader and teacher of group leaders. He was part of the Esalen Residential program from 1967-71.

James Hickman p. 33 — is director of Esalen's Soviet-American Exchange Program.

James Hillman, p. 23 — a Jungian analyst in private practice, has held major lectureships at American universities and abroad. His latest book (with Charles Boer) is Freud's Own Cookbook.

Patricia Berry Hillman p. 23 — is a Jungian analyst in private practice and visiting professor at Syracuse University, Yale, and the University of Dallas.

Maya Holloman p. 24, 33 — has been a student at Gazebo since she was six months old.

Perry Holloman, p. 24, 33 — a former teacher at Gazebo school, currently is a member of both Experiencing Esalen and Gazebo workshop staffs.

Paul Horn p. 17, 18 — is a flutist, jazz musician, creator of the Inside albums, philosopher, and teacher of meditation.

Chungliang Al Huang p. 17, 18, 24 — is a t'ai chi dancer, artist-calligrapher, and philosophical entertainer. He is founder / president of Living Tao Foundation, Urbana, Illinois.

Terry Hunt, p. 31 — a licensed psychologist practicing bioenergetic analysis in Boston, directs a flotation tank center for amelioration of somatic and addictive disorders.

J

Karen Johnson p. 18 — is co-founder of the Ridhwan Institute, a work school dedicated to the discovery, development, and preservation of the human essence.

Michael Joyce, p. 28 — longtime group leader in the U.S. and Europe and Feldenkrais practitioner, directs a neuromuscular clinic for a Veterans Administration hospital.

Deane Juhan, p. 19, 38 — a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years, is a certified practitioner of Trager psychophysical integration.

K

Fred Kalmus, p. 21, 25, 31 — co-founder of the Alternative Choice Counseling Program, leads workshops in stress management for corporations and individuals.

Kenneth Kelzer p. 17 — works as a transpersonal educator and counselor in California. Using dream work, he has been conducting classes and groups for over 10 years.

George King, p. 21 — a massage practitioner for 22 years, has worked throughout the U.S., Europe, and South America.

George Kohlrieser, p. 34 — a clinical psychologist with an international practice, researches and applies attachment and separation theory to relationships, psychosomatic illness, violence prevention, and hostage negotiations.

Stanley Krippner, p. 17 — psychologist, researcher, and director of Saybrook Institute's Center for Consciousness Studies, authored / co-authored Human Possibilities, Realms of Healing, and Dream Telepathy.

L

Stephen LaBerge ..... is a scientist dedicated to the transformation of human consciousness. He teaches and does research at Stanford University on conscious or "lucid" dreaming.
p. 18

Benj Langdon, ... former coordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body, is currently exploring transformation through body practices.
p. 19, 30, 34

Lenore Lefer, ... currently maintaining a private practice in San Francisco, is on the training staff of the Psychosynthesis Institutes of London and San Francisco, and teaches psychosynthesis at the California Institute of Transpersonal Psychology.
p. 22, 33

Annie Styron Leonard ..... is a founder of the Energy Training Institute in Mill Valley, California, and an aikido brown belt.
p. 28, 29

George Leonard ..... is author of Education and Ecstasy, The Transformation, The Silent Pulse, and The Ultimate Athlete, aikido black belt, and leading human potential theorist.
p. 28, 29

Peter Levine ..... has practiced and taught Reichian body work for many years. He holds doctorates in medical biophysics and psychology. His interests include the effects of stress on children and infants.
p. 23

Margaret Livingston ..... is research associate with Esalen's Transformation Project, and winner of the Women's Open Division of the 1977 Pike's Peak Marathon and 1980 Dipsea Race.
p. 27

Jesse Longacre ..... is a naturalist, specializing in the uses of plants, seaweeds, and mushrooms. He now teaches at the California School of Herbal Studies.
p. 22

DeeDee Lozier ..... is a Feldenkrais practitioner who studied with Moshe Feldenkrais in the U.S. and Israel.
p. 28

Nancy Kaye Lunney ..... is a gestaltist and musician on Esalen's faculty, has specialized in work with professionals in the creative arts, does individual as well as group work, and is manager of programming at Esalen.
p. 28

M

Jacqueline Mandell ..... is a meditation teacher who leads retreats and workshops in the U.S., Canada, and Europe, and is currently writing a book on spirituality.
p. 19

John Marks ..... is director of Search for Common Ground in Washington, D.C., fellow of Harvard's Institute of Politics, and associate of Harvard's Department of Psychology and Social Relations.
p. 20

Nancy Mayer ..... is the author of The Male Mid-Life Crisis: Fresh Starts After 40, and has been practicing the art of journal writing for 15 years.
p. 18

Deborah Anne Medow, ... Esalen group leader and body work practitioner since 1969, teaches ashtanga yoga, massage, creative movement, gestalt awareness, and related healing disciplines throughout the U.S. and Europe.
p. 14, 21, 22, 30

Ailish Mellard, ... holistic health practitioner and body worker for 12 years, is currently organizational consultant for Will Schutz Associates, which teaches human potential concepts for various organizations.
p. 19

Darlene Moore ..... is a writer who is currently authoring a science fiction novel about psychic experiences, and co-authoring The Psychology of Psychic Experiences with Keith Harary.
p. 22

Arthur Eric Munyer ..... is a teacher and practitioner on the Esalen massage crew and was one of the first faculty members at Gazebo school.
p. 19, 22

Jezariah Canyon Munyer, ... born February 11, 1983, is his parents' favorite teacher.
p. 19

Laurie Schutz Munyer, ... a long-time Esalen resident and former staff member, has worked at Gazebo school and is a practitioner and teacher of Esalen massage.
p. 19

Michael Murphy ..... is co-founder of Esalen Institute and founder of The Transformation Project. He is author of Golf in the Kingdom, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports, and An End to Ordinary History.
p. 27

N

Claudio Naranjo, ... theorist of growth disciplines and former resident at Esalen, introduced meditation as a component of gestalt practice, and has explored the use of psychedelics in psychotherapy.
p. 30, 32

Elena Naranjo ..... is an actress, midwife, and yoga teacher with a background in the Fourth Way tradition.
p. 30

O

The NINE ..... "We are pure thought human fantasy seeking a road to the birth canal of reality where we will be seen as 'The NINE.'"
p. 28

Jenny O'Connor ..... is a psychic from England, and is a channel for "The NINE."
p. 28

P

Brita Ostrom, ... a long-time Esalen massage practitioner, incorporates Trager training with the personal energetic connection of the Esalen massage.
p. 18

Karen Paine-Gernée ..... leads groups for Adult Children of Alcoholics in Cambridge, MA. She is on the faculty of Omega Institute, The New York Open Center, Interface, and Spring Hill Institute.
p. 31

Helen Palmer ..... is a practicing clairvoyant. She directs the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition. Her teaching approach utilizes personality issues as access points to psychic perception and the inner life.
p. 20, 21, 27

Wendy Palmer, ... a teacher and director of the Lomi School, holds a black belt in aikido and is co-founder of the Tamalpais Aikido and International Movement Arts Center.
p. 20

Leslie Pam, ... president of the Los Angeles chapter of Marriage and Family Counselors and a former director of The Primal Institute, specializes in Ericksonian hypnosis in private practice in Los Angeles.
p. 19

Marianne Paschke-Carter ..... combines movement, hypnosis, conscious breathing, and Trager psychophysical integration in her work with individuals, families, and groups.
p. 25

Ayala Pines, p. 23, 32, 38 ... a social psychologist at UC Berkeley, and a licensed psychologist in private practice, is the author of Experiencing Social Psychology, and Burnout: From Tedium to Personal Growth.

Hector Prestera, p. 23, 29 ... a physician, acupuncturist, Rolfer®, certified neurolinguistic trainer, and practitioner of Ericksonian work, is in private practice in Monterey, California.

Aurora Price p. 28 ... is an experienced hiking companion with four legs and white fur.

Christine Stewart Price p. 14, 25, 36 ... combines gestalt awareness practice with guided imagery and various forms of body work. She considers herself a born-again pagan. (Paganism: religion of the earth.)

Richard Price p. 25, 28, 36 ... is co-founder of Esalen and has been practicing gestalt as a facilitator for over 12 years.

Jill Purce p. 30 ... is author of The Mystic Spiral. She studied the mystical dimension of sound with Karl Heinz Stockhausen, and the magical use of the voice and overtone chanting with Tibetan lamas.

R

Paul Rebillot p. 20, 22, 24, 27, 28, 35 ... was founding director of the Gestalt Fool Theater Family in San Francisco and has been a resident group leader at Esalen.

Tracey Rich p. 32 ... is a director of the White Lotus Yoga Retreat in Santa Barbara and leads seminars nationally.

David Richman, p. 32 ... a psychiatrist specializing in psychosomatic disorders, biofeedback training, and psychopharmacology, is the author of Dr. Caligari's Psychiatric Drugs, and advocates civil rights in psychiatry.

Kenneth Ring, p. 32 ... active in the field of near-death studies since 1977, is a psychology professor and president of the International Association for Near-Death Studies at the University of Connecticut.

Sogyal Rinpoche, p. 28 ... Tibetan incarnate lama, scholar, and meditation master, was raised by Buddhist master Jamyang Khyentse Chokyi Lodro, and studied at Cambridge University.

Jack Rosenberg, p. 23, 35, 38 ... author of Total Orgasm, has trained in gestalt and Reichian work, worked with cancer research and transformation of consciousness, and is currently in private practice in Venice, California.

The Roy Hart Theatre, p. 23 ... an international theater company based in Malèrargues, France, is known for its research into the use of voice in theater.

S

Ron Sand, p. 32 ... a health care practitioner in the San Francisco Bay Area, is a student of gestalt process and is studying with Janet Zuckerman.

David Schiffman, p. 17, 19, 20, 22, 23, 25, 27 29, 32, 33 ... a long-time group leader at Esalen, is involved in developing full expression of mental, physical, and spiritual states of being.

Elisa Lodge Schiffman p. 17, 19, 20, 22, 23, 25, 27, 29, 32, 33, 36 ... trained in structural integration with Ida Rolf and is an advanced teacher of Rolf®-movement integration.

Will Schutz, p. 19 ... founder of the Antioch holistic studies department, is the creator of The Human Element, a set of training materials for organizations, and author of Joy and Profound Simplicity.

Charlotte Selver p. 29, 30 ... teaches sensory awareness, perception, and non-verbal and verbal communication. A center has been built for her at Green Gulch Farm through the Zen Center, San Francisco.

Phyllis Shankman, p. 30 ... a licensed counselor in private practice in West Los Angeles, specializes in group process, and is interested in self-acceptance and change.

Rupert Sheldrake p. 31 ... is a biologist and author of A New Science of Life.

Harry Sloan, p. 22, 24, 29, 36 ... a 1969 Esalen resident fellow, former dentist, and playwright, worked with Roberto Assagioli, the founder of psychosynthesis, and is in private practice in San Francisco.

Fritz Smith p. 22, 38 ... is a physician, cranial osteopath, certified acupuncturist, and founder of zero balancing. He is in a private holistic health practice in Watsonville, California.

Gerald Smith p. 20, 30 ... is a psychologist in Belmont, California. He is the author of Hidden Meanings and Couple Therapy.

John Soper p. 14, 35 ... came to gestalt from a highly successful international career in business. Resident at Esalen since 1978, he practices both interpersonal and intrapersonal gestalt.

Brother David Steindl-Rast, p. 19 ... Benedictine monk, hermit, psychologist, and author, has lectured on all five continents. He is concerned with the spiritual challenges of our time.

T

Lia Thompson p. 14, 24, 33 ... has been a Gazebo teacher for six years. She is currently a co-ordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body and a member of the Gazebo workshop staff.

Riley Thompson-Clark p. 24, 33 ... has been a student at Gazebo since she was three months old.

Vicki Topp, p. 18 ... Esalen massage staff member since 1968, teaches soft and sensitive use of pressure point and deep tissue massage combined with emotional and transpersonal body practices.

W

Judyth Weaver, p. 19 ... a Reichian counselor, certified teacher of t'ai chi ch'uan, and student of Buddhism and Taoism, holds a doctorate in psychology and teaches at the California Institute of Integral Studies.

Andrew Weil, p. 32 ... author of The Natural Mind, The Marriage of the Sun and the Moon, and From Chocolate to Morphine, studies natural medicine and altered states of consciousness.

Z

Ganga White, p. 32 ..... an internationally known teacher and master of yoga, is author of Double Yoga and has received the titles "Yogacharya" and "Yogiraj" (King of Yogis) in India.

Paul Winter p. 25 ..... is an environmentalist, musician and recording artist. He is founder / artistic director of Paul Winter Consort, and of Living Music Foundation in Litchfield, Connecticut.

Janet Zuckerman p. 32 ..... was an emotional release and group process teacher at Esalen for 12 years. She has a private practice in San Francisco.

Friends of Esalen

We invite you to join us in our organization—Friends of Esalen.

Friends of Esalen provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

We believe that one of our first priorities is to make our programs available on a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions to fund such scholarships. Esalen will, in turn, match your contribution.

In addition to knowing that you have given someone else the opportunity to experience Esalen, you will receive the Esalen Catalog for one year. We hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the sharing and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

☐ I wish to become a Friend of Esalen and I enclose my check for the category circled.

☐ I wish to renew my membership in Friends of Esalen.

One Year Student	$15	One Year Donor	$50	One Year Patron	$500
One Year Individual	$25	One Year Sponsor	$100	(Contributions are tax-deductible)

Name _____ Student Affiliation _____

Street _____

City, State _____ Zip Code _____ Date _____

Please mail to: Friends of Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920

Catalog Subscription Information

The Esalen Catalog is published tri-annually. Subscription cost for one year is $10 for the United States, $12 for Canada and Mexico, $16 for Europe and South America, and $18 for all other countries. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

☐ To obtain future issues of the Esalen Catalog for one year, please send a check or money order in U.S. currency drawn on a U.S. bank only to: Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. A pre-addressed envelope is included in this catalog for your convenience.
(Note: People who attend an Esalen workshop or conference will receive a free subscription for one year.)

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ Please send a complimentary copy of the Esalen Catalog to the person listed below:

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Please notify us if you change your address and check here ☐ if you are receiving duplicates of the catalog.

Food for the Senses

a book of recipes and artwork by people of the Esalen community is now available. To order by mail, use the following form.

Please send me _____ copies of Food for the Senses at $5.95 each, plus an additional $1.25 per book for postage and handling, or a total of $7.20. (California residents add $.35 tax.) I am enclosing a total of $ _____ .

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Please mail to: Food for the Senses, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920. Make checks payable to Esalen Institute. Allow 6 weeks for delivery.

Audio Recordings

The Dolphin Tape Series

The human potential movement generates unusual events which produce unusual recordings. Each issue of the Esalen Catalog has listed titles and also a few from the Big Sur Recordings archives. Nearly all tapes are stereo, from live events, and tape length is normally 1 to 1½ hours.

Single-tape titles are $10 with prepayment (purchase orders add $1 per tape):

Rupert Sheldrake: Morphic Resonance and Memory, 1985
Fritjof Capra: Characteristics of Systems Thinking, 1985
Fritjof Capra: Ecological Vision, 1985

Albert Hofmann: The Transmitter-Receiver Concept of Reality, 1984
Albert Hofmann: Interviewed by Stan Grof, 1984
Stanislav Grof: Principles of Holotropic Therapy, 1985
Kenneth Ring: Near Death Experiences, 1985

Robert Anton Wilson: The I in the Triangle, 1984
Paul Rebillot: The Pluto Story: Journey into Madness, 1984

Julian Silverman: A Light-Hearted Course in Miracles, 1984
Anna Halprin: Peace Meditation, 1983
Jack Kornfield: Simplicity of Spiritual Practice, 1982
Reb Anderson: Entry Into Buddhist Meditation, 1984
Reb Anderson: Basic Points of Buddhist Meditation, 1984

Jule Eisenbud: Psi Experience in Psychotherapy, 1984
Jan Ehrenwald: Psi Experience and the Bergsonian Filter, 1984
Charles Tart: Our Fear of Psychic Abilities, 1984

Stanley Krippner: Multiple Personality Disorder, 1983
Paul Rebillot: Conflicts at the Ego Frontier, 1983
Christina Grof: Kundalini Awakening and Spiritual Emergency, 1981

Terence McKenna: Mind, Molecules and Magic, 1984
Dennis McKenna: Activity of Ayahuasca and OopKoey, 1984
Richard Yensen: The Use of LSD in Psychotherapy, 1984

Robert Bly: The Six Powers of Poetry, 1983
Robert Anton Wilson: The Prism Lecture (Santa Cruz), 1982
Terence McKenna: New and Old Maps of Hyperspace, 1982
Albert Hofmann: LSD and the Nature of Reality, 1978

Anne Armstrong: On Being a Psychic, 1971
Alan Watts: Divine Madness, 1968

Aldous Huxley: Human Potentialities, 1962
Abraham Maslow: Self-Actualization, 1966

Two-tape titles are $18 with prepayment (purchase order price is $20):

David Steindl-Rast: (2) Mysticism as a Frontier Experience, 1985
David Steindl-Rast: (2) What Makes Mysticism Christian? 1985
Father Bede Griffiths: (2) Convergence of Religions, 1983

Karl Pribram: (2) The Holographic Model Today, 1985
David Finkelstein: (2) Ancient, Medieval and Classical Physics, 1984
Frank Barr: (2) A History of Philosophy, 1983

Ralph Metzner: (2) Varieties of Human Transformation, 1984
Stanislav Grof: (2) The Geometry of Psychopathology, 1984
Stan & Christina Grof: (2) Holonomic Consciousness Paradigm, 1982

Jean Houston: (2) The Possible Human (Boston ATP Conference), 1979
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Story of Basque Mysticism, 1982
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Egyptian Tarot, 1982

Andrew Weil: (2) Use and Abuse of Beneficial Plants, 1982
Andrew Weil: (2) Interplay of Mind and Body Realities, 1982
Ilana Rubenfeld: (2) The Rubenfeld Synergy Method, 1982
Charlotte Selver/Charles Brooks: (2) Sensory Awareness, 1980-1982

Wilson Van Dusen: (2) Interviewed by Michael Murphy, 1963
Wilson Van Dusen: (2) Confronting Hallucinations, 1968

Four-tape titles are $36 with prepayment (purchase order price is $40):

David Steindl-Rast: (4) Healing and the Christian Myths, 1984
Father Bede Griffiths: (4) Return to the Center (The Ojai Series), 1983
Jack Kornfield: (4) Buddhist Meditation and Practice, 1981

Theodore Roszak: (4) The Unfinished Animal, 1982
Jack Rosenberg: (4) A New Understanding of Relationships, 1982
Anne & Jim Armstrong: (4) A Psychic Training Program, 1981

The Dolphin Vinyl Album Sets

Rupert Sheldrake: (6) Seminar on the Presence of the Past, 1985	$60
Robert Anton Wilson: (6) Seminar on the I in the Triangle, 1984	$60
Robert Bly & Angeles Arrien: (6) Love in the Western World, 1984	$60
Julian Silverman: (6) Further Commentaries on A Course in Miracles, 1981	$60
Andrew Weil: (6) Integrated Consciousness and Health (The Mann Ranch), 1976	$60
Julian Silverman: (6) Commentaries on A Course in Miracles, 1980	$72
Jack Rosenberg: (8) Sustained Integration: Body, Self & Soul, 1981	$72
Buckminster Fuller: (8) The Pajaro Dunes Tapes: A Weekend Seminar, 1977	$72
Gregory Bateson: (12) The Informal Esalen Lectures 1975-1980 (Library Archives)	$98

Please add $2 to your complete order for handling and mailing, plus $2 for mailing each vinyl album set ($4 if you wish priority mail). California residents include 6% tax. (Institutional purchase orders please add 10% to album cost unless check is enclosed.) Please mail your order with check payable to: DOLPHIN TAPES, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, CA 93920. (No order will be accepted with a postmark after June 1, 1986.)

This page is an advertisement: Dolphin Tapes is a sole proprietorship independent from Esalen. Esalen Institute assumes no responsibility.

The Media Center

Esalen Videotape

This 18-minute videotape, which tells Esalen's story from its early history to the present, is an inexpensive way to view the general offerings available at Esalen. The visuals consist of 130 color slides featuring scenes of the Big Sur coast, Esalen's garden, grounds, and various workshops and activities. The musical soundtrack is by Paul Horn, Joel Andrews, and "Pinchey Pete" Velasquez.

Cost: For Rent:

½" VHS color video cassette ..... per week $10.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette ..... per week $15.00

Cost: For Sale:

½" VHS color video cassette $35.00
¾" U-Matic color video cassette $40.00

This program is available for purchase in its original form—a two-projector slide dissolve show which can also be viewed with a single projector.

Cost: For Sale:

Slide Program—including 130 slides, cassette tape, and script (pulsed tape for Entré 7610 dissolve unit available on request)..... $150.00

Please address your order (with a check payable to Esalen Institute): Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. A $10 deposit is required on all rental tapes; please send a separate deposit check. California residents add 6% sales tax for sale purchases. Overseas air mail orders please add additional postage: each slide program $10 ($15 for Australia and Asia), each video cassette $7, each slide set $1.

Films

Films of the work of Fritz Perls, Carl Rogers, Abraham Maslow, Rollo May, Virginia Satir, Alexander Lowen, and others, are available from Psychological Films, 110 North Wheeler Street, Orange, California 92669. For color documentaries with Alan Watts, Huston Smith, Lama Govinda, Joseph Campbell, Edgar Mitchell, Margaret Mead, and others, write Hartley Productions, Cat Rock Road, Cos Cob, CT 06807. A film or video cassette on Chungliang Al Huang's work, entitled Tai Chi: The Watercourse Way, is available through KLB Productions, 490 Redwood Road, Corralitos, CA 95076. Regarding the documentary on Gregory Bateson, send inquiries also to KLB Productions at the above address. Recent color videotapes of Stephen Levine and Ram Dass on "Conscious Living/Conscious Dying," and of Daniel Ellsberg, Helen Caldicott, and others on the nuclear issue are available from Original Face Video, Box 447, Grass Valley, CA 95945.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Esalen Institute Reservations

This form is for your convenience in reserving a space in Esalen workshops. In completing the form, please indicate the name, address, and telephone number of each person registering and clearly indicate the title of the workshop for which each person is reserving a place. A registration fee for each person registering and each workshop applied for must accompany this form. (See General Information, page 47.)

(Please Print)

Name _____ Sex M ☐ F ☐

Address _____

City, State _____ Zip _____ Occupation _____

Telephone Number: Home: Area Code ( ) _____ Work: Area Code ( ) _____

There are sometimes unexpected situations that may require us to contact you immediately before your stay here. If you will not be at the above numbers during the two weeks prior to the workshop, where may we reach you? If you can't be reached, please call us before your scheduled arrival for final confirmation. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

(On additional paper please repeat the above information for every person in your party making a reservation. Mail to Reservations, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.)

Check if you want: ☐ housing as a couple, shared bed

Do you smoke? _____

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop, for phone numbers of other guests from your area.

Check here ☐ if you do not want us to give out your number for the purposes of ride sharing.

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. (For further details see Ways of Being at Esalen, page 14.)

Bus Service:

I want bus service from (check one):

_____ Monterey Greyhound Bus Station at 4:45 pm

_____ Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm

on _____ (date of arrival, Fridays & Sundays only)

The $20 per person charge is payable on arrival at Esalen. If your plans for use of the bus change after you submit this reservation, please notify us. Esalen bus service is not available at any time other than as listed above.

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Name of Person Registering	Date(s)	Leader's Name/Title of Workshop	Deposit Enclosed

Total amount enclosed: $ _____

Please make checks payable to Esalen Institute in U.S. currency only.

Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks.

Your reservation can be charged to:

MasterCard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express ☐

Card No. _____

Expiration Date _____

All workshops require nonrefundable reservation fees. See page 47. The balance of program fees becomes payable at the time of check-in.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some people, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

General Information

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esselen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute-By Reservation Only.

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop, for phone numbers of other guests coming from your area.

Reservation Information: In order to reserve a space in any workshop we require a reservation fee of $50 for weekend groups, $100 for five-day groups, $150 for seven-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups, payable in U.S. currency only. Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks. Balance of payment is due on arrival. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year of receipt. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

Please mail all reservations to:
Reservations, Esalen Institute
Big Sur, CA 93920

We are able to process mail reservations more effectively. If you are concerned about workshops being full or have any questions, you may make reservations by phone if you use your MasterCard, Visa, or American Express credit card number to charge your reservation fee.

Phone (408) 667-2335
Office Hours:
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

If there is no answer during our regular business hours, and the phone company confirms that our phones are out of order, please call our alternate number (408) 372-8719, for recorded up-to-date workshop, road, and transportation information.

Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Check-out time is noon of departure day. Rooms become available at 4 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive any time after lunch.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Gazebo School: Any requests for child care should be sent at least one month in advance, to Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Senior Citizens' Discount Information: Esalen offers a special discount to individuals over 60 years of age. The discount for a weekend workshop is $25, and a five-day is $50. Discounts are available only when you make your reservations. Please present proof of age when you register. Senior discounts are not available for Wilderness Programs.

Ongoing Residence Program: Offered from October through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are canceled, so second choices are advised. Many community programs are also open to residents. The cost is $1960 per 26 day period.

Health Services: We are unable to provide medical supervision or pharmaceutical supplies. If you are on a health-care program and you plan to spend several weeks at Esalen, please arrive prepared to administer to your health-care needs.

Illegal Drugs: In accordance with state and federal laws, the possession or use of illegal drugs on Esalen grounds is strictly prohibited.

Room and Board: Bed spaces not required for workshop participants are sometimes available for room and board. Accommodations are shared and the rate is $60 per person per day on weekdays, and $75 per person per day on weekends. Room and board rates include dinner on the day of arrival and breakfast and lunch the following day.

Private rooms are sometimes available. Rates are $100 per person per day, $110 per couple per day on weekdays, and $135 per couple per day on weekends. Special family rates are available. Please phone the office for additional information.

Bus Service: We have bus service from the Monterey Greyhound station at 4:45 pm and from the Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm on Fridays and Sundays. If you plan to use this service, please inform the Esalen office at least 24 hours prior to your arrival. The charge for one-way service is $20, payable to the Esalen office when you check in. Return reservations may be made at the same time. The bus leaves Esalen at approximately 6:30 pm. Bus service to Esalen is not available at any other time.

Seminarians as Staff (Volunteers): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are requested to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff, usually in the kitchen. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Contributions to Esalen Institute are tax-deductible.

The expenses of attending Esalen, including travel, are deductible for federal income tax purposes as an educational expense if incurred to maintain or improve professional or work skills. (See Income Tax Regulation 1.162-5.)

Esalen Institute reserves the right to cancel any program at any time.

Conferences at Esalen: It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Its activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

Esalen Institute
Big Sur
California 93920

DATED MATTER

Non-Profit Org.
U.S. Postage
PAID
San Francisco, CA.
Permit No. 9059

The Esalen Catalog

May-October, 1986

Contents

Volume XXV, Number 2

Biographical Information 37–42
Catalog Subscription Information 43
Conferences at Esalen 9
Esalen Seminars 10–32
Experiencing Esalen 8
Experiencing Esalen: The Body 8
Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa 8
Feature:
Remembering Richard Price 4–7
Friends of Esalen 43
Future Programs 36
General Information 46
Gestalt Practice 8
Media Center 44
Medical Programs 35
Reservations Form 45
Scholarship Information 9
Special Programs 36
Ways of Being at Esalen 8–9
Wilderness Programs 34–35
Work Study Program and Application 33

Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920
Phone (408) 667-2335
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday
& Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

Catalog Editor: Nancy Knapp
Graphic Design: Barbara Adamson
Art Direction: Barbara Adamson
& Joyce Rogers Lyke
Contributing Editor: Keith Thompson
Consulting Editor: Nancy Kaye Lunney
Editorial Assistance: Virginia Arnone,
Jaelitza, Linda Roberts, Ellen Watson
Editorial Review: George Leonard
Cover Photograph: Kathleen Thormod Carr

Esalen Board of Trustees:
Mark Dayton
Steven Donovan
Jack Downing
Victoria Elliot
Stanislav Grof
Bokara Legendre
Nancy Kaye Lunney
Michael Murphy
Christine Stewart Price
Marius Robinson
Paul Rosenblum

©1986 Esalen Institute
All Rights Reserved.

Contact is the appreciation of differences.
—Fritz Perls

. . . and the recognition of similarities . . .
—Richard Price

Joyce Rogers Lykit

Richard and Christine Price, August 20, 1979

Remembering Richard Price

(October 12, 1930–November 25, 1985)

Richard Price died on November 25, 1985, while hiking in the Big Sur hills he loved so dearly. As far as anyone can tell, he died almost instantly when he was hit by a falling boulder.

At a meeting a few days after his death, 60 or 70 members of the Esalen community reminisced about him. Two staff members described hikes with him that helped restore their strength and confidence after personal misfortunes. Another told about his encouraging smile during a gestalt session, how it gave a sense that underneath all the contradictions and suffering everything was somehow all right. Two or three others talked about his contagious sense of self-sufficiency which helped them see that they might find pleasure in the simplest things. Though I had known Dick for 25 years, there were stories I had never heard before—about those he had helped with his humor, cheerfulness and by the example of his integrity and sweetness. The many ways he touched others for the good, the sheer number of things he had done for us all was astonishing; and in the weeks that followed people who hadn't been there added their stories to those we heard that night.

Though he possessed a natural buoyancy and generosity, Dick's helpfulness to others arose largely from the practice by which he converted his own suffering into self-awareness and personal freedom. In his 20s, he had been forced into 67 insulin shock treatments after entering a "psychotic" state which he considered essentially a healing process, complete by the time of this involuntary hospitalization. Through the years he gradually transformed the wounds from that experience into a deeper understanding and feeling for others. By faithfully addressing his own conflicts, he developed an ever greater capacity to help others heal themselves. At Esalen he helped establish a milieu in which others may explore the sources of their suffering and options for a richer life. His work has influenced other practitioners and communities, and will do so in the future.

Dick was also an adventurer. He explored many edges of experience, through the gestalt awareness practice he learned from Fritz Perls, through meditation and other disciplines, and in the wilderness. He probably cleared more trails through the coast ridges and canyons than anyone else, just as he opened new ways to awareness by his work at Esalen. He was fearless in these explorations, finding joy in the rugged Big Sur country as he did in the reaches of inner experience. There was in him something of both John Muir and a wild Taoist monk.

He was gentle and wild, caring and courageous, life-giving and a joy to be with. Dick is gone now, but he will be with many of us for the rest of our lives. Knowing him was an extra-ordinary gift and privilege.

Michael Murphy

Back to the Source

It was a pilgrimage of sorrow that we seven undertook. Light from a nearly full moon filtered through the branches above us illuminating patches of earth and rock. Below us, the creek, running full with the recent rain, sang its song to the night. We walked in silence alone with our thoughts. I carried the blanket that we would wrap him in while others, ahead, carried the stretcher basket. We walked along the waterline trail that he had helped build after the fire. I can see him still, coming out of the canyon in the late afternoon, covered with sweat and dust, looking like a coal miner with white eyes and teeth flashing joy as he talked animatedly about the work.

He went back there this morning, perhaps on this same trail, to note the changes since the recent storm, to check the waterline, to commune with the Spirit in his own way. He didn't tell anyone he was going. And he went alone. He planned to be out only a few hours because he had appointments in the afternoon, but he missed them, and people began to wonder and be concerned.

Chris called me about 8:30 PM to say he still hadn't returned, and she wondered if Dick had made his 3:30 appointment with Steve Donovan. He hadn't. Donovan had waited for him and then left to return to San Francisco. I asked if she thought we should start looking for him, and she said that no one really knew where he went hiking, and that if he wasn't back by morning, we could begin to search. Once, several years ago, he had spent a couple of nights out during a howling winter storm. He had become disoriented by the heavy rain and poor visibility and found shelter in an abandoned cabin up on Devil's Creek. When the storm let up, he bushwacked his way out to the highway and jogged home, scratched and hungry. But this felt different. There was no storm, and the moon provided ample light for walking.

I was uneasy with the possibility that he might be seriously hurt and unable to help himself. A long night without medical help might prove to be a tragic delay, and so I asked Glenn, the gate supervisor, to contact Steve Beck to let him know of Dick's absence and see if he would be willing to join me on a hike up Hot Springs Canyon to look for him.

Steve contacted me shortly, via CB radio, and I suggested that we hike back to "the source," the name we give to the catch-basin located nearly a mile back in Hot Springs Canyon where Esalen collects its water. He agreed, and so we started back about 9:30 PM with medical supplies, warm clothes, hot coffee and some cookies. Our flashlights cut the darkness as we entered the canyon, not on the waterline trail, but along the stream. We walked, looking for signs of his passage, whistling and shouting occasionally, and listening for any sounds in reply. It was slow going, picking our way over slippery rocks and downed trees, and not a little eerie. We crossed the stream several times, finding the easiest walking, and made steady progress. Steve led most of the way while I whistled and shined my light up and down the sides of the canyon. As we neared the source, Steve, still in the lead, shouted for me, and I could tell by the way he called that we had found him.

Esalen water source

He was just a few feet from the catch-basin, half sitting, half lying in the water. There was a large wound on his forehead, probably from the huge rock that had crushed part of the basin. We couldn't tell the extent of his injuries, and at that point it didn't seem important to know because he was clearly dead, his muscles already quite stiff. We sat there with him, trying to comprehend what our senses told us, but somehow unable to accept that it was true. We knew in that moment that our world had irrevocably changed, and our hearts ached, especially for Chris, Jenny, and David.

After assuring ourselves that there was nothing to be done for him, we hiked out on the waterline trail thinking silently, and occasionally out loud, about how we were going to break this news.

It was about 11:30 PM when we arrived at the Little House. Chris was sitting on the couch next to the fireplace. Jessica and Pam were sitting with her; Jenny was sleeping. As we walked in nobody said anything for a moment. "It's not good," I said, "we found him back at the source. He's gone." I showed them the watch I had removed from his wrist, as if that could somehow make more real this unbelieveable message. There were many questions. How did it happen? Where is he now? Do you think he died quickly? And we said what we knew and guessed that he had probably died instantly. We hadn't moved him because we knew that the coroner would want to see the scene as we had found it, but as we talked it became clear that it was most important now for Chris to see him and be with him. She wanted to get him out of the water and wash his body and care for him the way families used to care for their dead. She wanted time to begin to integrate this awful reality in the most human and loving way possible, and so the decision was made to go back and bring his body home. I hoped the coroner would understand, but it didn't really matter; we knew we were doing the right thing for Dick and ourselves.

And so we hiked on until we reached the spot where he lay. We placed him on the stretcher basket, wrapped the blanket around him and buckled the straps securely. Before carrying him out, we joined hands together around him in silent prayer. It was a two hour journey out and we arrived back at the house at 3:15 AM to find Chris, Jessica, Pam, Janet, Bette, Nancy, and Joyce waiting to receive him. They cut off his clothes and washed his body with an herbal solution and wrapped him in a clean sheet and blanket.

Dick, after a day in Hot Springs Canyon working on construction of the water line, as photographed by Jennifer Price.

As the morning dawned, calls went out to his friends telling them what had happened and inviting them to come by the house to say their farewell. These last hours with his body were a sacred time—a time to see and experience the reality of his passing, a time to honor the vehicle that carried his spirit, a time to grieve and cry with friends, a time to love and support one another, a time to remember him as he was without making him larger than life. He was an ordinary man, and a very special man. He lived here for nearly 25 years learning his craft, developing his practice, and teaching by word, but mostly by example, how we can heal ourselves and come to wholeness. His legacy lives on in those who were touched by the magnitude of his heart and who walk through the door he worked so hard to open. Like Dick himself, his work, his practice, was not glamorous or flashy; it was full of substance and depth, solid, and not unlike the boulder that killed him. On the outside it appeared quite ordinary, nondescript, caked with dirt, but on the inside, broken open to the light, ah, what white, shining beauty.

Brian Lyke
(long-time family friend and Esalen general manager)

From the first day I met Dick to the last night I was with him I watched everything he did and how he did it. His teaching was non-verbal. He was my teacher and a large reason for my being here . . . . No eloquent language or accumulated knowledge or even spiritual power impresses me very much. My spiritual father had once told me that the essence of saintliness is total acceptance of the present moment, harmony with things as they happen. He told me that a saint does not want things to be different from what they are; he knows that, considering all factors, they are unavoidable. He is friendly with the inevitable and therefore does not suffer. Pain he may know, but it does not shatter him. If he can, he does the needful to restore the lost balance—or he lets things take their course. I saw this in Dick, and this is where he shined so brightly.

David Streeter (Esalen gate guard)

This is an excerpt from a letter written just after Dick's death, to Chris Price from her 22-year-old nephew.

"I wish I could explain to you better the influence, the motivation and the insight that, not only Dick has given me, but your whole family as well. It has always served as a goal to what lies ahead for me. And from what happened it has staggered my dreams somewhat. And that is scary.

"But, I can still grow from that. I can remember his outlook for if the whole world praised him he would not be moved. If the whole world blamed him he would not be discouraged. He knew the difference between that which is within and that which is without. And when understood, that in itself is a lifetime of help."

Michael Worth

One week before his death, Dick read an article in which Robert Wagner discussed his feelings after the sudden accidental death of his wife, Natalie Wood. Dick read to me from that article, and after his death I found the following piece tacked up by his desk. Wagner, when asked what kept him from falling apart after the death of his wife, quoted Eugene O'Neill:

"'Man is born broken. He lives by mending. And the grace of God is the glue.'"

The practice Dick shared in his life provided many of us with a basis for that mending, and his presence carried some of that healing grace. I am very grateful to have been his co-worker, wife and friend.

Christine Price

Of all traditional texts, the Tao Te Ching was Dick's favorite; recently he read most frequently from John Heider's translation for group leaders. The following excerpt is one Dick had marked in his personal copy of the book, and was the one which his daughter Jennifer chose to read at the memorial gathering. It speaks well of Dick's path in his lifetime.

The Ripple Effect

"Do you want to be a positive influence in the world? First, get your own life in order. Ground yourself in the single principle so that your behavior is wholesome and effective. If you do that, you will earn respect and be a powerful influence.

Your behavior influences others through a ripple effect. A ripple effect works because everyone influences everyone else. Powerful people are powerful influences.

If your life works, you influence your family.

If your family works, your family influences the community.

If your community works, your community influences the nation.

If your nation works, your nation influences the world.

If your world works, the ripple effect spreads throughout the cosmos.

Remember that your influence begins with you and ripples outward. So be sure that your influence is both potent and wholesome.

How do I know that this works?

All growth spreads outward from a fertile and potent nucleus. You are a nucleus."

John Heider

Christine Price is acting as administrator of a fund in memory of Richard Price which will be used to continue scholarships and initiate projects in relation to his interests and vision. Contributions are tax-deductible, payable to Esalen Institute, and should be marked: Attention Christine Price.

"The Ripple Effect" is reprinted from John Heider, The Tao of Leadership, Humanics Limited, 1985, by permission of John Heider and Humanics Limited.

The article referred to is "Now a New Beginning" by Dotson Rader, November 17, 1985, Parade Magazine.

Memorial gathering, November 30, 1985

Ways of Being at Esalen

There are various ways to experience Esalen, ranging from a visit to the hot springs on a week night to a long-term stay as a student or resident. The weekend and five-day workshops described throughout the catalog are the standard route for coming to Esalen and learning the various methods of personal growth and self-exploration that are available here. The Experiencing Esalen workshops are a kind of smorgasbord introduction to some of these many practices (such as gestalt, massage, sensory awareness, etc.); from such a sampling, the participant can then choose those approaches which feel most appropriate and pursue them in subsequent seminars. For those who wish an extended stay of a month or more there is an Ongoing Residence Program. Other long-term programs include the "month-longs" (coordinated by leaders such as the Grofs and Schiffmans), which frequently involve didactic seminars as well as experiential workshops. These can be particularly useful for professionals and graduate students.

A very popular way of being at Esalen, and one that allows a much greater involvement with the place and its community at a lower expense, is the Work Study Program, which entails working with the Esalen staff as well as participating in an ongoing workshop designed specifically for that program. See page 33 for more information and an application form.

In addition, there are other events which enrich life at Esalen. There are frequent forums in which various writers and thinkers, both visiting and resident, share their ideas with the community. On Wednesday nights, there may be lectures, films, dance performances, choirs, or other forms of entertainment. Body work of various kinds is available by appointment with individual practitioners, including massage, deep tissue, polarity, Feldenkrais, and Rolfing®. Individual sessions are also available for various types of process work, including gestalt, neo-Reichian emotional release, vision improvement, music gestalt, etc. Finally, there is a Community Workshop program which goes on daily, and provides many opportunities for engaging in personal self-exploration or learning new approaches to human growth.

Rolfing® is a service mark of the Rolf Institute.

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt & John Soper

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness, group process, guided fantasy, meditation, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Bantam).

Schedule:

May 9–11	$250
May 25–30	$490
June 6–8	$250
June 15–20	$490
June 27–29	$250
July 6–11	$490
July 11–13	$250
July 27–August 1	$490
August 8–10	$250
August 15–17	$250
August 24–29	$490
August 31–September 5	$490
September 5–7	$250
September 14–19	$490
September 26–28	$250
October 3–5	$250
October 12–17	$490

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Lia Thompson & Deborah Anne Medow

These workshops offer opportunities to experience body awareness and movement in Esalen's supportive environment. Various types of dance, massage, music, meditation, yoga, and theater are offered. Five-day groups may also have time to explore the magnificent coast and trails near Esalen.

Schedule:

May 2–4	$250
May 16–18	$250
June 22–27	$490
July 4–6	$250
July 13–18	$490
July 25–27	$250
August 10–15	$490
August 22–24	$250
September 28–October 3	$490
October 10–12	$250
October 26–31	$490

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jane Miletich

Spend a few days in Big Sur, resting, relaxing, getting in shape, or just feeling good. Enjoy healthy food prepared especially for you, and learn how to prepare it if you like. Mineral and herbal baths, nature hikes, aerobics, yoga, t'ai chi, massage, and dance will be offered. All are optional. Choose your own pace.

Schedule:

October 19–24	$490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff
Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
and used—is inexhaustible.
—Lao Tzu

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is intrapersonal rather than interpersonal. Participants are explicitly not patients but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The leader functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth, rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Although open seat work is the primary form of this practice, guided fantasy, breath meditations, and movement sessions may be included. Each gestalt practice group will have a member of the Esalen gestalt staff as its primary leader. The name of this leader will be listed in the office three weeks in advance of the workshop. Please call if you want this information. Other leaders may be involved in some sessions.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim and In and Out the Garbage Pail; John Heider, The Tao of Leadership (Humanics, Ltd.).

Schedule:

May 18–23	$490
June 15–20	$490
July 13–18	$490
July 25–27	$250
August 10–15	$490
September 21–26	$490
October 12–17	$490

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins.

The program is divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc. Information regarding special interest sections may be obtained by writing Bette Dingman, c/o Esalen.

For a full description of the Work Study Program, please turn to page 33.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing as we have many applications. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. Scholarship recipients may be asked to bring a sleeping bag to use, especially during peak attendance periods. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

Conferences at Esalen

It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Accreditation

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Esalen Seminars

Kathleen Thormod Carr

Weekend of May 2-4

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Singing Gestalt

Nancy Kaye Lunney

Singing gestalt is singing about yourself, who you are, what you feel, who you'd like to be. Singing gestalt is about being yourself in front of other people without judging how well you sing. Singing gestalt is not about performance. It is about feeling and expressing.

If the idea of getting up and singing in front of other people terrifies you more than anything you can think of, this workshop is for you. If you love to sing in front of other people and want to stretch yourself further, this workshop is for you. If you've been too shy to try, this is your chance.

Some guided imagery and gestalt may be used. Accompaniment and lots of music are provided. Video feedback may be incorporated. But the workshop is really about you—singing. $250

Soviet-American Relationships

Robert Bathurst

This is a workshop in Soviet-American, cross-cultural understanding. Through bargaining, mediating, and role-playing games, participants can discover the subconscious cultural imperatives that impel the two nations apart and begin to identify those elements that bring them together. The workshop sets out to shatter egotistical mirror-imaging and begin the construction of authentic Soviet-American relationships in the world as it now exists. $250

Exorcising the Demon "Should"

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Within each of us there lives a demon—our own personal critic—whose greatest joy comes from criticizing, denigrating, and destroying every experience we have. We're either too early or too late, too old or too young, too fat or too thin, and when we fall in love, we're never good enough.

This demon, who commands us to be who we aren't in order to satisfy someone we can never satisfy, is the demon that we will seek to exorcise during the weekend.

What if you actually tried to be everything you think you should be? This monumental task is made easier when confronted with laughter. We will build up that image, and then act it out as fully as we possibly can. We'll contrast that with the experience of ourselves as we are spontaneously. With the help of this experience in contrasts, we will explore our possibilities for movement between the two, and in this way open up our options to the full range of our own authentic being. $250

May 2-10

Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Steven Harper & Joyce Rogers Lyke

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 34. $490

Weekend of May 9-11

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Suffering and Happiness as a Spiritual Path

Sogyal Rinpoche

According to the vision of Buddha, the suffering and happiness that we experience now can actually become the path to inner development. This teaching, written by the Tibetan master Jikme Tenpe Nyima, challenges our basic attitude to suffering and happiness, which are revealed to be sources of understanding, compassion, and tranquility. Rinpoche will interweave this teaching with periods of guided sitting meditation practice. $250

Leonard Energy Training: The State of the Art

George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

In the world of Leonard Energy Training (LET), problems can become opportunities. Stress and pain can become gifts of energy. Personal and social options may be multiplied, and the flow of vital energy enhanced. Participants are offered the opportunity to make daily life into a dance.

LET is derived from the Eastern art of aikido as well as from Western psychology and physical theory. It is a comprehensive body of work that teaches practical, alternative ways of dealing with life situations. It is not physically demanding. It does not aim at emotional catharsis. Most of the training involves simple movement exercises in which the body itself becomes a learning facility. Participants will practice such things as centering, relaxing under pressure, blending, and alternative ways of being. There will also be discussions of applications to education, sports, management, relationships, social transformation, and personal growth.

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Silent Pulse (Dutton), The Ultimate Athlete (Viking), The Transformation (J.P. Tarcher / Houghton Mifflin). $250

Week of May 11-16

Human Potential Theory and Practice

John Heider

This workshop will consist of a synthesis of group process, gestalt, body work, and meditation. The purpose is to educate the human potential, which means the ability people have to become more aware or conscious of themselves and of the world around them. While the workshop will be mostly experiential, there will be time for questions and answers, and for discussion of the work. $490

Pain and Comfort

Dee Dee Lozier & Michael Joyce

Pain makes us grumpy and tired and lowers our self-esteem. This workshop offers opportunities to learn to release pain and create comfort and ease in our bodies.

Group sessions involving imagery, trigger point work, and Feldenkrais lessons will allow participants to explore ways to release pain, increase comfort, and move more easily. There will be opportunities to work with one's own or someone else's pain in the neck, back, and feet. Private sessions will be focused on problems in muscles, joints, and connective tissue, and appropriate use of Feldenkrais, trigger point, and deep-tissue methods. Participants will be given help in creating a program for continuing improvement at home. $490

May 11-June 6

Psychosynthesis Training

Harry Sloan & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 36. $1960

Weekend of May 16-18

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and developing of positive, mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of loving and personal integrity. Participants will work at their beliefs and habits through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, guided imagery, and gestalt awareness methods.

$250 per participant

Reprinting: A Growth Process

Hector Prestera

How does one become un-stuck from imprinted experiences and more fully realize inner power? Through various approaches including body reading, light trance work, and anchoring (Erickson), participants can explore how powerful the unconscious is in keeping old behavioral patterns locked in, and consider opening new doors toward growth and freedom. New models of behavior can become available.

The workshop will feature individual and group processes, including body release approaches.

Recommended reading: Hector Prestera and Ron Kurtz, The Body Reveals (Harper & Row). $250

Week of May 18–23

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support participants will clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $490

Shamanic Healing: Training in the Way of the Shaman

Michael Harner

Shamanism is an ancient human strategy for personal learning and action, especially problem-solving, maintaining well-being, and healing. The shaman (a type of medicine man or woman) enters non-ordinary reality to obtain knowledge, to answer personal questions, and to maximize power to maintain personal health and achieve life goals.

In this experiential workshop, the participants will be introduced to some of the basic methods of the shaman. Participants will be initiated into shamanic journeying, a visionary method used to enter non-ordinary reality and explore the hidden universe otherwise known mainly through myth and dream. Practice will include: traditional drumming; movement methods for experiencing the shamanic state of consciousness and awakening dormant personal capabilities and forgotten connections with nature; comparisons of discoveries made on shamanic journeys; personal problem-solving work; opportunity to discover one's own non-ordinary teachers, and to learn from them in non-ordinary reality.

Participants will be introduced to the extraction method dealing with spiritual illness or pain, including discovery and recognition of localized spiritual illness and pain. They can learn how the shaman's journey may be used to restore spiritual power and health, and how shamanism may be practically applied in contemporary daily life.

This five-day workshop is both for beginners and for those who have previously taken a workshop with Michael Harner.

It is recommended that participants read beforehand Michael Harner's book, The Way of the Shaman: a Guide to Power and Healing (Bantam), and bring a notebook and pen to preserve their experiences for their own shamanic development. They are also invited to bring drums and rattles. $490

Weekend of May 23–25

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Steven Harper

Located on a narrow stretch of land between the Pacific Ocean and the coastal ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains, Esalen is the trailhead to one of the world's most spectacular wilderness areas. With this natural reserve as the primary teacher, we will walk into the Los Padres National Forest. We will draw on various traditions, developing the quality of our awareness, and opening to the natural world. Week-long workshops will venture out on five hikes (4-10 miles in length) and weekend workshops will take two hikes (3-6 miles in length). Using Esalen as our base camp we will explore different trails through the natural beauty of the Big Sur backcountry. Days will begin and end at Esalen with short stretching and sharing sessions. Each day-hike will begin after breakfast and will conclude in time to enjoy the hot springs and dinner each evening at Esalen. We will practice basic outdoor skills such as map reading and minimum impact concepts. Participants will be taught enough skills to begin exploring the wilderness on their own after these outings. More information will be sent upon registration. $250

The Further Reaches of Human Energy

George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

This workshop begins with a basic grounding in Leonard Energy Training (LET), in which problems can become opportunities, stress and pain can be transformed into gifts of energy, personal and social options can be multiplied, and the flow of vital energy enhanced. In addition to its practical applications, the workshop offers the possibility of experiencing your own latent powers of intuition and extraordinary sensing.

After their introduction to LET, participants move into experiments that push the limits of what are termed "normal" human capacities. Through such processes as scanning, tuning-in to others' energy, focused surrender and remote viewing, the group is given a chance to experience a crystalline state of intense aliveness without expectation and prejudgment. As George Leonard wrote in The Ultimate Athlete, "Simply by considering possibilities commonly ignored by our culture, we find ourselves in a far more fascinating universe. We discover adventures that do not require the burning of fuel or the rape of the planet; sensing the energy field of a friend or a tree, making connections that defy conventional space and time. . . . We realize, with the sorcerer don Juan, that our world is awesome, mysterious, and unfathomable, and that our life is filled to the brim and altogether too short."

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Silent Pulse (Dutton), The Ultimate Athlete (Viking), and The Transformation (J.P. Tarcher / Houghton-Mifflin). $250

May 23–30

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

It is rare for most people to use painting for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to paint purely for the process of exploration, not for the result.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide a setting to explore the deepest parts of ourselves through painting—to discover in form and color a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to emotional and spiritual expression. Participants are given the opportunity to discover a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling.

The work takes place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, and a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. The workshop may be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122.
$740 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders).

Week of May 25–30

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

This seminar will focus on the integration of body, mind, and spirit through intuitive and energy awareness, massage, meditation, movement, gestalt, and play. Using these tools and gentle risk-taking can help in opening to our own aliveness and ability to be more at home with ourselves. Participants will explore practical and portable ways of nourishing and trusting the inherent wisdom of the self.
$490

Weekend of May 30–June 1

Diving into the Deep: Dream Discovery

Joyce Frazee

Each night when you disappear below the surface of yourself, what is remembered from the journey is a dream. This workshop will focus on using dreams for emotional and spiritual growth, and for connection with alienated parts of ourselves, and the dreamer in ourselves and others.

Participants may experience the multidimensional aspects of a single dream, noticing the most immediate, pressing, unfinished business present in any dream, and uncovering personal symbols. By keeping a dream journal, participants may recognize that dreams come in series, presenting and exploring a continuing theme. Since many of us forget dreams, exercises in dream recall will be offered. We will work with feelings using gestalt and bioenergetics. We will draw dream mandalas and discover how these can be used for insight and healing. Methods of dream control and lucid dreaming will be discussed. $250

Ashtanga Yoga

Deborah Anne Medow

"The body is a boat which carries the soul in the ocean of the world. If it is not strong or it has a hole, then it can't cross the ocean. So the first duty is to fix the boat."—Baba Hari Dass

The primary focus of this workshop is to utilize the methods of the ancient system of ashtanga yoga in "fixing the leaky boat." Throughout this weekend a cleansing diet and various integrated sessions will be combined to encourage workshop participants to develop a solid basis for further development of the physical, mental, and spiritual aspects of yoga practice. Topics covered will include yoga theory, yoga purification and breathing exercises, and meditation, with particular emphasis on asanas (postures).
$250

Being All There

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

Being all there—being fully present—was the condition of all of us at birth. The present is still our breath of life and our life-blood. As adults, however, we are often preoccupied with images and ideas of how it ought to be. Rather than responding directly to the situation at hand with all our extraordinary innate capacities, much in us has become immobilized by early conditioning, emotional problems, and habit.

Children and sages have a different way of functioning. For them the world flows into consciousness as the air into their lungs, and their responses are organismic and direct, bypassing the evaluation center which is the educated mind of the adult. It is our own lack of immediacy which is usually felt as tedium and which calls for ever stronger stimuli in the search for joy or self-discipline in the search for peace. By giving up preconceptions and gradually coming to follow our sense of reality, we begin to respond not to what should be but to what is, and the world catches fire for us.

In this workshop participants will explore direct experience, which as it becomes clearer and stronger, will slowly burn away the screen of concepts and restrictions which conditioning has interposed between ourselves and living. For the individual searching for discipline with more reality, this work may have the feeling of solid ground.

Recommended reading: Charles Brooks, Sensory Awareness (Ross Erikson). $250

Week of June 1–6

Being All There

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

For workshop description see May 30-June 1.
$490

Wild Dance: Movement in Wilderness

Susan Harper & Steven Harper

"Wild Dance" is an invitation to explore natural movements inspired within the human organism by participation in nature. We listen to impulses within and to impulses of wilderness until "inner" and "outer" disappear. As we surrender to the intelligence which creates life in all its varied forms, we may find ourselves moving in unexpected ways. Our awareness may expand. We may feel a larger sense of self and wilderness, and the creative wholeness of a greater dance.

Sessions will be both indoors and outdoors. Evenings, some day sessions, and most meals will be at Esalen. We will also take short day hikes in Big Sur's backcountry. Participants need not have previous experience in hiking or dance. Come willing and ready to participate in nature's range of motion. $490

Change and Self-Esteem

Phyllis Shankman

Change is an ever-present aspect of living which must be accepted and used creatively if we are to sustain a healthy, interesting and exciting life. Most often we find ourselves actively or passively resisting change while we talk about wanting it. Self-esteem, which includes self-acceptance, self-appreciation, and self-confidence, is the aspect of self which enables us to confront our resistance and fear, and increases our willingness to change and take risks.

This workshop includes an in-depth process focused on the ability of each individual to find and allow more personal self-acceptance and well-being, and to confront creatively opportunities for change and growth. Group activities will include gestalt process work, group discussions, massage, meditation, music, dance, art-imagery exercises, and whatever else happens spontaneously. $490

Weekend of June 6–8

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

"For one human being to love another: that is perhaps the most difficult of all our tasks, the ultimate, the last test and proof, the work for which all other work is but preparation."
—Rainer Maria Rilke

The goal of this weekend is to provide a context in which couples can focus and explore their relationship in the areas of communication, closeness, conflict, and individuality. A balance of structured and spontaneous interactions will be used within the framework of the large group, subgroups, and the couple. Limited to ten couples. $250 per participant

Inner Sound and Voice

Jill Furce

Jill describes her workshop: "Practical explorations with sound for healing and the transformation of consciousness. By liberating our voice, we can make contact with deep levels of the Self and release an untapped source of energy. Activities include: working with the psycho-physical effects of breathing, chanting, mantric, and sonic meditations; learning to tune and listen together, moving from the intuitive level into meditative states; developing breath and sound in ways to set different parts of the body-mind in resonance, to give sonic massage, heal and tune the chakras and subtle body; finding our own note and hearing inner sound, entering directly into the subtle dimension of sound by magical voice methods, Mongolian and Tibetan overtone chanting; using mystical sound methods from traditional cultures to discover our own voice and source of inner power; exploring trance and mind-transforming music, mantra and musical medicine." $250

Week of June 8–13

A Fourth Way Psychology and Characterology

Elena & Claudio Naranjo

Claudio writes: "'Fourth way' here refers not to transpersonal psychology, which followed in the West upon the 'third force' of humanistic psychology, but to the Sufi tradition represented in the West by Gurdjieff and others. This workshop will comprise theory and psychospiritual exercises (both individual and group) through which participants will be led along a self-insight venture called a 'proto-analysis'—an exploration of one's life and personality—with the aid of a psychological map called the 'Enneagram.'" $490

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

This will be an introduction to intensive intra-psychic work using Reichian breath work and gestalt practice. Reichian work utilizes breath and sound to energize and deepen the process of self-awareness by softening the body's patterns of physical tension and emotional holding. Gestalt practice is an awareness approach focusing on physical sensation, image, thought, and emotion. By emphasizing a person's experience in the present moment, gestalt moves toward developing a more conscious sense of self. In a supportive group atmosphere, participants will have the opportunity to explore thoughts and feelings formed by past experiences. With this exploration the possibility is opened to come to a truer concept of self, with an expanded ability to respond in the present. This workshop is limited to 14 participants. $490

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

"Freedom: A state of being in which man's relatedness to life is unobstructed."
—M.C. Richards, Centering

Stress-related tension and emotional blocks restrict our capacity for feelings and expressions of aliveness. This workshop is a carefully chosen introduction to a variety of body approaches that can release limiting patterns to promote kinesthetic awareness, spontaneity, grace, and mental flexibility. Methods may include imagery, sensory awareness, Feldenkrais, gestalt, Rolf-movement, massage, Reichian breath work, and video feedback. $490

A Workshop for Adult Children of Alcoholics and Adult Children of Abusive Parents

Karen Paine-Gernée & Terry Hunt

Growing up with parents who are either alcoholic or physically abusive produces certain predictable and specific characteristics which last throughout our lives unless we deliberately address them. If you were exposed to alcoholism or abuse as a child, you may be finding that the very defenses which protected you in that situation are now interfering with your achieving a happy and productive life.

Some of the characteristics Adult Children of Alcoholics and Abusers (ACA's) struggle with are: an inordinate need to control, an over-developed sense of responsibilty, fear of authority figures, difficulty with intimate relationships, inability to trust, difficulty having fun, compulsive-addictive behavior, fear of abandonment, and chronic lack of self-esteem.

Alcoholism is a disease of denial. As children in an alcoholic system, we are taught to deny what our own senses know. We tell ourselves that it really wasn't so bad, and we learn to not feel what we cannot tolerate. As we deny the pain, however, we also screen out the joy, and our adult lives are often filled with depression and hopelessness.

The good news, however, is that recovery is possible. The first stage is to begin telling the truth and identifying our childhoods for what they were. The second stage is to reclaim our feelings without being overwhelmed by them. Karen and Terry, both Adult Children themselves, have developed the concept of emotional sobriety as a path of healing.

This workshop was originally designed for Adult Children of Alcoholics, but the number of Abused Children who have come to us saying that the dynamic was the same for them has led us to include them in our invitation.

Recommended reading: H. Gravitz & J. Bowdon, Guide to Recovery (Learning Publications); Janet Woititz, Adult Children of Alcoholics (Health Communications); Sharon Wegsheider, Another Chance (Science and Behavior Books). $490

Weekend of June 13–15

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Steven Harper

For workshop description see May 23-25. $250

The Moving-On Experience

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

This is a weekend of intense body work, structured for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, and a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released and positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and pleasure can be experienced more fully.

In a safe, supportive environment utilizing Radix®-Reichian emotional methods, hypnosis, chiropractic, massage, gestalt, dance, and group interaction we can create a new capacity for living. $250

Formative Fields and the Habits of Nature: A New Science of Life

Rupert Sheldrake

The hypothesis of formative causation may provide the basis for a new scientific paradigm which goes far beyond the currently predominant mechanistic theory of life. The idea that the form and behavior of living organisms are shaped by morphogenetic fields, themselves molded by the form and behavior of past similar organisms, leads to a new interpretation of heredity and the evolutionary process. Memories need no longer be thought of as somehow stored inside the brain. They may depend on direct connections with the organism's own past due to morphic resonance, and tuning in to the experience of other members of the species may give rise to a pooled or collective memory. In this workshop some of the implications of formative causation for biology, psychology, parapsychology, philosophy, and religion will be explored and discussed.

Recommended reading: Rupert Sheldrake, A New Science of Life (J.P. Tarcher). $250

Love and Work

Anne & John Caple

"Leiben und arbeiten," Freud answered, when asked what the normal person should be capable of. "To love and to work." In this workshop, participants will examine their work lives and work options in the context of their love for themselves, for others, and for the larger world. The group will use integrative exercises, art, and gestalt processes to approach life decisions. The goal is for participants to see more clearly what they want and how to get it. One outcome will be a specific action plan.

This weekend is for those who want more value in their work lives, for career changers and potential career changers, for re-entry persons, and for those who influence others in career choices. Some time will be available for individual life/work issues during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs.

Recommended reading: John Caple, Careercycles (Prentice-Hall). $250

Week of June 15–20

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Inner Landscapes and Human Evolution: Pathways to Higher Consciousness and Planetary Transformation

Alise Agar, Claudio Naranjo, Kenneth Ring & Andrew Weil

By becoming more conscious of the process by which mind creates reality, it is possible to unlock a variety of pathways. Meditation, the appropriate and responsible use of psychoactive drugs, and the near-death experience will be explored by leading authorities in their fields. The workshop will feature day-long programs by each of the presenters. The forum will encompass a combination of lecture, discussion, and experiential exercises. Specific topics to be addressed include: the appropriate and responsible use of psychedelics in spiritual practice and psychiatry, the maintenance of higher states of consciousness through visual imagery and varieties of meditative experiences, and the near-death experience as catalysts for personal, spiritual, and planetary evolution.

Recommended reading: Kenneth Ring, Heading Toward Omega; Claudio Naranjo, The Healing Journey; Andrew Weil, From Chocolate to Morphine and Health and Healing. $490

Yoga: A Week of Rejuvenation

Ganga White & Tracey Rich

This course will aim at giving participants the inspiration and understanding necessary to create a personal practice of yoga. Yoga brings about a strong, healthy, and flexible body, mind, and spirit. We offer a holistic approach that combines asana (posture), pranayama (breathing), and dhyana (meditation). In addition, our approach can be highly aerobic for those wanting to condition the cardio-vascular system.

The course is open to students of all levels, from beginners to advanced. Students will be shown how to develop a 45-minute daily practice that includes all elements necessary for maintaining optimum fitness. Other topics will include learning how yoga works, aligning and restructuring the body, diet and nutrition, and meditation. A special feature will be "double yoga," a system created by Ganga that allows you to share your practice with a friend.

For additional information or questions you may contact Ganga or Tracey at: White Lotus, 2500 San Marcos Pass, Santa Barbara, CA 93105, (805) 964-1944.

Recommended reading: Ganga White, Double Yoga (Penguin). $490

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Ron Sand

Janet writes: "This workshop will provide a safe environment for exploring the 'unfinished business' in our lives.

"I believe that when unfinished business from the past is projected into current relationships one is prevented from fully appreciating others in the 'here and now.'

"The emotional release methods that I have developed over the past decade support completion of this unfinished business through the honest expression of feelings." $490

Weekend of June 20–22

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self-concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and group process methods, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers, as a means of achieving productive functioning. $250

Burnout: Causes and Cures

Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines

This workshop is designed for people who give service to others and who are experiencing burnout. It deals with the impact of burnout on both the service provider and the client, ways of finding and recognizing support resources on the job, and positive methods of dealing with burnout and life tedium. Through lectures, group discussions, and input from the participants themselves, individuals will have the opportunity to increase their understanding of those aspects of their own work and life which could cause burnout. In addition they will be provided with the tools and opportunity to learn how to handle these problems in order to increase the productivity and creativity of their relationships with clients and colleagues.

C. E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 35. $250

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Ron Sand

For many people, feelings are something mysterious, something to keep to one's self, or something to think about. This workshop is about all the steps involved in learning to experience, respect, and honor one's feeling process in a way that can increase vitality and personal effectiveness. Participants can learn to separate feelings from thoughts, learn from their own body rhythms, learn to contact their own wisdom, and participate, in a safe environment, in the choice of expression or depression. $250

Minds, Madness, and Psychoactive Drugs

David Richman

In this workshop we will explore the current state of knowledge of human brains and the complex chemistry that is at the heart of brain functioning. Through dialogue, slides, and recordings, a basic understanding of minds and mind-altering drugs from psychiatric to psychedelic will be presented. From Antabuse to Ativan to Atropine to Adam; from Cocaine to Caffeine to Cogentin; from Prolixin to Phenobarbital to PCP to Psilocybin; from Thorazine to THC to Transderm Scopolamine through Valium and Xanax, we will journey through the spectrum of uppers and downers. The basic issue of informed consent and knowledgeable decision-making concerning psychoactive drugs will be emphasized.

Recommended reading: David Richman, Dr. Caligari's Psychiatric Drugs (NAPA-Network Against Psychiatric Drugs); Robert Julien, A Primer of Drug Action (W. H. Freeman); Peter Stafford, Psychedelics Encyclopedia (And/Or Press). $250

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

The work of Moshe Feldenkrais is based on the natural process by which we learned to move as children. During this workshop soft, easy, gentle movements will be used to increase awareness of the body and to improve the ease and ability of movement. Special emphasis will be placed on the difficulties in movement that arise from chronic conditions such as lower back and neck pain, shoulder pain, tension in the neck and shoulders, and knee injuries. Such conditions can be improved by approaching the difficulties as problems in learning rather than as therapeutic troubles. Situations which were "incurable" become "reeducable." Workshop participants will also be introduced to methods to improve their ability to sense each others' bodies through touch and massage.

Although this workshop will be of value to anyone interested in learning more about their bodies through direct experience, it may be of special interest and benefit to dancers, athletes, doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists, health-care professionals, and elderly citizens, who may find themselves discovering new ways of moving with ease and increased flexibility—painlessly and immediately. $250

Week of June 22–27

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Anything which is forced or misunderstood can never be beautiful."—Xenophon

People, like plants, need special attention to thrive and blossom. To naturally grow beyond what they've been requires strength, sensitivity, and a deeply compassionate awareness. The courage to let go of self-defeating patterns from the past, the willingness to master fresh skills and create new dreams for the future: these are the turning points that nourish and sustain us.

In this workshop the group will come together in the spirit of being simply and lovingly at home in themselves. They will create a community whose aim is to explore and move through individual turning points, in a climate of trust, goodwill, and authenticity. The program will be structured to include intensive individual work, using practices from gestalt, psychosynthesis, and bioenergetics, as well as creative movement, music, guided imagery, group rituals, and celebrations. $490

The Art of Self-Direction

Lenore Lefer

This workshop is about personal, social, and cultural change. It is about creating, initiating, and directing change as well as responding to those alterations that we seem not to choose. We will explore how to be causal in relation to change and how to include our deepest values. Do we know what is meaningful, and how do we integrate that into our lives? It is an art to lead a self-directed life that includes both personal and social responsibility.

Founded conceptually in psychosynthesis, the focus of this self-exploration will be experiential, using imagery, inner dialogue, meditation, and individual and group process. The environment will be supportive and evocative. This workshop is appropriate for professionals who deal with transitional crises in their own work.

Recommended reading: Pierro Ferucci, What We May Be (J. P. Tarcher); Roberto Assagioli, The Act of Will (Penguin). $490

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

This workshop focuses on how we may consciously unfold ourselves—physically, emotionally, sexually, mentally, and spiritually. Past anger, fear, sadness, and grief, often reflected in the body as tension, pain, lack of spontaneity, and diminished vitality, can keep one from being fully present and alive. By contacting tension and allowing emotion which has been frozen in the body, there is an opportunity to open to the creative flow of life energy within. Allowing this life energy meaningful expression, through deepened communication with self and others, is the essence of this work.

Some of the areas that may be explored this week include: recognizing and releasing tensions which block emotion in the body; using breath and sound to energize and soften the body's tension and emotional holding; contacting and allowing unexpressed sadness and pain, which can increase the capacity for heartfulness, pleasure, and joy; expressing and releasing anger constructively, which can deepen compassion and love while also releasing blocked sexual energy; learning about the nature of fear, and moving toward greater trust of self and others. Paying special attention to the mental processes that shape the emotional and physical body, participants will be shown ways to trust their bodies' responsiveness and inner direction.

This workshop will utilize Reichian body and breath work, emotional release, gestalt practice, the Bates system of eye relaxation, massage, dance, meditation, and various other approaches.

Recommended reading: White Eagle, The Path of the Soul (White Eagle Publishing Trust). $490

Weekend of June 27–29

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

For workshop description see June 8-13. This workshop is limited to 10 participants. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This weekend workshop provides instruction in basic methods used in giving a massage, with additional work on quality of touch, breath awareness, centering, and sensitive rapport between partners. The purpose of the workshop is to introduce massage as a practical approach to greater sensory awareness and relief from stress. $250

Aggression, Sexuality, and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Lia Thompson & Perry Holloman, with Riley Thompson-Clark & Maya Holloman

How do children gather information and learn to make decisions based on what they have gathered? As parents and teachers, to what degree do/should we intrude or interfere in this information-gathering process? We will examine the critical role that parents, teachers, and other children play in the development of a child's total abilities.

The Gazebo staff believe that allowing a child full interaction with his/her environment, imposing as few limitations as possible, greatly enhances the child's social skills. Particularly in the areas of conflict resolution and natural sexual exploration, the Gazebo experience has enabled children to exercise their initiative successfully. Families may come together in this workshop to discover some of their own resolutions for current challenging situations. $250

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

The Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program: An Update

James Hickman & the Exchange Program Staff

Since its inception in 1979, the Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program has demonstrated significant success in pioneering innovative and imaginative approaches to Soviet-American cooperation. Based on our two nations' common interest in human potential and consciousness, our non-governmental approach to peacemaking emphasizes the need for understanding both the similarities and the differences in disparate cultures.

This project has emerged over the past ten years as members of the Exchange have traveled extensively throughout the Soviet Union establishing personal relationships with Soviets from all walks of life including scientists, political philosophers, artists, athletes, and government officials.

In this seminar we will review the projects in the Exchange Program and share our insights about the intellectual, cultural, and spiritual aspects of the transformational journey on which we have embarked with our Soviet friends and colleagues. The seminar leaders believe that if Americans evolve a deeper understanding of Soviet culture, the United States government might evolve a more creative Soviet-American policy. $250

Week of June 29–July 4

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

This is a week of intense body work, structured for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, and a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released and positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and pleasure can be experienced more fully.

A most important feature of the workshop is the individual Radix®-Reichian intensive, done in a safe, supportive environment. By also using dream work, hypnosis, chiropractic, bioenergetics, massage, dance, and group interaction as one lets go/moves on, a new capacity for living can emerge. $490

Language of the Drums: African Percussion, Chanting, and Dance

Babatunde Olatunji with Ijalu Akanbe, Yao Tamakloe & Gordy Ryan

Olatunji shows how the drum is the center of African culture, as its sounds and rhythms communicate, stimulate, and pace the variety of activities of traditional life. He teaches the consonants of the Yoruba language, and the reproduction of these sounds on drums and through chants, body percussion, and dances. Drummers can experience the dance, and dancers can experience the drums. This workshop is for dancers, percussionists, musicians, and everyone who wants to speak the language of the drums. Bring a drum if you have one. $490

Living Hypnotically

Norman Katz & Marc Lehrer

To "live hypnotically" is to live with the benefits of greater perceptual awareness, to enhance personal creativity and most particularly to develop an ongoing relationship with the unconscious mind.

This five-day seminar in altered states and hypnosis is intended to acquaint the participants with living a "hypnotic lifestyle." By understanding basic principles, participants can learn to use hypnosis as an aid to transform themselves in powerful and unique ways. Participants will be offered an opportunity to recall altered states and then to produce these states by hypnosis. $490

Reflectors

Jenny O'Connor & the NINE

"In this form we become bridge between whole and unwhole, happy and sad, good and bad. We are thought form, the first thought as you, as mankind, assumed shape and the last thought as you choose to leave. What remains is afterthought or vibration as we know it, and so the form begins again. The vibration came before the chicken." – The NINE

"This workshop is an invitation to spend time with The NINE in dialogue and self-discovery. As they move to answer questions, they create a kind of language that bypasses the mental structures of the brain and enters through the pores of the body. It can be beyond expectation because it enters the space between all expectations and, caught unawares, you may find yourself looking at a reflection of yourself that is shockingly familiar, for there may be more of you than you ever believed possible. You may well be compelled to reach across that space between the masks you carry and the self you don't quite yet believe possible and so put the strain of your theater to rest for a while. All this through a meeting, a few questions that seem simple enough in the asking but may rebound in a way that strikes far beyond what you thought you asked. It is a very fast way to know yourself better, in a form that teaches through compassion, humor, intelligence, and a vital concern for the future of us and our planet." – Jenny O'Connor $490

Weekend of July 4–6

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

In this workshop, which is open to professionals and others interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their psi abilities, Anne and Jim will use exercises designed to aid participants in recognizing their styles and trusting the intuitive input they normally receive. During the exercises Anne will use her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their inner sensitivity. One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive/psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $250

Herbs and Human Consciousness

Lesley & Michael Tierra

Participants will learn use of both Western and Chinese herbs as special foods to energize higher potential for personal health and growth. Such use is part of a time honored system of planetary herbology encompassing methods of detoxification, purification, daily maintenance, and strengthening of body, mind, and spirit. These gifts of nature, many of which can be found growing at our doorstep, are useful alternatives to orthodox medicine in the treatment of both chronic and acute diseases.

Cynthia Johnson

Participants will be given a practical overview of herbology with emphasis on practical skills of identification, gathering, preparation, and other herbal skills that can be reliably done in one's own kitchen. The discussion of individual conditions will be considered according to the interests of workshop members. $250

The Bhagavad Gita as a Guide to Counseling

Harry Sloan

"Better is one's own dharma [own style], though imperfect, than the dharma of another well performed. He who does the duty ordained by his own nature incurs no sin."—The Bhagavad Gita

Similarly, William Blake said, "I must create a system of my own or be enslaved by another man's." To the extent we clone someone else's approach or style, even though we perform the task well, if it is at the expense of our true nature we dishonor ourselves.

The Bhagavad Gita is an ancient and sacred text of the Hindus. What the Bible is to the West, the Gita is to the East. The story of the Gita is about a battle. Metaphorically, it is the struggle of honoring our duty to ourselves, and not capitulating to the obstacles and familiar habits that impede deepening and expressing our unique sense of Self. For a counselor the message of the Gita is the struggle to resist the temptation to settle for rote interventions or techniques at the expense of reaching deeper within ourselves for insight and discovery of our own system.

This program may be useful not only for the counselor, but for any in the helping professions who would like to deepen their own unique sense of Self in the process of their professional work. The format will blend experiential exercises with discussion focusing on the pertinent sutras of the Gita that reflect the above theme.

Recommended reading: Swami Nikhilananda, The Bhagavad Gita (Ramakrishna-Vivekananda Center). $250

The UFO Phenomenon

Allen Hynek & Staff of the Center for UFO Research

Thomas Goudge, Canadian philosopher of science, wrote in a letter to Allen Hynek: "One of the most interesting facets of the UFO phenomenon to me is its bearing on the problems of how science advances. Roughly, I would say that a necessary condition of scientific advancement is that allowance must be made for: (1) genuinely new empirical observations, and (2) new explanation schemes, including new basic concepts and new laws."

In this workshop, the leaders will discuss the state of research on the UFO phenomenon.

Dr. Allen Hynek, an astronomer and consultant to the Air Force's UFO investigations in the 1940s and '50s, came to believe the Air Force was more interested in a public relations facade than an authentic probe. He left the Air Force investigation to form the Center for UFO Studies in Evanston, Illinois.

"As I began to consider the extraordinary caliber of UFO witnesses, many of whom are pilots, sheriffs, air-traffic controllers, farmers, truck drivers and elected public officials, I realized I had either to keep calling these people crazy, or start taking seriously the emerging patterns in UFO sightings. I chose the latter," Hynek says. He now devotes most of his research to those cases which, after exhaustive study of both physical and psychic dimensions, appear to challenge ordinary notions of reality. $250

Week of July 6–11

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

This personal workshop will combine individual work with discussion of principles and concepts which nourish the process of change. Individual work will stress deepening awareness of one's sense of direction and personal obstacles. Participants will focus on change through exploring the implications of their choices and the ways they retard or encourage the expression of self.

The workshop will include psychosynthesis, transpersonal and cathartic methods which emphasize learning, and skills to release and transform blocked energies. Participants will focus on aligning their motivation and will with the natural process of change and integration. $490

Gestalt

Seymour Carter

Seymour writes: "I intend to introduce the notion of gestalt as a practice, like meditation, that will provide a form for a daily internal housecleaning. We will approach gestalt as an experience of mindfulness.

"We will examine the influence of inner dialogue, body/mind relationship, and the nature of impasse, as well as tendencies in ourselves towards psychological completion and well being. Each participant will be treated as unique with his/her own process of development, a process to be honored and encouraged. The basis of this work is the gestalt method, supported by various body disciplines including sensory awareness, bioenergetics, Rolfing®, and aikido." $490

The Performer in You: Achieving Stage Presence

David Feldshuh

Much of our everyday life is performance: we present ourselves to other people; we give speeches or run meetings; we tell jokes or stories; we play sports. There is an optimum psycho-physical presence for performing anything: a mind-body condition that is clear of tension, centered, free, and spontaneous. The first step in developing this presence is awareness of individual physical and mental resistances. Next, one must learn practical ways to work through these resistances. The goal is stage presence: the ability as a performer to occupy time and space and the willingness to feel entitled to occupy that time and that space. These qualities can be learned. We can learn to perform so that we allow ourselves to be successful instead of bracing ourselves for failure. We can also learn to act more readily from a region beyond the boundaries of conscious control or judgmental intelligence, a region requiring the capacity to surrender to the moment and live fully in it.

Using exercises from mime, karate, theater games, voice, and mask work as well as methods adapted from gestalt and Zen meditation, this workshop will attempt to cultivate the performer in each participant regardless of previous performing experience. $490

Weekend of July 11–13

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Aggression, Sexuality, and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Janet Lederman & Gazebo Staff

For workshop description see June 27-29. $250

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Awake in Your Dreams

Stephen LaBerge

Lucid dreaming means dreaming while knowing that we are dreaming. For most of us, lucid dreams are as rare as the waking peak experiences to which they are analogous. This need not be so; workshop participants can learn how to develop the skill of lucid dreaming. The results of recent scientific research will be presented and participants will be exposed to the various uses of lucid dreaming, including self-exploration, creative problem solving, healing, adventure, and, perhaps most importantly, a way of self-integration leading to the transpersonal realms.

The emphasis will be on improving the quality of the dreamer's experience while in the dream. This means self-control, not dream control: changing the context rather than the content of the dream. Ann Faraday has called lucid dreaming "one of the most exciting frontiers of human experience." This workshop will provide an opportunity to find out why.

Recommended reading: Stephen LaBerge, Lucid Dreaming (J. P. Tarcher). $250

Introduction to the Viking Runes

Ralph Blum

For almost 2000 years, Western peoples possessed a system for divination and insight into the present and the future—the Runes. Described as "the I Ching of the Vikings," the Runes served as an oracle—each symbol having a specific meaning and message—and runecasters, often women, accompanied the Vikings on their long voyages. Then, for three centuries, the Runes were eclipsed, their practice and wisdom lost.

In 1975, Ralph Blum began working with the most ancient Germanic Runes, rediscovering meaning for the individual Rune stones, and devising methods for their use. Margaret Mead said of his work: "It's high time someone treated the Runes as part of living Western shamanism. We need our shamans, and you don't have to make an appointment to see your Runes."

In this introductory workshop, he will present the origin, history, meaning of the Runes, and how to work with them for self-counseling, decision making, obtaining information at a distance.

There will be individual Rune readings for workshop participants.

Recommended eading: Ralph Blum, The Book of Runes (St. Martin's Press; Rune stones and bag come with book). $250

Reflexology

Laura Norman

Reflexology can be a powerful healing tool which relaxes the body, recharges the mind, and revitalizes energy. It is a massage of the feet which can clear away stress and tension, stimulate the body's natural healing abilities, and help balance the system.

Participants in this workshop will have opportunity to learn specific methods as they work on one another and may then be prepared to work on themselves, loved ones, and friends. Health care professionals may wish to integrate reflexology into their work.

This workshop offers basic knowledge of reflexology, its roots and practice; the benefits of reflexology and how it can help relieve minor aches and pains as well as chronic health conditions such as back, sinus, and weight problems; an understanding of the relationship of the feet to the body—how the feet are considered mini-maps of the entire body with each "reflex point" in the foot representing and corresponding to an organ, gland or part of the body. $250

Week of July 13–18

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Intuitive/Psychic Skills for the Helping Professional

Anne and Jim Armstrong

Thousands of members of the helping professions have been trained by Anne and Jim Armstrong in their workshops across the country, yet rarely do the Armstrongs offer a training geared entirely for the helping professional. This workshop is an opportunity to work with a group of professional peers, focusing on the uses of innate intuitive abilities in a professional practice.

During this workshop participants learn how to recognize, trust, and use intuitive abilities through centering methods, developmental exercises, practice on situations presented by participants (their own or a client's), and group discussion. Anne and Jim constantly encourage the use of intuition in addition to professional training. Used consciously, this powerful combination can greatly enhance effectiveness. $490

Five Days with Jack Rosenberg

This workshop is aimed at awakening and sustaining awareness of body, self, and soul, as well as examining the anatomy and function of intimate relationships. The method can be described as gestalt body work with a distinct leaning toward the transpersonal aspects of life. During the workshop participants will explore many aspects of Jack Rosenberg's energetic approach to sexuality, the energetic field of the body, and the belief systems which keep us locked in obsolete behavior patterns.

Recommended reading: Jack Rosenberg et.al., Body, Self, and Soul: Experiencing Integration (Humanics), and Total Orgasm. $490

Weekend of July 18–20

Ashtanga Yoga

Deborah Anne Medow

For workshop description see May 30-June 1. $250

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see June 20-22. $250

The Ritual Theater Workshop

Antero Alli

Participants will explore the process of designing and executing their own rituals as a means of expressing dreams, nightmares, and celebration. Combining elements of theater, dance, and Zen in a non-performance style of presentation, we release the pressure to perform by inviting the challenge of spontaneity. The director of our play is that spirit of our highest integrity moving us into greater participation with our lives and the lives of others. In this way, a true group unity may emerge from the fulfillment of each individual's style of being themselves. Guidelines along the way include: dreaming rituals, no-form, polarizations, vocal creations, survival ceremonies, earth renewal rites, and a full moon celebration. Prerequisite: The self-commitment necessary for playing. $250

The Challenge of Change: Findhorn to Mount Shasta

Peter Caddy

Peter will discuss: spiritual principles applicable to daily life (trusting inner guidance, power of attunement, laws of manifestation, and cooperation with nature); principles for building relationships, community, and effective networks; and challenges of the '80s and prophesies of earth changes, with an understanding of how we can actually co-create a more positive future together. $250

In Search of Ecstasy

Harvey Milkman & Stanley Sunderwirth

Are criminals, drug users, sky divers, police, and lovers motivated by a similar craving for ecstasy? Are comparable needs being met through alcoholism, over eating, and membership in a spiritually oriented group? The term addiction was once reserved for dependence on drugs. Today it is applied to a range of compulsive behaviors as disparate as working too hard and eating too much chocolate. In fact, there are essential biological, psychological, and social common denominators between drug use and other habitual behaviors. Whether your pleasure is meditation or mescaline, cocaine or cults—you are addicted if you cannot control when you start or stop an activity.

The workshop examines the age-old search for pleasure from a new perspective. Sound principles from psychology and sociology can now be integrated with rapidly emerging discoveries in brain science. The workshop will be primarily for the non-professional who seeks a mature understanding of what is presently known about compulsive pleasure-seeking and will include discussion of topics such as the origins and symptoms of addiction, the biochemical relationship between drug abuse and other forms of problem dependency, social deviance and mental illness, and methods of treatment and prevention that have a reasonable probability of success. Emphasis will be on the bio-psychosocial model of compulsive behavior developed over the past few years by the presenters. $250

Week of July 20–25

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

For workshop description see June 8-13. $490

Feeling and Relating

Joel Dweck, Anne Ruderman & Linda Rice-Mandigo

This workshop focuses on growth as a possible source of wonder, inspiration, and delight.

By using Reichian emotional release methods, such as the Radix® intensive, and by working individually within small supportive groups, participants will be given the opportunity to find that the deeply held emotions of pain, anger, and fear can be released. Such release can soften chronic unconscious patterns of tension and a new capacity for pleasure, love, and trust can follow.

As a complement to the emotional release work, approaches to group process will be introduced, providing for the subtler patterns of relating to emerge. Thus, each participant's capacity to translate personal growth into quality interaction can be developed experientially. $490

Clowning for Life: A Gestalt Workshop

Rickie Wolf

"The fool who persists in his folly becomes wise" – William Blake

Clowning for Life is a study of how to be fully present. It is a search for the state of consciousness where contradictions can be embraced and where suffering and limitations are transformed through acceptance and play. Clowning is a surrender, a free-fall into being.

The workshop focuses on the joy of the full and unified expression of body, emotion, mind, and spirit. It offers an escape from the ponderous into an attitude that life is an invitation to play.

Participants are asked to bring a hat and some clothes to use as costumes. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

To make effective, creative choices, you need courage, imagination, and the willingness to know your heart and be true to the dreams that live inside it. Choosing this deeper wisdom can often involve the risk of breaking set—the choice to move against the powerful grain of old fears, habits, and the constant pressures of other people's expectations. To foster this spirit means contacting the elemental-instinctual parts of our natures, befriending rather than suppressing or denying the sexuality and the power out of which initiative and enthusiasm spring.

In this week we will focus on how to develop those qualities in ourselves that contribute to a more adventurous, resourceful, and buoyant way of living. In an atmosphere based in warmth and humor we will explore our capacity for mutual tenderness, respect, and honesty. Traditional psychological practices such as gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis will be used for intensive individual work, as well as non-traditional innovative approaches in body work, kinesthetic retraining, music, and guided imagery. $490

Weekend of July 25–27

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Challenge and Change in the American Political Process

Pete McCloskey & George Pegelow

This seminar presents a dynamic exploration of how the U.S. Congress works (and doesn't work) in the complex context of modern times, and will include an opportunity for participants to solve actual legislative problems which have faced Congress in the recent past. We will also focus on ways to blend energy and transform political competition into positive cooperation. $250

The Essence of Alan Watts

Robert Shapiro

Alan Watts was a great interpreter of Eastern wisdom to the West in the 1960s. Through several videotapes made shortly before his death, Watts continues to contribute his insights on the challenges in today's world and talks about paths toward more personal nourishment and achievement.

Some of the tape titles are: Work as Play, Time, God, Meditation, and Nothingness. Each tape showing will be followed by group discussion. $250

Physics Weekend: Bell's Theorem and the Nature of Reality

Nick Herbert & Heinz Pagels

Quantum theory is universally successful in describing nature at all levels accessible to experiment. However, this comprehensive practical success is accompanied by an unprecedented disagreement as to what quantum theory actually means, and a corresponding confusion as to what sort of reality supports the phenomenal world.

Controversy over the nature of deep reality has been sharpened by Bell's Theorem, which proves that any conceivable objective reality underlying the facts of experience must be independent of space and time. Thus either there is no ultimate objective reality, or this reality is more peculiar than we have been led (by ordinary physics) to believe. The impact of Bell's Theorem is just beginning to be felt in the world of physics, but it is rather like the situation of the Michelson-Morley experiment, which led to Einstein's theory of relativity. Just what the current controversy in the foundations of physics will lead to is not yet clear, but the various possibilities will be explored in this weekend presentation.

Recommended reading: Nick Herbert, Quantum Reality (Doubleday); Heinz Pagels, The Cosmic Code (Simon & Schuster). $250

Week of July 27–August 1

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

Participants are instructed in basic methods used in giving a full body massage. Related areas of work, such as breath awareness, grounding, movement, and quality of touch are introduced, and participants are instructed in ways to release stress and muscular tension. The workshop includes the fundamental elements necessary to give a pleasurable and beneficial full body massage. $490

The Sacred Mask Experience

Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Marvel at the ingenuity in which divinity hides itself in order to find itself." – Alan Watts

Masks are magic! The elemental power of sacred masks to liberate and transport us has all but disappeared from our cultural heritage. Drawing our initial inspiration from a large international collection of masks, we will re-establish our connection to this ancient artistic tradition, one of the oldest forms of catharsis and healing.

Through mask-making, ritual theater, trance journeys, primal sound, and movement work, we will enter a world that will carry us to the further reaches of our imagination and to what is revealed behind the masks . . . the beauty and truth of our essential nature. Together, we will create rituals that grow out of sacred practice, opening us to more vital and novel dimensions of expressive behavior not ordinarily permitted in our daily lives. . . . Local musicians from Big Sur will be used to orchestrate and ground the powerful energies that emerge. $490

Endarkenment

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

Sometimes in our search for enlightenment, we become humorless, and our search becomes tedious. Growth demands a respite from intensive struggle.

This workshop can provide a vehicle for the turn downward. We shall explore: how to establish and maintain meaningless relations; what to worry about while meditating; advanced covert blaming and inducing guilt in loved ones; how to become the most sympathetic victim/martyr in your social group; guilt without sex. This approach—similar to Feldenkrais' "live the disasters" and the "homeopathic principle" (Will Schutz, Body Fantasy)—can be as valuable for attaining enlightenment as the direct route—and more fun. In addition, participants in this workshop will have opportunities to explore, play with, and celebrate the shadow—that which we usually hide. $490

Neurolinguistics: The Structure of Subjective Experience

Eli Jaxon-Bear & John Michael Grey

Neurolinguistics is a learnable model of human communication and a method for understanding personal reality. Participants can learn the ways we unconsciously process information and how to shift communication strategies to maximize the chance of obtaining rapport with the unconscious mind of the listener. We can learn how to identify changes in the other person's internal process through observing subtle nonverbal signals and how to maximize our own flexibility in order gracefully to approach another's reality.

We can also uncover our own processes. We can learn how we limit ourselves as well as gain tools for transforming our limitations into assets. Topics will include: diffusing emotional triggers; changing "history" by viewing our past with new perspectives and bringing resources back to our childhood; and working with the different parts of ourselves to create new choices. $490

Weekend of August 1–3

A Writing Workshop with George Leonard

In this workshop, participants will be encouraged to break through ego-barriers and cultural conditioning that inhibit written expression. There will be little in the way of theoretical discussion, and no critiques of past works. There will be simple movement exercises designed to reduce stress, free the mind, and focus the will. Participants will write furiously in the here and now, and get immediate feedback in a variety of forms. Before the weekend has passed, they will have completed a short article or fictional work, and will have experienced some of the joys and heartaches of publication. Bring pencils, pens, or portable typewriters—and plenty of paper.

Recommended reading: Strunk and White, The Elements of Style (Macmillan); George Leonard, The Silent Pulse (Dutton). $250

Healing the Broken Heart: The Art of Effective Bonding

George Kohlrieser

From cradle to grave, life involves a changing script of "affectional bonds." These bonds are different from dependency and essential for growth, health, and happiness. Attachment theory is a way to conceptualize the tendency of humans (and other mammals) to make strong affectional bonds with particular others; a way to explain many forms of physical, emotional, and spiritual distress including emotional detachment, depression, and burnout. Life energy is connected to the quality and depth of emotional contact. This experiential workshop will focus on the patterns of forming, maintaining, breaking, and renewing affectional bonds. Methods include guided affective imagery, emotional release, group process, and intense bonding work to understand, create, and celebrate positive emotional attachments. $250

Awakening the Healer Within You

Elizabeth Stratton

The human body is a self-healing organism. When confronted with excessive stress, negative emotional strain, accidents, bacteria, and viruses, the body's healing capacities and immune system sometimes begin to break down.

This workshop is designed to explore, both didactically and experientially, connection between the mind, body, and spirit that is known as "the healer within." Each of us has the potential to awaken this healer and direct it in ways that will begin the healing process on all levels of our being.

The workshop will entail: opening the psychic energy channels, symptom dialogue, guided healing imagery, and forgiveness as spiritual cleansing. $250

Mobilizing Life Force

Alan Schwartz

Quite simply, life force is the combined movement of human physiology, feeling, spirit, and the action of the brain and central nervous system which we call thought. The cleaner the movement, the more strength a person has available. All of us, due to heredity, environment, and simple bad luck, spend much too much time holding or stratifying the life force. This keeps us from authenticity and impedes the decision-making process. This weekend will consist of a wonderful experiment—reaching down through stratified elements of personality to attempt to free the life force and enhance awareness and the decision-making process. The group will act as reality mirror, and each participant may request an energetic diagnosis as to how their life force presents itself. Read the August 3-8 description for further information. $250

August 2–9

A Gentle Trip in the High Sierra

Maurica Anderson & Rob Cooley

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 34. $495

Week of August 3–8

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see July 27-August 1. $490

Crossroads

Anne Nechama Simkin

This workshop is for persons who are seeking possible change. Each group has a life of its own, and within this new community, using the gestalt framework, we will emphasize the I-Thou relationship, work with the obvious, and allow natural unfolding. $490

Myths, Dreams, and Movies

Phil Cousineau & Thomas Schlesinger

This is a workshop designed for the socially conscious film maker, visual artist, and film buff. In the study of our images we discover our deep selves. From the transcendent metaphors of mythology to the inner carnival of dream and the kaleidoscope of art, the soul of a culture realizes itself into imagery. With the richly inventive world of the movies we find a waking dream, a visual metaphor of a culture's self image.

Our workshop will blend a poetic appreciation of film with an experiential emphasis on stories and their images, the stained glass windows of the soul. Classical dramatic structure and the model of the hero's journey from myths, legends, and fairy tales will be used to study the creation, analysis, and impact of the film story. Together with extensive film clips, lectures, group discussion, and guided imagery, we will study the ways in which narrative form lends meaning to our experience. Than we will create our own scenarios, script them, act them out, and tape them to explore the uniquely collaborative world of movie making. $490

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Touching Spirit: Dimensions of Psychic Healing

Elizabeth Stratton

Psychic healing bridges the physical and the spiritual. Touching as a healing act has been practiced through recorded history by practitioners of the sacred as well as the secular: healers, shamans, priests, doctors, and mothers.

In the past ten years, physics and modern medicine have come to an acknowledgement of the radically relational nature of our universe. Nothing and no one functions in a void. Human emotions affect the functioning of the body, and illness is often an outgrowth of this mind-body link. Semi-dissociative states that are induced by prayer, meditation, and trance have been found to provide a fertile ground for healing to take place. It has been discovered that "multiple personalities" exhibit different states of health in each personality. The placebo effect has become one of the most respected and well studied issues in healing today.

A psychic healer is one who can help connect the physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual levels of another persons' being with healing intention through the use of touch. This workshop will explore, both didactically and experientially, the sacred and secular uses of touch; modern theories of disease formation and the healing mechanism; the use of psychic sight in healing; forgiveness as transformational cleansing; and the channeling of healing energy through the laying on of hands. $490

Effecting Change: The Human Energy System and Risk

Alan Schwartz

This is a week for recognizing the relationship between personal growth / change and economic / environmental realities. This is a week for designing a growth pattern for your individual energy system to provide more stable contact with the difficulties of the present decade.

The human energy system represents a constantly changing personality dimension. Often neglected in the system's movement towards maturity is the development of the consistency of strength. We hear metaphors not only of physical strength, but strength of character, strong emotions, and the spiritual and psychic strengths of perception. Lack of strength development leads each of us to develop compensations in order to be able to function in our chosen worlds. Some of the obvious are psychosomatic problems, blame, denial, and indiscriminate sexual functioning. Power over self, people, things is often a major compensation for the strength that allows us the experience of self, people, and things.

Risk involves awareness of our individual compensations, trusting self and the group process enough to experiment with mobilizing more energy. This means rendering more alive the strength of the physiology, feelings, conceptual process, and psychic perceptiveness. The result is clarity and stability and a deeper awareness of the balance of self as we contact the very real issues of the decade that is upon us. $490

Weekend of August 8–10

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Advanced Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This seminar is designed for people who have experience in giving massages. Through demonstrations and practice sessions, participants are taught how to increase the effectiveness and efficiency of their massage skills, with the opportunity to add fresh approaches to their current working style. The intent is to help participants develop deeper and more sensitive contact, and to heighten awareness of clients' responses.

When you send in your deposit, please list your previous massage experience. $250

Compassion and Understanding in Relationships

Jessica Moore Britt & Duncan Scribner

Nothing confronts us more directly with our emotional issues than a love relationship. Patterns of intimacy developed in childhood are unconsciously repeated, as if there were no other ways of relating. During our time together, couples will have the opportunity to recognize and explore these patterns of behavior, and the inherent beliefs and expectations that hinder fuller relating in the present.

We will use writing, paired exercises, gestalt, and massage to soften patterns and allow new relating to emerge. Our aim will not be resolution; we will focus on creating a lasting means for working on oneself within relationship with compassion, understanding and love. $250

Botanical Dimensions

Terence McKenna & Kathleen Harrison McKenna

How clearly do we perceive the psychoactive plants themselves or their influence on the origins and future of our very humanness? What role are visionary plants playing in the planetary transformation? We will consider the crucial effect of our symbiotic relationships with plants in the evolution of language and cultural self-image. What do the plants know and how do they know it?

We will discuss botanical self-exploration using philosophical constructs both ancient and post-modern. Shamanic notions of time will be discussed. We will explore the implications of these concerns with humor and rousing dialogue. $250

Making Dances

Ronda Martyn & Greg Gibble

Rhonda writes: "In this workshop about making dances, participants will experience a good physical workout as well as the sense of accomplishment and community that derives from making and performing in the creation of dances.

"We'll begin by exploring the basic elements of movement and the craft of choreography. Then, using games, exercises, rituals, and problem solving, we'll begin to play with the creative process. As a professional choreographer, I will use workshop participants as I would professional dancers—calling on their creativity and sensibilities to help in the process of building dances. I will also coach and assist participants in making their own studies and/or dances.

"Making Dances is for people with no dance experience and with much dance experience. It's an opportunity to be both a dancer and a maker of dances." $250

Week of August 10–15

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Energy Strategies

Nancy Rosanoff

This is a course in the self-management of psychic and intuitive abilities. Participants can learn to organize the vast amount of intuitive information available to them and apply it to their present needs. Whether changing careers, setting goals, improving personal and professional relationships or solving everyday situations, the intuitive mind can help us to discover the best approach. The course uses several visualization and psychic development exercises. The subtle chakra energy system is also studied and used as a guide to greater sensitivity. Energy strategies can offer greater understanding of ourselves and others. By strengthening our intuitions we can strengthen our self-trust. The goal of energy strategies is to tap that which is truly unique about us and build it into personal strength. $490

Zero Balancing: Beginning/Intermediate Workshop

Fritz Smith

Zero balancing is a simple yet powerful method for aligning the body structure and energy field. The structural/energetic interface of the body is beneath our conscious awareness and when imbalances occur at this level, the body tends to compensate around them rather than resolve them directly. This asymmetry often leads to loss of vitality, chronic body pain, increasing stress, and less potential for vibrant health. Zero balancing assists in overcoming these patterns of imbalance.

In this program Western anatomy, physiology, and kinesiology are reviewed and Eastern concepts of chi energy, its movement in the body and the chakra systems are discussed. With this background information, the system of zero balancing is presented including specific guidelines for evaluating and balancing the structural/energetic interface of the body. The workshop is both didactic and experiential with the main emphasis on teaching the participants new skills in body handling. This is an accredited program toward zero balancing certification.

Recommended reading: Frederick Smith, Inner Bridges (Humanics).

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 35. $490

NLP, Hypnosis, and Reichian Bodywork

David Silverstein & Yvonne Ginsberg

This workshop will allow individuals to explore their process using Reichian body work, neuro-linguistic programming (NLP), and hypnosis. Each person will have opportunity to work individually as well as in group. By loosening the body armor through Reichian work, participants may become more receptive to exploring their emotions and their unconscious. Hypnosis will be used to help experience and re-experience fantasies, dreams, and unfinished situations. NLP offers the possibility of changing beliefs and criteria that keep our lives limited to familiar patterns. Throughout the workshop there will be gentle encouragement to realize that our experience is within our means to define and create. In bringing together these approaches to human development, we wish to create an environment which respects each individual's natural growth process. $490

August 10–17

Seasons of a Woman's Life: Self-Exploration in the Wilderness

Annie Callaway-Galland & Marilyn Mason

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 35. $550

Weekend of August 15–17

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see June 20-22. $250

Zero Balancing: Advanced Workshop

Fritz Smith

This workshop is only open to people who have completed at least one introductory zero balancing program. Following a review of basic concepts, time will be spent on answering specific questions and giving individual instruction as needed. New work will focus on exploring the direct perception and assessment of energy currents in the body, refinement of evaluating and balancing the foundation joints, and the discussion of nonfoundation joints, including the small joints of the body. Theory will be clarified by demonstration and individual practice, using each other as models.

This is an accredited program toward zero balancing certification.

Recommended reading: Frederick Smith, Inner Bridges (Humanics).

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 35. $250

Rubenfeld Synergy® Method

Ilana Rubenfeld

Emotions and memories are often stored in our bodies, resulting in energy blocks, tensions, and imbalances. Rubenfeld Synergy® method (blending gestalt, Alexander method, and Feldenkrais exercises) can be used to contact, express, and work through these feelings. This method involves touch, gentle body movements, visualizations, humor, music, and gestalt. Its verbal and non-verbal interventions are designed to increase awareness of and effectiveness in the process of self-healing. The approach is gentle, responsive, pragmatic, and powerful.

Some areas to be covered include: discovering the powerful interdependence between our emotions and our dynamic posture; observing life attitudes that are reflected in our non-verbal behavior; and discovering new life options and choices for change.

This workshop will provide opportunities both for practitioners and interested non-professionals. Sessions will include experiential and theoretical components and one-to-one demonstrations. Each participant will have an opportunity to process his/her experience.

Participation in this weekend will fulfill one of the requirements for acceptance into the forthcoming West Coast Rubenfeld Synergy® training program scheduled to begin in January, 1987. $250

Week of August 17–22

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see May 18-23. $490

Healing the Broken Heart: The Art of Effective Bonding

George Kohlrieser

For workshop description see August 1-3. $490

Emotions of Intimacy

Ayala Pines & Gordon Clanton

Love, jealousy, envy, anger, and other powerful emotions are generated in intimate relationships. These emotions are not useless flights of irrationality. Emotions are useful. They are signals we can learn to interpret. They are also shock-absorbers which can facilitate personal growth and relationship enrichment.

Group discussions, gestalt, role playing, and shared fantasy will be used to increase awareness of the varieties of love and the combinations of love-styles that are formed in intimate relationships. In the supportive, nonjudgmental workshop context it is possible to learn and practice constructive ways of rotecting love relationships and positive ways of expressing legitimate anger, thus minimizing the pain of jealousy and envy./

This workshop is for individuals and couples who are seeking a better understanding of the emotions of desire. It is especially helpful for couples who are seeking to define and protect the limits of their relationships and for counselors who work with people for whom these issues are important. $490

The Art of Self-Care: Who Heals the Healer? Who Helps the Helper?

Ilana Rubenfeld

Does helping others leave you drained at the end of the day?

Do you need an appointment to help take care of yourself?

Who helps the health professional?

This workshop is designed for all professionals and others who would like to learn to use their body/mind more effectively. The leader will draw on extensive previous work with the Alexander method, Feldenkrais, and gestalt, to help you explore and analyze how you use yourself in your practice.

This approach can help you to develop your awareness of how to use your body/mind more effectively, unblock your own energy, and shield and ground yourself in the face of difficult situations with clients. Learn to be there with, rather than be there for your client. Using nourishment and humor, learn self-care, a critical need for professionals.

Participation in this five-day workshop will fulfill one of the requirements for acceptance into the forthcoming West Coast Rubenfeld Synergy® training program scheduled to begin in January, 1987. $490

Weekend of August 22–24

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Moving-On Experience

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

For workshop description see June 13-15. $250

Aggression, Sexuality, and Danger: A Gazebo Workshop for Parents and Children

Janet Lederman and Gazebo Staff

For workshop description see June 27-29. $250

Watercolor Painting and Energy Awareness

Annie Styron Leonard & Erica Fielder

This workshop is designed to help us tap into our vital energy, the force that makes it possible for us to express ourselves through art. By combining Leonard Energy Training exercises with painting in water media such as ink and watercolor, we'll use the entire body to see the world around us more clearly and learn how to be centered, relaxed, and creative while painting. Emphasis will be on the process and experience of painting as an ongoing experiment rather than on results. Bring your favorite water media. A list of recommended materials will be sent upon registration. $250

The Road Back To Health

Neil Fiore

Neil writes: "When, in 1974, it was discovered that I had advanced cancer with a 10% chance to live out that year, I was as devastated as any other patient. But because of my training in self-hypnosis, stress management, and optimal performance I was able to avoid feeling like a victim and took charge of my treatment. Since than I have been committed to sharing these powerful strategies with those who wish to confront life's most intense challenge with tools that maximize both health and performance."

The Fiore approach to coping with the psychosocial aspects of illness incorporates: empowerment of the patient; active participation in healthcare decisions; the building of mutual respect in the doctor-patient relationship; open communication within the family; and the expression of difficult feelings. This approach has been effective in reducing patient and family anxiety, and the side-effects of medical treatment; and in improving patient independence, self-esteem, and sense of personal effectiveness.

The patient is always more than his disease. Total treatment must include an alliance with the healthy portion of the patient's mind and body.

This workshop is for healthcare workers interested in utilizing the patient's full resources for the quality, and probably the quantity, of the time remaining.

Recommended reading: Neil Fiore, The Road Back To Health (Bantam, 1984).

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 35. $250

Week of August 24–29

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Steven Harper

For workshop description see May 23-25. $490

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see June 22-27. $490

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

For workshop description see July 6-11. $490

Circle The Earth: A Dance In The Spirit of Peace

Anna Halprin & Daria Halprin-Khalghi

Participants, guided by Anna & Daria, infuse this workshop with their own feelings and aspirations. The workshop deals with the following: life/art process and its connection to myth and ritual; dance as a language of movement, music imagery and environment; play and conflict and their relationship to creativity; collective creativity in dance; performance as a means of sharpening the sense of being totally present; and the link between dramatic performance and social action. The dance created during this time will be dedicated to peace on our planet.

For further information about this workshop, and a recommended reading list, please write: Tamalpa Institute, P.O. Box 794, Kentfield, CA 94914 or call (415) 461-9479. $490

Weekend of August 29–31

Reprinting: A Growth Process

Hector Prestera

For workshop description see May 16-18. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see June 27-29. $250

The Dancing Path

Gabrielle Roth

"Be open, be available, be exposed, be skinless! Skinless? Dance around your bones."
—Wallace Stegner

The dancing path is the road to yourself, to all that you are meant to be. It is the journey from inertia to ecstasy, from body to spirit. It is the way of the warrior.

Dance is a dialogue between spirit and flesh, a tool for awakening and attuning to the rhythms of life, and a catalyst for release of the feelings and attitudes that imprison the human spirit.

The fastest way to still your mind is to move your body. The most effective way to set your feelings in motion is to move your body. The best way to move your body is to dance—your dance, the dance only you can do. $250

Hypnotic Realities: An Ericksonian Approach

Paul Lounsbury & Nancy Winston

This workshop is for people who have a sense of humor and are interested in hypnotic approaches to the personal realities which they inhabit. The leaders will use Milton Erickson's naturalistic approaches to hypnosis and Gregory Bateson's evolutionary paradigm to guide participants in developing greater access to and creative use of unconscious and hypnotic capacities. Various hypnotic forms will be explored for evolution of identity, expanded creative possibilities in problem-solving, and achievement of personal goals.

Because effective use of these hypnotic approaches relies so intimately on refined awareness in communication within the self, much attention will be given to communication, and to dynamics involved in regulating, shaping, and directing attention. We suggest as a prerequisite for this workshop that participants be willing to experience certain amounts of confusion and not-knowing, since there may be alterations in reality orientation in the process of discovering new clarity. $250

Seeing Things: Physics as a Form of Human Perception

K.C. Cole

How do physicists know what goes on at the far reaches of the universe? Or what makes atoms tick? The process is not so different from how everyone sees (or fails to see) everyday objects around them. The purpose of this workshop will be to pose problems in human perception—and show some ways in which physics offers tools that can help make our perceptual powers more acute. During the first part of the workshop, we will explore how the human mind makes music and vivid visual images out of mere electrical signals; how focusing on one image (or thought, or auditory signal) can make other competing signals "disappear"; how we tend to inhibit signals we get used to; how we inevitably first interpret new realms of knowledge in terms of old, familiar ideas and why metaphor is important in science (and all perception); how we draw boundaries and edges between and around things—boundaries that are often arbitrary but have great force once we get used to them. We will use exhibits developed at the Exploratorium in San Francisco to fully experience the many dilemmas posed by everyday perception of everyday things. The second half of the workshop will explore some of the philosophical fruits of modern physics that, in effect, constitute new tools for perception: relativity, complementarity, the importance of interconnectedness and invariant patterns. This will help us sort out the meaning of "right" and "wrong" in physics—and why, for example, a theory of ten-dimensional space can be taken seriously, but astrology can not. $250

August 30–September 12

Path of the River: A Grand Canyon Journey

Steven Harper, Wendy Palmer & Arizona Raft Adventures Staff (AZRA)

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 35. $1400

Week of August 31–September 5

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Hypnotic Realities: An Ericksonian Approach

Paul Lounsbury & Nancy Winston

For workshop description see August 29-31. $490

Mirrors

Gabrielle Roth

"I never dreamed of being Shakespeare or Goethe, and I never expected to hold the great mirror of truth up before the world; I dreamed only of being a little pocket mirror, . . . one that reflects small blemishes, and some great beauties, when held close enough to the heart."—Peter Altenberg

This ritual theater lab, a marriage of art and healing, is a way to "know thyself" in intense, honest, creative explorations of your psyche, its patterns, cycles, and movements. The unique theater and dance processes developed by Gabrielle inspire you to dig deeply into your own life experience and to share and dramatize your insights in movement and performance. $490

The Polynesian Triune Model: How to Deal Effectively with Guilt and Self-Denigration Through Self-Integration

Murray Korngold & Jack Downing

The Kahunas of the Polynesian order of Kane have mastered practices for making friends with the subconscious, linking up with the divine via the higher self.

In this workshop, our lectures and exercises are directed toward an alliance between the conscious and inner selves. Using this ally, participants will be introduced to the higher self, the source of healing and other powers.

The triune configuration of conscious, inner, and higher selves, integrates rational thought, automatic body functions, stored memories, healing, and spiritual functions. With instruction and application, the three can converge to become one. $490

The Power of Love

Rita Rohen

Most of us use only a fraction of our capacity for love, trust, and joy. Participants in this workshop are encouraged to express themselves more fully by creating an experience of abundance. Approaches may include: gestalt from a transpersonal perspective (which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, facilitative body work); family sculpture; guided fantasy; and humor. Learning from our own body rhythms, and contacting our own wisdom, we may open ourselves to deeper-than-ordinary levels of consciousness—and thereby achieve greater integration of mind, body, and spirit. Processes developed through work with the Spiritual Emergency Network, and recent practice in Nepal and Japan, will be used to explore ways to apply the power of love to our own lives and extend it to other persons and the planet. $490

Weekend of September 5-7

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see June 6-8. $250

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

For workshop description see June 20-22. $250

Dreams: Metaphors For Transformation

Kenneth Kelzer

Dreams can be a great source of power within the self, offering us a wide variety of images and energies. These raw materials of the psyche, once refined and transformed, can serve to elevate our lives to new levels, expand our awareness into new dimensions, and create new metaphors for viewing ourselves. We will explore a wide range within the dream state, covering its spiritual and creative dimensions, using gestalt, psychodrama, movement and rhythm, art media, group process, and intuitive feedback as our principal tools. Special emphasis will be given to the new frontier of lucid dreaming, and the leader will present material from his forth-coming book on that subject. Participants will have time to present their own dreams during the workshop. $250

Achieving Sustained High Performance

Jerry Fletcher & Kathleen Brown Fletcher

Everyone has had the experience of suddenly doing something much better than expected, yet until recently little has been known about these high performance experiences. People assumed such times were lucky accidents. More significantly, even if they could perform at a high level for short times, they have assumed there was no way to sustain such performance without stress, fatigue, and eventual burnout.

After more than six years of careful research and testing, it is clear that these times of exceptional performance are not capricious. Each individual has a unique set of conditions under which he or she performs surprisingly well. Furthermore, once people learn their personal high performance patterns, they can deliberately create the conditions they need to sustain their own high performance behavior. They do not need to subject themselves to the strain of short peak periods of high output, followed by long recovery cycles.

This seminar presents a carefully developed process for individuals to learn what their high performance patterns are, and how to adjust the way they do things to fit the conditions under which they perform exceptionally well. This seminar is a program developed through years of work with experienced, successful managers, executives, and professionals about how to go beyond competent performance in a way that can be sustained. $250

Week of September 7-12

Five-Day Masssage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see July 27-August 1. $490

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Edith Rasmussen

For workshop description see June 15-20. $490

The Mystical Quest

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will include theoretical and experiential exploration of the transpersonal dimensions of the human psyche and the importance of the spiritual impulse in human beings. Special attention will be paid to the emerging world-view that integrates science and mysticism, and to the problem of "spiritual emergencies"—emotional and psychosomatic crises that can be associated with consciousness evolution. In the experiential work, we will use "holonomic integration," which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, and focused body work, and has the potential to mediate experiential access to the mystical domain. $490

Childhood Sexual Abuse: A Workshop for Survivors

Jessica Moore Britt

The past few years have seen the experiences that survivors of childhood sexual abuse have held as their own private reality became front page news. To guard against the hurts, fears, and confusion that sexual invasion of a child's physical and/or psychic boundaries can create, the child often abandons the place of conflict—the body. This is reflected in tension patterns, numbness, and/or oversensitivity. Gently, during our time together, we will move towards reintegrating our bodies with our selves, with particular attention to body image, sexual experience, intimacy, and parenting.

Using supportive group atmosphere, gestalt practice, Reichian breath work, movement, touch, and the natural healing environment of Big Sur we can re-enter this private world of memories and feelings and move towards a deeper understanding of the issues of boundaries, betrayal, responsibility, and aloneness, and how these effect our lives now. Focus will be on our perception of ourselves physically, sexually, emotionally, and spiritually, and how this affects our connection with others. During this time we may begin to realize that now it is safe to embody beauty and life and share love. $490

Weekend of September 12-14

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Edith Rasmussen

For workshop description see June 20-22. $250

How to Make Money Without Losing Your Soul

Victoria Elliot & Walter Urban

Money can be a negative or positive force depending on how people use it. This workshop will explore the psychological factors in the creation of money. Overcoming blocks, money as a tool that works, wise spending, and other related topics will be dealt with in relation to each participant's life. $250

Developmental Play

Viola Brody & Mary Lenholt

This is a program to help children and adults develop a relationship through physical contact and creative use of the moment. An important ingredient is the quality of fun and delight each experiences in the other's presence. Developmental play focuses on the feelings stimulated by the growing relationship as both child and adult progress through the stages of attachment and separation.

Do you ever experience times when you absolutely don't know what to do with a particular child? Or, when you don't understand what is going on with a child? Or, especially when you don't know what to do with your feelings stimulated by the child's behavior? Or, do you ever feel awkward in responding to an affectionate child?

Objectives of this workshop are: to help participants become more aware of how their feelings about themselves, and their attitudes and assumptions about a child, influence the way they relate to that child; and to demonstrate ways of relating to a child. In this workshop, participants will have the opportunity to learn new ways of being with children through experiential exercises and didactic audio-visual material. Parents, teachers, child care workers, child counselors, and anyone else interested, come ready to learn to play in a new way. This workshop is for adults only. $250

Response-able Psychiatric Alternatives

Leon Redler

Although no strangers to mental suffering, we're often wide of the mark in locating its source, realizing its nature, and knowing how to respond in ways both salutory and effective, thus missing precious opportunities for well-being. "Psychiatry," etymologically, points to healing of disturbances in the flow of the breath of life, or spirit, or mind, within and between us. But the psychiatric response to people in mental distress is seldom in accord with the etymological roots which could inform its principles and practices.

This workshop is intended for colleagues and students in the mental health and related professions, non-professionals with direct experience of mental distress, and anyone seriously concerned with our society's response-ability, or lack of it, in these matters.

We will inquire into what constitutes therapeutic community, asylum, refuge, dwelling, autorhythmia, attentive care, and responsibility, and discuss the possibilities and problematics of reviewing and reforming services in our own communities.

Implicit here is an exploration of primarily non-intrusive, non-transgressive ways of being with and responding carefully and effectively to people. The implications go beyond the issues of mental suffering and involve all of us who would strip away what gets in the way of discovering our way home, where the heart is, where ease and happiness begin. $250

Teaching of the Shields: A Shamanic and Buddhist World View

Joan Halifax

Joan writes: "At the root of all traditions of the sacred lies the aboriginal pulse of shamanism, humankind's archaic spiritual heritage, reaching back 40,000 years or more into pre-history. The tradition of shamanism has always drawn its tremendous power and wisdom from direct contact with earth, her plants and animals, the realms of spirit and sky, and the teacher of death and change. Even as the teachings of the aboriginal continuity have moved across the boundaries of time and culture, so also have the profound teachings of Buddhist philosophy and psychology. Both the Guatama Buddha and Guru Padmasambhava prophesied that Buddhism would travel to the Land of the Red People. The peoples of Turtle Island prophesied as well that from the East would come great teachers. In this decade these two traditions of Earth and Sky are encountering one another as allies sharing their respective teachings on warriorship and compassion.

"The teachings, ceremonies, and practices to be given in this workshop are an interpretation of Buddhism and shamanism in the light of each other and in response to Western culture. The Sacred Sweet Medicine Sundance teachings of Wheels and Keys will be given in relation to Buddhist teachings in compassion and the perfections. Practices will include meditation, chanting, visualization, and Ceremonies of the Flowering Tree." $250

Week of September 14–19

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

For workshop description see May 23-30. $490

The Nature of Movement: Aikido and Wilderness

Steven Harper & Wendy Palmer

In this week-long workshop we will work indoors with energy awareness and principles derived from aikido, and outdoors on short day-hikes into Big Sur's backcountry to explore directly the movement that nature inspires within us. Both aikido and hiking are moving meditations which, done well, require us to be in harmony with the natural world. There will be an opportunity to take what we learn on the aikido mat out into the natural world and bring what we learn from nature onto the aikido mat. We can then begin to integrate what we learn from aikido and from nature into our lives.

All evenings and most meals will be at Esalen. Participants need not have previous experience in aikido or hiking. Come ready to move. $490

Self-Acceptance Training

Richard Olney & Leonard Bearne

Self-acceptance training is a transpersonal practice following an education rather than a medical model. It is defined as "the experiencing of whatever I am in a given moment without the inhibition of self-judgment, self-criticism, or self-evaluation." The goal of this work is to reach the inner self, the inner teacher, and to feel alive and real.

Although its practice includes devices drawn from gestalt, bio-energetics, mythic fantasy, and hypnosis, it is also a philosophy, a value system, a view of the individual's relationship with the universe.

Self-acceptance training is a holistic approach which emphasizes body work and body awareness, emotional charge and discharge, as well as a cognitive approach through examination of the individual's "pretends" and the illusions that obstruct self-acceptance. $490

Returning to the Wisdom of Our Earth/Bodies

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

"If a proper reverence for the sanctity of the earth and the diversity of its people is the secret of peace and survival, then the adventure of self-discovery stands before us as the most practical of pleasures."—Theodore Roszak, Person/Planet

Learning about our bodies, our natural instincts and responses, can lead us back to the ancient wisdom of the earth—returning us to our sacredness and wholeness.

The focus of this workshop is to regain an intimate relationship with the natural pulsations and expressions of our bodies, as well as our environment, through a conscious unfolding of our selves physically, emotionally, mentally, sexually and spiritually.

In nature, we can observe the rhythms and patterns that occur in every aspect of life—from the pulsation of the cell, to the ebb and flow of our deepest emotions, to the movement and expansion of the universe itself.

The natural world will be our teacher as we explore the "inner" terrain of our physical and emotional bodies and the "outer" terrain of Esalen and Big Sur.

We will use Reichian gestalt awareness and breath work, deep emotional release, sound, creative movement, and meditation to balance and transform energy blocks in the body (see June 22-27 description). In addition, we will use music, dance, prayer, and ritual to express our relationship with the earth and each other.

No previous experience is needed, only a willingness to explore this adventure of spirit and discover a deepened sense of the interconnectedness that is inherent in all life-forms.

This workshop is limited to 12 participants.

Recommended reading: Fields, et.al., Chop Wood, Carry Water J.P. Tarcher); Shakti Gawain, Creative Visualization (Whatever Publishing); Peter Russell, The Global Brain (J.P. Tarcher); Ken Keyes, Jr., The Hundredth Monkey (Vision Books). $490

Weekend of September 19–21

Singing Gestalt

Nancy Kaye Lunney

For workshop description see May 2-4. $250

Centering, Grounding, and Facing: An Introduction to Biosynthesis

David Boadella

In this workshop we will be examining the fundamental ideas of biosynthesis. We will work with the three major life streams in the human person—the breathing wave, the movement tendency, and the contact signal. Biosynthesis is a new approach based on Reichian theory, using a process approach to human development. Concepts from embryology will be related to growth practice and principles. The weekend will be partly experiential and will include some didactics. $250

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

The process of self-exploration in this workshop will be based theoretically and practically on observations from modern consciousness research. The method of "holonomic integration," developed by the workshop leaders, combines evocative music, controlled breathing, facilitative body work, and mandala drawing. It uses a model of the psyche that includes the biographical-recollective level, the dynamics of the death-rebirth process, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be in the roles of experiencers as well as facilitators or "sitters." Special emphasis will be placed on the relevance of this work for management of transpersonal crisis. $250

Planetary Citizenship: Thinking Globally, Acting Locally

Hazel Henderson

Hazel Henderson writes: "This workshop explores the interface between personal growth and holistic social action. I am interested in addressing theoretical, strategic, spiritual, and practical ways of becoming effective planetary citizens. There are no hard formulas for this—we will all be learners together. Some of the themes of great interest to me are: personal change, and social action as a prerequisite to further personal growth; the emergence of transformational paradigms in science, literature, art, and music which suggest greater planetary awareness and global net-working; the vital new role of non-governmental organizations; learning to demystify economics (economics as politics in disguise); the mass media as the nervous system of the body politic (gaining media access for citizens, groups, and community issues, and evaluating various media as channels for social renewal); and identifying the winning coalitions for the new societies of the Solar Age.

"The world needs truly mindful, responsible, social-change activism and leadership as never before, just as developing self-actualizers need the risk-taking and challenge of relating to ever-more complex patterns of social, ecological and planetary interdependence. I am interested in teaching and learning how to accept the challenge of helping to heal our divisive, competitive, nationalistic, industrial societies (East and West); how to move beyond their narrow technological rationalism and militaristic posturing; and how to help foster viable alternative futures which can operate peacefully and fairly on our inter-connected planet." $250

Week of September 21–26

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Intuition Practice

Helen Palmer

This seminar teaches the identification of personal intuition systems that can be made accessible by internal focusing practices, or that may already be operating in unrecognized ways. The practices develop the ability to discriminate between personal thoughts, fantasies projected from personal thinking, and impressions received from situations outside the personal self. The psychic aspect of intuition rests on the ability to shift attention from the self to impressions perceived from outside the self. $490

Art in Practice and Theory

Tom Van Sant, Richard Feynman, Faustin Bray & Brian Wallace

The leaders write: "Participants will make drawings, paintings and music during the day. With these experiences in mind they will discuss with us general matters such as the nature of beauty, the creative process, the synthesis of art and technology, and the future of art. The physical nature of media in which we have been working will be described, such as the origin of color and the physics of musical sounds."

Bring clothes appropriate to a practicing art studio, and rhythm instruments if you wish. No previous artistic or musical experience is necessary. For further information about this workshop write: Sound Photosynthesis, 533 Charles Lane, Mill Valley, CA 94941.

$490 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders)

Past-Life Work For Professionals: A Jungian-Somatic Approach

Roger Woolger

This seminar will demonstrate how reexperiencing past-life, intrauterine, and birth scenarios can free us from phobias, bodily holding patterns, and deeply entrenched complexes. It will also provide glimpses of further unexplored areas in the transpersonal psyche including after-death states and inner archetypal figures. Yogic and esoteric concepts of the subtle body and karmic residues will be discussed. $490

Weekend of September 26–28

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming-Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see May 16-18. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see June 27-29. $250

The Body as History: Danish Bodynamics

Lisbeth Marcher & Erick Jarlnaes, with Anne Ruderman & Joel Dweck

Anne and Joel write: "It gives us great pleasure to introduce Lisbeth and Erik, colleagues and friends from Denmark, to the Esalen community. They are both practitioners of an exciting system of working with the body, of which Lisbeth is a founder. By gauging the tonicity of a muscle, and knowing when and how it came into play in our infant and childhood development, they are able to "read" an amazingly precise psycho-history. In addition, they can re-evoke the specific issues that are contained in these muscles.

"The leaders can also work with our undeveloped resources. These are the abilities that we have given up on, those that often correspond to feelings of resignation. As these resources are brought into play, our willingness to drop old, unfulfilling modes of protection is greatly encouraged. Participants can focus on body movement and energy, and use these to bring about expression and integration of developmental stages.

"This workshop will be experiential, with some time between sessions available to those wanting to learn more about this approach." $250

September 26–October 3

Psychosynthesis: A Seven-Day Workshop for Professionals

Harry Sloan

Harry Sloan writes: "Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea of what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for what is most familiar—a technique, map, or model. This can lead to the mechanical experience of 'going through the motions' and rote interventions. However, if we could reach for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, the dissonance might open to insight. The result of capturing the moment and responding to the need of the client and to the dynamics of the situation can have a decidedly different effect upon both the guide and client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice can lead to developing wisdom and intuition, transcending the methodologies we use.

Cynthia Johnson

"The format will combine individual work within the group setting with seminars, group exercises, and practicum. This program will be useful not only to those who are interested in psychosynthesis, but also to anyone in the helping professions who wants to come into a more creative relationship with his/her discipline.

"Psychosynthesis is the name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration. It recognizes that each human being is spiritual in essence and encourages the realization and expression of this essence, or higher self, as fully as possible in personal and social existence." $740

Week of September 28–October 3

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see June 22-27. $490

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter & Marianne Paschke-Carter

"Wisdom is the intelligence of the system as a whole."—Gregory Bateson

"Your conscious mind is very intelligent, and your unconscious mind is a hell of a lot smarter." —M. H. Erickson.

Paul writes: "We have an intelligence obtained from our wholeness that is far greater than we are ordinarily conscious of. Erickson called it the 'unconscious mind.' Accessing and integrating this intelligence formed the basis of his hypnotic work.

"This workshop is designed for those who work with people and would like experience with Ericksonian hypnosis, communication, and problem-solving. The emphasis will be on developing a practical understanding of the principles of this approach including trance as a natural and necessary part of health and the idea that people are paradoxical and so too must their communication and problem-solving be paradoxical.

"Through guided exercises and demonstrations, participants will be taught the hypnotic use of metaphor in movement, sound, image, and story, as well as the hypnotic realities of age-regression, age-progression (traveling into futures), lucid dreaming, dissociation, and deep-trance identification (a process of deepening self-awareness through identification with different persons in and out of trance).

"Additional exploration will include: the recognition and use of spontaneous trance states that commonly occur in the course of body work, acupuncture, movement and dance, sports, counseling, and everyday stress situations; the art of using all of the system, including the bad, sick, crazy, and resistant parts; the value of humor, confusion, pattern interruption, and paradox in accessing unconscious creativity and resources; and an integrative approach to problem-solving and self-healing as described in my soon-to-be published book, The Parts Model.

"Course prerequisites: a sense of humor, a warm heart, a little skepticism, a little trust, and an unconscious mind."

Recommended reading: Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (W.W. Norton & Co.); Jeffrey Zeig, Editor, Ericksonian Approaches to Hypnosis and Psychotherapy (Brunner & Mazel). $490

Weekend of October 3–5

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Burnout: Causes and Cures

Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines

For workshop description see June 20-22. $250

Moon Journey: Reclaiming Women's Magic (for women only)

Starhawk, Beth Bone Blossom & Rose May Dance

Throughout history, women have been healers, advisors, teachers, and carriers of traditions of knowledge outside the established churches and academies. For this, they have been ridiculed, discounted, and burned as witches, yet women's knowledge and wisdom has never been destroyed.

In this workshop, we explore a feminist approach to reclaiming and reinventing our ancient skills. We learn to create ritual collectively, to sense, project, and channel the subtle energies of the earth and our bodies. The moon, in her three aspects of Maiden, Mother, and Crone, takes us on a journey together in the realms of trance, to discover within ourselves the deep well of woman's vision and woman's power. We reclaim the cycle of our bodies, of birth, growth, menstruation, aging, and death, as aspects of the sacred. $250

Myth and Poetry in the Wilderness

Antler, Phil Cousineau, Steven Harper & Jeff Poniewaz

Visionaries have always gone away from human society to gain perspective, finding in the beyond-human realm visions by which to guide the tribe. These seekers became known as shamans, magicians, rishis, prophets, and seers. Their dream-like stories of vision quests to the Otherworld were often recited in ecstatic verse, and became our earliest myths. Myth and poetic vision have helped keep us in accord with nature and been channels through which nature heals us.

This workshop will explore the wilderness within and without. We will enter into the language of nature through myth, dreams, and ancient and modern poetry from around the world. We can draw from the work of wilderness ambassadors such as Whitman, Goethe, Thoreau, Muir, Jeffers, Rexroth, Snyder, Dillard, and Levertov. During our day hikes along the shore and into the hills we will swap stories, poems, and songs. Saturday night we can listen to tapes and watch rare films of selected poets.

Participants are urged to bring and share wilderness poems, drums, wind instruments and masks.

Recommended reading: Robert Bly, News of the Universe (Sierra Club Books); Ovid, Metamorphasis (Indiana University Press). $250

Week of October 5–10

Pain and Comfort

Dee Dee Lozier & Michael Joyce

For workshop description see May 11-16. $490

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

For workshop description see May 25-30. $490

Yoga: A Week of Rejuvenation

Ganga White & Tracey Rich

For workshop description see June 15-20. $490

Gestalt

Seymour Carter

For workshop description see July 6-11. $490

Let's Make It Work or Let It Go: A Seminar for Couples in Impasse, Trouble, or At Loss

Nadine Scott

The binding together of two people through love is the soul's deepest joy, whether for years or only a brief moment. To preserve this joy requires commitment, daily exercise using the positive forces of our will and understanding, empathy, and faith.

This seminar is designed to rekindle the spirit and revive the desire toward intimacy. To begin anew or begin an ending in the best of all possible ways—through friendship. Participants please be prepared to confront issues that may be painful and distressing. $490

Weekend of October 10–12

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Moving-On Experience

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

For workshop description see June 13-15. $250

Creativity Workshop

Paul Horn

You will be guided in a joyful way to opening the creative flow within you through musical improvisation, movement, and meditation. These disciplines can enable one to develop deeper and more meaningful communication, improve intuitional faculties, and increase centering and focusing powers. Bring instruments if you have them. No previous musical experience necessary.

Recommended listening: Paul Horn, Inside; Inside the Great Pyramid; China; Jupiter 8.

Recommended reading: Yogi Ramacharaka, The Science of Breath (Yogi Publication Society); Manly P. Hall, The Therapeutic Value of Music (Philosophical Research Society). $250

The Future of the Body: The Transformation Project

Michael Murphy & Steven Donovan

In his novel, Jacob Atabet, Michael Murphy speculated that a next stage of human development might involve the power to alter the physical body at will. He is developing this idea more thoroughly in a book, The Future of the Body, and through the Transformation Project, organized in 1976 to compile and analyze a broad range of scientific, speculative and anecdotal literature on bodily transformation. Murphy will discuss some of the major ideas of his current book, and Donovan will present results to date of the Transformation Project.

Recommended reading: Michael Murphy, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports. $250

Community-Based Alternatives to Psychiatric Treatment

Lawrence Telles & Steve Fields

Many people, in many communities, have made attempts to provide person to person, rather than doctor to patient, care for those who find themselves in desperate, persistent, and acute psychological distress. The results are such services as halfway houses, vocational and housing programs, self-help groups, and social centers.

The epistemological and ideological positions imbedded in these alternative programs are based on historical views about the nature of the self and current issues in the philosophy of science. There are also broad political issues at stake in these challenges to traditional psychiatry. Attempts to humanize care for the psychologically distressed succeed or fail in a political atmosphere which transcends local battles about zoning laws.

We will step back from the details of your struggle in your community to the broadest, most abstract perspective on the work you do. These discussions will be most relevant to those who have participated in alternative care programs as clients, staff, administrators, planners, or the loyal opposition.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 35. $250

Week of October 12–17

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

The Mystical Quest

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see September 7-12. $490

Investigation Into Being

George Pennington

George Pennington writes: "This seminar could be described as a five-day interactional meditation. We will use various approaches: dialogue, body-language reading, mirroring, breathing and movement, visionary methods, and silent contemplation.

"This mode of working is a dance, that can go as deep as the participants will allow. It is a mode that I like very much, since it illustrates beautifully the wisdom of Lao Tzu's words: 'In not-doing nothing remains undone.'" $490

Family in Wilderness: A Big Sur Backcountry Experience

Steven Harper & Marilyn Mason

In this wilderness experience family members can join together in creating an opportunity for increased family intimacy. We can face our powerlessness and strengths and deepen our trust in ourselves and in one another in a safe environment. By day we hike through the Big Sur backcountry; by night we share our renewed sense of wonder through storytelling and play. As we learn from our teacher, the wilderness, we can translate the metaphors of our discoveries into our daily lives. This experience is designed for families and family fragments. We begin our day hikes after breakfast and morning stretches, and return to Esalen and healing waters before evening activities. $490

Weekend of October 17–19

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see June 20-22. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see June 27-29. $250

Reflections of Self: A Reichian Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

For workshop description see June 8-13. $250

Evolutionary Origins of Movement

Marghe Mills

Specific human movement patterns begin developing during our fetal life and continue evolving throughout our birth, infancy, and adulthood. They underlie the development of our nervous system and support our physical, intellectual, and psychological growth. The same basic patterns appear during each of our evolutionary phases (as vertebrates, as embryos, as human infant-to-adults) and are reflected in every movement of our lives. By re-acquainting ourselves with these patterns we can discover individual developmental gaps, re-educate the nervous system, and increase ease, joy, organization, and function on many levels.

This is an experiential workshop. Movement experiences include: Feldenkrais method (awareness through movement), body/mind centering, repatterning, imagery, and exploratory approaches. Information presented is applicable to all levels of experience. Some experiential anatomy and art media are included. $250

Waking Up

Judith & Charles Tart

In his book, Waking Up, Charles Tart shows how ordinary consciousness is a kind of waking sleep, an absorption in our own and our culture's illusions. How can we awaken? Our essential selves were invalidated and suppressed in childhood, as part of "education." How can we re-discover and nourish them? Our instinctual and sensory wisdom is buried under cultural distraction. How can we come to our senses?

Gurdjieff, a teacher who adapted Eastern spiritual methods to Western culture, developed practices for awakening from our sleep, our cultural trance. In this workshop participants can examine Gurdjieff's main ideas, integrating them with modern growth psychology. Self-remembering will be taught as a meditation for increasing self-understanding and living more effectively in the here-and-now. Basic practices adapted from aikido will be used to develop bodily intelligence, with emphasis on awakening as part of everyday life. $250

Week of October 19–24

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see June 22-27. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see July 20-25. $490

Creating Musical Theater

Bradley Bernstein, Didi Conn, Nancy Kaye Lunney & David Shire

Theater! Music! Lights! Make-up! Join us for a week of creating original musical theater. Now's your chance to be a writer, a lighting technician, an actor, designer, or a stage manager. Through Spolin exercises and other group games we will engage in the process of creating: from receptivity, through focus, to expression.

This is a week to rediscover your talents; a chance to experience spontaneity, creativity, and being part-of-the-whole. No experience is needed.

The faculty includes Didi Conn, stage film, and television actress, and founder of "The First Stage" in Los Angeles, which is a group of actors, directors, and writers that develop new plays for stage and screen; David Shire, Academy Award-winning composer of many film scores and of the Broadway hit Baby; Nancy Kaye Lunney, former vocal coach and accompanist who regularly leads singing workshops at Esalen; and Bradley Bernstein, director of shows at Juilliard and other schools and theaters in the United States, Canada, and Australia.

Use your own interests and abilities, be a creative player at whatever you'd like to do. This will be a very active week!

Recommended reading: Improvisation for the Theater, Viola Spolin. $490

Psychic Vision and the Creative Experience

Nancy Azara

Nancy Azara writes: "Know and expand your psychic vision and explore the magical power and healing properties inherent in art making. Using meditation and other exercises, you can open creative channels, find your visual language, bring vivid images to consciousness, and paint and draw these experiences."

Participants can focus light and color through the body, practice reading auras, and experience laying on of hands. As the week continues, you can find your own creative healing symbol at the center of your heart, ease energy blocks, look at the hidden parts of yourself, identify and clarify some important influences in your life, and own your personal power.

Bring to the workshop whatever you like of the following: acrylic or watercolor paint, collage materials, pastels, oil crayons, scissors, glue and about 50 sheets or the equivalent in pads of good quality drawing paper (no newsprint). Size 11″×14″ is ideal. $490

Weekend of October 24–26

Women's Vertical Dance: A Rock-Climbing Weekend Near Big Sur

Annie Callaway-Galland

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 35. $225

Neurolinguistics: The Structure of Subjective Experience

Eli Jaxon-Bear & John Michael Grey

For workshop description see July 27-August 1. $250

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see September 19-21. $250

Clairvoyant and Clairsentient Practices

Helen Palmer & Wendy Palmer

The two most identifiable aspects of intuition are the ability to see and the ability to sense a range of information that is unavailable to the thinking self. Clear sight and clear sensing have their historical bases of training in the traditions of visualization and martial arts practices.

This workshop will be an introduction to the internal focusing practices that can provide access to the intuitive state of mind. Particular visualization and martial arts exercises are presented in such a way that they can form the basis of discrimination between personal projections and accurate visual and sentient impressions from situations unknown to the thinking self. $250

Japan: The Missing Link in Western Culture

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard writes: "Japan has evolved the other great possibility for structuring the world of perceptions, awareness, intentionality, and activity. In this weekend workshop, we will identify the fundamental assumptions and the modes of perception that define the Japanese social, mental, cultural, and physical world, and we will 'try on' their assumptions ourselves to see if we can get a feel for their mind and culture, for the inner empire of the Japanese. If you can find an intimacy with their culture, you will recognize Japan and the Japanese within yourself. This workshop is not just for the purpose of understanding the Japanese; it is also an opportunity to understand the dynamics of our own culture and how we ourselves think. Given how different from us Japan is, and yet how well we resonate with it, Japan may be the missing link in Western culture—and Japan and the West together the basis for a new world culture.

Steve Beck

"Our society can be changed, but first we must learn to recognize the hidden frontiers of change. Arnold Toynbee said that the meeting of East and West is the central challenge and adventure of our time. Social and cultural pioneers, architects, entrepreneurs, and guerillas are welcome." $250

Week of October 26–31

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see July 4-6. $490

Self-Actualization and Hypnosis

Khara & Hugh Bromiley

"A hypnotic trance is a special psychological state which effects a break in the person's unconscious and habitual associations so that creative learning can take place."—Milton Erickson

The unconscious mind is a wonderful storehouse of potential. This workshop has been designed to explore that potential through hypnosis and its application to personal growth and self-actualization. Part of Milton Erickson's contribution was his perception and utilization of verbal and non-verbal communication, as well as his appreciation of naturally occurring trance states. In this workshop participants can work with many of the patterns that he pioneered so successfully.

Emphasis will be on practical development of altered states and their utilization. Participants can work with heightened learning states, self-hypnosis, and creative visualization. Basic and advanced methods of trance induction and utilization can be explored. There will be opportunities to practice and integrate these skills. $490

Weaving the Mindstream, Cutting the Mindstream, Generating the Source

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard writes: "One of the great teachings of Buddhism is that we can have conscious, causal, and consequential participation in our own mindstream. For all of us willing to try on a world without a God, and without a rule book of revealed truth, this recognition and teaching is essential if we are to be able to examine, trust, and find our own way. We do not live in the world; we live in a world that is an envelope or bubble of our own perceptions. Every feeling, action, and thought is contained and clothed in the inherited fabric of our culture, attitudes, and language. Before we can effectively practice emptiness, detachment, non-self, cutting the mindstream, we must first find how to live with strength, initiation, and consciousness within our own mindstream.

"In China, Zen developed and quintessentially expressed in koans a kind of acupuncture of language, action, and culture that allows us to see and shape our world. Discussing one or two koans in great detail, we will find ways together to use this means of thinking, insight, and mindstream intervention.

"The insight, philosophy, and practices of Buddhism are based on the body and mind of meditative absorption and concentration. We realize this body of absorption by the practice of cutting the mindstream and freeing the body from the defining, discursive, comparing, adhesive mind. This meditative body is not the body that carts the brain around, but body with its own wisdom, articulation, and power. This body is the entrance to an instance of the wide, inclusive mind of awareness and systemic intelligence.

"The point of these five days will be to offer insight into and an intimation, taste, experience of this Big Mind. Practices of 'generating the Source' will be discussed. There will be instruction in basic forms and skills of meditation. There are no prerequisites or readings required, other than an awareness of your own mind and body. The meditation schedule can be participated in according to your desire and experience." $490

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs. Participants in the focused programs must be prepared to stay at Esalen for the *full duration designated for that particular program, assuming that they meet the standards of the work-study program. No participants will be accepted as work scholars in Gazebo or the office until they have fulfilled a minimum of one month in one of the aforementioned departments.

Most evenings and two intensive weekends are spent together as a group exploring different practices and approaches available at Esalen, with specifically assigned leaders who will be with the group throughout the month, coordinating the study schedule and facilitating many of the evening sessions.

The program is usually divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc.

Focused programs planned thus far for 1986 include:

July 20–August 17: George Kohlrieser offers a program integrating attachment and separation theory with neo-Reichian body work, bonding, regression, re-parenting, and group process.

July 20–September 14: Seymour Carter coordinates a two-month program focusing on gestalt practice, with emphasis for, but not limited to, professionals.

September 14–October 12: Jessica Moore Britt focalizes study of energy and pulsation using gestalt, Reichian breath work, movement, touch, and ritual.

October 12–November 9: Anne Nechama Simkin conducts a program focused on gestalt, including some videotape sessions. Massage and movement work may be offered.

November 9–December 7: Deborah Anne Medow leads a program focused on body awareness, including such activities as yoga, movement and dance, theater games, interpersonal process, and massage.

In as much as the Work Study Program is a complete program in itself, please do not plan to take regularly scheduled catalog workshops during your stay. Professional services, such as massage and Rolfing®, are available at staff rates.

Accommodations are shared, with up to four people to a room, usually at South Coast Center, a staff complex located 1½ miles north of Esalen.

The 28 day Work Study Program costs $600 for the first month. A $300 deposit in U.S. currency is required with your application. Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second month, at a cost of $550, or a third month at a cost of $500 depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. Attention: Beginning April 27, the cost of all Work Study Programs except the April 27-July 20 body work program is $700 first month, $650 second month, $600 third month. The deposit will be $350. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

NOTE: This application is not a registration in the program. Registration is made only after approval of application and upon receipt of deposit. Please return this form with your deposit to:

Work Study Program, Esalen Institute,
Big Sur, California 93920. Telephone: (408) 667-2335.

The balance of the fee is due on arrival. Of the original deposit, $100 is non-refundable, and may be transferred to other Esalen programs within one year of receipt.

Available dates: May 25–June 22; June 22–July 20; July 20–August 17; August 17–September 14; September 14–October 12; October 12–November 9; November 9–December 7; December 7–January 4; January 4–February 1; February 1–March 1; March 1–March 29; March 29–April 26; April 26–May 24; May 24–June 21; etc.

Application to the Work Study Program

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Date of Birth _____ Occupation _____ Place of Employment _____

Daytime Telephone (_____) _____ Date of Application _____

Evening Telephone (_____) _____ Male ☐ Female ☐ Smoker ☐ Non-smoker ☐

I prefer the general interest program: yes ☐ no ☐ I prefer the focused program in: _____

Participants in the focused programs must be prepared to stay at Esalen for the full duration designated for that particular program.

The Work Study Program is for 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. Please list the dates of your choice, listing two alternative dates as well.

1st: _____ to _____ 2nd: _____ to _____ 3rd: _____ to _____

Work scholars may sometimes be invited to remain for a second or third month, depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. If an invitation is extended, please indicate your availability. (Not applicable to focused program applicants.) ☐ no extension ☐ one-month extension ☐ two-month extension. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs.

If you have emergency medical skills (M.D., E.M.T. or R.N.) and are willing to make those skills available during your stay, please check here. ☐

Please attach a personal statement about your interest in the Work Study Program, including: your available skills, especially English language skills, which are essential for participation in the program; any medical difficulties which might affect your working in any departments; any Esalen workshops you have attended (please list program titles, group leaders, and dates).

Wilderness Programs

Esalen Wilderness Programs Refund Policy

Most expenses in wilderness programs are incurred preparing for your arrival. The refund policy reflects the fact that few of these expenses can be recovered.

To reserve a space in a wilderness workshop, we require the following deposit:

Up to 3 days	$50
4-7 days	$100
Over 8 days	$200

The balance of the fee is due 14 days before the program begins. If you cancel prior to 30 days before the program begins, your non-refundable deposit may be applied to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year. If you cancel from 30 days up to the starting date of the trip, your deposit is forfeited.

May 2-10
Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Steven Harper & Joyce Rogers Lyke

Nature can provide us with opportunities to stretch our limits and explore our inner wilderness. By living in a natural environment we can expand our sense of self and depth of being.

The group will spend a day and a night at Esalen, leaving the next morning to hike through the Ventana wilderness. We will travel "light," with instruction in minimum impact camping, ecology, and the geography and cultural history of the area.

Wilderness will be our mirror and primary teacher, as we live simply and in direct contact with nature. We will explore our inner world of dreams, feelings, and sensations as they emerge, using gestalt awareness practice and group process. Taking inspiration from natural and native purification practices, we will create a time of cleansing and contemplation, culminating in a 24-hour period alone. The group will hike on to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center, deep in a rugged wilderness valley, with natural hot springs, for our last night together. There, meditation instruction will be available for those who wish it. Backpacking experience is not necessary, though participants should be prepared for the challenge of vigorous physical activity. More information will be sent upon registration. $490

August 2-9
A Gentle Trip in the High Sierra

Maurica Anderson & Rob Cooley

During this seven-day workshop in wildflower season we will hike eight miles to a clear mountain lake (10,000 feet) off the main trails in the John Muir Wilderness area on the western side of the High Sierra. Mules will carry in all of the personal gear and food, enabling us to have outrageously good food (fresh or frozen rather than freeze-dried). You need carry nothing but lunch, rain gear, and water on the hike in. The lake is off the main trails, and is surrounded by other lakes, grassy meadows, wildflowers, and cold streams fed by the surrounding snow fields.

We will camp by the lake for six nights, taking short day hikes to other beautiful lakes and areas, working with body awareness, massage, psychodrama, gestalt, and gentle encounter—and laughing a lot. During the week we'll also put up a sauna, take some strenuous but optional side hikes, and have some time for doing nothing. We will be concentrating on the sights and sounds and smells of the high country, on getting to know the mountains, one another, and ourselves.

Mountaineering experience is not necessary and most people are in good enough shape to make it in, but participants should be capable of hiking uphill at altitudes up to 11,000 feet and must possess a good sense of humor. For a detailed information sheet write or call Maurica Anderson, 1112 Curtis St., Albany, CA 94706 (415) 526-5814. Participants will meet in the Sierra on August 2. Fee includes food, wine, permits, and pack mules in and out. $495

August 10-17
Seasons of a Woman's Life: Self-Exploration in the Wilderness

Annie Callaway-Galland & Marilyn Mason

Women are discovering that their life cycles and crises differ substantially from life experiences of men. Most adult developmental models, however, are male-oriented and women find themselves with road maps that don't fit. Through an outdoor adventure and aided by the use of an evolving feminist model of adult development, the focus of this workshop will be to help women identify and make clear choices about which "season of their life" they are living.

Reflecting on our own inner seasons, we will hike together, exploring nature in the summer, acquiring wilderness skills, and becoming infused with the rich lore of the Ventana wilderness—from the dry chapparal to the spectacular Big Sur Coast ridges.

We will camp at Esalen our first night, drive to the trailhead the next afternoon, and return to Esalen the following Sunday morning to enjoy the hot springs and lunch. No previous wilderness experience is necessary. A complete equipment list and reading list will be sent upon registration. $550

August 30-September 12
Path of the River: A Grand Canyon Journey

Steven Harper, Wendy Palmer & Arizona Raft Adventures Staff (AZRA)

The Grand Canyon and Colorado River provide a unique environment of dramatic variety, which is intimate and awesome, soft and demanding, yet always rewarding for those who are open to all it has to offer. On this 14-day white-water raft trip through the entire length of the Grand Canyon, we explore our openness to offerings of river, canyon, and natural world. The river is our teacher and primary metaphor. We draw from aikido, dance, energy awareness, movement meditation, and gestalt to enhance our experience of this majestic wilderness area.

We travel in paddle and oar rafts. Instruction is offered in basic aspects of river life such as paddling and minimum-impact river camping. There is time to discuss the Canyon's ecology, geology, natural and cultural history; to hike and explore side canyons; to sit quietly and reflect. Finally, we can work with integration of learnings from this trip into our lives.

River experience is not necessary, though participants should be prepared for the challenge of vigorous physical activity. We ask you to come ready to participate fully. The workshop begins at 7:30 AM August 30, in Flagstaff. AZRA will supply all the necessary river and rafting gear, food, and transportation between Flagstaff and the Canyon. Details and a personal equipment list will be sent upon registration. $1400

October 24-26
Women's Vertical Dance: A Rock-Climbing Weekend Near Big Sur

Annie Callaway-Galland

"There is an art in finding one's direction in the lower regions by the memory of what one saw higher up. When one can no longer see, one can at least still know."—René Dumal

Rock climbing is a dance done in a vertical world, a dance of grace, balance, and simplicity. It is an opportunity for stretching limits, extending ourselves, exploring our own edges.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Our responses to the challenges of climbing offer a metaphor for looking at the ways we deal with stress and challenge in our daily lives. During the day we will play on the sunny boulders and low rock faces at Pinnacles National Monument, three hours east of Esalen. We'll learn basic movements, such as how to rappel and belay, building trust in our hands and feet and each other. Safety ropes free us to experiment and to discover our inner heroes. We'll prepare our gourmet meals together over a crackling fire and camp beneath the stars, sharing insights from the day's adventure. This weekend begins Friday and ends Sunday evening at the Monterey Airport. A shuttle bus operates between the airport and Esalen, and we'll travel by van to and from the Pinnacles. No previous climbing or camping experience is necessary. Minimum equipment will be needed. Complete information will be sent upon registration. $225

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state-approved provider for continuing education for health professionals. Only those programs specifically listed below offer continuing education credit. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category 1 approval. Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Physicians

June 20–22
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines
10 hours

October 3–5
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines
10 hours

Registered Nurses

June 20–22
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines
10 hours

August 10–15
Zero Balancing: Beginning / Intermediate Workshop
Fritz Smith, M.D.
30 hours

August 15–17
Zero Balancing: Advanced Workshop
Fritz Smith, M.D.
10 hours

August 22–24
The Road Back to Health
Neil Fiore
10 hours

October 3–5
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines
10 hours

October 10–12
Community-Based Alternatives to Psychiatric Treatment
Lawrence Telles & Steve Fields
10 hours

Special Programs

May 11–June 6
Psychosynthesis Training

Harry Sloan & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Learn your techniques well and be prepared to let go of them when you touch the human soul.
—Carl Jung

Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for the familiar—a technique, map, or model. This leads to the mechanical experience of "going through the motions," and using rote interventions. In those moments, if we can stretch for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, dissonance often opens to insight, with a decidedly different effect upon both client and guide—that ineffable sense of capturing the moment. The interventions that follow are dynamic, uniquely suited to the particular needs of the client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for the essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice tends to develop our inherent wisdom and intuition, a context which transcends methodologies.

I must create a system of my own or be enslaved by another man's. — William Blake

For people to strengthen their own unique style, training programs need to self-correct for the tendency to emphasize techniques, maps and models at the expense of developing the participants' intuition or "own system." At its extreme, the blind adoption of form creates a cloning of a leader's approach and/or style. The challenge of this training will be two-fold: to hold the door open to our intuition (our own system); and to utilize creatively the methods of psychosynthesis and the skills of disciplines with which we have identified. The program can be useful for anyone in the helping professions who wants a more creative relationship with their discipline. The format will combine experiential seminars, meditative practice, process work, body work, readings, supervision and practicum. Psychosynthesis leaders will be invited in at times to offer their specialty. Participants will have the opportunity to recognize and work with the process of psychosynthesis in themselves and in others, and to develop the practical experience needed to begin applying the methods of psychosynthesis in their work. Some of the themes covered in this program are: guiding as a meditation, developing and aligning the major aspects of our personality, body, feelings, and mind; principles and practice of guided imagery; multiplicity, conflict, and integration in the personality; balance and synthesis of opposites; utilizing the superconscious or transpersonal dimension to recognize, release, and transform blocked energies; the dynamic energy of love as a vehicle for change and healing; grounding (the process of translating psychological awareness and insight into deliberate behavioral change); levels of perception—intellect, intuition; spontaneity and the fear of making mistakes; the principle of synthesis as a quality of the will and as the unifying principle of individual growth and human evolution.

Psychosynthesis is a name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration, recognizing that each human being is spiritual in essence, and that the fundamental opportunity available to us is to realize and express this essence, or Higher Self, as fully as possible in the world of everyday personal and social existence.

A packet of reading materials is available on receipt of a $20 check payable to Harry Sloan, P.O. Box 18185, San Francisco, CA 94118.

$1960

July 13–18
Qualify Life: Senior Executives

John Soper

A workshop is offered for senior executives interested in living life at its highest quality. The workshop is open to a small number of participants. Please contact John Soper, Burns Creek, Big Sur, CA 93920, or call (408) 667-2341.

Massage Practitioner Certification Program

Esalen is now offering a California state-approved certificate upon successful completion of its three-month work-scholar program or five-week residential massage practitioner program, and 30 additional massages. Each program fulfills the state requirement of at least 130 hours of instruction, supplemented with additional study in body-mind disciplines such as yoga, gestalt awareness work, and movement.

Healthspring Traveling Workshops

The Esalen massage teachers and their associates have created Healthspring, an independent organization devoted to extending their work into an outreach program. The workshops offer practices to help increase physical and spiritual health and awareness within the body, and can be designed to suit the needs of individual groups. The curriculum combines such approaches as massage, meditation, dance, neo-Reichian work, creative movement, gestalt, yoga, breath enhancement, anatomy, and other health-strengthening disciplines.

Healthspring will conduct workshops at locations outside of Esalen in your hometown or city. For more information on scheduling a Healthspring group in your community, write to: Healthspring Traveling Workshops, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

October, 1986
China Study Tour

This October, Esalen will collaborate with Lan Ting Institute in Wu Yi Mountain, China, joining t'ai chi master/scholar Chungliang Al Huang in exploration of future programs for China-U.S. cultural exchange. Lan Ting Institute, established in October, 1985, is located in the Wu Yi Mountain Scenic Reserve District in Fujian province in southern China. Deep river-cut gorges and meandering streams combine with cloud-shrouded peaks to produce a landscape which has been a site for creative and spiritual pilgrimage over the last 4000 years.

This program will be an opportunity to meet and study with Chinese artists, scholars, healers, and educators who have only recently re-surfaced after years of exile during the cultural revolution. Various options for study and travel may be arranged. For further information, please call or write Reservations, Esalen.

Future Programs

November 2–14
Twelve-Day Residential Training in Integrative Body Work (IBP) for Professionals

Jack Rosenberg & Staff

For further information write the Rosenberg-Rand Institute, 1107 W. Washington Blvd., Venice, CA 90291.

October 26–November 28
Five-Week Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For further information see Massage Practitioner Certification Program, Special Programs, page 36. $2700

November 2–28
The Pearl in the Lotus: Buddhism and Western Psychology

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For further information write Christina Grof, "Re November 1986 Month-long Program," Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. $1960

Biographical Information

A

Alise Agar ..... is former program director of the Institute for the Study of Consciousness in Berkeley, California.
p. 15

Ijalue Akanbe ..... has danced with Olatunji for 22 years and is dance captain of the Drums of Passion Dancers.
p. 17

Antero Alli ..... has developed the ritual theater workshop over the past decade and has been writing and producing for Inter-Media Theater since 1970.
p. 19

Antler ..... is the author of Factory (City Lights, 1980) and Last Words: Selected Poems—1967-1983 (Ballantine, 1986).
p. 29

Maurica Anderson ..... is studying the relationship between humor and mental health. She has led Esalen High Sierra wilderness trips for many years.
p. 21, 34

Anne Armstrong ..... has been doing transpersonal counseling for over 18 years and has trained professionals to use their own intuitive abilities.
p. 17, 19, 32

Jim Armstrong, ... a former engineer, is a life-long student and teacher of esoteric studies.
p. 17, 19, 32

Elliot Aronson, ... professor of psychology at UC Santa Cruz, is author of 12 books, including Burnout (with Ayala Pines).
p. 15, 29, 35

Nancy Azara ..... is a sculptor, painter, and psychic consultant specializing in the creative process. She is co-founder of the New York Feminist Art Institute (NYFAI) Women's Center for Learning.
p. 31

B

Richard Baker-roshi ..... is presently abbot and head teacher of Dharma Sangha Zen Meditation and Study Center in San Francisco and Santa Fe.
p. 31, 32

Robert Bathurst, ... professor, writer, former diplomat, and naval officer, has specialized in Soviet literature and Soviet strategy since he was an interpreter at Camp David during the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks.
p. 11

Leonard Bearne ..... has studied self-acceptance training with Richard Olney for several years. He practices gestalt, hypnosis, and Radix, and owns an Old English sheep dog.
p. 27

Bradley Bernstein, ... a theater director, studied with Viola Spolin, and holds a doctorate in clinical psychology. He develops original theater with professional actors and with psychiatric clients.
p. 31

Daniel Bianchetta ..... practices intuitive readings, shiatsu, and deep tissue work at Esalen. He is a teacher and student of Siddha yoga.
p. 13, 30

Beth Bone Blossom, ... teacher, fiber artist, herbalist, and mother of two sons, has worked with Starhawk in the Reclaiming collective for six years.
p. 29

Ralph Blum, ... author of The Book of Runes, is a writer, publisher, and storyteller who has spent the last eight years working with Runes as a counseling tool.
p. 19

David Boadella ..... is a long-time practitioner of Reichian work, founder and developer of biosynthesis, and editor of the Reichian journal, Energy and Character.
p. 28

Faustin Bray ..... is a performing musician and media artist, founder of Island School, and director of Sound Photosynthesis. She specializes in instigating creativity using yoga, fine arts, science, and travel.
p. 28

Jessica Moore Britt, ... coordinator of Esalen in-house programming, is a practitioner of gestalt, Reichian, and wilderness approaches to healing and essential development.
p. 8, 14, 16, 22, 26, 31, 33

Viola Brody ..... is a clinical psychologist and creator of developmental play, which expresses her interest in the study of the attachment-separation process from birth to death.
p. 26

Hugh Bromiley, ... a certified practitioner of hypnosis and NLP, and Alexander technique teacher, leads seminars in Ericksonian hypnosis, communication skills, higher performance, and positive results.
p. 32

Khara Bromiley, ... a certified hypnosis and NLP practitioner, has long experience doing intuitive counseling. She has led Symington visualization groups for cancer patients.
p. 32

Charles Brooks, ... author of Sensory Awareness, the Rediscovery of Experiencing, has been a teacher of sensory awareness since 1963, often in conjunction with Charlotte Selver.
p. 13

C

Peter Caddy ..... is the founder of the Findhorn Foundation, and is presently engaged in visiting and assisting in the link-up of communities, groups, and movements for the process of planetary transformation.
p. 19

Annie Callaway-Galland, ... professional wilderness guide, family counselor, and hatha yoga teacher, has been leading Esalen trips for many years.
p. 23, 31, 34

Anne Caple ..... is a student of transpersonal psychology, technical writer, editor, and fiber artist.
p. 14

John Caple ..... is a career counselor, worklife advisor to business, and college professor.
p. 14

Paul Carter, ... co-founder and director of Meta-Education and Training Arts since 1976, leads workshops in the U.S. and Europe on Ericksonian hypnosis, creativity, and learning.
p. 29

Seymour Carter, ... longtime gestalt teacher at Esalen and in Europe, brings to his work studies in sensory awareness, Zen Buddhism, aikido, and other body-oriented practices.
p. 18, 30, 33

Michell Cassou ..... is the founder of an original approach to painting designed to stimulate and unblock creativity. She is director of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.
p. 12, 27

Stanford Eugene Cates ..... is an ordained minister, gestalt facilitator, and Trager℠ bodyworker. He has worked with Paul Rebillot in the U.S. and Europe for seven years.
p. 11

Gordon Clanton ..... teaches sociology at San Diego State University. His book Jealousy was featured in Psychology Today and on network television.
p. 24

K.C. Cole ..... is an essayist for Time-Life's Discover magazine and author of Sympathetic Vibrations: Reflections on Physics as a Way of Life.
p. 25

Didi Conn ..... starred in the movies You Light Up My Life and Grease (I & II), and was featured regularly in the TV series, Benson.
p. 31

Rob Cooley ..... does family counseling with Oregon's Children's Services Division during most of the year; in the summer he is a white-water river guide.
p. 21, 34

Phil Cousineau ..... is a free-lance writer and film educator. He has taught for the American Film Institute and is currently working on "Conversations with Joseph Campbell."
p. 21, 29

Stewart Cubley, ... artist and scientist, is a co-founder of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.
p. 12, 27

D

Rose May Dance, ... a teacher, workshop leader, and sociological researcher who has worked with Starhawk in the Reclaiming collective for six years, is editing a workbook on teaching ritual.
p. 29

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita), ... a certified Radix® teacher on the Esalen faculty, has over 12 years of experience combining Reichian body work, gestalt, Bates vision work, movement, and meditation in group and private instruction.
p. 16, 24, 27, 31

Steven Donovan ..... is director of The Transformation Project.
p. 30

Patrick Douce, ... a resident at Esalen since 1972, teaches ongoing classes in Feldenkrais awareness-through-movement and is available for individual sessions in functional integration.
p. 15, 26

Jack Downing ..... is a psychiatrist with a comprehensive background in gestalt, Rolfing®, Arica, applied kinesiology, and neurolinguistic programming.
p. 25

Joel Dweck ..... is a Reichian counselor in private practice in Los Angeles, where he also directs the Core Contact training program.
p. 20, 28

Victoria Elliot ..... is a counselor and is president and co-founder of an executive search and consulting firm.
p. 26

E

Esalen Massage Practitioners ..... Char Brenner, Peggy Horan, Deane Juhan, George King, Bill Liles, Deborah Medow, Jaime Morton, Laurie Muller, Arthur Munyer, Brita Ostrom, Vicki Topp, and Attila Vaas.
p. 16, 20, 21, 22, 25, 26, 28, 31, 36

F

David Feldshuh ..... is a professional director, actor, and teacher. He is currently artistic director of Theater Cornell, Cornell University.
p. 18

Erica Fielder ..... is a naturalist and award-winning painter. She is commissioned by the California State Coastal Conservancy to produce fine art for permanent display at coastal marshlands.
p. 24

Steve Fields, ... director of Progress Foundation, has developed and advocated alternatives to institutional psychiatric treatment for 15 years.
p. 30, 35

Richard Feynman ..... is a professor of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology. He served as an advisor on art and technology for the Los Angeles County Museum.
p. 28

Neil Fiore, ... a licensed psychologist practicing hypnosis, is working on the effects of stress and anxiety on performance and health.
p. 24, 35

Jerry Fletcher ..... is president and founder of High Performance Dynamics, Inc., a management consulting and training company based in Richmond, California.
p. 26

Kathleen Brown Fletcher ..... is a trainer and consultant in organizational development, working in both the for-profit and non-profit sectors.
p. 26

Joyce Frazee, ... gestalt and dream work practitioner in Vancouver, Canada, for 14 years, has training in Jungian dream analysis, bioenergetics, and group process.
p. 13

G

Greg Gibble ..... has danced professionally for 12 years throughout the US and Europe. He currently works with Margaret Jenkins in San Francisco and Rhonda Martyn in New York.
p. 23

Yvonne Ginsberg, ... NLP practitioner and Ericksonian hypnotist, has 10 years of intensive vipassana meditation experience. She is in private practice in the Bay Area.
p. 23

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) ..... is a chiropractor, certified Radix® teacher, Bates vision instructor, and is in private practice in Los Angeles and San Francisco.
p. 14, 16, 24, 30

John Michael Grey ..... studied at Stanford University, where he co-directed a research institute in perceptual and cognitive psychology.
p. 21, 31

Christina Grof ..... studied with Swami Muktananda and has a special interest in the relationship between mysticism and psychosis. She is founder of the Spiritual Emergency Network and co-author of Beyond Death.
p. 26, 28, 30, 31, 36

Stanislav Grof, ... a psychiatrist who has extensive experience in consciousness research with and without psychedelics, is author of Realms of the Human Unconscious, LSD Psychotherapy, and Beyond the Brain.
p. 26, 28, 30, 31, 36

H

Joan Halifax, p. 27 ... author of Shamanic Voices and Shaman the Wounded Healer, teaches in Europe, Mexico, and the U.S., and is director of the Ojai Foundation.

Anna Halprin p. 25 ... teaches at Tamalpa Institute, Marin County, California, is author of Movement Ritual I, and is the subject of the film Circle the Earth.

Daria Halprin-Khalighi p. 25 ... is a gestalt movement facilitator and is co-founder and teacher at Tamalpa Institute, Marin County, California.

Betsy Hand, p. 13, 26 ... former resident staff member of the Gestalt Institute of Canada, has 20 years experience with families, couples, and groups. She is in private practice in Kentfield, California.

Michael Harner, p. 12 ... an anthropologist who has studied shamanism among South and North American Indians for more than two decades, is the author of The Way of the Shaman and Hallucinogens and Shamanism.

Steven Harper p. 11, 12, 13, 14, 24, 25, 27, 29, 30, 34 ... teaches for Colorado Outward Bound and the National Outdoor Leadership School, and is currently the coordinator of the Esalen Wilderness Programs.

Susan Harper p. 13 ... teaches Continuum Dance Meditation workshops in Los Angeles and San Francisco, leads "Dance the River" trips on wild rivers, and has presented at the Joy-Spangler Asilomar Conference.

John Heider, p. 11 ... a psychologist in private practice in Coconut Grove, Florida, is a group leader and teacher of group leaders. He was part of the Esalen Residential program from 1967-71.

Hazel Henderson p. 28 ... is an independent futurist, author, lecturer, and radio and television moderator.

Nick Herbert p. 20 ... is the author of Quantum Reality: Beyond the New Physics and is currently working on a book about time travel.

James Hickman p. 16 ... is director of Esalen's Soviet-American Exchange Program.

Maya Holloman p. 16 ... has been a student at Gazebo since she was six months old.

Perry Holloman, p. 16 ... a former teacher at Gazebo school, currently is a member of both Experiencing Esalen and Gazebo workshop staffs.

Paul Horn p. 30 ... is a flutist, jazz musician, creator of the Inside albums, philosopher, and teacher of meditation.

Terry Hunt, p. 14 ... a licensed psychologist practicing bioenergetic analysis in Boston, directs a flotation tank center for amelioration of somatic and addictive disorders.

Alan Hynek, p. 18 ... professor emeritus of astronomy at Northwestern University, is founder and director of the Center for UFO Research in Scottsdale, Arizona.

J

Erik Jarlnaes p. 28 ... is a Reichian practitioner, athlete, and journalist. He uses the Danish Bodynamic approach in working with the body and emotions.

Eli Jaxon-Bear, p. 21, 31 ... former director of a Buddhist meditation center, is a master practitioner of neurolinguistics who integrates this work with Ericksonian hypnotic practice and Eastern philosophies.

Michael Joyce, p. 11, 30 ... longtime group leader in the U.S. and Europe and Feldenkrais practitioner, directs a neuromuscular clinic for a Veterans Administration hospital.

K

Fred Kalmus, p. 14, 16, 24, 30 ... co-founder of the Alternative Choice Counseling Program, leads workshops in stress management for corporations and individuals.

Norman Katz p. 17 ... is director of the Milton Erickson Institute of Hypnosis and the Behavioral Sciences of New Mexico.

Kenneth Kelzer p. 26 ... works as a transpersonal educator and counselor in California. Using dream work, he has been conducting classes and groups for over 10 years.

George Kohlrieser, p. 21, 24, 33 ... a clinical psychologist with an international practice, researches and applies attachment and separation theory to relationships, psychosomatic illness, violence prevention, and hostage negotiations.

Murray Korngold p. 25 ... is a certified acupuncturist and a teacher and speaker on parapsychology and psychic healing.

L

Stephen LaBerge p. 18 ... is a scientist dedicated to the transformation of human consciousness. He teaches and does research at Stanford University on conscious or "lucid" dreaming.

Benj Langdon, p. 14, 20 ... former coordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body, is currently exploring transformation through body practices.

Janet Lederman, p. 18, 24 ... creator of the Gazebo school and philosophy, is an educational consultant to corporations concerned with child care facilities.

Lenore Lefer, p. 16 ... currently maintaining a private practice in San Francisco, is on the training staff of the Psychosynthesis Institutes of London and San Francisco, and teaches psychosynthesis at the California Institute of Transpersonal Psychology.

Marc Lehrer p. 17 ... is director of Medical Hypnosis Seminars of San Francisco.

Mary Lenholt, p. 26 ... a licensed mental health counselor in private practice in Florida and a certified developmental play trainer, brings to her work a sense of love and delight.

Annie Styron Leonard p. 11, 12, 24 ... is a founder of the Energy Training Institute in Mill Valley, California, and an aikido brown belt.

George Leonard, p. 11, 12, 21 — author of Education and Ecstasy, The Ultimate Athlete, and The Silent Pulse, was a longtime senior editor of Look, and is currently a contributing editor of Esquire.

Paul Lounsbury p. 25 — has studied extensively with Milton Erickson and has conducted numerous training seminars on the use of hypnosis and strategic counseling. He is in private practice in New York.

DeeDee Lozier p. 11, 30 — is a Feldenkrais practitioner who studied with Moshe Feldenkrais in the U.S. and Israel.

Nancy Kaye Lunney, p. 11, 27, 31 — a gestalt practitioner at Esalen since 1977, previously coached Academy Award-winning entertainers. She is manager of programming and a trustee at Esalen.

Joyce Rogers Lyke p. 11, 34 — is a student of gestalt awareness practice, coordinator of the Esalen Media Center, and photographer for the Esalen Catalog.

M

Lizbeth Marcher p. 28 — is the founder and developer of the Danish Bodynamic approach to working with the body and emotions.

Marilyn Mason, p. 23, 30, 34 — family counselor and teacher at the University of Minnesota, is founder/director of the Wilderness Learning Institute.

Rhonda Martyn, p. 23 — former artistic director of the San Francisco Moving Company, is an award-winning choreographer and dancer now living in New York.

Pete McCloskey, p. 20 — former congressman and challenger to Richard Nixon in the 1972 presidential campaign, is author and teacher on constitutional law and the American political process.

Kathleen Harrison McKenna p. 23 — is an artist, mother, and traveler through nature.

Terence McKenna p. 23 — authored The Invisible Landscape and Psilocybin: Magic Mushroom Grower's Guide. He studied shamanism at UC Berkeley and has lived in tropical Asia and the Amazon.

Deborah Anne Medow, p. 8, 13, 19, 33 — Esalen group leader and body work practitioner since 1969, teaches ashtanga yoga, massage, creative movement, gestalt awareness, and related healing disciplines throughout the U.S. and Europe.

Ailish Mellard, p. 21 — holistic health practitioner and body worker for 12 years, is currently organizational consultant for Will Schutz Associates, which teaches human potential concepts for various organizations.

Jane Miletich, p. 8 — a longtime Big Sur resident and Esalen masseuse, is instructor of hatha yoga, t'ai chi, and nutrition, student of midwifery, birth, and death, and bearer of ritual.

Harvey Milkman, p. 19 — professor of psychology at Metropolitan State College, Denver, Colorado, is co-author of "The Chemistry of Craving" and co-editor of Addictions: Multidisciplinary Perspectives and Treatments.

Marghe Mills p. 31 — is co-author of Developmental Movement Therapy with Bonnie Cohen, certified Feldenkrais teacher, faculty member, Dominican College, and in private practice in the San Francisco area.

Michael Murphy p. 30 — is co-founder of Esalen Institute and founder of The Transformation Project. He is author of Golf in the Kingdom, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports, and An End to Ordinary History.

N

Claudio Naranjo, p. 14, 15 — theorist of growth disciplines and former resident at Esalen, introduced meditation as a component of gestalt practice.

Elena Naranjo p. 14 — is an actress, midwife, and yoga teacher with a background in the Fourth Way tradition.

The NINE p. 17 — "We are pure thought human fantasy seeking a road to the birth canal of reality where we will be seen as 'The NINE.'"

Laura Norman p. 19 — has been a registered certified reflexologist and massage practitioner for 14 years, and is listed in Who's Who Among American Women.

O

Jenny O'Connor p. 17 — is a psychic from England, and is a channel for "The NINE."

Richard Olney p. 27 — has studied with Alan Watts, Fritz Perls, and Alexander Lowen. He has presented self-acceptance training throughout the US and Europe.

Babatunde Olatunji, p. 17 — master percussionist from Nigeria, has performed internationally for over 30 years, and is known for his album Drums of Passion. He is an authority on African religion.

P

Heinz Pagels p. 20 — is executive director of the New York Academy of Sciences, author of The Cosmic Code and Perfect Symmetry: The Search for the Beginning of Time.

Karen Paine-Gernée p. 14 — leads groups for Adult Children of Alcoholics in Cambridge, Massachusetts. She is on the faculty of Omega Institute, The New York Open Center, Interface, and Spring Hill Institute.

Helen Palmer p. 28, 31 — is a practicing clairvoyant. She directs the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition. Her teaching utilizes personality issues as access points to psychic perception and the inner life.

Wendy Palmer, p. 25, 27, 31, 34 — a teacher and director of the Lomi School, holds a black belt in aikido and is co-founder of the Tamalpais Aikido and International Movement Arts Center.

Marianne Paschke-Carter p. 29 — combines movement, hypnosis, conscious breathing, and Trager℠ psychophysical integration in her work with individuals, families, and groups.

George Pegelow p. 20 — is instructor in shaolin kenpo karate at Stanford University, consultant in human relations, conflict resolution, and optimal human performance, and president of Wu-Wei Associates.

George Pennington, p. 30 — a staff member of the Coloman Growth Center in Bavaria, West Germany, works to combine modern psychological approaches with Buddhist and shamanic consciousness practices.

Ayala Pines, p. 15, 24, 29, 35 ... a social psychologist at UC Berkeley, and a licensed psychologist in private practice, is co-author of Experiencing Social Psychology, and Burnout: From Tedium to Personal Growth.

Jeff Poniewaz p. 29 ... is the author of Dolphin Leaping in the Milky Way, (Homeward Press, 1985). His poems have appeared in Greenpeace Chronicles, the L.A. Times, and New Age Magazine.

Hector Prestera, p. 12, 25 ... a physician, acupuncturist, Rolfer, certified neurolinguistic trainer, and practitioner of Ericksonian work, is in private practice in Monterey, California.

Christine Stewart Price p. 8 ... combines gestalt awareness practice with guided imagery and various forms of body work. She considers herself a born-again pagan. (Paganism: religion of the earth.)

Jill Purce p. 13 ... is author of The Mystic Spiral. She studied the mystical dimension of sound with Karl Heinz Stockhausen, and the magical use of the voice and overtone chanting with Tibetan lamas.

R

Edith Rasmussen p. 26 ... has been a student of awareness methods since 1978. She is now studying with Janet Zuckerman.

Paul Rebillot p. 11 ... was founding director of the Gestalt Fool Theater Family in San Francisco and has been a resident group leader at Esalen.

Leon Redler p. 27 ... is a London-based psychiatrist, and pioneer, with R.D. Laing and others, in developing alternative psychiatric strategies, including the provision of asylum for people in mental distress.

Linda Rice-Mandigo p. 20 ... is counselor in private practice in New York, and a practitioner of mahikari-no-waza.

Tracey Rich p. 15, 30 ... is a director of the White Lotus Yoga Retreat in Santa Barbara and leads seminars nationally.

David Richman, p. 15 ... a psychiatrist specializing in psychosomatic disorders, biofeedback training, and psychopharmacology, is the author of Dr. Caligari's Psychiatric Drugs, and advocates civil rights in psychiatry.

Kenneth Ring, p. 15 ... active in the field of near-death studies since 1977, is a psychology professor and president of the International Association for Near-Death Studies at the University of Connecticut.

Sogyal Rinpoche, p. 11 ... Tibetan incarnate lama, scholar, and meditation master, was raised by Buddhist master Jamyang Khyentse Chokyi Lodro, and studied at Cambridge University.

Rita Rohen, p. 25 ... a family and organizational consultant, has an international practice in personal and transpersonal growth, and in the exploration of relationships.

Nancy Rosanoff p. 23 ... teaches energy strategies and creativity as a private counselor and business consultant. She is based in New York City.

Jack Rosenberg p. 19, 36 ... has worked with cancer research and transformation of consciousness, and practices gestalt, Reichian work, yoga, and object relations in Venice, California.

Gabrielle Roth p. 25 ... is the creator of the Moving Center method of catalyzing natural movements. She lives on the East Coast, where she directs and performs with her own theater/dance company.

Ilana Rubenfeld p. 23, 24 ... is the originator of her own integration called "gestalt synergy®." She trained with Fritz and Laura Perls and Moshe Feldenkrais, and is on the faculty of New York University.

Anne Ruderman p. 20, 28 ... is a Reichian counselor in private practice in Los Angeles.

Gordy Ryan p. 17 ... has roots in the Big Sur Primitive Jazz Society, and has studied and performed with Olatunji for 15 years.

S

Ron Sand, p. 15 ... a health care practitioner in the San Francisco Bay area, is a student of gestalt process and is studying with Janet Zuckerman.

David Schiffman, p. 11, 12, 15, 16, 19, 20, 23 24, 28, 29, 30, 31 ... a long-time group leader at Esalen, is involved in developing full expression of mental, physical, and spiritual states of being.

Elisa Lodge Schiffman p. 11, 12, 15, 16, 19, 20, 23, 24, 28, 29, 30, 31, 36 ... trained in structural integration with Ida Rolf and is an advanced teacher of Rolf-movement integration.

Thomas Schlesinger, p. 21 ... screenwriter and script consultant, has conducted workshops nationwide for the American Film Institute, is author of the forthcoming book: Telling Tales, The Screenwriter as Storyteller.

Will Schutz, p. 21 ... founder of the Antioch holistic studies department, is the creator of The Human Element, a set of training materials for organizations, and author of Joy and Profound Simplicity.

Alan Schwartz, p. 21, 22 ... long-time Esalen group leader, college professor, and gestaltist, is completing his book, Systemics: The Art & Science of the Human Energy System.

Nadine Scott p. 30 ... is founder and director of International Study Group (ISG), and Pakhuis Amerika, a community for the integrated self.

Duncan Scribner, p. 22 ... originally trained as a biochemist and immunologist, has turned his attention for the past 10 years to the retrieval of our essential beingness through experiential understanding.

Charlotte Selver p. 13 ... teaches sensory awareness, perception, and non-verbal and verbal communication. A center has been built for her at Green Gulch Farm through the Zen Center, San Francisco.

Phyllis Shankman, p. 13 ... a licensed counselor in private practice in West Los Angeles, specializes in group process, and is interested in self-acceptance and change.

Robert Shapiro, p. 20 ... co-founder of Oasis, is a long-time friend of Alan Watts, Fritz Perls, Virginia Satir, Robert Assagioli, and Lama Govinda. He applies Eastern wisdom to Western life and industry.

Rupert Sheldrake ..... is a biologist and author of A New Science of Life.
p. 14

David Shire ..... won an Oscar for his song "Norma Rae," and has written numerous film scores, as well as the music for the Tony-nominated Broadway show Baby.
p. 31

David Silverstein ..... works with hypnosis and is a neo-Reichian practitioner in private practice in Berkeley, California.
p. 23

Anne Nechama Simkin ..... trained in gestalt with Erv and Miriam Polster and Jim Simkin, and has conducted workshops internationally.
p. 21, 33

Harry Sloan, ... a 1969 Esalen resident fellow, former dentist, and playwright, worked with Roberto Assagioli, the founder of psychosynthesis, and is in private practice in San Francisco.
p. 11, 18, 24, 28, 36

Fritz Smith ..... is a physician, cranial osteopath, certified acupuncturist, and founder of zero balancing. He is in a private holistic health practice in Watsonville, California.
p. 23, 35

Gerald Smith ..... is a psychologist in Belmont, California. He is the author of Hidden Meanings and Couple Therapy.
p. 13, 26

John Soper ..... came to gestalt from a highly successful international career in business. Resident at Esalen since 1978, he practices both interpersonal and intrapersonal gestalt.
p. 8, 36

Starhawk ..... is the author of The Spiral Dance: A Rebirth of the Ancient Religion of the Great Goddess (Harper & Row, 1979), and Dreaming the Dark: Magic, Sex, and Politics (Beacon, 1982).
p. 29

Elizabeth Stratton, ... a psychic healer and counselor in private practice in New York City, leads workshops in self-healing, psychic self-defense, and psychic development for health professionals.
p. 21, 22

Stanley Sunderwirth ..... is vice-president for academic affairs at Metropolitan State College, Denver, Colorado. He is co-author of "The Chemistry of Craving," Psychology Today, October, 1983.
p. 19

T

Yao Tamakloe ..... studied African dance, music, and literature at the University of Ghana and at UCLA. He dances with the Drums of Passion.
p. 17

Charles Tart ..... is a psychologist who has worked with altered states of consciousness, parapsychology, and human potentials.
p. 31

Judith Tart ..... is a registered nurse and a student of aikido, the Gurdjieff work, and the Course in Miracles.
p. 31

Lawrence Telles ..... trained as an academic philosopher, and has directed psychosocial rehabilitation programs since 1976.
p. 30, 35

Lia Thompson ..... has been a Gazebo teacher for six years. She is currently a co-ordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body and a member of the Gazebo workshop staff.
p. 8, 16

Riley Thompson-Clark ..... has been a student at Gazebo since she was three months old.
p. 16

Lesley Tierra ..... is a certified acupuncturist and dean of the East-West School of Herbology, maintains a clinic in Santa Cruz, and is author of several articles on herbs.
p. 17

Michael Tierra ..... is author of The Way of Herbs, formulator of the Planetary herb line, and has an herbal and acupuncture clinic in Santa Cruz.
p. 17

U

Walter Urban ..... is a research psychoanalyst and financial success consultant.
p. 26

V

Tom Van Sant, ... Fellow, MIT Center For Advanced Visual Studies, is an internationally known painter, sculptor, and environmental planner, and is considered the father of space art.
p. 28

W

Brian Wallace, ... musician, composer, poet, and media artist noted for creating a dramatic environment, has performed for 20 years and is director of Nomadband.
p. 28

Andrew Weil, ... author of The Natural Mind, The Marriage of the Sun and the Moon, and From Chocolate to Morphine, studies natural medicine and altered states of consciousness.
p. 15

Ganga White, ... an internationally known teacher and master of yoga, is author of Double Yoga and has received the titles "Yogacharya" and "Yogiraj" (King of Yogis) in India.
p. 15, 30

Nancy Winston ..... is a counselor in New York City who has studied with Milton Erickson and has taught and trained clinicians in the use of hypnosis and counseling throughout North America.
p. 25

Rickie Wolf, ... director of the Tokyo Gestalt Institute, is a research fellow in psychosomatic medicine at the University of Tokyo. She is a professional clown and storyteller.
p. 20

Roger Woolger, ... graduate of C.G. Jung Institute in Zurich, is a teacher, counselor, and author of articles on psychology and spiritual practices.
p. 28

Z

Janet Zuckerman ..... was an emotional release and group process teacher at Esalen for 12 years. She has a private practice in San Francisco.
p. 15, 26

Catalog Subscription Information

The Esalen Catalog is published tri-annually. Subscription cost for one year is $10 for the United States, $12 for Canada and Mexico, $16 for Europe and South America, and $18 for all other countries. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

☐ To obtain future issues of the Esalen Catalog for one year, please send a check or money order in U.S. currency drawn on a U.S. bank only to: Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. A pre-addressed envelope is included in this catalog for your convenience.
(Note: People who attend an Esalen workshop or conference will receive a free subscription for one year.)

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ Please send a complimentary copy of the Esalen Catalog to the person listed below:

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Please notify us if you change your address and check here ☐ if you are receiving duplicates of the catalog.

Friends of Esalen

We invite you to join us in our organization—Friends of Esalen.

Friends of Esalen provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

We believe that one of our first priorities is to make our programs available on a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions to fund such scholarships. Esalen will, in turn, match your contribution.

In addition to knowing that you have given someone else the opportunity to experience Esalen, you will receive the Esalen Catalog for one year. We hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the sharing and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

☐ I wish to become a Friend of Esalen and I enclose my check for the category circled.

☐ I wish to renew my membership in Friends of Esalen.

One Year Student	$15	One Year Donor	$50	One Year Patron	$500
One Year Individual	$25	One Year Sponsor	$100	(Contributions are tax-deductible)

Name _____ Student Affiliation _____

Street _____

City, State _____ Zip Code _____ Date _____

Please mail to: Friends of Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920

Food for the Senses

a book of recipes and artwork by people of the Esalen community is now available. To order by mail, use the following form.

Please send me _____ copies of Food for the Senses at $5.95 each, plus an additional $1.25 per book for postage and handling, or a total of $7.20. (California residents add $.35 tax.) I am enclosing a total of $ _____ .

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Please mail to: Food for the Senses, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920. Make checks payable to Esalen Institute. Allow 6 weeks for delivery.

The Media Center

Videotapes

Esalen

This 18-minute videotape, which tells Esalen's story from its early history to the present, is an inexpensive way to view the general offerings available at Esalen. The visuals consist of 130 color slides featuring scenes of the Big Sur coast, Esalen's garden, grounds, and various workshops and activities.

Invited Speakers

For the first time, the Esalen Media Center is offering for rental or purchase a selection of videotapes from conferences and seminars. This series consists of unedited single camera recordings of informal talks made at Esalen.

1. Jack Kornfield, "On Meditation," November, 1984. A long-time student and teacher of vipassana meditation and Buddhism discusses these traditions with reference to his own experiences as a spiritual seeker in the Orient.

2. Brother David Steindl-Rast, "God, Spirituality, and the Senses," November, 1984. A Benedictine monk and scholar discusses the spiritual journey and its relationship to mythology and transpersonal theory.

3. Fritjof Capra, "Characteristics of Systems Thinking," June, 1985. The author of The Tao of Physics and The Turning Point discusses the evolution of scientific thinking, including current views and implications.

4. Stanislav Grof, "The New Scientific Paradigm," June, 1985. An original member of the transpersonal psychology network, and author on related topics such as appropriate use of psycho-active substances, discusses his current view of consciousness.

5. Rupert Sheldrake, "Morphic Resonance and The New Science of Life," June, 1985. A British geneticist relates his theories on biological and psychological development, and discusses some empirical tests of these theories.

6. Kenneth Ring, "The Near-Death Experience," June, 1985. The author of Life at Death and Heading Toward Omega discusses his research on the near-death experience, and some of its implications for the future of the human race.

7. Albert Hofmann, December, 1984. The discoverer of LSD talks to Stan Grof about his early experiences with this and other psycho-active drugs. He also discusses some of the social, political, and scientific consequences of LSD.

8. Anne Armstrong and Elizabeth Stratton, December, 1984. Two long-time students, practitioners, and teachers of psychic work discuss with Nancy Knapp their practices and perspectives related to psychic counseling and healing.

9. Terence McKenna, "Fractile Perspectives on the Millenium," August, 1985. The author of The Invisible Landscape gives his vision of the future, centering around the evolution of human consciousness.

10. Jack Rosenberg, "One Hour and Twenty-Nine Minutes with Jack Rosenberg and Integrative Body Practice," September, 1985. The Venice, California practitioner gives his view of personality development and some of the typical patterns of interaction in relationship.

Price List and Order Form

I would like to Purchase _____ Rent _____ Programs: "Esalen" 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 (circle)

Video Format: VHS _____ Beta _____

Purchase:	Each speaker program VHS or Beta	$55.00	$ _____
	"Esalen" VHS or Beta	$35.00	$ _____
Rental: (seven days)	Each speaker program VHS or Beta	$25.00	$ _____
	"Esalen" VHS or Beta	$15.00	$ _____
		Subtotal	$ _____
	California residents add 6% tax for sales only		$ _____
	Shipping and Handling		$ 5.00
	For overseas air mail orders please add $7 additional postage for each cassette		$ _____
		Total Enclosed	$ _____

Name _____ Organization _____

Address _____ State _____ ZIP _____

Phone _____ Preferred rental dates _____

Allow 30 days for delivery. Urgent orders may be handled by phone. (408) 667-2335

Please address your order (with a check payable to Esalen Institute): Media Center, Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Rental fees may be credited toward purchase price if you notify us within 30 days.

Esalen Institute Reservations

This form is for your convenience in reserving a space in Esalen workshops. In completing the form, please indicate the name, address, and telephone number of each person registering and clearly indicate the title of the workshop for which each person is reserving a place. A registration fee for each person registering and each workshop applied for must accompany this form. (See General Information, page 46.)

(Please Print)

Name _____ Sex M ☐ F ☐

Address _____

City, State _____ Zip _____ Occupation _____

Telephone Number: Home: Area Code ( ) _____ Work: Area Code ( ) _____

There are sometimes unexpected situations that may require us to contact you immediately before your stay here. If you will not be at the above numbers during the two weeks prior to the workshop, where may we reach you? If you can't be reached, please call us before your scheduled arrival for final confirmation. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

(On additional paper please repeat the above information for every person in your party making a reservation. Mail to Reservations, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.)

Check if you want: ☐ housing as a couple, shared bed

Do you smoke? _____

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop, for phone numbers of other guests from your area.

Check here ☐ if you do not want us to give out your number for the purposes of ride sharing.

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. (For further details see Ways of Being at Esalen, page 8.)

Bus Service:

I want bus service from (check one):

_____ Monterey Greyhound Bus Station at 4:45 pm

_____ Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm

on _____ (date of arrival, Fridays & Sundays only)

The $20 per person charge is payable on arrival at Esalen. If your plans for use of the bus change after you submit this reservation, please notify us. Esalen bus service is not available at any time other than as listed above.

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Name of Person Registering	Date(s)	Leader's Name/Title of Workshop	Deposit Enclosed

Total amount enclosed: $ _____

Please make checks payable to Esalen Institute in U.S. currency only.

Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks.

Your reservation can be charged to:

MasterCard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express ☐

Card No. _____

Expiration Date _____

All workshops require nonrefundable reservation fees. See page 46. The balance of program fees becomes payable at the time of check-in.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some people, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

General Information

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esselen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute-By Reservation Only.

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop, for phone numbers of other guests coming from your area.

Reservation Information: In order to reserve a space in any workshop we require a reservation fee of $50 for weekend groups, $100 for five-day groups, $150 for seven-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups, payable in U.S. currency only. Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks. Balance of payment is due on arrival. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year of receipt. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

Please mail all reservations to:
Reservations,
Esalen Institute
Big Sur, CA 93920

We are able to process mail reservations more effectively. If you are concerned about workshops being full or have any questions, you may make reservations by phone if you use your MasterCard, Visa, or American Express credit card number to charge your reservation fee.

Phone (408) 667-2335
Office Hours:
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

If there is no answer during our regular business hours, and the phone company confirms that our phones are out of order, please call our alternate number (408) 372-8719, for recorded up-to-date workshop, road, and transportation information.

Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Check-out time is noon of departure day. Rooms become available at 4 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive any time after lunch.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Gazebo School: Any requests for child care should be sent at least one month in advance, to Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Senior Citizens' Discount Information: Esalen offers a special discount to individuals over 60 years of age. The discount for a weekend workshop is $25, and a five-day is $50. Discounts are available only when you make your reservations. Please present proof of age when you register. Senior discounts are not available for Wilderness Programs.

Ongoing Residence Program: Offered from October through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are canceled, so second choices are advised. Many community programs are also open to residents. The cost is $1960 per 26 day period.

Health Services: We are unable to provide medical supervision or pharmaceutical supplies. If you are on a health-care program and you plan to spend several weeks at Esalen, please arrive prepared to administer to your health-care needs.

Illegal Drugs: In accordance with state and federal laws, the possession or use of illegal drugs on Esalen grounds is strictly prohibited.

Room and Board: Bed spaces not required for workshop participants are sometimes available for room and board. Accommodations are shared and the rate is $60 per person per day on weekdays, and $75 per person per day on weekends. Room and board rates include dinner on the day of arrival and breakfast and lunch the following day.

Private rooms are sometimes available. Rates are $100 per person per day, $110 per couple per day on weekdays, and $135 per couple per day on weekends. Special family rates are available. Please phone the office for additional information.

Bus Service: We have bus service from the Monterey Greyhound station at 4:45 pm and from the Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm on Fridays and Sundays. If you plan to use this service, please inform the Esalen office at least 24 hours prior to your arrival. The charge for one-way service is $20, payable to the Esalen office when you check in. Return reservations may be made at the same time. The bus leaves Esalen at approximately 6:30 pm. Bus service to Esalen is not available at any other time.

Seminarians as Staff (Volunteers): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are requested to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff, usually in the kitchen. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Contributions to Esalen Institute are tax-deductible.

The expenses of attending Esalen, including travel, are deductible for federal income tax purposes as an educational expense if incurred to maintain or improve professional or work skills. (See Income Tax Regulation 1.162-5.)

Esalen Institute reserves the right to cancel any program at any time.

Conferences at Esalen: It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Richard Price
October 12, 1930–November 25, 1985

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Its activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

Esalen Institute
Big Sur
California 93920

DATED MATTER

The Esalen Catalog

September 1986·February 1987

Contents

Volume XXV, Number 3

Biographical Information 37–42
Catalog Subscription Information 43
Conferences at Esalen 7
Esalen Seminars 8–32
Experiencing Esalen 6
Experiencing Esalen: The Body 6
Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa 6
Esalen Notes 4–5
Friends of Esalen 43
Future Programs 36
General Information 45
Gestalt Practice 6
Media Center 44
Medical Programs 35
Reservations Form 46
Scholarship Information 7
Special Programs 34–35
Ways of Being at Esalen 6–7
Wilderness Programs 36
Work Study Program and Application 33

Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920
Phone (408) 667-2335
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday
& Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

Catalog Editor: Nancy Knapp
Graphic Design: Barbara Adamson
Consulting Editor: Nancy Kaye Lunney
Editorial Assistance: Virginia Arnone, Jane Beaver, Norman Chambers, Jaelitza, Anya Kucharev, Linda Roberts
Editorial Review: George Leonard
Cover Photographs: Joyce Rogers Lyke

Esalen Board of Trustees:
Mark Dayton
Steven Donovan
Jack Downing
Victoria Elliot
Stanislav Grof
Bokara Legendre
Nancy Kaye Lunney
Michael Murphy
Christine Stewart Price
Marius Robinson
Paul Rosenblum

©1986 Esalen Institute
All Rights Reserved.

Contact is the appreciation of differences.
—Fritz Perls

David Nelson

. . . and the recognition of similarities . . .
—Richard Price

Esalen Notes

Richard Price Memorial Fund

Christine Price is acting as administrator of a fund in memory of Richard Price. A memorial foundation is being formed to continue initiating and supporting projects in relation to his interests and vision. Contributions are tax-deductible, payable to Esalen Institute, and should be marked: Attention Richard Price Memorial Fund.

New Paradigm Symposium

In December of 1985 the Elmwood Institute gathered some leading holistic and systemic thinkers at Esalen for a five-day symposium to discuss "Critical Questions About New-Paradigm Thinking;" Is there an emergent holistic world view in our society and, if so, what is it?

A "paradigm" has recently come to mean the way a whole culture sees itself: the thoughts, perceptions, and values for forming its vision of reality. There was a medieval paradigm, for example, which gave way to the scientific paradigm of Galileo and Newton. This mechanistic paradigm, some observers claim, is now changing again. The emergent new paradigm is what physicist Fritjof Capra describes as a holistic and ecological vision of reality, where the world is seen, not as isolated objects, but as "a dynamic web of relations between various parts of the whole."

Capra, author of The Tao of Physics and The Turning Point, founded the Elmwood Institute with a group of colleagues in 1984 to "nurture new ecological visions." They issue publications and sponsor small group discussions and larger seminars like the "New Paradigm Symposium."

Participants included futurists, visionary writers, cultural historians, activists, scientists, spiritual leaders and scholars from many other fields. They were: Paula Gunn Allen, Walter Truett Anderson, Richard Baker, Ernest Callenbach, Fritjof Capra, Tyrone Cashman, Jacqueline Doyle, Leonard Duhl, Riane Eisler, Patricia Ellsberg, Stanislav Grof, Randy Hayes, Hazel Henderson, Eleanor LeCain, Robert Livingston, David Loye, Don Michael, Patricia Mische, Daniel Moses, Brian Murphy, Helena Norberg-Hodge, Jay Oglivy, Janice Perlman, Ziauddin Sardar, Charlene Spretnak, David Steindl-Rast, and Brian Swimme.

There was considerable consensus about the nature of the old paradigm: an obsession with domination and control of nature, competition, a mechanistic, fragmented world view, linear thinking, and the idea of unlimited progress through technological and economic growth. Not all participants, however, were sure there is a new paradigm. Some asked whether it might not be wishful thinking. Others suggested it may not be a paradigm but an ideology. Yet another view: we are not becoming more ecological; on the contrary, our increasing technology allows us much more intervention in and control of the natural world. Non-Western participants pointed out that new-paradigm values and practices have existed in tribal societies for millenia. Others pointed to the existence of the same values in what was called "female thinking." One idea that resonated strongly in all participants was that our society needs a new "cosmic story." It was felt by many that this new story will be one without heroes; it will be Earth-oriented and, accordingly, will inspire ecological values.

The symposium was hosted by Esalen's scholar-in-residence Stan Grof at the invitation of Dick Price.

For further information about the New Paradigm Symposium or the Elmwood Institute, write P.O. Box 5805, Berkeley, CA 94705 or call (415) 848-1127.

China Study Tour Highlights

Excerpted below is a description of Lan Ting Institute, Wu Yi Mountain, Fujian Province, China. This description comes from a March 7, 1986 San Francisco Examiner article by Don Lattin, and is reprinted with permission. For further information on the Esalen/Lan Ting Institute China Study Tour, October 14-November 8, 1986, see Special Programs, page 34.

"Wu Yi Mountain, a long stretch of red sandstone and conglomerate hills in the northwest corner of Fujian province, is a magical place.

"The 60-square-kilometer scenic reserve district, the Chinese equivalent to U.S. national parks, contains some of the mainland's most inspiring scenery. Thirty-six major peaks with poetically descriptive names like Tiger Roaring Rock, Jade Lady, Eagle Bill and Great King Peak—rise dramatically from lush bamboo forests.

"Thick forests also flourish atop these towering rock outcroppings, which are accessible only by steep steps carved into the stone and by spiraling, celestial stairways wedged between immense boulders.

"Mountain streams meander between the peaks. Or, as Chinese poets describe it, 'mountain and water in perpetual embrace.'

"Ancient Taoist monasteries, either in ruins or converted into quaint tea houses, appear at the ends of stone paths, which wind through cool caves and meadows fragrant with peach blossoms, lilies, mountain laurel or other flowers that bloom throughout the year.

"Ornate pagodas and pavilions perch atop towering cliffs inscribed with centuries-old calligraphy. The stone paths, rising from the earth as if they built themselves, take the wanderer along a trail blazed hundreds of years ago by divinely mad Taoist monks.

"In the early mornings, Wu Yi Mountain mist often shrouds the valley floor with a white fog. Peaks and cliff-top pavilions transcend into the heavenly realm. It's the dreamy stuff of Chinese landscape scrolls. But it's not the artist's brush that has transformed these mountains to the mystical realm. They're already there.

"Al Huang's idea of bringing a bank of artists, dancers and assorted truth-seekers to this wonderland was not a new one. These gatherings date back to the Six Dynasties, when Wang Hsi-chih, China's greatest calligrapher, gathered 42 of his friends in the Orchid Pavilion for a purification festival. It was the 9th year of Eternal Harmony, or, by our reckoning, A.D. 353. Wang described the gathering in his famous Orchid Pavilion Preface.

"'Talented people, young and old, came. Here, lofty mountains and handsome peaks, thick forests and tall bamboos. Next, clear streams, rushing torrents. Like silver bells, they reflected both sides. With these, floating goblets on meandering waters. We sat down in groups. Although we did not have strings and pipes, we drank and chanted, enough to fully pour out our feelings' . . . .

"1,632 years later, in the Year of the Ox, Al Huang's dream of resurrecting the Orchid Pavilion came true—right down to the floating wine goblets.

"Thirty-eight talented people, young and old, gathered at the base of Great King Peak. They sat down in groups. They rose with the sun. They climbed 853 stone steps above Nine-Twist Stream and brought the spirit of Far-Flung Wisdom back to Heavenly Wandering Temple, spending the night there with flutes, Buddhist sutras and soulful blues songs echoing off moonlit cliffs.

"For two weeks, in an isolated region rarely visited by Western tourists, they were thrown together with each other and an equally eclectic group of Chinese artists, calligraphers, masseurs, scholars, poets, bureaucrats, snake handlers and kung fu enthusiasts.

"There was Professor Zheng Yen, an elderly, white-bearded artist who makes birds fly with three flicks of a brush; 'master of massage' Tang Dai Zhuang, whose hands are strong as the dragon's paw and soft as a plum blossom; and Chen Fen Wu, an intense calligrapher with curly black hair and a raspy monologue interrupted by deep drags of a perpetually burning Phoenix brand cigarette.

"'My inspiration is the clouds in the sky,' said Chen, honorary chairman of the Calligraphy Institute of Fuzhou University.

"'Nature is my inspiration. I absorb nature's formations and apply it to my calligraphy. I must submit to nature. As human beings, there's no way we can surpass that level of transcendence. It's the way dragons take off—the way horses gallop.'

"In welcoming both the Westerners and their Chinese teachers to Wu Yi Mountain, Zhang Mu-Liang, bureau chief of the scenic reserve district, recalled the Golden Age of Wu Yi Mountain, some 800 years ago in the Sung Dynasty, when 108 temples flourished here—when poet/calligraphers carved their latest inspiration on the nearest cliff.

"'It is our duty and our hope,' Zhang said, 'to have a renaissance at Wu Yi Mountain.'"

A Note From the Past

A note from the past describing the property now known as Esalen/Big Sur, from J. Smeaton Chase, California Coast Trails, A Horseback Ride from Mexico to Oregon, Houghton Mifflin, 1923:

"So on we marched for weary miles, now, fortunately, over a better trail, and at last, rounding the head of another deep cañon, came to Little's Springs, otherwise known as Slate's.

"Here I found a comfortable, old-fashioned house where I could put up for the night. In fact, the place makes some claim to rank as a resort, by virtue of its medicinal springs, though no guests were in evidence, nor any token of either expectation or accommodation for them. A quarter of a mile from the house I found a couple of tents pitched on a ledge of rock halfway down the hundred-foot bluff. In them were bath-tubs to which hot sulphur water was led from springs that break out all along the cliff. Tents and tubs had been hauled up with windlass and cable from the vessel that brought them down from San Francisco, and then had been lowered over the cliff on to the ledge near the springs. It was an enjoyable experience to bathe thus, as it were, in mid-air, with gulls screaming all around and breakers roaring fifty feet below.

Fog again enveloped us when we started next morning. I was told that the trail from this place was an official one, being kept up by the county, and I communicated the news to Anton for his consolation. It kept close along the cliff, as I could tell by the sound of the surf and the cries of sea-birds far below. It was very interesting to travel thus, as was often the case, in company with unseen comrades, beauties, or dangers."

Invitational Conferences

Briefly described below are some of the private, invitational conferences scheduled at Esalen in 1986-1987. These conferences, convened and chaired by individuals interested in a particular topic, are conducted each year to explore seminal science and social issues. Some of these are annual gatherings in which a core group maintains the continuity of discussion from year to year with new participants.

Such conferences are not usually open to the public. Some of them may be available to a very limited number of observer-participants who have demonstrated a serious interest and have some background in the field. These special participants will be given an orientation by the conference leader, and may attend each conference session. A fee of $1500, which will be considered a tax-deductible donation, will help cover overall conference costs. An additional room and board fee of $60 per person per day will be charged; this may be deductible (please see General Information, p. 46). For more information regarding this opportunity, please contact the Esalen Program Office.

Mental Health Self-Help Center Planning Group

This February, 1986 meeting was part of a continuing effort to incorporate into community life of the Tenderloin neighborhood in San Francisco some of the practices at Esalen, particularly self-help support groups and work crew process sessions. Participants convened by Wade Hudson, an editor of The Tenderloin Times, explored some of the resources, such as gestalt awareness practice, available at Esalen, and engaged in planning for their own center.

Invited Conference for Practicing Intuitives

In May, 1986, Helen Palmer, director of the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition in Berkeley, arranged an exchange of personal methodologies among practicing intuitives employing widely varying styles of internal perception. Presentations of methodology included somatic and visual psychic perception, remote viewing, shamanism, and out-of-body practice. Ethical uses of psychic perception, and relationships of psychology to psychic practice and spirituality to scientific investigation, were also discussed.

Conference on the Further Reaches of UFO Research

In late June, 1986, Keith Thompson, a free-lance writer-colleague of the late Allen Hynek (founder of the center for UFO Studies) convened a meeting of UFO researchers and commentators. Participants were asked to discuss their current thinking and data, and to frame hypotheses accounting for such data. Emphasis was placed on freedom of participants to talk off the record, to agree and disagree without worrying about being quoted out of context, and to explore a wide range of possibilities.

Science and the Transpersonal

In February, 1987, Julian Isaacs, research director of the parapsychology laboratory at John F. Kennedy University, will convene a conference to explore possible scientific methodologies, styles, and concepts appropriate for examination of the transpersonal realm. Tentative topics include: possible pitfalls in extending science to the spiritual realm; the personal and the transpersonal; meeting grounds of the irrational and the rational; images of the spiritual; art as science, science as art; meeting grounds of science and the spiritual.

The Biological, Psychological, and Cultural Body

In June, 1987, Don Johnson, author and somatic educator, will gather together selected biological and behavioral scientists, creators of somatic methods, artists, counselors, teachers of meditation, and thinkers who have analyzed the role of the body within culture. This conference deals with a wide panorama of theories, clinical practices, research discoveries, aesthetics, and educational strategies which contribute to describing the sensitivity and vulnerability of human beings and the transformation of their pain. The conference is not about holistic health or healing, but about that broad spectrum of concerns about the body, of which healing, education, art, and science are subsets. Each conference participant will be asked to share a representative product of his or her work, plus a brief statement dealing with questions about the future of that work and the larger question of the future of the body.

Donated Services

Anyone wishing to offer use of specialized skills as donations to Esalen is invited to write for further information to: Program Department, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

1st Reunion of European Work-Scholars

We are planning to meet with European work-scholar alumni in Germany May 28 to 31, 1987. Visiting Esalen facilitators will include Jessica Britt, Bette Dingman, Christine Price, and John Soper. For further information and to share ideas contact Eberhard Schwartz, Menzelstr. 1, 1000 Berlin 41. 030-855-7504 by December 20, 1986.

Ways of Being at Esalen

There are various ways to experience Esalen, ranging from a visit to the hot springs on a week night to a long-term stay as a student or resident. The weekend and five-day workshops described throughout the catalog are the standard route for coming to Esalen and learning the various methods of personal growth and self-exploration that are available here. The Experiencing Esalen workshops are a kind of smorgasbord introduction to some of these many practices (such as gestalt, massage, sensory awareness, etc.); from such a sampling, the participant can then choose those approaches which feel most appropriate and pursue them in subsequent seminars. For those who wish an extended stay of a month or more there is an Ongoing Residence Program. Other long-term programs include the "month-longs" (coordinated by leaders such as the Grofs and Schiffmans), which frequently involve didactic seminars as well as experiential workshops. These can be particularly useful for professionals and graduate students.

A very popular way of being at Esalen, and one that allows a much greater involvement with the place and its community at a lower expense, is the Work Study Program, which entails working with the Esalen staff as well as participating in an ongoing workshop designed specifically for that program. See page 33 for more information and an application form.

In addition, there are other events which enrich life at Esalen. There are frequent forums in which various writers and thinkers, both visiting and resident, share their ideas with the community. On Wednesday nights, there may be lectures, films, dance performances, choirs, or other forms of entertainment. Body work of various kinds is available by appointment with individual practitioners, including massage, deep tissue, polarity, Feldenkrais, and Rolfing®. Individual sessions are also available for various types of process work, including gestalt, neo-Reichian emotional release, vision improvement, singing gestalt, etc. Finally, there is a Community Workshop program which goes on daily, and provides many opportunities for engaging in personal self-exploration or learning new approaches to human growth.

Rolfing® is a service mark of the Rolf Institute.

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen. The emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. Some of the following experiences are available at each Experiencing Esalen workshop: sensory awareness, gestalt awareness, group process, guided fantasy, meditation, massage. There is time to experience and explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Suggested reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Bantam).

Schedule:

August 31–September 5	$490
September 14–19	$490
September 26–28	$250
October 3–5	$250
October 12–17	$490
November 16–21	$490
November 28–30	$250
November 30–December 5	$490
December 12–14	$250
December 21–26	$490
January 2–4	$250
January 16–18	$250
January 18–23	$490
February 6–8	$250
February 15–20	$490
February 27–March 1	$250

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Lia Thompson
& Deborah Anne Medow

These workshops offer opportunities to experience body awareness and movement in Esalen's supportive environment. Various types of dance, massage, music, meditation, yoga, and theater are offered. Five-day groups may also have time to explore the magnificent coast and trails near Esalen.

Schedule:

September 28–October 3	$490
October 10–12	$250
October 26–31	$490
October 31–November 2	$250
November 28–30	$250
December 7–12	$490
December 19–21	$250
December 28–January 2	$490
January 23–25	$250
February 8–13	$490
February 20–22	$250

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jane Miletich

Spend a few days in Big Sur, resting, relaxing, getting in shape, or just feeling good. Enjoy healthy food prepared especially for you, and learn how to prepare it if you like. Mineral and herbal baths, nature hikes, aerobics, yoga, t'ai chi, massage, and dance will be offered. All are optional. Choose your own pace.

Schedule:

October 19–24	$490
November 30–December 5	$490
January 2–4	$250

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff
Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
and used—is inexhaustible.
—Lao Tzu

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls, relating that work to ways of personal clearing and development both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. In that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged, the relation to some Reichian work is close.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. Participants are explicitly not patients but persons consenting actively to work (or play) in awareness. The leader functions to reflect, clarify, and flow with whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, growth, rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Although open seat work is the primary form of this practice, guided fantasy, breath meditations, and movement sessions may be included. Each gestalt practice group will have a member of the Esalen gestalt staff as its primary leader. The name of this leader will be listed in the office three weeks in advance of the workshop. Please call if you want this information. Other leaders may be involved in some sessions.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim and In and Out the Garbage Pail; John Heider, The Tao of Leadership (Humanics, Ltd.).

Schedule:

September 21–26	$490
October 12–17	$490
November 9–14	$490
January 2–4	$250
January 11–16	$490
February 8–13	$490

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins.

The program is divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc. Information regarding special interest sections may be obtained by writing Bette Dingman, c/o Esalen.

For a full description of the Work Study Program, please turn to page 33.

Conferences at Esalen

It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Cynthia Johnson

Accreditation

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing as we have many applications. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. Scholarship recipients may be asked to bring a sleeping bag to use, especially during peak attendance periods. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

Esalen Seminars

Kathleen Thormod Carr

August 30–September 12

Path of the River: A Grand Canyon Journey

Steven Harper, Wendy Palmer & Arizona Raft Adventures Staff (AZRA)

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 36. $1400

Week of August 31–September 5

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Mirrors

Gabrielle Roth

"I never dreamed of being Shakespeare or Goethe, and I never expected to hold the great mirror of truth up before the world; I dreamed only of being a little pocket mirror, . . . one that reflects small blemishes, and some great beauties, when held close enough to the heart."—Peter Altenberg

This ritual theater lab, a marriage of art and healing, is a way to "know thyself" in intense, honest, creative explorations of your psyche, its patterns, cycles, and movements. The unique theater and dance processes developed by Gabrielle encourage you to dig deeply into your own life experience and to share and dramatize your insights in movement and performance. $490

The Polynesian Triune Model: How to Deal Effectively with Guilt and Self-Denigration Through Self-Integration

Murray Korngold & Jack Downing

The Kahunas of the Polynesian order of Kane have mastered practices for making friends with the subconscious, linking up with the divine via the higher self.

In this workshop, our lectures and exercises are directed toward an alliance between the conscious and inner selves. Using this ally, participants will be introduced to the higher self, the source of healing and other powers.

The triune configuration of conscious, inner, and higher selves, integrates rational thought, automatic body functions, stored memories, healing, and spiritual functions. With instruction and application, the three can converge to become one. $490

The Power of Love

Rita Rohen

Most of us use only a fraction of our capacity for love, trust, and joy. Participants in this workshop are encouraged to express themselves more fully by creating an experience of abundance. Approaches may include: gestalt from a transpersonal perspective; controlled breathing; evocative music; facilitative body work; family sculpture; guided fantasy; and humor. Learning from our own body rhythms, and contacting our own wisdom, we may open ourselves to deeper-than-ordinary levels of consciousness—and thereby achieve greater integration of mind, body, and spirit. Processes developed through work with the Spiritual Emergency Network, and recent practice in Nepal and Japan, will be used to explore ways to apply the power of love to our own lives and extend it to other persons and the planet. $490

Hypnotic Realities: An Ericksonian Approach

Paul Lounsbury & Nancy Winston

This workshop is for people who have a sense of humor and are interested in hypnotic approaches to the personal realities which they inhabit. The leaders will use Milton Erickson's naturalistic approaches to hypnosis and Gregory Bateson's evolutionary paradigm to guide participants in developing greater access to and creative use of unconscious and hypnotic capacities. Various hypnotic forms will be explored for evolution of identity, expanded creative possibilities in problem-solving, and achievement of personal goals.

Because effective use of these hypnotic approaches relies so intimately on refined awareness in communication within the self, much attention will be given to communication, and to dynamics involved in regulating, shaping, and directing attention. We suggest as a prerequisite for this workshop that participants be willing to experience certain amounts of confusion and not-knowing, since there may be alterations in reality orientation in the process of discovering new clarity. $490

Weekend of September 5–7

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

This weekend will focus on a major theme in keeping a good relationship alive. That is: being close and vulnerable yet also free to grow as a separate person.

A part of the time will be spent with your partner, separate from other couples, in verbal and written experience that can add to your relationship in closeness, conflict resolution, and individuality.

Limited to 10 couples. $250

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

The work of Moshe Feldenkrais is based on the natural process by which we learned to move as children. During this workshop soft, easy, gentle movements will be used to increase awareness of the body and to improve the ease and ability of movement. Special emphasis will be placed on the difficulties in movement that arise from chronic conditions such as lower back and neck pain, shoulder pain, tension in the neck and shoulders, and knee injuries. Such conditions can be improved by approaching the difficulties as problems in learning rather than as therapeutic troubles. Situations which were "incurable" become "reeducable." Workshop participants will also be introduced to methods to improve their ability to sense each others' bodies through touch and massage.

Although this workshop will be of value to anyone interested in learning more about their bodies through direct experience, it may be of special interest and benefit to dancers, athletes, doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists, health-care professionals, and elderly citizens, who may find themselves discovering new ways of moving with ease and increased flexibility—painlessly and immediately. $250

Dreams: Metaphors For Transformation

Kenneth Kelzer

Dreams can be a great source of power within the self, offering us a wide variety of images and energies. These raw materials of the psyche, once refined and transformed, can serve to elevate our lives to new levels, expand our awareness into new dimensions, and create new metaphors for viewing ourselves. We will explore a wide range within the dream state, covering its spiritual and creative dimensions, using gestalt, psychodrama, movement and rhythm, art media, group process, and intuitive feedback as our principal tools. Special emphasis will be given to the new frontier of lucid dreaming, and the leader will present material from his forth-coming book on that subject. Participants will have time to present their own dreams during the workshop. $250

Achieving Sustained High Performance

Jerry Fletcher & Kathleen Brown Fletcher

Everyone has had the experience of suddenly doing something much better than expected, yet until recently little has been known about these high performance experiences. People assumed such times were lucky accidents. More significantly, even if they could perform at a high level for short times, they have assumed there was no way to sustain such performance without stress, fatigue, and eventual burnout.

After more than six years of careful research and testing, it is clear that these times of exceptional performance are not capricious. Each individual has a unique set of conditions under which he or she performs surprisingly well. Furthermore, once people learn their personal high performance patterns, they can deliberately create the conditions they need to sustain their own high performance behavior. They do not need to subject themselves to the strain of short peak periods of high output, followed by long recovery cycles.

This seminar presents a carefully developed process for individuals to learn what their high performance patterns are, and how to adjust the way they do things to fit the conditions under which they perform exceptionally well. This seminar is a program developed through years of work with experienced, successful managers, executives, and professionals about how to go beyond competent performance in a way that can be sustained. $250

Week of September 7–12

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

Participants are instructed in basic methods used in giving a full body massage. Related areas of work, such as breath awareness, grounding, movement, and quality of touch are introduced, and participants are instructed in ways to release stress and muscular tension. The workshop includes the fundamental elements necessary to give a pleasurable and beneficial full body massage. $490

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Edith Rasmussen

Janet writes: "This workshop will provide a safe environment for exploring the 'unfinished business' in our lives.

"I believe that when unfinished business from the past is projected into current relationships one is prevented from fully appreciating others in the 'here and now.'

"The emotional release methods that I have developed over the past decade support completion of this unfinished business through the honest expression of feelings." $490

The Mystical Quest

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will include theoretical and experiential exploration of the transpersonal dimensions of the human psyche and the importance of the spiritual impulse in human beings. Special attention will be paid to the emerging world-view that integrates science and mysticism, and to the problem of "spiritual emergencies"—emotional and psychosomatic crises that can be associated with consciousness evolution. In the experiential work, we will use "holonomic integration," which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, and focused body work, and has the potential to mediate experiential access to the mystical domain. $490

Childhood Sexual Abuse: A Workshop for Survivors

Jessica Moore Britt

The past few years have seen the experiences that survivors of childhood sexual abuse have held as their own private reality became front page news. To guard against the hurts, fears, and confusion that sexual invasion of a child's physical and/or psychic boundaries can create, the child often abandons the place of conflict—the body. This is reflected in tension patterns, numbness, and/or oversensitivity. Gently, during our time together, we will move towards re-integrating our bodies with our selves, with particular attention to body image, sexual experience, intimacy, and parenting.

Using supportive group atmosphere, gestalt practice, Reichian breath work, movement, touch, and the natural healing environment of Big Sur we can re-enter this private world of memories and feelings and move towards a deeper understanding of the issues of boundaries, betrayal, responsibility, and aloneness, and how these effect our lives now. Focus will be on our perception of ourselves physically, sexually, emotionally, and spiritually, and how this affects our connection with others. During this time we may begin to realize that now it is safe to embody beauty and life and share love. $490

Weekend of September 12–14

How to Make Money Without Losing Your Soul

Victoria Elliot & Walter Urban

Money can be a negative or positive force depending on how people use it. This workshop will explore the psychological factors in the creation of money. Overcoming blocks, money as a tool that works, wise spending, and other related topics will be dealt with in relation to each participant's life. $250

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Edith Rasmussen

For many people, feelings are something mysterious, something to keep to one's self, or something to think about. This workshop is about all the steps involved in learning to experience, respect, and honor one's feeling process in a way that can increase vitality and personal effectiveness. Participants can learn to separate feelings from thoughts, learn from their own body rhythms, learn to contact their own wisdom, and participate, in a safe environment, in the choice of expression or depression. $250

Developmental Play

Viola Brody & Mary Lenholt

Do you ever experience times when you absolutely don't know what to do with a particular child? Or, when you don't understand what is going on with a child? Or, especially when you don't know what to do with your feelings stimulated by the child's behavior? Or, do you ever feel awkward in responding to an affectionate child?

This is a program to help children and adults develop a relationship through physical contact and creative use of the moment. An important ingredient is the quality of fun and delight each experiences in the other's presence. Developmental play focuses on the feelings stimulated by the growing relationship as both child and adult progress through the stages of attachment and separation.

Objectives of this workshop are: to help participants become more aware of how their feelings about themselves, and their attitudes and assumptions about a child, influence the way they relate to that child; and to demonstrate ways of relating to a child. In this workshop, participants will have the opportunity to learn new ways of being with children through experiential exercises and didactic audio-visual material. Parents, teachers, child care workers, child counselors, and anyone else interested, come ready to learn to play in a new way. This workshop is for adults only. $250

Response-able Psychiatric Alternatives

Leon Redler

Although no strangers to mental suffering, we're often wide of the mark in locating its source, realizing its nature, and knowing how to respond in ways both salutory and effective, thus missing precious opportunities for well-being. "Psychiatry," etymologically, points to healing of disturbances in the flow of the breath of life, or spirit, or mind, within and between us. But the psychiatric response to people in mental distress is seldom in accord with the etymological roots which could inform its principles and practices.

This workshop is intended for colleagues and students in the mental health and related professions, non-professionals with direct experience of mental distress, and anyone seriously concerned with our society's response-ability, or lack of it, in these matters.

We will inquire into what constitutes therapeutic community, asylum, refuge, dwelling, autorhythmia, attentive care, and responsibility, and discuss the possibilities and problematics of reviewing and reforming services in our own communities.

Implicit here is an exploration of primarily non-intrusive, non-transgressive ways of being with and responding carefully and effectively to people. The implications go beyond the issues of mental suffering and involve all of us who would strip away what gets in the way of discovering our way home, where the heart is, where ease and happiness begin. $250

Teaching of the Shields: A Shamanic and Buddhist World View

Joan Halifax

Joan writes: "At the root of all traditions of the sacred lies the aboriginal pulse of shamanism, humankind's archaic spiritual heritage, reaching back 40,000 years or more into pre-history. The tradition of shamanism has always drawn its tremendous power and wisdom from direct contact with earth, her plants and animals, the realms of spirit and sky, and the teacher of death and change. Even as the teachings of the aboriginal continuity have moved across the boundaries of time and culture, so also have the profound teachings of Buddhist philosophy and psychology. Both the Gautama Buddha and Guru Padmasambhava prophesied that Buddhism would travel to the Land of the Red People. The peoples of Turtle Island prophesied as well that from the East would come great teachers. In this decade these two traditions of Earth and Sky are encountering one another as allies sharing their respective teachings on warriorship and compassion.

"The teachings, ceremonies, and practices to be given in this workshop are an interpretation of Buddhism and shamanism in the light of each other and in response to Western culture. The Sacred Sweet Medicine Sundance teachings of Wheels and Keys will be given in relation to Buddhist teachings in compassion and the perfections. Practices will include meditation, chanting, visualization, and Ceremonies of the Flowering Tree." $250

Week of September 14–19

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

The Nature of Movement: Aikido and Wilderness

Steven Harper & Wendy Palmer

In this week-long workshop we will work indoors with energy awareness and principles derived from aikido, and outdoors on short day-hikes into Big Sur's backcountry to explore directly the movement that nature inspires within us. Both aikido and hiking are moving meditations which, done well, require us to be in harmony with the natural world. There will be an opportunity to take what we learn on the aikido mat out into the natural world and bring what we learn from nature onto the aikido mat. We can then begin to integrate what we learn from aikido and from nature into our lives.

All evenings and most meals will be at Esalen. Participants need not have previous experience in aikido or hiking. Come ready to move. $490

Self-Acceptance Training

Richard Olney & Leonard Bearne

Self-acceptance training is a transpersonal practice following an educational rather than a medical model. It is defined as "the experiencing of whatever I am in a given moment without the inhibition of self-judgment, self-criticism, or self-evaluation." The goal of this work is to reach the inner self, the inner teacher, and to feel alive and real.

Although its practice includes devices drawn from gestalt, bio-energetics, mythic fantasy, and hypnosis, it is also a philosophy, a value system, a view of the individual's relationship with the universe.

Self-acceptance training is a holistic approach which emphasizes body work and body awareness, emotional charge and discharge, as well as a cognitive approach through examination of the individual's "pretends" and the illusions that obstruct self-acceptance. $490

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

It is rare for most people to use painting for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to paint purely for the process of exploration, not for the result.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide a setting to explore the deepest parts of ourselves through painting—to discover in form and color a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to emotional and spiritual expression. Participants are given the opportunity to discover a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling.

The work takes place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, and a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. The workshop may be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122.

$490 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders).

Returning to the Wisdom of Our Earth/Bodies

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

"If a proper reverence for the sanctity of the earth and the diversity of its people is the secret of peace and survival, then the adventure of self-discovery stands before us as the most practical of pleasures."—Theodore Roszak, Person/Planet

Learning about our bodies, our natural instincts and responses, can lead us back to the ancient wisdom of the earth—returning us to our sacredness and wholeness.

The focus of this workshop is to regain an intimate relationship with the natural pulsations and expressions of our bodies, as well as our environment, through a conscious unfolding of our selves physically, emotionally, mentally, sexually and spiritually.

In nature, we can observe the rhythms and patterns that occur in every aspect of life—from the pulsation of the cell, to the ebb and flow of our deepest emotions, to the movement and expansion of the universe itself.

The natural world will be our teacher as we explore the "inner" terrain of our physical and emotional bodies and the "outer" terrain of Esalen and Big Sur.

We will use Reichian gestalt awareness and breath work, deep emotional release, sound, creative movement, and meditation to balance and transform energy blocks in the body. In addition, we will use music, dance, prayer, and ritual to express our relationship with the earth and each other.

No previous experience is needed, only a willingness to explore this adventure of spirit and discover a deepened sense of the interconnectedness that is inherent in all life-forms.

This workshop is limited to 12 participants.

Recommended reading: Fields, et.al., Chop Wood, Carry Water (J.P. Tarcher); Shakti Gawain, Creative Visualization (Whatever Publishing); Peter Russell, The Global Brain (J.P. Tarcher); Ken Keyes, Jr., The Hundredth Monkey (Vision Books). $490

Weekend of September 19–21

Centering, Grounding, and Facing: An Introduction to Biosynthesis

David Boadella

In this workshop we will be examining the fundamental ideas of biosynthesis. We will work with the three major life streams in the human person—the breathing wave, the movement tendency, and the contact signal. Biosynthesis is a new approach based on Reichian theory, using a process approach to human development. Concepts from embryology will be related to growth practice and principles. The weekend will be partly experiential and will include some didactics. $250

Singing Gestalt

Nancy Kaye Lunney

Singing gestalt is singing about yourself, who you are, what you feel, who you'd like to be. Singing gestalt is about being yourself in front of other people without judging how well you sing. Singing gestalt is not about performance. It is about feeling and expressing.

If the idea of getting up and singing in front of other people terrifies you more than anything you can think of, this workshop is for you. If you love to sing in front of other people and want to stretch yourself further, this workshop is for you. If you've been too shy to try, this is your chance.

Some guided imagery and gestalt may be used. Accompaniment and lots of music are provided. Video feedback may be incorporated. But the workshop is really about you—singing. $250

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

The process of self-exploration in this workshop will be based theoretically and practically on observations from modern consciousness research. The method of "holonomic integration," developed by the workshop leaders, combines evocative music, controlled breathing, facilitative body work, and mandala drawing. It uses a model of the psyche that includes the biographical-recollective level, the dynamics of the death-rebirth process, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be in the roles of experiencers as well as facilitators or "sitters." Special emphasis will be placed on the relevance of this work for management of transpersonal crisis. $250

Planetary Citizenship: Thinking Globally, Acting Locally

Hazel Henderson

Hazel Henderson writes: "This workshop explores the interface between personal growth and holistic social action. I am interested in addressing theoretical, strategic, spiritual, and practical ways of becoming effective planetary citizens. There are no hard formulas for this—we will all be learners together. Some of the themes of great interest to me are: personal change, and social action as a prerequisite to further personal growth; the emergence of transformational paradigms in science, literature, art, and music which suggest greater planetary awareness and global net-working; the vital new role of non-governmental organizations; learning to demystify economics (economics as politics in disguise); the mass media as the nervous system of the body politic (gaining media access for citizens, groups, and community issues, and evaluating various media as channels for social renewal); and identifying the winning coalitions for the new societies of the Solar Age.

"The world needs truly mindful, responsible, social-change activism and leadership as never before, just as developing self-actualizers need the risk-taking and challenge of relating to ever-more complex patterns of social, ecological and planetary interdependence. I am interested in teaching and learning how to accept the challenge of helping to heal our divisive, competitive, nationalistic, industrial societies (East and West); how to move beyond their narrow technological rationalism and militaristic posturing; and how to help foster viable alternative futures which can operate peacefully and fairly on our inter-connected planet." $250

Week of September 21–26

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Art in Practice and Theory

Tom Van Sant, Richard Feynman, Faustin Bray & Brian Wallace

The leaders write: "Participants will make drawings, paintings and music during the day. With these experiences in mind they will discuss with us general matters such as the nature of beauty, the creative process, the synthesis of art and technology, and the future of art. The physical nature of media in which we have been working will be described, such as the origin of color and the physics of musical sounds."

Bring clothes appropriate to a practicing art studio, and rhythm instruments if you wish. No previous artistic or musical experience is necessary. For further information about this workshop write: Sound Photosynthesis, 533 Charles Lane, Mill Valley, CA 94941.

$490 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders)

Intuition Practice

Helen Palmer

This seminar teaches the identification of personal intuition systems that can be made accessible by internal focusing practices, or that may already be operating in unrecognized ways. The practices develop the ability to discriminate between personal thoughts, fantasies projected from personal thinking, and impressions received from situations outside the personal self. The psychic aspect of intuition rests on the ability to shift attention from the self to impressions perceived from outside the self. $490

Past-Life Work For Professionals: A Jungian-Somatic Approach

Roger Woolger

This seminar will demonstrate how reexperiencing past-life, intrauterine, and birth scenarios can free us from phobias, bodily holding patterns, and deeply entrenched complexes. It will also provide glimpses of further unexplored areas in the transpersonal psyche including after-death states and inner archetypal figures. Yogic and esoteric concepts of the subtle body and karmic residues will be discussed. $490

Weekend of September 26–28

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This weekend workshop provides instruction in basic methods used in giving a massage, with additional work on quality of touch, breath awareness, centering, and sensitive rapport between partners. The purpose of the workshop is to introduce massage as a practical approach to greater sensory awareness and relief from stress. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

This workshop will focus on the reawakening and developing of positive, mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of loving and personal integrity. Participants will work at their beliefs and habits through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, guided imagery, and gestalt awareness methods.

Kathleen Thormod Carr

$250 per participant

The Body as History: Danish Bodynamics

Lisbeth Marcher & Erik Jarlnaes, with Anne Ruderman & Joel Dweck

Anne and Joel write: "It gives us great pleasure to introduce Lisbeth and Erik, colleagues and friends from Denmark, to the Esalen community. They are both practitioners of an exciting system of working with the body, of which Lisbeth is a founder. By gauging the tonicity of a muscle, and knowing when and how it came into play in our infant and childhood development, they are able to "read" an amazingly precise psycho-history. In addition, they can re-evoke the specific issues that are contained in these muscles.

"The leaders can also work with our undeveloped resources. These are the abilities that we have given up on, those that often correspond to feelings of resignation. As these resources are brought into play, our willingness to drop old, unfulfilling modes of protection is greatly encouraged. Participants can focus on body movement and energy, and use these to bring about expression and integration of developmental stages.

"This workshop will be experiential, with some time between sessions available to those wanting to learn more about this approach."

$250

September 26–October 3

Psychosynthesis: A Seven-Day Workshop for Professionals

Harry Sloan

Harry Sloan writes: "Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea of what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for what is most familiar—a technique, map, or model. This can lead to the mechanical experience of 'going through the motions' and rote interventions. However, if we could reach for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, the dissonance might open to insight. The result of capturing the moment and responding to the need of the client and to the dynamics of the situation can have a decidedly different effect upon both the guide and client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice can lead to developing wisdom and intuition, transcending the methodologies we use.

"The format will combine individual work within the group setting with seminars, group exercises, and practicum. This program will be useful not only to those who are interested in psychosynthesis, but also to anyone in the helping professions who wants to come into a more creative relationship with his/her discipline.

"Psychosynthesis is the name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration. It recognizes that each human being is spiritual in essence and encourages the realization and expression of this essence, or higher self, as fully as possible in personal and social existence." $740

Week of September 28–October 3

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Anything which is forced or misunderstood can never be beautiful." – Xenophon

People, like plants, need special attention to thrive and blossom. To naturally grow beyond what they've been requires strength, sensitivity, and a deeply compassionate awareness. The courage to let go of self-defeating patterns from the past, the willingness to master fresh skills and create new dreams for the future: these are the turning points that nourish and sustain us.

In this workshop the group will come together in the spirit of being simply and lovingly at home in themselves. They will create a community whose aim is to explore and move through individual turning points, in a climate of trust, goodwill, and authenticity. The program will be structured to include intensive individual work, using practices from gestalt, psychosynthesis, and bioenergetics, as well as creative movement, music, guided imagery, group rituals, and celebrations. $490

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter & Marianne Paschke-Carter

"Wisdom is the intelligence of the system as a whole." – Gregory Bateson

"Your conscious mind is very intelligent, and your unconscious mind is a hell of a lot smarter." – M. H. Erickson.

Paul writes: "We have an intelligence obtained from our wholeness that is far greater than we are ordinarily conscious of. Erickson called it the 'unconscious mind.' Accessing and integrating this intelligence formed the basis of his hypnotic work.

"This workshop is designed for those who work with people and would like experience with Ericksonian hypnosis, communication, and problem-solving. The emphasis will be on developing a practical understanding of the principles of this approach including trance as a natural and necessary part of health and the idea that people are paradoxical and so too must their communication and problem-solving be paradoxical.

"Through guided exercises and demonstrations, participants will be taught the hypnotic use of metaphor in movement, sound, image, and story, as well as the hypnotic realities of age-regression, age-progression (traveling into futures), lucid dreaming, dissociation, and deep-trance identification (a process of deepening self-awareness through identification with different persons in and out of trance).

"Additional exploration will include: the recognition and use of spontaneous trance states that commonly occur in the course of body work, acupuncture, movement and dance, sports, counseling, and everyday stress situations; the art of using all of the system, including the bad, sick, crazy, and resistant parts; the value of humor, confusion, pattern interruption, and paradox in accessing unconscious creativity and resources; and an integrative approach to problem-solving and self-healing as described in my soon-to-be published book, The Parts Model.

"Course prerequisites: a sense of humor, a warm heart, a little skepticism, a little trust, and an unconscious mind."

Recommended reading: Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (W.W. Norton & Co.); Jeffrey Zeig, Editor, Ericksonian Approaches to Hypnosis and Psychotherapy (Brunner & Mazel). $490

Weekend of October 3–5

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Intimate Communication

Elliot Aronson & Ayala Pines

We need to communicate important feelings to people we care about – feelings of affection, anger, warmth, hurt, sadness . . . But often we communicate these feelings in ways that are dysfunctional, creating problems such as conflict, defensiveness, and withdrawal. In this workshop, participants will be given the opportunity to learn and practice expressing these feelings verbally and non-verbally in ways that are straight, constructive, and aimed at enhancing understanding and intimacy in the relationship. $250

Moon Journey: Reclaiming Women's Magic (for women only)

Starhawk, Beth Bone Blossom & Rose May Dance

Throughout history, women have been healers, advisors, teachers, and carriers of traditions of knowledge outside the established churches and academies. For this, they have been ridiculed, discounted, and burned as witches, yet women's knowledge and wisdom has never been destroyed.

In this workshop, we explore a feminist approach to reclaiming and reinventing our ancient skills. We learn to create ritual collectively, to sense, project, and channel the subtle energies of the earth and our bodies. The moon, in her three aspects of Maiden, Mother, and Crone, takes us on a journey together in the realms of trance, to discover within ourselves the deep well of woman's vision and woman's power. We reclaim the cycle of our bodies, of birth, growth, menstruation, aging, and death, as aspects of the sacred. $250

Myth and Poetry in the Wilderness

Antler, Phil Cousineau, Steven Harper & Jeff Poniewaz

Visionaries have always gone away from human society to gain perspective, finding in the beyond-human realm visions by which to guide the tribe. These seekers became known as shamans, magicians, rishis, prophets, and seers. Their dream-like stories of vision quests to the Otherworld were often recited in ecstatic verse, and became our earliest myths. Myth and poetic vision have helped keep us in accord with nature and been channels through which nature heals us.

This workshop will explore the wilderness within and without. We will enter into the language of nature through myth, dreams, and ancient and modern poetry from around the world. We can draw from the work of wilderness ambassadors such as Whitman, Goethe, Thoreau, Muir, Jeffers, Rexroth, Snyder, Dillard, and Levertov. During our day hikes along the shore and into the hills we will swap stories, poems, and songs. Saturday night we can listen to tapes and watch rare films of selected poets.

Participants are urged to bring and share wilderness poems, drums, wind instruments and masks.

Recommended reading: Robert Bly, News of the Universe (Sierra Club Books); Ovid, Metamorphasis (Indiana University Press). $250

Week of October 5–10

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

This seminar will focus on the integration of body, mind, and spirit through intuitive and energy awareness, massage, meditation, movement, gestalt, and play. Using these tools and gentle risk-taking can help in opening to our own aliveness and ability to be more at home with ourselves. Participants will explore practical and portable ways of nourishing and trusting the inherent wisdom of the self. $490

Let's Make It Work or Let It Go: A Seminar for Couples in Impasse, Trouble, or at Loss

Nadine Scott

The binding together of two people through love is the soul's deepest joy, whether for years or only a brief moment. To preserve this joy requires commitment, daily exercise using the positive forces of our will and understanding, empathy, and faith.

This seminar is designed to rekindle the spirit and revive the desire toward intimacy. To begin anew or begin an ending in the best of all possible ways—through friendship. Participants please be prepared to confront issues that may be painful and distressing. $490

Pain and Comfort

Dee Dee Lozier & Michael Joyce

Pain makes us grumpy and tired and lowers our self-esteem. This workshop offers opportunities to learn to release pain and create comfort and ease in our bodies.

Group sessions involving imagery, trigger point work, and Feldenkrais lessons will allow participants to explore ways to release pain, increase comfort, and move more easily. There will be opportunities to work with one's own or someone else's pain in the neck, back, and feet. Private sessions will be focused on problems in muscles, joints, and connective tissue, and appropriate use of Feldenkrais, trigger point, and deep-tissue methods. Participants will be given help in creating a program for continuing improvement at home. $490

The Power of Growth

Seymour Carter

Seymour writes: "Each of us has unused capacities for further personal development. When these capacities are recognized and given attention, there is a natural force released which, like a tide, can carry us to a higher level of ability and action. Methods which can enable us to reach this aim are drawn from the work of Fritz Perls, who taught me to recognize the force of avoided issues in dealing with blocked energies. When unfinished issues are confronted and assimilated, we can again feel potent and in charge of our lives. With this workshop we can create a safe environment for dealing with these issues. We will examine the influence of the inner dialogue on our thoughts and the nature of impasse, as well as tendencies within ourselves toward psychological completion and well-being.

The basis of this work is the gestalt method, supported by studies in various body disciplines, including sensory awareness, bioenergetics, Rolfing®, and akido. Although I draw upon knowledge of many methods, no one's personality can be captured in a method. Each participant's process of development will be treated as unique, honored, and encouraged." $490

Yoga: A Week of Rejuvenation

Ganga White & Tracey Rich

This course will aim at giving participants the inspiration and understanding necessary to create a personal practice of yoga. Yoga brings about a strong, healthy, and flexible body, mind, and spirit. We offer a holistic approach that combines asana (posture), pranayama (breathing), and dhyana (meditation). In addition, our approach can be highly aerobic for those wanting to condition the cardio-vascular system.

The course is open to students of all levels, from beginners to advanced. Students will be shown how to develop a 45-minute daily practice that includes all elements necessary for maintaining optimum fitness. Other topics will include learning how yoga works, aligning and restructuring the body, diet and nutrition, and meditation. A special feature will be "double yoga," a system created by Ganga that allows you to share your practice with a friend.

For additional information or questions you may contact Ganga or Tracey at: White Lotus, 2500 San Marcos Pass, Santa Barbara, CA 93105, (805) 964-1944.

Recommended reading: Ganga White, Double Yoga (Penguin). $490

Weekend of October 10–12

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

The Future of the Body: The Transformation Project

Michael Murphy & Steven Donovan

In his novel, Jacob Atabet, Michael Murphy speculated that a next stage of human development might involve the power to alter the physical body at will. He is developing this idea more thoroughly in a book, The Future of the Body, and through the Transformation Project, organized in 1976 to compile and analyze a broad range of scientific, speculative and anecdotal literature on bodily transformation. Murphy will discuss some of the major ideas of his current book, and Donovan will present results to date of the Transformation Project.

Recommended reading: Michael Murphy, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports. $250

Creativity Workshop

Paul Horn

You will be guided in a joyful way to opening the creative flow within you through musical improvisation, movement, and meditation. These disciplines can enable one to develop deeper and more meaningful communication, improve intuitional faculties, and increase centering and focusing powers. Bring instruments if you have them. No previous musical experience necessary.

Recommended listening: Paul Horn, Inside; Inside the Great Pyramid; China; Jupiter 8.

Recommended reading: Yogi Ramacharaka, The Science of Breath (Yogi Publication Society); Manly P. Hall, The Therapeutic Value of Music (Philosophical Research Society). $250

The Moving-On Experience

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Fred Kalmus

This is a weekend of intense body work, structured for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, and a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released and positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and pleasure can be experienced more fully.

In a safe, supportive environment utilizing Radix®-Reichian emotional methods, hypnosis, chiropractic, massage, gestalt, dance, and group interaction we can create a new capacity for living. $250

Community-Based Alternatives to Psychiatric Treatment

Lawrence Telles & Steve Fields

Many people, in many communities, have made attempts to provide person to person, rather than doctor to patient, care for those who find themselves in desperate, persistent, and acute psychological distress. The results are such services as halfway houses, vocational and housing programs, self-help groups, and social centers.

The epistemological and ideological positions imbedded in these alternative programs are based on historical views about the nature of the self and current issues in the philosophy of science. There are also broad political issues at stake in these challenges to traditional psychiatry. Attempts to humanize care for the psychologically distressed succeed or fail in a political atmosphere which transcends local battles about zoning laws.

We will step back from the details of your struggle in your community to the broadest, most abstract perspective on the work you do. These discussions will be most relevant to those who have participated in alternative care programs as clients, staff, administrators, planners, or the loyal opposition. $250

Week of October 12–17

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

The Mystical Quest

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see September 7-12. $490

Investigation Into Being

George Pennington

George Pennington writes: "This seminar could be described as a five-day interactional meditation. We will use various approaches: dialogue, body-language reading, mirroring, breathing and movement, visionary methods, and silent contemplation.

"This mode of working is a dance that can go as deep as the participants will allow. It is a mode that I like very much, since it illustrates beautifully the wisdom of Lao Tzu's words: 'In not-doing nothing remains undone.'" $490

Family in Wilderness: A Big Sur Backcountry Experience

Steven Harper & Marilyn Mason

In this wilderness experience family members can join together in creating an opportunity for increased family intimacy. We can face our powerlessness and strengths and deepen our trust in ourselves and in one another in a safe environment. By day we hike through the Big Sur backcountry; by night we share our renewed sense of wonder through storytelling and play. As we learn from our teacher, the wilderness, we can translate the metaphors of our discoveries into our daily lives. This experience is designed for families and family fragments. We begin our day hikes after breakfast and morning stretches, and return to Esalen and healing waters before evening activities. $490

October 14–November 8

China Study Tour

Esalen/Lan Ting Institute

For program description see Special Programs, page 34. $2750 plus $910 airfare $3660 total (price subject to change)

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Weekend of October 17–19

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see September 26-28. $250

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

This will be an introduction to intensive intrapsychic work using Reichian breath work and gestalt practice. Reichian work utilizes breath and sound to energize and deepen the process of self-awareness by softening the body's patterns of physical tension and emotional holding. Gestalt practice is an awareness approach focusing on physical sensation, image, thought, and emotion. By emphasizing a person's experience in the present moment, gestalt moves toward developing a more conscious sense of self. In a supportive group atmosphere, participants will have the opportunity to explore thoughts and feelings formed by past experiences. With this exploration the possibility is opened to come to a truer concept of self, with an expanded ability to respond in the present. This workshop is limited to 10 participants. $250

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

The focus of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self-concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and group process methods, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers, as a means of achieving productive functioning. $250

Evolutionary Origins of Movement

Marghe Mills

Specific human movement patterns begin developing during our fetal life and continue evolving throughout our birth, infancy, and adulthood. They underlie the development of our nervous system and support our physical, intellectual, and psychological growth. The same basic patterns appear during each of our evolutionary phases (as vertebrates, as embryos, as human infant-to-adults) and are reflected in every movement of our lives. By re-acquainting ourselves with these patterns we can discover individual developmental gaps, re-educate the nervous system, and increase ease, joy, organization, and function on many levels.

This is an experiential workshop. Movement experiences include: Feldenkrais method (awareness through movement), body/mind centering, repatterning, imagery, and exploratory approaches. Information presented is applicable to all levels of experience. Some experiential anatomy and art media are included. $250

Waking Up

Judith & Charles Tart

In his book, Waking Up, Charles Tart shows how ordinary consciousness is a kind of waking sleep, an absorption in our own and our culture's illusions. How can we awaken? Our essential selves were invalidated and suppressed in childhood, as part of "education." How can we re-discover and nourish them? Our instinctual and sensory wisdom is buried under cultural distraction. How can we come to our senses?

Gurdjieff, a teacher who adapted Eastern spiritual methods to Western culture, developed practices for awakening from our sleep, our cultural trance. In this workshop participants can examine Gurdjieff's main ideas, integrating them with modern growth psychology. Self-remembering will be taught as a meditation for increasing self-understanding and living more effectively in the here-and-now. Basic practices adapted from aikido will be used to develop bodily intelligence, with emphasis on awakening as part of everyday life. $250

Week of October 19–24

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

To make effective, creative choices, you need courage, imagination, and the willingness to know your heart and be true to the dreams that live inside it. Choosing this deeper wisdom can often involve the risk of breaking set—the choice to move against the powerful grain of old fears, habits, and the constant pressures of other people's expectations. To foster this spirit means contacting the elemental-instinctual parts of our natures, befriending rather than suppressing or denying the sexuality and the power out of which initiative and enthusiasm spring.

In this week we will focus on how to develop those qualities in ourselves that contribute to a more adventurous, resourceful, and buoyant way of living. In an atmosphere based in warmth and humor we will explore our capacity for mutual tenderness, respect, and honesty. Traditional psychological practices such as gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis will be used for intensive individual work, as well as non-traditional innovative approaches in body work, kinesthetic retraining, music, and guided imagery. $490

Creating Musical Theater

Bradley Bernstein, Didi Conn, Nancy Kaye Lunney & David Shire

Theater! Music! Lights! Make-up! Join us for a week of creating original musical theater. Now's your chance to be a writer, a lighting technician, an actor, designer, or a stage manager. Through Spolin exercises and other group games we will engage in the process of creating: from receptivity, through focus, to expression.

This is a week to rediscover your talents; a chance to experience spontaneity, creativity, and being part-of-the-whole. No experience is needed.

The faculty includes Didi Conn, stage, film, and television actress, and founder of "The First Stage" in Los Angeles, which is a group of actors, directors, and writers that develop new plays for stage and screen; David Shire, Academy Award-winning composer of many film scores and of the Broadway hit Baby; Nancy Kaye Lunney, former vocal coach and accompanist who regularly leads singing workshops at Esalen; and Bradley Bernstein, director of shows at Juilliard and other schools and theaters in the United States, Canada, and Australia.

Use your own interests and abilities, be a creative player at whatever you'd like to do. This will be a very active week!

Recommended reading: Improvisation for the Theater, Viola Spolin. $490

Psychic Vision and the Creative Experience

Nancy Azara

Nancy Azara writes: "Know and expand your psychic vision and explore the magical power and healing properties inherent in art making. Using meditation and other exercises, you can open creative channels, find your visual language, bring vivid images to consciousness, and paint and draw these experiences."

Participants can focus light and color through the body, practice reading auras, and experience laying on of hands. As the week continues, you can find your own creative healing symbol at the center of your heart, ease energy blocks, look at the hidden parts of yourself, identify and clarify some important influences in your life, and own your personal power.

Bring to the workshop whatever you like of the following: acrylic or watercolor paint, collage materials, pastels, oil crayons, scissors, glue and about 50 sheets or the equivalent in pads of good quality drawing paper (no newsprint). Size 11″×14″ is ideal. $490

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

This workshop focuses on how we may consciously unfold ourselves—physically, emotionally, sexually, mentally, and spiritually. Past anger, fear, sadness, and grief, often reflected in the body as tension, pain, lack of spontaneity, and diminished vitality, can keep one from being fully present and alive. By becoming aware of the way one holds back self-expression, an individual then has the choice to let go. By contacting tension and allowing emotion and movement, there is an opportunity to open to the creative flow of life energy within. Allowing this life energy meaningful expression, through true communication with self and others, is the essence of this work.

Some of the areas that may be explored this week include: recognizing and releasing tensions which block emotion in the body; using breath and sound to energize and soften the body's tension and emotional holding; contacting and allowing unexpressed sadness and pain, which can increase the capacity for heartfulness, pleasure, and joy; expressing and releasing anger constructively, which can deepen compassion and love while also releasing blocked sexual energy; learning about the nature of fear, and moving toward greater trust of self and others. Paying special attention to the mental processes that shape the emotional and physical body, participants will be shown ways to trust their bodies' responsiveness and inner direction.

This workshop will utilize Reichian body and breath work, emotional release, gestalt practice, the Bates system of eye relaxation, massage, dance, meditation, and various other approaches.

Recommended reading: Stanley Keleman, The Human Ground (Center Press), Living Your Dying (Center Press); Stephen Levine, A Gradual Awakening (Anchor Press-Doubleday); White Eagle, The Path of the Soul. $490

Weekend of October 24–26

Women's Vertical Dance: A Rock-Climbing Weekend Near Big Sur

Annie Callaway-Galland

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 36. $225

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see September 19-21. $250

Clairvoyant and Clairsentient Practices

Helen Palmer & Wendy Palmer

The two most identifiable aspects of intuition are the ability to see and the ability to sense a range of information that is unavailable to the thinking self. Clear sight and clear sensing have their historical bases of training in the traditions of visualization and martial arts practices.

This workshop will be an introduction to the internal focusing practices that can provide access to the intuitive state of mind. Particular visualization and martial arts exercises are presented in such a way that they can form the basis of discrimination between personal projections and accurate visual and sentient impressions from situations unknown to the thinking self. $250

Neurolinguistics: The Structure of Subjective Experience

Eli Jaxon-Bear & John Michael Grey

Neurolinguistics is a learnable model of human communication and a method for understanding personal reality. Participants can learn the ways we unconsciously process information and how to shift communication strategies to maximize the chance of obtaining rapport with the unconscious mind of the listener. We can learn how to identify changes in the other person's internal process through observing subtle nonverbal signals and how to maximize our own flexibility in order gracefully to approach another's reality.

We can also uncover our own processes. We can learn how we limit ourselves as well as gain tools for transforming our limitations into assets. Topics will include: diffusing emotional triggers; changing "history" by viewing our past with new perspectives and bringing resources back to our childhood; and working with the different parts of ourselves to create new choices. $250

Japan: The Missing Link in Western Culture

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard writes: "Japan has evolved the other great possibility for structuring the world of perceptions, awareness, intentionality, and activity. In this weekend workshop, we will identify the fundamental assumptions and the modes of perception that define the Japanese social, mental, cultural, and physical world, and we will 'try on' their assumptions ourselves to see if we can get a feel for their mind and culture, for the inner empire of the Japanese. If you can find an intimacy with their culture, you will recognize Japan and the Japanese within yourself. This workshop is not just for the purpose of understanding the Japanese; it is also an opportunity to understand the dynamics of our own culture and how we ourselves think. Given how different from us Japan is, and yet how well we resonate with it, Japan may be the missing link in Western culture—and Japan and the West together the basis for a new world culture.

"Our society can be changed, but first we must learn to recognize the hidden frontiers of change. Arnold Toynbee said that the meeting of East and West is the central challenge and adventure of our time. Social and cultural pioneers, architects, entrepreneurs, and guerillas are welcome." $250

Week of October 26–31

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see September 7-12. $490

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

In this workshop, which is open to professionals and others interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their psi abilities, Anne and Jim will use exercises designed to aid participants in recognizing their styles and trusting the intuitive input they normally receive. During the exercises Anne will use her own "tracking" abilities acquired from over twenty years in this field to assist participants in developing their inner sensitivity. One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive/psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $490

Self-Actualization and Hypnosis

Khara & Hugh Bromiley

"A hypnotic trance is a special psychological state which effects a break in the person's unconscious and habitual associations so that creative learning can take place."—Milton Erickson

The unconscious mind is a wonderful storehouse of potential. This workshop has been designed to explore that potential through hypnosis and its application to personal growth and self-actualization. Part of Milton Erickson's contribution was his perception and utilization of verbal and non-verbal communication, as well as his appreciation of naturally occurring trance states. In this workshop participants can work with many of the patterns that he pioneered so successfully.

Emphasis will be on practical development of altered states and their utilization. Participants can work with heightened learning states, self-hypnosis, and creative visualization. Basic and advanced methods of trance induction and utilization can be explored. There will be opportunities to practice and integrate these skills. $490

Weaving the Mindstream, Cutting the Mindstream, Generating the Source

Richard Baker-roshi

Richard writes: "One of the great teachings of Buddhism is that we can have conscious, causal, and consequential participation in our own mindstream. For all of us willing to try on a world without a God, and without a rule book of revealed truth, this recognition and teaching is essential if we are to be able to examine, trust, and find our own way. We do not live in the world; we live in a world that is an envelope or bubble of our own perceptions. Every feeling, action, and thought is contained and clothed in the inherited fabric of our culture, attitudes, and language. Before we can effectively practice emptiness, detachment, non-self, cutting the mindstream, we must first find how to live with strength, initiation, and consciousness within our own mindstream.

"In China, Zen developed and quintessentially expressed in koans a kind of acupuncture of language, action, and culture that allows us to see and shape our world. Discussing one or two koans in great detail, we will find ways together to use this means of thinking, insight, and mindstream intervention.

"The insight, philosophy, and practices of Buddhism are based on the body and mind of meditative absorption and concentration. We realize this body of absorption by the practice of cutting the mindstream and freeing the body from the defining, discursive, comparing, adhesive mind. This meditative body is not the body that carts the brain around, but body with its own wisdom, articulation, and power. This body is the entrance to an instance of the wide, inclusive mind of awareness and systemic intelligence.

"The point of these five days will be to offer insight into and an intimation, taste, experience of this Big Mind. Practices of 'generating the Source' will be discussed. There will be instruction in basic forms and skills of meditation. There are no prerequisites or readings required, other than an awareness of your own mind and body. The meditation schedule can be participated in according to your desire and experience." $490

Weekend of October 31–November 2

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Intuitive/Psychic Skills for the Helping Professional

Anne and Jim Armstrong

Thousands of members of the helping professions have been trained by Anne and Jim Armstrong in their workshops across the country, yet rarely do the Armstrongs offer a training geared entirely for the helping professional. This workshop is an opportunity to work with a group of professional peers, focusing on the uses of innate intuitive abilities in a professional practice.

During this workshop participants learn how to recognize, trust, and use intuitive abilities through centering methods, developmental exercises, practice on situations presented by participants (their own or a client's), and group discussion. Anne and Jim constantly encourage the use of intuition in addition to professional training. Used consciously, this powerful combination can greatly enhance effectiveness. $250

Miracles of Infancy

Laurie Schutz Munyer & Arthur Eric Munyer with Jezariah Canyon Munyer

Laurie and Arthur write: "This will be a time to celebrate the profound miracle of new life and parenthood. The workshop will provide an opportunity for new parents and their infants (birth to two years) to come together in a harmonious and joyous way. In an atmosphere of warmth we will guide both parent and infant through a creative learning experience. Our approaches will be drawn from massage, creative movement, music, communication, and nurturing touch. We will bring awareness to how our children can be our teachers."

Some infant care will be available. $250

Anyone interested in receiving information regarding early childhood education and related activities at Esalen, please send name and address to Janet Lederman, Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Transcending Addiction: Redesigning a Lifestyle and a Mind Set

Angela Browne & Richard Miller

Addiction is a state of mind, body, and soul that can affect any of us. It is a potent form of enslavement in which an individual progressively relinquishes power. Many addictions are painful, disruptive, and even destructive. Food and drug addictions, for example, are habits that can become threats to mental and physical health and can cause addicted persons to lose self-esteem, jobs, families, and even their lives.

Addiction can, however, be an opportunity to live with greater awareness. This seminar is open to mental and physical health professionals, addicted individuals, family members of addicted individuals, and other persons interested in transcending addiction. Group interactions, exercises, and information sessions will be provided. Physical exercise, nutrition, stress reduction, communication enhancement, and visualization will be combined with intent to provide an integrated, structured, and transforming experience.

All participants, whether or not they are suffering from addiction, will be expected to remain drug-free for the duration of the seminar. Drugs include: white sugar, nicotine, caffeine, marijuana, alcohol, methedrine, cocaine, and any other substances that are "psychoactive" or "mind and body altering." Regular users of these drugs who find abstention a challenge will be supported. Our goal is to promote profound physical, mental, and spiritual change (transcendence) without chemicals.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $250

October 31–November 28

Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 34. $2120

Week of November 2–7

Deepening the Connection Between Men & Women

Diana Alstad & Joel Kramer

This is a workshop for those who want to deepen their understanding of what's going on in the couple, and how to move beyond the predictable problems that make it difficult for relationships to work. Open to anyone—whether you are in a couple or not.

Beginning with an honest look at what men and women don't know about each other, this workshop may be a meeting ground where men and women can talk to each other in new ways. We look at such basic issues as: trust; freedom and commitment; power; jealousy; sexuality; why relationships fall apart; the male point of view—what feminism left out; can you individuate fully in a couple?; using the mind to open the heart; the stages of a relationship; keeping sexuality alive throughout time; sexuality and evolution—where are we going?

This workshop presents ways to move beyond old patterns and blind spots that prevent a relationship from continuing to renew itself. Understanding yourself and the other, and how you interact, eliminates many seemingly hopeless conflicts. Awareness and intelligence can be used to keep passion and sexuality alive.

Participants may focus on personal issues relevant to you, without pressure to be more open than desired. There will be lectures, discussions, and group interactions. $490

November 2–14

Integrative Body Practice (IBP) Professional Training Program

Jack Rosenberg & Staff

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 34. $1230

November 2–28

The Jewel in the Lotus: Buddhism and Western Psychology

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description, see Special Programs, page 35. $1960

Weekend of November 7–9

Being All There

Charlotte Selver & Charles Brooks

Being all there—being fully present—was the condition of all of us at birth. The present is still our breath of life and our life-blood. As adults, however, we are often preoccupied with images and ideas of how it ought to be. Rather than responding directly to the situation at hand with all our extraordinary innate capacities, much in us has become immobilized by early conditioning, emotional problems, and habit.

Children and sages have a different way of functioning. For them the world flows into consciousness as the air into their lungs, and their responses are organismic and direct, bypassing the evaluation center which is the educated mind of the adult. It is our own lack of immediacy which is usually felt as tedium and which calls for ever stronger stimuli in the search for joy or self-discipline in the search for peace. By giving up preconceptions and gradually coming to follow our sense of reality, we begin to respond not to what should be but to what is, and the world catches fire for us.

In this workshop participants will explore direct experience, which as it becomes clearer and stronger, will slowly burn away the screen of concepts and restrictions which conditioning has interposed between ourselves and living. For the individual searching for discipline with more reality, this work may have the feeling of solid ground.

Recommended reading: Charles Brooks, Sensory Awareness (Ross Erikson). $250

Week of November 9–14

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Weekend of November 14–16

Diving into the Deep: Dream Discovery

Joyce Frazee

Each night when you disappear below the surface of yourself, what is remembered from the journey is a dream. This workshop will focus on using dreams for emotional and spiritual growth, and for connection with alienated parts of ourselves, and the dreamer in ourselves and others.

Participants may experience the multidimensional aspects of a single dream, noticing the most immediate, pressing, unfinished business present in any dream, and uncovering personal symbols. By keeping a dream journal, participants may recognize that dreams come in series, presenting and exploring a continuing theme. Since many of us forget dreams, exercises in dream recall will be offered. We will work with feelings using gestalt and bioenergetics. We will draw dream mandalas and discover how these can be used for insight and healing. Methods of dream control and lucid dreaming will be discussed. $250

November 14–21

Educating the Genius Within—The Feldenkrais Method

Harriet Goslins

"By my body's actions . . . teach my mind."
—Shakespeare

The habitual way you sit, stand, or move reflects patterns that are "wired-in" to your nervous system. This information can be erased or changed. By re-educating the brain/muscle connection, restrictions in your movement are freed, freeing also the life-time habits that have organized around that movement.

Cynthia Johnson

Awareness-through-movement lessons are a relearning of the ease and fluidity you took for granted as a child and lost somewhere along the way. Physical injury, emotional trauma, or on-going stress all evoke a protective response from the body. These patterns, necessary at the time, remain when no longer needed, outside of our awareness, and continue to cause discomfort and unnecessary limitation. Freeing them results in relief of chronic pain or tightness, a more restful sleep, and a higher energy level. When you change how you hold your muscles, your entire protective posture is altered, deeply affecting the body's habitual defense system. Thus, new movement possibilities mean new self-image possibilities.

This workshop is for those who are physically active and fit and want to increase their skills while learning to reduce risk of injury; for the sedentary or those dealing with after-effects of injuries; and for the average person who feels chronically tired and stressed and wants to learn how to take better care of his neck, shoulders, and back, to improve his posture and breathing, and to live and move with more flexibility and comfort.

Recommended reading: Moshe Feldenkrais, Awareness Through Movement. $740

Week of November 16–21

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

For workshop description see October 17-19. This workshop is limited to 16 participants. $490

Weekend of November 21–23

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see September 26-28. $250

Transitions

Elliot Aronson & Gabriele Thomson

Transitions are passages from one state to another. As part of the process of moving on, some disorganization is required to make reorganization possible. We are almost constantly in a state of transition—whether it is getting married, beginning a new career, becoming a parent, letting go of a relationship, or moving on to the next stage in the lifecycle. These changes can be exciting and, at the same time, can evoke a loss of internal balance, which may result in a lack of self-esteem, anxiety, loss of identity, confusion, and doubts about one's own perceptions. New thoughts and ideas are fragile at these times of change and need protection and nurturance.

The goal of this workshop is to gain a perspective on the process of making transitions. Through didactic presentations, group discussions, and input from participants, individuals will have an opportunity to understand the emotional stresses involved in their personal transitions. In addition, participants can learn how to increase their sense of security. $250

Week of November 23–28

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

"Freedom: A state of being in which man's relatedness to life is unobstructed."

—M.C. Richards, Centering

Stress-related tension and emotional blocks restrict our capacity for feelings and expressions of aliveness. This workshop is a carefully chosen introduction to a variety of body approaches that can release limiting patterns to promote kinesthetic awareness, spontaneity, grace, and mental flexibility. Methods may include imagery, sensory awareness, Feldenkrais, gestalt, Rolf®-movement, massage, Reichian breath work, and video feedback. $490

Change and Self-Esteem

Phyllis Shankman

Change is an ever-present aspect of living which must be accepted and used creatively if we are to sustain a healthy, interesting and exciting life. Most often we find ourselves actively or passively resisting change while we talk about wanting it. Self-esteem, which includes self-acceptance, self-appreciation, and self-confidence, is the aspect of self which enables us to confront our resistance and fear, and increases our willingness to change and take risks.

This workshop includes a unique, in-depth process focused on the ability of each individual to find and allow more personal self-acceptance and well-being, and to confront creatively opportunities for change and growth. Group activities will include gestalt process work, group discussions, massage, meditation, music, dance, art-imagery exercises, and whatever else happens spontaneously. $490

The Hakomi Method

Ron Kurtz

Hakomi is a body-centered practice based on the principles of: mindfulness, unity, organicity, non-violence, mind-body holism. Hakomi incorporates non-doing as a major methodological principle and trusts in every individual's inner wisdom and power for self-healing.

Using the body as a rich source of information about the unconscious mind, hakomi can assist people in turning inward to those special states of consciousness where change takes place, to explore core beliefs which determine the quality of our experience.

Hakomi work embraces the body-mind unity, supports the client's resistance, and encourages respect for and awareness of inner processes. This can be used for counselors, health practitioners, educators, body workers, and anyone invested in personal growth. This workshop also serves as a prerequisite for the formal hakomi certification process.

Here's an opportuity to:

- discover basic beliefs and how they are reflected in physical structure, emotional expression, expectations, and the organization of thoughts.
- self-explore in an atomosphere of safety, support, and caring.
- gain a new perspective on the psychological habits of a lifetime.
- learn about some special uses of consciousness and some ways of working with emotionally charged issues in very gentle, non-directive ways.
- find, through your own compassion and curiosity, a new contact with and appreciation for your unique processes and way of being. $490

Weekend of November 28–30

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

A Special Weekend at Esalen

This weekend is open to all those who would like to spend time at Esalen, enjoying the grounds, the bath, and the community, without participating in a group. Massage and other work offered by individual practitioners will be available as usual. $150

Week of November 30–December 5

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Echoes in Awareness —Gestalt and Continuum Practice

Christine Stewart Price & Kathleen O'Shaughnessy

Gestalt practice is a non-analytic form for personal clearing, evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls. It has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation with the primary focus being the quality of attention from moment to moment. In that emotional and energetic release are allowed and supported, the practice is similar to some Reichian work. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, and growth rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment. The primary form of this practice is individual work within the field of group support.

Continuum practices, developed by Emilie Conrad Da'oud maintain that beneath our everyday, functional movement patterns lies a very different world, revealing movement as something we are rather than as something we do. In order to catch this movement, we send unusual sound/breath/movement signals deep into our own nervous systems for prolonged periods of time, and then listen for the echoes of what we have stimulated. The intention is to activate the dormant regions of our nervous systems, especially the portions outside our habitual functioning. Initially the Continuum practice allows refined awareness in uniting the mind and body. At yet another level, it becomes an incisive healing practice, since many of our more painful life episodes are stored in areas of our bodies which have no awareness of feeling. As these physical regions are activated, so too are the psychic memories which dwell there, and a deep balancing can take place.

The gestalt and Continuum practices complement and amplify each other to form a fertile and safe environment for self-discovery and expression. $490

The Shaman Woman in Modern Literature

Cynthia Palmer & Michael Horowitz

Shamanism, feminism, and psychedelia are three powerful currents in contemporary life that have together defined a new role-model in our culture: the shaman woman of modern America. A body of literature exists as evidence of this phenomenon. The evolution of this role-model began with the psychedelic pioneers of the 1950s, continued with the beat, hippie, and New Age women of the '60s and '70s, culminating with the appearance of conscious shamanesses in the present decade.

We will examine varied aspects of this phenomenon, and read selected texts from the anthology, Shaman Woman, Mainline Lady. The writers include novelists and poets (Anais Nin, Diane di Prima, Lenore Kandel, Anne Waldman), anthropologists (Valentina Wasson, Marlene Dobkin de Rios, Barbara Myerhoff), counselors and healers (Laura Huxley, Adelle Davis, Joan Halifax, Jeannine Parvati), and parapsychologists (Thelma Moss, Marcia Moore). Reference will also be made to the example and influence of Native American shamanesses such as Maria Sabina, and to contemporary writers such as Lynn Andrews and Starhawk.

Copies of the book will be provided; audio and visual aids will supplement the readings. Time will be set aside for the presentation of personal shamanic experiences. $490

Weekend of December 5–7

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais Approach

Patrick Douce

For workshop description see September 5-7. $250

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see October 17-19. $250

Soviet-American Exchange Program Public Seminar

Paul Posner

Paul Posner is an expert on Soviet-American relations, partly because he was born in the United States and is now a Soviet citizen. He works professionally with the USSR Academy of Sciences as a historian of ancient Vietnamese history. Posner has worked closely with the Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program and is now in the United States for his second extended visit in several years. His avocation is Soviet political culture and how it relates to the United States. Among other things he will address the importance of Gorbachev in Soviet history. Having lived in both cultures, Posner also brings a complex appreciation of Soviet-American differences and similarities. The seminar format will include lectures and discussions. $250

Keeping The Spark Alive

Ayala Pines

When two people are in love it seems like the magical spark between them is going to last forever. Unfortunately, more often than not, with the dampening effects of everyday pressures and stresses, the love is eroded and eventually burns out. Burnout is not caused by individual pathology or inadequacy, and it is not caused by major dramatic events. It is caused by a build-up of petty annoyances, minor dissatisfactions, and a gradual increase in boredom. How can this insidious process of love's erosion be prevented? How can a couple in love keep the romantic spark alive?

This workshop is recommended especially for couples committed to keeping the spark alive in their relationships, and for marriage and family counselors. It may also be helpful for individuals who are trying to figure out what went wrong in a relationship that burned out. $250

Psychosis and the Archetype of Madness

David Lukoff, Kay Jamison, & Douglas Price-Williams

"Like love, God, death and the nature of the soul itself, madness is one of the psyche's fundamental thematic fantasies."—James Hillman

The mad one is both a member of society and an archetypal figure in the psyche. As an archetypal figure, the mad one carries a dual nature. In its transformative aspect, it is the trickster loosening the rigidity of the psyche and allowing deeper creative energies to emerge. In its destructive manifestation, it is Dionysian tragedy leading to permanent insanity and catastrophic loss of ability to function in society. Some people who have been through psychotic episodes report that the transformative experience initiated a new consciousness and personality. Many artists risk plunging into the uncontrolled realms of the psyche to gain a unique vision and voice for their work. However, the lives of some artists and psychotic voyagers show life-long pathology and end in tragedy. The mental state self-induced by shamans overlaps with the phenomenology of psychosis, but shamans retain control over the acquisition and release of this state.

We will explore this dual nature of madness particularly through its appearance as a theme in mythology, literature, poetry, art, theatre, and film. In addition to lectures and slide-show presentations, we will use music and storytelling to explore the experience of psychotic persons, artists, and shamans. $250

Week of December 7–12

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura De Nuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see October 19-24. $490

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The willingness to allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support participants will clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $490

The Courage of Self-Expression

Elliot Sobel

"Life is either a daring adventure, or nothing."
—Helen Keller

It takes great courage to express the full power and vision of one's true self in this world. Most of us have unwittingly succumbed to a cultural conspiracy which subtly asks us to hide the vast mystery of our essential being; instead, we tend to be careful, polite, anonymous, and generally fearful, and we often take workshops in order to "get better."

This workshop is an experiment in creating a community which has as its underlying assumption a different premise: that each participant, in truth, is already healed, and therefore has a very vital and necessary contribution to make to the whole, one which requires daring and risk. Using the arts as vehicle and metaphor—through singing, dancing, writing, painting, and video—participants will be asked to confront themselves with the question, "Am I willing to be all that I am?"

In order to create a safe environment for this kind of work, a high level of commitment is required. The group will be housed together in a separate living unit, and will be asked to spend the first three days of the workshop in "social silence." This relieves the pressure to converse and relate, and allows participants to sink deeply within. Paradoxically, they will also be asked to express themselves outwardly, through the arts. The ordinary and superficial interactions of the personality are thus bypassed in favor of a recollected intuition of the soul, revealed through art. The second half of the week will allow for the re-integration of the group into the rest of the Esalen community, with an exploration of the responsibility which automatically accompanies true expression of the self: to contribute our highest vision to the world outside. $490

Weekend of December 12–14

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

The Power of Growth

Seymour Carter

For workshop description see October 5-10. $250

The Moving-On Experience

Mary Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see October 10-12. $250

Suffering and Happiness as a Spiritual Path

Sogyal Rinpoche

According to the vision of Buddha, the suffering and happiness that we experience now can actually become the path to inner development. This teaching, written by the Tibetan master Jikme Tenpe Nyima, challenges our basic attitude to suffering and happiness, which are revealed to be sources of understanding, compassion and tranquility. Rinpoche will interweave this teaching with periods of guided sitting meditation practice. $250

The Loneliness of the Male Body

Don Johnson

We will examine how each of us forms our image of our body, and how that image shapes our life in the world: the quality of our personal relationships, our work life, our ethical and spiritual values, our sexuality, our attitudes about death. Emphasis will be specifically on how we men are shaped to experience our bodies, including factors arising from family history, accidents and illnesses, sports, school, medicine, the military, the media, and religion. We will use guided imagery, drawing, and writing to regain contact with past history. We will do extensive work in sensory awareness, simple modes of touch, and movement exercises to retain a connection with our felt bodies. Although the emphasis is on the male body women attending the workshop will find some clues about rough edges in our relationships. $250

Week of December 14–19

The Mystical Quest

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see September 7-12. $490

A Gentle Unfolding

Daniel Bianchetta

For workshop description see October 5-10. $490

Basic Deep Tissue Body Work Practicum

Dub Leigh

This practicum is divided into three equal parts. The first focuses on: the chest and diaphragm to improve the client's breathing and increase freedom in this area; the waist to increase length; the hip area to allow more freedom of movement; the back and neck to lengthen and organize. The second part works first on the feet and lower legs and then works the shoulders and back. The third part works the lateral lines of the body to create balance and alignment of the whole body.

This is the basic instruction needed before more advanced Esalen Deep Tissue Training can be taught. Prerequisites are some massage training, or a weekend with Dub Leigh. $490

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani)

This is a week of intense body work, structured for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor, tension, stress, and a lack of spontaneity. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released and positive feelings of joy, love, trust, and pleasure can be experienced more fully.

A most important feature of the workshop is the individual Radix®-Reichian intensive, done in a safe, supportive environment. By also using dream work, hypnosis, chiropractic, bioenergetics, massage, dance, and group interaction as one lets go/moves on, a new capacity for living can emerge. $490

Weekend of December 19–21

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Locating Pain and Trauma and Eliminating It

Dub Leigh

This is a hands-on workshop. We will work on each other to learn and experience the newest methods for removing old buried pain and trauma stored in our bodies. Massage people are welcome; however, no massage experience is necessary.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $250

Say What You Mean; Mean What You Say: A Gestalt Workshop on Relationships

Marty Fromm

We can learn to improve our effectiveness as communicator and listeners. Most of us have learned indirectness in communicating, which makes conversation comparable to picking your way through a minefield. Through a combination of didactic presentations and experiential rehearsals, participants will have an opportunity to explore and experiment with directness.

Is your communication issue a job interview, a closer interpersonal relationship, getting what you want more often, learning to express your feelings, or learning how to balance connectedness and independence? Whatever it is, you can benefit from this workshop. Couples are especially invited, since indirect communication and misunderstandings are particularly common and painful within relationships. $250

Re-Owning Fiction

Angela Praesent

Whenever we are deeply and lastingly fascinated by a novel or a story, we meet a part of ourselves, just as we do when we delve into dreams, myths, images, or gossip. Using role-playing, story-telling and re-telling, we will explore the news which remembered texts haved to tell about each of us. Bring your current or all-time favorite novel or story along, if possible in more than one copy. If you haven't read much fiction lately, but want to reconnect with the child-like creative reader within, read one (or all) of these before coming to Esalen:

Recommended reading: E. L. Doctorow, The Lives of the Poets/a Novella and Six Stories (Random House); John Updike, Rabbit Is Rich (Knopf); Toni Morrison, Song of Solomon (Knopf). $250

The Bhagavad Gita As a Guide to Counseling

Harry Sloan

"Better is one's own dharma [own style], though imperfect, than the dharma of another well performed. He who does the duty ordained by his own nature incurs no sin."—The Bhagavad Gita

Similarly, William Blake said, "I must create a system of my own or be enslaved by another man's." To the extent we clone someone else's approach or style, even though we perform the task well, if it is at the expense of our true nature we dishonor ourselves.

The Bhagavad Gita is an ancient and sacred text of the Hindus. What the Bible is to the West, the Gita is to the East. The story of the Gita is about a battle. Metaphorically, it is the struggle of honoring our duty to ourselves, and not capitulating to the obstacles and familiar habits that impede deepening and expressing our unique sense of Self. For a counselor the message of the Gita is the struggle to resist the temptation to settle for rote interventions or techniques at the expense of reaching deeper within ourselves for insight and discovery of our own system.

This program may be useful not only for the counselor, but for any in the helping professions who would like to deepen their own unique sense of Self in the process of their professional work. The format will blend experiential exercises with discussion focusing on the pertinent sutras of the Gita that reflect the above theme.

Recommended reading: Swami Nikhilananda, The Bhagavad Gita (Ramakrishna-Vivekananda Center). $250

Week of December 21–26

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

For workshop description see September 14-19. $490

Awakening Inner Power —A Celebration of Life

Mary Tesoro & Deborah Anne Medow

At the threshold of the new year, we offer an opportunity to renew our energy and regain balance of body, mind, and spirit. We will explore different ways of gathering our inner power. Yoga, meditation, and Leonard Energy Training can provide a foundation for personal growth and change. Massage, movement, theater games, and music will be interwoven with elements of gestalt and aikido to contact and express alternative ways of being. $490

Christmas Present

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

We've idealized birth in the Christmas story—the newborn child surrounded by adoring parents, singing angels, comforting animals; worshipped by the wise and the simple; welcomed into the world and loved for nothing that he does, but for simply being who he is. Most of us were not welcomed in that way, and at Christmastime our disillusionment peaks. Our despondency and regrets are based on unfulfilled ideals, promises, and fairy tales. Using gestalt, guided fantasy, theater games, and rituals, we will seek to release ourselves from the excess baggage of past regrets and future expectations in order to return to the divine simplicity of our own present being. Out of that simplicity, we will create our own "Christmas present," a celebration in which each of us singly and all of us together can give ourselves our self for Christmas. $490

Weekend of December 26–28

Exorcising the Demon "Should"

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Within each of us there lives a demon—our own personal critic—whose greatest joy comes from criticizing, denigrating, and destroying every experience we have. We're either too early or too late, too old or too young, too fat or too thin, and when we fall in love, we're never good enough.

This demon, who commands us to be who we aren't in order to satisfy someone we can never satisfy, is the demon that we will seek to exorcise during the weekend.

What if you actually tried to be everything you think you should be? This monumental task is made easier when confronted with laughter. We will build up that image, and then act it out as fully as we possibly can. We'll contrast that with the experience of ourselves as we are spontaneously. With the help of this experience in contrasts, we will explore our possibilities for movement between the two, and in this way open up our options to the full range of our own authentic being. $250

The Human Energy System and Gestalt Process

Alan Schwartz

The human being's movement toward a stable and balanced organism undergoes many adjustments in direct proportion to his/her responses to parental and environmental messages. The result is the formulation of stratified patterns of visible physiology and behavior. These join to form that which is usually called personality, one's individual energy system. Two common examples of energy system responses to life stress are those personalities who collapse under stress and those who control. There are many more. This will be a weekend to explore and understand our individual energy systems and their relation to how we make and inhibit intrapersonal and interpersonal contact. One focus will be on the simple task of being present, physiologically and emotionally, being aware that contact refers to our consistent awareness process and the autonomous expression of who we are. For additional information read the December 28-January 2 description. Participants should be aware that there is often stress involved in the redistribution of energy. $250

Rubenfeld Synergy® Method

Ilana Rubenfeld

Emotions and memories are often stored in our bodies, resulting in energy blocks, tensions, and imbalances. Rubenfeld Synergy® method (blending gestalt, Alexander method, and Feldenkrais exercises) can be used to contact, express, and work through these feelings. This method involves touch, gentle body movements, visualizations, humor, music, and gestalt. Its verbal and non-verbal interventions are designed to increase awareness of and effectiveness in the process of self-healing. The approach is gentle, responsive, pragmatic, and powerful.

Some areas to be covered include: discovering the powerful interdependence between our emotions and our dynamic posture; observing life attitudes that are reflected in our non-verbal behavior; and discovering new life options and choices for change.

This workshop will provide opportunities both for practitioners and interested non-professionals. Sessions will include experiential and theoretical component and one-to-one demonstrations. Each participant will have an opportunity to process his/her experience.

Participation in this weekend will fulfill one of the requirements for acceptance into the forthcoming West Coast Rubenfeld Synergy® training program scheduled to begin in January, 1987. $250

Forgiveness and Letting Go of Judgement

Elizabeth Stratton

"The giving up of judgment, the obvious prerequisite for hearing God's Voice, is usually a fairly slow process, not because it is difficult, but because it is apt to be perceived as personally insulting." – A Course in Miracles

Elizabeth writes: "The training of the Western mind, both spiritually and intellectually, is oriented toward judgment. We are taught to induce, deduce, analyze, dissect, defend, debate. We are taught to feel guilty, to get sick, to engage in self punishment and the punishment of others. We are encouraged to rebuke ourselves into perfection.

"We do not know the healing quality of true remorse, or how to let go of that which we should never have held onto in the first place – the real meaning of forgiveness. In studies of people who have died and come back to talk about it, the most unifying element of their experiences was the meeting with a Being of white light who stood by with unconditional love, no judgment, and humor as they watched their lives roll before them like movies. The only judge was the person watching his/her own life.

"This workshop will be experiential. You are invited to observe the judgmental prison of your own mind, to feel the cleansing power of remorse, and to allow your heart to open to the freedom and healing that comes from forgiving yourself and others." $250

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Week of December 28–January 2

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

The Art of Self-Care: Who Heals the Healer? Who Helps the Helper?

Ilana Rubenfeld

Does helping others leave you drained at the end of the day?

Do you need an appointment to help take care of yourself?

Who helps the health professional?

This workshop is designed for all professionals and others who would like to learn to use their body/mind more effectively. The leader will draw on extensive previous work with the Alexander method, Feldenkrais, and gestalt, to help you explore and analyze how you use yourself in your practice.

This approach can help you to develop your awareness of how to use your body/mind more effectively, unblock your own energy, and shield and ground yourself in the face of difficult situations with clients. Learn to be there with, rather than be there for your client. Using nourishment and humor, learn self-care, a critical need for professionals.

Participation in this five-day workshop will fulfill one of the requirements for acceptance into the forthcoming West Coast Rubenfeld Synergy® training program scheduled to begin in January, 1987.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $490

Touching Spirit: Dimensions of Psychic Healing

Elizabeth Stratton

Psychic healing bridges the physical and the spiritual. Touching as a healing act has been practiced through recorded history by practitioners of the sacred as well as the secular: healers, shamans, priests, doctors, and mothers.

In the past ten years, physics and modern medicine have come to an acknowledgement of the radically relational nature of our universe. Nothing and no one functions in a void.

Human emotions affect the functioning of the body, and illness is often an outgrowth of this mind-body link. Semi-dissociative states that are induced by prayer, meditation, and trance have been found to provide a fertile ground for healing to take place. It has been discovered that "multiple personalities" exhibit different states of health in each personality. The placebo effect has become one of the most respected and well studied issues in healing today.

A psychic healer is one who can help connect the physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual levels of another persons' being with healing intention through the use of touch. This workshop will explore, both didactically and experientially, the sacred and secular uses of touch; modern theories of disease formation and the healing mechanism; the use of psychic sight in healing; forgiveness as transformation cleansing; and the channeling of healing energy through the laying on of hands. $490

Effecting Change: The Human Energy System and Risk

Alan Schwartz

This is a week for recognizing the relationship between personal growth/change and economic/environmental realities. This is a week for designing a growth pattern for your individual energy system to provide more stable contact with the difficulties of the present decade.

The human energy system represents a constantly changing personality dimension. Often neglected in the system's movement towards maturity is the development of the consistency of strength. We hear metaphors not only of physical strength, but strength of character, strong emotions, and the spiritual and psychic strengths of perception. Lack of strength development leads each of us to develop compensations in order to be able to function in our chosen worlds. Some of the obvious are psychosomatic problems, blame, denial, and indiscriminate sexual functioning. Power over self, people, things is often a major compensation for the strength that allows us the experience of self, people, and things.

Risk involves awareness of our individual compensations, trusting self and the group process enough to experiment with mobilizing more energy. This means rendering more alive the strength of the physiology, feelings, conceptual process, and psychic perceptiveness. The result is clarity and stability and a deeper awareness of the balance of self as we contact the very real issues of the decade that is upon us. For further information, read the December 26-28 workshop description. $490

Weekend of January 2–4

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

The Shamanic Journey, Power and Healing: An Experiental Exploration

Michael Harner

Shamanism is an ancient human strategy for personal learning and for acting on that learning, especially for problem-solving, well-being, and healing. In this training workshop, the participants will be introduced to some of the basic methods the shaman (a type of medicine man or woman) uses to enter nonordinary reality in order to obtain knowledge, to answer personal questions, and to maximize one's power to maintain personal health and to achieve life goals.

Particular emphasis will be on the shamanic journey, one of the visionary methods used by humankind to enter nonordinary reality and explore the hidden universe otherwise known mainly through myth and dream. Participants will be initiated into shamanic journeying, aided by traditional drumming and movement methods for experiencing the shamanic state of consciousness and awakening dormant personal capabilities and connections with nature. Practices will include comparison of discoveries made on shamanic journeys by participants, and work on personal problem-solving. Participants will be shown how the shamanic journey can be utilized to restore spiritual power and health, and how shamanism can be practically applied in contemporary daily life.

If you have them, please bring rattles and drums. Wear comfortable clothing, and bring a bandana, pen, and notebook. $250

Week of January 4–9

Crossroads

Anne Nechama Simkin

This workshop is for persons who are seeking possible change. Each group has a life of its own, and within this new community, using the gestalt framework, we will emphasize the I-Thou relationship, work with the obvious, and allow natural unfolding. $490

Inside/Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

Paul and Chungliang will celebrate and share with us their joyous collaboration in nature, music, dance, t'ai chi, jazz, improvisation, meditation, and world travel experiences.

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E. P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon).

Recommended listening: Paul Horn, Inside, Heart to Heart, China, The Magic of Findhorn, and Jupiter 8. $520

Craniosacral System: Basic Workshop

Jim Asher & Jane Harrington

This workshop will offer an opportunity to learn and practice gentle yet powerful skills to bring the craniosacral system into balance. The class will combine lectures and slides on functional anatomy of the membrane system, cerebrospinal fluid movement, and related methods. There will be hands-on demonstrations of a variety of methods for tapping into bone and membrane motion, rhythm, amplitude quality, restriction, and interference. Demonstrations will be followed by supervised practice. Time will also be spent evoking and developing palpatory sensitivity and fine-tuning the quality of touch.

This workshop is for people with a strong interest in developing hands-on skills, and those already practicing body work or counseling. Much of our focus will be on the head, jaw, neck, pelvis, and diaphragm systems. Cranial work can be effective in shifting emotional holding patterns and draining accumulated stresses in the nervous system.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $490

Weekend of January 9–11

Inside / Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

For workshop description see January 4-9. $280

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see September 26-28. $250 per participant

Retrospective and Response: Sources and Direction for Humanistic Psychology's Engagement with World Crisis

Tom Greening, Ian Mitroff, & Will McWhinney

This seminar deals with extensions and transformations of humanistic psychology that follow from Abe Maslow's concern with societal issues—concerns expressed in his Further Reaches of Human Nature—which have been built upon by Rogers, May, and others now active in the world scene. Projections of humanistic thinking from the heyday of 1970 to the confrontation of the world-wide dilemmas of the coming years will be discussed.

The presentors focus on three themes: response to crises which, like earthquakes, release deep-seated tensions; the specific crises of the US-USSR face-off, and humanistic programs working to reduce that tension; strategies for effectively enacting humanistic agendas.

The format of the seminar will encourage the participants to explore related issues through the spirit and method of humanistic psychologies. $250

Week of January 11–16

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see October 19-24. $490

Warriors on Magic Mountain: Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (T'ai Chi Intensive)

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

This workshop offers New Year renewal with the fundamentals of t'ai chi practice. Chungliang will share the crystallization of his most essential learnings. He will lead us in sunrise movement meditation, five-elements form, I-Ching eight-trigrams metaphors in action, life-force revitalization exercises with Taoist philosophical and aesthetic dialogues and discourses. Join the music, dancing, and celebration!

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E. P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); John Blofeld, Translator, I Ching; Lama Anagarika Govinda, The Book of Transformations. $490

Weekend of January 16–18

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see September 19-21. $250

Mind and Body in Sport

John Syer & Christopher Connolly

This seminar offers a humanistic form of mental training that enables sports people to improve performance. The workshop gives practical experience of exercises that can form part of a mental training program designed for athletes and coaches of any sport. The leaders suggest ways in which an athlete may improve concentration and confidence, regulate levels of anxiety, improve technical skill through mental rehearsal, foster positive attitudes, set appropriate goals, review performance realistically, and develop specific qualities of performance that he or she may lack. Attention is also paid to the team mental skills of improving communication and relationships and developing team spirit.

Only one of the exercises involves movement, this being mental as opposed to physical or technical training. The leaders introduce each of the following themes—warming-up, concentration, visualisation, bimodal consciousnes, dealing with stress, attitudes and change, and competition and motivation—with a brief talk before beginning the exercises. We conclude each section of the workshop with a discussion.

The workshop is based on day-to-day consultancy experience in Europe and is related to the leaders' book Sporting Body Sporting Mind: an Athlete's Guide to Mental Training, published by Cambridge University Press. $250

Week of January 18–23

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Unfinished Business

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Jo Ann Granshaw

For workshop description see September 7-12. $490

Experiencing Your Psychic / Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see October 26-31. $490

Beyond Anatomy: Feldenkrais for Body Workers

Patrick Douce

This introductory program will acquaint beginning and experienced body workers with some of the approaches taught by Moshe Feldenkrais. Although the Feldenkrais method isn't body work, much of the information presented in this program can be useful to increase the efficiency, understanding, and effectiveness of those interested in body work.

Based on 20th century scientific understanding and judo, the Feldenkrais system dispels many current misconceptions regarding the human form. In contrast to traditional anatomical models, the interconnections used by the body to move are emphasized. Gentle, sensitive movements are used so that workshop participants can experience a heightened sensitivity, allowing them to explore with touch the possibilities of their own and other bodies.

Chronic difficulties such as back pain, hip pain, neck pain, knee problems—the spectrum of neuro-skeletal-muscular disorders—will be approached as problems of learning in movement. Individuals with these difficulties will be introduced to the Feldenkrais alternative, allowing them to begin to learn to correct their chronic pain with increased mobility.

This program will be of value to anyone interested in movement or body work—dancers, massage practitioners, Rolfers, Trager students, physical therapists, doctors, nurses, and those beginning to be interested in their own bodies. Although this course is not intended to train anyone to teach the Feldenkrais method, it can serve as an adequate introduction, useful to both the professional and non-professional.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $490

Weekend of January 23–25

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Achieving Sustained High Performance

Jerry Fletcher & Kathleen Brown Fletcher

For workshop description see September 5-7. $250

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman assisted by Jo Ann Granshaw

For workshop description see September 12-14. $250

Develop Your Mind-Over-Matter Ability: Experiential and Theoretical Explorations in the World of Psychokinesis

Julian Isaacs & Debbie Austin

The power of the mind to manifest effects directly in the world of matter is one of the most pervasive and powerful, but presently least recognized, dynamics in our world.

This workshop will include a balanced combination of information-giving, discussion, and experiential approaches to control of psychokinetic ability. Several approaches to optimization of performance will be explored, including those derived from sports psychology, self-hypnosis, martial arts, meditation, and visualization. In addition, the use of psychological depth processes for empowerment of the individual to reclaim mind-over-matter ability will be explored. Specialized, state-of-the-art electronic instrumentation for detecting and measuring psychokinesis will be available for supervised use. $250

Introduction to Vipassana Meditation

Jamie Baraz

Vipassana (insight) meditation practice is a systematic examination of the mind/body process through calm and focused awareness. Learning to observe experience from a place of stillness enables one to relate to life without fear or clinging. One begins to accept pleasure and pain, fear and joy, with increasing equanimity and balance. Life is seen as a constantly changing process. Insight is the deepening experience of the process itself, free of interpretation, leading to wisdom and compassion. The seminar is designed for those who have had no previous meditation experience as well as for those who wish to deepen their practice. Meditation instruction, the philosophy behind the practice, group discussions, and actual practice periods will be offered. Special emphasis will be placed on how to integrate vipassana practice in daily life after the workshop is over.

Recommended reading: Joseph Goldstein, The Experience of Insight (Shambhala). $250

Week of January 25–30

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura De Nuccio (Ma Prita)

For workshop description see October 19-24. $490

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

This personal workshop will combine individual work with discussion of principles and concepts which nourish the process of change. Individual work will stress deepening awareness of one's sense of direction and personal obstacles. Participants will focus on change through exploring the implications of their choices and the ways they retard or encourage the expression of self.

The workshop will include psychosynthesis, transpersonal and cathartic methods which emphasize learning, and skills to release and transform blocked energies. Participants will focus on aligning their motivation and will with the natural process of change and integration. $490

Transpersonal Psychology: Perspectives on Growth and Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will explore theoretically and experientially the rapidly developing field of transpersonal psychology. The discussion will focus on the implications of modern consciousness research for understanding the dimensions of the psyche, various forms of emotional and psychosomatic disorders, new mechanisms of healing and personality transformation, and strategies for growth and self-exploration.

The emphasis in experiential work will be on the method of "holonomic integration" developed by the workshop leaders, which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, focused body work, and mandala drawing. It mediates access to unfinished biographical material, sequences of psychological death and (re)birth, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. Special attention will be paid to the problems of "spiritual emergencies" and constructive approaches to transpersonal crises. $490

Weekend of January 30–February 1

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see September 5-7. $250

The Intelligent Body, The Sensuous Body

Thomas Hanna

Premise: Clarity of self-awareness and clarity of body control grow together or decline together. We'll explore how greater sensitivity to our inner selves enhances the body's ability to act and to relax, and how this ability in turn enhances kinesthetic awareness.

The program involves gentle movements and use of imagery as well as instruction in the principles of many different kinds of body work and exercise systems—particularly that of Moshe Feldenkrais.

There will also be demonstrations of how new sensory information can lead to dramatic changes in posture. Those who wish advanced knowledge in systems of body work will find the weekend profitable, as will those who have habitual aches or have difficulty relaxing.

Recommended reading: Thomas Hanna, The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt: A Primer in Somatic Thinking. $250

For Men Only

Richard Gunther

If you are male, between the ages of 30 and 60, and asking such questions as "What am I doing with my life?" or "What else is there for me?"—welcome to mid-life, a time of examination, possibly of crises, a time offering the opportunity for major changes in how you view yourself and the world in which you function.

We live in a demanding, controlling society, and the effect on each of us is not always clear. In the words of Marcel Proust, "The real voyage of discovery consists not in seeing new landscapes, but in having new eyes." With new eyes we can see the possibility of outgrowing our social conditioning and connecting with a deeper self.

In this workshop, limited to 12 participants, we will focus on the issues of work and career, their changing importance at mid-life; relationships, examining the shift in needs, tasks, and roles; the body and sex, which changes are real, which imagined; and spirituality, exploring the need for a transcendent vision. $250

The Craft of Dream Work

Stephen Aizenstat

Dreams, as looking glass parables, provide a connection to the voices and images of the psyche. It is the leader's belief that dreams carry the voice of the collective unconscious and world unconscious as well as speaking the messages of one's personal unconscious. Dream images reflect aspects of any one of these dimensions and on occasion, aspects of all three.

The seminar draws upon methods of dream interpretation from the dream healing centers in ancient Greece, Jungian psychology, gestalt, and sytems theory, offering an approach to dream work which listens to the individual and collective psyche as well as the psyche in the world.

Actually working with their own dreams, participants will be shown methods of dream work associated with these three levels of the psyche. Common dream themes and symbols, nightmares, lucid dreaming, archetypal imagery, and the recurring dream will be discussed. Participants can realize the potential healing power of an interrelated body-mind-world aproach, and remember why in ancient times dreams were honored as the medicine of the soul. $250

Week of February 1–6

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see December 14-19. $490

Open Seat

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Paul Rebillot writes: "The concept of 'open seat' is an open space into which people may enter in order to work through their resistances, express their feelings, and reorder their way of being in the world. As a gestalt facilitator I help people find ways of healing themselves by combining the principles of gestalt with concepts of ritual and theater. I assist people in working with their subconscious material, such as dreams and fantasies, in order to augment their ways of living and dealing with day to day problems. I encourage people to become more expressive in all ways: in their personal lives; in their communities; and in the political situations to which they feel committed. I can help people develop a clear sense of responsibility, not only for their own life process, but also for the world." $490

Presence: Reclaiming Personal Power

Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Presence is a power that arises from a deep sense of self-worth and trust. It reflects a broadened vision and whole-hearted acceptance of the varied facets of being. It is a state of dynamic balance where there is no unnecessary strain of self-defeating awkwardness. One is at home in oneself and at ease with the world.

During this week participants can gain a deepened appreciation of the elements in themselves that contribute to this timeless state of fluidity and ease, and have an opportunity to experiment and explore how their bodies' shapes and forms, emotional histories, and self-images are intimately intertwined. This growing awareness will be the basic grounding from which the creative experience of presence can be known. Movement patterns, the ways we walk and breathe, also dynamically reveal how we inhibit or allow our personal power. As we become more comfortable with ourselves, we are transforming not only the way we might carry our head or make contact with another, but our whole way of being in the world.

This work is based on an approach woven from gestalt, psychosynthesis, Rolf-movement, and performance art. Video feedback will be used. $490

Dealing with Stress: Recipes for Health and Longevity

Joe D. Goldstrich & Neil Karp

This course will include current information and research about how to maximize health and prolong life. We will spend five days learning how to eat healthier, exercise better, and develop our abilities to relax, energize ourselves, and gain social support.

The seminar will include: lectures, discussion, short hikes into the hills with a nature guide, meditative exercises derived from a number of oriental practices, and biofeedback. Participants will be provided with a life stress profile to assist in self-evaluation. There will be group discussion of stress management, and traditional and alternative medical approaches such as homeopathy, acupuncture, body work, and gestalt. $490

Weekend of February 6–8

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Body, Heart, and Spirit

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

The workshop is divided into three segments, dealing first with tensions and energy patterns in the body, then with the relationship of these to the emotions, and finally with their relationship to the mind, to thought. By connecting thought, feeling, and body experience in one gestalt, we seek to open the being to the inpouring of the spirit, to the state of grace. This is the goal of shamanic dances and of many tribal rites. The process includes body work and open seat gestalt work, as well as rituals, dancing, chanting, and celebration. $250

Approaches to Christian Mysticism

Brother David Steindl-Rast

Awareness of Eastern mysticism makes many people ask: what of the mystical tradition in the West? Is it still alive? Can one find meaning in it today? Brother David has spent more than 30 years in both Eastern and Western monasteries exploring the roots of mysticism in the human heart. He will lead participants in discovering the roots in their own life experience. We shall ask what the pursuit of the path of the heart demands from each one personally, and how it can be practiced in one's daily life.

Like Thomas Merton, his late fellow monk and friend, Brother David is a bridge-builder between East and West. The focus of this weekend, however, will be on the Christian tradition and on our need to wrestle with it. Input and question periods will alternate with silent time for guided experience.

Recommended reading: Rainer Maria Rilke, Letters to a Young Poet (Norton); Thomas Merton, Conjectures of a Guilty Bystander (Doubleday); Thomas Matus, Yoga and the Jesus Prayer Tradition (Paulist Press); David Steindl-Rast, A Listening Heart (Crossroads), Gratefulness The Heart of Prayer (Paulist Press). $250

Joyce Rogers Lyke

The Physics of Hyperspace

Saul-Paul Sirag

The idea that ordinary physical reality is embedded in a higher dimensional system is a traditional theme of science fiction, speculative philosophy, and mystical religion. Now this idea is being entertained by physicists in search of the "holy grail" of contemporary physics—grand unification of the physical forces: electromagnetism, the weak and strong nuclear forces, and gravity.

The key concept of unified field theory is symmetry, which is an aspect of a space that remains invariant in spite of the transformation of the space. Therefore, we will use symmetry and broken symmetry as tools to explore hyperspace. In particular, we will investigate a version of grand unified theory which implies that spacetime is embedded in a 96-dimensional hyperspace. The symmetrical properties of this system, acting on itself, constitutes a coherent reality which presumably encompasses both physical and mental events. $250

Week of February 8–13

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

Personal Mythology: Our Epic Journey

Stanley Krippner & David Feinstein

This seminar focuses on personal myths—the deep forces of the psyche that shape who we are, what we think, and what we do. Operating largely outside of conscious awareness, our personal myths nonetheless pave our journey through life, our place in society, and our relationship to the broader or spiritual context of existence. Showing participants how to reach deeply into realms of unconscious mythological wisdom, we will speak to our need to find the visions that nourish and inspire us. Drawing upon a range of systems including Jungian psychology, gestalt, psychosynthesis, dream interpretation, and cognitive psychology, participants will be led through a sequence of experiences that can rework a problematic area of personal mythology. These experiences can be used again later to identify and work with other personal myths that may be creating problems in one's life. Participants are asked to bring a notebook or personal journal and are encouraged to record their dreams in it prior to the workshop.

Recommended reading: Stanley Krippner, Human Possibilities (Anchor). $490

Weekend of February 13–15

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see October 17-19. $250

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see September 19-21. $250

Power, Promise, and Placebo

Sharon & Jerry Solfvin

This workshop is an integration of the experiential and experimental aspects of spiritual, psychic, mental and physical living. Most of us either ignore or don't know what to do with trans-reality experiences (reality, as defined in Western culture). Yet these experiences such as miraculous healings, visitations with the future or unknown past, knowledge of someone else's thoughts, mental influence on physical events, channeling, or extraordinary human functioning, are reported, developed, and sought by human beings throughout the world. Within a culture context with an emphasis on healing, half of this workshop will be spent discussing the scientific studies and theories relevant to these experiences, and the other half will be spent anecdotally and experientially.

A primary goal for this seminar is to help learn technologies for positive placebo and expectancy. These technologies are designed to have practical applications in science, the arts, healing, sports, and business. Through the integration of the scientific and the experiential, we fulfill the power of human promise and are research-practitioners in the art of living. $250

A Course in Miracles: A View of Life Through the Light

Julian Silverman

The seminar leader attributes increased success as counselor, supervisor, and management consultant to use of a "non-method" method of spiritual practice, derived from A Course In Miracles, to complement and illuminate current behavioral science methods for creating well-being in humans and institutions. The purpose of this seminar is to examine some of the basic principles of A Course In Miracles, to integrate these principles with modern behavioral science, and to apply them to the consideration of fundamental problems of living in a technological age.

Individuals who have had experience studying A Course in Miracles (ACIM) will be accepted to this seminar before others. Please state your study experience on your application (e.g. have completed books I, II, III; or have read ____ number of pages; and/or have participated in ACIM study group(s). $250

Week of February 15–20

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $490

The Buddha, The Goddess, and N. L. P.

Eli Jaxon-Bear

The Buddha gives us a model for compassionate emptiness, and the Goddess, as Earth Mother and Protector, a model for passionate involvement in form. N. L. P. gives us a structure for understanding, modeling, and changing human behavior and consciousness.

We will use sitting, standing, and moving meditation from both the Zen and Tibetan Buddhist traditions as well as Buddhist psychology for modeling the perfected states: the Buddha and the Goddess already within us. This will include mantra and visualization as well as zazen and deep conscious stretching.

We will be using neurolinguistics for clearing the obscurations to our perfection. N. L. P. is an open-ended system for modeling human reality. It can be used for leaving behind old baggage and focusing or polishing the filters of perception.

N. L. P. has been successfully used to model great healers, or counselors like Milton Erickson, and leaders in sports and business. Set in the context of Buddhist psychology and practice, N. L. P. gives us the choice to utilize gracefully the core issues of our life as our ally and teacher.

Recommended reading: Chogyam Trungpa, Shambhala; W. Evans-Wentz, Tibetan Book of the Great Liberation; Bandler and Grinder, Frogs Into Princes; M. Zimmer Bradley, Mists of Avalon; Starhawk, Dreaming the Dark. $490

On Being a Man

David Schiffman & Danner Christensen

Many men today have labored diligently to become softer, more receptive, and nurturing. They have sought to honor and embrace the emergence of the "feminine" principle in their own natures. For many of us, however, the right to celebrate and honor the so-called "masculine" aspect has become a thorny and difficult dilemma. Many qualities of maleness or masculinity have come to connote the most destructive and troublesome elements in human existence: war, environmental desecration, sexual oppression, and patriarchal abuse.

A man's sense of his own uniqueness and value is critical. During this week we will examine those elements in our own nature which can create a positive focus for realizing the deeper dimensions of manhood, and how we might strengthen our right to be men with simplicity, clarity, tenderness, strength, and dignity.

The workshop will focus on exploring and resolving the following questions:

What does a man need to know and accept about his own nature to feel himself fully as a man?

Can men come together to create an atmosphere of trust and good will where the masculine aspects that we share in common can be honored and appreciated in the pleasure of each other's company?

Are there ways we as men can mark and celebrate the cycles that season us, our victories and defeats, and how might we reveal ourselves emotionally without unnecessary shame or remorse?

Can the "wild man" in us be befriended and our reliability and respectability still survive? Can fierceness and aggression be used constructively in realizing our spiritual aspirations, intimate relationships, family and community concerns?

A variety of experiential processes will be used for illuminating these and similar issues. Traditional initiation rituals and purification ceremonies using drumming, chanting, and a sweat lodge will be incorporated in this journey as well. $490

Weekend of February 20–22

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

The Experience of Story

James Fadiman

Reality is the canvas upon which we write the fiction of our lives. We are epics, mysteries, parodies, gothics, romances, and fairy-tales. We are unfinished, unedited, endlessly revised versions of ourselves. Come prepared to listen, to write, to share, to work, to frolic, and to taste the healing, the unique, and the universal in story.

Using Sufi teaching tales, Hasidic stories, myths, as well as materials from Jung and Assagioli, we can enrich ourselves and serve one another. $250

Endarkenment

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

Sometimes in our search for enlightenment, we become humorless, and our search becomes tedious. Growth demands a respite from intensive struggle.

This workshop can provide a vehicle for the turn downward. We shall explore: how to establish and maintain meaningless relations; what to worry about while meditating; advanced covert blaming and inducing guilt in loved ones; how to become the most sympathetic victim/martyr in your social group; guilt without sex. This approach—similar to Feldenkrais' "live the disasters" and the "homeopathic principle" (Will Schutz, Body Fantasy)—can be as valuable for attaining enlightenment as the direct route—and more fun. In addition, participants in this workshop will have opportunities to explore, play with, and celebrate the shadow—that which we usually hide. $250

The Art of Self-Direction

Lenore Lefer

This workshop is about personal, social, and cultural change. It is about creating, initiating, and directing change as well as responding to those alterations that we seem not to choose. We will explore how to be causal in relation to change and how to include our deepest values. Do we know what is meaningful, and how do we integrate that into our lives? It is an art to lead a self-directed life that includes both personal and social responsibility.

Founded conceptually in psychosynthesis, the focus of this self-exploration will be experiential, using imagery, inner dialogue, meditation, and individual and group process. The environment will be supportive and evocative. This workshop is appropriate for professionals who deal with transitional crises in their own work.

Recommended reading: Pierro Ferucci, What We May Be (J. P. Tarcher); Roberto Assagioli, The Act of Will (Penguin). $250

Adult Children of Alcoholic or Abusive Parents

Karen Paine-Gernée & Terry Hunt

Are you uncomfortable unless you're in control? Do you find it difficult to let people become close to you? Do you deny your feelings and experience inadequacy? If one or both of your parents were alcoholic (or abusive), then perhaps you recognize in yourself the fallout of having grown up with alcoholism.

In an attempt to deal with the stress of living in an alcoholic or abusive home, children often develop certain specific and predictable characteristics which they carry into adulthood: inordinate need for control, an overdeveloped sense of responsibility, lact of trust, denial of feelings and a sense of inadequacy. Because alcoholism and abuse are diseases of denial, children of alcoholic or abusive parents are often unaware of the characteristics which prevent them from experiencing deep satisfaction in their lives.

As adults, these children suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder in much the same way that returning vets do. Their childhoods leave them numb with denial, with no way to express their grief. Grieving is a healthy process—the psyche's natural way to resolve pain. The purpose of this workshop is to reactivate that process so that we can begin to mourn our childhood losses, let go of the past, and discover joy in the present. $250

Week of February 22–27

The Painting Experience

Stewart Cubley

For workshop description see September 14-19. $490

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

For workshop description see January 25-30. $490

Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Evolutionary Crises

Christina & Stanislav Grof

There exists increasing evidence that certain episodes of non-ordinary states of consciousness which traditional psychiatry diagnoses as manifestations of mental illness and treats by repressive measures, are actually "spiritual emergencies" or transpersonal crises. Evidence for this can be brought from many different fields—history, anthropology, comparative religion, clinical psychiatry, and modern consciousness research. If properly understood and supported, these states can result in emotional and psychosomatic healing, personality transformation, and consciousness evoluton.

In this workshop, we will explore this new concept theoretically and experientially. We will use the method of holonomic integration which combines controlled breathing, evocative sound, focused body work, and mandala drawing. It makes it possible for participants to explore various domains of the unconscious and practice methods of constructive facilitation of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be both in the role of experiencers and sitters. $490

Doorways of Perception

Jessica Moore Britt

Insight and body-oriented practices cultivate awareness and the expression of sensation, feelings, images, and ideas that most of us ordinarily repress. Insight and catharsis by themselves may not necessarily lead us into the depths of our nature recognized by the transpersonal disciplines of meditation and shamanism. Practitioners of meditation and shamanism, in like manner, may neglect the emotional/physical clearing that allows the opening from which our being may emerge. This workshop will seek to join these two levels of personal practice, sensitizing and expanding our perception thorough knowledge and practices from Sufism, Buddhism, gestalt awareness, Reichian breath work, and Native American tradition. $490

Weekend of February 27–March 1

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 6. $250

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jesica Moore Britt

For workshop description see October 17-19. This workshop is limited to 10 participants. $250

Anatomy for Trager Students

Deane Juhan

This seminar is offered as a continuation of the professional training for students of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics. Participants will examine the anatomical structures of the body and their kinesthetic relationships, with specific reference to how these structures and relationships are handled by the Trager approach.

Half of the time wil be used for slide presentations, lectures, and discussions concerning particular areas of the body. The rest will be spent practicing aspects of a Trager session which correspond to those areas. The emphasis will be on clarifying the intent of the various hand positions and movements, based upon an understanding of structure, function, and motor reflex.

Since supervised Trager table work will be an important part of the class, a beginning Trager training is a prerequisite.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $250

Intimate Relationship As a Practice and a Path

John Welwood

Maintaining an alive and honest connection with an intimate partner calls on us to free ourselves from old habits and blind spots, and to develop the full range of our powers, sensitivities, and depths as human beings. In former times, people would often enter a monastery if they wanted to explore the deeper mysteries of life. For many of us today, however, intimate relationship has become the new wilderness that brings us face to face with all our gods and demons. The challenges involved in exploring the uncharted landscape of love and creating a conscious relationship require us to become warriors of the heart—proceeding with gentleness, courage, and a relentless dedication to truth.

Ths workshop will draw on Eastern and Western wisdom to explore the path of the warrior of the heart and to develop a vision of love as an ongoing practice of awareness and truth. Through talks, discussions, dialogue, and inner reflection, participants will focus on such core areas as: vulnerability, passion, surrender, ambivalence, need and desire, power struggles, and commitment, with particular emphasis on the dynamics of the male/female polarity. This workshop is for individuals as well as couples.

Recommended reading: John Welwood, Challenge of the Heart: Love, Sex, and Intimacy in Changing Times (Shambhala); Trungpa, Shambhala: The Sacred Path of the Warrior (Shambhala). $250

Creative Writing Brainstorming

Herbert Gold

From feeling to expression to communication, this workshop will carry us into the possibilities of making literature. Exploring an experience different for everyone, yet shared by all, we will probe for the riches within.

Bring typewriter, word processor, pen, soft pencil, or clay tablets and stylus to the meetings. A situation will be called forth—love, death, ambition, pride, fear, hatred, jealousy—and after preparation in the discussion, we will write. Then we will read and rewrite each other's work. We may expect to go from truth to lying: from recollection to art.

What should develop is a sense of style and control as a part of the mastery of experience. We will practice the freedom of imagination by giving shape to it. $250

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in immersion in the total environment of Esalen. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically, and only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs. Participants in the focused programs must be prepared to stay at Esalen for the *full duration designated for that particular program, assuming that they meet the standards of the work-study program. No participants will be accepted as work scholars in Gazebo or the office until they have fulfilled a minimum of one month in one of the aforementioned departments.

Most evenings and two intensive weekends are spent together as a group exploring different practices and approaches available at Esalen, with specifically assigned leaders who will be with the group throughout the month, coordinating the study schedule and facilitating many of the evening sessions.

The program is usually divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a specific interest section which focuses primarily on one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc.

Focused programs planned thus far for 1986-87 include:

September 14–October 12: Jessica Moore Britt focalizes study of energy and pulsation using gestalt, Reichian breath work, movement, touch, and ritual.

October 12–November 9: Anne Nechama Simkin conducts a program focused on gestalt, including some videotape sessions. Massage and movement work may be offered.

November 9–December 7: Deborah Anne Medow leads a program focused on body awareness, including such activities as yoga, movement and dance, theater games, interpersonal process, and massage.

December 7–January 4: Dianne Miller Lesty and Benj Langdon offer a progam emphasizing gestalt movement including collective creativity, video feedback, imagery, and massage.

January 4–March 29: Esalen massage practitioners offer a three-month program in body work, with instruction in massage, movement, and self-care. For more information, see Massage Practitioner Certification Program, Special Programs, page 35. The cost of this program is: $800 first month, $750 second month, $700 third month.

March 29–April 26: Laura De Nuccio (Ma Prita) and Gordy Ryan offer an integrated program in practical approaches to enlivening and freeing the human spirit through breath and body work, gestalt, music, movement, meditation, and African ritual.

In as much as the Work Study Program is a complete program in itself, please do not plan to take regularly scheduled catalog workshops during your stay. Professional services, such as massage and Rolfing®, are available at staff rates.

Accommodations are shared, with up to four people to a room, usually at South Coast Center, a staff complex located 1½ miles north of Esalen.

$350 deposit in U.S. currency is required with your application. The cost of all 28-day Work Study Programs except the three-month body work program is $700 first month, $650 second month, $600 third month. Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second month or a third month depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

NOTE: This application is not a registration in the program. Registration is made only after approval of application and upon receipt of deposit. Please return this form with your deposit to:

Work Study Program, Esalen Institute,
Big Sur, CA 93920. Telephone: (408) 667-2335.

The balance of the fee is due on arrival. Of the original deposit, $100 is non-refundable, and may be transferred to other Esalen programs within one year of receipt.

Available dates: September 14–October 12; October 12–November 9; November 9–December 7; December 7–January 4; January 4–February 1; February 1–March 1; March 1–March 29; March 29–April 26; April 26–May 24; May 24–June 21; June 21–July 19; July 19–August 16; August 16–September 13; September 13–October 11; etc.

Application to the Work Study Program

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

Date of Birth _____ Occupation _____ Place of Employment _____

Daytime Telephone (_____) _____ Date of Application _____

Evening Telephone (_____) _____ Male ☐ Female ☐ Smoker ☐ Non-smoker ☐

I prefer the general interest program: yes ☐ no ☐ I prefer the focused program in: _____

Participants in the focused programs must be prepared to stay at Esalen for the full duration designated for that particular program.

The Work Study Program is for 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. Please list the dates of your choice, listing two alternative dates as well.

1st: _____ to _____ 2nd: _____ to _____ 3rd: _____ to _____

Work scholars may sometimes be invited to remain for a second or third month, depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. If an invitation is extended, please indicate your availability. (Not applicable to focused program applicants.) ☐ no extension ☐ one-month extension ☐ two-month extension. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs.

If you have emergency medical skills (M.D., E.M.T. or R.N.) and are willing to make those skills available during your stay, please check here. ☐

Please attach a personal statement about your interest in the Work Study Program, including: your available skills, especially English language skills, which are essential for participation in the program; any medical difficulties which might affect your working in any departments; any Esalen workshops you have attended (please list program titles, group leaders, and dates).

Special Programs

87

October 14–November 8, 1986
China Study Tour

This October, Esalen will collaborate with Lan Ting Institute in Wu Yi Mountain, China, joining t'ai chi master/scholar Chungliang Al Huang in exploration of future programs for China-U.S. cultural exchange. Lan Ting Institute, established in October, 1985, is located in the Wu Yi Mountain Scenic Reserve District in Fujian province in southern China. Deep river-cut gorges and meandering streams combine with cloud-shrouded peaks to produce a landscape which has been a site for creative and spiritual pilgrimage over the last 4000 years.

This program will be an opportunity to meet and study with Chinese artists, scholars, healers, and educators who have only recently re-surfaced after years of exile during the cultural revolution. Various options for study and travel may be arranged. For further information, please call or write Reservations, Esalen.

Applications for the Esalen/Lan Ting Institute China Study Tour, October 14–November 8, are being accepted now. To apply, please send a $500 deposit in U.S. currency, payable to China World Wide Travel, Inc., checks drawn on U.S. banks only (deposit will be returned if you are not accepted). Please also send a letter about yourself, listing relevant life experience, previous Esalen or Lan Ting seminars, travel experience, and your reasons for wanting to attend this tour. Full balance is due 45 days before departure. Seminar cost is $2750, plus airfare of $910 (from most West Coast cities, connecting with the group in Seattle). Those outside of North America may meet the group in Hong Kong. Cost includes: tuition, meals, accommodations (2 per room), visa and document fees, and all transportation. Costs are subject to change. A tentative itinerary, subject to change, is listed below.

Esalen Institute China Seminar

Tuesday, October 14—Gather in Seattle.

Wednesday, October 15—Travel from Seattle on United Airlines to Hong Kong.

Thursday, October 16—Cross the international dateline and arrive in Hong Kong in the early evening.

Friday, October 17—Take a charter flight from Hong Kong and enter China at the port city and capitol of Fujian Province-Fuzhou. Arrival is in the morning, so there is pm sightseeing.

Saturday, October 18—Board an early-morning train and travel about five hours up the Min River, to the city of Nanping. Lunch in Nanping, then take a tour bus three hours into the interior, arriving at Wu Yi Mountain in the afternoon.

Saturday, October 18–Monday, October 27—Lan Ting Institute Courses

Monday, October 27—Take an early-morning bus back to Nanping. Board a special riverboat for a 7-hour trip down the Min River to Fuzhou. This has been a highlight for many of our groups. Lunch is served on board.

Tuesday, October 28—All-day sightseeing in Fuzhou, including a visit to the famous Drum Mountain monastery.

Wednesday, October 29—Morning sightseeing in Fuzhou. Leave by plane in the early afternoon, arriving in Shanghai.

Thursday, October 30—Shanghai sightseeing and visit to Friendship Store.

Friday, October 31—Leave by train to the beautiful city of Hangzhou.

Saturday, November 1—All-day sightseeing in Hangzhou.

Sunday, November 2—Fly from Hangzhou to Beijing.

Monday, November 3—Beijing sightseeing.

Tuesday, November 4—Beijing sightseeing.

Wednesday, November 5—Fly from Beijing to the most western city that the tour will visit—Xian. Visit the Qin tombs, where the famous terra cotta soldiers are.

Thursday, November 6—All-day sightseeing in Xian.

Friday, November 7—Fly from Xian to Canton, switch planes and arrive in Hong Kong in the early afternoon. Sightseeing in the afternoon.

Saturday, November 8—Depart Hong Kong in the afternoon aboard a United Airlines wide-body jet. By crossing the international dateline, arrival in Seattle is at 10 am of the same day! Transfer to connecting flights home.

One alternative is to extend the end of the tour to leave Hong Kong on Monday, November 10 instead of Saturday, November 8. It is less expensive by $60 to leave Monday-Thursday rather than the weekend.

October 31–November 28
Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This program offers, at a professional level, intensive instruction in massage practice, movement, and self-care. The emphasis will be on developing basic massage skills through daily lecture-demonstrations including "hands-on" practice sessions using one another as models, illustrated anatomy classes, and instruction in the basic principles of alignment. Meditation and gestalt awareness sessions will be scheduled regularly throughout the program for deeper, more integrative learning. Body work will be studied as a function of optimal well-being and stress reduction, and as a valued aid to transpersonal growth. Workshop sessions will meet Sunday through Friday and on alternate weekends. At the satisfactory completion of the program, and after an additional 30 recorded massage sessions, a California state-approved certificate of completion will be issued. This is a professional program, with limited admission. Please request an application form when you make your reservation. $2120

November 2–14
Integrative Body Practice (IBP) Professional Training Program

Jack Rosenberg & Staff

This will be a twelve-day residential training program in IBP, taught by Jack Rosenberg, Deane and Andrea Juhan (anatomy and massage), and the staff of the Rosenberg-Rand Institute in Venice, California. IBP emphasizes breathing as a vehicle for the integration of body, mind, emotions, and spirit. In IBP the body is seen as the foundation for psychological and transpersonal growth. Object relations developmental theory will be integrated with body work. This workshop is for licensed professionals and graduate students in related fields.

Recommended reading: Jack Rosenberg et.al., Body, Self, and Soul: Experiencing Integration (Humanics, 1985), and Total Orgasm (Bookworks, 1974).

For information write or call: Marjorie Rand, Rosenberg-Rand Institute, 1107 W. Washington Blvd., Venice, CA 90291, (213) 394-0147.

$1230

November 2–28
The Jewel in the Lotus: Buddhism and Western Psychology

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This four-week interdisciplinary educational program is designed for professionals, students, and others interested in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, religion, and philosophy to explore experientially and theoretically the relationship between Buddhism and Western psychology. This seminar is part of a systematic effort to create an international network of individuals qualified to facilitate the process of personal transformation and to assist others during spiritual crises. The program will focus on the following areas:

1. Spiritual, philosophical, and psychological aspects of Buddhism. Visiting spiritual teachers will explore with the group the theory and practice of various Buddhist traditions, such as the Tibetan Vajrayana, vipassana, Zen, and the martial arts, and the principles of tantric art, science, and ritual.

2. Transpersonal psychology and the emerging paradigm in Western science. We will focus theoretically and experientially on transpersonal psychology, the most recent movement in Western psychology that acknowledges and explores the spiritual dimension of human nature using scientific principles and methods. The increasing convergence between modern consciousness research and the great mystical traditions and spiritual philosophies of the East will be discussed in the context of the revolutionary developments in other disciplines of Western science, or the so-called "emerging paradigm."

3. The concept of "spiritual emergency" or transpersonal crisis. This aspect of the program will focus on observations from history, comparative religion, anthropology, and experimental psychiatry suggesting that certain nonordinary states of consciousness currently diagnosed and treated by traditional psychiatry as medical problems—mental diseases of unknown etiology—can be seen as difficult stages of spiritual development and evolutionary crises. If properly understood and supported, they can be conducive to emotional and psychosomatic healing, creative problem-solving, and consciousness evolution.

4. Self-exploration and group process. The workshops of this series use an experimental educational format that combines information input with experiential approaches, and group process. For this purpose we will use various forms of Buddhist meditation, controlled breathing, focused body work, mandala drawing, psychic/intuitive counseling and training, massage, and other approaches. The coordinators, visiting guest faculty, and the Esalen staff will function as facilitators for participants throughout the workshop.

Reservations accompanied by a brief biographical letter should be addressed to: Cynthia Johnson, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. (408) 667-2335. $1960

January 4–23, 1987
Tutorial in Shamanic Healing and Shamanic Counseling

Michael Harner

This three-week intensive training course emphasizes universal core methods of shamanism, such as the classic shamanic journey, and their practical applications to contemporary life. The small group of approximately sixteen students will practice and live together in the Big House.

For information or to apply, write to Michael Harner, Center for Shamanic Studies, Belden Station, Norwalk, CT 06852, (203) 454-2827.

Quality Life: Senior Executives

John Soper

A workshop is offered for senior executives interested in living life at its highest quality. The workshop is open to a small number of participants. Please contact John Soper, Burns Creek, Big Sur, CA 93920, or call (408) 667-2431.

Massage Practitioner Certification Program

Esalen is now offering a California state-approved certificate upon successful completion of its three-month work-scholar program or residential massage practitioner program, and 30 additional massages. Each program fulfills the state requirement of at least 130 hours of instruction, supplemented with additional study in body-mind disciplines such as yoga, gestalt awareness work, and movement.

Healthspring Traveling Workshops

The Esalen massage teachers and their associates have created Healthspring, an independent organization devoted to extending their work into an outreach program. The workshops offer practices to help increase physical and spiritual health and awareness within the body, and can be designed to suit the needs of individual groups. The curriculum combines such approaches as massage, meditation, dance, neo-Reichian work, creative movement, gestalt, yoga, breath enhancement, anatomy, and other health-strengthening disciplines.

Healthspring will conduct workshops at locations outside of Esalen in your hometown or city. For more information on scheduling a Healthspring group in your community, write to: Healthspring Traveling Workshops, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

1st Reunion Of European Work Scholars

We are planning to meet with European workscholar alumni in Germany May 28 to 31, 1987. Visiting Esalen facilitators will include Jessica Britt, Bette Dingman, Christine Price, and John Soper. For further information and to share ideas contact Eberhard Schwartz, Menzelstr; 1, 1000 Berlin 41. 030-855-7504 by December 20, 1986.

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state-approved provider for continuing education for health professionals. Only those programs specifically listed below offer continuing education credit. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category 1 approval. Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Registered Nurses

October 31–November 2
Transcending Addiction: Redesigning a Lifestyle and a Mind Set
Angela Browne & Richard Miller
10 hours

December 19–21
Locating Pain and Trauma and Eliminating It
Dub Leigh
10 hours

December 28–January 2
The Art of Self-Care:
Who Heals the Healer?
Who Helps the Helper?
Ilana Rubenfeld
30 hours

January 4–9
Craniosacral System: Basic Workshop
Jim Asher & Jane Harrington
30 hours

January 18–23
Beyond Anatomy: Feldenkrais for Body Workers
Patrick Douce
30 hours

Future Program: March 1–27
Certification in Clinical Hypnosis
Eli Jaxon-Bear
30 hours

Wilderness Programs

Esalen Wilderness Programs Refund Policy

Most expenses in wilderness programs are incurred preparing for your arrival. The refund policy reflects the fact that few of these expenses can be recovered.

To reserve a space in a wilderness workshop, we require the following deposit:

Up to 3 days	$50
4-7 days	$100
Over 8 days	$200

The balance of the fee is due 14 days before the program begins. If you cancel prior to 30 days before the program begins, your non-refundable deposit may be applied to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year. If you cancel from 30 days up to the starting date of the trip, your deposit is forfeited.

August 30–September 12
Path of the River: A Grand Canyon Journey

Steven Harper, Wendy Palmer & Arizona Raft Adventures Staff (AZRA)

The Grand Canyon and Colorado River provide a unique environment of dramatic variety, which is intimate and awesome, soft and demanding, yet always rewarding for those who are open to all it has to offer. On this 14-day white-water raft trip through the entire length of the Grand Canyon, we explore our openness to offerings of river, canyon, and natural world. The river is our teacher and primary metaphor. We draw from aikido, dance, energy awareness, movement meditation, and gestalt to enhance our experience of this majestic wilderness area.

We travel in paddle and oar rafts. Instruction is offered in basic aspects of river life such as paddling and minimum-impact river camping. There is time to discuss the Canyon's ecology, geology, natural and cultural history; to hike and explore side canyons; to sit quietly and reflect. Finally, we can work with integration of learnings from this trip into our lives.

River experience is not necessary, though participants should be prepared for the challenge of vigorous physical activity. We ask you to come ready to participate fully. The workshop begins at 7:30 AM August 30, in Flagstaff. AZRA will supply all the necessary river and rafting gear, food, and transportation between Flagstaff and the Canyon. Details and a personal equipment list will be sent upon registration. $1400

October 24–26
Women's Vertical Dance: A Rock-Climbing Weekend Near Big Sur

Annie Callaway-Galland

"There is an art in finding one's direction in the lower regions by the memory of what one saw higher up. When one can no longer see, one can at least still know." – René Dumal

Rock climbing is a dance done in a vertical world, a dance of grace, balance, and simplicity. It is an opportunity for stretching limits, extending ourselves, exploring our own edges. Our responses to the challenges of climbing offer a metaphor for looking at the ways we deal with stress and challenge in our daily lives. During the day we will play on the sunny boulders and low rock faces at Pinnacles National Monument, three hours east of Esalen. We'll learn basic movements, such as how to rappel and belay, building trust in our hands and feet and each other. Safety ropes free us to experiment and to discover our inner heroes. We'll prepare our gourmet meals together over a crackling fire and camp beneath the stars, sharing insights from the day's adventure. This weekend begins Friday and ends Sunday evening at the Monterey Airport. A shuttle bus operates between the airport and Esalen, and we'll travel by van to and from the Pinnacles. No previous climbing or camping experience is necessary. Minimum equipment will be needed. Complete information will be sent upon registration. $225

Future Programs

March 1–20
Sustaining Integration: Body, Self, and Soul

Jack Rosenberg

For information write or call: Marjorie Rand, Rosenberg-Rand Institute, 1107 W. Washington Blvd., Venice, CA 90291, (213) 394-0147. $1595

March 1–22
Continuum Dance Meditation Intensive: Waves and Whispers

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper $1720

March 1-27
Certification in Clinical Hypnosis

Eli Jaxon-Bear

Fur further information please write: Eli Jaxon-Bear, Institute for Advanced Hypnosis, Box 1311, Mill Valley, CA 94942. $1960

March 27–April 24
Massage Practitioner Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners $2120

April 5–May 1
Gestalt Practice: A Practicum

Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

For a more complete workshop description, write to Christine Price, c/o Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. $1485

May 3–29
The Mystical Quest, Attachment, and Addiction

Christina & Stanislav Grof & Jacquelyn Small

For further information write: Christina Grof, "Re May 1987 Month-long Program," Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. $1960

Biographical Information

A

Stephen Aizenstat, p. 29 ..... clinical director of the Human Relations Institute, has conducted dream groups throughout the U.S. and recently completed a comprehensive research project on methods of dream analysis.

Diana Alstad p. 19 ..... taught the first women's studies courses at Yale and Duke. She has led male/female groups with Joel Kramer in North America, Europe, and Asia.

Antler p. 14 ..... is the author of Factory (City Lights, 1980) and Last Words: Selected Poems—1967-1983 (Ballantine, 1986).

Anne Armstrong p. 18, 19, 27 ..... has been doing transpersonal counseling for over 18 years and has trained professionals to use their own intuitive abilities.

Jim Armstrong, p. 18, 19, 27 ..... a former engineer, is a life-long student and teacher of esoteric studies.

Elliot Aronson, p. 14, 21 ..... professor of psychology at UC Santa Cruz, is author of 12 books, including Burnout (with Ayala Pines).

Jim Asher p. 27, 35 ..... has been practicing cranial work since 1973. He is a Rolfing® teacher and an advanced Rolfer, certified by Ida Rolf.

Debbie Austin, p. 28 ..... former track and field athletics coach, has expertise in the application of sports psychology methods to psychokinesis training.

Nancy Azara p. 17 ..... is a sculptor, painter, and psychic consultant specializing in the creative process. She is co-founder of the New York Feminist Art Institute (NYFAI) Women's Center for Learning.

B

Richard Baker-roshi p. 18, 19 ..... is presently abbot and head teacher of Dharma Sangha Zen Meditation and Study Center in San Francisco and Santa Fe.

Jamie Baraz p. 28 ..... has taught vipassana (insight) meditation with Joseph Goldstein, Jack Kornfield, Stephen Levine, and others in the U.S. and Asia. He has led San Francisco area classes and retreats since 1977.

Leonard Bearne p. 11 ..... has studied self-acceptance training with Richard Olney for several years. He practices gestalt, hypnosis, and Radix®, and owns an Old English sheep dog.

Bradley Bernstein, p. 17 ..... a theater director, studied with Viola Spolin, and holds a doctorate in clinical psychology. He develops original theater with professional actors and with psychiatric clients.

Daniel Bianchetta p. 14, 23 ..... practices intuitive readings, shiatsu, and deep tissue work at Esalen. He is a teacher and student of Siddha yoga.

Beth Bone Blossom, p. 14 ..... teacher, fiber artist, herbalist, and mother of two sons, has worked with Starhawk in the Reclaiming collective for six years.

David Boadella p. 12 ..... is a long-time practitioner of Reichian work, founder and developer of biosynthesis, and editor of the Reichian journal, Energy and Character.

Faustin Bray p. 12 ..... is a performing musician and media artist, founder of Island School, and director of Sound Photosynthesis. She specializes in instigating creativity using yoga, fine arts, science, and travel.

Jessica Moore Britt, p. 6, 10, 17, 21, 32, 33 ..... coordinator of Esalen in-house programming, is a practitioner of gestalt, Reichian, and wilderness approaches to healing and essential development.

Viola Brody p. 10 ..... is a clinical psychologist and creator of developmental play, which expresses her interest in the study of the attachment-separation process from birth to death.

Hugh Bromiley, p. 18 ..... a certified practitioner of hypnosis and NLP, and Alexander principle teacher, leads seminars in Ericksonian hypnosis, communication skills, higher performance, and positive results.

Khara Bromiley, p. 18 ..... a certified hypnosis and NLP practitioner, has long experience doing intuitive counseling. She has led Symington visualization groups for cancer patients.

Charles Brooks, p. 20 ..... author of Sensory Awareness, the Rediscovery of Experiencing, has been a teacher of sensory awareness since 1963, often in conjunction with Charlotte Selver.

C

Angela Christine Browne p. 19, 35 ..... is educational director of Cokenders and author of numerous publications on health, social issues, and Transcending Addiction (forthcoming).

Annie Callaway-Galland, p. 18, 36 ..... professional wilderness guide, family counselor, and hatha yoga teacher, has been leading Esalen trips for many years.

Paul Carter, p. 14 ..... co-founder and director of Meta-Education and Training Arts since 1976, leads workshops in the U.S. and Europe on Ericksonian hypnosis, creativity, and learning.

Seymour Carter, p. 15, 23 ..... longtime gestalt teacher at Esalen and in Europe, brings to his work studies in sensory awareness, Zen Buddhism, aikido, and other body-oriented practices.

Michell Cassou p. 11, 24 ..... is the founder of an original approach to painting designed to stimulate and unblock creativity. She is director of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Stanford Eugene Cates p. 24, 29 ..... is an ordained minister, gestalt facilitator, and Trager℠ bodyworker. He has worked with Paul Rebillot in the U.S. and Europe for seven years.

Danner Lief Christensen ..... has been interested in becoming a man ever since he was born in 1950.
p. 31

Didi Conn ..... starred in the movies You Light Up My Life and Grease (I & II), and was featured regularly in the TV series, Benson.
p. 17

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, ... a professional dancer and teacher of movement, has studied and performed ballet, modern jazz, Afro-Cuban, and primitive dance in New York and the West Indies.
p. 36

Phil Cousineau ..... is a free-lance writer and film educator. He has taught for the American Film Institute and is currently working on "Conversations with Joseph Campbell."
p. 14

Stewart Cubley, ... artist and scientist, is a co-founder of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.
p. 11, 24, 32

Christopher Connolly, ... American founder of the Sporting Bodymind consultancy, is also a psychosynthesis guide, a Feldenkrais teacher, and an accomplished water skier.
p. 27

Rose May Dance, ... a teacher, workshop leader, and sociological researcher who has worked with Starhawk in the Reclaiming collective for six years, is editing a workbook on teaching ritual.
p. 14

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita), ... a certified Radix® teacher on the Esalen faculty, has over 12 years of experience combining Reichian body work, gestalt, Bates vision work, movement, and meditation in group and private instruction.
p. 11, 18, 23, 28, 33

D

Steven Donovan ..... is director of The Transformation Project.
p. 15

Patrick Douce, ... a resident at Esalen since 1972, teaches ongoing classes in Feldenkrais awareness-through-movement and is available for individual sessions in functional integration.
p. 9, 22, 27, 35

Jack Downing ..... is a psychiatrist with a comprehensive background in gestalt, Rolfing®, Arica, applied kinesiology, and neurolinguistic programming.
p. 9

Joel Dweck ..... is a Reichian counselor in private practice in Los Angeles, where he also directs the Core Contact training program.
p. 13

Victoria Elliot ..... is a counselor and is president and co-founder of an executive search and consulting firm.
p. 10

E

Esalen Massage Practitioners ..... Char Brenner, Peggy Horan, Deane Juhan, George King, Bill Liles, Deborah Medow, Jaime Morton, Laurie Muller, Arthur Munyer, Brita Ostrom, Laurie Schutz, Vicki Topp, and Attila Vaas.
p. 10, 12, 17, 18, 19, 21, 33, 34, 36

F

James Fadiman ..... consults, writes, teaches, and lectures damn near everywhere. He has given workshops at Esalen for 20 years and worked with stories for 10.
p. 31

David Feinstein, ... a psychologist, is director of Innersource in Ashland, Oregon, and has taught at Antioch College and the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.
p. 30

Richard Feynman ..... is a professor of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology. He served as an advisor on art and technology for the Los Angeles County Museum.
p. 12

Steve Fields, ... director of Progress Foundation, has developed and advocated alternatives to institutional psychiatric treatment for 15 years.
p. 15

Jerry Fletcher ..... is president and founder of High Performance Dynamics, Inc., a management consulting and training company based in Richmond, California.
p. 10, 28

Kathleen Brown Fletcher ..... is a trainer and consultant in organizational development, working in both the profit and non-profit sectors.
p. 10, 28

Joyce Frazee, ... gestalt and dream work practitioner in Vancouver, Canada, for 14 years, has training in Jungian dream analysis, bioenergetics, and group process.
p. 20

Marty Fromm ..... trained with Fritz Perls for three years. Some aspects of their relationship are described in In and Out the Garbage Pail.
p. 24

G

Herbert Gold ..... has published over 20 books, most recently Lovers and Cohorts, collected stories, and A Girl of Forty, a novel. He has taught at Cornell, Harvard, Stanford, and the University of California.
p. 32

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) ..... is a chiropractor, certified Radix® teacher, Bates vision instructor, and is in private practice in Los Angeles and San Francisco.
p. 15, 23, 29

Joe D. Goldstrich, ... author of The Best Chance Diet, cardiologist, and past medical director of the Pritikin Longevity Center, currently practices homeopathy in Pacific Palisades, California.
p. 29

Harriet Goslins ..... is a Feldenkrais practitioner and an awareness-through-movement teacher with a background in psychosynthesis and applied kinesiology.
p. 20

Jo Anne Granshaw ..... is involved in self exploration. She is currently studying with Janet Zuckerman.
p. 27, 28

Tom Greening ..... is a clinical psychologist, editor of the Journal of Humanistic Psychology, and has made three trips to the Soviet Union.
p. 27

John Michael Grey ..... studied at Stanford University, where he co-directed a research institute in perceptual and cognitive psychology.
p. 18

Christina Grof ..... studied with Swami Muktananda and has a special interest in the relationship between mysticism and psychosis. She is founder of the Spiritual Emergency Network and co-author of Beyond Death.
p. 10, 12, 16, 18, 20, 23, 27, 28, 30, 32, 35, 36

Stanislav Grof, ... a psychiatrist who has extensive experience in consciousness research with and without psychedelics, is author of Realms of the Human Unconscious, LSD Psychotherapy, and Beyond the Brain.
p. 10, 12, 16, 18, 20, 23, 27, 28, 30, 32, 35, 36

Richard Gunther, ... a business entrepreneur, has for 25 years studied the problems and possibilities of mid-life, and is co-author of Who Needs Mid-Life at Your Age?
p. 29

H

Joan Halifax, ... author of Shamanic Voices and Shaman the Wounded Healer, teaches in Europe, Mexico, and the U.S., and is director of the Ojai Foundation.
p. 11

Thomas Hanna ..... is director of the Novato Institute for Somatic Research and Training, editor of Somatics magazine, and author of The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt.
p. 28

Betsy Hand ..... has worked as a nurse, family counselor, group leader, manager, and consultant in the health care field for over 25 years.
p. 9, 28

Michael Harner, ... an anthropologist who has studied shamanism among South and North American Indians for more than two decades, is the author of The Way of the Shaman and Hallucinogens and Shamanism.
p. 26, 35

Steven Harper ..... teaches for Colorado Outward Bound and the National Outdoor Leadership School, and is currently the coordinator of the Esalen Wilderness Programs.
p. 9, 11, 14, 16, 36

Susan Harper ..... teaches Continuum Dance Meditation workshops in Los Angeles and San Francisco, leads "Dance the River" trips on wild rivers, and has presented at the Joy-Spangler Asilomar Conference.
p. 36

Jane Harrington ..... holds a masters degree from Lone Mountain College and is a certified Rolf-movement teacher with extensive craniosacral experience.
p. 27, 35

Hazel Henderson ..... is an independent futurist, author, lecturer, and radio and television moderator.
p. 12

Paul Horn ..... is a flutist, jazz musician, creator of the Inside albums, philosopher, and teacher of meditation.
p. 15, 26, 27

Michael Horowitz, ... writer, historian, and library director, compiled and co-edited Moksha: Aldous Huxley's Writings on Psychedelics & the Visionary Experience and Shaman Woman, Mainline Lady: Women's Writings on the Drug Experience.
p. 22

Chungliang Al Huang ..... is a t'ai ji dancer, artist-calligrapher, and philosophical entertainer. He is founder / president of Living Tao Foundation, Urbana, Illinois.
p. 26, 27

Terry Hunt, ... a licensed psychologist practicing bioenergetic analysis in Boston, directs a flotation tank center for amelioration of somatic and addictive disorders.
p. 32

Julian Isaacs, ... director of parapsychological research at John F. Kennedy University, Orinda, California, has pioneered and investigated the training of psychokinetic ability for eight years.
p. 28

J

Kay Jamison ..... is director of the UCLA Affective Disorders Clinic and researches the impact of manic-depressive illness on the lives of poets, writers, and musicians.
p. 22

Erik Jarlnaes ..... is a Reichian practitioner, athlete, and journalist. He uses the Danish Bodynamic approach in working with the body and emotions.
p. 13

Eli Jaxon-Bear, ... former staff research associate in psychology at UCLA and past president of a Tibetan Buddhist meditation center, practices Ericksonian hypnosis, and is a master practitioner of NLP.
p. 18, 31, 35, 36

Don Johnson, ... author of Body and The Protean Body, is coordinator of the graduate studies program in somatic psychology and education at Antioch University in San Francisco.
p. 23

Michael Joyce, ... longtime group leader in the U.S. and Europe and Feldenkrais practitioner, directs a neuromuscular clinic for a Veterans Administration hospital.
p. 15

Deane Juhan, ... a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years, is a certified practitioner of Trager psychophysical integration.
p. 32

K

Fred Kalmus, ... co-founder of the Alternative Choice Counseling Program, leads workshops in stress management for corporations and individuals.
p. 15

Neil Karp, ... practicing psychiatrist, directs the Stress Reduction Associates Medical Group in Santa Barbara, California, a pain and stress management center.
p. 29

Kenneth Kelzer ..... works as a transpersonal educator and counselor in California. Using dream work, he has been conducting classes and groups for over 10 years.
p. 9

Murray Korngold ..... is a certified acupuncturist, and a teacher and speaker on parapsychology and psychic healing.
p. 9

Joel Kramer, ... a Western master of physical and mental yoga, has taught with Diana Alstad throughout the world on the evolution of awareness and male / female relationships.
p. 19

Stanley Krippner, ... psychologist, researcher, and director of Saybrook Institute's Center for Consciousness Studies, authored / co-authored Human Possibilities, Realms of Healing, and Dream Telepathy.
p. 30

Ron Kurtz ..... is the founder and director of the Hakomi Institute. He is the author of Hakomi Therapy and co-author of The Body Reveals.
p. 21

L

Benj Langdon, p. 21, 33 ..... former coordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body, is currently exploring transformation through body practices.

Lenore Lefer p. 31 ..... has a private practice in San Francisco, is on the training staff of the Psychosynthesis Institutes of London and San Francisco, and teaches at the California Institute of Transpersonal Psychology.

Dub Leigh p. 23, 35 ..... was trained by Ida Rolf and Moshe Feldenkrais, and is currently studying with Tanouye Tenshin-roshi at Hawaii Zen Center.

Mary Lenholt, p. 10 ..... a licensed mental health counselor in private practice in Florida and a certified developmental play trainer, brings to her work a sense of love and delight.

Dianne Miller Lesty p. 33 ..... has been a resident Esalen gestalt and Halprin movement facilitator and massage staff member since 1973.

Paul Lounsbury p. 9 ..... has studied extensively with Milton Erickson and has conducted numerous training seminars on the use of hypnosis and strategic counseling. He is in private practice in New York.

DeeDee Lozier p. 15 ..... is a Feldenkrais practitioner who studied with Moshe Feldenkrais in the U.S. and Israel.

David Lukoff p. 22 ..... heads the Diagnosis and Psychopathology Unit at UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute, and researches holistic health treatments for schizophrenia, and the relationships among mythology, mysticism, and psychosis.

Nancy Kaye Lunney, p. 12, 17 ..... a gestalt practitioner at Esalen since 1977, is a vocal coach and accompanist for well-known professional entertainers. She is manager of programming and a trustee at Esalen.

M

Lizbeth Marcher p. 13 ..... is the founder and developer of the Danish Bodynamic approach to working with the body and emotions.

Marilyn Mason, p. 16 ..... family counselor and teacher at the University of Minnesota, is founder/director of the Wilderness Learning Institute.

Will McWhinney, p. 27 ..... is on the senior faculty of the Fielding Institute, consultant, former asociate professor, UCLA, and candidate for president of AHP.

Deborah Anne Medow, p. 6, 24, 33 ..... Esalen group leader and body work practitioner since 1969, teaches ashtanga yoga, massage, creative movement, gestalt awareness, and related healing disciplines throughout the U.S. and Europe.

Ailish Mellard, p. 31 ..... holistic health practitioner and body worker for 12 years, is currently organizational consultant for Will Schutz Associates, which teaches human potential concepts for various organizations.

Jane Miletich, p. 6 ..... a longtime Big Sur resident and Esalen masseuse, is instructor of hatha yoga, t'ai chi, and transitional cleansing diets; student of midwifery, birth, and death; and bearer of ritual.

Richard Louis Miller, p. 19, 35 ..... the founder of Cokenders' holistic addiction treatment program, appears on national television and radio describing his humanistic alternatives to hospitalization.

Marghe Mills p. 17 ..... is co-author of Developmental Movement Therapy with Bonnie Cohen, certified Feldenkrais teacher, faculty member, Dominican College, and in private practice in the San Francisco area.

Ian Mitroff, p. 27 ..... is Distinguished Professor of Business Policy, USC, and author of numerous books on planning and crisis management.

Arthur Eric Munyer p. 19 ..... is a teacher and practitioner on the Esalen massage crew and was one of the first faculty members at Gazebo school.

Jezariah Canyon Munyer, p. 19 ..... born February 11, 1983, is his parents' favorite teacher.

Laurie Schutz Munyer, p. 19 ..... a long-time Esalen resident and former staff member, has worked at Gazebo school and is a practitioner and teacher of Esalen massage.

Michael Murphy p. 15 ..... is co-founder of Esalen Institute and founder of The Transformation Project. He is author of Golf in the Kingdom, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports, and An End to Ordinary History.

O

Richard Olney p. 11 ..... has studied with Alan Watts, Fritz Perls, and Alexander Lowen. He has presented self-acceptance training throughout the US and Europe.

Kathleen O'Shaughnessy p. 22 ..... has an extensive background in Soto Zen, growth psychology, shamanic states, body work, and the practicalities of transpersonal crisis.

P

Karen Paine-Gernée p. 32 ..... leads groups for Adult Children of Alcoholics in Cambridge, Massachusetts. She is on the faculty of Omega Institute, The New York Open Center, Interface, and Spring Hill Institute.

Cynthia Palmer, p. 22 ..... writer, historian, and library director, co-compiled and co-edited Moksha: Aldous Huxley's Writings on Psychedelics & the Visionary Experience and Shaman Woman, Mainline Lady: Women's Writings on the Drug Experience.

Helen Palmer p. 12, 18 ..... is a practicing clairvoyant. She directs the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition. Her teaching utilizes personality issues as access points to psychic perception and the inner life.

Wendy Palmer, p. 9, 11, 18, 36 ..... a teacher and director of the Lomi School, holds a black belt in aikido and is co-founder of the Tamalpais Aikido and International Movement Arts Center.

Marianne Paschke-Carter p. 14 ..... combines movement, hypnosis, conscious breathing, and Trager℠ psychophysical integration in her work with individuals, families, and groups.

George Pennington, p. 16 ... a staff member of the Coloman Growth Center in Bavaria, West Germany, works to combine modern psychological approaches with Buddhist and shamanic consciousness practices.

Ayala Pines, p. 14, 22 ... a social psychologist at UC Berkeley, and a licensed psychologist in private practice, is co-author of Experiencing Social Psychology, and Burnout: From Tedium to Personal Growth.

Jeff Poniewaz p. 14 ... is the author of Dolphin Leaping in the Milky Way, (Homeward Press, 1985). His poems have appeared in Greenpeace Chronicles, the L.A. Times, and New Age Magazine.

Paul Posner, p. 22 ... a Soviet citizen who is an expert on cultural differences and similarities between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R., is currently a guest of the Esalen Soviet-American Exchange Program.

Angela Praesent p. 24 ... is a writer, translator, and editor. She has taught literature at both American and West German universities.

Christine Stewart Price p. 6, 22, 36 ... combines gestalt awareness practice with guided imagery and various forms of body work. She considers herself a born-again pagan. (Paganism: religion of the earth.)

Douglas Price-Williams p. 22 ... is a professor of anthropology and psychiatry at UCLA and researches experiential aspects of shamanism across cultures.

R

Edith Rasmussen p. 10 ... has been a student of awareness methods since 1978. She is now studying with Janet Zuckerman.

Paul Rebillot p. 24, 29 ... was founding director of the Gestalt Fool Theater Family in San Francisco and has been a resident group leader at Esalen.

Leon Redler p. 10 ... is a London-based psychiatrist, and pioneer, with R.D. Laing and others, in developing alternative psychiatric strategies, including the provision of asylum for people in mental distress.

Tracey Rich p. 15 ... is a director of the White Lotus Yoga Retreat in Santa Barbara and leads seminars nationally.

Sogyal Rinpoche, p. 23 ... Tibetan incarnate lama, scholar, and meditation master, was raised by Buddhist master Jamyang Khyentse Chokyi Lodro, and studied at Cambridge University.

Rita Rohen, p. 9 ... a family and organizational consultant, has an international practice in personal and transpersonal growth, and in the exploration of relationships.

Jack Rosenberg p. 20, 34, 36 ... has worked with cancer research and transformation of consciousness, and practices gestalt, Reichian work, yoga, and object relations in Venice, California.

Gabrielle Roth p. 9 ... is the creator of the Moving Center method of catalyzing natural movements. She lives on the East Coast, where she directs and performs with her own theater/dance company.

Ilana Rubenfeld p. 24, 26, 35 ... is the originator of her own integration called "gestalt synergy®." She trained with Fritz and Laura Perls and Moshe Feldenkrais, and is on the faculty of New York University.

Anne Ruderman p. 13 ... is a Reichian counselor in private practice in Los Angeles.

Gordy Ryan p. 33 ... has roots in the Big Sur Primitive Jazz Society, and has studied and performed with Olatunji for 15 years.

S

David Schiffman, p. 12, 14, 17, 22, 23, 27, 30, 31 ... a long-time group leader at Esalen, is involved in developing full expression of mental, physical, and spiritual states of being.

Elisa Lodge Schiffman p. 12, 14, 17, 22, 23, 27, 29, 30 ... trained in structural integration with Ida Rolf and is an advanced teacher of Rolf-movement integration.

Will Schutz, p. 31 ... founder of the Antioch holistic studies department, is the creator of The Human Element, a set of training materials for organizations, and author of Joy and Profound Simplicity.

Alan Schwartz, p. 24, 26 ... long-time Esalen group leader, college professor, and gestaltist, is completing his book, Systemics: The Art & Science of the Human Energy System.

Nadine Scott p. 15 ... is founder and director of International Study Group (ISG), and Pakhuis Amerika, a community for the integrated self.

Charlotte Selver, p. 20 ... student of Elsa Gindler, introduced Sensory Awareness to the United States, and has been closely connected with Esalen and San Francisco Zen Center since their beginnings.

Phyllis Shankman, p. 21 ... a licensed counselor in private practice in West Los Angeles, specializes in group process, and is interested in self-acceptance and change.

David Shire p. 17 ... won an Oscar for his song "Norma Rae," and has written numerous film scores, as well as the music for the Tony-nominated Broadway show Baby.

Julian Silverman p. 31 ... is director of counseling and psychological services at UC-Santa Cruz.

Anne Nechama Simkin p. 26, 33 ... trained in gestalt with Erv and Miriam Polster and Jim Simkin, and has conducted workshops internationally.

Saul-Paul Sirag p. 30 ... is a theoretical physicist who has published papers on cosmology and unified field theory.

Harry Sloan, p. 13, 24, 28, 32 ... a 1969 Esalen resident fellow, former dentist, and playwright, worked with Roberto Assagioli, the founder of psychosynthesis, and is in private practice in San Francisco.

Jacquelyn Small, p. 36 ... author of Becoming Naturally Therapeutic and Transformers, The Therapists of the Future, is recognized as a leader in the fields of addiction and human consciousness.

Gerald Smith p. 9, 28 ... is a psychologist in Belmont, California. He is the author of Hidden Meanings and Couple Therapy.

Elliot Sobel p. 23 ... was the editor of New Sun Magazine and has done extensive research, as an author and performer, in the area of consciousness as it relates to the arts.

Jerry Solfvin p. 30 ... is on the faculties of John F. Kennedy University and the California Institute of Integral Studies. He has authored many articles on mental healing.

Sharon Solfvin p. 30 ... is on the faculty of John F. Kennedy University and is a business consultant on creativity and intuition.

Starhawk p. 14 ... is the author of The Spiral Dance: A Rebirth of the Ancient Religion of the Great Goddess (Harper & Row, 1979), and Dreaming the Dark: Magic, Sex, and Politics (Beacon, 1982).

Brother David Steindl-Rast, p. 29 ... Benedictine monk, hermit, psychologist, and author, has lectured on all five continents. He is concerned with the spiritual challenges of our time.

Elizabeth Stratton, p. 25, 26 ... a psychic healer and counselor in private practice in New York City, leads workshops in self-healing, psychic self-defense, and psychic development for health professionals.

John Syer, p. 27 ... a sports psychologist trained in gestalt by George and Judith Brown, played volleyball for Britain and was Scottish national coach for ten years.

T

Charles Tart p. 17 ... is a psychologist who has worked with altered states of consciousness, parapsychology, and human potentials.

Judith Tart p. 17 ... is a registered nurse and a student of aikido, the Gurdjieff work, and the Course in Miracles.

Lawrence Telles p. 15 ... trained as an academic philosopher, and has directed psychosocial rehabilitation programs since 1976.

Mary Tesoro p. 24 ... is a certified Leonard Energy Training (LET) instructor, writer, and aikido practitioner, whose work embraces issues of human health, potential, and peak performance.

Gabriele Thomson p. 21 ... has conducted workshops for mental health professionals in Europe, Australia, and New Zealand. She supports individuals in healing childhood traumas and furthering spiritual development.

Lia Thompson p. 6 ... has been a Gazebo teacher for six years. She is currently a co-ordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body and a member of the Gazebo workshop staff.

U

Walter Urban p. 10 ... is a research psychoanalyst and financial success consultant.

V

Tom Van Sant, p. 12 ... Fellow, MIT Center For Advanced Visual Studies, is an internationally known painter, sculptor, and environmental planner, and is considered the father of space art.

W

Brian Wallace, p. 12 ... musician, composer, poet, and media artist noted for creating a dramatic environment, has performed for 20 years and is director of Nomadband.

John Welwood p. 32 ... is a clinical psychologist and author of Awakening the Heart and Challenge of the Heart: Love, Sex, and Intimacy in Changing Times.

Ganga White, p. 15 ... an internationally known teacher and master of yoga, is author of Double Yoga and has received the titles "Yogacharya" and "Yogiraj" (King of Yogis) in India.

Nancy Winston p. 9 ... is a counselor in New York City who has studied with Milton Erickson and has taught and trained clinicians in the use of hypnosis and counseling throughout North America.

Roger Woolger, p. 12 ... graduate of C.G. Jung Institute in Zurich, is a teacher, counselor, and author of articles on psychology and spiritual practices.

Z

Janet Zuckerman p. 10, 27, 28 ... was an emotional release and group process teacher at Esalen for 12 years. She has a private practice in San Francisco.

Catalog Subscription Information

The Esalen Catalog is published tri-annually. Subscription cost for one year is $10 for the United States, $12 for Canada and Mexico, $16 for Europe and South America, and $18 for all other countries. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

☐ To obtain future issues of the Esalen Catalog for one year, please send a check or money order in U.S. currency drawn on a U.S. bank only to: Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. A pre-addressed envelope is included in this catalog for your convenience.
(Note: People who attend an Esalen workshop or conference will receive a free subscription for one year.)

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

☐ Please send a complimentary copy of the Esalen Catalog to the person listed below:

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Please notify us if you change your address and check here ☐ if you are receiving duplicates of the catalog.

Friends of Esalen

We invite you to join us in our organization—Friends of Esalen.

Friends of Esalen provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

We believe that one of our first priorities is to make our programs available on a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions to fund such scholarships. Esalen will, in turn, match your contribution.

In addition to knowing that you have given someone else the opportunity to experience Esalen, you will receive the Esalen Catalog for one year. We hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the sharing and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

☐ I wish to become a Friend of Esalen and I enclose my check for the category circled.

☐ I wish to renew my membership in Friends of Esalen.

One Year Student	$15	One Year Donor	$50	One Year Patron	$500
One Year Individual	$25	One Year Sponsor	$100	(Contributions are tax-deductible)

Name _____ Student Affiliation _____

Street _____

City, State _____ ZIP _____ Date _____

Please mail to: Friends of Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920

Food for the Senses

a book of recipes and artwork by people of the Esalen community is now available. To order by mail, use the following form.

Please send me _____ copies of Food for the Senses at $5.95 each, plus an additional $1.25 per book for postage and handling, or a total of $7.20. (California residents add $.35 tax.) I am enclosing a total of $ _____ .

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

Please mail to: Food for the Senses, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Ca. 93920. Make checks payable to Esalen Institute. Allow 6 weeks for delivery.

The Media Center

Videotapes

Esalen

This 18-minute videotape, which tells Esalen's story from its early history to the present, is an inexpensive way to view the general offerings available at Esalen. The visuals consist of 130 color slides featuring scenes of the Big Sur coast, Esalen's garden, grounds, and various workshops and activities.

Invited Speakers

The Esalen Media Center is offering for rental or purchase a selection of videotapes from conferences and seminars. This series consists of unedited single camera recordings of informal talks made at Esalen.

1. Jack Kornfield, "On Meditation," November, 1984. A long-time student and teacher of vipassana meditation and Buddhism discusses these traditions with reference to his own experiences as a spiritual seeker in the Orient.

2. Brother David Steindl-Rast, "God, Spirituality, and the Senses," November, 1984. A Benedictine monk and scholar discusses the spiritual journey and its relationship to mythology and transpersonal theory.

3. Fritjof Capra, "Characteristics of Systems Thinking," June, 1985. The author of The Tao of Physics and The Turning Point discusses the evolution of scientific thinking, including current views and implications.

4. Stanislav Grof, "The New Scientific Paradigm," June, 1985. An original member of the transpersonal psychology network, and author on related topics such as appropriate use of psycho-active substances, discusses his current view of consciousness.

5. Rupert Sheldrake, "Morphic Resonance and The New Science of Life," June, 1985. A British geneticist relates his theories on biological and psychological development, and discusses some empirical tests of these theories.

6. Kenneth Ring, "The Near-Death Experience," June, 1985. The author of Life at Death and Heading Toward Omega discusses his research on the near-death experience, and some of its implications for the future of the human race.

7. Albert Hofmann, December, 1984. The discoverer of LSD talks to Stan Grof about his early experiences with this and other psycho-active drugs. He also discusses some of the social, political, and scientific consequences of LSD.

8. Anne Armstrong and Elizabeth Stratton, December, 1984. Two long-time students, practitioners, and teachers of psychic work discuss with Nancy Knapp their practices and perspectives related to psychic counseling and healing.

9. Terence McKenna, "Fractile Perspectives on the Millenium," August, 1985. The author of The Invisible Landscape gives his vision of the future, centering around the evolution of human consciousness.

10. Jack Rosenberg, "One Hour and Twenty-Nine Minutes with Jack Rosenberg and Integrative Body Practice," September, 1985. The Venice, California practitioner gives his view of personality development and some of the typical patterns of interaction in relationship.

Price List and Order Form

I would like to Purchase _____ Rent _____ Programs: "Esalen" 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 (circle)

Video Format: VHS _____ Beta _____

Purchase:	Each speaker program VHS or Beta	$55.00	$ _____
	"Esalen" VHS or Beta	$35.00	$ _____
Rental: (seven days)	Each speaker program VHS or Beta	$25.00	$ _____
	"Esalen" VHS or Beta	$15.00	$ _____
		Subtotal	$ _____
	California residents add 6% tax for sales only		$ _____
	Shipping and Handling		$ 5.00
	For overseas air mail orders please add $7 additional postage for each cassette		$ _____
		Total Enclosed	$ _____

Name _____ Organization _____

Address _____ State _____ ZIP _____

Phone _____ Preferred rental dates _____

Allow 30 days for delivery. Urgent orders may be handled by phone. (408) 667-2335

Please address your order (with a check payable to Esalen Institute): Media Center, Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Rental fees may be credited toward purchase price if you notify us within 30 days.

Esalen Institute Reservations

This form is for your convenience in reserving a space in Esalen workshops. In completing the form, please indicate the name, address, and telephone number of each person registering and clearly indicate the title of the workshop for which each person is reserving a place. A registration fee for each person registering and each workshop applied for must accompany this form. (See General Information, page 46.)

(Please Print)

Name _____ Sex M ☐ F ☐

Address _____

City, State _____ ZIP _____ Occupation _____

Telephone Number: Home: Area Code ( ) _____ Work: Area Code ( ) _____

There are sometimes unexpected situations that may require us to contact you immediately before your stay here. If you will not be at the above numbers during the two weeks prior to the workshop, where may we reach you? If you can't be reached, please call us before your scheduled arrival for final confirmation. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

(On additional paper please repeat the above information for every person in your party making a reservation. Mail to Reservations, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.)

Check if you want: ☐ housing as a couple, shared bed

Do you smoke? _____

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop, for phone numbers of other guests from your area.

Check here ☐ if you do not want us to give out your number for the purposes of ride sharing.

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. (For further details see Ways of Being at Esalen, page 6.)

Bus Service:

I want bus service from (check one):

_____ Monterey Greyhound Bus Station at 4:45 pm

_____ Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm

on _____ (date of arrival, Fridays & Sundays only)

The $20 (rate subject to change) per person charge is payable on arrival at Esalen. If your plans for use of the bus change after you submit this reservation, please notify us. Esalen bus service is not available at any time other than as listed above.

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Name of Person Registering	Date(s)	Leader's Name/Title of Workshop	Deposit Enclosed

Total amount enclosed: $ _____

Please make checks payable to Esalen Institute in U.S. currency only.

Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks.

Your reservation can be charged to:

MasterCard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express ☐

Card No. _____

Expiration Date _____

All workshops require nonrefundable reservation fees. See page 46. The balance of program fees becomes payable at the time of check-in.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some people, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

General Information

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. It is directly over the shoreline of the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esselen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute-By Reservation Only.

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop, for phone numbers of other guests coming from your area.

Reservation Information: In order to reserve a space in any workshop we require a reservation fee of $50 for weekend groups, $100 for five-day groups, $150 for seven-day groups, $200 for two-week groups, $300 for three-week groups, and $400 for month-long groups, payable in U.S. currency only. Overseas residents please pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks. Balance of payment is due on arrival. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year of receipt. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

Please mail all reservations to:
Reservations,
Esalen Institute
Big Sur, CA 93920

We are able to process mail reservations more effectively. If you are concerned about workshops being full or have any questions, you may make reservations by phone if you use your MasterCard, Visa, or American Express credit card number to charge your reservation fee.

Phone (408) 667-2335
Office Hours:
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

If there is no answer during our regular business hours, and the phone company confirms that our phones are out of order, please call our alternate number (408) 372-8719, for recorded up-to-date workshop, road, and transportation information.

Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Check-out time is noon of departure day. Rooms become available at 4 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive any time after lunch.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Gazebo School: Any requests for child care should be sent at least one month in advance, to Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Senior Citizens' Discount Information: Esalen offers a special discount to individuals over 60 years of age. The discount for a weekend workshop is $25, and a five-day is $50. Discounts are available only when you make your reservations. Please present proof of age when you register. Senior discounts are not available for Wilderness Programs.

Ongoing Residence Program: Offered from October through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to have time and space in the Esalen environment for an intensive workshop program over a long term. A minimum stay: 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are canceled, so second choices are advised. Many community programs are also open to residents. The cost is $1960 per 26 day period.

Health Services: We are unable to provide medical supervision or pharmaceutical supplies. If you are on a health-care program and you plan to spend several weeks at Esalen, please arrive prepared to administer to your health-care needs.

Illegal Drugs: In accordance with state and federal laws, the possession or use of illegal drugs on Esalen grounds is strictly prohibited.

Room and Board: Bed spaces not required for workshop participants are sometimes available for room and board. Accommodations are shared and the rate is $60 per person per day on weekdays, and $75 per person per day on weekends. Room and board rates include dinner on the day of arrival and breakfast and lunch the following day.

Private rooms are sometimes available. Rates are $100 per person per day, $110 per couple per day on weekdays, and $135 per couple per day on weekends. Special family rates are available. Please phone the office for additional information.

Bus Service: We have bus service from the Monterey Greyhound station at 4:45 pm and from the Monterey Airport at 5:00 pm on Fridays and Sundays. If you plan to use this service, please inform the Esalen office at least 24 hours prior to your arrival. The charge for one-way service is $20 (rate subject to change), payable to the Esalen office when you check in. Return reservations may be made at the same time. The bus leaves Esalen at approximately 6:30 pm. Bus service to Esalen is not available at any other time.

Seminarians as Staff (Volunteers): Seminarians in residence at Esalen are requested to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff, usually in the kitchen. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions do recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Contributions to Esalen Institute are tax-deductible.

The expenses of attending Esalen, including travel, are deductible for federal income tax purposes as an educational expense if incurred to maintain or improve professional or work skills. (See Income Tax Regulation 1.162-5.)

Esalen Institute reserves the right to cancel any program at any time.

Conferences at Esalen: It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office [(408) 667-2335] for further information.

Kathleen Thormod Carr

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Its activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

Esalen Institute
Big Sur
California 93920

DATED MATTER

The Esalen Catalog

January-June, 1987

Contents

Volume XXVI, Number 1

Audio Recordings 49
Biographical Information 37–41
Catalog Subscription Information 42
Conferences at Esalen 9
Esalen Seminars 10–30
Experiencing Esalen 8
Experiencing Esalen: The Body 8
Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa 8
Friends of Esalen 42
Future Programs 35
General Information 46
Gestalt Practice 8
Media Center 43
Medical Programs 36
Notes 4–7
Reservations Form 45
Scholarship Information 9
Special Programs 32–34
Ways of Being at Esalen 8–9
Wilderness Programs 36
Work Study Program and Application 31

Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920

Phone (408) 667-2335

Monday, Tuesday, Thursday
& Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm

Catalog Editor: Susan Stone
Graphic Design: Barbara Adamson
Art Direction: Barbara Adamson
and Joyce Rogers Lyke

Consulting Editor: Nancy Kaye Lunney
Administrative Liaison: Nancy Knapp
Administrative Assistant: Jane Beaver
Editorial Review: George Leonard
Cover Photograph: Joyce Rogers Lyke

Esalen Board of Trustees:

Mark Dayton
Steven Donovan
Jack Downing
Victoria Elliot
Stanislav Grof
Bokara Legendre
Nancy Kaye Lunney
Michael Murphy
Christine Stewart Price
Marius Robinson

©1987 Esalen Institute
All Rights Reserved.

Steve Beck

Chernobyl and Three Mile Island: Implications for Cooperation in an Interdependent World

September 11, 1986

In the first public discussion between Soviet and American scientists since the accident at Chernobyl, five American and five Soviet cities were joined together for a live satellite conference. Originated by the Esalen Institute Soviet-American Exchange Program, the spacebridge was cosponsored with the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Internews, the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences, and the U.S.S.R. State Committee on Television and Radio.

People across 17 time zones watched the event, from Anchorage, Alaska, to Gainesville, Florida, and from Leningrad on the Baltic Sea to Vladivostok on the Pacific Coast.

The spacebridge sought to bring to bear in Soviet-American relations what is a guiding principle of Esalen Institute: communication between people of diverse perspectives and a sense of shared responsibility for the future.

Esalen Notes

Lawrence Kohlberg's Research on Moral Development

From March 29 to April 3, Esalen will sponsor a conference on correspondencies between the stages of moral development that Lawrence Kohlberg has helped to illuminate, the stages of religious sensibility postulated by James Fowler, and the stages of life proposed by Erik Erikson. On the weekends of March 27-29 and June 5-7, Cheryl Armon and psychologists Charles and Ronnie Blakeney will present various aspects of Kohlberg's theories and research. Because they are commanding increasing respect and have proved to be highly effective in America and abroad, Kohlberg's methods of moral education will be explored at Esalen in public seminars and further invitational conferences. Moral judgment and behavior will be regular subjects of Esalen programming in the years to come.

****

Lawrence Kohlberg, director of the Center for Moral Development and Education at Harvard University, has studied the development of moral judgment for the past thirty years and has demonstrated the existence of a universal sequence in the stages of moral thought. His research has attempted to explain how people progress through those stages and how moral judgment operates in their lives.

In order to better understand Kohlberg's theoretical interests, it is helpful to know the story of his personal search for moral understanding. We excerpt here, with permission, from "My Personal Search for Universal Morality," by Kohlberg, published in the Moral Education Forum.

"As an adolescent, real life for me, outside of high school, was summer trips with friends working on farms, road gangs, and in an airplane factory. These experiences of working and getting to know our fellow workers reaffirmed an abstract faith in American democracy I had gotten from my parents and from my reading authors like Emerson, Whitman, and Sandburg. My moral questions about the justice of my high school did not lead me to have any doubts about the justice of World War II, which I was prepared to enter upon graduation from boarding school in 1945. I reached Europe in the fall of 1945 as a member of the United States merchant marine. Having a Jewish father, what struck me was not only the wreckage of buildings and lives due to the war, but getting to know the plight of the survivors of the Nazi holocaust or genocide of Jews, Gypsies, and other non-Aryans. This was not only destruction and horror but injustice such as the world had never known.

"I speedily finished my term of duty in the American merchant marine and volunteered as an unpaid engineer to bring ships full of Jewish refugees illegally through the British mandate. I had no moral conflicts about breaking British law, which was unjust to the Jewish survivors of the holocaust from displaced persons camps with no home country to go to. So I was happy to see 2,000 refugees board our tiny ship, the Paduoah, an old navy ice breaker bought by the Hagenah, the Jewish defense force which later became Israel's army and navy. Our ship was captured by the British navy as its predecessor, the Exodus, celebrated in Leon Uris' novel and movie, had been.

"The British navy and marines rammed the ships, used tear gas, steamed and clubbed their way to the steering room and the engine room, and stopped the ship. Several infants died in the scuffle though the British tried to use no unnecessary violence. I, my crewmates, and the refugees were taken to a British concentration camp in Cyprus. The Hagenah helped us to escape from Cyprus to Palestine and equipped us with false papers. I and some of my crewmates stayed on a kibbutz or collective settlement until it was safe to leave the country with false papers and to take another ship from America to Europe to Palestine, a ship that became an Israeli navy ship in the 1948 war of Israel's independence against the Arab states.

"My experiences with illegal immigration into Israel raised all sorts of moral questions, issues which I saw as issues of justice. Was using death and violence right or just for a political end? While the infants died and the adults went to a concentration camp, the aims of the Hagenah were political, to put international pressure on the British to leave Palestine. When is it permissible to be involved with violent means for supposedly just ends?

"These gropings about questions of justice were intermingled with an adolescent hedonism and relativism about society's demands on me, be it American or Israeli society. The Israeli kibbutz represented ideas of social justice I had to admire but was I really required to follow them, or could I live by the more familiar and easier demands of my American homeland? In the end, these questions became questions of ethical relativity. Was there a universal morality or was all moral choice relative, dependent on culture or on one's own personal and emotional choice? While words like 'identity questioning' were unknown to me at the time, sorting out what I wanted to be seemed to depend on answers to some of these questions, questions which seemed to require some sort of intellectual guidance."

Kohlberg pursued an undergraduate education in philosophy and postgraduate work in clinical psychology at the University of Chicago. However, at the time he started research on his dissertation in 1955, the study of moral reasoning and its development was not an established topic, nor was the cultural climate of the day particularly predisposed to Kohlberg's inquiries. To quote Roger Brown and Richard Herrnstein in Psychology (Little, Brown and Co., 1975) as excerpted from the article above:

"'When in the late 1950s and early 1960s Lawrence Kolhberg undertook to study moral reasoning and conduct, his choice of topic made him something of an "odd duck" within American psychology. The very words "moral" and "conduct" had a kind of "No, No, Nanette" period flavor to them. And social scientists were not nostalgic for that period when morality seemed to be mainly a bludgeon for controlling sex and possibly, swearing. No up-to-date social scientist, acquainted with psychoanalysis, behaviorism, and cultural anthropology, used such words at all. To appreciate what Kohlberg has done to deepen the intellectual interest of what is, after all, a very substantial aspect of human psychology, one must have some sense of the tide he swam against. . . . behavioral scientists were almost all persuaded that cultural relativism had been established by anthropologists' repeated discovery that a practice approved in one society was condemned in another. The most prevalent position was that norms, customs, values, and attitudes varied from culture to culture and were what they were, providing no real basis for preferring one way of life over another.'"

That climate was soon to be changed by the moral clashes of the civil rights movement and Vietnam during the 1960s. Americans could no longer ignore societal issues of moral reasoning as they apply to basic human rights. At that time Kohlberg was teaching at the University of Chicago, and the study of moral reasoning and its relation to conduct had become a popular subject among psychologists. Studies were done relating stage of moral judgment to behaviors from cheating to occupying administration buildings. While details of these studies caused considerable debate, the findings seemed to indicate a stage-by-stage increase in willingness to take moral responsibility for one's actions.

Much of Kohlberg's dissertation research was deeply rooted in the work of Jean Piaget, the Swiss child psychologist. Piaget postulated that the child was a philosopher and that the child's philosophy went

Table I
The Six Stages Of Moral Judgment

	Content of Stage
Level and Stage	What is Right	Reasons for Doing Right	Social Perspective of Stage
Level I: Preconventional Stage 1: Heteronomous morality	Sticking to rules backed by punishment; obedience for its own sake; avoiding physical damage to persons and property.	Avoidance of punishment, superior power of authorities.	Egocentric point of view. Doesn't consider the interests of others or recognize that they differ from the actor's; doesn't relate two points of view. Actions considered physically rather than in terms of psychological interests of others. Confusion of authority's perspective with one's own.
Stage 2: Individualism, instrumental purpose, and exchange	Following rules only when in one's immediate interest: acting to meet one's own interests and needs and letting others do the same. Right is also what is fair or what is an equal exchange, deal, agreement.	To serve one's own needs or interests in a world where one has to recognize that other people also have interests.	Concrete individualistic perspective. Aware that everybody has interests to pursue and that these can conflict; right is relative (in the concrete individualistic sense).
Level II: Conventional Stage 3: Mutual interpersonal expectations, relationships, and interpersonal conformity	Living up to what is expected by people close to you or what people generally expect of a good son, brother, friend, etc. "Being Good" is important and means having good motives, showing concern for others. It also means keeping mutual relationships such as trust, loyalty, respect, and gratitude.	The need to be a good person in your own eyes and those of others; caring for others; belief in the Golden Rule; desire to maintain rules and authority that support stereotypical good behavior.	Perspective of the individual in relationships with other individuals. Aware of shared feelings, agreements, and expectations which take primacy over individual interests. Relates points of view through the concrete Golden Rule, putting oneself in the other guy's shoes. Does not yet consider generalized system perspective.
Level II: Conventional (continued) Stage 4: Social system and conscience	Fulfilling duties to which you have agreed; laws to be upheld except in extreme cases where they conflict with other fixed social duties. Right is also contributing to the society, group, or institution.	To keep the institution going as a whole and avoid a breakdown in the system "if everyone did it"; imperative of conscience to meet one's defined obligations. (Easily confused with stage 3 belief in rules and authority.)	Differentiates societal point of view from interpersonal agreement or motives. Takes the point of view of the system that defines roles and rules; considers individual relations in terms of place in the system.

(continues)

Table I (concluded)

Level and Stage	Content of Stage: What is Right	Content of Stage: Reasons for Doing Right	Content of Stage: Social Perspective of Stage
Level III: Postconventional or Principled . Stage 5: Social contract or utility and individual rights	Being aware that people hold a variety of values and opinions and that most of their values and rules are relative to their group. Relative rules usually upheld in the interest of impartiality and because they are the social contract. Some nonrelative values and rights (e.g., life and liberty) must be upheld in any society and regardless of majority opinion.	A sense of obligation to law because of one's social contract to make and abide by laws for the welfare of all and for the protection of all people's rights. A feeling of contractual commitment, freely entered upon, to family, friendship, trust, and work obligations. Concern that laws and duties be based on rational calculation of overall utility, "the greatest good for the greatest number."	Prior-to-society perspective. Rational individual aware of values and rights prior to social attachments and contracts. Integrates perspectives by formal mechanisms of agreement, contract, objective impartiality, and due process. Considers moral and legal points of view; recognizes that they sometimes conflict and finds it difficult to integrate them.
Level III: Postconventional or Principled (continued) Stage 6: Universal ethical principles	Following self-chosen ethical principles. Particular laws or social agreements usually valid because they rest on such principles; when laws violate these principles, one acts in accordance with principle. Principles are universal principles of justice: equality of human rights and respect for the dignity of human beings as individuals.	The belief as a rational person in the validity of universal moral principles and a sense of personal commitment to them.	Perspective of a moral point of view from which social arrangements derive. Perspective is that of a rational individual recognizing the nature of morality or the fact that persons are ends in themselves and must be treated as such.

Source: Lawrence Kohlberg, "Moral Stages and Moralization: The Cognitive-Developmental Approach," in Moral Development and Behavior: Theory, Research and Social Issues, ed. Thomas Lickona (New York: Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1976), pp. 34–35.

through stages. To go through stages is to have qualitative transformations in world view or philosophy. When Kohlberg started his research, very little work on children's moral reasoning had been done. Kohlberg's unique contribution has been to apply to the study of moral judgment the concept of stage development, which moral education helps to stimulate. The six stages of moral judgment that Kohlberg postulates are outlined in Table 1.

In his search for a universal morality that could not be limited to Western cultures, Kohlberg subjected his theories to cross-cultural research. By now, over fifty cross-cultural studies on moral stage development have been done. To summarize briefly, the first four stages are found in almost all cultures, the fifth stage in all complex urban cultures and elaborated systems of education such as those in Taiwan, Japan, and India.

These findings challenge assumptions that morality is simply the result of unconscious processes or early social learning, which lead to a relativist position. Relativism is increasingly difficult to accept. Were Nazi war criminals correct when they claimed that they were only following orders of their superiors and were therefore acting in accordance with their society's morality? Is it morally acceptable for politicians to wiretap their political enemies' offices because that is the American way of succeeding in politics? A person who rejects these claims must explain on what basis he is criticizing other people's morality. One must assume the existence of some moral principles whose validity is not limited to any given society. Such principles are not learned in early childhood; they are the product of mature rational judgment.

How does one assess someone's stage of moral development? Kohlberg has devised a research instrument to tap the process of reasoning that the person uses to resolve moral dilemmas. He believes that one has only to pose to the person moral dilemmas that will arouse his or her interests, and to ask directly what the best solution to the dilemma would be, and why. To determine a subject's stage of moral development, the researcher must see how consistently the subject reasons across a range of moral issues.

Kohlberg emphasizes that an action by itself is neither moral nor immoral. The moral element enters when a person explains why he is acting as he is; what in the given circumstances justifies his acting as he does. Not all justifications are equally valid. Quite the opposite. Some justifications, or moral judgments, are more adequate than others. Hence some stages of moral judgment are "better" than others.

To cite an example postulated by Kohlberg, a person who says he lied (or would lie) to save the life of an innocent person is offering an intuitively more "adequate" justification for his actions than a person who says he lied (or would lie) to help a friend get in free to the movies. For while it is clear to most of us that saving an innocent life should take precedence over telling the truth, it is not clear that helping a friend save the price of a movie ticket should take precedence over telling the truth.

Moral judgments do not abide by rigid rules. A situation that evokes a values conflict between "telling the truth" and "saving a life" presumes a cognitive operation by which a person decides which of his values should take precedence over other values. By saying that some moral judgments are more "adequate," Kohlberg is arguing that (1) some values ought to take precedence over others, and (2) some ways of weighing rights or claims in a moral conflict situation are better than others.

Kohlberg has recognized the potential importance of moral development research for educational and clinical practice. Among his thesis subjects was a group of delinquent boys. In a post-doctoral fellowship at Boston Children's Hospital, he attempted to integrate observations of the moral development of children and adolescents with their clinical diagnosis, treatment, and therapy. Kohlberg has also become immersed in projects with administrators, teachers, and students in several inner-city New York schools and one prison. Central to their collaborations has been a faith in democracy as a vehicle to creating a just and caring community.

New Perspectives on the Human Body

From June 21 to 26, Esalen will sponsor an invitational conference to explore new perspectives on the human body. On the weekend of June 26–28, the participants in that conference will present visions of their future work in a public seminar in Big Sur. These two programs mark the beginning of a long-term project at Esalen coordinated by somatic educator Don Johnson that will assemble educators, physiologists, physical anthropologists, dancers, sociologists, and others who are bringing new insights to our understanding of the body. It will build on the work of pioneers such as Charlotte Selver, Moshe Feldenkrais, Ida Rolf, and others who have taught at Esalen, but will broaden our past inquiry to embrace perspectives from other fields and new scientific findings regarding physical functioning. Two central themes of these explorations will be: that the body is largely shaped by social forces, and that it has immense capacities for further development.

****

The Biological, Psychological, and Cultural Body: Methods of Transformation

It has been common to think of the human body as a thing, a physical substance whose basic structures are given, subject to the simplest variations in weight and muscle shape and to deterioration due to illnesses, accidents, and age. In the past, only a few esoteric teachers considered the radical possibilities for transforming the body. During the past century, however, a handful of scientists, therapists, educators, and artists have been questioning the popular paradigm, analyzing the body as a protean reality, subject to much greater variability than had been imagined.

Marcel Mauss, for example, argued that the body is a cultural variable whose form depends on the shaping methods peculiar to the culture; Rudolf zur Lippe calls the body "the first art work of a culture"; Norman O. Brown writes of the body as a historical variable, the subject of revolutions. In the field of body-oriented therapies, pioneers like Emilie Conrad-Da'oud have based their methods on the radical plasticity of the body and the changes in thought patterns that stem from becoming aware of that plasticity. Choreographers like the creators of Pilobolus and Momix carry on the tradition begun by Mary Wigman and Isadora Duncan, an aesthetic based on an image of the body as a self-propelling natural organism rather than putty to be molded into external forms. Biological scientists, studying dysfunctions like stress, cancer, heart disease, and AIDS, have increasingly focused on connections among various systems of the body and the connections between the "whole body" and larger psychological and social dimensions of life.

This conference is based on a growing realization that an adequate understanding of the body requires information from many arenas, a wide panorama of theories, clinical practices, research discoveries, aesthetics, and educational strategies which describe the sensitivity and vulnerability of human beings and which move toward the transformation of their pain. It is not about holistic health and healing, but about that broad spectrum of concerns about the body of which healing, education, art, and science are subsets. The participants include biological and behavioral scientists, creators of somatic therapies, artists, psychotherapists, teachers of meditation, and thinkers who have analyzed the role of the body within culture.

The weekend seminar will be a unique opportunity to witness the coming together of leaders from widely different fields related to the human body, talking together about their work. For the list of presenters, please see Weekend Seminar, June 26-28.

Esalen Seminars on Philosophy

Beginning in January 1987, Esalen will sponsor a multi-year program directed by philosopher Jay Ogilvy. This ongoing series of seminars, conferences, and consultations will assemble thinkers from America and abroad to explore the reasons why philosophy has lost its vitality and influence during the twentieth century, and to discuss how they might address the great questions of life in ways that command broad interest and respect. The project has been generously funded by Laurance Rockefeller for 1987, but will need funds to match further grants from him during 1988 and 1989.

Its participants will include philosophers Huston Smith, Robert Solomon, Jacob Needleman, Richard Bernstein, Ken Wilber, Brian Swimme, Don Johnson, and Donald Rothberg; professor of religious studies James Cutsinger; sociologist Robert Bellah; and participant-observers Jean Lanier, Roger Walsh, Michael Murphy, and Laurance Rockefeller. In the next Esalen catalog, its themes and structure will be described in more detail.

Ways of Being at Esalen

There are various ways to experience Esalen, ranging from a visit to the hot springs on a week night to a long-term stay as a student or resident. The weekend and five-day workshops described throughout the catalog are the standard route for coming to Esalen and learning the various methods of personal growth and self-exploration that are available here. The Experiencing Esalen workshops are a kind of smorgasbord introduction to some of these many practices (such as gestalt, massage, sensory awareness, etc.); from such a sampling, the participant can then choose those approaches which feel most appropriate and pursue them in subsequent seminars. For those who wish an extended stay of a month or more, there is the Ongoing Residence Program. Other long-term programs include the "month-longs," coordinated by leaders such as the Grofs and Schiffmans, which frequently involve didactic seminars as well as experiential workshops. These can be particularly useful for professionals and graduate students.

A very popular way of being at Esalen, and one that allows a much greater involvement with the place and its community at a lower expense, is the Work Study Program, which entails working with the Esalen staff as well as participating in an ongoing workshop designed specifically for that program. See page 31 for more information and an application form.

In addition, there are other events which enrich life at Esalen. There are frequent forums in which various writers and thinkers, both visiting and resident, share their ideas with the community. On Wednesday nights, there may be lectures, films, dance performances, choirs, or other forms of entertainment. Body work of various kinds, including massage, deep tissue, polarity, Feldenkrais®, and Rolfing® is available by appointment with individual practitioners. Private sessions are also available for various types of process work, including gestalt, neo-Reichian emotional release, vision improvement, singing gestalt, etc. Finally, there is the Community Workshop Program, which goes on daily, and provides many opportunities for engaging in personal self-exploration or learning new approaches to human growth.

®The Feldenkrais Guild.

Rolfing® is a service mark of the Rolf Institute.

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen. Their emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. These may include: sensory awareness, gestalt practice, group process, guided fantasy, meditation, massage. There is also time to explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Bantam).

Schedule:

January 2–4	$250
January 16–18	$250
January 18–23	$490
February 6–8	$250
February 15–20	$490
February 27–March 1	$250
March 20–22	$250
March 22–27	$490
April 12–17	$490
April 17–19	$250
May 1–3	$250
May 10–15	$490
May 22–24	$250
June 5–7	$250
June 14–19	$490

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Lia Thompson
& Deborah Anne Medow

These workshops offer opportunities to experience body awareness and movement in Esalen's supportive environment. Various types of dance, massage, music, meditation, yoga, and theater are offered. Five-day groups may also have time to explore the magnificent coast and trails near Esalen.

Schedule:

January 23–25	$250
February 8–13	$490
February 20–22	$250
March 15–20	$490
May 3–8	$490
May 15–17	$250
June 21–26	$490

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jane Miletich

Spend a few days at Esalen, resting, relaxing, getting in shape, or just feeling good. Enjoy healthy food prepared especially for you and, if you like, learn how to prepare it yourself. Mineral and herbal baths, nature hikes, aerobics, yoga, t'ai chi, massage, and dance will be offered. All are optional. Choose your own pace.

Schedule:

January 2–4	$250
April 3–5	$250
June 7–12	$490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff
Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
And when used—is inexhaustible.
—Lao Tzu

Gestalt is as old as the world.
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls. The work integrates ways of personal clearing and development that are both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. This form is similar to some Reichian work as well, in that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. It is explicitly understood that participants are not patients but persons actively consenting to work (or play) in awareness. The leader functions to reflect, clarify, and respect whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, and growth, rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Although open seat work is the primary form of this practice, guided fantasy, breath meditations, and movement sessions may be included.

Each gestalt practice group will have a member of the Esalen gestalt staff as its primary leader. The name of this leader will be listed in the office three weeks in advance of the workshop. Please call if you want this information. Other leaders may be involved in some sessions.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim and In and Out the Garbage Pail; John Heider, The Tao of Leadership (Humanics, Ltd.).

Schedule:

January 2–4	$250
January 11–16	$490
February 8–13	$490
March 8–13	$490
May 17–22	$490
June 7–12	$490
June 12–14	$250

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in total immersion in the Esalen environment. It is a work-oriented program, both emotionally and physically. Only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins.

The program is divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a focused section which emphasizes one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage, body work, etc.

Information regarding special interest sections may be obtained by writing Bette Dingman, c/o Esalen.

For a full description of the Work Study Program, please turn to page 31.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing as we have many applications. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. Scholarship recipients may be asked to bring a sleeping bag to use during peak attendance periods. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

Conferences at Esalen

It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office, (408) 667-2335, for further information.

Accreditation

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Esalen Seminars

Kathleen Thormod Carr

Weekend of January 2–4

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Shamanic Journey, Power, and Healing: An Experiential Exploration

Michael Harner

Shamanism is an ancient human strategy for personal learning and for acting on that learning, especially for problem-solving, well-being, and healing. In this training workshop, the participants will be introduced to some of the basic methods the shaman (a type of medicine man or woman) uses to enter nonordinary reality in order to obtain knowledge, to answer personal questions, and to maximize his or her power to maintain personal health and to achieve life goals.

Particular emphasis will be on the shamanic journey, one of the visionary methods used by humankind to enter nonordinary reality and explore the hidden universe otherwise known mainly through myth and dream. Participants will be initiated into shamanic journeying, aided by traditional drumming and movement methods for experiencing the shamanic state of consciousness and for awakening dormant personal capabilities and connections with nature. Practices will include comparison of discoveries made on shamanic journeys by participants and work on personal problem-solving. Participants will be shown how the shamanic journey can be utilized to restore spiritual power and health, and how shamanism can be practically applied in contemporary daily life.

Participants are asked to bring rattles and drums if they have them, as well as a bandana, pen, and notebook, and to wear comfortable clothing. $250

Week of January 4–9

Inside/Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

Paul Horn and Chungliang Al Huang will celebrate and share with us their joyous collaboration in nature, music, dance, t'ai chi, jazz, improvisation, meditation, and world travel experiences.

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E. P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon).

Recommended listening: Paul Horn, Inside, Heart to Heart, The Magic of Findhorn, and Jupiter 8. $520

Expanding Boundaries

Anne Nechama Simkin

Everyone lives in a world of boundaries, internal and external. Valid boundaries provide orientation in the world and a sense of identity, direction, and power. There are times, though, when they are no longer valid, when they become rigid, outdated, and limiting. The task is to evaluate them and redefine the range and style of behavior which will restore freedom, zest, and joy.

This workshop is for individuals who feel they have reached an impasse in their lives and are facing the choice of expanding their personal boundaries. Participants may become aware of where they are in their lives and how they got there. They may begin to recognize how they cling to old habits and behaviors rather than venturing in new directions. From there they can explore ways to mobilize their capacity to choose and act. Using a gestalt format, the content of the workshop will evolve from the needs, issues, and concerns shared by the participants. $490

Craniosacral System: Basic Workshop

Jim Asher & Jane Harrington

This workshop will offer an opportunity to learn and practice gentle yet powerful skills to bring the craniosacral system into balance. The class will combine lectures and slides on functional anatomy of the membrane system and cerebrospinal fluid movement. There will be hands-on demonstrations of a variety of methods for tapping into bone and membrane motion, rhythm, amplitude quality, restriction, and interference. Demonstrations will be followed by supervised practice. Time will also be spent evoking and developing palpatory sensitivity and fine-tuning the quality of touch.

This workshop is for people with a strong interest in developing hands-on skills and for those already practicing body work or counseling. Much of the focus will be on the head, jaw, neck, pelvis, and diaphragm systems. Cranial work can be effective in shifting emotional holding patterns and draining accumulated stresses in the nervous system.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $490

Weekend of January 9–11

Inside/Living Tao: Fluting and T'ai Chi Dancing with Whales, Butterflies

Paul Horn & Chungliang Al Huang

For workshop description see January 4-9. $280

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

This workshop will focus on reawakening and developing positive, mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of loving and personal integrity. Participants will re-examine their beliefs and habits through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, guided imagery, and gestalt awareness methods.

$250 per participant

Retrospective and Response: Sources and Direction for Humanistic Psychology's Engagement with World Crises

Tom Greening, Ian Mitroff & Will McWhinney

This seminar will deal with extensions and transformations of humanistic psychology that follow from Abraham Maslow's concern with societal issues—concerns expressed in his Further Reaches of Human Nature—which have been built upon by Rogers, May, and others not active in the world scene. Projections of humanistic thinking from the heyday of 1970 to the confrontation of the world-wide dilemmas of the coming years will be discussed.

The presenters will focus on three themes: response to crises which, like earthquakes, release deep-seated tensions; the specific crises of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. face-off and humanistic programs working to reduce that tension; strategies for effectively enacting humanistic agendas.

The format of the seminar will encourage participants to explore related issues through the spirit and method of humanistic psychologies. $250

Week of January 11–16

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (T'ai Chi Intensive)

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

This workshop offers New Year renewal with the fundamentals of t'ai chi practice. Chungliang Al Huang will share the crystallization of his most essential learnings. He will lead participants in sunrise movement meditation, five-elements form, I Ching eight-trigrams metaphors in action, life-force revitalization exercises with Taoist philosophical and aesthetic dialogues and discourses. Join the music, dancing, and celebration!

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E. P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); John Blofeld, Translator, I Ching; Lama Anagarika Govinda, The Book of Transformations. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

To make effective, creative choices requires courage, imagination, and the willingness to know one's heart and be true to the dreams that live inside it. Choosing this deeper wisdom can often involve the risk of breaking set—the choice to move against the powerful grain of old fears, habits, and the constant pressures of other people's expectations. To foster this spirit means contacting the elemental-instinctual parts of one's nature, befriending rather than suppressing or denying the sexuality and the power out of which initiative and enthusiasm spring.

In this week participants will focus on how to develop those qualities that contribute to a more adventurous, resourceful, and buoyant way of living. In an atmosphere based in warmth and humor they will explore their capacity for mutual tenderness, respect, and honesty. Traditional psychological practices such as gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis will be used for intensive individual work, as well as non-traditional innovative approaches in body work, kinesthetic retraining, music, and guided imagery. $490

Weekend of January 16–18

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

The process of self-exploration in this workshop will be based theoretically and practically on observations from modern consciousness research. The method of "holonomic integration," developed by the workshop leaders, combines evocative music, controlled breathing, facilitative bodywork, and mandala drawing. It uses a model of the psyche that includes the biographical-recollective level, the dynamics of the death-rebirth process, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be in the roles of experiencers as well as facilitators or "sitters." Special emphasis will be placed on the relevance of this work for management of transpersonal crisis. $250

Week of January 18–23

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Five Days with Janet Zuckerman

This workshop continues Esalen's tradition of interpersonal and intrapersonal work on emotional process. It is based on these premises: that unfinished business is projected into current relationships, interfering with one's ability to be in the present, and that by emotional release one may cleanse the doors of perception. $490

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

This workshop is open to anyone interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their psi abilities. The leaders will use exercises designed to aid participants in recognizing their perceptive styles and trusting the intuitive input they normally receive. Anne Armstrong will use her tracking abilities, acquired from over twenty years in this field, to assist participants in arriving at useful, accurate data.

One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive/psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. Participants can refine their psychic skills by practicing on individual cases within the group. $490

Beyond Anatomy: Feldenkrais® for Body Workers

Patrick Douce

This introductory program will acquaint beginning and experienced body workers with some of the approaches taught by Moshe Feldenkrais. Although the Feldenkrais Method isn't body work, much of the information presented in this program can be useful for increasing the effectiveness and understanding of those who practice body work.

Based on twentieth century scientific understanding and judo, the Feldenkrais system dispels many current misconceptions regarding the human form. In contrast to traditional static anatomical models, Feldenkrais emphasizes the interconnections used by the body to move. Gentle movements can allow participants to experience a heightened sensitivity and an increased range of motion in their own and others' bodies.

Chronic difficulties such as knee problems and pain in the back, hip, and neck—the spectrum of neuro-skeletal-muscular disorders—will be approached as problems of learning in movement. Individuals with these difficulties can learn to correct their chronic pains through increased mobility.

This program may be of value to anyone interested in movement or body work—dancers, massage practitioners, Rolfers, Trager℠ students, physical therapists, doctors, nurses, and those interested in their own bodies. Although this course is not intended to train anyone to teach the Feldenkrais Method, it serves as an adequate introduction to both the professional and non-professional.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $490

Weekend of January 23–25

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman

For many people, feelings are something mysterious, something to keep to oneself, or something to think about. This workshop is about all the steps involved in learning to experience, respect, and honor one's feeling process in a way that can increase vitality and personal effectiveness. Participants may learn to separate feelings from thoughts, learn from their own body rhythms, learn to contact their own wisdom, and participate in the choice of expression or depression. $250

Develop Your Mind-Over-Matter Ability: Experiential and Theoretical Explorations in the World of Psychokinesis

Julian Isaacs & Debbie Austin

The power of the mind to directly affect matter is one of the most pervasive and powerful, but least recognized, dynamics in our world.

This workshop will combine lecture, discussion, and experiential exploration of psychokinetic ability. Several approaches to optimization of performance will be examined, including those derived from sports psychology, self-hypnosis, martial arts, meditation, and visualization. In addition, the use of psychological depth processes for empowerment of the individual to reclaim mind-over-matter ability will be explored. Specialized, state-of-the-art electronic instrumentation for detecting and measuring psychokinesis will be available for supervised use. $250

Introduction to Vipassana Meditation

Jamie Baraz

Vipassana (insight) meditation practice is a systematic examination of the mind/body process through calm and focused awareness. Learning to observe experience from a place of stillness enables one to relate to life without fear or clinging. One begins to accept pleasure and pain, fear and joy, with increasing equanimity and balance. Life is seen as a constantly changing process. Insight is the deepening experience of the process itself, free of interpretation, leading to wisdom and compassion.

The seminar is designed for those who have had no previous meditation experience, as well as for those who wish to deepen their practice. Meditation instruction, the philosophy behind the practice, group discussions, and actual practice periods will be offered. Special emphasis will be placed on how to integrate vipassana practice in daily life after the workshop is over.

Recommended reading: Joseph Goldstein, The Experience of Insight (Shambhala). $250

Achieving Sustained High Performance

Jerry Fletcher & Kathleen Brown Fletcher

Everyone has had the experience of suddenly doing something much better than expected, yet until recently little has been understood about these high performance experiences. People assumed such times were lucky accidents. More significantly, even if they could perform at a high level for short times, they have assumed there was no way to sustain such performance without stress, fatigue, and eventual burnout.

After more than six years of careful research and testing, it is clear that these times of exceptional performance are not capricious. Each individual has a unique set of conditions under which he or she performs surprisingly well. Futhermore, once people learn their personal high performance patterns, they can deliberately create the conditions they need to sustain their own high performance behavior. They do not need to subject themselves to the strain of short peak periods of high output, followed by long recovery cycles.

This seminar presents a carefully developed process for individuals to learn what their high performance patterns are, and how to adjust the way they do things to fit the conditions under which they perform exceptionally well. This seminar is a program developed through years of work with experienced successful managers, executives, and professionals about how to go beyond competent performance in a way that can be sustained. $250

Week of January 25–30

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

This workshop will combine personal work with discussion of principles and concepts which nourish the process of change. Individual work will point toward clarifying one's direction and obstacles in the way. Participants will explore the implications of their conscious and unconscious choices and how those choices retard or encourage the natural process of change and integration.

The workshop will include psychosynthesis, transpersonal and cathartic methods which emphasize learning, as well as skills to release and transform blocked energies. $490

Transpersonal Psychology: Perspectives on Growth and Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will explore theoretically and experientially the rapidly developing field of transpersonal psychology. The discussion will focus on the implications of modern consciousness research for understanding the dimensions of the psyche, various forms of emotional and psychosomatic disorders, new mechanisms of healing and personality transformation, and strategies for growth and self-exploration.

The emphasis in experiential work will be on the method of "holonomic integration" developed by the workshop leaders, which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, focused body work, and mandala drawing. It mediates access to unfinished biographical material, sequences of psychological death and (re)birth, and the entire spectrum of transpersonal experiences. Special attention will be paid to the problems of "spiritual emergencies" and constructive approaches to transpersonal crises. $490

Reichian Gestalt: A Workshop for Contact and Release

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

This workshop focuses on how we may consciously unfold ourselves—physically, emotionally, sexually, mentally, and spiritually. Past anger, fear, sadness, and grief, often reflected in the body as tension, pain, lack of spontaneity, and diminished vitality, can keep one from being fully present and alive. By contacting tension and emotion which have been frozen in the body, there is an opportunity to open to the creative flow of life energy within. Allowing this life energy meaningful expression, through deepened communication with self and others, is the essence of this work.

Some of the areas that may be explored this week include: using breath and sound to energize and soften the body's tension and emotional holding, contacting and allowing unexpressed sadness and pain (which can increase the capacity for heartfulness, pleasure, and joy), expressing and releasing anger constructively (which can deepen compassion and love while also releasing blocked sexual energy), learning about the nature of fear, and moving toward greater trust of self and others. Paying special attention to the mental processes that shape the emotional and physical body, participants will be shown ways to trust their bodies' responsiveness and inner direction.

This workshop will utilize Reichian body and breath work, emotional release, gestalt practice, the Bates system of eye relaxation, massage, dance, meditation, and various other approaches.

Recommended reading: White Eagle, The Path of the Soul (White Eagle Publishing Trust). $490

Weekend of January 30–February 1

Keeping A Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

This weekend will focus on a major theme in keeping a good relationship alive. That is: being close and vulnerable yet also free to grow as a separate person.

Participants will spend part of the time with their partners, separate from other couples, in verbal and written experience that can add to their relationship in closeness, conflict resolution, and individuality.

Limited to 10 couples. $250 per participant

For Men Only

Richard Gunther

If you are male, between the ages of 30 and 60, and asking such questions as "What am I doing with my life?" or "What else is there for me?"—welcome to mid-life, a time of examination, possibly of crises, a time offering the opportunity for major changes in how you view yourself and the world in which you function.

The effect of living in a demanding, controlling society is not always clear. In the words of Marcel Proust, "The real voyage of discovery consists not in seeing new landscapes, but in having new eyes." With new eyes it is possible to outgrow our social conditioning and connect with a deeper self.

In this workshop, participants will focus on: the issues of work and career, their changing importance at mid-life; relationships, examining the shift in needs, tasks, and roles; the body and sex, which changes are real, which imagined; and spirituality, exploring the need for a transcendent vision.

Limited to 12 participants. $250

The Intelligent Body, The Sensuous Body

Thomas Hanna

Premise: Clarity of self-awareness and clarity of body control grow together or decline together. Participants will explore how greater sensitivity to the inner self enhances the body's ability to act and to relax, and how this ability in turn enhances kinesthetic awareness.

The program will introduce gentle movements and use of imagery as well as instruction in the principles of many different kinds of body work and exercise systems—particularly that of Moshe Feldenkrais.

There will also be demonstrations of how new sensory information can lead to dramatic changes in posture. Those who wish advanced knowledge in systems of body work may find the weekend profitable, as may those who have habitual aches or have difficulty relaxing.

Recommended reading: Thomas Hanna, The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt: A Primer in Somatic Thinking. $250

The Craft of Dream Work

Stephen Aizenstat

Dreams, as looking glass parables, provide a connection to the voices and images of the psyche. It is the leader's belief that dreams carry three voices: the collective unconscious, the world unconscious, and the personal unconscious. Dream images reflect aspects of any one of these dimensions and on occasion, aspects of all three.

This seminar draws upon methods of dream interpretation from the dream healing centers in ancient Greece, Jungian psychology, gestalt, and systems theory, offering an approach to dream work which listens to the individual and collective psyche as well as the psyche in the world.

Working with their own dreams, participants will be shown methods of dream work associated with these three levels of the psyche. Common dream themes and symbols, nightmares, lucid dreaming, archetypal imagery, and the recurring dream will be discussed. Participants can realize the potential healing power of an interrelated body-mind-world approach, and remember why in ancient times dreams were honored as the medicine of the soul. $250

Week of February 1–6

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani)

Beliefs, fears, and emotions from the past can continue into present relationships and interfere with spontaneous feelings of trust, love, and joy. The goal of this workshop is to experience and let go of these defenses and to help create new ways to relate—in the moment—to ourselves, to our work, and to those we love.

The workshop includes periods of intense body work for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor and tension. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released, and positive feelings can be experienced more fully. By also using dream work, massage, dance, and group process, a new capacity for loving can emerge. $490

Dealing with Stress: Recipes for Health and Longevity

Joe D. Goldstrich & Neil Karp

This course will present current information and research about how to maximize health and prolong life. Participants will spend five days learning how to improve their diet, exercise better, and develop their abilities to relax, energize themselves, and gain social support.

The seminar will include lectures, discussions, short hikes into the hills with a nature guide, meditative exercises derived from a number of oriental practices, and biofeedback. Participants will be provided with a life stress profile to assist in self-evaluation. There will be group discussion of stress management and traditional and alternative medical approaches such as homeopathy, acupuncture, body work, and gestalt. $490

Open Seat

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

An "open seat" is just that: a place of total acceptance. Whatever lives in you—joy and sorrow, need and power, fear and desire—is encouraged, through gestalt process, to express itself so that your being can find its own true balance and discover its resources.

This work may be especially beneficial to people who are feeling "stuck," unable to move out of old patterns, to direct their energy into new life forms. When "stuck," one is usually trapped in unresolved issues from the past or limiting self-concepts that block the way into the future. Gestalt process, enhanced by elements of ritual and drama, allows people to work with subconscious material such as dreams and fantasies in order to bring new energy and awareness to their ways of living and dealing with day-to-day problems. Discovery of the true self gives people the courage and the capacity for authentic expression in their personal lives, in their communities, and in the cultural or political movements to which they feel committed. $490

Presence: Reclaiming Personal Power

Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Elisa Lodge Schiffman writes: "Presence is a power that arises from a deep sense of self-worth and trust. It reflects a broadened vision and whole-hearted acceptance of the varied facets of being. It is a state of dynamic balance where there is no unnecessary strain of self-defeating awkwardness. One is at home in oneself and at ease with the world.

"During this week, participants can gain a deepened appreciation of the elements in themselves that contribute to this timeless state of fluidity and ease. They will have an opportunity to experiment and explore how their bodies' shapes and forms, emotional histories, and sef-images are intimately intertwined. This growing awareness is the basic grounding from which the creative experience of presence can be known. Movement patterns, the ways we walk and breathe, also reveal how we inhibit or allow our personal power. As we become more comfortable with ourselves, we transform not only the way we might carry our head or make contact with another, but our whole way of being in the world."

This work is based on an approach woven from gestalt, psychosynthesis, Rolf-movement, and performance art. Video feedback will be used. $490

Weekend of February 6–8

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Body, Heart, and Spirit

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

This workshop is divided into three segments: 1) tensions and energy patterns in the body; 2) their relationship to the emotions; 3) their relationship to the mind and thought. Connecting thought, feeling, and body experience in one gestalt can open the being to the inpouring of the spirit, to the state of grace. This is the goal of shamanic dances and of many tribal rites. The process includes body work and open seat gestalt work, as well as rituals, dancing, chanting, and celebration. $250

The Physics of Hyperspace

Saul-Paul Sirag

The idea that ordinary physical reality is embedded in a higher dimensional system is a traditional theme of science fiction, speculative philosophy, and mystical religion. This idea is now being entertained by physicists in search of the "holy grail" of contemporary physics—grand unification of the physical forces: electromagnetism, the weak and strong nuclear forces, and gravity.

The key concept of unified field theory is symmetry, which is an aspect of a space that remains invariant in spite of the transformation of the space. Therefore, this seminar will use symmetry and broken symmetry as tools to explore hyperspace. In particular, a version of grand unified theory which implies that spacetime is embedded in a 96-dimensional hyperspace will be investigated. The symmetrical properties of this system, acting on itself, constitute a coherent reality which presumably encompasses both physical and mental events. $250

Approaches to Christian Mysticism

Brother David Steindl-Rast

Awareness of Eastern mysticism makes many people ask: What of the mystical tradition in the West? Is it still alive? Can one find meaning in it today? Brother David Steindl-Rast has spent more than 30 years in both Eastern and Western monasteries exploring the roots of mysticism in the human heart. He will lead participants in searching for the roots in their own life experience. He shall ask what the pursuit of the path of the heart demands from each one personally, and how it can be practiced in one's daily life.

Like Thomas Merton, his late fellow monk and friend, Brother David Steindl-Rast is a bridge-builder between East and West. The focus of this weekend, however, will be on the Christian tradition and the need to wrestle with it. Input and question periods will alternate with silent time for guided experience.

Recommended reading: Rainer Maria Rilke, Letters to a Young Poet (Norton); Thomas Merton, Conjectures of a Guilty Bystander (Doubleday); Thomas Matus, Yoga and the Jesus Prayer Tradition (Paulist Press); David Steindl-Rast, A Listening Heart (Crossroads), Gratefulness, The Heart of Prayer (Paulist Press). $250

Week of February 8–13

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Transitions

Elliot Aronson & Gabiele Thomson

Transitions are passages from one state to another. Disorganization is a natural part of the process of moving on and is what allows reorganization to occur. People are almost constantly in a state of transition—whether it be getting married, beginning a new career, becoming a parent, letting go of a relationship, or moving on to the next stage in the life cycle. These changes can be exciting and, at the same time, can evoke a loss of internal balance. The result can be lack of self-esteem, loss of identity, confusion, and doubts about one's own perceptions. New thoughts and ideas are fragile at these times of change and need protection and nurturance.

The goal of this workshop is to gain a perspective on the process of making transitions. Through didactic presentations and group discussions, individuals will have an opportunity to understand the emotional stresses involved in their personal transitions. $490

Personal Mythology: Our Epic Journey

Stanley Krippner & David Feinstein

Personal myths are the deep forces of the psyche that shape who we are, what we think, and what we do. Operating largely outside of conscious awareness, our personal myths nonetheless pave our journey through life, our place in society, and our relationship to the broader or spiritual context of existence.

Participants will be shown how to reach deeply into realms of unconscious mythological wisdom and to speak to the need to find the visions that nourish and inspire. Drawing upon a range of systems, including Jungian psychology, gestalt, psychosynthesis, dream interpretation, and cognitive psychology, participants will be led through a sequence of experiences that can rework a problematic area of personal mythology. These experiences can be used again later to identify and work with other personal myths that may be creating problems in their lives. Participants are asked to bring a notebook or personal journal and are encouraged to record their dreams prior to the workshop.

Recommended reading: Stanley Krippner, Human Possibilities (Anchor). $490

Weekend of February 13–15

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For workshop description see January 16-18. $250

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

The purpose of this workshop is the creation of a more positive and open-ended self-concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and group process methods, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive functioning. $250

Power, Promise, and Placebo

Sharon & Jerry Solfvin

This workshop will integrate the experiential and experimental aspects of spiritual, psychic, mental, and physical living. Many individuals either ignore or don't know what to do with trans-reality experiences (reality, as defined in Western culture). Yet experiences such as miraculous healings, visitations with the future or unknown past, knowledge of someone else's thoughts, mental influence on physical events, channeling, or extraordinary human functioning are reported, developed, and sought by human beings throughout the world.

Within a cultural context that emphasizes healing, half of this workshop will be spent discussing the scientific studies and theories relevant to these experiences, and the other half will be spent anecdotally and experientially. A primary focus will be to study technologies for positive placebo and expectancy. These technologies are designed to have practical applications in science, the arts, healing, sports, and business. $250

A Course in Miracles: A View of Life Through the Light

Julian Silverman

Julian Silverman writes: "During the past five years, I have been blessed with increasing success in my work as a psychological counselor and supervisor of counselors and as a management and organization development consultant to business, educational, and health-care institutions. I attribute this increased success to the use of a 'non-method' method of spiritual practice derived from A Course in Miracles, combined with the technology of modern behavioral sciences and applied to the fundamental problems of living in a technological age.

"This workshop will be concerned with articulating a framework which integrates guidelines for competence in managing worldly matters with guidelines for spiritual redirection, reconnection, and renewal.

"Individuals who have had experience studying A Course in Miracles (ACIM) will be accepted to this seminar before others. On your application, please state your study experience (e.g., have completed books, I, II, III; or have read _____ number of pages; and/or have participated in ACIM study groups.)" $250

Steve Beck

Week of February 15–20

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

The Buddha, The Goddess, and N.L.P.

Eli Jaxon-Bear

The Buddha is a model for compassionate emptiness, and the Goddess, as Earth Mother and Protector, is a model for passionate involvement in form. Neurolinguistic Programming, (N.L.P.), is a structure for understanding, modeling, and changing human behavior and consciousness.

Participants will use sitting, standing, and moving meditation from both the Zen and Tibetan Buddhist traditions as well as Buddhist psychology for modeling the perfected states: the Buddha and the Goddess already within us. This will include mantra and visualization as well as zazen and deep conscious stretching.

N.L.P. is an open-ended system for modeling human reality and for clearing the obscurations to our perfection. It can be used for leaving behind old baggage and focusing or polishing the filters of perception.

N.L.P. has been successfully used to model great healers, or counselors such as Milton Erickson, and leaders in sports and business. Set in the context of Buddhist psychology and practice, N.L.P. offers the choice to utilize gracefully the core issues of life as ally and teacher.

Recommended Reading: Chogyam Trungpa, Shambhala (Shambhala); W. Evans-Wentz, Tibetan Book of the Great Liberation; Bandler and Grinder, Frogs Into Princes (Real People Press); M. Zimmer Bradley, Mists of Avalon (Knopf); Starhawk, Dreaming the Dark (Beacon Press). $490

On Being a Man

David Schiffman & Danner Christensen

Many men today have labored diligently to become softer, more receptive, and nurturing. They have sought to honor and embrace the emergence of the "feminine" principle in their own natures. For many, however, the right to celebrate and honor the so-called "masculine" aspect has become a thorny and difficult dilemma. Many qualities of maleness or masculinity have come to connote the most destructive and troublesome elements in human existence: war, environmental desecration, sexual oppression, and patriarchal abuse.

A man's sense of his own uniqueness and value is critical. During this week participants will examine those elements in their own natures which comprise the deeper dimensions of manhood, and how they might enhance the freedom to be men with simplicity, clarity, tenderness, strength, and dignity.

The workshop will explore the following questions:

> What does a man need to know and accept about his own nature to feel himself fully as a man?
>
> Can men come together to create an atmosphere of trust and good will, where the masculine aspects that they have in common can be honored and appreciated in the pleasure of each other's company?
>
> Are there ways that men can mark and celebrate the cycles that season them, their victories, and defeats? How might they reveal themselves emotionally without unnecessary shame or remorse?
>
> Can the "wild man" within be befriended and reliability and respectability still survive? Can fierceness and aggression be used constructively in realizing spiritual aspirations, intimate relationships, family and community concerns?

A variety of experiential processes will illuminate these and similar issues. Traditional initiation rituals and purification ceremonies using drumming, chanting, and a sweat lodge will be incorporated in this journey as well. $490

Weekend of February 20–22

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Experience of Story

James Fadiman

Reality is the canvas upon which we write the fiction of our lives. We are epics, mysteries, parodies, gothics, romances, and fairy tales. We are unfinished, unedited, endlessly revised versions of ourselves. Come prepared to listen, to write, to share, to work, to frolic, and to taste the healing, the unique, and the universal in story.

Using Sufi teaching tales, Hasidic stories, myths, as well as materials from Jung and Assagioli, we will enrich ourselves and serve one another. $250

Endarkenment

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

Sometimes in our search for enlightenment we become humorless, and our search becomes tedious. Growth demands a respite from intensive struggle.

This workshop can provide a vehicle for the turn downward. We shall explore: how to establish and maintain meaningless relations; what to worry about while meditating; advanced covert blaming and inducing guilt in loved ones; how to become the most sympathetic victim/martyr in your social group; guilt without sex. This approach, similar to Feldenkrais' "live the disasters" and the "homeopathic principle" (Will Schutz, Body Fantasy), can be as valuable for attaining enlightenment as the direct route—and more fun. In addition, participants in this workshop will have opportunities to explore, play with, and celebrate the shadow—that which we usually hide. $250

The Art of Self-Direction

Lenore Lefer

This workshop is about personal, social, and cultural change. It is about creating, initiating, and directing change as well as responding to those alterations that we seem not to choose. How do we know what is meaningful, and how do we integrate that into our lives? It is an art to lead a self-directed life that includes both personal and social responsibility.

Founded conceptually in psychosynthesis, this will be an experiential self-exploration, using imagery, inner dialogue, meditation, and individual and group process. The environment will be supportive and evocative. This workshop is appropriate for professionals who deal with transitional crises in their work.

Recommended reading: Pierro Ferucci, What We May Be (J. P. Tarcher); Roberto Assagioli, The Act of Will (Penguin). $250

Adult Children of Alcoholic or Abusive Parents

Karen Paine-Gernée & Terry Hunt

Learning the facts about growing up with alcoholism is a big relief. It is, however, just one of the steps that ACAs need to take. In order to recover from the effects of their childhoods, ACAs need to dedicate themselves to an on-going process of sharing, healing, and learning. The workshop leaders refer to the goal of recovery as "emotional sobriety," which they teach as a fourteen-point program. Participants will have the opportunity to develop some practical and personal methods of implementing long-lasting changes.

This workshop is for beginners or individuals who have already begun an exploration of ACA issues. It offers the opportunity to confront and heal painful childhood emotions, to examine and restructure deeply held beliefs, to learn some basic tools for taking care of oneself, to make strides in letting go of control and developing a sense of trust, and to foster a relationship with one's own spirituality.

Special attention will be paid to learning how to nurture and sustain satisfying and equal intimate relationships. Intimacy between independent adults requires being able to tolerate the ambiguity and sense of "not knowing" that was so terrifying as children in chaotic homes. Emotional sobriety means having a personal sense of balance and physical boundaries from which to find peace and a capacity for genuine sharing and pleasure. $250

Week of February 22–27

Choosing to Change

Harry Sloan

For workshop description see January 25-30. $490

Doorways of Perception

Jessica Moore Britt

Insight and body-oriented practices cultivate awareness and the expression of sensations, feelings, images, and ideas that most of us ordinarily repress. Insight and catharsis by themselves may not necessarily lead us into the depths of our nature recognized by the transpersonal disciplines of meditation and shamanism. Similarly, meditation and shamanism practices may neglect the emotional/physical clearing that allows the opening from which our being may emerge. This workshop will seek to join these two levels of personal practice, sensitizing and expanding our perception through the understandings derived from Sufism, Buddhism, gestalt awareness, Reichian breath work, and Native American tradition. $490

Spiritual Emergency: Understanding and Treatment of Evolutionary Crises

Christina & Stanislav Grof

There exists increasing evidence that certain episodes of non-ordinary states of consciousness which traditional psychiatry diagnoses as manifestations of mental illness and treats by repressive measures, are actually "spiritual emergencies" or transpersonal crises. Evidence for this can be found in many different fields—history, anthropology, comparative religion, clinical psychiatry, and modern consciousness research. If properly understood and supported, these states can result in emotional and psychosomatic healing, personality transformation, and consciousness evolution.

In this workshop, we will explore this new concept theoretically and experientially. We will use the method of holonomic integration, which combines controlled breathing, evocative sound, focused body work, and mandala drawing. It makes it possible for participants to explore various domains of the unconscious and to practice methods of constructive facilitation of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be in the role of experiencers and sitters. $490

The Painting Experience

Stewart Cubley

It is rare for most people to use painting for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to paint purely for the process of exploration, not for the result.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide a setting to explore the deepest parts of ourselves through painting—to discover in form and color a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to emotional and spiritual expression. Participants are given the support and stimulation to develop a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling.

The work takes place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, along with a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. The workshop may be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122.

$490 (plus $20 materials fee paid directly to the leaders).

Weekend of February 27–March 1

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Reflections of Self: A Reichian/Gestalt Primer

Jessica Moore Britt

This will be an introduction to intensive intrapsychic inquiry using Reichian breath work and gestalt practice. Reichian work utilizes breath and sound to energize and deepen the process of self-awareness by softening the body's patterns of physical tension and emotional holding. Gestalt practice is an awareness approach focusing on physical sensation, image, thought, and emotion. By emphasizing a person's experience in the present moment, gestalt moves toward developing a more conscious sense of self. In a supportive group atmosphere, participants will have the opportunity to explore thoughts and feelings formed by past experiences. With this exploration, the possibility is opened to respond in the present. This workshop is limited to 10 participants. $250

Creative Writing Brainstorming

Herbert Gold

From feeling to expression to communication, this workshop will carry us into the possibilities of making literature. Delving into an experience different for everyone, yet shared by all, we will probe for the riches within.

Bring typewriter, word processor, pen, soft pencil, or clay tablets and stylus to the meetings. A situation will be called forth—love, death, ambition, pride, fear, hatred, jealousy—and after group preparation and discussion, we will write. Then we will read and rewrite each other's work. We may expect to go from truth to lying: from recollection to art.

What should develop is a sense of style and control as a part of the mastery of experience. We will practice the freedom of imagination by giving shape to it. $250

Anatomy for Trager℠ Students

Deane Juhan

This seminar is a continuation of professional training for students of Trager Psychophysical Integration and Mentastics℠. Participants will examine the anatomical structures of the body and their kinesthetic relationships, with specific reference to how these structures and relationships are handled by the Trager approach.

Half of the time will be used for slide presentations, lectures, and discussions concerning particular areas of the body. The rest will be spent practicing aspects of a Trager session which correspond to those areas. The emphasis will be on clarifying the intent of the various hand positions and movements, based upon an understanding of structure, function, and motor reflex.

Since supervised Trager table work will be an important part of the class, a beginning Trager training is a prerequisite.

C. E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $250

Intimate Relationship As a Practice and a Path

John Welwood

Maintaining an alive and honest connection with an intimate partner calls on us to free ourselves from old habits and blind spots and to develop the full range of our powers, sensitivities, and depths as human beings. In former times, people would often enter a monastery if they wanted to explore the deeper mysteries of life. For many of us today, however, intimate relationship has become the new wilderness that brings us face-to-face with all our gods and demons. The challenges involved in exploring the uncharted landscape of love and creating a conscious relationship require us to become warriors of the heart—proceeding with gentleness, courage, and a relentless dedication to truth.

This workshop will draw on Eastern and Western wisdom to explore the path of the warrior of the heart and to develop a vision of love as an ongoing practice of awareness and truth. Through talks, discussions, dialogue, and inner reflection, participants will focus on such core areas as: vulnerability, passion, surrender, ambivalence, need and desire, power struggles, and commitment, with particular emphasis on the dynamics of the male/female polarity. This workshop is for individuals as well as couples.

Recommended reading: John Welwood, Challenge of the Heart: Love, Sex, and Intimacy in Changing Times (Shambhala); Trungpa, Shambhala: The Sacred Path of the Warrior (Shambhala). $250

Week of March 1-6

The Hero's Journey

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Paul Rebillot writes, "Again and again in my work with people I have seen the suffering and confusion caused by our society's lack of significant rites of passage. Without shamans or ritual masters to guide them, modern women and men must find their own lonely and usually traumatic paths from one stage of life to another—whether it be a child's discovery that there is no Santa Claus, an adolescent's awkward approach to puberty, an adult's marriage or ending of a marriage, or a change of career. Every such change requires a movement from one level of being to another.

"Seeing this need, I created a rite of passage universal enough to allow people to discover the pattern of change, whatever that change might be. That pattern is exemplified in the myth of the hero. The new stage of life that is to be reached calls forth a heroic action on the part of the person taking the journey. At the same time, as soon as a new goal begins to emerge, all of the resistance to that goal emerges as well. I call these two forces 'the hero' and 'the demon.' In order for the new state of being to be realized, these two forces must discover how to communicate with each other and how to work together. The old forms must fall away so that the new form can emerge.

"My purpose is to give people a chance to experience a rite of passage so that they can go into the changes in their lives with a sense of joy and greater context. My hope is that through this process people will awaken to their own creative genius and enter into the drama of their lives with imagination and delight."

Recommended reading: Joseph Campbell, The Hero with a Thousand Faces (Bollingen) and Myths to Live By (Bantam). $490

March 1-20

Sustaining Integration: Body, Self, and Soul

Jack Rosenberg

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 33. $1595

March 1-22

Continuum Movement: An Approach to Deep Bodily Awareness

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 33. $1720

March 1-27

Certification in Clinical Hypnosis

Eli Jaxon-Bear

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 33. $1960

Weekend of March 6-8

Diving Into the Deep: Dream Discovery

Joyce Frazee

Each night the Self disappears below the surface of the psyche, and what is remembered from the journey is a dream. In this workshop, participants will focus on the use of dreams for emotional and spiritual growth. They will have the opportunity to connect with alienated parts of themselves and with the dreamer in themselves and others.

Participants may experience the multidimensional aspects of a single dream, noticing the most immediate, pressing, unfinished business of their lives, and uncover personal symbols. By keeping a dream journal, participants may recognize that dreams come in series, presenting and exploring a continuing theme. Since many individuals forget dreams, exercises in dream recall will be offered. Participants will work with feelings using gestalt and bioenergetics. They will draw dream mandalas, which can be used for insight and healing. Methods of dream control and lucid dreaming will be discussed. $250

Week of March 8-13

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Weekend of March 13–15

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see February 13-15. $250

Coincidance: Synchronicity and Isomorphism in Science and Mythology

Robert Anton Wilson & Arlen Riley Wilson

This seminar examines some of the deep structures of the human mind and objective reality and emphasizes the astounding coincidences that connect inner and outer worlds. Topics include: the relationship between Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs and the newtonian laws of optics, the seven days of the week, the Periodic Table of Elements, Timothy Leary's circuit-model of consciousness, and the seven souls of Egyptian myth; why there are twelve signs in astrology, twelve members on a jury, twelve labors of Hercules, twelve eggs in a carton, and twelve bonds in one complete loop of DNA; the link between isomorphisms (structural unities), genetics, quantum physics, the I Ching and Finnegans Wake; the possible common function underlying Jungian synchronicity, Bell's Theorem in physics, and the morphic resonance posited by biologist Rupert Sheldrake; comparing the four suits of the Tarot to the four elements of alchemy, the four forces of physics, the four seasons, and Christian and Buddhist mandalas.

Participants will be asked to remember vivid dreams that have haunted them and art works that have deeply moved them. These will be compared, both psychologically and mathematically, with the deep structures revealed in this survey of planetary mythic and scientific symbolisms. $250

Week of March 15–20

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Still Point, Turning Point: A Light and Gentle Approach to Mind, Heart, and Body

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

"Anything which is forced or misunderstood can never be beautiful." – Xenophon

People, like plants, need special attention to thrive and blossom. To naturally grow beyond what they've been requires strength, sensitivity, and a deeply compassionate awareness. The courage to let go of self-defeating patterns from the past, the willingness to master fresh skills and create new dreams for the future: these are the turning points that nourish and sustain human beings.

In this workshop, the participants will come together in the spirit of being simply and lovingly at home in themselves. They will create a community whose aim is to explore and move through individual turning points in a climate of trust, goodwill, and authenticity. The program will be structured to include intensive individual work, using practices from gestalt, psychosynthesis, and bioenergetics, as well as creative movement, music, guided imagery, group rituals, and celebrations. $490

Weekend of March 20–22

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Open Seat

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

For workshop description see February 1-6. $250

Endarkenment

Will Schutz & Ailish Mellard

For workshop description see February 20-22. $250

Week of March 22–27

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Our Myth-Body to Live By

Joseph Campbell & Chungliang Al Huang

This annual collaboration celebrates its eighth year at Esalen, exploring the mythic dimensions in body, mind, and spirit with lively stories, music, and t'ai chi dancing.

Recommended reading: Joseph Campbell, The Mythic Image (Bantam), Myths to Live By (Bantam), The Way of the Animal Power (Ban der Marck), and The Hero with a Thousand Faces (Bollingen); Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E.P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon). $520

Weekend of March 27–29

Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (T'ai Chi Intensive)

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

For workshop description see January 11-16. $250

Reprinting: A Growth Process

Hector Prestera

How does one become un-stuck from imprinted experiences and more fully realize inner power? Through various approaches including body reading, light trance work, and anchoring (Erickson), participants can explore how powerful the unconscious is in keeping old behavioral patterns locked in, and may open new doors toward growth and freedom. New models of behavior may then become available.

The workshop will feature individual and group processes, including body release approaches.

Recommended reading: Hector Prestera and Ron Kurtz, The Body Reveals (Harper & Row). $250

Kohlberg's Theory of Justice Reasoning: The Philosophy and Psychology of Moral Development

Cheryl Armon

As the need for moral referents has grown, so has the need for understanding the origins and nature of moral reasoning and behavior. What is morality, anyway? Consider the following statements:

"I carried out my orders. . . . Where would we have been if everyone had thought things out in those days?" (Adolf Eichmann)

"I was not the one to stand up in a meeting and say that this should be stopped . . . in all honesty, because of the group pressure that would ensue . . ." (Watergate defendant)

"I was there to follow orders, not to think." (Watergate defendant)

This weekend intensive workshop will provide a broad introduction to the theory and research of Lawrence Kohlberg, director of the Center for Moral Development and Education at Harvard University. Since 1958, his work has attempted to explain the nature of morality within the domain of justice and the way in which it develops across one's lifespan. Over 400 studies which support this work have now been conducted. Kohlberg's theory has become internationally known and has had significant influence in psychology and education. His approach is based on a rational, developmental framework which demonstrates that moral judgments precede moral actions and that the capacity for such judgments develops in an orderly stage sequence.

This workshop will provide exposure to the concepts underlying Kohlberg's approach and experience with methods used to study moral reasoning. Participants will solve moral dilemmas and administer moral dilemma interviews to others. In this way, they may learn to distinguish the philosophical from the empirical study of moral reasoning – as well as something about their own moral judgments. $250

March 27–April 24

Massage Practitioner Certification Program

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 33. $2120

Week of March 29–April 3

The Essential China

Chungliang Al Huang & Living Tao Staff

Experience the quintessence of Chinese cultural arts with Chungliang Al Huang, whose new Lan Ting Institute in China was recently featured in the Esalen Catalog. Chungliang Al Huang will teach the five-elements Tai Ji form and Chi Gung breathing for health and revitalization, and engage participants in discourses in comparative religion-philosophy and the creative arts of dance, music, poetry, brush calligraphy, and painting. Through this intensive synthesis of East and West, participants will create a balanced world vision as well as human action in their individual lives, with a true understanding of the joy and power of disciplined self-cultivation and its many practical daily applications.

Recommended reading: Chungliang Al Huang, Quantum Soup: Fortune Cookies in Crisis (E.P. Dutton) and Embrace Tiger, Return to Mountain (Real People Press); Alan Watts with Chungliang Al Huang, Tao: The Watercourse Way (Pantheon); Alasdair Clayre, The Heart of the Dragon (Houghton and Mifflin); Caroline Blunden and Mark Elvin, Cultural Atlas of China (Facts on File). $490

A Look Within

Jessica Moore Britt

This is a week for attending to ourselves in such a way that we begin to penetrate through the layers of our conditioned patterns in order to come to a truer perception and appreciation of who we are.

The focus of our inquiry will be the relationship between mind/body/emotions and the subtle centers that make up, and therefore support, our essential/spiritual nature.

Our tools for exploration will be an interplay of East/West, including meditation, touch, gestalt awareness practice, Reichian breath work, and self-remembering exercises on a foundation of object-relations theory and Sufi teachings. Come willing to stretch your patterned beliefs and look within.

Recommended reading: A.H. Almaas, Essence (Weiser); John O. Stevens, ed., Gestalt Is (Real People Press); Wilhelm Reich, Selected Writings (Touchstone); Louise J. Kaplan, Oneness and Separateness (Touchstone); Toshihiko Izutsu, Sufism and Taoism (Univ. of Calif. Press); J.G. Bennett, Spiritual Psychology, (CSA Press). $490

Enhanced Human Performance through Biofeedback Training

Joel & Michelle Levey

This seminar will provide practical instruction, objective feedback, and the imagineering necessary to develop greater awareness and control of our primary instrument—the human bodymind.

Utilizing the leading edge of modern biotechnology and biofeedback training in combination with ancient methods of self mastery, this experiential seminar will offer strategies for mastering the challenges of daily life. It may be especially beneficial for health professionals involved with stress and pain management.

There will be hands-on time with some of the most modern computerized biofeedback equipment available today. These include:

- EMG (Electromyograph): for deep muscle relaxation and optimization.
- GSR (Galvanic skin response): for mastery of stress response and anxiety.
- EEG (Electroencephalograph) or brain wave: for training in quality of attention and state of mind.
- Applied blood pressure biofeedback: for reducing risk and dependency on medication.
- Applied thermal (blood flow) biofeedback: for improving circulatory function (e.g., warming hands, optimizing blood pressure, decreasing stress response).

Recommended reading: Joel Levey, The Fine Arts of Relaxation, Concentration, and Meditation: A Contemporary Mental Fitness Manual (Wisdom Publications); Elmer and Alyce Green, Beyond Biofeedback (Delacorte Press); Barbara Brown, New Mind, New Body (Harper & Row; Irvington).

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $490

Weekend of April 3–5

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani) & Kenneth Porter

For workshop description see February 1-6. $250

Creativity and Mysticism

Jean Lanier & Alexandrea Kovats

To be a mystic is to be aware of the creative self as it is connected to the universe. One's creative process is an expression of that connection. What constitutes the process? What makes an individual unique, a work of art, a celebrator of life? The positive, the negative, the breakthrough—all add up to the Self, the compassionate one, the transformer of one's own world.

This workshop will explore "creation-centered" mysticism as it appears in the writings of mystics and as it is uncovered in the participants through inner listening, imaging, poetry, drawing, and dance. $250

Living Meditations

Judyth Weaver

In everything we do we have choices, but do we recognize them? We can perform the same actions in a stressful or a relaxed manner, wastefully or economically. We can hold on tightly or let go. We can have fun or suffer. The more in touch we are with our feelings and abilities, the more options are available to us.

This workshop will focus on rediscovering awareness of self—mentally, physically, and spiritually—to develop and integrate as many options as possible. It is through this awareness that we can acquire choice of how to live.

We will work with deep sensing of our organism, with gentle breathing methods for stress reduction, t'ai chi ch'uan for relaxed exercises, gestalt, movement, massage, and meditations. All these explorations can lead to a sense of centered grounding and balance with which to develop and enhance an economic, energetic, pleasurable, and effective life. $250

Week of April 5–10

Change and Self-Esteem

Phyllis Shankman

Change is an ever-present aspect of living which must be accepted and used creatively if one is to sustain a healthy, interesting, and exciting life. Many individuals talk about wanting change while actively or passively resisting it. Self-esteem, which includes self-acceptance, self-appreciation, and self-confidence, is the aspect of self which enables one to confront resistance and fear and which increases the willingness to change and take risks.

This workshop includes a unique, in-depth process for finding and allowing self-acceptance and for creatively confronting opportunities for change and growth. Group activities include gestalt process work, discussion, massage, meditation, music, dance, art-imagery exercises, and whatever else happens spontaneously. $490

Stress Management

John Davis

The continuing popularity of stress management articles, books, classes, and workshops suggests two things: First, there is a strong hunger for security, peace, and comfort in an increasingly distressing world; and second, there is an abundance of specific methods for managing stress. However, many stress management methods and programs lack a full understanding of body, mind, and spirit. This workshop will attempt a more comprehensive view. It will begin with an introduction to up-to-date, research-based information on relaxation, meditation, and cognitive methods for stress reduction. The benefits of stress for peak performance will be considered. There will be a chance to explore an integration of these methods with body-oriented practices, ego psychology, and spiritual development. Didactic discussions, structured exercises, group work, walks into the neighboring wilderness, ritual, and humor will help develop these approaches. $490

Contact Improvisation

Nancy Stark Smith

Contact Improvisation is an evolving system of movement based on the communication between two moving bodies and their combined relationship to the physical laws that govern their motion—gravity, momentum, inertia, etc. The body, in order to open to these sensations, must learn to release excess muscular tension and abandon a certain quality of willfulness to experience the natural flow of movement. Practice includes rolling, falling, being upside down, and supporting and giving weight to a partner. Alertness must be developed in order to work in an energetic state of physical disorientation and to trust in one's basic survival instincts. Contact Improvisation is a free play with balance, whereby partners self-correct the wrong moves and reinforce the right ones, bringing forth a physical/emotional truth about a shared moment of movement that leaves them informed, centered, and enlivened.

Working at their own pace and within their own limits, participants will be guided through all the necessary skills for the safe and enjoyable practice of Contact Improvisation. This workshop is for people who like to move. No previous dance experience is necessary, although a basic physical aptitude is suggested. $490

April 5–May 1

Gestalt Practice: A Practicum

Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 33. $1485

Weekend of April 10–12

Living Music

Paul Winter

This workshop focuses on the music in our lives—both within and around us. Through a process of improvisation (using sound, body movement, and poetry) and consorting (combining our natural instincts, our natural music, and our inclination to share in expressing the music of the world), we can embrace the instruments and voices of many traditions: folk, jazz, symphonic, tribal, rock, homemade, and animal. Participants are encouraged to bring any musical instruments (whether or not they can play them), including their voices. No musical experience is required, only an interest in self-expression. $250

April 10–24

Spiritual/Esoteric Practice: The Key to Intuitive and Psychic Development

Anne & Jim Armstrong

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 34. $1230

Week of April 12–17

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Touching the Unconscious with Your Hands: Rosen Bodywork

Marion Rosen & Mari Krieger

Rosen Method Bodywork is a relaxation process induced by gentle massage. Marion Rosen says, "The function of tension is to suppress emotions or experiences which could not be handled at an earlier time. Through this gentle body work, the barriers to awareness disappear and the person has greater access to his or her inner self. This process opens the possibility of healing."

Participants will have the opportunity to learn about the body through the Rosen Method's hands-on approach to body work. In this work, the practitioner helps the participant focus on subtle changes in the breathing as a guide to what is happening in his or her inner process. The deep emotional issues which may arise from this work can then be processed through gestalt awareness with the workshop leaders. In addition to intrapsychic work, time will be set aside for interpersonal/interactive work. $490

Weekend of April 17–19

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Death and Resurrection

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

This workshop offers the opportunity to confront, rather than avoid, death. On a wider scale, it explores ways to move creatively through life's many transitions, letting go of the old and welcoming the new.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

We will review our lives, completing unfinished business, and practice giving up attachments to persons, things, and self-images until, surrendering all to the ultimate unknown, we are able to experience the birth of the truly new. $250

Week of April 19–24

Expanding Boundaries

Anne Nechama Simkin

For workshop description see January 4-9. $490

Exorcising the Demon "Should"

Paul Rebillot & Stanford Eugene Cates

Within each of us there lives a demon—our own personal critic—whose greatest joy comes from criticizing, denigrating, and destroying every experience we have. We're either too early or too late, too old or too young, too fat or too thin, and when we fall in love, we're never good enough. This demon, who commands us to be who we aren't in order to satisfy someone we can never satisfy, is the demon that we will seek to exorcise during the week.

This workshop has been expanded to a week-long process so that its participants can explore the images behind their "shoulds" in depth and recognize the stranglehold of ideal images and unpleasant aspects of themselves. How do we face what we want to hide?

People in the helping professions who have experienced this form have found it adaptable and useful in their own work. $490

April 24–May 1

The Painting Experience

Michell Cassou & Stewart Cubley

It is rare for most people to use painting for its qualities of inner adventure and self-discovery, to paint purely for the process of exploration, not for the result.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide a setting to explore the deepest parts of ourselves through painting—to discover in form and color a powerful tool for uncovering and dissolving blocks to emotional and spiritual expression. Participants are given the support and stimulation to develop a natural way of painting based directly upon feeling.

The work takes place in an authentic studio setting with large white surfaces to confront the creative void, along with a rich spectrum of colors and brushes. The workshop may be of interest to persons involved in a wide variety of disciplines including art, education, counseling, and meditative practices. No prior experience in painting is necessary.

For further information about this workshop write: The Painting Experience Studio, 509 Noriega Street, San Francisco, CA 94122. (415) 564-8515.

$740 (plus $25 materials fee paid directly to the leaders).

Psychosynthesis: A Seven–Day Workshop for Professionals

Harry Sloan

"Learn your techniques well and be prepared to let go of them when you touch the human soul."—Carl Jung

Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea of what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for the familiar—a technique, map, or model. This can lead to the mechanical experience of "going through the motions" and using rote interventions. In those moments, if we can stretch for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, dissonance might open to insight, with a decidedly different effect upon both client and guide—that ineffable sense of capturing the moment. The interventions that follow are dynamic, uniquely suited to the particular needs of the client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for the essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice tends to develop our inherent wisdom and intuition, a context which transcends methodologies.

The format will combine individual work within the group setting along with seminars, group exercises, and practicum. This program will be useful not only to those who are interested in psychosynthesis, but also to anyone in the helping professions who wants to come into a more creative relationship with his/her discipline.

Psychosynthesis is a name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration. It recognizes that each human being is spiritual in essence and encourages the realization and expression of this essence, or Self, as fully as possible in personal and social existence. $740

The Enneagram: A Tool for Identifying and Developing Intuition

Helen Palmer

Helen Palmer writes: "For the past several years I have been teaching people how to develop their intuition as a reliable source of information. It has become increasingly clear that adults are especially sensitive to issues and situations that, as children, they were attracted to or needed to defend themselves against. For example, a loved child may develop the ability to merge with the wishes of others and so become highly intuitive about the means of gaining their approval. A child who has had a frightening early life can become precognitively sensitized to anger or negativity in other people. These psychic abilities, centered around the survival issues of childhood, then become an integral part of the adult personality, but the grown up child is usually not conscious of operating from anything other than intellectual information. The key idea is that each person's intuitive style seems to be closely associated with a particular set of issues that derive from early experience.

"The Enneagram is a Sufi system that acts as a bridge between intellect and intuition. It has been taught for generations in the oral tradition. In its present form, it uses the language of psychology to identify nine personality types and their interrelationships. Each personality type has a unique way of looking at the world, and this viewpoint is reflected in a set of preoccupying thoughts and a related intuitive style. Thus, once the focal points of internal attention are identified, a person has a place to begin to look for the related intuitive ability.

"The function of a teacher in the oral tradition is to work first with a group of people who have the same personality type and develop a line of questioning which demonstrates the operation of their particular thought strategy. By observing such exemplars, workshop participants will be able to discover their own personality type in this system, and thus their own preoccupying issues and the ways in which they internally sense the presence of these issues. The task is then to be able to distinguish between thoughts about an external situation and intuitive information about that same situation. Time then will be devoted to internal focusing practices that enable one to develop the ability to shift attention between thought and intuitive perception, and to discriminate between psychic and intellectual information.

"The Enneagram workshop can be useful to people who wish to develop their intuitive abilities and are working to separate their psychic impressions from their projections. It can be particularly useful to anyone who works in a situation where reliable access to intuitive information is important." $740

Weekend of May 1–3

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 9-11.

$250 per participant

Celebrating the Goddess Within

Margot Adler

This workshop is about women's spiritual empowerment. The use of ritual as a tool for connecting with the Earth and with each other will be explored. Participants will chant, dance, share songs and experiences, and dream their inner journeys. They will create sacred space and travel to an ancient temple to meet the Goddess within themselves and within all nature. The workshop will also attempt to demystify concepts like "magic" and "ritual" and will offer each woman a set of personal tools she can use in her life. $250

Guide to Recovery for Adult Children of Alcoholics and Other Adult Children of Trauma

Herbert Gravitz & Julie Bowden

The last decade has heralded a social movement identifying and recognizing the plight of over thirty million Americans raised in alcoholic homes. When it is realized that there are millions raised in family environments with other types of dysfunction (e.g., chronic mental or physical illness, holocaust survivors, compulsive workers, overeaters, or gamblers), it is possible to begin to see the source of the pain so evident in this society.

Some believe the stress or sadism in an alcoholic family is second only to the horrors of concentration camps or prisoner of war camps. Comparing growing up in an alcoholic family to growing up in a war zone, many believe the emotional atmosphere results in symptoms of post traumatic stress disorder, including flashbacks, psychic numbing, survivor guilt, alienation, and chronic shock. Acknowledging the effects of alcoholism increases our understanding of the healing process.

The workshop leaders have identified six stages that describe the transformational journey to recovery taken by children of alcoholics and other trauma. Step by step, in an atmosphere of safety and integrity, they will combine the dimensions of altered state work and spirituality. Participants will be invited to move through and beyond the trauma of yesterday—melting frozen tears, integrating eternal yesterdays, befriending the child within, and connecting to the higher purpose. $250

Applied Vulnerability

Donald Michael

A primary task that persons and organizations face in the next twenty years is that of learning to be better learners. This may sound obvious, but consider for a moment how much effort we expend disguising our uncertainty and ignorance and acting as if we really know what we are doing. There is a parallel between what happens when we pay close attention to the processes of the mind (in meditation, for instance) and when we study the vastly complex political, social, and economic processes and systems of the world. In both cases, it is possible to see how little we really know about ourselves as individuals and about the world. This recognition can be the starting point for embracing ignorance and vulnerability so that we can apply them to constructive engagement with our private and public worlds.

This seminar will introduce several skills, or what Donald Michael calls "new competencies," that are necessary for making humane and effective decisions in situations where uncertainty can be the best occasion for learning—in organizational or independent work places and in interpersonal and family situations. These skills include: acknowledging high levels of uncertainty, error embracing, being future-responsive, boundary spanning, self-knowledge, and interpersonal competence.

The approach will be both cognitive and experiential. Participants will have the opportunity to learn to be more comfortable with their uncertainty, to reduce the need to act overcautiously out of fear of making a mistake, and to minimize the need for those defensive posturings that make it so hard to act responsibly and compassionately. As a previous participant said, "This workshop is for those who are ready to move beyond the personal and want to effect change in public and private organizations." $250

May 1-9

Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Steven Harper & Joyce Rogers Lyke

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 36. $495

Week of May 3-8

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see January 11-16.

$490

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see February 1-6.

$490

May 3-29

The Mystical Quest, Attachment, and Addiction

Christina Grof, Stanislav Grof & Jacquelyn Small

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 34. $1960

Weekend of May 8-10

Burnout: Causes and Cures

Elliot Aronson

This workshop is designed for people who give service to others and who are experiencing burnout. It deals with the impact of burnout on both the service provider and the client, ways of finding and recognizing support resources on the job, and positive methods of dealing with burnout and life tedium. Through lectures, group discussions, and input from the participants themselves, individuals will have the opportunity to increase their understanding of those aspects of their own work and life which could cause burnout. In addition, they will be provided with the tools and opportunity to learn how to handle these problems in order to increase the productivity and creativity of their relationships with clients and colleagues.

C. E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 36. $250

Word Magic: Self-Discovery Through Writing

Nancy Bacal

We all have stories and the capacity to tell them, but when asked to translate them onto the page, many of us are inhibited by self-judgment. By practicing a series of writing exercises designed to bypass blockages, participants may be able to move beyond the controlling arm of the critic and have a direct experience of themselves. The exercises are specific enough to excite the imagination yet spacious enough for the "writer inside" to experiment with imagery and form and remain true to his or her own voice.

This writing workshop is designed for the non-writer, the would-be-writer, and the professional writer. It offers participants an opportunity to open the heart, tap reservoirs of story-making material, and heighten their observations of the world. $250

The Experience of Auroville: An Evolutionary Perspective

Alan Lithman (Savitra)

In 1968, Auroville was founded by the Mother, based on the vision of Sri Aurobindo. Located on the southeast coast of India, Auroville has persevered through two decades as a global community of 600 men, women, and children from more than twenty-five nations.

Auroville claims to provide a context for the future evolution of humanity. What does this mean? What lessons can Auroville share with those of us facing the growing density of evolutionary crises? This is what the workshop will explore, using Auroville's actual experiences as reference points—from the reforesting of a million trees to the creation of a computer production unit, from its schools to its decision-making process.

Auroville has brought together the worlds of East and West, with the problems and gifts of both cultures. It has experienced in its own way why wars are fought and why governments fail. Yet, through these intense transitions, Auroville has remained alive to its quest, which seeks to heal the old gods of Matter and Spirit. $250

Body Imagery

Daria Khalighi

In this workshop, the physical body will be viewed as a metaphoric palette on which aspects of the Self are projected. A drawing of the full body by each participant will establish a point of origin, followed by a series of visualizations, drawings, and exercises on each body part. By isolating one body part at a time, participants will become aware of the unique messages, imprints, and associations carried within each of the body's parts.

Social impacts on the body, which have shaped the individual through childhood, adolescence, and into adulthood, will become evident through drawings and gestalt writings. Movement and breath work will engage the body in creative physical expression and the release of its tensions.

Body images—feelings and thoughts which are carried in muscles, skeletal structure, and organs—may be given expression through the creative impulse of drawing. As these images become available, it is possible to rediscover and unblock the pathways linking body with mind, emotion, and spirit. $250

Kathleen Thormod Carr

Week of May 10–15

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Presence: Reclaiming Personal Power

Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see February 1-6. $490

Human Potential Theory and Practice

John Heider

This workshop will consist of a synthesis of group process, gestalt, body work, and meditation. The purpose is to develop and educate the human potential, which refers to the ability people have to become more aware or conscious of themselves and of the world around them. While the workshop will be mostly experiential, there will be time for questions and answers and for discussion of the work. $490

Weekend of May 15–17

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Singing Gestalt

Nancy Kaye Lunney

Singing gestalt is singing about yourself, who you are, what you feel, who you'd like to be. Singing gestalt is about being yourself in front of other people without judging how well you sing. Singing gestalt is not about performance. It is about feeling and expressing.

If the idea of getting up and singing in front of other people terrifies you more than anything you can think of, this workshop is for you. If you love to sing in front of other people and want to stretch yourself further, this workshop is for you. If you've been too shy to try, this is your chance.

Some guided imagery and gestalt may be used. Accompaniment and lots of music are provided. Video feedback may be incorporated. But the workshop is really about you—singing. $250

Cross-Cultural Images of Body and Spirit

Elinor Gadon & Don Johnson

Every culture displays what it means by "spiritual consciousness" in specific forms of body posture and movement, such as yogic asanas, zazen, trance dances, sacred iconography, and erotic art. Participants in this seminar will contemplate slides of ideal bodies from various cultures, examining how those icons embody the consciousness of their culture. Against the backdrop of projected visual images, using sensory awareness and simple movement exercises, participants will explore how various images affect their own consciousness. They will also examine how breathing mediates the relation between body-image and spiritual practice, and will use simple forms of touch to facilitate awareness. This seminar is designed to illuminate the recovery of erotic perceptions and feeling underneath external body-images to ground a non-authoritarian, earth-respecting spirituality. $250

The Power of Growth

Seymour Carter

Everyone has unused capacities for further personal development. When these capacities are recognized and given attention, a natural force is released which, like a tide, can carry the individual to a higher level of ability and action. Fritz Perls taught how to recognize the force of avoided issues in dealing with blocked energies. When unfinished issues are confronted and assimilated, it is possible to feel potent and in charge of one's life.

In this workshop, participants can deal with these issues by examining the influence of the inner dialogue on thoughts and the nature of impasse, as well as tendencies within themselves toward psychological completion and well-being. The basis of this work is the gestalt method, supported by studies in various body disciplines, including sensory awareness, bioenergetics, Rolfing®, and aikido. Each participant's process of development will be honored, encouraged, and treated as unique. $250

Week of May 17–22

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Steven Harper

Located on a narrow stretch of land between the Pacific Ocean and the coastal ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains, Esalen is the trailhead to one of the world's most spectacular wilderness areas. With this natural reserve as the primary teacher, the group will walk into the Los Padres National Forest. Drawing on various traditions, participants can develop the quality of their awareness and open to the natural world.

Week-long workshops will venture out on five hikes (4-10 miles in length). Using Esalen as base camp, the group will explore different trails through the natural beauty of the Big Sur backcountry. Days will begin and end at Esalen with short stretching and sharing sessions. Each day-hike will begin after breakfast and will conclude in time to enjoy the hot springs and dinner each evening at Esalen. Basic outdoor skills such as map reading and minimum impact concepts will be practiced. Participants will be taught enough skills to begin exploring the wilderness on their own after these outings. More information will be sent upon registration. $490

Energy Awareness

Richard Strozzi Heckler

Traditional education, with its emphasis on rational thought, has overshadowed the development of the intuitive resources of the body. This imbalance leaves us only partially equipped for dealing with the changes and transitions of everyday life. Working through the body, however, makes it possible to contact an energy that has the wisdom to be self-educating and self-healing.

In this seminar, exercises and movements from aikido, a Japanese martial art, will be used to awaken the feeling and perceptive skills of this bodily wisdom. The principles of centering, grounding, positive energy flow, receptivity, relaxation, blending, and appropriate effort will be taught. Participants will also do body readings from an energetic point of view.

Emphasis will be on the application of these principles to daily living, such as how to overcome obstacles during times of change and confusion, how to be more effective in stressful situations, and how to develop and trust one's intuition. No prior experience is necessary. $490

Dream Council: The Craft of Dream Work

Stephen Aizenstat

"Dreaming is the psyche itself doing its soul-work." —James Hillman

". . . the dream, we would say, originates in an unknown part of the psyche and prepares the dreamer for the events of the following day." —C.G. Jung

These two notions, the soul-connection of dreams and the preparatory function of dreams, make participation in a dream group a particularly rewarding personal experience. Dreams, as looking-glass parables, provide a connection to the voices and images of the psyche. In dream council, the group creates a time and a place to listen to the visions of the night, the language of the psyche, to speak of our fate. In this regard, common dream themes, nightmares, lucid dreaming, archetypal imagery, and the recurring dream will be discussed. Each dream council becomes a community unto itself, guided by the resource of the dream. The dream group provides a setting for participants to attend to individual woundings (psychological and physical), life transitions, and personal relationships. In following the way of the dream, dream work often becomes soul-work and participants typically deepen their sense of personal journey. $490

Weekend of May 22–24

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Further Reaches of Human Energy

George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

This workshop begins with a basic grounding in Leonard Energy Training (LET), in which problems can become opportunities, stress and pain can be transformed into gifts of energy, personal and social options can be multiplied, and the flow of vital energy enhanced. In addition to its practical applications, the workshop offers participants the possibility of experiencing their own latent powers of intuition and extraordinary sensing.

After their introduction to LET, participants move into experiments that push the limits of what are termed "normal" human capacities. Through such processes as scanning, tuning-in to others' energy, focused surrender, and remote viewing, the group is given a chance to experience a crystalline state of intense aliveness without expectation and prejudgment. As George Leonard wrote in The Ultimate Athlete, "Simply by considering possibilities commonly ignored by our culture, we find ourselves in a far more fascinating universe. We discover adventures that do not require the burning of fuel or the rape of the planet: sensing the energy field of a friend or a tree, making connections that defy conventional space and time. . . . We realize, with the sorcerer, don Juan, that our world is awesome, mysterious, and unfathomable, and that our life is filled to the brim and altogether too short."

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Silent Pulse (Dutton), The Ultimate Athlete (Viking), and The Transformation (J.P. Tarcher / Houghton-Mifflin). $250

Week of May 24–29

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

Participants are instructed in basic methods used in giving a pleasurable and beneficial full body massage. Fundamental elements of body work, such as breath awareness, grounding, movement, quality of touch, and stress reduction are introduced. This workshop is available to beginners as well as to those who wish to brush up on their massage skills. $490

Opening the Feelings

Dale Cummings & Gena Mayer Sorensen

Participants will employ Radix and neo-Reichian methods of emotional release, the most important of which is the Radix® intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting which can provide emotional support among participants. Grief, pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood can emerge. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he or she may discover a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time, the sexual experience may change as feelings of tenderness and sexuality intensify and merge. $490

Woman as Warrior

Danielle Evans & Mary Tesoro

"I will learn to chant the power chant and play the healing drum."—from Daughters of Copper Woman

This workshop is for women only. It will use a synthesis of traditional and modern martial arts, women's street fighting defense techniques, and Leonard Energy Training to follow the path of the Huntress—the path of empowerment and love.

Although recognition may lie deeply buried in the unconscious, every woman is a potential Huntress. To tap into the power of the Huntress is to claim the power and freedom of our birthright as women, to eliminate the consciousness of victimhood. No previous martial arts experience necessary. $490

Weekend of May 29–31

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see January 30-February 1. $250 per participant

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Steven Harper

For workshop description see May 17-22. $250

The Way of Gnosis*, Ancient and Modern

Gnosis: Transformative spiritual "knowing" arrived at intuitively; knowledge of the heart.

Sidney Lanier & Stephan Hoeller

This seminar will explore a dynamic and uniquely western spirituality based upon ancient and modern insights about human nature. Its discussions will include an evaluation of the recently translated Nag Hammadi Gnostic Gospels and their significance today in light of Jung's psychology and the radical Gnostic visions of Feminine Wisdom. This seminar will combine formal presentation with group discussion.

Recommended reading: Elaine Pagels, The Gnostic Gospels; Stephen Hoeller, The Gnostic Jung and the Seven Sermons to the Dead; Collected Works of C.G. Jung, Vols. 11, 12. $250

The Presence of the Past: Morphic Resonance and the Habits of Nature

Rupert Sheldrake

Sheldrake's hypothesis of formative causation may provide the basis for a new scientific paradigm which goes far beyond the currently predominant mechanistic theory of life. The idea that the form and behavior of living organisms are shaped by morphogenetic fields, themselves molded by the form and behavior of past similar organisms, leads to a new interpretation of heredity and the evolutionary process.

Memories need no longer be thought of as somehow stored inside the brain. They may depend on direct connections with the organism's own past due to morphic resonance, and tuning in to the experience of other members of the species may give rise to a pooled or collective memory.

In this workshop, some of the implications of formative causation for biology, psychology, parapsychology, philosophy, ritual, and religion will be explored and discussed.

Recommended reading: Rupert Sheldrake, A New Science of Life (J.P. Tarcher) and The Presence of the Past: Morphic Resonance and the Habits of Nature (Random House). $250

Week of May 31–June 5

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter

"Wisdom is the intelligence of the system as a whole."—Gregory Bateson

"Your conscious mind is very intelligent, and your unconscious mind is a hell of a lot smarter."
—M.H. Erickson

"We have an intelligence obtained from our wholeness that is far greater than we are ordinarily conscious of," Milton Erickson believed. Accessing and integrating this intelligence formed the basis of his hypnotic work.

This workshop is designed for those who work with people and would like experience with Ericksonian hypnosis, communication, and problem-solving. It will explore principles of this approach, including trance as a natural and necessary part of health, and will develop the idea that people and their communication and problem-solving are paradoxical.

Through guided exercises and demonstrations, participants will be taught the hypnotic use of metaphor in movement, sound, image, and story, as well as the hypnotic realities of age-regression, age-progression (traveling into futures), lucid dreaming, dissociation, and deep-trance identification (a process of deepening self-awareness through identification with different persons in and out of trance).

Additional exploration will include: the recognition and use of spontaneous trance states that commonly occur in the course of body work, acupuncture, movement and dance, sports, counseling, and everyday stress situations; the art of using all the system, including the bad, sick, crazy, and resistant parts; the value of humor, confusion, pattern interruption, and paradox in accessing unconscious creativity and resources; and an integrative approach to problem-solving and self-healing as described in Paul Carter's soon-to-be published book, The Parts Model.

Recommended reading: Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (W.W. Norton & Co.); Jeffrey Zeig, editor, Ericksonian Approaches to Hypnosis and Psychotherapy (Brunner & Mazel). $490

Shamanic Healing: Training in the Way of the Shaman

Michael Harner

Shamanism is an ancient human strategy for personal learning and action, especially useful for problem-solving, maintaining well-being, and healing. The shaman (a type of medicine man or woman) enters non-ordinary reality to obtain knowledge, to answer personal questions, and to maximize power to maintain personal health and achieve life goals.

In this experiential workshop, the participants will be introduced to some of the basic methods of the shaman. Participants will be initiated into shamanic journeying, a visionary method used to enter non-ordinary reality and explore the hidden universe otherwise known mainly through myth and dream. Practice will include: traditional drumming; movement methods for experiencing the shamanic state of consciousness and for awakening dormant personal capabilities and forgotten connections with nature; comparisons of discoveries made on shamanic journeys; personal problem-solving work; opportunity to discover one's own non-ordinary teachers and to learn from them in non-ordinary reality.

Participants will be introduced to the extraction method dealing with spiritual illness or pain, including discovery and recognition of localized spiritual illness and pain. They can learn how the shaman's journey may be used to restore spiritual power and health, and how shamanism may be practically applied in contemporary daily life.

This five-day workshop is both for beginners and for those who have previously taken a workshop with Michael Harner.

Participants are encouraged to bring drums and rattles and a notebook to record their experiences.

Recommended reading prior to the workshop: Michael Harner, The Way of the Shaman: A Guide to Power and Healing (Bantam; Harper & Row). $490

Weekend of June 5–7

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Suffering and Happiness as a Spiritual Path

Sogyal Rinpoche

According to the vision of Buddha, the suffering and happiness that one experiences can actually become the path to inner development. This teaching, written by the Tibetan master Jikme Tenpe Nyima, challenges basic attitudes of suffering and happiness, aspects of life which are revealed to be sources of understanding, compassion, and tranquility. Rinpoche will interweave this teaching with periods of guided sitting meditation practice. $250

Inner Sound and Voice

Jill Purce

This is a workshop of practical explorations with sound for healing and the transformation of consciousness. By liberating the voice, it is possible to make contact with deep levels of the Self and release an untapped source of energy.

Participants will work with the psycho-physical effects of breathing, chanting, mantric and sonic meditations, learning to tune and listen together, moving from the intuitive level into meditative states. Breath and sound will be developed so that different parts of the body-mind come into resonance, to give sonic massage, and to heal and tune the chakras and subtle body. Participants will learn ways to find their own note and hear inner sound, entering directly into the subtle dimensions of sound by the magical voice practices of traditional cultures including trance music, Mongolian and Tibetan overtone chanting, and other methods. $250

Why We Misbehave the Way We Do

Charles & Ronnie Blakeney

Why do we misbehave the way we do? Harvard professor Lawrence Kohlberg has studied the development of moral judgment for the past thirty years. He and his colleagues and students have interviewed thousands of children and adults worldwide. He has clearly demonstrated the existence of a universal sequence in the stages of moral thought. In the past fifteen years, Kohlberg and his colleagues have developed and successfully implemented Just Community programs, designed to raise the stage of moral reasoning of participants. Two questions have increasingly tickled and intrigued the Kohlberg group: What is the relationship between the stages of moral thought and moral behavior? What is the relationship between emotional development and moral development?

The workshop leaders bring Kohlberg's theory of universal stages of moral development to life. The relationship between moral decision-making, moral feelings, and moral behavior within actual social interactions will be explored. Participants will use this framework to examine the nature of misunderstanding between parents and children, therapists and clients, employers and employees, students and teachers, friends, lovers and partners. By attending to moral stages, learning style, patterns of moral misbehavior, and unresolved emotional conflicts, personal and interpersonal understanding and growth can be facilitated.

The workshop will include lectures, role playing, video tapes, and reflective exercises to identify stage and style and to suggest objectives and methods for growth. $250

Week of June 7–12

Experiencing Esalen: The Health Spa

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The degree to which we allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, participants will clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $490

Intermediate Cranial Workshop

Jim Asher & Jane Harrington

This Level Two cranial workshop will review the vertical and horizontal systems with alternate holds for each phase. Mouthwork practices that reduce strain and compression patterns as they relate to the maxilla, sphenoid, and ethmoid complex and to pituitary and sinus problems will be shown. Participants will practice balanced movement of the body to support themselves while working, as well as movement patterns which can be taught to their clients to support cranial changes.

Cranial work can be effective in shifting emotional holding patterns and draining accumulated stresses in the nervous system. Unwinding, a method which can release strains throughout the body at the somatic and emotional levels, will be emphasized in this workshop. Speno-basilar strain patterns, whip lash, bulb compression, dural tube freedom, and the fluid system will also be covered. There will be time for questions about specific problems and case studies.

This workshop is for those who have taken a basic cranial workshop on the membrane/fluid systems. It will be hands-on. Much of the emphasis will be on the head, jaw, neck, pelvis, and diaphragm systems.

In addition to the program described here, this course will include a special section of collaboration with The Physical Embodiment of Mind (see below), during which participants can exchange information and experiences.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $490

The Physical Embodiment of Mind: Patterns of Posture and Movement/Use of Self

Marghe Mills

The way we understand, sense, and use our bodies directly affects our health and our ability to perform the activities we need and want to be doing. Sitting, standing, walking, working, resting, communicating, dancing, exercising, etc., embody patterns as physical metaphors within each biological system (muscle, skeletal, nervous, organ, fluid, neuroendocrine). This workshop will consider the developmental, anatomical, and kinesiological foundations and the physical/mental/emotional experiences of these basic human activities.

Participants will work with their individual patterns of movement, alignment, and behavior. They will explore how personal and social patterns of movement and posture can be conducive to injury, to healing, and to wellness. Movement patterns from the point of view of function, ease, and support will be examined.

Through movement, discussion, hands-on work, lecture, voice, video, and art media, this workshop will provide opportunities for the development and sharpening of important human skills. The work of Moshe Feldenkrais (Awareness Through Movement®; Functional Integration®) and Bonnie Cohen (Body/Mind Centering) will be combined with developmental learning, aikido, and creative arts.

In addition to the program described here, this course will include a special section of collaboration with the Intermediate Cranial Workshop (see above), during which participants can exchange information and experiences.

Recommended reading: Marghe Mills and Bonnie Bainbridge Cohen, Developmental Movement Therapy (School for Body/Mind Centering); Moshe Feldenkrais, Awareness Through Movement (Harper & Row); Wynn Kapit and Lawrence Elson, The Anatomy Coloring Book (Canfield Press). $490

Weekend of June 12–14

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Achieving Sustained High Performance

Jerry Fletcher & Kathleen Brown Fletcher

For workshop description see January 23-25. $250

Advanced Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This seminar is for people who are experienced in giving a massage. Through demonstrations and practice sessions, participants can learn to increase the effectiveness of their massage skills and have the opportunity to add fresh approaches to their current working style. The intent is to help participants develop deeper and more sensitive contact and to heighten their awareness of clients' responses.

When you send in your deposit, please list your previous massage experience. $250

The Power of Vision: Modern Applications of Visionmaking

Angeles Arrien & Frances Vaughan

In ancient cultures one finds three kinds of shaman: the healer, the warrior, and the visionary. This workshop will examine the types of vision utilized by each of them and how they can be developed and used in current personal, professional, and cultural contexts.

The visionary aspects of intuition, dreams, meditation, myths, and symbols will also be explored. Special emphasis will be placed upon the gifts and attributes of vision and how they can help create new myths for a nonviolent and peaceful future. Lecture and discussion will be combined with participation in the visionmaking process. $250

What's So Funny? Developing Comic Perspective

Wes "Scoop" Nisker & Paul Krassner

This workshop explores the humorous side of the tragicomedy of life. It emphasizes the development and expression of the crazy wisdom in each of us. Examining traditional uses of humor, from old Sufi tales, Zen Haiku, and coyote trickster stories, to audio and video tapes of the modern satirists and comedians including Charlie Chaplin, Lenny Bruce, Laurel and Hardy, and Woody Allen, the class aims to help participants learn not necessarily how to be funny, but how to see funny.

The group looks at humor in the news, the lighter side of the search for enlightenment, and the absurdist approach to life and death. Class work includes theater and writing exercises aimed at developing a sense of humor and finding skillful ways to use the comic perspective to ease the difficult moments in life. $250

Week of June 14–19

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Five Days with Janet Zuckerman

For workshop description see January 18-23. $490

Couples' Workshop

Jack Rosenberg & Beverly Kitaen Morse

Most couples are reluctant to seek help in their relationships; instead, they wait, hoping that the relationship will improve. If couples approached medical help the same way they approach marriage counseling, many of them would only visit the doctor when they ought to be lining up the mortician.

Designed on a preventive model, this workshop will deal with the underlying structures and defenses in relationships before they surface as terminal problems. It will also examine the attitudes and beliefs about sexuality and how to make sex better.

Recommended reading: Jack Rosenberg, Total Orgasm and Body, Self, and Soul: Sustaining Integration. $490

Mountains and Waves: Movement in Wilderness

Susan Harper & Steven Harper

Mountains and Waves is an invitation to explore natural movements inspired within the human organism by participation in nature. We listen to impulses within and to impulses of wilderness until "inner" and "outer" disappear. As we surrender to the intelligence which creates life in all its varied forms, we find ourselves moving in unexpected ways. Our awareness may expand. We can feel a larger sense of self and wilderness and the creative wholeness of a greater dance.

Sessions will be both indoors and outdoors. Evenings, some day sessions, and most meals will be at Esalen. We will also take short day hikes in Big Sur's backcountry. Participants need not have previous experience in hiking or dance. Come willing and ready to participate in nature's range of motion. $490

Weekend of June 19–21

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman

For workshop description see January 23-25. $250

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais® Approach

Patrick Douce

The work of Moshe Feldenkrais is based on the natural process by which we learned to move as children. During this workshop, soft, easy, gentle movements will be used to increase awareness of the body and to improve the ease and ability of movement. Special emphasis will be placed on the difficulties in movement that arise from chronic conditions such as lower back and neck pain, shoulder pain, tension in the neck and shoulders, and knee injuries. Such conditions can be improved by approaching the difficulties as problems in learning rather than as therapeutic troubles. Situations which were "incurable" become "re-educable." Workshop participants will also be introduced to methods to improve their ability to sense each other's bodies through touch and massage.

Although this workshop will be of value to anyone interested in learning more about his/her body through direct experience, it may be of special interest and benefit to dancers, athletes, doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists, health-care professionals, and elderly citizens, who may discover new ways of moving with ease and increased flexibility—painlessly and immediately.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 36. $250

Professional Training in Ericksonian Methods

Jeffrey Zeig

The hypnotic technique of Milton Erickson offers certain methods of communication that can be applied clinically without formal hypnotic induction. Common everyday trance states can be recognized and utilized naturalistically.

This workshop will consist of lecture, experiential exercises, practice sessions, demonstrations, and observation and discussion of videotapes of Milton Erickson. The videotapes to be presented were taken at Erickson's teaching seminars in Phoenix in 1979 and 1980. Topics for discussion will include Symptom Prescription Reframing, Utilizing Resistance, and Using Anecdotes and Metaphors.

Enrollment is restricted to professionals with graduate degrees in health-related fields or fulltime graduate students in accredited programs in these fields. Students must provide a certifying letter from their school or department on letterhead stationery indicating proof of fulltime status as of June 1987. $250

Wrestling with Angels: UFOs and the Vast Middle Realms

Keith Thompson

"Unless you expect the unexpected you will never find truth, for it is hard to discover and hard to attain."—Heraclitus

"The thing that astonished him was that cats should have two holes cut in their coat exactly at the place where their eyes are."—Lichtenberg

Are UFOs (unidentified flying objects) a physical or a psychological reality, or both? To study the range of sighting reports is to begin to consider the possibility that UFOs travel across the boundaries between matter and mind—forming, in the words of Scott Rogo, a "momentary interface between hyper-dimensions and our world." Reports of those who have been up-close-and-personal with a UFO are suggestive of what Jung calls the psychoid realm, a domain of quasi-physical, quasi-mental realities manifesting as synchronicity—the simultaneous occurrence of a particular psychic state with one or more external events which appear as meaningful parallels to the percipient.

No less interesting than what UFOs really are and where they might really be from is their structural and functional likeness to psychoid phenomena comprising a vast spectrum or continuum of experience. Various esoteric traditions have used the phrase "middle realms" to describe the multi-linked web of unorthodox entities and events with which humans at different times and in different places have interacted, including time-traveling aliens, angels, fairies, poltergeists, The Double, fiery crosses and fiery shields, demons, spectre ships, apparitions of the Virgin Mary, kachinas, shamanic underworld initiations, pillars of fire and smoke, monsters (such as Big Foot, Yeti, Sasquatch, and Mo-Mo), and other examples of what the Tibetan mystical tradition calls tulpas: materialized thought-forms.

The specific focus of this seminar will be the UFO phenomenon as perhaps the premiere techno-mythology of the late twentieth century. Through informal discussion, storytelling, and slide presentations, the seminar will consider the UFO phenomenon in terms of what folklorist Peter Rojcewicz calls "the spectrum of structural frames of reference that different cultures have utilized to describe and order their interactions with spiritual entities." What can be learned by looking at the UFO phenomenon as separate but not separated from other middle realm materializations (such as those listed above) which have been characterized variously as paraphysical, extradimensional, extraterrestrial, ultra-dimensional, and multiple-presence? $250

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Week of June 21–26

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see May 24-29. $490

Five Days with Claudio Naranjo

Claudio Naranjo offers a holistic collage of relaxation, bone-sensing, emotional awareness, and musical contemplation combined with tales, self-insight, communication exercises, catharsis, and limited open seat opportunity. $490

Returning to the Wisdom of Our Earth/Bodies

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

"If a proper reverence for the sanctity of the earth and the diversity of its people is the secret of peace and survival, then the adventure of self-discovery stands before us as the most practical of pleasures."—Theodore Roszak, Person/Planet

Learning about our bodies, our natural instincts, and responses can lead us back to the ancient wisdom of the earth—returning us to our sacredness and wholeness.

The focus of this workshop is to regain an intimate relationship with the natural pulsations and expressions of our bodies, as well as with our environment, through a conscious unfolding of our selves physically, emotionally, mentally, sexually, and spiritually.

In nature, we can observe the rhythms and patterns that occur in every aspect of life—from the pulsation of the cell, to the ebb and flow of our deepest emotions, to the movement and expansion of the universe itself.

The natural world will be our teacher as we explore the "inner" terrain of our physical and emotional bodies and the "outer" terrain of Esalen and Big Sur.

We will use Reichian gestalt awareness and breath work, sound, creative movement, and meditation to balance and transform energy blocks in the body (see January 25-30 description). In addition, we will use music, dance, prayer, and ritual to express our relationship with the earth and each other.

No previous experience is needed, only a willingness to explore this adventure of spirit and discover a deepened sense of the interconnectedness that is inherent in all life-forms.

This workshop is limited to 12 participants.

Recommended reading: Fields, et. al., Chop Wood, Carry Water (J.P. Tarcher); Shakti Gawain, Creative Visualization (Whatever Publishing); Peter Russell, The Global Brain (J.P. Tarcher); Ken Keyes, Jr., The Hundredth Monkey (Vision Books). $490

Weekend of June 26–28

The Biological, Psychological, and Cultural Body: Methods of Transformation

Don Johnson, Coordinator

Featuring:

Bonnie Bainbridge Cohen, creator of the somatic educational system called "Body-Mind Centering."

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, founder of the somatic educational method called "Continuum."

Susan Griffin, author of Woman and Nature, Pornography and Silence, presently at work on a book about nuclear war, The First and The Last: A Woman Thinks About War.

Thomas Hanna, philosopher and Feldenkrais® practitioner, author of several books in the somatic field, founder and editor of the journal Somatics.

Don Johnson, somatic educator and author, conference coordinator.

Jack Kornfield, teacher of Vipassana meditation, author.

George Leonard, creator of Leonard Energy Training, teacher of aikido, author of several books and articles.

Ted Melnechuk, psychoneuroimmunologist, associate editor of Advances: Journal of the Institute for the Advancement of Health.

Michael Murphy, author, co-founder of Esalen Institute.

Moses Pendleton, co-founder of Pilobolus and current director of the Momix dance company.

Candace Pert, neuroscientist, director of the section on brain biochemistry, National Institute of Mental Health.

During the week of June 21-26, several leaders in various fields related to the human body will discuss their work and their visions of the future. On the weekend of June 26-28, they will present the results of their conference to the public. Each presenter will discuss his or her work and a vision of the body's future. There will be opportunities for dialogue among the presenters, questions from the audience, and experiential sessions. For more information, please refer to the Notes section, page 4.

$250

Joyce Rogers Lyke

The Big House

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is for those who are interested in total immersion in the Esalen environment. It is a work-oriented program, emotionally and physically. Only rarely is it restful. Participants make a commitment to work 32 hours per week in such areas as gardening, landscaping, the farm, maintenance, kitchen, and cabins. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs. No Participants will be accepted as work scholars in Gazebo or the office until they have fulfilled a minimum of one month in one of the aforementioned departments.

Most evenings and two intensive weekends are spent together as a group exploring different practices and approaches available at Esalen, with specifically assigned leaders who will be with the group throughout the month, coordinating the study schedule and facilitating many of the evening sessions.

The program is usually divided into two sections each month: a general interest section which covers a variety of growth approaches, and a focused interest section which emphasizes one type of growth practice, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage or body work, etc. Participants in the focused programs must be prepared to stay at Esalen for the full duration designated for that particular program, assuming that they meet the standards of the Work Study Program.

Focused programs planned thus far for 1987 include:

January 4–March 29: Esalen massage practitioners offer a three-month program in body work, with instruction in massage, movement, and self-care. For more information, see Massage Practitioner Certification Program, Special Programs, page 34. The cost of this program is: $800 first month, $750 second month, $700 third month.

March 29–April 26: Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita) and Gordy Ryan offer an integrated program in practical approaches to enlivening and freeing the human spirit through breath and body work, gestalt, music, movement, meditation, and African ritual.

April 26–May 24: Jessica Moore Britt and Elliot Sobel offer a study of energy and pulsation using gestalt, awareness practice, Reichian breath work, Continuum movement and sound work, and the expressive arts.

June 21–July 19: Mary Goldenson (Devarani) will facilitate an intensive month which will allow participants the experience of letting go and moving on, using Reichian methods, Radix®, dance, imagery, gestalt, and meditation.

July 19–September 13: Seymour Carter coordinates a two-month program focusing on gestalt practice, with emphasis for, but not limited to, professionals.

September 13–October 11: Mary Goldenson (Devarani). For description, see June 21-July 19.

In as much as the Work Study Program is a complete program in itself, please do not plan to take regularly scheduled catalog workshops during your stay. Professional services, such as massage and Rolfing®, are available at staff rates.

Accommodations are shared, with up to four people to a room, usually at South Coast Center, a staff complex located 1½ miles north of Esalen.

A deposit of $350 in U.S. currency is required with your application. The cost of all 28-day Work Study Programs, except the three-month body work program, is $700 first month, $650 second month, $600 third month. Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second month or a third month depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

NOTE: This application is not a registration in the program. Registration is made only after approval of application and upon receipt of deposit. Please return this form with your deposit to:

Work Study Program, Esalen Institute,
Big Sur, CA 93920. Telephone: (408) 667-2335.

The balance of the fee is due on arrival. Of the original deposit, $100 is non-refundable, and may be transferred to other Esalen programs within one year of receipt.

Available dates: January 4–February 1; February 1–March 1; March 1–March 29; March 29–April 26; April 26–May 24; May 24–June 21; June 21–July 19; July 19–August 16; August 16–September 13; September 13–October 11; October 11–November 8; November 8–December 6; December 6–January 3; etc.

Application to the Work Study Program

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

Date of Birth _____ Occupation _____ Place of Employment _____

Daytime Telephone (_____) _____ Date of Application _____

Evening Telephone (_____) _____ Male ☐ Female ☐ Smoker ☐ Non-smoker ☐

I prefer the general interest program: yes ☐ no ☐ I prefer the focused program in: _____

Participants in the focused programs must be prepared to stay at Esalen for the full duration designated for that particular program.

The Work Study Program is for 28 days, beginning on a Sunday. Please list the dates of your choice, listing two alternative dates as well.

1st: _____ to _____ 2nd: _____ to _____ 3rd: _____ to _____

Work scholars may be invited to remain for a second or third month, depending on space available and the needs of the Esalen community. Please indicate your availability should an invitation be extended. (Not applicable to focused program applicants.) ☐ No extension ☐ One-month extension ☐ Two-month extension. Assignments to departments are made according to community labor needs.

If you have emergency medical skills (M.D., E.M.T., or R.N.) and are willing to make those skills available during your stay, please check here. ☐

Please attach a personal statement about your interest in the Work Study Program. Include: applicable skills (gardening, kitchen, mechanical, etc.); medical difficulties which might affect your working in particular departments; previous Esalen workshops you have attended (please list program titles, group leaders, and dates). Note: Fluency in the English language is essential for participation in the program.

Special Programs

Nigerian Musician, Babatunde Olatunji

January 4-23, 1987
Tutorial in Shamanic Healing and Shamanic Counseling

Michael Harner

This three-week intensive training course emphasizes universal core methods of shamanism, such as the classic shamanic journey, and their practical applications to contemporary life. The small group of approximately sixteen students will practice and live together in the Big House.

For information or to apply, write to Michael Harner, Center for Shamanic Studies, Belden Station, Norwalk, CT 06852. (203) 454-2827.

March 1-20, 1987
Sustaining Integration: Body, Self, and Soul

Jack Rosenberg

This workshop will start wherever participants are in their inner journey. The work is an in-depth integration of body and gestalt practices, object relations, and the transformative process of consciousness.

The course will cover:

Psychology of the Self: Participants will work with early unfinished situations that interrupt their sense of well-being and interfere with their relationships in the present. Sexual implications of this work will be dealt with in body work and in lecture.

Body Work (Integrative Body Approach): This will be theoretical and practical application, combining Integrative Body Practice, exercise, and massage.

Transformative Process of Consciousness: As the inner journey progresses, one's figure/ground is shifted from "doing" and "having" to "being" and to one's relationship with the eternal. Participants will explore ways to integrate and sustain these new awarenesses in their everyday lives. $1595

March 1-22, 1987
Continuum Movement: An Approach to Deep Bodily Awareness

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud & Susan Harper

Within our skin is a world of movement, not just the familiar movement of liquids and organs, but a dance of intelligent life. This is an invitation to dance.

This Inner movement is different from spatial movements such as walking. We call it "intrinsic movement." It is a great facilitator of the body's healing powers, a source for the development of an organic awareness that is fundamental to all intelligence, and a way to understand movement as what we are, rather than an activity we do.

This workshop will focus on breath, sound, and what we call the "movement of movements."

Each breath is like a motif or theme of a musical composition. The implications of the orchestration involve a re-ordering of our nervous system, refinement of our sense perception, and the ability to pay attention at the deeply organic levels of movement where molecules spin and cells commune.

Sound also plays an enormous part in these orchestrations, making the breath audible. Through audible breath we create new possibilities in our ability to affect ourselves, both as healers and as a way to tune ourselves to the evolutionary thrust on earth.

The movement of movements is the overall flow in the many eddying patterns of bodily motion. Some of these movements can be experienced as wavelike undulates, some are pulsing micromovements, some have the vibratory hum of tissue, and some have the sparkling charge of an electrical current. When all these different movements flow together without interference, we call this "fluidity."

The workshop will be open to both advanced and beginning participants. $1720

March 1-27, 1987
Certification in Clinical Hypnosis

Eli Jaxon-Bear

This course will synthesize neurolinguistics and Ericksonian hypnosis and will draw heavily from the pioneering work being done with the Enneagram of personality and Stanislav Grof's "cartography of inner space." While completing the M.F.C.C. coursework and satisfying the California state requirement for hypnosis certification, participants will go beyond what is required and explore the realms of the unknown.

While the use of hypnosis in habit control and symptom removal will be covered, a primary focus will be on hypnosis as an emerging tool of spiritual emergence/emergency. The roots of personality structure and the filters of perception in the creation and transformation of reality will also be examined.

All successful clinical applications depend upon complete pacing of the client's reality. The structure of rapport, pacing and leading, and various hypnotic patterns of induction will be studied, along with a variety of clinical interventions, including reframing, change history, metaphors, and story telling.

The group will watch videotapes of Erickson and have daily practice with each other. They will also have the opportunity to be videotaped doing a hypnotic induction.

Successful completion of the seminar and demonstrated proficiency will lead to certification in clinical hypnosis.

Recommended reading: J. Haley, Uncommon Therapy, Strategies of Psychotherapy; S. Grof, Realms of the Human Unconscious, Beyond the Brain; Bandler and Grinder, Tranceformations, Frogs into Princes, and Reframing.

For further information please write: Eli Jaxon-Bear, Institute for Advanced Hypnosis, P.O. Box 1311, Mill Valley, CA 94942.

C.E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 36. $1960

March 27-April 24, 1987
Massage Practitioner Program

Deborah Anne Medow, Brita Ostrom & Esalen Massage Practitioners

This month-long program offers, at a professional level, intensive instruction in massage practice, movement, and self-care. The emphasis will be on developing basic massage skills through daily lecture-demonstrations, "hands-on" practice sessions using each other as models, illustrated anatomy classes, and instruction in the basic principles of alignment. Meditation and gestalt awareness sessions will be scheduled regularly throughout the program for deeper, more integrative learning.

Body work will be studied as a tool for optimal well-being and stress reduction, and as a valued aid to transpersonal growth. Workshop sessions will meet Sunday through Friday and on alternate weekends. Upon satisfactory completion of the program, and after giving 30 additional recorded massage sessions, a California state-approved certificate of completion will be issued. This is a professional program, with limited admission. Please request an application form when you make your reservation. $2120

April 5–May 1, 1987
Gestalt Practice: A Practicum

Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

Gestalt practice is an experiential form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls. In this practice, the quality of one's awareness is made primary, especially as focused on breath and physical sensation. See page 8 for a more detailed description.

This program is designed for people with established client-oriented practices, such as counselors, body workers, nurses, teachers, etc., who would like to integrate gestalt practice skills in their professional life as well as have concentrated time to attend to their personal growth. The curriculum will include sessions in which participants work individually with the leaders in a group setting ("open seat" work) as well as practicum sessions when group members work with each other in supervised situations. Some sessions will be videotaped for review and discussion. Although gestalt practice is the primary focus, related approaches will be presented, especially those which enhance ability to focus awareness on breath and the body.

This is a scholarship program and all participants are required to work sixteen hours per week in the Esalen community. This work commitment is part of the program, and participation is contingent on its fulfillment. Some additional scholarship assistance is available. To apply for the workshop, send a brief letter describing your present work and how you imagine this experience would relate to your professional and personal growth. Address application to Christine Stewart Price, c/o Esalen. $1485

April 10–24, 1987
Spiritual/Esoteric Practice: The Key to Intuitive and Psychic Development

Anne & Jim Armstrong

A well-developed, directable intuition is a natural, healthy outgrowth of self-realization. But unless we are willing to create the proper environment through self-discipline, meditation, and mindfulness of everything we think, feel, say, or do, this powerful force will remain dormant within us.

This two-week workshop will concentrate on building a firm esoteric/spiritual foundation for serious students interested in using intuition in their lives and professions. This will be accomplished by drawing from many ancient and modern spiritual disciplines, including meditation and yoga, while emphasizing the spiritual and ethical use of the intuitive/psychic process.

Through lecture, basic exercises, and practice on selected cases, participants can learn to recognize, trust, and apply their own psi abilities. During the exercises, Anne Armstrong will use her tracking abilities to assist participants in arriving at useful, accurate data.

Although esoteric and metaphysical explanations and background will be presented where appropriate, this is not a primary goal of the program. Particular attention will be placed on helping the participants differentiate between perception and projection and between psychic and intuitive input. $1230

May 3–29, 1987
The Mystical Quest, Attachment, and Addiction

Christina Grof, Stanislav Grof & Jacquelyn Small

This four-week interdisciplinary educational program is designed to explore the relationship between spirituality, addiction, and chemical dependency. It is especially relevant for professionals, students, and others interested in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, drug rehabilitation, religion, and philosophy. Participants and guest faculty will examine the nature of addictions and outline an approach combining traditional and transpersonal strategies as practiced by Jacquelyn Small and the Grofs.

Topics to be covered include:

1. Spiritual Quest, Attachment, and Addiction. Visiting teachers of Buddhism and Christian mysticism will explore with the group the nature of the transcendental impulse in human beings as it relates to the thesis of this seminar. Experts in the area of addiction propose that the twelve steps of Alcoholics Anonymous and transpersonal processes are a Western sadhana and context for spiritual awakening. Special attention will be paid to the promises and pitfalls of the spiritual path, the difference between spirituality and religion, the dynamics of attachment and non-attachment, the importance of service, and the relationship between mysticism and addiction.

2. Modern Insights into the Nature and Roots of Addiction. Modern psychological theories of addiction and chemical dependency will be examined. These include: Gregory Bateson's model based on systems theory and cybernetics, the birth trauma and prenatal factors, the Jungian understanding of archetypal dynamics, the mythological theme of the hero's journey, and the differences between ego integration and ego transcendence. The biological factors underlying chemical dependency and their interaction with the psychological and spiritual elements will also be discussed.

3. Transpersonal Psychology and Emerging Paradigm in Western Science. This will be a theoretical and experiential look at transpersonal psychology, the most recent movement in Western psychology that acknowledges and explores human spirituality with scientific principles and methods. The increasing convergence between modern consciousness research and the great mystical traditions and spiritual philosophies of the East will be compared to the revolutionary developments in other disciplines. This is the so-called "emerging paradigm."

4. Spiritual Emergency or Transpersonal Crisis. This aspect of the program will study observations from various disciplines that suggest that certain non-ordinary states of consciousness currently diagnosed and treated by traditional psychiatry as medical problems—mental diseases of unknown etiology—can be seen as difficult stages of spiritual development and evolutionary crises.

5. Self-exploration and Group Process. This experimental educational format combines lecture with experiential and group processes. For this purpose, participants will use various forms of Buddhist meditation, controlled breathing, music and guided musical imagery, focused body work, mandala drawing, psychic/intuitive counseling and training, massage, etc. The coordinators, visiting guest faculty, and the Esalen staff will function as facilitators for participants throughout the workshop.

Please note that this is an educational program, not a therapeutic program. The Esalen Institute is not licensed or equipped as a treatment facility.

A limited number of partial working scholarships will be available on the basis of need. Address your application, along with a biographical letter, to: Christina Grof, "Re: May 1987 Month-long Program," Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. $1960

Gazebo Internship Program

Openings are now available at the Gazebo School for a one-to-three-month intensive internship in early childhood education with an emphasis on cognitive development and psychosocial skills. For an application, write to Bette Dingman, Gazebo Internship Program, Esalen Institute.

Massage Practitioner Certification Program

Esalen is now offering a California state-approved program. Upon successful completion of the three-month work scholar track, (see page 31), or four-week massage practitioner workshop, (see Special Programs, page 33), and after giving 30 additional massages elsewhere, graduates will receive their certificates. Each program provides at least 130 hours of instruction, supplemented by additional study in body-mind disciplines such as yoga, gestalt awareness work, and movement, fulfilling the state requirement.

Healthspring Traveling Workshops

The Esalen massage teachers and their associates have created Healthspring, an independent organization devoted to extending their work into an outreach program. The workshops offer practices to stimulate physical and spiritual health and awareness within the body, and can be designed to suit the needs of individual groups. The curriculum combines such approaches as massage, meditation, dance, neo-Reichian work, creative movement, gestalt, yoga, breath enhancement, anatomy, and other health-strengthening disciplines.

Healthspring will conduct workshops at locations outside of Esalen in your hometown or city. For more information on scheduling a Healthspring group in your community, write to: Healthspring Traveling Workshops, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

First Reunion of European Work Scholars

We are planning to meet with European work scholar alumni at a retreat center between Frankfurt and Cologne, Germany, May 28-31, 1987. Visiting Esalen facilitators will include Jessica Moore Britt, Bette Dingman, Christine Stewart Price, and John Soper. For further information and reservations, contact Eberhard Schwartz, Menzelstr. 1, 1000 Berlin 41, 030-855-7504.

Future Programs

July 3-5, 1987
A Special Weekend Celebration with Babatunde Olatunji

with Ijalu Akanbe, Tao Tamakloe & Gordy Ryan

During this weekend, Nigerian musician Baba Olatunji will show how drum sounds and rhythms communicate, stimulate, and pace the activities of traditional African life. He will teach the consonants of the Yoruba language, reproducing its sounds on drums and through chants, body percussion, and dance.

Olatunji has been bridging the gap between American and African culture for thirty years and brings his ensemble to Esalen for this special Fourth of July weekend. This is an opportunity to spend two days and two nights at Esalen enjoying the grounds, the baths, massage, and the community without participating in a structured group. Dancers, percussionists, musicians, and anyone who wants to speak the language of the drums is welcome. Bring a drum if you have one. $200

Search for Participants in a Historic Workshop

On the weekend of July 21-23, 1967, 38 people of varying races gathered for the first-ever interracial marathon encounter at Esalen. This workshop, co-led by Price Cobbs and George Leonard, inspired hundreds of similar gatherings throughout the nation. Now, in preparation for a 20th anniversary workshop to be held at Esalen in July 1987, we are seeking to contact all participants in the original workshop.

If you participated in the workshop or know of someone who did, please write Price Cobbs, Pacific Management Systems, 3528 Sacramento Street, San Francisco, CA 94118.

Anyone interested in enrolling in the 1987 workshop, whether an original participant or not, please watch for the course description and dates in the May-October 1987 catalog.

September 11-November 6, 1987
The Modern Warrior: A Certification Program in Leonard Energy Training

Jack Cirie, George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

This will be an intensive, rigorous, eight-week program leading to possible certification as a Leonard Energy Trainer. Leonard Energy Training (LET) is a comprehensive practice inspired by the Eastern art of aikido and Western psychology. LET teaches alternative ways of dealing with daily life problems and offers the possibility of high-level functioning appropriate to the ideal of the modern peaceful warrior.

In addition to learning how to present LET exercises, the participants in this course will receive training in movement (aikido and aiki-sword), meditation forms, written and oral communication skills, emotional and spiritual experiences, and state of the art fitness work adjusted to individual levels of readiness.

This course will be challenging and unique. Participation will be limited to ten men and women.

For further information write Jack Cirie, 1500 Broadway East, Seattle, WA 98102, or phone (206) 624-7579 or (202) 547-0320.

October 11-November 6, 1987
The Promethean Impulse: Spirituality, Creation, and Creativity

Christina & Stanislav Grof

For more information write Christina Grof, "Re: The Promethean Impulse," Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

European-American Intensive Training Seminar in Transpersonal Studies

Cosponsored by the California Institute of Integral Studies, the German Transpersonal Association, and Esalen Institute

This two-week training will take place at a beautiful site in the Canary Islands in October/November 1987 (exact dates to be determined). It is designed for therapists and students who wish to enhance their professional and personal development through findings derived from consciousness research and from the esoteric, meditative, mythic, and symbolic traditions.

Individuals from Europe and North America will participate in seminar talks, trainings, and symbolic rituals. Faculty from the U.S. will include: Angeles Arrien (anthropology, symbolism), Stanislav and Christina Grof (transpersonal therapy, spiritual emergencies), Ralph Metzner (east-west psychology, transformation); and from Germany: Peter Orban (imagery therapy, esoteric studies) and Norbert Mayer (initiatory therapy, ritual). The exact cost is yet to be determined, but will be approximately $1500 for accommodations and tuition. Travel fare is not included.

For further details and application information, contact Ralph Metzner, California Institute of Integral Studies, 765 Ashbury Street, San Francisco, CA 94117.

Somatic Training for Professionals

This training, whose design will be developed by various people participating in the June 1987 invitational conference on the body, is for people in the helping professions—nurses, social workers, physicians, counselors, physical therapists, etc.—who are interested in expanding their skills for working with the human body. It will focus on refining the most basic aspects of work with the body, including: the perceptual abilities to see, touch, and listen; an understanding of the development of body image; an examination of movement patterns and breath; and how these various aspects of the body are related to one's emotional life patterns of health and sickness. We will give particular attention to how somatic strategies can be used in dealing with specific problems such as addictive behavior and eating disorders.

The faculty for the training will include Don Johnson and other members of the Antioch University Somatics program, Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, founder of Continuum, and various pioneers in the field.

The training will last several weeks, taking place either over the course of a year in which participants will take one five-day intensive every two months or a month-long intensive. If you are interested in such a training, please indicate what schedule would be best for you by writing to:

Don Johnson
Director, Somatic Psychology and Education
Antioch University
650 Pine Street
San Francisco, CA 94108

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state-approved provider of Continuing Education for health professionals. Only those programs specifically listed below offer continuing education credit. See workshop descriptions elsewhere in the catalog. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category I approval. Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Physicians

March 1-27
Certification in Clinical Hypnosis
Eli Jaxon-Bear
30 hours

May 8-10
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson
10 hours

Registered Nurses

January 4-9
Craniosacral System: Basic Workshop
Jim Asher & Jane Harrington
30 hours

January 18-23
Beyond Anatomy: Feldenkrais® for Body Workers
Patrick Douce
30 hours

February 27-March 1
Anatomy for Trager℠ Students
Deane Juhan
12 hours; C.E. credit is available through the Trager Institute.

March 1-27
Certification in Clinical Hypnosis
Eli Jaxon-Bear
30 hours

March 27-April 24
Massage Practitioner Certification Program
Esalen Massage Practitioners
30 hours

March 29-April 3
Enhanced Human Performance through Biofeedback Training
Joel & Michelle Levey
30 hours

Cynthia Bianchetta

May 8-10
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson
10 hours

June 7-12
Intermediate Cranial Workshop
Jim Asher & Jane Harrington
30 hours

June 19-21
Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement:
A Feldenkrais® Approach
Patrick Douce
10 hours

Wilderness Programs

Esalen Wilderness Programs Refund Policy

Most expenses in wilderness programs are incurred preparing for your arrival. The refund policy reflects the fact that few of these expenses can be recovered.

To reserve a space in a wilderness workshop, we require the following deposit:

1-3 days	$50
4-7 days	$100
Over 8 days	$200

The balance of the fee is due 14 days before the program begins. If you cancel prior to 30 days before the program begins, your nonrefundable deposit may be applied to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year. If you cancel from 30 days up to the starting date of the trip, your deposit is forfeited.

May 1-9
Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Steven Harper & Joyce Rogers Lyke

Nature can provide us with opportunities to stretch our limits and explore our inner wilderness. By living in a natural environment we can expand our sense of self and depth of being.

The group will spend a day and a night at Esalen, leaving the next morning to hike through the Ventana wilderness. We will travel "light," with instruction in minimum impact camping, ecology, and the geography and cultural history of the area.

Wilderness will be our mirror and primary teacher as we live simply and in direct contact with nature. We will explore our inner world of dreams, feelings, and sensations as they emerge, using gestalt awareness practice and group process. Taking inspiration from natural and native purification practices, we will create a time of cleansing and contemplation, culminating in a 24-hour period alone. The group will hike on to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center, deep in a rugged wilderness valley with natural hot springs, for our last night together. There, meditation instruction will be available for those who wish it. Backpacking experience is not necessary, though participants should be prepared for the challenge of vigorous physical activity. More information will be sent upon registration. $495

Biographical Information

A

Margot Adler, p. 23 ..... author of Drawing Down the Moon and reporter for National Public Radio, has been involved with Goddess and Pagan spiritual paths for fifteen years.

Stephen Aizenstat, p. 14, 25 ..... clinical director of the Human Relations Institute, has conducted dream groups throughout the U.S. and recently completed a comprehensive research project on methods of dream analysis.

Ijalu Akanbe p. 35 ..... has danced with Olatunji for 22 years and is dance captain of the Drums of Passion Dancers.

Cheryl Armon p. 19 ..... is the director of the undergraduate program at Antioch University, Los Angeles. Her teaching and research work focus on values development and moral education.

Anne Armstrong p. 12, 21, 34 ..... has been doing transpersonal counseling for over 18 years and has trained professionals to use their own intuitive abilities.

Jim Armstrong, p. 12, 21, 34 ..... a former engineer, is a lifelong student and teacher of esoteric studies.

Elliot Aronson, p. 15, 23, 36 ..... professor of psychology at UC Santa Cruz, is author of 12 books, including Burnout (with Ayala Pines).

Angeles Arrien p. 28 ..... is an anthropologist and specialist in Basque mysticism. She teaches courses in cross-cultural approaches to healing, myths, and symbols.

Jim Asher p. 11, 27, 36 ..... has been practicing cranial work since 1973. He is a Rolfing® teacher and an advanced Rolfer, certified by Ida Rolf.

Debbie Austin, p. 13 ..... former track and field athletics coach, has expertise in the application of sports psychology methods to psychokinesis training.

B

Nancy Bacal, p. 23 ..... novelist, lyricist, filmmaker, screenwriter, has taught writing workshops for years. Student of meditation and aikido, her work includes the award-winning film, RAGA, starring Ravi Shankar.

Jamie Baraz p. 13 ..... has taught vipassana (insight) meditation with Joseph Goldstein, Jack Kornfield, and Stephen Levine in the U.S. and Asia. He has led San Francisco area classes and retreats since 1977.

Daniel Bianchetta ..... practices intuitive readings, shiatsu, and deep tissue work at Esalen. He is a teacher and student of Siddha yoga.

Charles Blakeney p. 27 ..... directs Berkeley Academy and advises the White House Domestic Policy council. He does research and training on moral insanity and moral misbehavior.

Ronnie Blakeney p. 27 ..... works with disturbed adolescents and consults the White House on welfare. She studies racial discordance, morality, identity, and emotional development.

Julie Bowden, p. 23 ..... co-author of Guide to Recovery and Genesis: A Spiritual Beginning, is a founding and current board member of the National Association for Children of Alcoholics.

Jessica Moore Britt p. 8, 17, 20, 31 ..... is a senior teacher of gestalt and Reichian work at Esalen. She is a member of the Ridwan Work School, dedicated to understanding personality and essential development.

C

Joseph Campbell p. 19 ..... is a professor emeritus at Sarah Lawrence College. He is a mythologist, lecturer, and author of The Hero with a Thousand Faces, The Masks of God, and Myths to Live By.

Paul Carter, p. 26 ..... co-founder and director of Meta-Education and Training Arts since 1976, leads workshops in the U.S. and Europe on Ericksonian hypnosis, creativity, and learning.

Seymour Carter, p. 25, 31 ..... longtime gestalt teacher at Esalen and in Europe, combines studies in sensory awareness, Zen Buddhism, aikido, and other body-oriented practices.

Michell Cassou p. 22 ..... is the founder of an original approach to painting designed to stimulate and unblock creativity. She is director of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Stanford Eugene Cates p. 14, 15, 18, 19, 21, 22 ..... is an ordained minister, gestalt facilitator, and Trager℠ bodyworker. He has worked with Paul Rebillot in the U.S. and Europe for seven years.

Danner Lief Christensen p. 16 ..... has been interested in becoming a man ever since he was born in 1950.

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud p. 18, 30, 33 ..... is the founder of Continuum. Her innovative approach to movement has enhanced the creativity of artists in many fields and has led to new insights into the healing process.

Stewart Cubley, p. 17, 22 ..... artist and scientist, is co-founder with Michell Cassou of the Expressive Painting Studio in San Francisco.

Dale Cummings, p. 25 ..... certified Radix® teacher and counselor in private practice in West Los Angeles, is director of first-year training for the Radix Institute in Ojai.

D

John Davis p. 21 ..... teaches stress management and personal and transpersonal growth to individuals and organizations using the Diamond Approach, biofeedback, Reichian work, and wilderness vision quests.

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita), p. 13, 29, 31 — a certified Radix® teacher on the Esalen faculty, has 12 years of experience combining Reichian body work, gestalt, Bates vision work, movement, and meditation in group and private instruction.

Patrick Douce, p. 12, 28, 36 — a resident at Esalen since 1972, teaches ongoing classes in Feldenkrais Awareness Through Movement® and is available for individual sessions in Functional Integration®.

E

Esalen Massage Practitioners p. 20, 25, 28, 29, 31, 33, 36 — Char Brenner, Peggy Horan, Deane Juhan, George King, Bill Liles, Deborah Medow, Jaime Morton, Laurie Muller, Arthur Munyer, Brita Ostrom, Laurie Schutz, Vicki Topp, and Attila Vaas.

Danielle Evans, p. 26 — a third-degree black belt in aikido, is the head female instructor of Model Mugging Women's Self Defense and has pioneered women's empowerment groups throughout the U.S.

F

James Fadiman p. 16 — consults, writes, teaches, and lectures damn near everywhere. He has given workshops at Esalen for 20 years and worked with stories for 10.

David Feinstein, p. 15 — a psychologist, is director of Innersource in Ashland, Oregon, and has taught at Antioch College and the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

Jerry Fletcher p. 13, 28 — is president and founder of High Performance Dynamics, Inc., a management consulting and training company based in Richmond, California.

Kathleen Brown Fletcher p. 13, 28 — is a trainer and consultant in organizational development, working in both the profit and non-profit sectors.

Joyce Frazee, p. 18 — gestalt and dream work practitioner in Vancouver, Canada, for 14 years, has training in Jungian dream analysis, bioenergetics, and group process.

G

Elinor Gadon, p. 24 — author of the forthcoming book, The Once and Future Goddess, is a cultural historian who has documented images of the body in many religious traditions.

Herbert Gold p. 18 — has published over 20 books, most recently Lovers and Cohorts, collected stories, and A Girl of Forty, a novel. He has taught at Cornell, Harvard, Stanford, and UC.

Mary Goldenson, (Devarani) p. 14, 20, 23, 31 — a chiropractor, certified Radix® teacher and doctoral candidate in clinical psychology, is in private practice in Los Angeles.

Joe D. Goldstrich, p. 14 — author of The Best Chance Diet, cardiologist, and past medical director of the Pritikin Longevity Center, currently practices homeopathy in Pacific Palisades, California.

Herbert Gravitz, p. 23 — psychologist, is a founding and current board member of the National Association for Children of Alcoholics. He co-authored Guide to Recovery and Genesis: A Spiritual Beginning.

Tom Greening p. 12 — is a clinical psychologist, editor of the Journal of Humanistic Psychology, and has made three trips to the Soviet Union.

Christina Grof p.12, 13, 15, 17, 23, 34, 35 — studied with Swami Muktananda and has a special interest in the relationship between mysticism and psychosis. She is founder of the Spiritual Emergency Network and co-author of Beyond Death.

Stanislav Grof, p. 12, 13, 15, 17, 23, 34, 35 — a psychiatrist who has extensive experience in consciousness research with and without psychedelics, is author of Realms of the Human Unconscious, LSD Psychotherapy, and Beyond the Brain.

Richard Gunther, p. 14 — a business entrepreneur, has for 25 years studied the problems and possibilities of mid-life, and is co-author of Who Needs Mid-Life at Your Age?

H

Betsy Hand p. 14, 26 — has worked as a nurse, family counselor, group leader, manager, and consultant in the health care field for over 25 years.

Thomas Hanna p. 14, 30 — is director of the Novato Institute for Somatic Research and Training, editor of Somatics magazine, and author of The Body of Life and Bodies in Revolt.

Michael Harner, p. 11, 26, 33 — an anthropologist who has studied shamanism among South and North American Indians for more than two decades, authored The Way of the Shaman and Hallucinogens and Shamanism.

Steven Harper p. 23, 25, 26, 28, 36 — teaches for Colorado Outward Bound and the National Outdoor Leadership School, and is currently the coordinator of the Esalen Wilderness Programs.

Susan Harper p. 18, 28, 33 — teaches Continuum Dance Meditation workshops in Los Angeles and San Francisco, leads "Dance the River" trips on wild rivers, and has presented at the Joy-Spangler Asilomar Conference.

Jane Harrington p. 11, 27, 36 — holds a masters degree from Lone Mountain College and is a certified Rolf-movement teacher with extensive craniosacral experience.

Richard Strozzi Heckler, p. 25 — psychologist, has a third-degree black belt in aikido. He is co-founder of the Lomi School, author of The Anatomy of Change, and editor of Aikido and the New Warrior.

John Heider, p. 24 — a psychologist in private practice in Coconut Grove, Florida, is a group leader and teacher of group leaders. He was part of the Esalen Residential Program from 1967-71.

Stephan Hoeller p. 26 — is a leading exponent of the Gnostic movement today. He is director of the Gnostic Society and regionary bishop of Ecclesia Gnostica, both of Los Angeles.

Paul Horn p. 11 — is a flutist, jazz musician, creator of the Inside albums, philosopher, and teacher of meditation.

Chungliang Al Huang ..... is a t'ai chi dancer, artist-calligrapher, and philosophical entertainer. He is founder / president of Living Tao Foundation, and director of the Lan Ting Institute, Wu Yi Mountain, China.
p. 11, 12, 19, 20

Terry Hunt, ... a licensed psychologist practicing bioenergetic analysis in Boston, directs a flotation tank center for amelioration of somatic and addictive disorders.
p. 17, 30

Julian Isaacs, ... director of parapsychological research at John F. Kennedy University, Orinda, California, has pioneered and investigated the training of psychokinetic ability for eight years.
p. 13

J

Eli Jaxon-Bear, ... former staff research associate in psychology at UCLA and past president of a Tibetan Buddhist meditation center, practices Ericksonian hypnosis, and is a master practitioner of NLP.
p. 16, 18, 33, 36

Don Johnson, ... author of Body and The Protean Body, is coordinator of the graduate studies program in somatic psychology and education at Antioch University in San Francisco.
p. 24, 30, 35

Deane Juhan, ... a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years, is a certified practitioner of Trager℠ psycho-physical integration.
p. 18, 36

K

Neil Karp, ... practicing psychiatrist, directs the Stress Reduction Associates Medical Group in Santa Barbara, California, a pain and stress management center.
p. 14

Daria Khalighi, ... teacher and counselor, developed the Creative Process Method, integrating art and psychology to facilitate creative expression and growth. She is co-founder of Tamalpa Institute.
p. 24

Alexandrea Kovats, ... a sister of the Order of St. Joseph of Peace, is program director of the Institute for Culture and Creation Spirituality in Oakland, CA.
p. 20

Paul Krassner, ... co-founder of the Yippies and a stand-up comic since 1953, is author of Impolite Interviews and Tales of Tongue Fu, and editor of Lenny Bruce's autobiography.
p. 28

Mari Krieger ..... is a counselor in full-time practice. She works with individuals, couples, groups, and organizations, and teaches at John F. Kennedy University.
p. 21

Stanley Krippner, ... psychologist, researcher, and director of Saybrook Institute's Center for Consciousness Studies, authored / co-authored Human Possibilities, Realms of Healing, and Dream Telepathy.
p. 15

L

Benj Langdon, ... former coordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body, is currently exploring transformation through body practices.

Jean Lanier, ... gestalt awareness teacher and counselor, is a faculty member of the Institute for Culture and Creation Spirituality in Oakland, CA, where creativity is understood as a spiritual process.
p. 20

Sidney Lanier, ... longtime friend of Esalen, with a wide experience in humanistic psychology and contemporary theater, is an associate of Stephan Hoeller at the Ecclesia Gnostica.
p. 26

Lenore Lefer ..... has a private practice in San Francisco, is on the training staff of the Psychosynthesis Institutes of London and San Francisco, and teaches at the California Institute of Transpersonal Psychology.
p. 17

Annie Styron Leonard ..... is a founder of the Energy Training Institute in Mill Valley, California, and an aikido black belt.
p. 25, 35

George Leonard, ... author of Education and Ecstasy, The Ultimate Athlete, and The Silent Pulse, was a longtime senior editor of Look and is currently a contributing editor of Esquire.
p. 25, 30, 35

Joel Levey, ... director / imagineer of biofeedback programs for SportsMind Inc., Biocybernaut Institute, and American Biotechnology Corporation, practices Tibetan, Vipassana, and Sufi meditation traditions.
p. 20, 36

Michelle Levey, ... teacher of human transformation, applied wisdom, and compassion meditations, is research / training assistant for SportsMind Inc., Biocybernaut Institute, and American Biotechnology Corporation.
p. 20, 36

Alan Lithman (Savitra), ... an 18-year resident of Auroville who remained in India after his meeting with the Mother, is the author of Auroville: A Trust for the Earth.
p. 24

Nancy Kaye Lunney, ... a gestalt practitioner at Esalen since 1977, is a vocal coach and accompanist for well-known professional entertainers. She is manager of programming and a trustee at Esalen.
p. 24

Joyce Rogers Lyke ..... is a practitioner of gestalt and photographer for the Esalen Catalog.
p. 23, 36

M

Will McWhinney ..... is on the senior faculty of the Fielding Institute, consultant, former associate professor, UCLA, and president-elect of AHP.
p. 12

Deborah Anne Medow, ... Esalen group leader and body work practitioner since 1969, teaches ashtanga yoga, massage, creative movement, gestalt awareness, and related healing disciplines throughout the U.S. and Europe.
p. 8, 33

Ailish Mellard, ... holistic health practitioner and body worker for 12 years, is currently organizational consultant for Will Schutz Associates, which teaches human potential concepts for various organizations.
p. 17, 19

Donald Michael, ... professor emeritus of planning and public policy and professor of psychology, University of Michigan, is the author of On Learning to Plan and Planning to Learn.
p. 23

Jane Miletich, ... a longtime Big Sur resident and Esalen masseuse, is instructor of hatha yoga, t'ai chi, and transitional cleansing diets; student of midwifery, birth, and death; and bearer of ritual.
p. 8

Marghe Mills ..... is co-author of Developmental Movement Therapy with Bonnie Cohen, certified Feldenkrais teacher, faculty member, Dominican College, and in private practice in Marin County and San Francisco.
p. 27

N O P R S

Ian Mitroff ..... is Distinguished Professor of Business Policy, USC, and author of numerous books on planning and crisis management.
p. 12

Beverly Kitaen Morse ..... is a marriage and family counselor in private practice in Santa Monica and a senior instructor at the Rosenberg-Rand Institute for Integrative Body Psychotherapy.
p. 28

Claudio Naranjo, ... theorist of growth disciplines and former resident at Esalen, introduced meditation as a component of gestalt practice.
p. 29

Wes "Scoop" Nisker, ... considered the dean of the new radio journalism, is a newsman at KFOG, San Francisco, and the editor of the Inquiring Mind, the journal of the Vipassana Buddhist community.
p. 28

Babatunde Olatunji, ... master percussionist from Nigeria, has performed internationally for over 30 years, and is known for his album Drums of Passion. He is an authority on African religion.
p. 35

Brita Ostrom, ... a longtime Esalen massage practitioner, incorporates Trager℠ training with the personal energetic connection of the Esalen massage.
p. 33

Karen Paine-Gernée ..... leads groups for Adult Children of Alcoholics in Cambridge, Massachusetts. She is on the faculty of Omega Institute, The New York Open Center, Interface, and Spring Hill Institute.
p. 17

Helen Palmer ..... is a practicing clairvoyant. She directs the Center for the Investigation and Training of Intuition. Her teaching utilizes personality issues as access points to psychic perception and the inner life.
p. 22

Kenneth Porter, ... a psychiatrist in individual, group, marital, and family practice in New York City, is Assistant Clinical Professor of Psychiatry, Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons.
p. 20

Hector Prestera, ... a physician, acupuncturist, Rolfer, certified neurolinguistic trainer, and practitioner of Ericksonian work, is in private practice in Monterey, California.
p. 19

Christine Stewart Price ..... is a teacher and ongoing student of gestalt practice. Her spiritual orientation fluctuates between evangelical Taoism and born-again Paganism. (Paganism: religion of the earth.)
p. 8, 21, 24

Jill Purce ..... is author of The Mystic Spiral. She investigated the mystical dimension of sound with Karlheinz Stockhausen, and the magical use of the voice and overtone chanting with Tibetan lamas.
p. 27

Paul Rebillot ..... was founding director of the Gestalt Fool Theater Family in San Francisco and has been a resident group leader at Esalen.
p. 14, 15, 18, 19, 21, 22

Sogyal Rinpoche, ... Tibetan incarnate lama, scholar, and meditation master, was raised by Buddhist master Jamyang Khyentse Chokyi Lodro, and studied at Cambridge University.
p. 27

Marion Rosen ..... has done body work for the past 45 years and is the founder of the Rosen Method, which she teaches through the Rosen Institute.
p. 21

Jack Rosenberg, ... a psychologist and director of the Rosenberg-Rand Institute of Integrative Body Psychotherapy in Venice, CA, is the author of the new book Body, Self, and Soul.
p. 18, 28, 33

Gordy Ryan ..... has roots in the Big Sur Primitive Jazz Society and has studied and performed with Olatunji for fifteen years.
p. 35

David Schiffman, ... a longtime group leader at Esalen, is involved in developing full expression of mental, physical, and spiritual states of being.
p. 11, 12, 15, 16, 19, 23, 27

Elisa Lodge Schiffman ..... trained in structural integration with Ida Rolf and is an advanced teacher of Rolf-movement integration.
p. 11, 12, 14, 15, 19, 23, 24, 27

Will Schutz, ... founder of the Antioch holistic studies department, is the creator of The Human Element, a set of training materials for organizations, and author of Joy and Profound Simplicity.
p. 17, 19

Phyllis Shankman, ... a licensed counselor in transition between Los Angeles and Big Sur, specializes in group process and is interested in self-acceptance and change.
p. 20

Rupert Sheldrake ..... is a biologist and author of A New Science of life and The Presence of the Past: Morphic Resonance and the Habits of Nature.
p. 26

Julian Silverman ..... is director of counseling and psychological services at UC Santa Cruz.
p. 16

Anne Nechama Simkin ..... trained in gestalt with Erv and Miriam Polster and Jim Simkin, and has conducted workshops internationally.
p. 11, 22

Saul-Paul Sirag ..... is a theoretical physicist who has published papers on cosmology and unified field theory.
p. 15

Harry Sloan, ... a 1969 Esalen resident fellow, former dentist, and playwright, worked with Roberto Assagioli, the founder of psychosynthesis, and is in private practice in San Francisco.
p. 13, 17, 22

Jacquelyn Small, ... author of Becoming Naturally Therapeutic and Transformers, The Therapists of the Future, is recognized as a leader in the fields of addiction and human consciousness.
p. 23, 34

Gerald Smith ..... is a psychologist in Belmont, California. He is author of Hidden Meanings and Couple Therapy.
p. 14, 26

Nancy Stark Smith p. 21 ..... first loved moving as an athlete and gymnast. In 1972 she danced in the first performance of Contact Improvisation. She co-founded and edits Contact Quarterly, A Vehicle for Moving Ideas.

Elliot Sobel p. 31 ..... was the editor of New Sun Magazine and has done extensive research, as an author and performer, in the area of consciousness as it relates to the arts.

Jerry Solfvin p. 15 ..... is on the faculties of John F. Kennedy University and the California Institute of Integral Studies. He has authored many articles on mental healing.

Sharon Solfvin p. 15 ..... is on the faculty of John F. Kennedy University and is a business consultant on creativity and intuition.

Gena Mayer Sorensen, p. 25 ..... MFCC, is in private practice in San Jose and San Francisco. She holds an adjunct certificate as a Radix® teacher.

Brother David Steindl-Rast, p. 15 ..... Benedictine monk, hermit, psychologist, and author, has lectured on all five continents. He is concerned with the spiritual challenges of our time.

T

Yao Tamakloe p. 35 ..... studied African dance, music, and literature at the University of Ghana and at UCLA. He dances with the Drums of Passion.

Mary Tesoro p. 26 ..... is a certified Leonard Energy Training instructor, writer, and aikido practitioner, whose work embraces issues of human health, potential, and peak performance.

Keith Thompson p. 29 ..... has a private practice in clinical hypnosis in Mill Valley, CA. He is a freelance writer and storyteller.

Lia Thompson p. 8 ..... has been a Gazebo teacher for six years. She is currently a co-ordinator of Experiencing Esalen: The Body and a member of the Gazebo workshop staff.

Gabriele Thomson p. 15 ..... has conducted workshops for mental health professionals in Europe, Australia, and New Zealand. She supports individuals in healing childhood traumas and furthering spiritual development.

V

Frances Vaughan p. 28 ..... is an author, psychologist, and consultant. Formerly president of the Association for Transpersonal Psychology, she is a pioneer in intuition research.

W

Judyth Weaver, p. 20 ..... a Reichian counselor, certified teacher of t'ai chi ch'uan and Sensory Awareness, and student of Buddhism and Taoism, holds a doctorate in psychology and teaches at the California Institute of Integral Studies.

John Welwood p. 18 ..... is a clinical psychologist and author of Awakening the Heart and Challenge of the Heart: Love, Sex, and Intimacy in Changing Times.

Arlen Riley Wilson p. 19 ..... is former president of the Institute for the Study of the Human Future.

Robert Anton Wilson p. 19 ..... is author of The Widow's Son and 20 other books.

Paul Winter p. 21 ..... is an environmentalist, musician, and recording artist. He is founder / artistic director of Paul Winter Consort and of Living Music Foundation in Litchfield, Connecticut.

Z

Jeffrey Zeig p. 28 ..... is director of the Milton Erickson Foundation. His professional interest is how communication can be used to elicit and develop innate strengths.

Janet Zuckerman p. 12, 13, 28 ..... was an emotional release and group process teacher at Esalen for 12 years. She has a private practice in San Francisco.

David Nelson

Fritz's

Catalog Subscription Information

The Esalen Catalog is published tri-annually. Subscription cost for one year is $10 for the United States, $12 for Canada and Mexico, $16 for Europe and South America, and $18 for all other countries. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request from Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

☐ To obtain a one year subscription to the Esalen Catalog, please send a check or money order in U.S. currency drawn only on a U.S. bank to: Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. A pre-addressed envelope is included in this catalog for your convenience.
(Note: People who attend an Esalen workshop or conference will receive a free subscription for one year.)

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

☐ Please send a complimentary copy of the Esalen Catalog to the person listed below:

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

Please notify us if you change your address, and check here ☐ if you are receiving duplicates of the catalog.

Friends of Esalen

We invite you to join us in our organization—the Friends of Esalen scholarship fund.

Friends of Esalen provides financial aid to people who are eager to attend our workshops but who cannot afford them.

We believe that one of our first priorities is to make our programs available on a broader basis. We have therefore decided to use membership contributions to fund such scholarships. Esalen will, in turn, match your contribution.

In addition to knowing that you have given someone else the opportunity to experience Esalen, you will receive the Esalen Catalog for one year. We hope you feel your experience at Esalen was worth the sharing and that you will join us in extending Esalen into the lives of other people.

☐ I wish to become a Friend of Esalen and I enclose my check for the category circled.

☐ I wish to renew my membership in Friends of Esalen.

One Year Student	$15	One Year Donor	$50	One Year Patron	$500
One Year Individual	$25	One Year Sponsor	$100	(Contributions are tax-deductible)

Name _____ Student Affiliation _____

Street _____ City _____

State _____ ZIP _____ Date _____

Please mail to: Friends of Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Food for the Senses

A book of recipes and artwork by people of the Esalen community is now available. To order by mail, use this form.

Please send me _____ copies of Food for the Senses. ($5.95 each, plus an additional $1.25 per book for postage and handling, or a total of $7.20. California residents add $.35 tax.) I am enclosing a total of $ _____ .

Name _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

Please mail to: Food for the Senses, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Make checks payable to Esalen Institute. Allow 6 weeks for delivery.

The Media Center

Videotapes

Esalen

This 18-minute videotape, which tells Esalen's story from its early history to the present, is an inexpensive way to view the general offerings available at Esalen. The visuals consist of 130 color slides featuring scenes of the Big Sur coast, Esalen's garden, grounds, and various workshops and activities.

Invited Speakers

The Esalen Media Center is offering for rental or purchase a selection of videotapes from conferences and seminars. This series consists of unedited single camera recordings of informal talks made at Esalen.

1. Jack Kornfield, "On Meditation," November, 1984. A longtime student and teacher of vipassana meditation and Buddhism discusses these traditions with reference to his own experiences as a spiritual seeker in the Orient. (117 minutes)

2. Brother David Steindl-Rast, "God, Spirituality, and the Senses," November, 1984. A Benedictine monk and scholar discusses the spiritual journey and its relationship to mythology and transpersonal theory. (117 minutes)

3. Fritjof Capra, "Characteristics of Systems Thinking," June, 1985. The author of The Tao of Physics and The Turning Point discusses the evolution of scientific thinking, including current views and implications. (81 minutes)

4. Stanislav Grof, "The New Scientific Paradigm," June, 1985. An original member of the transpersonal psychology network and author on topics such as appropriate use of psycho-active substances, discusses his current view of consciousness. (117 minutes)

5. Rupert Sheldrake, "Morphic Resonance and The New Science of Life," June, 1985. A British geneticist relates his theories on biological and psychological development and discusses some empirical tests of these theories. (108 minutes)

6. Kenneth Ring, "The Near-Death Experience," June, 1985. The author of Life at Death and Heading Toward Omega discusses his research on the near-death experience and some of its implications for the future of the human race. (114 minutes)

7. Albert Hofmann, December, 1984. The discoverer of LSD talks to Stanislav Grof about his early experiences with this and other psychoactive drugs. He also discusses some of the social, political, and scientific consequences of LSD. (92 minutes)

8. Anne Armstrong and Elizabeth Stratton, December, 1984. Two longtime students, practitioners, and teachers of psychic work discuss with Nancy Knapp their practices and perspectives related to psychic counseling and healing. (56 minutes)

9. Terence McKenna, "Fractile Perspectives on the Millenium," August, 1985. The author of The Invisible Landscape gives his vision of the future, centering around the evolution of human consciousness. (72 minutes)

10. Jack Rosenberg, "One Hour and Twenty-Nine Minutes with Jack Rosenberg and Integrative Body Practice," September, 1985. The Venice, California, practitioner gives his view of personality development and some of the typical patterns of interaction in relationship. (89 minutes)

Price List and Order Form

I would like to Purchase ____ Rent ____ Programs: "Esalen" 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 (circle)

Video Format: VHS ____ Beta ____

Purchase:	Each speaker program VHS or Beta	$55.00	$ ____
	"Esalen" VHS or Beta	$35.00	$ ____
Rental: (seven days)	Each speaker program VHS or Beta	$25.00	$ ____
	"Esalen" VHS or Beta	$15.00	$ ____
		Subtotal	$ ____
	California residents add 6% tax for sales only		$ ____
	Shipping and Handling		$ 5.00
	For overseas air mail orders please add $7 additional postage for each cassette		$ ____
		Total Enclosed	$ ____

Name ____ Organization ____

Address ____ City ____

State ____ ZIP ____ Phone ____

Preferred rental dates ____

Allow 30 days for delivery. Urgent orders may be handled by phone. (408) 667-2335

Please address your order (with a check payable to Esalen Institute): Media Center, Esalen, Big Sur, CA 93920. Rental fees may be credited toward purchase price if you notify us within 30 days.

Audio Recordings

The Dolphin Tape Series

The human potential movement generates unusual events which produce unusual recordings. Each issue of the Esalen Catalog lists new titles and also a few from the Big Sur Recordings archives. Nearly all tapes are stereo from live events. Tape length is normally 1 to 1½ hrs.

Single-tape titles are $10 with prepayment (purchase orders add $1 per tape):

Rupert Sheldrake: Trajectory to Apocalypse—or Peace?, 1985
Rupert Sheldrake: Morphic Resonance and Memory, 1985
Rusty Schweickart: Global Unity: A View from Space, 1984
Fritjof Capra: Characteristics of Systems Thinking, 1985
Fritjof Capra: Ecological Vision, 1985
George Freibott: Nikola Tesla, The Inventor, 1984
Albert Hofmann: The Transmitter-Receiver Concept of Reality, 1984
Albert Hofmann: Interviewed by Stan Grof, 1984
Stanislav Grof: Principles of Holotropic Therapy, 1985
Kenneth Ring: Near Death Experiences, 1985
Joseph Campbell: The Hero's Journey (80th Year), 1984
Paul Rebillot: The Pluto Story: Journey into Madness, 1984
Robert Anton Wilson: The I in the Triangle, 1984
Anna Halprin: Peace Meditation, 1983
Sogyal Rinpoche: Technologies of the Sacred, 1984
Julian Silverman: A Light-Hearted Course in Miracles, 1984
Jack Kornfield: Simplicity of Spiritual Practice, 1982
Reb Anderson: Entry Into Buddhist Meditation, 1984
Reb Anderson: Basic Points of Buddhist Meditation, 1984
Jule Eisenbud: Psi Experience in Psychotherapy, 1984
Jan Ehrenwald: Psi Experience and the Bergsonian Filter, 1984
Charles Tart: Our Fear of Psychic Abilities, 1984
Stanley Krippner: Multiple Personality Disorder, 1983
Paul Rebillot: Conflicts at the Ego Frontier, 1983
Sogyal Rinpoche: Interview on Death and Dying, 1982
Robert Anton Wilson: The Prism Lecture (Santa Cruz), 1982
Terence McKenna: Mind, Molecules, and Magic, 1984
Dennis McKenna: Activity of Ayahuasca and Oo-Koey, 1984
Richard Yensen: The Use of LSD in Psychotherapy, 1984
Albert Hofmann: LSD and the Nature of Reality, 1978
Henry Munn: Mushrooms and Culture, 1977
Henry Munn: Fable of the Vision Drink, 1977
Robert Bly: The Six Powers of Poetry, 1983
Ram Dass: Yoga of Daily Life, 1970
Anne Armstrong: On Being a Psychic, 1971
Alan Watts: Divine Madness, 1968
Fritz Perls: Dream Theory and Demonstration, 1968
Carl Rogers: The Intensive Group, 1966
Abraham H. Maslow: Self-Actualization, 1966
Aldous Huxley: Human Potentialities, 1962

Two-tape titles are $18 with prepayment (purchase order price is $20):

Walt Anderson & Ted Roszak: (2) The Upstart Spring, 1984
Joseph Campbell & Sam Keen: (2) Dark Side of the Forest, 1985
David Steindl-Rast: (2) Healing Starts from the Heart, 1984
David Steindl-Rast: (2) Overview of the Christian Myths, 1984
Father Bede Griffiths: (2) Convergence of Religions, 1983
David Finkelstein: (2) Ancient, Medieval, and Classical Physics, 1984
Karl Pribram: (2) The Holographic Model Today, 1985
Frank Barr: (2) A History of Philosophy, 1983
Ralph Metzner: (2) Varieties of Human Transformation, 1984
Jean Houston: (2) The Possible Human (Boston ATP Conference), 1979
Stanislav Grof: (2) Geometry of Psychopathology, 1984
Stan & Christina Grof: (2) Holonomic Consciousness Paradigm, 1982
Andrew Weil: (2) Use and Abuse of Beneficial Plants, 1982
Andrew Weil: (2) Interplay of Mind and Body Realities, 1982
Bob Schwartz: (2) Entrepreneurship & Human Potential, 1980
Charlotte Selver / Charles Brooks: (2) Sensory Awareness, 1980-1982
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Story of Basque Mysticism, 1982
Angeles Arrien: (2) The Egyptian Tarot, 1982
Ram Dass: (2) One Man's Journey to the East, 1968
Wilson Van Dusen: (2) Interviewed by Michael Murphy, 1963
Wilson Van Dusen: (2) Conflicting Hallucinations, 1968
Fritz Perls: (2) Neurosis, Psychosis, and Dreams, 1968
Joseph Campbell: (2) Myths of Alienation and Rapture, 1970
Joseph Chilton Pearce: (2) The Magical Child, 1975

Four-tape titles are $36 with prepayment (purchase order price is $40):

Father Bede Griffiths: (4) Return to the Center (The Ojai Series), 1983
David Steindl-Rast: (4) Mysticism as a Frontier Experience, 1985
Donald Keys: (4) Personal Growth and Social Change, 1982
Terence McKenna: (4) Psychedelics and a Free Society, 1984
Jack Kornfield: (4) Buddhist Meditation and Practice, 1981
Joseph Campbell: (4) Imagery in the Novels of James Joyce, 1968
Jack Rosenberg: (4) A New Understanding of Relationships, 1982
James Fadiman: (4) A Weekend of Stories, 1984
Rollo May: (4) The F. Scott Fitzgerald Myth and Your Own, 1982
Theodore Roszak: (4) The Unfinished Animal, 1982
Anne & Jim Armstrong: (4) A Psychic Training Program, 1981
Anne & Jim Armstrong: (4) Thoughts and Meditations, 1984

The Dolphin Vinyl Album Tape Sets

(purchase order price add 10%)

Rupert Sheldrake: (6) Seminar on the Presence of the Past, 1985	$60
Robert Anton Wilson: (6) Seminar on the I in the Triangle, 1984	$60
Joseph Campbell: (6) Courtly Love and The Grail, 1983	$60
Robert Bly & Angeles Arrien: (6) Love in the Western World, 1984	$60
Entheogens: (6) The Spiritual Psychedelics (The Santa Barbara Conference), 1983	$60
Andrew Weil: (6) Integrated Consciousness and Health (The Mann Ranch), 1976	$60
Julian Silverman: (6) Further Commentaries on A Course in Miracles, 1981	$60
Ken Dychtwald: (6) Bodymind Health, Longevity, and Optimal Performance, 1981	$60
Fritz Perls: (6) The Perls Encounter: A Complete Weekend, 1968	$60
Ruthy Alon: (6) The Feldenkrais Method—Series I	$60
Ruthy Alon: (6) The Feldenkrais Method—Series II	$60
Moshe Feldenkrais: (6) Awareness Through Movement—Series I	$72
Jack Rosenberg: (8) Sustained Integration: Body, Self, and Soul, 1981	$72
Faces of the Enemy: (8) The San Francisco Symposium, 1983	$72
Buckminster Fuller: (8) The Pajaro Dunes Tapes: A Weekend Seminar, 1977	$80
Terence McKenna: (8) True Hallucinations: A Talking Book, 1984 (The Amazon Experience)	$80
Joseph Campbell: (10) World Mythology and The Individual Adventure, 1969	$88
Gregory Bateson: (12) The Informal Esalen Lectures 1975-1980 (Library Archives)	$98

Please add $2 to your complete order for handling and mailing ($4 if you wish priority mail). Add $2 for mailing each vinyl album set. California residents include 6% tax.

Please mail your order with check payable to:
DOLPHIN TAPES, Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Advertisement: Dolphin Tapes is a private company independent of Esalen.

Esalen Institute Reservations

This form is for your convenience in reserving a space in Esalen workshops. In completing the form, please indicate the name, address, and telephone number of each person registering and clearly indicate the title of the workshop for which each person is reserving a place. A registration fee for each person registering and each workshop applied for must accompany this form. (See General Information, page 46.)

(Please Print)

Name _____ Sex M ☐ F ☐

Address _____

City, State _____ ZIP _____ Occupation _____

Telephone Number: Home: Area Code ( ) _____ Work: Area Code ( ) _____

Occasionally there are unexpected situations that require us to contact you immediately before your stay here. If you will not be at the above numbers during the two weeks prior to the workshop, where may we reach you? _____. If you can't be reached, please call us before your scheduled arrival for final confirmation. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop, in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

(On additional paper please repeat the above information for every person in your party making a reservation. Mail to: Reservations, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.)

☐ Check if you want housing as a couple, shared bed ☐ Check if you smoke

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop for phone numbers of other guests from your area.

☐ Check if you do not want us to give out your number for the purposes of ride sharing.

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Please allow three weeks for scholarship processing. For further details, see Ways of Being at Esalen, page 8.

Bus Service: I want bus service from (check one):
☐ Monterey Greyhound Bus Station at approximately 4:45 PM ☐ Monterey Airport at approximately 5:15 PM
on _____ (date of arrival, Fridays & Sundays only)

The $20 (rate subject to change) per person charge is payable on arrival at Esalen. If your plans for use of the bus change after you submit this reservation, please notify us. The only departing bus service from Esalen is on Fridays and Sundays at approximately 6:30 PM. Esalen bus service is not available at any time other than as listed.

☐ We occasionally make our mailing list available to other organizations who have services, information, or events that might be of interest to our subscribers. Please check here if you prefer that your name be used for Esalen mailings only.

We are unable to act as a banking service for our guests. Please bring adequate funds for your stay.

Name of Person Registering	Date(s)	Leader's Name/Title of Workshop	Deposit Enclosed

Total amount enclosed: $ _____

Please make checks payable to Esalen Institute in U.S. currency only.

Overseas residents must pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks.

Your reservation can be charged to:

☐ MasterCard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express

Card No. _____

Expiration Date _____

Authorizing Signature _____

All workshops require nonrefundable reservation fees. See page 46. The balance of program fees becomes payable at the time of check-in.

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Our activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

We exist to sponsor, encourage, synthesize, and attempt evaluation of work in these areas, both inside and outside our own organizational framework. Since we are a center for experimental education, we ask that persons come to our programs out of an educational interest. We ask that no one come whose interest is "cure." We point out here, as we have in workshops and seminars, that some people, particularly those with a history of psychiatric problems, may find some programs difficult, trying, or potentially risky. We recommend that in case of any doubt, a physician or trusted counselor be consulted.

General Information

Esalen lies 300 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco, situated directly over the Pacific with the Santa Lucia Range rising sharply behind. The property, which has natural hot baths, was once the home of a North American Indian tribe known as Esselen.

We are a 45-mile drive south from Monterey, 11 miles south of Nepenthe, on California Coast Route 1. From the south, we are 50 miles north of San Simeon. A lighted sign on the ocean side of the highway reads: Esalen Institute—By Reservation Only.

Car Pooling: We encourage guests to car pool whenever possible. Please call Esalen 10 days to two weeks prior to your workshop for phone numbers of other guests coming from your area.

Reservation Information: In order to reserve a space in any workshop, we require the following reservation fees:

Weekend:	$50
Five-day:	$100
Seven-day:	$150
Two-week:	$200
Three-week:	$300
Month-long:	$400

Fees are payable in U.S. currency only. Overseas residents must pay by checks drawn on U.S. banks. Balance of payment is due on arrival. These fees are not refundable but, with five days' notice, may be transferred to other Esalen programs, to be used within one year of receipt. Please indicate your second choice for a workshop in case your first choice is canceled and we are unable to reach you.

Please mail all reservations to:
Reservations,
Esalen Institute
Big Sur, CA 93920

We are able to process mail reservations more effectively. If you are concerned about workshops being full or have any questions, you may make reservations by phone if you use your MasterCard, Visa, or American Express credit card number to charge your reservation fee.

Phone (408) 667-2335
Office Hours:
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday 10 am to 3 pm
Wednesday 10 am to 12 Noon
Friday 10 am to 8 pm
Sunday 12 Noon to 8 pm

If there is no answer during our regular business hours, and the phone company confirms that our phones are out of order, please call our alternate number, (408) 372-8719, for recorded up-to-date workshop, road, and transportation information.

Workshop fees cover tuition, food, and lodging. Rooms are shared by two or three workshop participants. Camping on the grounds is prohibited.

Weekend programs begin with dinner on Friday and end with lunch on Sunday. Five-day and longer programs begin with dinner on Sunday and end with lunch on Friday. Check-out time is noon of departure day. Rooms become available at 4 pm; however, guests are welcome to arrive any time after lunch.

Esalen's flourishing organic garden provides the kitchen with many of its vegetables and herbs. Our breads and pastries are made by Esalen bakers.

Gazebo School: Any requests for child care should be sent at least one month in advance to Gazebo, Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Senior Citizens' Discount Information: Esalen offers a special discount to individuals over 60 years of age. The discount for a weekend workshop is $25, and $50 for a five-day workshop. Discounts are available only when you make your reservations. Please present proof of age when you register. Senior discounts are not available for Wilderness Programs or Work Scholar Programs.

Ongoing Residence Program: Offered from October through May, the Ongoing Residential Program is designed for those who would like to live for a month in the Esalen environment and participate in an intensive workshop program. The minimum stay is 26 days (or four "weeks" and three weekends).

Participants may select any of the five-day workshops offered during their stay. Weekend workshops are available at special prices. Some programs are canceled, so second choices are advised. Many community programs are also open to residents. The cost is $1960 per 26-day period.

Health Services: We are unable to provide medical supervision or pharmaceutical supplies. If you are on a health-care program and you plan to spend several weeks at Esalen, please arrive prepared to administer to your health-care needs.

Illegal Drugs: In accordance with state and federal laws, the possession or use of illegal drugs on Esalen grounds is strictly prohibited.

Room and Board: Bed spaces not required for workshop participants are sometimes available for room and board. Accommodations are shared, and the rate is $60 per person per day on weekdays, and $75 per person per day on weekends. Room and board rates include dinner on the day of arrival and breakfast and lunch the following day.

Private rooms are sometimes available. Rates are $100 per person per day, $110 per couple per day on weekdays, and $135 per couple per day on weekends. Special family rates are available. Please phone the office for additional information.

Bus Service: On Fridays and Sundays we have bus service from the Monterey Greyhound station leaving approximately at 4:45 PM and from the Monterey Airport approximately at 5:15 PM. If you plan to use this service, please inform the Esalen office at least 24 hours prior to your arrival. The $20 one-way fee (rate subject to change) is payable to the Esalen office when you check in. Return reservations may be made at that time. The only departing bus service from Esalen is on Fridays and Sundays at approximately 6:30 pm.

Seminarians as Volunteers: Seminarians in residence at Esalen are requested to contribute several hours per week to work with the staff, usually in the kitchen. Your help enables us to meet the pressures of peak working times and enables you to experience Esalen from the inside out. A staff member will appear at your first workshop meeting to schedule volunteer help.

Accreditation: We do not offer accreditation in the form of diplomas such as those conferred by traditional schools. Many formal educational institutions recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Contributions to Esalen Institute are tax-deductible.

The expenses of attending Esalen, including travel, are deductible for federal income tax purposes as an educational expense if incurred to maintain or improve professional or work skills. (See Income Tax Regulation 1.162-5.)

Esalen Institute reserves the right to cancel any program at any time.

Conferences at Esalen: It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office, (408) 667-2335, for further information, or write to Brian Lyke, conference coordinator.

Contact is the appreciation of differences.
—Fritz Perls

. . . and the recognition of similarities . . .
—Richard Price

Esalen Institute is a center to explore those trends in education, religion, philosophy, and the physical and behavioral sciences which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence. Its activities consist of seminars and workshops, residential programs, consulting, and research.

Esalen Institute
Big Sur
California 93920

DATED MATTER

The Esalen Catalog

May-October, 1987

Contents

Volume XXVI, Number 2

Audio Recordings 48
Biographical Information 41–46
Conferences at Esalen 9
Esalen Seminars 10–36
Experiencing Esalen 8
Friends of Esalen 47
Future Programs 40
General Information 50
Gestalt Practice 8
Media Center 47
Medical Programs 9
Notes 4–7
Reservations Form 49
Scholarship Information 9
Special Programs 38–39
Ways of Being at Esalen 8–9
Wilderness Programs 40
Work Study Program and Application 37

Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920

Phone (408) 667-2335

Monday, Tuesday, Thursday
& Saturday 10 AM to 3 PM
Wednesday 10 AM to 12 Noon
Friday 10 AM to 8 PM

Catalog Editor: Susan Stone
Graphic Design: Barbara Adamson
Art Direction: Barbara Adamson
and Joyce Rogers Lyke

Consulting Editor: Nancy Kaye Lunney
Administrative Liaison: Nancy Knapp
Editorial Review: George Leonard
Cover Photograph: Joyce Rogers Lyke

Esalen Board of Trustees:

Mark Dayton
Steve Donovan
Jack Downing
Victoria Elliot
Stanislav Grof
Bokara Legendre
Nancy Kaye Lunney
Michael Murphy
Christine Stewart Price
Marius Robinson
William Sechrest
Jeremy Tarcher

©1987 Esalen Institute
All Rights Reserved.

The Esalen Catalog is published tri-annually by the Esalen Institute, Big Sur, CA 93920. Subscription cost for one year is $10 for the United States, $12 for Canada and Mexico, $16 for Europe and South America, and $18 for all other countries. A single inspection copy of the current issue is available upon request.

Esalen Photographic Retrospective

September of this year marks the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Esalen Institute. In the next catalog we will include a pictorial retrospective of the past 25 years. Anyone with black and white photographs from 1962-present, please contact Joyce Rogers Lyke at (408) 667-2335.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Esalen Notes

Dialogues on Philosophy at Esalen

Philosophy has had a vital role in shaping Western Civilization. In company with religion and art, it once helped people understand their place in the universe. It gave them guidance as they grappled with life's meaning and purpose It provided them a value framework for making personal choices. Three generations ago, William James could still say that the most important question a landlord could ask himself in screening a prospective tenant was, What is his philosophy? Few professional philosophers would say that today. They would probably advise a landlord to study the applicant's credit rating. Both inside and outside the academy, philosophy has lost its vitality and its relevance in guiding relationships between individuals, societies, nature, and the cosmos.

This project is dedicated to revisioning philosophy. Esalen will assemble creative philosophers from the United States and Europe, and eventually from India and the Far East, bringing them together for conversations and support of some of their long-term scholarship. We will also publish some of their work in book form or through other media. Though popularity is no proof of wisdom, neither is obscurity. Esalen hopes to encourage a conversation in philosophy that will be more accessible than current academic philosophy, but deeper and more comprehensive than most popular guides to enlightenment.

The need for a new departure in philosophy is clear both from the demise of current academic philosophy and from the increasing acuteness of questions to which philosophy used to provide answers. How is one to conduct a worthwhile life? What do we tell our children about the ultimate questions of life and death, or fairness and justice? How can we adjudicate among conflicting claims coming from different cultures where different claimants recognize no common standard?

Part of the timidity of contemporary thought can be traced to the internationalization of everyday life: we are continually made aware of the fact that our standards are not the only ones. We have left the comfort of absolute, authoritarian principles, and we are now passing through the dark valley of nihilism where, as Ivan Karamazov put it, "All is permitted." But anarchy and nihilism will not do.

Only philosophy can take on the task of rebuilding a sense of purpose and meaning, right and wrong, in a context that is global and pluralistic. Without the comfort of absolute standards, or the fashionable despair of European nihilism, philosophy can rebuild a context in which it makes sense to speak of good and evil without invoking Good or Evil. Philosophy is needed, now more than ever, to restore a sense of legitimacy to the lives of individuals and institutions.

Themes for Consideration in the Initial Discussions

1. What is the condition of philosophy now? What are its weaknesses and strengths? What does it need to be humanly relevant?

2. Developmental and Evolutionary Schemas: Developmental psychology and philosophy of history are replete with roadmaps for the growth and development of individuals and societies. Erik Erikson and Abraham Maslow have drawn maps for individual development. Hegel and Aurobindo have suggested schemas for the growth and development of whole societies. Slightly at odds with these purposive, developmental schemas, evolutionary theory suggests divergent rather than convergent developmental paths. Species differentiate from one another. They do not converge toward a single ideal organism. In order to come to terms with the issue of pluralism in ethics, it will be helpful to examine the degree to which convergent, purposive, developmental models, or divergent evolutionary models are more appropriate for individuals and/or cultures.

3. What is the role of experience in philosophy? How are we to judge the validity of insights derived from extraordinary states of consciousness? The history of philosophy, both East and West, demonstrates that the greatest philosophers recorded extraordinary, or higher, states of mind. Yet this source of insight has been ignored by contemporary academic philosophy. Borrowing from both East and West, we wish to restore the experiential dimension of philosophy and explore what might be called "the philosophic sensibility," or philosophy as a way of life.

4. What constitutes evidence? We will explore various criteria for accepting different kinds of experience, whether sensory, emotional, intellectual or spiritual, as evidence to support—or contradict—metaphysical, ethical, and scientific propositions. Most modern philosophers simply assume that only the five senses can provide certain knowledge of real things, and that knowledge of supra-sensible events is generally thought to be impossible. We will question those assumptions.

5. How do we steer a path between absolutism and relativism?

The Project's Structure

The project will begin with a series of meetings in 1987 at Esalen Institute, Big Sur, involving a core group consisting of the participants listed below. During these meetings, for which Esalen will provide the room and board costs, the project's first themes will be developed. We anticipate that a few participants may drop out as the project proceeds for various personal or professional reasons, and that new participants will be added for their special insights and to extend the influence of the project into mainstream academic thought. Most of the core group will remain intact for the duration of the project, though, to maintain a coherent and developing dialogue.

Participants

Robert Bellah—One of the foremost philosophers of religion; has developed an evolutionary perspective on religion; principal author of Habits of the Heart, an important current best-seller describing the loss of an articulate language of value in American discourse.

James Cutsinger—Assistant Professor of Religious Studies at the University of South Carolina; chairman of the committee on esotericism and perennialism for the American Academy of Religious Studies; a young theologian-philosopher who is working to open up contemporary theology and philosophy to the perennial wisdom.

Sam Keen—Author of To a Dancing God and Faces of the Enemy and other books on philosophy, theology, and psychology.

Jacob Needleman—Professor of Philosophy, San Francisco State University. Author of many books on philosophy and religion, including The New Religions, A Sense of the Cosmos, The Heart of Philosophy, and Sacred Tradition and Present Need. Like Robert Solomon, he has kept his eye steadfastly on major issues of human concern.

Philip Novak—Associate Professor of Philosophy and Religious Studies at Dominican College; a young philosopher interested in ways in which traditional contemplative practices, Buddhist meditation in particular, shed light on philosophical problems and complement intellectual vision with psychological transformation.

James Ogilvy (Project Director)—Taught philosophy at Yale and Williams; now at Stanford Research Institute. In several books, and in his current work, he has built a bridge from the relatively esoteric world of philosophical theory to policy analysis, opinion polling, and futures studies.

Donald Rothberg—Associate Professor of Philosophy at Kenyon College; a young philosopher who brings new insights and vitality to metaphysics.

Huston Smith—A leading philosopher of religion; the author of Forgotten Truth and other books about the perennial wisdom of the great religions; taught for many years at MIT and Syracuse University; has helped keep interest in mysticism and comparative religions alive in contemporary American academia by his university teaching and books such as The Religions of Man and Beyond the Post-Modern Mind.

Robert Solomon—Professor of Philosophy, University of Texas (has also taught at Princeton, Harvard, and UC.) Author of a major book on Hegel (Oxford University Press) and several books on human emotions. More than any other contemporary philosopher, Solomon has insisted on addressing pressing human issues rather than arcane academic puzzles.

Brian Swimme—A young and promising thinker who brings unique perspectives to bear upon the stupendous fact of evolution; has related cosmology to mystical thought and other concerns of metaphysics.

Ken Wilber—Author of Spectrum of Consciousness, The Atman Project, Up from Eden, A Sociable God, and other works that join philosophy, religion, developmental psychology, sociology, and other disciplines into a comprehensive developmental world-view.

Participant Observers

Jean Lanier—Gestalt awareness teacher and counselor; faculty member of the Institute for Culture and Creation Spirituality in Oakland, CA, where creativity is understood as a spiritual process.

Michael Murphy—Co-founder of Esalen Institute and founder of the Esalen Institute Study of Exceptional Functioning; author of Golf in the Kingdom, Jacob Atabet, The Psychic Side of Sports, and An End to Ordinary History.

Roger Walsh—Professor of Psychology and Philosophy at UC Irvine.

Esalen-Antioch Cooperation

Beginning in the Fall of 1987, there will be a number of opportunities for Esalen resident scholars to gain credit toward a bachelor's degree or a master's degree in somatic psychology through Antioch University. The various program options are outlined below:

1. The Work Study Program: People enrolled in this program may gain credit toward a B.A., the number of credits depending upon the track in which they enroll.

2. The 2-Year Somatics Training Program for Health Professionals (see page 5): People enrolled in this program may gain up to 30 credits toward a B.A. This program is particularly adapted for nurses, physical therapists, chiropractors, acupuncturists, etc., whose prior professional schooling, plus the units available in this program, would place them within easy distance of a B.A.

3. People enrolled in the 72-unit Antioch master's degree program for Somatic Psychology and Education may gain up to 30 units for the 2-Year Somatics Training Program.

4. Those beginning the Antioch master's program may do their first resident quarter in Fall, 1987, as work scholars at Esalen in a specially designed track, gaining 12 units toward their degree.

The undergraduate degree program of Antioch University in San Francisco, a branch of Antioch University in Ohio, has long been committed to honoring the educational value of certain kinds of life experiences, work, and non-academic trainings. The fully accredited bachelor's program is based on assisting adults to document such experiences for academic credit and determining a program for completing the degree. The master's program in somatic psychology and education is a 72-unit residency program, based on the study of the interface between the physical body and psychology. It is designed to meet the academic requirements for the California license in marriage, family, and child counseling.

For specific information about the Antioch degree requirements, write: Don Johnson, Somatic Psychology and Education, Antioch University, 650 Pine Street, San Francisco, CA 94108. (415) 956-1688.

A Somatics Training Program for Health Professionals

This training, scheduled to begin in January, 1988, is unique in that it will bring together in a cooperative educational effort some of the leaders in the somatics field who are designing a program not based on the particular techniques they have developed, but on the basic principles of work with the body that they have discovered. The individual seminars within the training will focus on refining the most basic aspects of work with the body, including: one's abilities to see, touch, and listen; an understanding of the development of body image; an examination of movement patterns and breath; the impact of gravity on the personality; and how these various aspects of the body are related to one's emotional life and patterns of health and sickness.

There will be theoretical presentations placing somatic therapies within the context of the biological sciences, and seminars on cross-cultural approaches to the body. Particular attention will be paid to how somatic strategies can be used in dealing with specific problems such as stress-related diseases, addictive behavior, and eating disorders.

Each student in the program will choose one teacher from the staff who will act as that student's supervisor during the two years. By the end of the program, the faculty and students will have generated a body of clinical research, applying the material of the seminars to specific kinds of problems among their patients and clients.

Admission to the training will be restricted to individuals in the helping professions—nurses, social workers, physicians, psychotherapists, physical therapists, body workers, chiropractors, etc., and registered students in these areas—who are interested in expanding their skills for working with the human body. Because the program is based on the unique opportunity for a group of pioneers to work together and with a committed group of students over a long period of time, only those who commit themselves to the whole program will be admitted to the individual seminars.

The training will consist of 300 hours over a period of two years, in modules arranged as much as possible for the convenience of the participants. Continuing education credit and academic credit from Antioch University will be available (see "Esalen-Antioch Cooperation" above).

Those who are designing the program and teaching various modules include: Judith Aston, Bonnie Bainbridge Cohen, Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, Robert Hall, Don Johnson, Sam Keen, Mary Eckberg, Dennis Leri, Charlotte Selver, Charles Brooks, and several others.

If you are interested in this program, please write to Don Johnson at the address below, indicating the kinds of scheduling that would be manageable for you. Some possibilities over a two-year cycle are: a 5-day intensive (Sunday night to Friday noon) every other month; a 7-day intensive every 3 months; a combination of 5-day intensives with a month-long, etc.

Write to: Don Johnson, Somatic Psychology and Education, Antioch University, 650 Pine Street, San Francisco, CA 94108.

Invitational Conferences

Though many invitational conferences were organized by Esalen during the 1960s, the first to become an annual event was held in January 1976 to explore certain issues in theoretical physics. From that meeting, Esalen's current program of invitational conferences was born. In 1986, several invitational conferences were held at Big Sur on new modes of national and international governance, alternatives to traditional psychiatric approaches, trends in the arts, the psychology of the Soviet-American relationship, the practice of shamanism, and other subjects.

Typically, these conferences are chaired by one or two individuals interested in a topic or field and engaged in work related to this area. A five-day conference period is scheduled, and group leaders invite individuals they know to have similar or parallel interests. As host, Esalen covers room and board expenses for all participants as a way of advancing these particular studies. Sometimes, conference leaders help raise funds from private sources to assist with transportation costs for participants who come from Europe, Asia, and Latin America.

The goal of these invitational conferences is to engender the kind of creativity that comes from the collaborative work of people with similar interests but radically different approaches. We hope that the results will include expanded research projects, new writing, and more effective plans for the education of therapists.

One of these invited conferences, The Biological, Psychological, and Cultural Body: Methods of Transformation, which will conclude with a public seminar, is highlighted below. A list of other currently listed programs follows.

The Biological, Psychological, and Cultural Body: Methods of Transformation

Esalen Institute Invitational Conference: June 21-26
Public Seminar: June 26-28

This invitational conference will deal with a broad spectrum of concerns about the body that includes healing, education, art, social thought, and science. It is based on a growing realization that an adequate understanding of the body, and of the relation between the body and larger human issues, requires a wide panorama of theories, clinical practices, research discoveries, aesthetics, and educational strategies which contribute to the understanding of human sensitivity and vulnerability and the transformation of pain. Its participants will include biological and behavioral scientists, creators of somatic therapies, artists, psychotherapists, teachers of meditation, and thinkers who have analyzed the role of the body within culture.

Those invited to the conference have either published books, journal articles, or videotapes of their work. These products will be circulated among the participants so that each of them may become familiar with the particular contributions of the others. During the invitational conference, the work of each participant will be examined in relation to the work of the others. During the public seminar, each of the participants in the conference will present a vision of the future of his or her particular work, and a broader vision of the future of the body. There will be opportunities for dialogue among the participants, questions from the audience, and experiential sessions.

Participants:

Bonnie Bainbridge Cohen, creator of the somatic educational and therapeutic system called "Body-Mind Centering."

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, founder of the somatic educational method called "Continuum."

Leslie Gray, founder of "Shamanic Counseling," lecturer in Native American studies, UC Berkeley.

Susan Griffin, poet, author of Woman and Nature and Pornography and Silence.

Barbara Halpern, medical anthropologist and Feldenkrais® practitioner; latest article appears in Social Science and Medicine.

Thomas Hanna, philosopher and Feldenkrais® practitioner, author of several books in the somatic field, founder and editor of the journal Somatics.

Don Johnson, director of Antioch University's graduate program in Somatic Psychology and Education, author, conference organizer.

George Leonard, creator of the Leonard Energy Training, teacher of aikido, author of numerous books and articles.

Ted Melnechuk, member, scientific staff, and planning and editorial consultant to the president, Helicon Foundation; visiting lecturer, Department of Neurosciences, UCSD.

Michael Murphy, author, co-founder of Esalen.

Moses Pendleton, dancer, choreographer, co-founder of Pilobolus, current director of Momix.

Candace Pert, neuroscientist, director of the Section on Brain Biochemistry, National Institute of Mental Health.

Vincent Sarich, evolutionary scientist, Department of Anthropology, UC Berkeley.

Additional Invitational Conferences for May-October 1987:

Esalen's Gazebo—Early Childhood Education Internship Program: Janet Lederman

Appropriate Governance: Donald Michael

Dialogues on Philosophy at Esalen: Jay Ogilvy

Methodology of Practicing Intuitives: Helen Palmer

The Psychology of the U.S.-Soviet Relationship: Joe Montville

Psychical Research: Russell Targ and Charles Tart

New Directions in Biological Research and Evolutionary Theory: David Deamer

[8]The Feldenkrais Guild

Esalen/Lan Ting Institute China Exchange

October 1-21, 1987, Esalen will collaborate with Lan Ting Institute, Wu Yi Mountain Scenic Reserve District, Fujian Province, China, to offer a third annual cultural arts study group led by Chungliang Al Huang. Participants will stay primarily in a traditional Taoist retreat area in the southern China province, and faculty will focus on Chinese arts and philosophy. Approximate tour price, based on double occupancy, including air fare, and subject to change, is $3600. There will be only approximately 32 participants, so to reserve a space, please send a letter of application and a check for $350, payable to Living Tao Foundation, Box 846, Urbana, IL 61801. Inquiries for further information may be directed to the same address.

Job's Body: A Handbook for Body Work

Below are excerpts from Job's Body: A Handbook for Body Work (Station Hill Press: Barrytown, New York, 1987, 320 pps.) by Deane Juhan, a member of the Esalen massage crew for many years and a certified instructor and practitioner of Trager℠ psychophysical integration.

It is the goal of this book to explore some of the verifiable relationships between the body and the mind in search of data that might contribute towards some concrete understanding of what is happening when skillful touching alters the structure, the chemistry, and the psychology of a human being. I would like to find reasons for the obvious successes of a largely intuitive process, a process which seems to begin from very different initial premises regarding actual method in order to arrive at the same results of relief from discomfort, dysfunction, and anxiety. . . .

The idea that touch, knowledgeably directed, can have significant healing value is far from being a new one. . . . Most of the body's processes rely upon the appropriate movement of fluids through our systems, and body work can be an effective means of promoting these circulations. . . . Another argument frequently made for the efficacy of body work is that both our musculature and the connective tissues which hold us together often become stiffened or shortened or thickened, distorting our posture and limiting our movements. . . . Body work has been used for thousands of years to relax muscles, eliminate spasms, diminish fatigue, soften connective tissue to make it more supple, and so free up the joints, restoring a fuller range of painless movement. . . .

These kinds of effects upon our fluids and upon our solids have been rightfully cited. . . . Even though they are accurate identifications of positive benefits, they reflect almost exclusively the mechanical aspects of body work and of our own system's responses—the laws governing hydraulics, the elasticity and tensile strength of tissues, and so on. . . . No matter how hydraulic, mechanical, or chemical we may be in some respects, the physical laws which govern these kinds of relationships among our elements are only a part of the organization which forms and sustains human beings.

Our other great principle of organization is neural, mental. . . . Mind is the most pervasive organizing principle in the body. There is no cell whose environment is not directly sustained or adjusted by the activities of the nervous system. It ultimately determines the plasticity of all other tissues and systems, and it is itself the most radically plastic of all the systems in the organism. . . . Just as the mind organizes the rest of the body's tissues into a life process, sensations to a large degree organize the mind. They do not simply give the mind material to organize; they are themselves a major organizing principle.

Body work, then, is a kind of sensorimotor education, rather than a treatment or a procedure in the sense common to modern medicine. Self-awareness, self-control, and the active application of the will to the processes of growth and development are the major themes of this education. . . . Practiced touch can not only deliver a collection of sensory impressions, but it can also impart those impressions in such a way as to convey a smoother style, a larger repertoire, a greater flexibility and a finer appropriateness to our movements. It can help us to learn—in ways that our upbringing did not—a whole new manner of sensing and behaving. It can help us to learn to more accurately assess our condition, to identify and resolve stress, to reverse vicious circles, to move towards health rather than towards increasing involvement with our infirmities. It can help us to establish the new sensory engrams and master the new conditioned responses that are necessary for successfully breaking out of our ingrained patterns and our compulsions.

Awareness is the only medicine that accomplishes its healing without disrupting the natural functions of the organism. In the face of his adversities Job cried, "Is not my help within me?" The answer is yes. But it is up to each of us to seek this help out, recognize it, develop it, and learn to use it successfully. We inhabit—we are—the most complex and marvelous manifestation of nature that we know. The more we inform ourselves about those marvels and complexities, the more success we can expect in utilizing our inheritance. And the more we distance ourselves from the organic intimacies that comprise us, the more problems we can be sure of encountering.

> Before the bar of nature and fate, unconsciousness is never accepted as an excuse; on the contrary, there are severe penalties for it.[1]

Body work is one of our readiest and most effective antidotes to this unconsciousness.

[1]JUNG, Carl, "An Answer to Job," The Viking Portable Jung, ed. Joseph Campbell, Viking Press, p.637.

Ways of Being at Esalen

There are various ways to experience Esalen, ranging from a visit to the hot springs on a week night to a long-term stay as a student or resident. The weekend and five-day workshops described throughout the catalog are the standard route for coming to Esalen and learning the various methods of personal growth and self-exploration that are available here. The Experiencing Esalen workshops, although not a prerequisite to taking any of the scheduled seminars, offer an introduction to practices such as gestalt, massage, sensory awareness, and meditation. From such a sampling, the participant can then choose those approaches he/she is most attracted to and pursue them in subsequent seminars.

Another way of being at Esalen, which allows a much greater involvement with the place and its community at a lower expense, is the Work Study Program, described more fully elsewhere in this section and on page 37. For those who wish an extended stay of a month or more, there is an ongoing residence program. Other long-term programs include the "month-longs," which frequently involve didactic seminars or professional trainings as well as experiential workshops.

Some courses offer continuing education credit to physicians and nurses (see Medical Programs, page 8, for current C.E. listings), and beginning in Fall 1987, academic credit toward a bachelor's or master's degree will be offered to Esalen resident scholars through the new Esalen-Antioch somatics program. For more information, please refer to "Esalen-Antioch Cooperation" in the Notes section, page 5.

Occasionally, when beds aren't needed for seminarians, room and board is available. This gives visitors the opportunity to enjoy the grounds, the baths, massage, and good food without participating in a workshop. See General Information, page 50, for rates.

In addition, there are other events which enrich life at Esalen. There are frequent forums in which writers and thinkers, both visiting and resident, share their ideas with the community. On Wednesday nights, there may be lectures, films, dance performances, choirs, or other forms of entertainment. Body work of various kinds is available by appointment with individual practitioners. Private sessions are also available for various types of process work, including gestalt, neo-Reichian emotional release, vision improvement, singing gestalt, etc. Finally, there is a community workshop program, which goes on daily, and provides many opportunities for engaging in personal self-exploration or learning new approaches to human growth.

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Jessica Moore Britt

These workshops are designed for people who have not previously been to Esalen. Their emphasis is on finding those approaches to self-awareness that work most effectively for the individual participant. These may include: sensory awareness, gestalt practice, group process, guided fantasy, meditation, massage. There is also time to explore the natural magnificence of the Big Sur coast.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim (Bantam).

Schedule:

May 1-3	$250
May 10-15	$490
May 22-24	$250
June 5-7	$250
July 17-19	$270
August 21-23	$270
September 25-27	$270
October 23-25	$270

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff
Coordinated by Christine Stewart Price

"The Way, when declared
Seems so thin and flavorless.
Nothing to look at, nothing to hear—
And when used—is inexhaustible."
—Lao Tzu

"Gestalt is as old as the world."
—Fritz Perls

Gestalt practice is a form—nonanalytic, noncoercive, nonjudgmental—evolving out of the work of Fritz Perls. The work integrates ways of personal clearing and development that are both ancient and modern. To the extent that awareness is made primary relative to action, gestalt practice has a strong relationship to some forms of meditation and visualization. This form is similar to some Reichian work as well, in that emotional and energetic release and rebalancing are allowed and encouraged.

The emphasis is *intra*personal rather than *inter*personal. It is explicitly understood that participants are not patients but persons actively consenting to work (or play) in awareness. The leader functions to reflect, clarify, and respect whatever emerges in this process. The aim is unfoldment, wholeness, and growth, rather than adjustment, cure, or accomplishment.

Although open seat work is the primary form of this practice, guided fantasy, breath meditations, and movement sessions may be included.

Each gestalt practice group will have a member of the Esalen gestalt staff as its primary leader. The name of this leader will be listed in the office three weeks in advance of the workshop. Please call if you want this information. Other leaders may be involved in some sessions.

Recommended reading: Fritz Perls, Gestalt Therapy Verbatim and In and Out the Garbage Pail; John Heider, The Tao of Leadership (Humanics, Ltd.).

Schedule:

May 17-22	$490
June 7-12	$490
June 12-14	$250
August 9-14	$530
August 28-30	$530
September 20-25	$530
October 18-23	$530

Medical Programs

Esalen Institute is a California state-approved provider of Continuing Education for health professionals. Only those programs specifically listed below offer continuing education credit. See workshop descriptions elsewhere in the catalog. The California Medical Association has granted Esalen Category I approval. Physicians attending approved courses may receive credit toward the California Medical Association Certificate in Continuing Education. The Board of Registered Nursing has approved Esalen as a provider of Continuing Education for registered nurses, provider number 01152.

Physicians:

May 8-10
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson
10 hours

August 28-30
Reversing Heart Disease: A Model for Personal Transformation
Dean Ornish
10 hours

Registered Nurses:

May 8-10
Burnout: Causes and Cures
Elliot Aronson
10 hours

June 7-12
Intermediate Cranial Workshop
Jim Asher & Jane Harrington
30 hours

June 19–21
Freeing Our Bodies / Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais® Approach
Patrick Douce
10 hours

July 5–10
Basic Deep Tissue Body Work Practicum
Dub Leigh
30 hours

July 12–17
Zero Balancing: Beginning / Intermediate Workshop
Fritz Smith
30 hours

July 19–24
Beyond Anatomy: Feldenkrais® for Body Workers
Patrick Douce
30 hours

August 16–21
The Art of Self-Care: Who Heals the Healer? Who Helps the Helper?
Ilana Rubenfeld
30 hours

August 21–23
Imagery in Healing
Jeanne Achterberg & Frank Lawlis
10 hours

August 28–30
Reversing Heart Disease: A Model for Personal Transformation
Dean Ornish
10 hours

August 28–30
Asylum: Responsible Psychiatric Alternatives
Leon Redler
10 hours

Work Study Program

The Work Study Program is an intensive work-oriented program for individuals who want to make a directed, personal commitment to self-exploration and growth and a contribution to the Esalen community. Participants can enroll in the general interest track, which gives an overview of several disciplines, or choose a more specific course of study from the focused track, such as gestalt, Reichian work, massage, etc.

Information regarding special interest sections may be obtained by writing Bette Dingman, c/o Esalen. For a full description of the Work Study Program, please turn to page 37.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Scholarship Information

If you need scholarship assistance for an Esalen program, write for a scholarship application form before making a reservation. Allow at least three weeks for processing as we have many applications. If your application is approved, please make a reservation as soon as possible after receiving notice. Scholarship recipients may be asked to bring a sleeping bag to use during peak attendance periods. There are no scholarships available for the Work Study Program.

Conferences at Esalen

It is now possible to arrange for your group or organization to hold its conferences at Esalen. We schedule approximately a year in advance for large groups (up to 100). Smaller groups may be accommodated at shorter notice. Call the office, (408) 667-2335, for further information.

Accreditation

Beginning in the Fall of 1987, there will be a number of opportunities for Esalen resident scholars to gain credit with Antioch University toward a bachelor's degree or toward a master's degree in somatic psychology. Please refer to the article, "Esalen-Antioch Cooperation," in the Notes section. Many other formal educational institutions also recognize the time spent at Esalen as being worthy of credit in their own curriculum. Check with your university or college for further information. We would be glad to supply information to your school regarding any of our programs or series of programs.

Esalen Seminars

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Weekend of May 1–3

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Gentle Art of Becoming—Together: A Workshop for Couples

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

This workshop will focus on reawakening and developing positive, mutual supports that are at the root of satisfying couple relationships. The emphasis will be on creating clear and truthful expressions of loving and personal integrity. Participants will re-examine their beliefs and habits through the use of intuitional sensing, risk-taking structures, guided imagery, and gestalt awareness methods.

$250 per participant

Celebrating the Goddess Within

Margot Adler

This workshop is about women's spiritual empowerment. The use of ritual as a tool for connecting with the Earth and with each other will be explored. Participants will chant, dance, share songs and experiences, and dream their inner journeys. They will create sacred space and travel to an ancient temple to meet the Goddess within themselves and within all nature. The workshop will also attempt to demystify concepts like "magic" and "ritual" and will offer each woman a set of personal tools she can use in her life. $250

Guide to Recovery for Adult Children of Alcoholics and Other Adult Children of Trauma

Herbert Gravitz & Julie Bowden

The last decade has heralded a social movement identifying and recognizing the plight of over thirty million Americans raised in alcoholic homes. When it is realized that there are millions raised in family environments with other types of dysfunction (e.g., chronic mental or physical illness, holocaust survivors, compulsive workers, overeaters, or gamblers), it is possible to begin to see the source of the pain so evident in this society.

Some believe the stress or sadism in an alcoholic family is second only to the horrors of concentration camps or prisoner of war camps. Comparing growing up in an alcoholic family to growing up in a war zone, many believe the emotional atmosphere results in symptoms of post traumatic stress disorder, including flashbacks, psychic numbing, survivor guilt, alienation, and chronic shock. Acknowledging the effects of alcoholism increases our understanding of the healing process.

The workshop leaders have identified six stages that describe the transformational journey to recovery taken by children of alcoholics and other trauma. Step by step, in an atmosphere of safety and integrity, they will combine the dimensions of altered state work and spirituality. Participants will be invited to move through and beyond the trauma of yesterday—melting frozen tears, integrating eternal yesterdays, befriending the child within, and connecting to the higher purpose. $250

Applied Vulnerability

Donald Michael

A primary task that persons and organizations face in the next twenty years is that of learning to be better learners. This may sound obvious, but consider for a moment how much effort we expend disguising our uncertainty and ignorance and acting as if we really know what we are doing. There is a parallel between what happens when we pay close attention to the processes of the mind (in meditation, for instance) and when we study the vastly complex political, social, and economic processes and systems of the world. In both cases, it is possible to see how little we really know about ourselves as individuals and about the world. This recognition can be the starting point for embracing ignorance and vulnerability so that we can apply them to constructive engagement with our private and public worlds.

This seminar will introduce several skills, or what Donald Michael calls "new competencies," that are necessary for making humane and effective decisions in situations where uncertainty can be the best occasion for learning—in organizational or independent work places and in interpersonal and family situations. These skills include: acknowledging high levels of uncertainty, error embracing, being future-responsive, boundary spanning, self-knowledge, and interpersonal competence.

The approach will be both cognitive and experiential. Participants will have the opportunity to learn to be more comfortable with their uncertainty, to reduce the need to act overcautiously out of fear of making a mistake, and to minimize the need for those defensive posturings that make it so hard to act responsibly and compassionately. As a previous participant said, "This workshop is for those who are ready to move beyond the personal and want to effect change in public and private organizations." $250

May 1–9

Big Sur Wilderness Journey . . . from Esalen to Tassajara Zen Mountain Center

Steven Harper & Joyce Rogers Lyke

For workshop description see Wilderness Programs, page 40. $495

Week of May 3–8

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff
Coordinated by Lia Thompson & Deborah Anne Medow

This workshop offers opportunities to experience body awareness and movement in Esalen's supportive environment. Various types of dance, massage, music, meditation, yoga, and theater are available. Five-day groups may also have time to explore the magnificent coast and trails near Esalen. $490

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devaram)

Beliefs, fears, and emotions from the past can continue into present relationships and interfere with spontaneous feelings of trust, love, and joy. The goal of this workshop is to experience and let go of these defenses and to help create new ways to relate—in the moment—to ourselves, to our work, and to those we love.

The workshop includes periods of intense body work for those who want to let go of past anger, fear, and pain, which are reflected in the body as armor and tension. As armor softens, feelings held in since childhood can be released, and positive feelings can be experienced more fully. By also using dream work, massage, dance, and group process, a new capacity for loving can emerge. $490

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

To make effective, creative choices requires courage, imagination, and the willingness to know one's heart and be true to the dreams that live inside it. Choosing this deeper wisdom can often involve the risk of breaking set—the choice to move against the powerful grain of old fears, habits, and the constant pressures of other people's expectations. To foster this spirit means contacting the elemental-instinctual parts of one's nature, befriending rather than suppressing or denying the sexuality and the power out of which initiative and enthusiasm spring.

In this week participants will focus on how to develop those qualities that contribute to a more adventurous, resourceful, and buoyant way of living. In an atmosphere based on warmth and humor they will explore their capacity for mutual tenderness, respect, and honesty. Traditional psychological practices such as gestalt, bioenergetics, and psychosynthesis will be used for intensive individual work, as well as non-traditional innovative approaches in body work, kinesthetic retraining, music, and guided imagery. $490

May 3–29

The Mystical Quest, Attachment, and Addiction

Christina Grof, Stanislav Grof & Jacquelyn Small

For workshop description see Special Programs, page 38. $1960

Weekend of May 8–10

Burnout: Causes and Cures

Elliot Aronson

This workshop is designed for people who give service to others and who are experiencing burnout. It deals with the impact of burnout on both the service provider and the client, ways of finding and recognizing support resources on the job, and positive methods of dealing with burnout and life tedium. Through lectures, group discussions, and input from the participants themselves, individuals will have the opportunity to increase their understanding of those aspects of their own work and life which could cause burnout. In addition, they will be provided with the tools and opportunity to learn how to handle these problems in order to increase the productivity and creativity of their relationships with clients and colleagues.

C.E. credit is available for doctors and nurses; for additional information see page 8. $250

Word Magic: Self-Discovery Through Writing

Nancy Bacal

We all have stories and the capacity to tell them, but when asked to translate them onto the page, many of us are inhibited by self-judgment. By practicing a series of writing exercises designed to bypass blockages, participants may be able to move beyond the controlling arm of the critic and have a direct experience of themselves. The exercises are specific enough to excite the imagination yet spacious enough for the "writer inside" to experiment with imagery and form and remain true to his or her own voice.

This writing workshop is designed for the non-writer, the would-be-writer, and the professional writer. It offers participants an opportunity to open the heart, tap reservoirs of story-making material, and heighten their observations of the world. $250

Body Imagery

Daria Khalighi

In this workshop, the physical body will be viewed as a metaphoric palette on which aspects of the Self are projected. A drawing of the full body by each participant will establish a point of origin, followed by a series of visualizations, drawings, and exercises on each body part. By isolating one body part at a time, participants will become aware of the unique messages, imprints, and associations carried within each of the body's parts.

Social impacts on the body, which have shaped the individual through childhood, adolescence, and into adulthood, will become evident through drawings and gestalt writings. Movement and breath work will engage the body in creative physical expression and the release of its tensions.

Body images—feelings and thoughts which are carried in muscles, skeletal structure, and organs—may be given expression through the creative impulse of drawing. As these images become available, it is possible to rediscover and unblock the pathways linking body with mind, emotion, and spirit. $250

The Experience of Auroville: An Evolutionary Perspective

Alan Luhman (Savitra)

In 1968, Auroville was founded by the Mother, based on the vision of Sri Aurobindo. Located on the southeast coast of India, Auroville has persevered through two decades as a global community of 600 men, women, and children from more than twenty-five nations.

Auroville claims to provide a context for the future evolution of humanity. What does this mean? What lessons can Auroville share with those of us facing the growing density of evolutionary crises? This is what the workshop will explore, using Auroville's actual experiences as reference points—from the reforesting of a million trees to the creation of a computer production unit, from its schools to its decision-making process.

Auroville has brought together the worlds of East and West, with the problems and gifts of both cultures. It has experienced in its own way why wars are fought and why governments fail. Yet, through these intense transitions, Auroville has remained alive to its quest, which seeks to heal the old gods of Matter and Spirit. $250

Week of May 10–15

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Human Potential Theory and Practice

John Heider

This workshop will consist of a synthesis of group process, gestalt, body work, and meditation. The purpose is to develop and educate the human potential, which refers to the ability people have to become more aware or conscious of themselves and of the world around them. While the workshop will be mostly experiential, there will be time for questions and answers and for discussion of the work. $490

Presence: Reclaiming Personal Power

Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Elisa Lodge Schiffman writes: "Presence is a power that arises from a deep sense of self-worth and trust. It reflects a broadened vision and whole-hearted acceptance of the varied facets of being. It is a state of dynamic balance where there is no unnecessary strain of self-defeating awkwardness. One is at home in oneself and at ease with the world.

"During this week, participants can gain a deepened appreciation of the elements in themselves that contribute to this timeless state of fluidity and ease. They will have an opportunity to experiment and explore how their bodies' shapes and forms, emotional histories, and sef-images are intimately intertwined. This growing awareness is the basic grounding from which the creative experience of presence can be known. Movement patterns, the ways we walk and breathe, also reveal how we inhibit or allow our personal power. As we become more comfortable with ourselves, we transform not only the way we might carry our head or make contact with another, but our whole way of being in the world."

This work is based on an approach woven from gestalt, psychosynthesis, Rolf-movement, and performance art. Video feedback will be used. $490

Weekend of May 15–17

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see May 3-8. $250

Singing Gestalt

Nancy Kaye Lunney

Singing gestalt is singing about yourself, who you are, what you feel, who you'd like to be. Singing gestalt is about being yourself in front of other people without judging how well you sing. Singing gestalt is not about performance. It is about feeling and expressing.

If the idea of getting up and singing in front of other people terrifies you more than anything you can think of, this workshop is for you. If you love to sing in front of other people and want to stretch yourself further, this workshop is for you. If you've been too shy to try, this is your chance.

Some guided imagery and gestalt may be used. Accompaniment and lots of music are provided. Video feedback may be incorporated. But the workshop is really about you—singing. $250

Cross-Cultural Images of Body and Spirit

Elinor Gadon & Don Johnson

Every culture displays what it means by "spiritual consciousness" in specific forms of body posture and movement, such as yogic asanas, zazen, trance dances, sacred iconography, and erotic art. Participants in this seminar will contemplate slides of ideal bodies from various cultures, examining how those icons embody the consciousness of their culture. Against the backdrop of projected visual images, using sensory awareness and simple movement exercises, participants will explore how various images affect their own consciousness. They will also examine how breathing mediates the relation between body-image and spiritual practice, and will use simple forms of touch to facilitate awareness. This seminar is designed to illuminate the recovery of erotic perceptions and feeling underneath external body-images to ground a non-authoritarian, earth-respecting spirituality. $250

The Power of Growth

Seymour Carter

Everyone has unused capacities for further personal development. When these capacities are recognized and given attention, a natural force is released which, like a tide, can carry the individual to a higher level of ability and action. Fritz Perls taught how to recognize the force of avoided issues in dealing with blocked energies. When unfinished issues are confronted and assimilated, it is possible to feel potent and in charge of one's life.

In this workshop, participants can deal with these issues by examining the influence of the inner dialogue on thoughts and the nature of impasse, as well as tendencies within themselves toward psychological completion and well-being. The basis of this work is the gestalt method, supported by studies in various body disciplines, including sensory awareness, bioenergetics, Rolfing®, and aikido. Each participant's process of development will be honored, encouraged, and treated as unique. $250

Rolfing® is a service mark of the Rolf Institute.

Week of May 17–22

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Energy Awareness

Richard Strozzi Heckler

Traditional education, with its emphasis on rational thought, has overshadowed the development of the intuitive resources of the body. This imbalance leaves us only partially equipped for dealing with the changes and transitions of everyday life. Working through the body, however, makes it possible to contact an energy that has the wisdom to be self-educating and self-healing.

In this seminar, exercises and movements from aikido, a Japanese martial art, will be used to awaken the feeling and perceptive skills of this bodily wisdom. The principles of centering, grounding, positive energy flow, receptivity, relaxation, blending, and appropriate effort will be taught. Participants will also do body readings from an energetic point of view.

Emphasis will be on the application of these principles to daily living, such as how to overcome obstacles during times of change and confusion, how to be more effective in stressful situations, and how to develop and trust one's intuition. No prior experience is necessary. $490

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Steven Harper

Located on a narrow stretch of land between the Pacific Ocean and the coastal ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains, Esalen is the trailhead to one of the world's most spectacular wilderness areas. With this natural reserve as the primary teacher, the group will walk into the Los Padres National Forest. Drawing on various traditions, participants can develop the quality of their awareness and open to the natural world.

Week-long workshops will venture out on five hikes (4-10 miles in length). Using Esalen as base camp, the group will explore different trails through the natural beauty of the Big Sur backcountry. Days will begin and end at Esalen with short stretching and sharing sessions. Each day-hike will begin after breakfast and will conclude in time to enjoy the hot springs and dinner each evening at Esalen. Basic outdoor skills such as map reading and minimum impact concepts will be practiced. Participants will be taught enough skills to begin exploring the wilderness on their own after these outings. More information will be sent upon registration. $490

Dream Council: The Craft of Dream Work

Stephen Aizenstat

"Dreaming is the psyche itself doing its soul-work."—James Hillman

". . . the dream, we would say, originates in an unknown part of the psyche and prepares the dreamer for the events of the following day." —C.G. Jung

These two notions, the soul-connection of dreams and the preparatory function of dreams, make participation in a dream group a particularly rewarding personal experience. Dreams, as looking-glass parables, provide a connection to the voices and images of the psyche. In dream council, the group creates a time and a place to listen to the visions of the night, the language of the psyche, to speak of our fate. In this regard, common dream themes, nightmares, lucid dreaming, archetypal imagery, and the recurring dream will be discussed. Each dream council becomes a community unto itself, guided by the resource of the dream. The dream group provides a setting for participants to attend to individual woundings (psychological and physical), life transitions, and personal relationships. In following the way of the dream, dream work often becomes soul-work and participants typically deepen their sense of personal journey. $490

Weekend of May 22–24

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

The Further Reaches of Human Energy

George Leonard & Annie Styron Leonard

This workshop begins with a basic grounding in Leonard Energy Training (LET), in which problems can become opportunities, stress and pain can be transformed into gifts of energy, personal and social options can be multiplied, and the flow of vital energy enhanced. In addition to its practical applications, the workshop offers participants the possibility of experiencing their own latent powers of intuition and extraordinary sensing.

After their introduction to LET, participants move into experiments that push the limits of what are termed "normal" human capacities. Through such processes as scanning, tuning-in to others' energy, focused surrender, and remote viewing, the group is given a chance to experience a crystalline state of intense aliveness without expectation and prejudgment. As George Leonard wrote in The Ultimate Athlete, "Simply by considering possibilities commonly ignored by our culture, we find ourselves in a far more fascinating universe. We discover adventures that do not require the burning of fuel or the rape of the planet: sensing the energy field of a friend or a tree, making connections that defy conventional space and time. . . . We realize, with the sorcerer, don Juan, that our world is awesome, mysterious, and unfathomable, and that our life is filled to the brim and altogether too short."

Recommended reading: George Leonard, The Silent Pulse (Dutton), The Ultimate Athlete (Viking), and The Transformation (J.P. Tarcher/Houghton-Mifflin). $250

Week of May 24–29

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

Participants are instructed in basic methods used in giving a pleasurable and beneficial full body massage. Fundamental elements of body work, such as breath awareness, grounding, movement, quality of touch, and stress reduction are introduced. This workshop is available to beginners as well as to those who wish to brush up on their massage skills. $490

Opening the Feelings

Dale Cummings & Gena Mayer Sorensen

Participants will employ Radix® and neo-Reichian methods of emotional release, the most important of which is the Radix intensive, a period of individual work within a small group setting which can provide emotional support among participants. Grief, pain, fear, and rage that have been held in since childhood can emerge. As the participant accepts and works through these negative feelings, he or she may discover a new capacity for pleasure, trust, and love. In time, the sexual experience may change as feelings of tenderness and sexuality intensify and merge. $490

Woman as Warrior

Danielle Evans & Mary Tesoro

"I will learn to chant the power chant and play the healing drum."—from Daughters of Copper Woman

This workshop is for women only. It will use a synthesis of traditional and modern martial arts, women's street fighting defense techniques, and Leonard Energy Training to follow the path of the Huntress—the path of empowerment and love.

Although recognition may lie deeply buried in the unconscious, every woman is a potential Huntress. To tap into the power of the Huntress is to claim the power and freedom of our birthright as women, to eliminate the consciousness of victimhood. No previous martial arts experience necessary. $490

Weekend of May 29–31

Big Sur Wilderness Experience

Steven Harper

For workshop description see May 17-22. $250

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

This weekend will focus on a major theme in keeping a good relationship alive. That is: being close and vulnerable yet also free to grow as a separate person.

Participants will spend part of the time with their partners, separate from other couples, in verbal and written experience that can add to their relationship in closeness, conflict resolution, and individuality.

Limited to 10 couples. $250 per participant

The Way of Gnosis*, Ancient and Modern

Gnosis: Transformative spiritual "knowing" arrived at intuitively; knowledge of the heart.

Sidney Lanier & Stephan Hoeller

This seminar will explore a dynamic and uniquely western spirituality based upon ancient and modern insights about human nature. Its discussions will include an evaluation of the recently translated Nag Hammadi Gnostic Gospels and their significance today in light of Jung's psychology and the radical Gnostic visions of Feminine Wisdom. This seminar will combine formal presentation with group discussion.

Recommended reading: Elaine Pagels, The Gnostic Gospels; Stephen Hoeller, The Gnostic Jung and the Seven Sermons to the Dead; Collected Works of C.G. Jung, Vols. 11, 12. $250

The Presence of the Past: Morphic Resonance and the Habits of Nature

Rupert Sheldrake

Sheldrake's hypothesis of formative causation may provide the basis for a new scientific paradigm which goes far beyond the currently predominant mechanistic theory of life. The idea that the form and behavior of living organisms are shaped by morphogenetic fields, themselves molded by the form and behavior of past similar organisms, leads to a new interpretation of heredity and the evolutionary process.

Memories need no longer be thought of as somehow stored inside the brain. They may depend on direct connections with the organism's own past due to morphic resonance, and tuning in to the experience of other members of the species may give rise to a pooled or collective memory.

Joyce Rogers Lyke

In this workshop, some of the implications of formative causation for biology, psychology, parapsychology, philosophy, ritual, and religion will be explored and discussed.

Recommended reading: Rupert Sheldrake, A New Science of Life (J.P. Tarcher) and The Presence of the Past: Morphic Resonance and the Habits of Nature (Random House). $250

Week of May 31–June 5

Shamanic Healing: Training in the Way of the Shaman

Michael Harner

Shamanism is an ancient human strategy for personal learning and action, especially useful for problem-solving, maintaining well-being, and healing. The shaman (a type of medicine man or woman) enters non-ordinary reality to obtain knowledge, to answer personal questions, and to maximize power to maintain personal health and achieve life goals.

In this experiential workshop, the participants will be introduced to some of the basic methods of the shaman. Participants will be initiated into shamanic journeying, a visionary method used to enter non-ordinary reality and explore the hidden universe otherwise known mainly through myth and dream. Practice will include: traditional drumming; movement methods for experiencing the shamanic state of consciousness and for awakening dormant personal capabilities and forgotten connections with nature; comparisons of discoveries made on shamanic journeys; personal problem-solving work; opportunity to discover one's own non-ordinary teachers and to learn from them in non-ordinary reality.

Participants will be introduced to the extraction method dealing with spiritual illness or pain, including discovery and recognition of localized spiritual illness and pain. They can learn how the shaman's journey may be used to restore spiritual power and health, and how shamanism may be practically applied in contemporary daily life.

This five-day workshop is both for beginners and for those who have previously taken a workshop with Michael Harner.

Participants are encouraged to bring drums and rattles and a notebook to record their experiences.

Recommended reading prior to the workshop: Michael Harner, The Way of the Shaman: A Guide to Power and Healing (Bantam; Harper & Row). $490

Ericksonian Hypnosis and Communication

Paul Carter

"Wisdom is the intelligence of the system as a whole."—Gregory Bateson

"Your conscious mind is very intelligent, and your unconscious mind is a hell of a lot smarter." —M.H. Erickson

"We have an intelligence obtained from our wholeness that is far greater than we are ordinarily conscious of," Milton Erickson believed. Accessing and integrating this intelligence formed the basis of his hypnotic work.

This workshop is designed for those who work with people and would like experience with Ericksonian hypnosis, communication, and problem-solving. It will explore principles of this approach, including trance as a natural and necessary part of health, and will develop the idea that people and their communication and problem-solving are paradoxical.

Through guided exercises and demonstrations, participants will be taught the hypnotic use of metaphor in movement, sound, image, and story, as well as the hypnotic realities of age-regression, age-progression (traveling into futures), lucid dreaming, dissociation, and deep-trance identification (a process of deepening self-awareness through identification with different persons in and out of trance).

Additional exploration will include: the recognition and use of spontaneous trance states that commonly occur in the course of body work, acupuncture, movement and dance, sports, counseling, and everyday stress situations; the art of using all the system, including the bad, sick, crazy, and resistant parts; the value of humor, confusion, pattern interruption, and paradox in accessing unconscious creativity and resources; and an integrative approach to problem-solving and self-healing as described in Paul Carter's soon-to-be published book, The Parts Model.

Recommended reading: Jay Haley, Uncommon Therapy (W.W. Norton & Co.); Jeffrey Zeig, editor, Ericksonian Approaches to Hypnosis and Psychotherapy (Brunner & Mazel). $490

Weekend of June 5–7

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Suffering and Happiness as a Spiritual Path

Sogyal Rinpoche

According to the vision of Buddha, the suffering and happiness that one experiences can actually become the path to inner development. This teaching, written by the Tibetan master Jikme Tenpe Nyima, challenges basic attitudes of suffering and happiness, aspects of life which are revealed to be sources of understanding, compassion, and tranquility. Rinpoche will interweave this teaching with periods of guided sitting meditation practice. $250

Inner Sound and Voice

Jill Purce

This is a workshop of practical explorations with sound for healing and the transformation of consciousness. By liberating the voice, it is possible to make contact with deep levels of the Self and release an untapped source of energy.

Participants will work with the psycho-physical effects of breathing, chanting, mantric and sonic meditations, learning to tune and listen together, moving from the intuitive level into meditative states. Breath and sound will be developed so that different parts of the body-mind come into resonance, to give sonic massage, and to heal and tune the chakras and subtle body. Participants will learn ways to find their own note and hear inner sound, entering directly into the subtle dimensions of sound by the magical voice practices of traditional cultures including trance music, Mongolian and Tibetan overtone chanting, and other methods. $250

Why We Misbehave the Way We Do

Charles & Ronnie Blakeney

Why do we misbehave the way we do? Harvard professor Lawrence Kohlberg has studied the development of moral judgment for the past thirty years. He, and his colleagues and students have interviewed thousands of children and adults worldwide. He has clearly demonstrated the existence of a universal sequence in the stages of moral thought. In the past fifteen years, Kohlberg and his colleagues have developed and successfully implemented Just Community programs, designed to raise the stage of moral reasoning of participants. Two questions have increasingly tickled and intrigued the Kohlberg group: What is the relationship between the stages of moral thought and moral behavior? What is the relationship between emotional development and moral development?

The workshop leaders bring Kohlberg's theory of universal stages of moral development to life.

The relationship between moral decision-making, moral feelings, and moral behavior within actual social interactions will be explored. Participants will use this framework to examine the nature of misunderstanding between parents and children, therapists and clients, employers and employees, students and teachers, friends, lovers and partners. By attending to moral stages, learning style, patterns of moral misbehavior, and unresolved emotional conflicts, personal and interpersonal understanding and growth can be facilitated.

The workshop will include lectures, role playing, video tapes, and reflective exercises to identify stage and style and to suggest objectives and methods for growth. $250

Week of June 7–12

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $490

Self-Acceptance: The Freedom to Be

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

Each of us has unique capacities to feel and express tenderness and strength, anger and affection, autonomy and needfulness, as well as compassion, humor, and wisdom. The degree to which we allow the fullness and vibrance of each of these qualities determines how alive and gratified we are.

In this workshop participants will focus on how they diminish or affirm these essential qualities as they are expressed through their bodies, sexuality, creativity, relationship to power, friendships, and expectations. In an atmosphere of tenderness and support, participants will clarify the nature of who they are and how they can best take care of themselves, both at Esalen and on returning home. The workshop will be grounded in gestalt, group process, guided fantasy, massage, and bioenergetics. $490

Intermediate Cranial Workshop

Jim Asher & Jane Harrington

This Level Two cranial workshop will review the vertical and horizontal systems with alternate holds for each phase. Mouthwork practices that reduce strain and compression patterns as they relate to the maxilla, sphenoid, and ethmoid complex and to pituitary and sinus problems will be shown. Participants will practice balanced movement of the body to support themselves while working, as well as movement patterns which can be taught to their clients to support cranial changes.

Cranial work can be effective in shifting emotional holding patterns and draining accumulated stresses in the nervous system. Unwinding, a method which can release strains throughout the body at the somatic and emotional levels, will be emphasized in this workshop. Speno-basilar strain patterns, whip lash, bulb compression, dural tube freedom, and the fluid system will also be covered. There will be time for questions about specific problems and case studies.

This workshop is for those who have taken a basic cranial workshop on the membrane / fluid systems. It will be hands-on. Much of the emphasis will be on the head, jaw, neck, pelvis, and diaphragm systems.

In addition to the program described here, this course will include a special section of collaboration with The Physical Embodiment of Mind (see below), during which participants can exchange information and experiences.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 8. $490

The Physical Embodiment of Mind: Patterns of Posture and Movement/Use of Self

Marghe Mills

The way we understand, sense, and use our bodies directly affects our health and our ability to perform the activities we need and want to be doing. Sitting, standing, walking, working, resting, communicating, dancing, exercising, etc., embody patterns as physical metaphors within each biological system (muscle, skeletal, nervous, organ, fluid, neuroendocrine). This workshop will consider the developmental, anatomical, and kinesiological foundations and the physical / mental / emotional experiences of these basic human activities.

Participants will work with their individual patterns of movement, alignment, and behavior. They will explore how personal and social patterns of movement and posture can be conducive to injury, to healing, and to wellness. Movement patterns from the point of view of function, ease, and support will be examined.

Through movement, discussion, hands-on work, lecture, voice, video, and art media, this workshop will provide opportunities for the development and sharpening of important human skills. The work of Moshe Feldenkrais (Awareness Through Movement®; Functional Integration®) and Bonnie Cohen (Body / Mind Centering) will be combined with developmental learning, aikido, and creative arts.

In addition to the program described here, this course will include a special section of collaboration with the Intermediate Cranial Workshop (see above), during which participants can exchange information and experiences.

Recommended reading: Marghe Mills and Bonnie Bainbridge Cohen, Developmental Movement Therapy (School for Body / Mind Centering); Moshe Feldenkrais, Awareness Through Movement (Harper & Row); Wynn Kapit and Lawrence Elson, The Anatomy Coloring Book (Canfield Press). $490

Weekend of June 12–14

Gestalt Practice

Esalen Gestalt Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $250

Advanced Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

This seminar is for people who are experienced in giving a massage. Through demonstrations and practice sessions, participants can learn to increase the effectiveness of their massage skills and have the opportunity to add fresh approaches to their current working style. The intent is to help participants develop deeper and more sensitive contact and to heighten their awareness of clients' responses.

When you send in your deposit, please list your previous massage experience. $250

The Power of Vision: Modern Applications of Visionmaking

Angeles Arrien & Frances Vaughan

In ancient cultures one finds three kinds of shaman: the healer, the warrior, and the visionary. This workshop will examine the types of vision utilized by each of them and how they can be developed and used in current personal, professional, and cultural contexts.

The visionary aspects of intuition, dreams, meditation, myths, and symbols will also be explored. Special emphasis will be placed upon the gifts and attributes of vision and how they can help create new myths for a nonviolent and peaceful future. Lecture and discussion will be combined with participation in the visionmaking process. $250

What's So Funny? Developing Comic Perspective

Wes "Scoop" Nisker & Paul Krassner

This workshop explores the humorous side of the tragicomedy of life. It emphasizes the development and expression of the crazy wisdom in each of us. Examining traditional uses of humor, from old Sufi tales, Zen Haiku, and coyote trickster stories, to audio and video tapes of the modern satirists and comedians including Charlie Chaplin, Lenny Bruce, Laurel and Hardy, and Woody Allen, the class aims to help participants learn not necessarily how to be funny, but how to see funny.

The group looks at humor in the news, the lighter side of the search for enlightenment, and the absurdist approach to life and death. Class work includes theater and writing exercises aimed at developing a sense of humor and finding skillful ways to use the comic perspective to ease the difficult moments in life. $250

Achieving Sustained High Performance

Jerry Fletcher & Kathleen Brown Fletcher

Everyone has had the experience of suddenly doing something much better than expected, yet until recently little has been understood about these high performance experiences. People assumed such times were lucky accidents. More significantly, even if they could perform at a high level for short times, they have assumed there was no way to sustain such performance without stress, fatigue, and eventual burnout.

After more than six years of careful research and testing, it is clear that these times of exceptional performance are not capricious. Each individual has a unique set of conditions under which he or she performs surprisingly well. Furthermore, once people learn their personal high performance patterns, they can deliberately create the conditions they need to sustain their own high performance behavior. They do not need to subject themselves to the strain of short peak periods of high output, followed by long recovery cycles.

This seminar presents a carefully developed process for individuals to learn what their high performance patterns are, and how to adjust the way they do things to fit the conditions under which they perform exceptionally well. This seminar is a program developed through years of work with experienced successful managers, executives, and professionals about how to go beyond competent performance in a way that can be sustained. $250

Week of June 14–19

Five Days with Janet Zuckerman

This workshop continues Esalen's tradition of interpersonal and intrapersonal work on emotional process. It is based on these premises: that unfinished business is projected into current relationships, interfering with one's ability to be in the present, and that by emotional release one may cleanse the doors of perception. $490

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Couples' Workshop

Jack Rosenberg & Beverly Kitaen Morse

Most couples are reluctant to seek help in their relationships; instead, they wait, hoping that the relationship will improve. If couples approached medical help the same way they approach marriage counseling, many of them would only visit the doctor when they ought to be lining up the mortician.

Designed on a preventive model, this workshop will deal with the underlying structures and defenses in relationships before they surface as terminal problems. It will also examine the attitudes and beliefs about sexuality and how to make sex better.

Recommended reading: Jack Rosenberg, Total Orgasm and Body, Self, and Soul: Sustaining Integration. $490

Mountains and Waves: Movement in Wilderness

Susan Harper & Steven Harper

Mountains and Waves is an invitation to explore natural movements inspired within the human organism by participation in nature. We listen to impulses within and to impulses of wilderness until "inner" and "outer" disappear. As we surrender to the intelligence which creates life in all its varied forms, we find ourselves moving in unexpected ways. Our awareness may expand. We can feel a larger sense of self and wilderness and the creative wholeness of a greater dance.

Sessions will be both indoors and outdoors. Evenings, some day sessions, and most meals will be at Esalen. We will also take short day hikes in Big Sur's backcountry. Participants need not have previous experience in hiking or dance. Come willing and ready to participate in nature's range of motion. $490

Weekend of June 19–21

The Feeling Process

Janet Zuckerman

For many people, feelings are something mysterious, something to keep to oneself, or something to think about. This workshop is about all the steps involved in learning to experience, respect, and honor one's feeling process in a way that can increase vitality and personal effectiveness. Participants may learn to separate feelings from thoughts, learn from their own body rhythms, learn to contact their own wisdom, and participate in the choice of expression or depression. $250

Zero Balancing: Advanced Workshop

Fritz Smith

This workshop is only open to people who have completed at least one introductory zero balancing program. Following a review of basic concepts, time will be spent on answering specific questions and giving individual instruction as needed. New work will focus on exploring the direct perception and assessment of energy currents in the body, refinement of evaluating and balancing the foundation joints, and the discussion of nonfoundation joints, including the small joints of the body. Theory will be clarified by demonstration and individual practice, using each other as models.

Recommended reading: Frederick Smith, Inner Bridges (Humanics).

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 8. $250

Professional Training in Ericksonian Methods

Jeffrey Zeig

The hypnotic technique of Milton Erickson offers certain methods of communication that can be applied clinically without formal hypnotic induction. Common everyday trance states can be recognized and utilized naturalistically.

This workshop will consist of lecture, experiential exercises, practice sessions, demonstrations, and observation and discussion of videotapes of Milton Erickson. The videotapes to be presented were taken at Erickson's teaching seminars in Phoenix in 1979 and 1980. Topics for discussion will include symptom prescription reframing, utilizing resistance, and using anecdotes and metaphors.

Enrollment is restricted to professionals with graduate degrees in health-related fields or fulltime graduate students in accredited programs in these fields. Students must provide a certifying letter from their school or department on letterhead stationery indicating proof of fulltime status as of June 1987. $250

Freeing Our Bodies/Our Selves Through Movement: A Feldenkrais® Approach

Patrick Douce

The work of Moshe Feldenkrais is based on the natural process by which we learned to move as children. During this workshop, soft, easy, gentle movements will be used to increase awareness of the body and to improve the ease and ability of movement. Special emphasis will be placed on the difficulties in movement that arise from chronic conditions such as lower back and neck pain, shoulder pain, tension in the neck and shoulders, and knee injuries. Such conditions can be improved by approaching the difficulties as problems in learning rather than as therapeutic troubles. Situations which were "incurable" become "re-educable." Workshop participants will also be introduced to methods to improve their ability to sense each other's bodies through touch and massage.

Although this workshop will be of value to anyone interested in learning more about his/her body through direct experience, it may be of special interest and benefit to dancers, athletes, doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists, health-care professionals, and elderly citizens, who may discover new ways of moving with ease and increased flexibility—painlessly and immediately.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 8. $250

Wrestling with Angels: UFOs and the Vast Middle Realms

Keith Thompson

"Unless you expect the unexpected you will never find truth, for it is hard to discover and hard to attain."—Heraclitus

"The thing that astonished him was that cats should have two holes cut in their coat exactly at the place where their eyes are."—Lichtenberg

Are UFOs (unidentified flying objects) a physical or a psychological reality, or both? To study the range of sighting reports is to begin to consider the possibility that UFOs travel across the boundaries between matter and mind—forming, in the words of Scott Rogo, a "momentary interface between hyperdimensions and our world." Reports of those who have been up-close-and-personal with a UFO are suggestive of what Jung calls the psychoid realm, a domain of quasi-physical, quasi-mental realities manifesting as synchronicity—the simultaneous occurrence of a particular psychic state with one or more external events which appear as meaningful parallels to the percipient.

No less interesting than what UFOs really are and where they might really be from is their structural and functional likeness to psychoid phenomena comprising a vast spectrum or continuum of experience. Various esoteric traditions have used the phrase "middle realms" to describe the multi-linked web of unorthodox entities and events with which humans at different times and in different places have interacted, including time-traveling aliens, angels, fairies, poltergeists, The Double, fiery crosses and fiery shields, demons, spectre ships, apparitions of the Virgin Mary, kachinas, shamanic underworld initiations, pillars of fire and smoke, monsters (such as Big Foot, Yeti, Sasquatch, and Mo-Mo), and other examples of what the Tibetan mystical tradition calls tulpas: materialized thought-forms.

The specific focus of this seminar will be the UFO phenomenon as perhaps the premiere techno-mythology of the late twentieth century. Through informal discussion, storytelling, and slide presentations, the seminar will consider the UFO phenomenon in terms of what folklorist Peter Rojcewicz calls "the spectrum of structural frames of reference that different cultures have utilized to describe and order their interactions with spiritual entities." What can be learned by looking at the UFO phenomenon as separate but not separated from other middle realm materializations (such as those listed above) which have been characterized variously as paraphysical, extradimensional, extraterrestrial, ultradimensional, and multiple-presence? $250

Week of June 21–26

Experiencing Esalen: The Body

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see May 3-8. $490

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see May 24-29. $490

Five Days with Claudio Naranjo

Claudio Naranjo offers a holistic collage of relaxation, bone-sensing, emotional awareness, and musical contemplation combined with tales, self-insight, communication exercises, catharsis, and limited open seat opportunity. $490

Returning to the Wisdom of Our Earth / Bodies

Laura DeNuccio (Ma Prita)

"If a proper reverence for the sanctity of the earth and the diversity of its people is the secret of peace and survival, then the adventure of self-discovery stands before us as the most practical of pleasures." — Theodore Roszak, Person/Planet

Learning about our bodies, our natural instincts, and responses can lead us back to the ancient wisdom of the earth — returning us to our sacredness and wholeness.

The focus of this workshop is to regain an intimate relationship with the natural pulsations and expressions of our bodies, as well as with our environment, through a conscious unfolding of our selves physically, emotionally, mentally, sexually, and spiritually.

In nature, we can observe the rhythms and patterns that occur in every aspect of life — from the pulsation of the cell, to the ebb and flow of our deepest emotions, to the movement and expansion of the universe itself.

The natural world will be our teacher as we explore the "inner" terrain of our physical and emotional bodies and the "outer" terrain of Esalen and Big Sur.

We will use Reichian gestalt awareness and breath work, sound, creative movement, and meditation to balance and transform energy blocks in the body. In addition, we will use music, dance, prayer, and ritual to express our relationship with the earth and each other.

No previous experience is needed, only a willingness to explore this adventure of spirit and discover a deepened sense of the interconnectedness that is inherent in all life-forms.

This workshop is limited to 12 participants.

Recommended reading: Fields, et. al., Chop Wood, Carry Water (J.P. Tarcher); Shakti Gawain, Creative Visualization (Whatever Publishing); Peter Russell, The Global Brain (J.P. Tarcher); Ken Keyes, Jr., The Hundredth Monkey (Vision Books). $490

Weekend of June 26–28

The Biological, Psychological, and Cultural Body: Methods of Transformation

Don Johnson, Coordinator

Featuring:

Bonnie Bainbridge Cohen, creator of the somatic educational system called "Body-Mind Centering."

Emilie Conrad-Da'oud, founder of the somatic educational method called "Continuum."

Leslie Gray, founder of "Shamanic Counseling," lecturer in Native American studies at UC Berkeley.

Susan Griffin, author of Woman and Nature and Pornography and Silence, presently at work on a book about nuclear war, The First and The Last: A Woman Thinks About War.

Barbara Halpern, medical anthropologist and Feldenkrais® practitioner; latest article appears in Social Science and Medicine.

Thomas Hanna, philosopher and Feldenkrais® practitioner, author of several books in the somatic field, founder and editor of the journal Somatics.

Don Johnson, somatic educator and author, conference coordinator.

George Leonard, creator of Leonard Energy Training, teacher of aikido, author of numerous books and articles.

Ted Melnechuk, member, scientific staff, and planning and editorial consultant to the president, Helicon Foundation; visiting lecturer, Department of Neurosciences, UCSD.

Michael Murphy, author, co-founder of Esalen Institute.

Moses Pendleton, co-founder of Pilobolus and current director of the Momix dance company.

Candace Pert, neuroscientist, director of the section on brain biochemistry, National Institute of Mental Health.

Vincent Sarich, evolutionary scientist, Department of Anthropology, UC Berkeley.

During the week of June 21-26, several leaders in various fields related to the human body will discuss their work and their visions of the future. On the weekend of June 26-28, they will present the results of their conference to the public. Each presenter will discuss his or her work and a vision of the body's future. There will be opportunities for dialogue among the presenters, questions from the audience, and experiential sessions. For more information, please refer to the Notes section, page 6. $250

Week of June 28–July 3

Coming Home to the Wisdom of the Body

Benj Langdon & Staff

"Freedom: A state of being in which man's relatedness to life is unobstructed."
— M.C. Richards, Centering

Stress-related tension and emotional blocks restrict one's capacity for feelings and expressions of aliveness. This workshop is a carefully chosen introduction to a variety of body approaches that can release limiting patterns and promote kinesthetic awareness, spontaneity, grace, and mental flexibility. Methods may include imagery, sensory awareness, Feldenkrais®, gestalt, Rolf movement, massage, Reichian breath work, and video feedback. $490

Adult Children of Alcoholic or Abusive Parents

Karen Paine-Gernée & Terry Hunt

Learning the facts about growing up with alcoholism is a big relief. It is, however, just one of the steps that ACAs need to take. In order to recover from the effects of their childhoods, ACAs need to dedicate themselves to an on-going process of sharing, healing, and learning. The workshop leaders refer to the goal of recovery as "emotional sobriety," which they teach as a fourteen-point program. Participants will have the opportunity to develop some practical and personal methods of implementing long-lasting changes.

This workshop is for beginners or individuals who have already begun an exploration of ACA issues. It offers the opportunity to confront and heal painful childhood emotions, to examine and restructure deeply held beliefs, to learn some basic tools for taking care of oneself, to make strides in letting go of control and developing a sense of trust, and to foster a relationship with one's own spirituality.

Special attention will be paid to learning how to nurture and sustain satisfying and equal intimate relationships. Intimacy between independent adults requires being able to tolerate the ambiguity and sense of "not knowing" that was so terrifying as children in chaotic homes. Emotional sobriety means having a personal sense of balance and physical boundaries from which to find peace and a capacity for genuine sharing and pleasure. $490

Hypnotic Realities: Explorations in Novelty From an Ericksonian Approach

Nancy Winston & Paul Lounsbury

This workshop will present Milton Erickson's naturalistic approaches to hypnosis and Gregory Bateson's systemic and evolutionary notions in communication as a means to deepen rapport with and generate access to creative intelligence in the unconscious mind. Because natural responsiveness structures itself in the personality in ways that parallel hypnotic phenomena, dynamics implicit in hypnosis and in hypnotic communication will be used to investigate how communication can limit possibility and/or generate choice.

Individuals exist within rich systems of interconnection, constantly influencing each other, and in contexts which are affecting and being affected by that interaction. Natural groups and families act as hypnotic units. They operate as contexts that shape, define, and direct the behavior of their members. Embedded in these habitats, individuals incorporate at mostly unconscious levels rules that govern how they construct the alternatives with which they plan and make their choices.

Since changes of radical importance tend to take place in nature when a fundamental rule in a system is altered, participants will explore how novel outcomes spontaneously occur when rules that pattern the organization of their sensory and symbol systems are creatively rearranged.

This workshop is for people who enjoy their sense of humor and are interested in innovating certain personal realities. The workshop leaders suggest as a prerequisite a willingness to allow degrees of extended uncertainty and "not knowing" so that new forms of clarity can be realized. Participants will be directed in exploring a variety of hypnotic phenomena to stimulate individual interest, evolve self-identity, and generate and accomplish personal goals. $490

Weekend of July 3–5

A Special Weekend Celebration with Babatunde Olatunji

with Ijalu Akanbe, Yao Tamakloe & Gordy Ryan

During this weekend, Nigerian musician Babatunde Olatunji will show how drum sounds and rhythms communicate, stimulate, and pace the activities of traditional African life. He will teach the consonants of the Yoruba language, reproducing its sounds on drums and through chants, body percussion, and dance.

Olatunji has been bridging the gap between American and African culture for thirty years and brings his ensemble to Esalen for this special Fourth of July weekend. This is an opportunity to spend two days and two nights at Esalen enjoying the grounds, the baths, massage, and the community without participating in a structured group. Dancers, percussionists, musicians, and anyone who wants to speak the language of the drums is welcome. Bring a drum if you have one. $200

Week of July 5–10

The Power of Growth

Seymour Carter

For workshop description see May 15-17. $530

Living Hypnotically

Norman Katz & Marc Lehrer

This five-day seminar on altered states and hypnosis will help the participants enjoy the benefits of greater perceptual awareness, enhance personal creativity, and develop an ongoing relationship with the unconscious mind. By understanding its basic principles, participants can learn to use hypnosis as an aid to change their lives in powerful and unique ways. They will be offered an opportunity to recall altered states and then produce them through hypnosis. $530

Language of the Drums: African Percussion, Chanting, and Dance

Babatunde Olatunji with Ijalu Akanbe, Yao Tamakloe & Gordy Ryan

This week-long workshop will follow the special Fourth of July weekend celebration with Babatunde Olatunji. (For description see July 3-5). However, during these five days, participants will have a chance to become more deeply immersed in the study and re-creation of traditional African drum sounds and rhythms. This workshop is for dancers, percussionists, musicians, and anyone who wants to speak the language of the drums. Drummers can experience the dance, and dancers can experience the drums. Bring a drum if you have one. (Also, see July 10-12 for continuing weekend workshop.) $530

Basic Deep Tissue Body Work Practicum

Dub Leigh

This practicum is divided into three equal parts: the first will focus on the chest and diaphragm to increase freedom in this area and to improve the client's breathing, the waist to increase length, the pelvis to allow more freedom of movement, and the back and neck to lengthen and organize; the second part will concentrate on the feet and lower legs, then the shoulders and back; the third will work the lateral lines of the body to create balance and alignment.

This is basic instruction and will depend on the training level of the participants. The prerequisites for this workshop are some massage training or a weekend with Dub Leigh.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 8. $530

Weekend of July 10–12

Keeping a Good Relationship Alive

Betsy Hand & Gerald Smith

For workshop description see May 29-31.
$270 per participant

Language of the Drums: African Percussion, Chanting, and Dance

Babatunde Olatunji with Ijalu Akanbe, Yao Tamakloe & Gordy Ryan

For workshop description see July 5-10. For those who wish to stay, this weekend is a continuation of the five-day seminar, or it is suitable for those who just have time to study with Olatunji for a few days. $270

Love and Work

Anne & John Caple

"Leiben und arbeiten," Freud answered, when asked what the normal person should be capable of. "To love and to work." In this workshop, participants will examine their work lives and work options in the context of their love for themselves, for others, and for the larger world. The group will use integrative exercises, art, and gestalt processes to approach life decisions. The goal is for participants to see more clearly what they want and how to get it.

This weekend is for those who want more value in their work lives, for career changers and potential career changers, for re-entry persons, and for those who influence others in career choices. Some time will be available for individual life / work issues during group meetings and in pre-breakfast runs.

Recommended reading: John Caple, Careercycles (Prentice-Hall). $270

Body Image, Family Systems, and Health

Don Johnson

A major source of one's body image is found within one's family of origin: its movement styles, attitudes toward sensual pleasures and physical processes, patterns of rigidity and limitation, and ways of embodying injuries and illnesses. Those largely unexpressed family attitudes toward the body are passed on from generation to generation, anchored in connective tissue. In addition, physical and psychological abuse and sexual molestation within the family deeply affect the images children have of their bodies. These various residues of family history provide a matrix within which each of us relates to injuries and accidents, limiting, sometimes severely, our capacities for healing.

In this workshop, each participant will be given the opportunity to examine the family origins of his or her body image and how that image is related to his or her history of disease and injury. Participants will work with sensory awareness, guided imagery, drawing, touch, and movement. The goal of the workshop is to expand one's healing capacities by weakening the hold of the limiting aspects of one's body image unconsciously adopted from one's family.
$270

Week of July 12–17

Feeling and Relating

Linda Rice-Mandigo, Anne Ruderman & Joel Dweck

Feelings give us knowledge, depth, and pleasure, but only when they flow unobstructed into our lives. Relating to others is a function of being able to express those feelings openly and directly. In this workshop, participants will have the opportunity to feel from a deep part of themselves and translate their individual work into quality interactions.

The workshop leaders have worked together for six years. They are trained in various disciplines and may use individual Reichian emotional release, breathing sessions, group process, play, love, nurturing, confrontation, and spiritual healing while working with workshop participants. They are available in the same emotional way with which they invite the group members to experiment. $530

Experiencing Your Psychic/Intuitive Abilities

Anne & Jim Armstrong

This workshop is open to anyone interested in learning to recognize, trust, and use their psi abilities. The leaders will use exercises designed to aid participants in recognizing their perceptive styles and trusting the intuitive input they normally receive. Anne Armstrong will use her tracking abilities, acquired from over twenty years in this field, to assist participants in arriving at useful, accurate data.

One of the basic objectives of the workshop is to demystify the intuitive/psychic process and encourage participants to use it in all areas of their lives—personal, professional, and spiritual. The workshop will include personal psychic scans and practice on selected cases. $530

Zero Balancing: Beginning/Intermediate Workshop

Fritz Smith

Zero balancing is a simple method for aligning the body structure and energy field. The structural/energetic interface of the body is beneath our conscious awareness, and when imbalances occur at this level, the body tends to compensate around them rather than resolve them directly. This often leads to loss of vitality, chronic body pain, and lessened potential for vibrant health. Zero balancing assists in overcoming these patterns of imbalance.

In this workshop, traditional anatomy, physiology, and kinesiology will be reviewed, and Eastern concepts of chi energy, its movement in the body, and the chakra system will be discussed. The system of zero balancing will then be presented, including specific guidelines for evaluating and balancing the structural/energetic interface in the body. The workshop will be both didactic and experiential, with the main emphasis on new skills in body handling. This is an accredited program toward zero balancing certification.

Recommended reading: Frederick Smith, Inner Bridges: A Guide to Energy Movement and Body Structure (Humanics).

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 8. $530

Weekend of July 17–19

Experiencing Esalen

Experiencing Esalen Staff

For workshop description see page 8. $270

Weekend Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

Massage is a practical approach to stress relief and greater sensory awareness. This weekend workshop will provide instruction in basic methods used in giving a massage, with additional work on quality of touch, breath awareness, centering, and sensitive rapport between partners. $270

A Weekend with Price Cobbs and George Leonard

Twenty years ago, at a time of great social ferment and racial unrest, George Leonard, a white journalist and human potential theorist, and Price Cobbs, a black psychiatrist, co-led the first interracial marathon weekend under the title, "Racial Confrontation as Transcendental Experience." That July weekend in 1967 became the model for hundreds of similar sessions throughout the nation. Participants in those sessions discovered that, by breaking through the barriers made explicit by racial prejudice, it is possible to break through many other barriers that prevent the development of human potential.

This weekend will commemorate the 20th Anniversary of the first interracial marathon. Price Cobbs and George Leonard will describe their current work. Participants, including some who attended the original marathon, will discuss the continuing quest for racial understanding and for the free and spontaneous expression of the emotions and abilities that are so often locked away in the prison of prejudice. Members of all races are invited to celebrate what has been accomplished and to join in the liberating struggle to end racism. $270

Process-Oriented Psychology

Arnold Mindell

Process-oriented psychology is a wide-spectrum approach which integrates dream and body work, individual and family counseling, dance, and verbal strategies. This procedure works from known methods such as bioenergetics, gestalt, Feldenkrais®, communication work, and completely unknown, utterly individual approaches which are creations of a given interaction. The processor takes his or her lead from the client's verbal and somatic signals.

In this workshop, beginners and professionals will have training experiences to develop their abilities to work with and integrate the following channels: proprioception (body work without movement), kinesthesis (movement and dance work), visualization (dream and fantasy work), audition (working with voice tempo and tone), relationship (working with body signals), and world signals (working with synchronicity). Videotapes and demonstrations of the work will be followed by discussion. The group will also probe the philosophical foundations of psychology. $270

Men and Women in Love: The Conflict Between Freedom and Commitment

Jean Hollands

She wants more—he wants less: this is the story of many relationships. Often the man pulls back and wants space, privacy, and peace, while the woman wants intimacy, contact, and spontaneity. He may be articulate and successful in the world and in his business and social contacts, but in intimate relationships has difficulty expressing himself. She may ordinarily be a sensitive, perceptive person, but who is seen as too demanding or possessive as a result of her need for more emotional response. She believes she's more of an expert about his feelings than he is, but, unable to change him, may compromise her own needs to sustain the relationship. Each is in pain. The roles are not sex specific. Mending, repairing, and building new behaviors are the goals of this workshop.

Didactic material and structured exercises will be offered to help participants discover their patterns of interaction and to experiment with new styles of relating. Each participant will have an opportunity for personal work, which will include feedback on his/her style of interaction. The workshop is suitable for couples or individuals. $270

Week of July 19–24

The Practical Art of Creative Risk-Taking

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

For workshop description see May 3-8. $530

Vipassana in the World

Jamie Baraz

Vipassana (insight) meditation is the simple and direct practice of non-judging, balanced awareness. When we clearly see and understand the impermanent nature of all experience, our reactions of clinging, condemning, fear, and confusion begin to lose their power. Instead, wisdom and compassion are strengthened.

In this workshop, we will follow the basic principles of Vipassana and apply them in a practical way. There will be a day for ourselves—learning the meditation and the qualities of patience, self-acceptance, and compassion. Next, there will be a day for others—in which the ideas of the practice are applied to relationships, livelihood, and skillful communication. Finally, there will be a day for the world—where larger issues such as service, action, and appreciation of the interconnectedness of all life are explored.

There will be regular periods of silent meditation, group discussions, and mindful application of our time at Esalen for a direct experience of the value of the practice. $530

Beyond Anatomy: Feldenkrais® for Body Workers

Patrick Douce

This introductory program will acquaint beginning and experienced body workers with some of the approaches taught by Moshe Feldenkrais. Although the Feldenkrais Method isn't body work, much of the information presented in this program can be useful for increasing the effectiveness and understanding of those who practice body work.

Based on twentieth century scientific understanding, the Feldenkrais system dispels many current misconceptions regarding the human form. In contrast to traditional static anatomical models, Feldenkrais emphasizes the interconnections used by the body to move. Gentle movements can allow participants to experience a heightened sensitivity and an increased range of motion in their own and others' bodies.

Chronic difficulties such as knee problems and pain in the back, hip, and neck—the spectrum of neuro-skeletal-muscular disorders—will be approached as problems of learning in movement. Individuals with these difficulties can learn to correct their chronic pains through increased mobility.

This program may be of value to anyone interested in movement or body work—dancers, massage practitioners, Rolfers, Trager℠ students, physical therapists, doctors, and nurses. Although this course is not intended to train anyone to teach the Feldenkrais Method, it serves as an adequate introduction to both the professional and non-professional.

C.E. credit is available for nurses; for additional information see page 8. $530

Potential Growth and Change Using Gestalt

Anne Nechama Simkin

Gestalt practice is a noninterpretive, existentially-based system in which awareness of one's feelings in the present moment is the primary focus. Gestaltists believe that human beings are born with the innate capacity to cope with life, but are taught by adults that they are "bad" or "selfish" or "unfair," thus suppressing self-expression, growth, and self-acceptance. Most gestalt communications deal primarily with the immediate interactions of those present. Explanations, interpretation, and assumptions are discouraged. Concentrating on what is rather than on what could or should be encourages a person to take responsibility for one's own actions. By becoming aware of what is potentially nourishing and what is toxic, it is possible to learn to make choices and to achieve integration.

This workshop is for persons seeking new perspectives, growth, and change. Participants will share experiences, explore new ways of coping with ongoing situations, search for the existential messages of their dreams, and learn to communicate with each other and significant others. The content of the workshop will evolve out of the needs and wishes of the group members. $530

July 19–26

Psychosynthesis: A Seven-Day Workshop for Professionals

Harry Sloan

"Learn your techniques well and be prepared to let go of them when you touch the human soul."—Carl Jung

Many of us have experienced those moments in working with clients when we don't have the foggiest idea of what's going on. Often, to avoid the discomfort of confusion and not knowing, we hurriedly grasp for the familiar—a technique, map, or model. This can lead to the mechanical experience of "going through the motions" and using rote interventions. In those moments, if we can stretch for essence and truth instead of falling back on what's most familiar, dissonance might open to insight, with a decidedly different effect upon both client and guide—that ineffable sense of capturing the moment. The interventions that follow are dynamic, uniquely suited to the particular needs of the client. The heart of psychosynthesis is understanding the process of reaching for the essence within ourselves and our clients. This practice tends to develop our inherent wisdom and intuition, a context which transcends methodologies.

The format will combine individual work within the group setting along with seminars, group exercises, and practicum. This program will be useful not only to those who are interested in psychosynthesis, but also to anyone in the helping professions who wants to come into a more creative relationship with his/her discipline.

Psychosynthesis is a name for the conscious attempt to align and cooperate with the natural process of growth and integration. It recognizes that each human being is spiritual in essence and encourages the realization and expression of this essence, or Self, as fully as possible in personal and social existence. $800

Weekend of July 24–26

Awakening the Healer Within You

Elizabeth Stratton

The human body is a self-healing organism. When confronted with excessive stress, negative emotional strain, accidents, bacteria, and viruses, the body's healing capacities and immune system sometimes begin to break down.

This workshop is designed to explore, both didactically and experientially, the connection between the mind, body, and spirit known as "the healer within." Each of us has the potential to awaken this healer and direct it in ways that will begin the healing process on all levels of our being.

The workshop will entail: opening the psychic energy channels, symptom dialogue, guided healing imagery, and forgiveness as spiritual cleansing. $270

Living Longer Well: The Keys to a High-Performance Lifestyle

Ken Dychtwald

In this seminar, Ken Dychtwald will explore the secrets of optimal health and long life based on worldwide studies and research. The key lifestyle factors that are known to promote high levels of mental and physical health will be outlined.

Topics to be covered include: the relationship between health, aging, and longevity; practical, proven techniques and strategies for managing stress effectively; what foods to eat and what to avoid for a low-stress, high-performance diet; how to create a personalized body / mind fitness program; and how to create a personal action plan for a well-balanced lifestyle.

There will be five instructional periods during the weekend, allowing ample time for rest, relaxation, and enjoyment of Big Sur. $270

Week of July 26–31

Five-Day Massage Intensive

Esalen Massage Practitioners

For workshop description see May 24-29. $530

Transpersonal Psychology: Perspectives on Growth and Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

This workshop will explore theoretically and experientially the rapidly developing field of transpersonal psychology. The discussion will focus on the implications of modern consciousness research for understanding the dimensions of the psyche, various forms of emotional and psychosomatic disorders, new mechanisms of healing and personality transformation, and strategies for growth and self-exploration.

The emphasis in experiential work will be on the method of "holonomic integration" developed by the workshop leaders, which combines controlled breathing, evocative music, focused body work, and mandala drawing. It mediates access to unfinished biographical material, sequences of psychological death and (re)birth, and the spectrum of transpersonal experiences. Special attention will be paid to the problems of "spiritual emergencies" and constructive approaches to transpersonal crises. $530

Transformational Neurolinguistics

Eli Jaxon-Bear

"When a pickpocket meets the Buddha he only sees his pockets."—Zen Proverb

"The map is not the territory."—Gregory Bateson

"There is no path until it's observed."—Heisenberg

Each of us lives in a unique "bubble of perception." Our point of view creates our world in the sense of what we notice, what we find meaningful, and what we fail to notice. We all learned strategies as children to cope with a hostile world that we didn't understand. Some of those strategies are functional and some are non-functional. They are all arbitrary and subject to change.

Neurolinguistics (N.L.P.) helps us see how we create our bubble of perception and provides tools to create new choices. N.L.P. can be used to clear up patterns from the past, to deal with ongoing relationships, and perhaps most exciting, to generate possibilities for growth.

Participants can explore their core issues while learning the tools of change and transformation. They will work with each other incorporating zazen sitting meditation, taoist yoga, and Buddhist compassion as the context for growth and change. Helping professionals, change agents, or anyone who is ready for insight as well as powerful tools of transformation is welcome. $530

Touching Spirit: Dimensions of Psychic Healing

Elizabeth Stratton

Psychic healing bridges the physical and the spiritual. Touching as a healing act has been practiced through recorded history by practitioners of the sacred as well as the secular: healers, shamans, priests, doctors, and mothers.

In the past ten years, physics and modern medicine have come to an acknowledgement of the radically relational nature of our universe. Nothing and no one functions in a void.

Human emotions affect the functioning of the body, and illness is often an outgrowth of this mind-body link. Semi-dissociative states that are induced by prayer, meditation, and trance have been found to provide a fertile ground for healing to take place. It has been discovered that "multiple personalities" exhibit different states of health in each personality. The placebo effect has become one of the most respected and well-studied issues in healing today.

A psychic healer is one who can help connect the physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual levels of another person's being with healing intention through the use of touch. This workshop will explore, both didactically and experientially, the sacred and secular uses of touch, modern theories of disease formation and healing mechanisms, the use of psychic sight in healing, forgiveness as transformational cleansing, and the channeling of healing energy through the laying on of hands. $530

Weekend of July 31–August 2

Advanced Massage Intensive

Deborah Anne Medow & Arthur Munyer

For workshop description see June 12-14. $270

Adventures in Self-Exploration

Christina & Stanislav Grof

The process of self-exploration in this workshop will be based theoretically and practically on observations from modern consciousness research. The method of "holonomic integration," developed by the workshop leaders, combines evocative music, controlled breathing, facilitative bodywork, and mandala drawing. It uses a model of the psyche that includes the biographical-recollective level, the dynamics of the death-rebirth process, and the spectrum of transpersonal experiences. All participants will have the opportunity to be experiencers as well as facilitators or "sitters." Special emphasis will be placed on the relevance of this work for management of transpersonal crisis. $270

Mobilizing Life Force

Alan Schwartz

Alan Schwartz writes: "Quite simply, life force is the combined movement of human physiology, feeling, spirit, and the action of the brain and central nervous system which we call thought. The cleaner the movement, the more strength a person has available. All of us, due to heredity, environment, and simple bad luck, spend much too much time holding or stratifying the life force. This keeps us from authenticity and impedes the decision-making process.

"This weekend will be an experiment—reaching down through stratified elements of personality to attempt to free the life force and enhance awareness and the decision-making process. The group will act as reality mirror, and each participant may request an energetic diagnosis as to how his/her life force presents itself."

For further information, read the leader's August 2-7 workshop description. $270

Physics Weekend: Bell's Theorem and the Nature of Reality

Nick Herbert

Quantum theory is universally successful in describing nature at all levels accessible to experiment. However, this comprehensive practical success is accompanied by an unprecedented disagreement as to what quantum theory actually means and a corresponding confusion as to what sort of reality supports the phenomenal world.

Controversy over the nature of deep reality has been sharpened by Bell's Theorem, which proves that any conceivable objective reality underlying the facts of experience must be independent of space and time. Thus either there is no ultimate objective reality, or this reality is more peculiar than we have been led (by ordinary physics) to believe. The impact of Bell's Theorem is just beginning to be felt in the world of physics, but it is rather like the situation of the Michelson-Morley experiment, which led to Einstein's theory of relativity. Just what the current controversy in the foundations of physics will lead to is not yet clear, but the various possibilities will be explored in this weekend presentation.

Recommended reading: Nick Herbert, Quantum Reality (Doubleday); Heinz Pagels, The Cosmic Code (Simon & Schuster). $270

Joyce Rogers Lyke

Week of August 2–7

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see May 3-8. $530

Energy Strategies

Nancy Rosanoff

This is a course in the self-management of psychic and intuitive abilities. Participants can learn to organize the vast amount of intuitive information available to them and apply it to their present needs. Whether changing careers, setting goals, improving personal and professional relationships, or solving everyday situations, the intuitive mind can help one discover the best approach. This course uses several visualization and psychic development exercises. The subtle chakra energy system is also studied and used as a guide to greater sensitivity. The goal of energy strategies is to tap that which is truly unique and build it into personal strength. $530

Effecting Change: The Human Energy System and Risk

Alan Schwartz

Alan Schwartz writes: "This is a week for recognizing and stabilizing how we face change given today's social, economic, and environmental realities. This is a week for designing a growth pattern to provide more stable contact with the issues facing all of us the rest of the century.

"The human energy system represents a constantly changing personality dimension. Often neglected in the human energy system's movement toward maturity is the development of strength. We hear metaphors not only of physical strength, but strength of character and emotions, and the spiritual and psychic strengths of perception. Lack of such strength development leads us to compensate in order to be able to function in our chosen worlds. Some compensations become psychosomatic problems: blame, denial, and indiscriminate sexual functioning. Power over self, people, and things is often a compensation for the strength that would allow us the experience of self, people, and things.

"Risk involves awareness of our individual compensations and sufficient trust of self and group process to experiment. This means rendering more alive the strength of our physiology, feelings, conceptual process, and psychic perceptiveness. The result can be clarity, stability, and a deeper awareness of self."

For further information, read the leader's July 31-August 2 workshop description. $530

Living Dance Rituals

Anna Halprin

"And just as he who dances with his body, rushing through the rotating movements of the limbs, acquires a right to share in the round dance, in the same way, he who dances the spiritual dance, always moving in the ecstasy of faith, acquires a right to dance in the ring of all creation."—St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan, 4th Century

Dance, in early times, was a way to evoke a higher spirit, a life force, and a transcendent power. It was also the mother of all art forms. Ancient peoples expressed their most important experiences of life not with external materials, but with their own bodies. They danced to make sense out of the mysteries of their existence. On every occasion there was a dance—to celebrate victory, bring rain, initiate the young. Today, in a world alienated from nature, people can still tap into the deep sources of their bodies and move and dance as an exciting way to renew, inspire, teach, create, and heal.

Anna Halprin has innovated a unique approach to deepening life experiences through art expression. This workshop will explore many facets of this approach, from the structured practice of Movement Ritual I (a series of floor exercises to cultivate body awareness through release and relaxation), to spontaneous, dramatic, and zany group interactions. Along with movement, visualizations, music, and outdoor environments will be incorporated.

On Wednesday evening, the participants will view a slide show on body images and transformation, which will lead into a special performance of the world-wide planetary peace dance from Circle the Earth. David Schiffman will be the musician.

Men and women with diverse backgrounds and a sense of humor are welcome. Also, potential students for the Tamalpa Trainings will find this workshop a valuable orientation.

Recommended reading: Anna Halprin, Movement Ritual I, Collected Writings of Anna Halprin (Tamalpa Institute).

Recommended viewing: Circle the Earth (videotape, Tamalpa Institute). $530

Weekend of August 7–9

Letting Go—Moving On

Mary Goldenson (Devarani)

For workshop description see May 3-8. $270

Exploring Self-Acceptance

David Schiffman & Elisa Lodge Schiffman

The purpose of this workshop is to create a more positive and open-ended self-concept. Through the use of structured risk-taking situations, gestalt, role-playing, fantasy, and group process methods, participants can accept or transcend the self-imposed boundaries from which they approach the world. Emphasis is on searching out unique personality strengths, individual capacities, and latent powers as a means of achieving productive functioning. $270

Fun with the Violin: For Adults Who Always Wanted to Play a Musical Instrument and Never Have

Diane Egli

If you wish you could play a musical instrument—but never had lessons as a child, or, if you used to play—but haven't since childhood, this workshop could be just the opportunity for you to learn to play the violin—and have fun doing it.

This will be a time to increase your awareness of how it feels to learn a new skill—the challenge, the excitement, the frustration, and the success of accomplishment.

Included in the workshop will be various activities to enhance violin playing—Alexander Technique as related to violin playing, movement and music, and rhythm exercises.

Bring a tape recorder and tapes.

Recommended reading: Shinichi Suzuki, Nurtured by Love; John Holt, It's Never Too Late.

$270 (plus $10 violin rental fee paid directly to the workshop leader)

Intimate Relationships: Keeping the Spark Alive

Ayala Pines

